2298. On 8 May 1991, at the initiative of the SDS Regional Board, the municipalities of Pale, Han Pijesak and Sokolac declared that they would join together in order to create the SAO Romanija.⁷⁸²⁰ (#Legal and constitutional#! It was legal and in accordance with the Constitution, as all other communities of municipalities. Some may not lve it, but it was a legal decision! Even the common Assembly didn't ban the formation of SAOs and other moves towards regionalisation, but only "recommended" it to be postponed!)

2300. In early 1992, the Bosnian Serb police officers who had been disarmed and expelled from the Stari Grad SJB, joined the Pale SJB to work on security tasks.⁷⁸²⁴ In January 1992, the Bosnian Serb population in Pale was mobilised by means of written call-ups that were issued to them.⁷⁸²⁵ (#JNA competence, legal#! The call-ups could be sent only by the "territorial defense organs", that were directly under the Federal Ministry of Defence and the Command of 2nd Military District. So, it had nothing to do with the local authorities, except the fact that the locals supported all of the JNA demands, as it was a legal obligation, and according to the document, see: D03679, 4 April 92

2301. During this period, paramilitary groups, including a formation commanded by Radomir Kojić, a special unit commanded by Rajko Kušić as well as Šešelj's men began operating in Pale.⁷⁸²⁶

(Mr. Kojic was a former active policeman, and at the time described he was a reserve police officer, while Rajko Kušić was an active policeman, and they did only what had been ordered by the police!) In the same period, an additional number of paramilitaries arrived in Pale.⁷⁸²⁹ They were mainly young Serbs; they had red ribbons on their arms and heads, and carried automatic rifles and knives.⁷⁸³⁰ They came to the #JNA call for volunteers#, not to the local Serb authorities. All the time to 20 May, all the military affairs were under the JNA competence. 2303. The Crisis Staff in Pale was established in March or April 1992; its headquarters was located in Pale SJB.⁷⁸³⁴ Zdravko Čvoro, the President of the Executive Board, was appointed as the President of the Crisis Staff.⁷⁸³⁵ The Crisis Staff, which included Šarac and other SDS members in Pale municipality such as Koroman, and Slobodan Ninković, controlled all municipal activities.⁷⁸³⁶ According to Šarac, the Pale Crisis Staff was in essence an expanded version of the Executive Board.⁷⁸³⁷ (This was the case with all the Crisis Staffs, because the memberships were ex officio, i.e. crisis staffs were not a new bodies, but the existing bodies with an intensive regime of work!)

2304. The SDS enjoyed “absolute power” in the municipality and the Pale municipal authorities allocated funds to it.⁷⁸³⁸ They also allocated premises and material resources and contributed financially to the Bosnian Serb Press Agency, the SRNA.⁷⁸³⁹

According to Hršum, the reasons for disarming were threefold: (i) in the area of Renovica, there were armed persons in hitherto unseen military uniforms moving about; (ii) there were constant incursions into and attacks against Renovica Barracks; and (iii) two individuals who had been linked with an alleged murder dating back to before the start of the war had hidden in the Renovica area. Tomislav Hršum, T. 32955–32957 (30 January 2013). The Chamber rejects Hršum's evidence on this point in light of reliable documentary evidence originating from the chief of Pale SJB's Criminal Investigation Service which indicates that in mid-March, Pale SJB confiscated weapons that were in the possession of Bosnian Muslims, “irrespective of whether they had permits for them or not.” See P6090 (Pale SJB record, 8 February 1993), p. 1.

2306. During the night of 3 March 1992, three Bosnian Serb reservists in dark police uniforms arrested Sulejman Crnčalo and his neighbour and took them both to the SJB in Pale; at the time of his arrest, Crnčalo was guarding his house with a hunting rifle.⁷⁸⁴³ At a certain point, Koroman arrived at the SJB and while questioning Crnčalo, stated that if any of his “policemen or soldiers” were wounded in Crnčalo’s neighbourhood, he would completely destroy that neighbourhood.⁷⁸⁴⁴ Koroman added that “[a]s long as there is no Serb policeman in Stari Grad, there is not going to be one Muslim policeman in Pale.”⁷⁸⁴⁵ (It was a part of the #inter-party Agreement#, which envisaged a pairs of similar municipalities, so to allocate the posts in the power reciprocally! Disrespect of this agreement annihilates the same agreement in the pair-municipality, and the majority party is free to establish authorities without coalition!) In the early morning hours, Koroman indicated that he was going to escort Crnčalo and his neighbour back to their respective homes.⁷⁸⁴⁶ When exiting the SJB, Crnčalo noticed at least a hundred reserve policemen outside.⁷⁸⁴⁷ Near his home, Crnčalo saw many heavily-armed soldiers and policemen facing the Bosnian Muslim inhabited parts of Pale.⁷⁸⁴⁸ (This is a #lie of an extremist#, because no one could mobilize the reserve police at that time without the Minister who was a Muslim, Alija Delimustafic. So, if there was some reserve police, it must be summoned by the Ministry and the Minister himself! 2307. On 23 March 1992, about 35 Bosnian Muslim active-duty and reserve policemen from Pale SJB met with Koroman at the Prača reserve SJB.⁷⁸⁴⁹ At the meeting, Koroman stated that Bosnian Muslim policemen were required to hand in their weapons and equipment.⁷⁸⁵⁰ Koroman added that this was a countermeasure against the move made by Stari Grad SJB and that the reinstatement of Muslim policemen depended on Serb policemen returning to their jobs in the Stari Grad SJB.⁷⁸⁵¹ (#Logical, legal and in accordance with inter-party agreement#!) The Bosnian Muslim policemen complied and handed in their weapons.⁷⁸⁵² Later that day, Bosnian Muslim reserve policemen in the Pale SJB were disarmed in a similar fashion.⁷⁸⁵³ From this point on, Pale SJB stayed under Bosnian Serb control.⁷⁸⁵⁴ (As well as the neighbouring Stari Grad SJB without the Serbs and under Bosnian Muslim control entirely!)

There was a general lack of food, not only for the non-Serbs! #General shortage#!) Eventually, most shops in Pale closed down.⁷⁸⁵⁹ By April 1992, many Bosnian Muslims had been suspended from their jobs.⁷⁸⁶⁰ (The Serbs as well, because all production decreased. This, as well as the “story” about the food discrimination, is a lie, made possible because of the Chamber’s trust in a single witness, who was an extremist! No any document or other corroboration!)

2309. On 11 April 1992, the Pale Crisis Staff promised to provide full security to all residents of Pale regardless of their ethnicity, decided that supplies shall be provided equally to all parts of the municipality, and proposed to hold discussions with SDA officials about supply and security issues.⁷⁸⁶¹ On or about 16 April, the Bosnian Muslims in the villages of Bare, Renovica, Prača and Podgrad recognised the “legal police” in the municipality and received guarantees of personal and material security as well as normal supplies and regular bus transport.⁷⁸⁶² (#EXCULPATORY#! That was an official attitude throughout the Republic of Srpska, consistent with D2424 UN document, or P3788, Edward Vulliamy’s report, and all other documents. Those of the “non-Serbs” who didn’t fight and didn’t fire against the VRS, police o civilian – enjoyed all the rights that the Serbs enjoyed!)

2310. During late April 1992, paramilitary forces dressed in camouflage uniforms and led by Zoran Škobo arrested a number of Bosnian Muslim men aged between 20 and 30.⁷⁸⁶³ These men were kept in the SJB for a few hours and then released.⁷⁸⁶⁴ (A police throughout the world do that, for their reasons to check some suspects. At the time the police could have keep detained persons up to 72 hours, nowadays up to 48 hours!) In May 1992, more Bosnian Muslims were randomly arrested.⁷⁸⁶⁵ (Zoran Skobo was acquitted from any charges in the BIH court.)

2311. In the beginning of May 1992, pursuant to an order issued by the Pale Crisis Staff, the Post Office in Pale disconnected the telephone lines of Bosnian Muslims.⁷⁸⁶⁶ From this point onwards,

The Chamber does not accept this evidence given that Hršum was himself a policeman in Pale and therefore has an interest in denying that employees of Pale SJB arrested individuals on the basis of their ethnicity. But the said Hrsum had been certified by the Internationals as suitable for the public duties. According to this criterion, all of the Muslim witnesses were motivated to denigrate the Serbs and their authorities, and the Defense has a reason to believe that the AID (the Muslim Secret Service) educated majority of their witnesses. Hrsum was working in the police, and he knew who was arrested and why, and that he was right can be proven since no all the Muslims had been subject of the police interest.

Zdravko Čvoro testified that private resources and services were taken over or withheld to defend the territory, that many Serbs and even public institutions also had their telephone lines cut as there was a shortage of telephone lines, and that the lines which were cut belonged to Bosnian Muslims who had already departed. See D2530 (Witness statement of Zdravko Čvoro dated 1 December 2012), para. 13; Zdravko Čvoro, T. 30929–30931 (4 December 2012). The Chamber rejects Čvoro’s evidence on this point given his lack of candour and evasiveness in his explanation of P734, a document which bears his name (although signed by someone else) and which orders that the telephone lines of 15 Bosnian Muslims be cut.

Bosnian Muslims went to the Post Office in order to make calls or asked their Serb neighbours to allow them access to their telephones.⁷⁸⁶⁷ (#Security necessities#! There was only about 15 telephones that had been disconnected, and this wasn't a matter of any civilian policy, but a matter of security and military matter! It is evident that Pale became a very crowded by the Republic's institutions, and the need for the telephone lines suddenly increased, so that the existing telephone station was insufficient. In the case the Cvoro testimony is not acceptable, another inference is also possible: at the same time there were shellings of Pale, and probably that was a reason, i.e. security reason to disconnect only 15 Muslim inhabitants of Pale. Not to justify, just to understand, but this was a right of the security agencies!)

2312. On 22 May 1992, the Bosnian Muslims in Prača, Bogovići, Gornja Vinča, and Podgrab handed over their weapons to Bosnian Serb Forces.⁷⁸⁶⁸ Residents of Renovica, however, refused.⁷⁸⁶⁹ (Nota bene!)

2313. On the same day, members of the Pale MUP and the VRS conducted a military operation against Renovica.⁷⁸⁷⁰ (#Opposite# First happened that the Muslims from Renovica ambushed the police patrol walking by foot to Renovica with the aim to talk about the weapons, and they got killed in this ambush. It is well known, and can not be bypassed, because that was an act of war! It was depicted in the court room, by the Prosecution witnesses, who confirmed that the Chief of the SJB Pale, Mr. Koroman was crying on the TV announcing that the war came to Pale too, see the next para!) Policemen from Pale SJB detained approximately 30 Bosnian Muslims and took them to the Pale Gym.⁷⁸⁷¹ On that day, Serb Forces also attacked and shelled the predominantly Muslim village of Donja Vinča, setting houses on fire and forcing the villagers to leave.⁷⁸⁷² SRNA reported on the operation against Renovica, stating that seven MUP members had been killed or wounded.⁷⁸⁷³ SRNA also reported that although the casualty figure in relation to the Bosnian Muslims had not been established yet, it was estimated to be “substantially greater”.⁷⁸⁷⁴ Furthermore, SRNA quoted the Pale MUP’s instruction to Muslims in Pale to hand over their weapons peacefully in order to prevent more bloodshed.⁷⁸⁷⁵ Around the same period, the Pale SJB also took control of villages that were situated in the direction of Renovica and Gorazde.⁷⁸⁷⁶ (Obviously, in order to contain the armed Muslims from Renovica and Gorazde. This move, strictly defensive, shows that the Pale police assumed that they and the town may be attacked and destroyed, and the people killed. Today the members of the active reserve unit of the Public Security Station in Pale engaged in an effort to disarm Muslim paramilitary forces in Praca and Renovica, neighborhoods with a majority Muslim population. This action occurred after it was noticed that armed groups were forming in this region and it was discovered that land mines had been placed on a couple of bridges. The Muslims in the neighborhoods Praca and Podgrab agreed to hand over their weapons without providing resistance. In Renovica, the members of the Pale MUP were faced with an organized resistance of the Muslim paramilitary forces. On that occasion, Goran Kablar and Rade Tosic were killed and five members of MUP were wounded. The number of killed and wounded on the opponents' side has not been determined, but it is estimated that it is a significantly higher number.

The action is still in progress and MUP Pale is calling on all Muslims in these neighborhoods to hand over their weapons in a peaceful way and refrain from causing more bloodshed.

It is clear that the Pale MUP undertook all the legal and legitimate measures!)

2314. On 23 May 1992, Koroman appeared on television and after announcing that war had finally come to Pale, issued an ultimatum to all non-Serbs to surrender their weapons to the SJB.⁷⁸⁷⁷ During the days that followed, Bosnian Muslims handed over hundreds of additional pieces of weaponry to the Pale SJB.⁷⁸⁷⁸ Koroman subsequently informed the Pale Crisis Staff of the attack against Renovica and was advised to transfer the Bosnian Muslims who had been detained there and who were “guilty” to Kula Prison, in Ilidža municipality, and to release the ones that were “not guilty”.⁷⁸⁷⁹ (Therefore, some of the Renovica Muslims had been guilty of something? Why the Prosecution-Chamber didn't clarify for what? They had been guilty for ambushing a regular and quiet police patrol, killing the policemen and afterward the Serb civilians too!)

2315. Pale SJB's chief of Criminal Investigation Service reported that, amongst other things, forcible entry into weekend houses was widespread and that SJB operatives, instead of suppressing such acts, participated and continued to participate in their commission.⁷⁸⁸⁰

(#Absurdity# #Officials did properly#! This is a report of the superior in the criminal department of SJB Pale, which exactly shows that somebody in the authorities worked properly and did his job. How possibly this sharp and honest report could be used against the state organs and this President particularly??? Let us see what is the main point in this report: P06091,p.2

In this period, the conditions of war and the poorly organised activities at these levels resulted in the mass occurrence of all types of criminal activities committed by many people, and the so-called “war profiteers”.

Due to this, on this territory, as well as on other territories, we had many cases of motor vehicles stolen from other territories and driven around Pale, where their papers were arranged, and the vehicles then taken to Serbia; a large number of forcible entries and robbing of weekend houses from which many things were stolen; stealing of cattle from persons of Muslim ethnicity who had fled into the forest or moved to Sarajevo, as well as other acts of crime.

This is an honest review of the weaknesses of the service in a new circumstances for which nobody was prepared. The main issues are so-called “war profiteering”, theft of cars, robbing weekend houses, stealing and smuggling. All municipal departments...including the Pale SJB and its management, were caught off-guard by this phenomena. Therefore, all of the mistakes hadn't been planned or supported by the state organs, but were rather a weakness and insufficiency of a small town founding itself in a big problems.

All municipal departments, local communes, the Red Cross and everybody else, especially the Pale Public Security Station and its management, were caught off-guard by these phenomena. At the time, they did very little for the protection of that property, they even participated in the execution of certain crimes because they thought, as they still do today, that they would never be held responsible for criminal activities.

In the same manner, the municipal services, local communes and the Red Cross were overwhelmed with the massive arrival of refugees to this area, and reception and accommodation were not organised, so that, at the proposal of the people from the municipal authorities, who were also affected by bribery and corruption, and the municipal services, the refugees were sent to go from one weekend house to another and find accommodation on their own, and would then later on come to the competent municipal services for a decision to be issued. This chaos led to masses of people breaking into weekend houses and taking their pick, which resulted in many weekend homes being left open and easy to rob.

The impact of the “massive arrival of refugees... bribery and corruption... this certainly wasn’t a plan of the state organs.

In such a situation, there was very little that the Public Security Station could do to prevent this. In spite of many objective, and mainly subjective, weaknesses, the Criminal Investigation Service’s employees managed to carry out some of the work. Special attention was given to serious crimes (murder) and serious cases of other crimes which, depending on the consequences, or the mode of their execution, could have caused unrest among the citizens and the public at large.

All of it in P6091, quoted only partially! When we take into account that the chief of the SJB Koroman was replaced by the Minister of Interior Mr. Stanisic for the incompetence and weakness as early as in May 1992, (unsuccessfull because of riots and resistance, but was replaced latter) and when we take into account that the author of this report was a superior of one department of SJB Pale, and therefore represented the state organs more than the villains, this report can not be used against the state organs, and certainly not against this President. #Next level# rectified!.

Movement of the population from Pale and appropriation of property 2316. On or about 13 March 1992, policemen and paramilitaries started advising non-Serbs to leave Pale municipality.⁷⁸⁸¹ For instance, Jovan Škobo and Novica Stanar, who were both policemen, as well as Kojić, a paramilitary, visited Crnčalo’s village and during this visit, Škobo told the residents that it was better for them to voluntarily go to an area where the Muslims were a majority now rather than being “chase[d] through the woods” later.⁷⁸⁸² In response, Crnčalo, his brother and a number of neighbours went to see Starčević who assured them that if they had not done anything wrong, they had nothing to worry about.⁷⁸⁸³ (However, Skobo was tried in the BH Court, and was acquitted! We should ask for this file to see whether Crncalo testified, and D2530 (Witness statement of Zdravko Čvoro dated 1 December 2012), para. 6; Zdravko Čvoro, T. 30939 (4 December 2012). The Chamber rejects Čvoro’s evidence on this point because of his evasiveness and his lack of candour as a witness. For example, Čvoro insisted that he had no knowledge about the Pale SJB’s involvement in the expulsion of Bosnian Muslims from Pale despite being showing documentary evidence to that effect which bore his signature. See Zdravko Čvoro, T. 30963–30967 (5 December 2012); P6034 (Report of Pale Executive Board, 7 July 1992).

2317. In May 1992, Crnčalo and his neighbours requested that Koroman organise a meeting at the SJB building and invite a high-ranking government official so that Bosnian Muslims in the Pale municipality could be given guarantees about their safety.⁷⁸⁸⁴ Shortly after the start of the meeting, Nikola Koljević arrived and when asked by Bosnian Muslims to give guarantees that they could stay in Pale, he replied that “Serbs don’t want to continue living with you here.”⁷⁸⁸⁵ During the same meeting and in the presence of Koljević, Koroman told the Muslim delegates that he could no longer guarantee their safety because he was unable to hold back the Red Berets who had come from Knin.⁷⁸⁸⁶ (This is a cruel lie, Mr. Koljevic was something quite different, and I do think that we have to obtain some document or a witness to check it. Koljevic was ti initiator of this meating! @To see whether there was anyone else present, or somebody took notes???)

2318. On 12 June 1992, Starčević asked the secretary of the Pale SDS to urgently call a meeting of the Pale SDS Main Board so that the SDS could adopt a general position on the departure of non-Serbs from the municipality.⁷⁸⁸⁷ On 18 June 1992, during a Pale Municipal Assembly session, the President of the Assembly, Starčević, and the President of the Executive Board, Čvoro, complained that the Pale SJB had taken measures to move the Bosnian Muslim population out of the municipality.⁷⁸⁸⁸ On 19 June 1992, Pale Municipal Assembly adopted a decision which required non-Serbs who wished to leave the municipality to obtain permission from the SJB.⁷⁸⁸⁹ Pursuant to the same decision, the Pale SJB, in co-ordination with municipal commissions, was to compile a list of all property owned by non-Serbs who were leaving the municipality.⁷⁸⁹⁰ The Pale Municipal Assembly also entrusted the Pale SJB with the task of organising the departure of non-Serbs and making sure that they crossed the separation line safely.⁷⁸⁹¹ (#Due to Agreement#! (#Due to Laws and Agreements#! The Prosecution-Chamber didn't pay any attention to the domestic laws, and to a great number of agreements concluded by the warring sides under the auspice of the international organisations, UNHCR, ICRC, United Nations, European Community... That is why the Indictment and Judgment rather looks like a communist lecture against nationalism, i.e. national and human rights!)

2319. In late June and early July 1992, Bosnian Serb authorities in Pale gave Bosnian Muslim property-owners contract forms which already contained their data.⁷⁸⁹² By virtue of these contracts, which the Muslims had to sign before they could depart from Pale, Muslim property in Pale became Serb property in exchange for Serb-owned property in Sarajevo.⁷⁸⁹³ Those who refused to sign such contracts were forced to surrender the keys to their houses to the Pale SJB.⁷⁸⁹⁴

(There was no a single case like that. Mr. Crncalo had been very well prepared by the Muslim secret services for this testimony! It had never happened that any property ownership be changed! Such a lies are enabled in this court, in spite of the oaths and legal obligations towards truth. This is absolutely incomprehensible and unacceptable, and it discredits all the idea of the international justice!)

2320. During the same period, Serb authorities in Pale organised a number of convoys for the transportation of non-Serbs out of the area.⁷⁸⁹⁵ Prior to this, written notices were put up, informing the non-Serb population of the location and time at which they could board the buses.⁷⁸⁹⁶ Those boarding the buses were allowed to take only what they could carry.⁷⁸⁹⁷ The first convoy left Pale on or about 28 June 1992.⁷⁸⁹⁸ On 2 July 1992, SerBiH MUP ordered the Pale SJB to grant permission to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats living in Pale centre to move out of the Pale municipality “of their own free will” and instructed “police and military patrols to enable the unobstructed passage of three buses transporting Muslim civilians”.⁷⁸⁹⁹ The third convoy left Pale D2530 (Witness statement of Zdravko Čvoro dated 1 December 2012), para. 6; Zdravko Čvoro, T. 30949–30950 (4 December 2012). However, the Chamber notes that during the war, Čvoro himself had lived in property that belonged to a Bosnian Muslim. See Zdravko Čvoro, T. 30982–30983 (5 December 2012). This leads the Chamber to conclude that there was an obvious underlying self-interest on the part of Čvoro for advancing the claim that Muslims placed their property in Serb hands for safe-keeping. But there are many more undisputable agreements on temporary or permanent exchange of property. It never meant that a private property was to belong to the state or municipality. Crncalo lied more than it is acceptable. At least, we should ask the court in Pale to send to us a report about a possible post-war litigations pertaining the property.

on 2 July 1992 for Hreša, a small hamlet near Sarajevo.⁷⁹⁰⁰ From Hreša, non-Serbs from Pale went to a reception centre for refugees in Vratnik, which was operated by Bosnian Muslim authorities.⁷⁹⁰¹

2321. On 6 July 1992, the Bosnian Serb MUP issued a decision, granting the request by non-Serbs living in the inner parts of Pale to move out of the Pale municipality “of their own free will” and “under the escort of police officers” of the Pale SJB, and instructed “police and military patrols” to enable the unobstructed passage of 420 civilians aboard eight buses bound for Stari Grad municipality.⁷⁹⁰²

2322. On the same day, pursuant to the instructions of the SerBiH government, the Executive Board decided that non-Serb individuals or families must not be allowed to leave the territory of the municipality until “a list of their property is made and the property is taken over in accordance with the regulations in force.”⁷⁹⁰³ The Executive Board also requested that the Pale SJB take immediate measures to protect the property left behind by the non-Serbs until such time that this property was taken over by an authorised municipal commission.⁷⁹⁰⁴ (Here is the document named in the foot note. However, it is clear that the main point was to protect the property, and to have the list of property left behind, otherwise the municipal authorities would not be responsible for the looted or destroyed property. Also, the refugees taking such a property by themselves were not obliged to return it in the same condition. NO CHANGE OF THE PROPERTY RIGHTS! #No appropriation#!.

1. The Pale Police Station is hereby requested to take immediate measures to protect the property of non-Serbian inhabitants who have moved out of the territory of Pale municipality until this property is taken over by an authorised municipal commission. It should coordinate its activities in this task with the activity of units of the Civilian Protection and authorised commissions for the take-over of this property.
2. Individuals or families of non-Serbian ethnicity who wish to leave the territory of Pale municipality must not be allowed to do so until a list of their property is made and the property is taken over in accordance with the regulations in force, which should be duly recorded.

3. Also on 6 July 1992, the Pale SJB reported that between 30 June and 3 July 1992, it had “organised change of the place of residence from the territory of Pale municipality to the territory of Stari Grad Sarajevo municipality” of 1,042 non-Serbs.⁷⁹⁰⁵ The SJB continued to organise the movement of Bosnian Muslims out of Pale municipality for another one or two months.⁷⁹⁰⁶

(#Legal obligation#! So what? That was an obligation of the authorities, to secure the safe passage, an organized convoy, a police escort, and a certainty that the municipality of destination would accept the civilians, see: D1141:

⁷⁹⁰⁶ D2850 (Witness statement of Tomislav Hršum dated 27 January 2013), para. 22.

The undersigned submit the following recommendations to the deliberation of the International Conference on Former Yugoslavia :

1. Civilians who desire to leave temporarily the territory controlled by one party to reach the territory controlled by another party should be entitled to do so.
3. The civilians should be able to leave in an organized transfer under international supervision and, if necessary, protection. Its security will be guaranteed by each party on the territory it controls.
4. Each party to the conflict guarantees to those who leave temporarily the territory it controls :
 - a) that their goods, assets and belongings will be respected and protected;
 - b) that they have a right to return home at a later stage if they wish so;
 - c) That any document, including a document renouncing or transferring property rights, assets or claims signed by a person who is about to leave temporarily has no legal validity and does not affect in any way that persons's rights or obligations.
5. Persons temporarily transferred to areas other than their areas of origin should benefit, as vulnerable groups, from international assistance, inter alia, in conformity with its mandate, by the ICRC.

What is not clear here? All had been regulated under the auspice of the international agencies and the ICFY, sub-Conference on BiH led by Lord Carrington and Ambassador Cutileiro, all signed by the three warring parties, all in accordance with the international documents! :

2324 . In a letter dated 7 July 1992, the Executive Board informed Plavšić that despite the Assembly's decision of 19 June 1992,⁷⁹⁰⁷ there had been "forced and wilful" efforts to move Bosnian Muslims out of the municipality, resulting in a large number of criminal acts.⁷⁹⁰⁸ (This document is an urgency of the Pale Executive Board Chief, the same Zdravko Cvoro. In the document he reports to the vice-President of the RS about irregularities with the issue of "changing the place of residence" (which is in Serbian "mesto boravišta" i.e. temporary being somewhere,

Наше, супротно одлуци СО-е Пале, са своје сјединици од 10.00.1992. године, која је регулисала питање промјене мјеста боравка становништва неспрске мјеста боравка становништва contrary to "mesto prebivališta" which means a permanent resettlement) of the non-Serbs from Pale. #Ad absurdum#! So, once again, the Chamber is taking documents of the governmental institutions complaining about crimes and crying for assistance to rectify irregularities – against this President!!! The war conditions, the influx of refugees, insufficient and incompetent police personnel, vicinity of the confrontation line, every day casualties, all of that caused a chaos and facilitated irregularities at least by some of the policemen and corrupt officials. But the state organs fought for the regularity and as time passed and the institutions strengthened, a rate of crimes gradually decreased.

Another question is: why the same Zdravko Cvoro is now credible to the Chamber, but when talking about what he knew was not credible? Is there any difference between the Chamber and Prosecution in treating the Defence arguments?)

⁷⁹⁰⁷ See para. 2318.

⁷⁹⁰⁸ P6034 (Report of Pale Executive Board, 7 July 1992).

2325. On 14 July 1992, the Executive Board noted the theft and unlawful use of abandoned property in Pale which in its opinion was attributable to the failure of the commissions established earlier for the purpose of making an inventory of abandoned non-Serb property. The Executive Board then established a new audit commission to re-examine the situation and file a written report.⁷⁹⁰⁹ (The Serb authorities are taking steps to rectify the failure in an inventory of the abandoned property! #EXCULPATORY#! THAT WAS SOMETHING #COMMENDABLE#!)

2326. On 19 July 1992, the President requested that Pale municipal authorities make an inventory of all housing facilities that were vacant “following the voluntary departure of Muslims.”⁷⁹¹⁰ On 10 August 1992, the Municipal Assembly signed over non-Serb housing property to Serb refugees for “temporary use”.⁷⁹¹¹ The municipal authorities also concentrated the movable property left behind by Muslims in the premises of various military and non-military institutions.⁷⁹¹² (All as it should be. The quotation marks with “temporary use” really compromises the Chamber as an uncritical “ally” of the Prosecution! There was no a single litigation after the war about property and ownships, which confirms this “temporary nature” of use of other’s property!)

2327. On or about 24 July 1992, the President informed the Bosnian Serb Assembly that the Bosnian Serb government was giving assurances to Bosnian Muslims in Pale that “they have nothing to fear.”⁷⁹¹³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! Here is this D27, the President’s speech in the Assembly of the Republic of Srpska:

We are about to reach the finish line like an athlete who ran an entire track, and now only has to cut the finish line. All of this has happened in the passed two years, from the moment when the Serbs decided to organise politically, to establish political subjectivity, to introduce balance with the forces that disintegrated these areas during times which we know very well unfortunately, with tragic consequences to the Serb people and the genocide and execution of over 7,000 Serbs. The Serb people used to planned especially that which has a formative character, which is supposed to form the state. Perhaps we should have talked more ceremonially, we have three months’ reason for it, with a difficult and bloody battle have we managed to mark our state. We have not yet raised its sign posts, but I believe that this Assembly will decide about it, but one knows in essence, because we have closed off an area, prior to all had we not closed it off we would not be able to make government decisions. It entails ethnically Serb areas. The Serbs and others live freely there. I must say that sadly the Muslims in Podrinje do not want peace, except in Bijeljina, in Pale, where they form 20 percent of the population, where nobody bothers them or considers them as second class citizens. On the contrary our government officials are communicating with them to persuade them that they have nothing to fear. Therefore, in Serb BiH the Serbs have accomplished their state, their freedom, and a state big enough for all. I hope that we reach in this Assembly session, some conclusions and decisions to further entrench this state.

The figure of 7.000 Serbs killed in the genocide in WWII should be 700,000. Also, the penultimate sentence should be translated as follows: "... and a state that will be comfortable to all others who live with us"! But, anyway, this is a highly #EXCULPATORY#, and it was said among the members of Parliament, so that everyone knew what was the position of the President in the #minority rights#!)

2328. On 20 October 1992, the Executive Board decided to seize all movable property belonging to persons who had been outside of Pale municipality for more than 30 days.⁷⁹¹⁴ The Executive Board then noted that temporary allocation of such property to Serb refugees in Pale may take place on the condition that such allocation is authorised and recorded by a competent municipal commission.⁷⁹¹⁵ (A #proper decision#, because only in such a case there would be an obligation to preserve the property!)

2329. Only a small number of Bosnian Muslims remained in Pale municipality during the war.⁷⁹¹⁶ (Why nobody bothered them? The most probable reason for a discomfort of some families was the fact that their relatives fought in the Muslim Army. For that reason the President banned all the mass funerals, because at the beginning of June 92 there was 45 casualties from Pale, killed in an ambush after been guaranteed the free passage. The mass funeral raised tensions, but a solitary ones also!)

2330. The President argues that (i) through their elected representatives or by filing individual applications, Bosnian Muslims of Pale requested permission to leave the municipality;⁷⁹¹⁷ (ii) the Bosnian Muslims of Pale asked to leave because the Bosnian Muslim authorities in Sarajevo had demanded such departure as part of their preparations for a planned military take-over of Pale;⁷⁹¹⁸ and (iii) in order to prevent the departure of Bosnian Muslims, Serb authorities guaranteed the civil rights of all people regardless of any ethnic or religious affiliation.⁷⁹¹⁹

2331. Having considered the totality of the evidence and assessed the circumstances in which the departures occurred, the Chamber finds that Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave. The Chamber notes that in some instances, Bosnian Muslims requested to leave the municipality; however, the Chamber finds that even when the Bosnian Muslims did request to leave Pale, they were driven by the fear caused by all of the surrounding circumstances. Consequently, the Chamber is satisfied that Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave the Serb-controlled parts of Pale municipality. (They could have been #forced by the circumstances#, as well as the newly born problems and inability of the authorities to cope with this problems, and maybe some of them were "persuaded" by individuals, but the authorities didn't want them to leave, and didn't force them. At least, the main participants in the municipal and Republic organs were not in favour of their leaving, and fought against the unlawful conduct! Being "forced" by the civil war atmosphere could be responsibility of the civil war and those who wanted it and caused it, and the Chamber had a very persuasive evidence that the President was against

i. Scheduled Detention Facility C.19.2 and Scheduled Incident B.14.1

2332. The Indictment refers to the use of Pale Gym as a detention facility at least between May and August 1992, and alleges that between June and July 1992, a number of men died as a result of beatings which they sustained in there.

Establishment and control

2333. Pale Gym was a large sports hall situated near the Pale SJB, in Pale Culture Centre.⁷⁹²⁰ There were windows only on one side of Pale Gym.⁷⁹²¹

2333. 10 May 1992, Mirsad Smajš and eight other detainees from the Sarajevo area were transferred from Kula Prison to Pale Gym; at that point Pale Gym already held approximately 100 detainees, including some Serbs and Croats, and was guarded by SJB members in blue uniforms with the Serb flag emblazoned on the shoulder.⁷⁹²² Upon arrival, each detainee was given a sandwich and a bottle of water.⁷⁹²³

2334. A few days later, a group of about 400 badly beaten Bosnian Muslim men who had previously been detained at Vuk Karadžić School in Bratunac, were brought to Pale Gym in several trucks.⁷⁹²⁴ One by one, the detainees were taken off the trucks, registered and placed in the gym.⁷⁹²⁵

2335. As was mentioned earlier, on 22 May, after conducting a military operation in Renovica, Serb Forces detained about 30 Bosnian Muslim men and took them to Pale Gym.⁷⁹²⁶

2336. During the last week of May 1992, Hajrudin Karić was arrested by two policemen, who then took him to Pale Gym.⁷⁹²⁷ At the time of Karić's arrival, Pale Gym was guarded by a number of policemen, including Predrag Štrbac, a man with the last name Čvoro, and Nedelko Kovačević.⁷⁹²⁸ Upon entering Pale Gym, Karić saw that it was full of Bosnian Muslims, including a woman.⁷⁹²⁹

2337. On 4 June 1992, Azem Omerović and three other men were taken to Pale Gym by Serbs in camouflage uniforms using police cars.⁷⁹³⁰ (#Legal and obligatory#! So what? The police was doing it's own job, and a suspects had to be brought in and questioned. On June 4 there was an ambush in which 45 young soldiers from Pale had been killed, in spite of an agreement on a safe passage!)

Conditions of detention and treatment of detainees

2338. The detainees were given sufficient water to drink but insufficient food, only receiving sandwiches with a little bologna once a day; they became weak from hunger and often fainted.

2339. The detainees in Pale Gym were constantly subjected to maltreatment.⁷⁹³³ (See under this fn, how this looks like! If Sarac as a very decent official didn't receive any information, that means that the authorities generally didn't know about such an incident, the President in particular. With Hrsum is the same: as a decent man, he said that he couldn't exclude an entry of some individuals prone to committing beatings, but he didn't have any such information! But he didn't confirm that it happened! Therefore, the Chamber rather trusted the #Muslim extremists# that had been brought in, than the Serb professionals! And no defence could do anything if these criteria were implemented! The Chamber "promoted" any hint to a possibility, and further to a probability, than to a fact, in spite of the Defence witnesses rebutting it! But this is not a fair trial!#Possibility-probability-fact#!) The guards told them that they would be killed unless they were exchanged.⁷⁹³⁴ The guards also warned them not to attempt to escape and indicated that guards had been posted near each window.⁷⁹³⁵ The detainees were severely beaten with whatever the guards could have put their hands on and had to Jovan Šarac stated that he had not received any information about the beatings of the detainees held in Pale Gym. Jovan Šarac, T. 47154–47158 (14 February 2014); D4368 (Witness statement of Jovan Šarac dated 10 February 2014), para. 57. The Chamber notes that even if accepted as reliable, Šarac’s testimony does not necessarily suggest that maltreatment and beatings did not occur at Pale Gym. Hršum stopped short of asserting that no Bosnian Muslims had ever been beaten while in the custody of the Pale SJB, and accepted that the police guards might have allowed entry to the gym by “certain individuals”. Hršum, however, insisted that the police guards did not undertake any “repressive measures” themselves. Tomislav Hršum, T. 32942 (30 January 2013). The Chamber found that Hršum worked for SJB Pale and that SJB Pale was involved in the detention of Bosnian Muslims in Pale Gym. D2850 (Witness statement of Tomislav Hršum dated 27 January 2013), paras. 1, 16; Tomislav Hršum, T. 32939–32942 (30 January 2013). These facts, in addition to Hršum’s general evasiveness and lack of candour as a witness, lead the Chamber to conclude that Hršum had an incentive to distance himself from the events at the Pale Gym. Accordingly, the Chamber places no weight on Hršum’s assertion that the members of the Pale SJB were never involved in beatings of detainees in Pale Gym.

2340. At one point, a fair-haired man, approximately 40 years old and wearing a police uniform, entered Pale Gym and introduced himself as a police commander from Pale.⁷⁹³⁸ He then proceeded to beat the detainees.⁷⁹³⁹ At the same time, a soldier entered Pale Gym and announced that everyone would be killed unless the soldier's brother, who had been captured by Bosnian Muslims, was released.⁷⁹⁴⁰ (All private and all contrary to everything what the President ordered. Even if happened, this was not an official policy! But no document or other testimonies corroborated this!#Contrary to President orders#!)

2341. Sometime after the Bosnian Muslim men from Bratunac had arrived, the guards had a disagreement with "army troops" who were at the door and wanted to enter the gym to beat the detainees.⁷⁹⁴¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The guards installed bars on the windows as well as an iron door in order to prevent them from entering the gym.⁷⁹⁴² (#EXCULPATORY#!) However, later, during Karić's detention, the police guards allowed paramilitary members, including members of Rajko Kušić's and Srđan Knežević's units, to access Pale Gym multiple times each day and beat the detainees severely with sticks and rifle butts.⁷⁹⁴³ (Karić knew the guys personally and had a personal motives to lie. There is #no evidence# that it ever happened. Kusic was a high sportsman, representing Yugoslavia and winning medals, and he was an example of decency! But the Muslim extremists had been free to lie as much as they wanted! Kusic died in a car accident, otherwise he would testify! And did you understand this as being pardoned or that you were no longer a suspect? A. I believe that I was pardoned because perhaps he had an unclear conscience because he probably realised that I wasn't the one who had shot. Nota bene: a crime required, not religion! Q. Thank you. Was your father joined to the people who were transported to Pale? A. Yes, he was. Q. Thank you. And how were you treated in Pale? Did you have access to water, food, and were you provided with any medical assistance? A. As for Pale and our arrival there, I can't say anything bad. I can just say good, that I want to thank all the policemen and the hospital. If these people hadn't jumped immediately and taken me, I would have died. Q. You arrived in a bad shape; correct? A. I arrived in a bad shape. I was all cut. No one ever put any bandages on me in Bratunac until I arrived up there. Q. Were you provided with medical care? A. Yes, immediately. The doctors were there and military police and ordinary police, and no one can say to me that anyone was beaten in Pale. We had better security than in Bratunac.) Members of these paramilitary groups also took detainees out of Pale Gym to be beaten and some of those detainees never returned to the gym.⁷⁹⁴⁴

⁷⁹⁴³ P2839 (Witness statement of Hajrudin Karić, dated 13 May 2011), paras. 28–29, 31. On 6 July 1992, a soldier ordered Karić to help another prisoner, Fahrudin Sipović, who had been beaten and lay on the ground with a broken arm and covered in blood, to stand up. As Sipović attempted to stand, the soldier beat him with a piece of wood. P2839 (Witness statement of Hajrudin Karić, dated 13 May 2011), para. 36.

On 28 June 1992, Karić was called out of the main gymnasium by two relations of Rajko Kušić, who swore at Karić and beat him with a wooden stick until he fainted. After approximately 10 minutes, another Bosnian Serb, Milimir Tepeš, arrived and said "it's not him". The paramilitaries then threw Karić back in the main gym while badly injured. 2342. On 15 May 1992, Branko Đerić ordered Sokolac Crisis Staff to provide “three tow trucks with canvas cover” for transportation of detainees from Pale to Visoko; Nedeljko Lakić requested that the Ilijaš Crisis Staff approve and provide passage through Ilijaš municipality for a group of detainees who were at Pale and who were going to be transported to Visoko under the escort of Pale Crisis Staff. (#Due to Agreements#! Lakić also requested that the approval be destroyed the moment the detainees left Ilijaš.⁷⁹⁴⁵ On the morning of 16 or 17 May, the guards told the detainees from Bratunac that they were going to be exchanged, took them out of the gym in groups of ten, tied them together, and forced them to sing Serb songs before loading them onto trucks.⁷⁹⁴⁶ The detainees were then transferred under VRS escort to Visoko where they were exchanged.⁷⁹⁴⁷ (All together, the detainees from Bratunac spent only a week in the Gym in Pale. 2343. On 18 May, Smajš and 64 other detainees were also called out of Pale Gym.⁷⁹⁴⁸ This group was placed on a military cargo truck and transported to Hreša to be exchanged.⁷⁹⁴⁹ 2344. On 6 July 1992, approximately five men belonging to Kušić’s unit entered the gym and beat three Bosnian Muslim detainees with wooden sticks and brass knuckles until they were unconscious.⁷⁹⁵⁰ Two of the detainees died about thirty minutes after the end of the beatings, and the third died two days later, without having received any medical care.⁷⁹⁵¹ (There was no a single lethal case, nor anybody ever reported this event! 2347. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that Serb Forces brought to and detained non-Serbs, including at least one woman, at Pale Gym from approximately 10 May to 11 July 1992. The Chamber further finds that the detainees were held in poor conditions. These included lack of food and adequate medical care. The Chamber also finds that detainees were regularly subjected to beatings by Serb Forces at Pale Gym and that at least three detainees died as a result of such beatings.

Scheduled Incident D.16

2348. The Indictment refers to the destruction of three mosques, namely the mosques at Prača, Podvitez, and Bogovići, between July and September 1992.⁷⁹⁵³

2349. There were at least three mosques in Pale municipality.⁷⁹⁵⁴ Crnčalo heard that all three mosques were destroyed between 2 July and September 1992.⁷⁹⁵⁵

2350. According to Riedlmayer, the Podvitez mosque and the Bogovići mosque were “completely destroyed” in “the first year of the war”⁷⁹⁵⁶ and the Prača mosque was “completely destroyed” by mining on 10 October 1992.⁷⁹⁵⁷

2351. While the Chamber relies on Riedlmayer for the purposes of finding that the mosques in question were destroyed, and determining the nature and extent of the damage to those sites, it does not rely on his evidence in order to determine who was responsible for the destruction as such matters fall outside Riedlmayer’s expertise and are based on statements which he received from, amongst others, the Islamic Community of BiH and informants.

2352. Having received no other evidence concerning Scheduled Incident D.16, the Chamber is not satisfied, beyond reasonable doubt, that Serb Forces destroyed the Prača, Podvitez, and Bogovići mosques, between July and September 1992.

Vogošća

Charges

2353. Under Count 3, the Prosecution alleges that persecution, a crime against humanity, was committed in Vogošća as part of the objective to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats from the Municipalities.⁷⁹⁵⁸ Acts of persecution alleged to have been committed by Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs in Vogošća include killings related to detention facilities, as well as killings committed during, and deaths resulting from, cruel and inhumane treatment at these detention facilities.⁷⁹⁵⁹ The Prosecution also characterises these killings as extermination, a crime against humanity, under Count 4; murder, a crime against humanity, under Count 5; and murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war, under Count 6.⁷⁹⁶⁰

2354. Other acts of persecution alleged to have been committed in Vogošća by Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs include: (i) torture, beatings, and physical and psychological abuse during and after the take-over and in scheduled detention facilities as cruel or inhumane treatment;⁷⁹⁶¹ (ii) rape and other acts of sexual violence, during and after the take-over and in scheduled detention facilities, as cruel and inhumane treatment;⁷⁹⁶² (iii) the establishment and perpetuation of inhumane living conditions in scheduled detention facilities, including the failure to provide adequate accommodation, shelter, food, water, medical care, or hygienic sanitation facilities, as cruel or inhumane treatment;⁷⁹⁶³ (iv) forcible transfer or deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from their homes;⁷⁹⁶⁴ (v) unlawful detention in scheduled detention facilities;⁷⁹⁶⁵ (vi) forced labour at frontlines and the use of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats as human shields;⁷⁹⁶⁶ (vii) the wanton destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites;⁷⁹⁶⁷ and (viii) the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures.⁷⁹⁶⁸

2355. Under Counts 7 and 8, the Prosecution alleges deportation and inhumane acts (forcible transfer), respectively, as crimes against humanity.⁷⁹⁶⁹ In this regard, the Prosecution alleges that by the end of 1992, Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs forcibly displaced Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from areas in Vogošća in which they were lawfully present.⁷⁹⁷⁰ It is alleged that from March 1992, restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention, harassment, torture, rape and other acts of sexual violence, killing, destruction of houses, cultural monuments, and sacred sites, as well as the threat of further such acts caused Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to flee in fear, while others were physically driven out.⁷⁹⁷¹

2357. Vogošća was one of the most industrialised municipalities in the territory of SFRY, hosting several large factories, including the Pretis factory which manufactured artillery and ammunition.⁷⁹⁷⁵ There was also a JNA installation called the Semizovac Barracks, which was used to store weaponry and equipment of the JNA, the Vogošća TO as well as the Ilijaš TO.⁷⁹⁷⁶

2358. During the 1990 elections, the SDA won 18 seats in the Municipal Assembly, the SDS 15 seats, and other parties secured 18 seats.⁷⁹⁷⁷ Subsequently, the SDA and SDS formed a coalition and divided the positions of authority in Vogošća amongst themselves.⁷⁹⁷⁸ Thus, Bilal Hasanović from the SDA became the President of the Vogošća Municipal Assembly, and Rajko Koprivica, who was the President of the SDS in the municipality, became the President of the Executive Board.⁷⁹⁷⁹ Vehid Hodžić, a Bosnian Muslim, became the Chief of the Vogošća SJB.⁷⁹⁸⁰

2359. At times, Koprivica and Jovan Tintor, a high-ranking SDS official in Vogošća,⁷⁹⁸¹ met with Momčilo Krajišnik in Hotonj.⁷⁹⁸² Before the war, the President also visited Vogošća municipality on one or two occasions.⁷⁹⁸³

Creation of separate Bosnian Serb institutions

2360. Discussions at the municipal level for the creation of a Serb SJB started in September 1991.⁷⁹⁸⁴ In September or October 1991, there were changes in the personnel structure of the Vogošća SJB; Borislav Maksimović, a Serb, was appointed as Commander, and two high-ranking Serb officials were replaced by a Bosnian Croat and a Bosnian Muslim.⁷⁹⁸⁵ Neither Bosnian Muslims nor Bosnian Serbs in Vogošća welcomed these changes.⁷⁹⁸⁶ Hodžić was warned that the

2362. It must be kept in mind that in March 1992 there was finalised the Lisbon Agreement on the transformation of BiH, which envisaged a high autonomies for the three ethnicities. Not to mention that even in 1991, on the Conference in the Hague Mr. Izetbegovic himself committed to the high autonomy for the Serbs and Croats! #All in accord with the ICFY results#!) Koprivica then stated that “Muslims were simply going to disappear”.⁷⁹⁹¹ After making this announcement, the SDS delegates walked out of the assembly session.⁷⁹⁹² On 24 March 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly unanimously verified the decision to establish the Serb municipality of Vogošća along with 34 other Serb municipalities.⁷⁹⁹³ The Serb municipality of Vogošća was proclaimed in March or April 1992.⁷⁹⁹⁴ Svetozar Stanić was appointed as its President and he stayed in that position until November 1992.⁷⁹⁹⁵ Koprivica was appointed as the President of the Serb Municipal Assembly.⁷⁹⁹⁶ (#The context and time frame# are substantial for an understandmnding of events. On 12 September 1991, Tintor and Mićo Stanišić discussed the staffing changes that had taken place in Vogošća SJB and Tintor told Mićo Stanišić that the refusal to reinstate Serbs could entail “bloodshed” in Vogošća and that he would raise 10,000 people against “this injustice”. Vogošća. For instance, during a telephone conversation with a certain Prodanović, Tintor stated that it “will include everything all the way to Krš” but not Barica or Kobilja Glava.⁷⁹⁹⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! Barice and Kobilja Glava were settlements with the Muslim majority, and were envisaged to be ingredients of the Muslim municipality of Vogosca!) On 22 February 1992, the President asked Ljubo Grković, Chef de Cabinet of the SDS Executive Board,⁷⁹⁹⁸ whether the planned Serb municipality of Rajlovac would include the territory of the Serb municipality of Vogošća and was told that Vogošća would be a separate unit.⁷⁹⁹⁹ (As it can be seen from this example, all about forming of the new municipalities was decided on the local level in a manner of democracy, in accord with the #Constitution and laws#!)

2364. On 31 March 1992, non-Serb members of the police were invited by Mandić to join the newly established the Bosnian Serb MUP but were warned that before any such engagement, they had to declare their loyalty to SerBiH in writing.⁸⁰⁰⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! The policemen with such an authorities to implement laws and protect the order and Constitution, i.e. all officials that had so high authorisations to arrest, detain, make a criminal reports, and bring somebody to a court, had to accept this new Constitution and laws created on the basis of a new constitutional provisions! Therefore, there was no any ethnic obstacle for the Muslims and Croats (“non-Serb policemen”) to continue to work in the Serb MUP!) In the Vogošća SJB, all Serb police officers agreed with Mandić’s demand but non-Serbs did not.⁸⁰⁰¹ Subsequently, a meeting was held and the police officers agreed that until further notice Serbs, Muslims, and Croats would stay at the station and work together “in order to prevent bloodshed”.⁸⁰⁰² (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) Despite this agreement, in the Semizovac station, Serb and non-Serb policemen carried out their duties separately, though they did coalesce for joint patrols or when there were anti-crime assignments.⁸⁰⁰³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!)

2365. In April 1992, a number of meetings between SDS and SDA representatives were held in Vogošća.⁸⁰⁰⁴ During the meetings, Tintor advanced the thesis that Vogošća was Serb land and therefore had to be governed by Serb authority.⁸⁰⁰⁵ Tintor, Koprivica, Slavko Jovanović, Svetozar Stanić and other local SDS leaders then insisted on dividing Vogošća along ethnic lines.⁸⁰⁰⁶ The division, as envisaged by them, would have left the Serbs with the town centre, all the industry and all the villages and communes except for Gornje, Donje Ugorsko, Kobilja Glava, and Hotonj.⁸⁰⁰⁷ The Bosnian Muslims refused this proposal.⁸⁰⁰⁸ (#Distorted#! #Two municipalities – peace#! Militarisation

2366. From 1991 to spring 1992, both Bosnian Serbs and Bosnian Muslims engaged in the process of arming and organising themselves in Vogošća.⁸⁰⁰⁹

2367. On or about 5 January 1992, there was unusual movement around the Semizovac Barracks; trucks driven by Serbs in military uniforms towed artillery pieces from there towards Mt. Paljevo, a location above Krivoglavci, which overlooked the residences of Tintor and Koprivica.⁸⁰¹⁰ On 7 January 1992, heavy artillery fire was opened from Mt. Paljevo.⁸⁰¹¹ (#JNA competence#! This is pretty unbelievable, and completely impossible, because it was so far before the war, and such an incident with the firing would be known in public throughout the world, and would cause many discussions. Otherwise, the JNA activity was their own matter, what does it have to do with the RS or this President? If the JNA drivers were Serbs, that was because the Muslim and Croat reservists didn't respond to the mobilisation calls!)

2368. In early March 1992, both Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Serbs erected barricades in areas where they formed a majority.⁸⁰¹² (#In context of killing Serb bridegroom's father#! Vogošća was one of the ten Sarajevo municipalities, and those barricades happened within the dramatic events after killing of the Serb bridegroom's father. So, it shouldn't be presented as if it was something separate!) After the erection of barricades around Svrače, the JNA began distributing to local Serbs large quantities of weapons, which belonged to the Vogošća TO and had been stored in the Semizovac Barracks.⁸⁰¹³ The JNA also trained local Serbs to use the weapons.⁸⁰¹⁴ (#JNA competence, legal and obligatory#! Not "local Serbs", but the JNA reservists who responded to the mobilisation call. The JNA would train the Muslim reservists too, as it happened throughout decades!) (This is unbelievable and unacceptable to have any Serb charged for a regular activities of the federal army, let alone to charge the President for that. Let us see what was the Order of the Commander of the 2nd Military District, D3679 on 4 April 92:

5. Nobody may issue TO weapons without a special order and signature by the 2nd VO commander, and bear in mind warnings about the seizing of weapons from military depots, and to this end take all measures to prevent such activities in the most vigorous manner.

#Autonomous JNA activity#! No activity of the JNA was under any influence, let alone control of the President, or any others. The JNA had an equidistance to all the political parties, but being aware that the Serb parties were against the JNA. However, the JNA took care of all the civilians, regardless of ethnicity! 6. In all their activities, JNA units and members must protect and defend endangered citizens from all ethnic groups from the terrorism and attacks of paramilitary formations and the negative consequences arising from the unauthorised decision of the SRBH Presidency.

7. It is especially important to ensure full combat readiness at isolated facilities and their defence by 2000 hrs on 4 April 1992.

All the weapons from the Pretis Factory were also brought to the Semizovac Barracks.⁸⁰¹⁵ On 14 May 1992, the Semizovac Barracks were placed under the command of Vogošća Crisis Staff.⁸⁰¹⁶

2369. During the spring of 1992, in the predominantly Muslim village of Svrače, the villagers carried out night watches.⁸⁰¹⁸

Increase in inter-ethnic tensions

2370. From September 1991 onwards, inter-ethnic tensions and criminal acts increased dramatically.⁸⁰¹⁹ The situation was exacerbated by the arrival of a large group of JNA reservists at the Semizovac Barracks and their involvement in looting and firing of weapons.⁸⁰²⁰ Given the dire security situation and the inability of the police forces to maintain order, Bosnian Muslim municipal representatives led discussions for the mobilisation of the Vogošća TO but the Bosnian Serbs opposed any such mobilisation.⁸⁰²¹ On 23 September 1991, Koprivica discussed the issue with the President who made it clear that he fully supported Koprivica's opposition to the mobilisation of the TO.⁸⁰²²

(That would be an #illegal mobilisation of the TO#, which was subordinated to the JNA, aimed to confront the JNA as a legal armed force! It approved, there would be a grave crimes committed, and there would be a war much earlier than it was. The JNA was the only legal and legitimate power force, and any TO couldn't be mobilized, even by the BiH Presidency, without or contrary to the JNA orders, if it was present there, see D03679)

At a session held at 1500 hrs on 4 April 1992, the SRBH /Socialist Republic of BH/ Presidency decided to mobilise the SRBH TO /Territorial Defence/, MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ and BH CZ /BH Civilian Protection/ despite the objection that the Presidency is not competent to mobilise the TO as a component of the OS /Armed Forces/, to which it turned a deaf ear.

But, what was the actual situation can be seen from the very next paragraph, D03679:

In view of the overall negative attitude towards the JNA /Yugoslav People's Army/, which was especially displayed at the Presidency session at which the 2nd VO /Military District/ commander and SRBH TO commander were present, armed attacks on military facilities, apartments of AVLs /active military personnel/ and GLs /civilian personnel/ and JNA members and retired military personnel are to be expected on the nights of 4/5 and 5/6 April 1992 and during the following days. government oppose to a presence of the federal army, so far before the independence was proclaimed, in September 1991???)

2371. Sometime between 29 February and 1 March 1992, a Bosnian Muslim family was attacked in the predominantly Serb populated village of Krivoglavci.⁸⁰²³ On that same day, intense automatic weapon fire was directed at Svrake.⁸⁰²⁴ (The date is very important, since at that time there was the #killing at the Serb wedding ceremony#, and this case influenced everything else in Sarajevo. Why this court doesn't like contexts, time frames and #cause-consequence clarification#?)

2372. In early March 1992, there were further acts of violence, including the destruction of Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat property situated in predominantly Serb villages.⁸⁰²⁵ During the same period, Tintor, on behalf of the Vogošća Crisis Staff, sent a dispatch to the Vogošća SJB and Kemo Šabović, prohibiting the SJB from conducting any investigations in Serb villages in connection with the alleged killing of a young Bosnian Muslim by a Serb.⁸⁰²⁶ (#Lies vs. documents#! Why to rely on the witness statement, if this document existed? The OTP witnesses are all-mighty and protected as the white bears. And since the killings weren't charged in the Indictment, why it is in the Judgement? And what all of it has to do with the President? This can only be an argument against civil wars, and a direct perpetrators, not against the President!)

Take-over of Vogošća town

2373. On 3 April 1992, a group of armed Serbs led by Boro Radić attacked the police station in Vogošća, disarmed the Bosnian Muslim officers, and took away all the weapons there.⁸⁰²⁷ Radić and his men then forced everybody out and sprayed the inside of the station with automatic gunfire.⁸⁰²⁸

2374. On the day of the attack against the Vogošća SJB, Tintor ordered the deployment of “[a]ll available manpower” at the check-points in Vogošća.⁸⁰²⁹ On the same day, Tintor instructed a certain Pero Radović not to react until “an agreement is reached” and to open fire “if anybody enters the police station uninvited”.⁸⁰³⁰ Also on 3 April 1992, Momčilo Krajišnik instructed Tintor not to start a war.⁸⁰³¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

Kobilja Glava started their campaign against the Serb village Graoviste, and Krajisnik advised Tintor not to panic and to avoid any trouble. See: P02359:

Tintor Jovan: I hear you've been informed. Rajko has told me about that part. They're getting ready up there. Reportedly, they're on the move already.

Krajišnik Momčilo: Who's on the move?

Tintor Jovan: Well, the Muslims from Kobilja Glava.

Krajišnik Momčilo: Yeah?

Tintor Jovan: They're on their way towards Graovište, towards us um... Žuč and... The situation is tense. I think a conflict will break out up there.

Krajišnik Momčilo: Best man, we need to try everything to calm the situation down.

Tintor Jovan: Yes. Momo Mandić has been on the spot.

Krajišnik Momčilo: That's the most important thing... Finally, the people do need to organise themselves, but in no circumstances should we look for trouble. It is very important to keep peace, you know.

Tintor Jovan: Yes, but they're on the move, best man.

So, the Serbs were not supposed to react on an obvious jeopardy just in the eve of the war. See further:

Krajišnik Momčilo: Look, could you check this somehow...

Tintor Jovan: Well, I have just received the information on the movement.

Krajišnik Momčilo: Yeah, 'cause there's panic. You check this. Alright, there may be something going on, but you need to check on this panic. (D)

On the same day, Koprivica told General Đurđevac that hundreds of Muslim reservists who had fled Ilijaš and the police reserve force had mobilised in order to take over the Vogošća SJB; he then requested intervention by the JNA.⁸⁰³³ However, Đurđevac rejected Koprivica's request and advised him to "[a]ct according to the instructions on operation in the crisis situation, you have those instructions work".⁸⁰³⁴ ensuing gunfight, Hadžić and four other members of the Novi Grad TO were killed and others were wounded.⁸⁰³⁹ In response to the Pretis attacks, Tintor ordered the mobilisation of the Vogošća TO.⁸⁰⁴⁰

2378. On 18 April 1992, the JNA deployed heavy weapons and tanks inside and around Vogošća town as well as on the main roads.⁸⁰⁴¹

2379. Two or three weeks after the take-over of Vogošća, non-Serb policemen moved out and set up separate offices in Donji Hotonj and in Ugorsko, while all Serb reserve staff left the Hotonj station with their weapons and joined the Serb reserve station in Blagovac.⁸⁰⁴² From this point onwards, the Vogošća SJB remained under the control of Bosnian Serb authorities.⁸⁰⁴³ (While the Muslim SJB was under the control of the Muslim police officers, wasn't it? This was appointed through the negotiations on the transformation of the MUP far before the war!)

Take-over of Svrake (#A Muslim stronghold#!)

2380. In the evening of 2 May 1992, military formations organised by the SDS, in co-ordination with the JNA, (All the way around, JNA competence#!) launched an attack against Svrake from their positions in Krivoglavci, Paljevo, Nebočaj, and the Semizovac Barracks.⁸⁰⁴⁴ During this attack, which lasted two days, one villager was killed, four were wounded, and 36 houses were destroyed.⁸⁰⁴⁵ (#Abuse of civil settlement#! #militarised stronghold#! #Time frame#! #Context#! The Chamber missed every single point relevant to understand this event! How come this “attack” lasted two days??? If it was just a village, and not an armed stronghold of the Patriotic League and the Green Berets, the “attack” wouldn't last more than two hours! Shouldn't it be of any help to the Chamber to remember that it happened after the known attack of the Green Berets and Patriotic League on the JNA, which was repeated on 3 May, in the very centre of Sarajevo, with a horrible carnage? So, the JNA had been decreed a war by those attacks. In the case of Semizovac Barracks, wherever there was the JNA, up until 20 May, that was their action, and the TO had to follow it! The SDS didn't have any armed group!)

2381. On 4 May 1992, using a loudspeaker, local Serbs called on the villagers, announcing that nothing would happen to them if they left.⁸⁰⁴⁶ (#Legal obligation#! An offering to leave, and even removing a civilians from a combat zone was an obligation according to the law!) as it was reiterated in the agreements, no presence of civilians should influence military

However, Eset Muračević, the Bosnian Muslim Secretary of the local commune of Svrake until May 1992, testified that it was after an attack on a police patrol in Krivoglavci in early March 1992, that the employees of the Vogošća SJB effectively split on an ethnic basis, with Muslim and Croat policemen setting up a station in Svrake as well as a police check-point on the Sarajevo-Zenica main road. See P2361 (Witness statement of Eset Muračević dated 24 February 2011), paras. 1, 8; Eset Muračević, T. 12649, 12669, 12705 (1 March 2011). development, i.e. no a warring side was allowed to hide behind it's own civilians! See: D4710:

We agree that all refugees will be permitted to return to the places from which they have been expelled and that civilians who are caught up in or trapped by the military situation, will be given freedom of movement.

There were several such agreements which contained a commitment about the return of refugees, all of them signed by the President or his plenipotentiaries, and that is #the only official position#n on this issue. Why would the Chamber consider some jokes told in telephone conversations, or even some parliamentaries disussions, since the only relevant was what the President signed! #Jokes against documents#!) In accordance with an agreement subsequently reached between local Bosnian Serb and Muslim representatives, most of the Muslim population which numbered about 1,000 left Svrake in order to go to Breza and the surrounding areas via Semizovac.⁸⁰⁴⁷ Despite the agreement, however, one part of the convoy, which consisted of 430 Bosnian Muslims, was stopped in Semizovac by a number of local Serbs in former JNA and camouflage uniforms and eventually taken to the Semizovac Barracks.⁸⁰⁴⁸ (#JNA property, JNA competence#! If they took them, particularly contrary to the agreement, it must be the JNA, because the local Serbs would not have any competences over the Barracks.)

Developments in Vogošća after the take-over of the municipality

2382. After the take-over of Svrake, Serbs Forces continued to expel non-Serbs from their homes throughout the municipality, in particular in Svrake and Bioča.⁸⁰⁴⁹ Non-Serb workers at the Vogošća Medical Centre were suspended from their jobs.⁸⁰⁵⁰ Several Serb paramilitary and volunteer groups, including Šešelj's men headed by Vaske Vidović, a paramilitary group led by Boro Radić,⁸⁰⁵¹ and the Šoša Detachment under the command of Major Jovo Ostojić⁸⁰⁵² took part in combat activities in Vogošća alongside the Bosnian Serb authorities.⁸⁰⁵³ Vogošća municipal authorities allocated resources to paramilitary formations, such as Radić's group, and even remunerated them for their services.⁸⁰⁵⁴ (#Legal volunteers#! This means that they had been recognized the status of volunteers according to the domestic legislation. At the beginning of the conflict all the volunteers to the JNA were welcome, but later some of them acted independently and came under the Serb authorities persecution.)

The Chamber finds that the evidence of Trifunović and Poplašen in this regard to be unreliable and that it was marked by clear indicators of bias and partiality.

2383. In May 1992, Šešelj's men attacked the village of Tihovići and killed about 20 people, including a number of Bosnian Muslim reserve policemen.⁸⁰⁵⁵ (Obviously, it was an armed skirmish, otherwise there wouldn't be any Muslim reserve policemen! This court is completely neglecting the rights of the local people to defend themselves. Those were a residents in the neighbouring villages, and very rarely some volunteers! As the ordinary peasants or a factory workers, they weren't interested in any skirmishes, because their families had been exposed to an extreme danger. But, if the next village is full of "reserve policemen" which meant – of the secret army soldiers, nobody could order them not to defend and not to take a precautionary measures! This is provided by the domestic legislation, but also the international covenants and documents do not ban a defence! This is unique example of a "take it easy" trials. Nothing is established properly!)

2384. On 16 May 1992, the Vogošća Crisis Staff concluded that mopping up operations should be conducted in Semizovac and indicated that similar operations were already underway in Svrake.⁸⁰⁵⁶ (So what? If the Muslims in Semizovac and Svrake decided to wage a war against their Serb neighbours, at that moment there is a military logics stepping up, while the politics is pulling back!#Yet, it was before VRS been formed, and the Crisis Staff was obliged to follow the JNA#)

2385. Between mid-April and November 1992, police officers engaged in combat operations and many of them also participated in criminal activities.⁸⁰⁵⁷ (How do we know that? Because the superiors in the same Police investigated and reported. #Next level# acted! Since it was reported by the Serb authorities, it was clear that it wasn't tolerated by the MUP officials!!!) The Minister of Interior Mr. Mico Stanisić had chased up to 6,000 reserve and not-enough-professional policemen from the MUP and sent them to the VRS, i.e. Army, to be deployed along the confrontation lines! This is a huge fact, and #EXCULPATORY# for the entire Serb leadership! Had the Serb side made any Joint Criminal Enterprise as alleged, the Minister of Interior would welcome those incompetent and irresponsible!)

2386. On 14 November 1992, Momčilo Krajišnik attended the Vogošća Serb Assembly session during which it was stated that the take-over of the municipality had been a success but that the area up to the predominantly Muslim village Kobilja Glava still had to be cleaned up.⁸⁰⁵⁸ (#Constant Muslim attacks#! There were a constant attacks from Kobilja Glava location, and it would be a legitimate to neutralise those attacks.)

It was reported by the officers of the same police, and it was #commendable and exculpatory#! On the basis of such reports the Minister of Interior (M. Stanisić) had expelled around 6.000 unreliable policemen, redirecting them to the Army!

⁸⁰⁵⁹ Indictment, Scheduled Incident D.21. The Indictment initially also referred to the Karauka-Donja mosque under Scheduled Incident D.21. Subsequently, however, the Prosecution indicated that the Karauka-Donja mosque should refer to the Karaula mekteb which was located in Ilijaš Municipality. See Indictment, Scheduled Incident D.21, fn. 21. In its Final Brief, the Prosecution confirmed the exclusion of the Karauka-Donja mosque from the scope of Scheduled Incident D.21. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix B, p. 60, fn. 874.

2388. According to Riedlmayer, the Ugorsko mosque in the southern part of Vogošća was “heavily damaged” by Serb shelling on 1 September 1992, and the Catholic church in Semizovac was “completely destroyed” by Serb forces after they took control of the area at the beginning of May 1992.⁸⁰⁶⁰ While the Chamber relies on Riedlmayer for the purposes of finding that the mosque and the church in question were destroyed, and determining the nature and extent of the damage to those sites, it does not rely on his evidence in order to determine who was responsible for the destruction as such matters fall outside Riedlmayer’s expertise and are based on statements which he received from informants.⁸⁰⁶¹ (Thanks God for this sensitivity of the Chamber, but the Chamber is right for another, additional reason: the Mosque and the Church had been along the confrontation line, and the circumstances are not clarified. Certainly, the President issued all the needed orders for the protection of those temples!#Contra the President orders#!)

2389. Having received no other evidence concerning Scheduled Incident D.21, the Chamber is not satisfied, beyond reasonable doubt, that Serb Forces heavily damaged and completely destroyed the Ugorsko mosque and the Catholic church in Semizovac between April and September 1992.

Detention facilities in Vogošća

2390. There were several detention facilities in Vogošća, including a World War II era bunker known as “the Bunker” and “Planjo’s House”.⁸⁰⁶²

2391. All detention facilities in Vogošća were run by one reserve police unit under the command of Branko Vlačo.⁸⁰⁶³ Vlačo answered to the Crisis Staff and determined who entered or exited the Bunker and Planjo’s House.⁸⁰⁶⁴ Nebojša Špirić was Vlačo’s deputy and was formally appointed as commander of the guards for the Vogošća detention facilities.⁸⁰⁶⁵ Špirić later replaced Vlačo and became the warden of all detention facilities in Vogošća.⁸⁰⁶⁶

Scheduled Detention Facility C.26.3

2392. The Indictment refers to the use of the Bunker in Vogošća as a detention facility at least between May and July 1992.

Establishment and control

2393. The Bunker was a concrete structure of about 36 square metres that had been built during World War II.⁸⁰⁶⁷ It had concrete floors, one door and a small window with metal bars.⁸⁰⁶⁸ It was situated in close proximity to a river and a local restaurant and motel called “Kon Tiki”, also known as “Kod Sonja”.⁸⁰⁶⁹ Kod Sonja served as the headquarters of the Vogošća Crisis Staff.⁸⁰⁷⁰

2394. On 2 May 1992, Slavko Jovanović, acting on behalf of Tintor, ordered Željka Beganović, the son of the owner of Kod Sonja, to provide suitable premises to the Vogošća SJB and TO for the purpose of questioning detained persons.⁸⁰⁷¹ Individuals captured during combat in Vogošća, Svrake and Semizovac were transferred to the Bunker.⁸⁰⁷²

2395. There were on average 30 to 70 persons detained in the Bunker.⁸⁰⁷³ Initially, four women were held in the Bunker and the adjoining buildings.⁸⁰⁷⁴ Later on, more women were also brought to Kod Sonja.⁸⁰⁷⁵ Individuals in the Bunker were detained upon the orders of the Vogošća Crisis Staff and the VRS.⁸⁰⁷⁶ Vlačo gave specific instructions to Radić to arrest people and bring them in for questioning.⁸⁰⁷⁷

2397. As found above, on 4 May 1992, after the take-over of Svrake, a large group of Bosnian Muslim villagers was apprehended by Serb Forces and taken to the Semizovac Barracks.⁸⁰⁸² There, the Bosnian Muslim men, women and children were placed in a hangar which had been previously used for storing tanks.⁸⁰⁸³ After two days, the women and children were separated from the men and taken back to Svrake.⁸⁰⁸⁴ Approximately 150 able-bodied men were taken to a place called “Naka’s Garage” whereas a few individuals, including Muračević, were taken to the Bunker by Predrag Žarković and Nebojša Lazić, a paramilitary from Serbia.⁸⁰⁸⁵ (#Before VRS, during massacres of the JNA soldiers in Sarajevo# However, it is obvious that the JNA acted in the light of the two massacres of the JNA column in Sarajevo, that happened on 2 and 3 May. Sarajevo was a couple of tens kilometres from Svrake, as a matter of fact all of those localities were within the City of Sarajevo. Without these #contexts# nothing could be understood correctly, and the truth will not be seen. However, even Eset Muračević, otherwise a combatant who admitted that he smuggled grenades from Sarajevo to his village, admitted that only nine people out of several hundreds had been detained, the rest were released immediately after the first checking of involvement! Again, what it has to do with this President, or the Serbs in Bosnia anyway?)

2398. The roof of the Bunker had holes through which rainwater entered.⁸⁰⁸⁶ Inside the Bunker, it was very dark, cold and, wet.⁸⁰⁸⁷ Detainees slept on a dirty concrete floor.⁸⁰⁸⁸ On or about 16 May 1992, the guards brought gym mats but these mats became soaked with rainwater.⁸⁰⁸⁹ All the garbage and leftovers from Kod Sonja were thrown downhill and accumulated around the Bunker.⁸⁰⁹⁰

2399. Little food was provided to the detainees and the guards decided who received food and who did not.⁸⁰⁹¹ At times, the food which was intended for the detainees was given to dogs.⁸⁰⁹² The guards sometimes used the same bowls they had used to feed the dogs to distribute food to the detainees.⁸⁰⁹³

2400. During the initial period at the Bunker, the guards took the detainees outside so that they could use the toilet.⁸⁰⁹⁴ As the number of detainees increased later on, however, the guards placed a bucket inside and at times, this bucket was not emptied for days.⁸⁰⁹⁵ The Bunker did not have a water tap and Eset Muračević only managed to wash his face for the first time during his detention in early August.⁸⁰⁹⁶ Slobodan Avlijaš who became a member of the SerBiH Commission for the Inspection of Collection Centres in August 1992,⁸⁰⁹⁷ testified that during an official visit to the Bunker, he observed the detainees’ conditions and found them to be so inhumane that he was left “feeling horror”.⁸⁰⁹⁸ (#Next level#! had it been a deliberate and planned conduct of the state organs, he wouldn't complain, and there wouldn't be any inspection!

2401. The women detained at the Bunker were subjected to sexual abuse at the Bunker, at its surrounding buildings, and at Serb frontline positions.⁸⁰⁹⁹

2402. During his first day in the Bunker, Muračević was forced to run the gauntlet.⁸¹⁰⁰ Later that same day, he was taken, blindfolded, to a bridge where he was interrogated, threatened, and beaten by Predrag Jovanović, Lazić, and Žarković.⁸¹⁰¹ (A paramilitaries!)

2403. In early May 1992, detainees at the Bunker were taken out on a daily basis for interrogation, during the course of which beatings occurred.⁸¹⁰² Later, interrogations continued but they were not always accompanied by beatings.⁸¹⁰³ Those involved in the interrogations and beatings were guards and two inspectors by the names of Mile Renovica and Slaviša Mišić, as well as Vlačo and Živko Lazarević, a former inspector at the Vogošća SJB.⁸¹⁰⁴ (It is hard to believe that Renovica, Misic and Lazarevic, as a high professionals, would be involved in any unlawful activity. All of it is based on the only one witness statement, Eset Muracevic, an extremist who fanatically fought against the Serbs!#Unproven#)

2404. From the Bunker, detainees were also brought to the Vogošća SJB for questioning.⁸¹⁰⁵ Detainees were also taken out of the Bunker to work on trenches and perform other forms of labour.⁸¹⁰⁶

2405. The guards threatened the detainees, stole from them, or brought people from the outside to mistreat them in the absence of Vlačo.⁸¹⁰⁷ (Sic!!! "in the absence of Vlačo", as a superior, which confirms the fact that the authorities were against any abuse or irregular conditions and conduct towards the detainees!#Next level#) The guards as well as members of Šešelj's men threw smoke grenades, tear gas grenades and stink bombs into the Bunker in the presence of Vlačo.⁸¹⁰⁸ (Since Vlačo couldn't be in Bunker, how Muracevic could have known that Vlačo was around?)

2406. On one occasion, six members of Šešelj's men, in the presence of Vlačo and other guards, took Ahmet Hido and Hasan Abaz, kicked them, and hit them with their fists and rifle butts.⁸¹⁰⁹ Afterwards, they forced the two Bosnian Muslim men to have oral sex and sexual intercourse.⁸¹¹⁰ The Šešelj's men then forced Hasan Abaz to jump off a three metre high wall with his bare chest first several times.⁸¹¹¹ Abaz sustained severe injuries from these jumps and subsequently vomited blood.⁸¹¹² Similarly, Nijaz Salkić and Taib Kodžaga were forced to jump off the upper level of the Bunker.⁸¹¹³

2407. On 26 May 1992, the detainees were informed that UNPROFOR would visit the Bunker the following day. They were ordered to wash themselves with a hose beside Kod Sonja.⁸¹¹⁴ Muračević and four other detainees were selected as spokespersons in case UNPROFOR asked any questions.⁸¹¹⁵ The detainees were threatened with severe punishment in the event they complained.⁸¹¹⁶ The next day, UNPROFOR personnel came but did not enter the Bunker.⁸¹¹⁷

2408. Around the end of May 1992, Muračević was told that he would be sent back to Svake in order to be killed there by Muslims.⁸¹¹⁸ He was then blindfolded and taken to Naka's Garage for one night where he saw 150 individuals, many of them from Svake.⁸¹¹⁹

2409. On 25 May 1992, the Serb municipality of Vogošća Department for Judiciary, Administration and Regulations proposed the exchange of 15 "citizens of Muslim ethnicity" captured in the residential area of Svake for a number of Serbs who had been detained in Visoko.⁸¹²⁰ Pursuant to a decision made by the Head of the Department for Judiciary, on 25 May 1992, with the approval of the Vogošća Crisis Staff, 21 "[c]itizens of Muslim nationality who were captured in fights in Svake" were to be exchanged in Lješevu for three Serbs who were detained in prisons in Visoko municipality.⁸¹²¹ (This is a #“cotradictio in adjecto”# – “#citizens captured in fights in Svake#” couldn't be mere “citizens” but rather combatants, as Muracevic confessed how he was known as a combatant and smuggler of grenades, in arming his village Svake!#Witness, extremist, combatant#!)

(c) Conclusion

2410. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that Serb Forces detained non-Serbs from Vogošća and surrounding areas, including civilian males and females, at the Bunker. The Chamber further finds that the detainees were held in poor conditions. These included a lack of adequate food, sanitary facilities and general hygiene. The Chamber also finds that the male detainees were subjected to beatings and forced labour and that both male and female detainees were subjected to acts of sexual violence. (For those allegations, which sound as unbelievable and instructed by the Muslim secret services, there would be essential any corroboration. Such a bizarre conduct, particularly sexual, couldn't be kept as a secret, but no a single trace about it in any of the communications! Muracevic shouldn't be considered as reliable and unbiased witness, because he was a combatant, and had a motive to tell lies. A several of the Prosecution witnesses looks like educated what to tell, and there are always some peculiarities that are difficult to be checked. Since all of those alleged misdeeds had been strictly forbidden by the President, these allegations even if true, could not have been used against the President!)

2411. The Prosecution refers to the use of Planjo's House in Svrake as a detention facility from early July 1992 until at least February 1993.⁸¹²²

Establishment and control

2412. Planjo's House was situated between Svrake and Semizovac, some 200 metres from the Sarajevo-Zenica road.⁸¹²³ It had a garage, an attic, and three spacious floors.⁸¹²⁴ Planjo's House was originally a private property owned by two Muslims, Almas Planjo and Miralem Planjo.⁸¹²⁵

2413. In early July 1992, Avlijaš advised the authorities of the Serb municipality of Vogošća that Planjo's House should replace the Bunker as a detention facility.⁸¹²⁶ According to Avlijaš, Planjo's House was chosen for two reasons: (i) it was further away from the frontlines and could therefore not be shelled by Muslim forces; (ii) it was more suitable to serve as a detention facility and conformed with the President's instructions concerning the treatment of captured persons.⁸¹²⁷ On 8 July 1992, the Municipal Secretariat for Town Planning temporarily turned Planjo's House over to the Ministry of Justice, for the needs of the Prison Department of Vogošća.⁸¹²⁸

2414. From August 1992, mainly non-Serbs,⁸¹²⁹ including women and children, were detained in Planjo's House.⁸¹³⁰ On 11 August 1992, Vlačo and a few guards transferred Muračević and about 30 of the 40 or so detainees who were left in the Bunker to Planjo's House which was at the time empty.⁸¹³¹ The detainees were placed in the cellar.⁸¹³² On 17 August 1992, the Ilijaš SJB brought 91 Bosnian Muslims who had been detained in Ilijaš.⁸¹³³ On 22 August 1992, Ramiz Mujkić who had been detained in the Rajlovac Barracks, in Novi Grad municipality, was also transferred to Planjo's House.⁸¹³⁴ In late September or October 1992, about 70 Bosnian Muslim men who had been detained in the Hadžići Culture and Sport Centre were transferred to Planjo's house.⁸¹³⁵ Apart from these instances, detainees were brought from other places around the municipality of Vogošća, such as Visoko, Sokolac, Hadžići, Bioča, Doglodi, and Nahorevo.⁸¹³⁶ In December 1992, four girls between the ages of 16 and 22 were brought to Planjo's House.⁸¹³⁷ (#Deadly combination#! A Rule 92bis evidence, impossible to check and incorrect to charge this President for such an allegation! No a single trace about it anywhere, except in this one statement of a Serb adversary!)

2415. From 22 August 1992 until mid October 1992, Planjo's House alone housed between 100 and 150 detainees.⁸¹³⁸ This number later increased to 200.⁸¹³⁹ Women and children were held in separate quarters.⁸¹⁴⁰

2416. Armed soldiers and policemen who were dressed in camouflage uniforms guarded Planjo's House at all times.⁸¹⁴¹

2417. Around mid August 1992, Momčilo Mandić and a Serb journalist visited Planjo's House.⁸¹⁴² When queried by one of the detainees about possible exchanges, Mandić replied that there was no need for any exchanges as the detainees were at their "homes".⁸¹⁴³

2418. At some point, those detained in Naka's Garage were allowed to return to Svrake under the condition that they (i) report on a daily basis to the Serb authorities in order to be assigned and carry out work and (ii) go back to Planjo's House every night in order to spend the night there.⁸¹⁴⁴ However, eventually, these individuals were confined to Planjo's House during day-time as well.⁸¹⁴⁵

2419. On 23 October 1992, ICRC representatives came to Planjo's House, registered the individuals held there. Some of the detainees were exchanged a few days later.⁸¹⁴⁶

(b) Conditions of detention and treatment of detainees

2420. The food served in Planjo's House was of poor quality.⁸¹⁴⁷ Some detainees slept in the beds that were available, others slept on the floor, and a number slept on the stairs.⁸¹⁴⁸ Blankets were provided.⁸¹⁴⁹ Detainees were allowed to use the bathroom, situated in the basement.⁸¹⁵⁰

2421. Muračević stated that although the conditions were slightly better in Planjo's House, the treatment was the same as that in the Bunker, if not worse.⁸¹⁵¹

2423. One of the guards, Dragan Damjanović, often forced detainees to beat one another with batons.⁸¹⁵⁵ He also accompanied them to their work duties and physically abused them there.⁸¹⁵⁶ On one occasion, Damjanović forced Bego Selimović and another man to carry the body of someone who had been killed in the battlefield.⁸¹⁵⁷ While Selimović and the man were carrying the body, Damjanović repeatedly hit them with a piece of wood, to a point that Selimović's back turned black.⁸¹⁵⁸

2425. One day, a mentally disabled detainee by the name of Pinjo cursed the Serb guards who then beat him unconscious.⁸¹⁶³ That same afternoon, Vlačo came to Planjo's House and after hearing from the guards about what Pinjo had said, hit him with his pistol, causing him to fall.⁸¹⁶⁴

2426. Sometimes during the weekends, intoxicated volunteers from Serbia came to Planjo's House to beat and mistreat the detainees.⁸¹⁶⁵ These individuals were called "weekend Chetniks" by the prison guards.⁸¹⁶⁶ On one occasion, one of these "weekend Chetniks" entered Planjo's House and ordered Mirsad Šehić to eat cigarette butts.⁸¹⁶⁷ Šehić proceeded to chew the cigarette butts but when he proved unable to swallow them, he was ordered to perform oral sex with another rejects Trifunović's assertions in light of his lack of forthrightness as a witness and because of the consistent and reliable evidence which indicates that contrary to Trifunović's claim, the conditions at Planjo's House were poor.

The Chamber, however, does not find this part of Mujkić's testimony to be reliable and notes that Mujkić contradicted himself on this point on two occasions. 2428. From late August until late January 1993, Serb Forces took non-Serb detainees from Planjo’s House to the frontlines and forced them to construct bunkers for Serb soldiers, dig trenches, carry ammunition, cut wood, search for land mines, carry dead bodies, dig graves, or serve as human shields.⁸¹⁷³ The detainees who worked received more food and cigarettes from the guards.⁸¹⁷⁴ Dušan Arnaut and a man with the last name Milošević, who were both soldiers, drove the detainees at Planjo’s House to work and guarded them while they worked.⁸¹⁷⁵ At times, Damjanović also took the detainees to work.⁸¹⁷⁶

Trifunović also asserted that the detainees who were taken on compulsory work assignments were in no danger because VRS was always there with them. Miladin Trifunović, T. 30398, 30400, 30405–30407, 30412 (15 November 2012). The Chamber, however, does not find this evidence to be reliable for the following reasons. First, the Chamber found that Trifunović’s testimony to be marked by indicators of lack of forthrightness. Second, the Chamber is not convinced that the presence of the VRS alongside the detainees at the frontlines would have assured the latter’s safety. On the contrary, the Chamber is of the view that such presence would have further exacerbated the extremely precarious situation in which the detainees were already forced into by Serb Forces. Third, the Chamber received and found to be reliable the detailed evidence of a number of former detainees who personally experienced being forced to serve as human shields and who observed others get injured or killed while doing the same thing.

(c) Conclusion

2430. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that Serb Forces used Planjo’s House as a detention facility at least from August 1992 until at least February 1993. (#Not unlawful!) The Chamber further finds that the detainees were held in poor conditions. (#General shortage#! Not deliberately, the country under the sanctions!) These included a lack of adequate food, sanitary facilities, general hygiene and medical care. The Chamber also finds that non-Serbs, including women and children, were detained in Planjo’s House and that the guards there routinely subjected the male detainees to beatings and maltreatment, including acts of a sexual nature. Furthermore, the Chamber finds that Serb Forces routinely took non-Serb males who were detained in Planjo’s House in Svrake to the frontlines and forced them to carry out labour or to serve as human shields. (All about abuses is not properly proven, neither corroborated by any document, and since event those allegation pertained to the misdeeds that the President strictly forbade, the President shouldn’t be even mentioned in connection with it!#Contra Presidential orders#!)

(d) Scheduled Incident B.19.1

2431. The indictment alleges the killing of “a number of detainees” who were taken out from Planjo’s House in Svrake between August and September 1992 in order to carry out forced labour and to serve as human shields.⁸¹⁸³

2432. On 29 August 1992, Vlačo reported that eight detainees were taken to work at Žuč and that one of them was “wounded by an enemy sniper while working”.⁸¹⁸⁴ In the second half of September 1992, pursuant to an order issued by Trifunović, 50 detainees, including Mustafa Fazlić and Bego Selimović, were selected by Vlačo, divided in groups, and taken to Žuč in order to look for mines, dig trenches and serve as human shields.⁸¹⁸⁵ (#Absurdity#! Allegations about “human shields” is senseless, since there was neither advancement, nor retreat. It was a static trench fight, and a human shield couldn’t be useful in any sense!) Trifunović ordered that on 26 September 1992, 30 detainees be transported to Žuč by military vehicles in order to carry out construction work and be given food by the Vogošća Brigade Command.⁸¹⁸⁶ Near the end of September, detainees were again taken to Žuč and at one point ordered to walk close by a Serb tank that was, together with a number Serb infantry troops, engaged in combat activities. result, a number of detainees were seriously wounded.⁸¹⁸⁷ At one point, the tank lost control and slipped down a hill near the Bosnian Muslim positions.⁸¹⁸⁸ Some of the remaining detainees were made to retrieve the ammunition from the tank.⁸¹⁸⁹ During this operation, several detainees were killed by Muslim fire.⁸¹⁹⁰ (#No evidence, which must have been#! There is no single sign in the military documentation of the SRK about it, which must have been if happened! How this matter is in other countries: are presidents and other high officials charged for irregularities that happened #against their orders#?)

2434. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that as a result of the detainees in Planjo's House being forced by Serb Forces to carry out labour at the frontlines or to serve as human shields, at least 16 detainees were killed and a number were wounded during August and September 1992.

(G) Movement of the population from Vogošća and appropriation of property

2435. According to Muračević, between May 1992 and mid-June 1993, approximately 13,000 individuals, of whom the greater majority were Bosnian Muslims, left the Serb-controlled parts of the municipality of Vogošća.⁸¹⁹² Muračević further stated that almost all the Bosnian Muslim inhabitants of Svrake and Tihovići left during the same period.⁸¹⁹³ On 31 May 1993, the Executive Board of the Serb municipality of Vogošća established the municipal commission for the census of the population.⁸¹⁹⁴ According to the census that was subsequently conducted, the villages of Svrake had not a single Muslim resident, the village of Hotonj had one, whereas Semizovac had 16.⁸¹⁹⁵ The same census indicates that the population of the 14 villages that were surveyed in the municipality of Vogošća was 93.5% Bosnian Serb, 1.8% Bosnian Muslim, and 2.6% Bosnian Croat.⁸¹⁹⁶ (#Both populations left#! As Mr. Muracevic said, " the Muslims left" the Serb parts of the Vogosca municipality – as well as the Serbs left the Muslim parts

The Chamber heard additional evidence on incidents which occurred after September 1992 and which involved the use of human shields as well as forced labour and resulted in casualties. See P124 (Witness statement of Zijad Okić dated 24 June 1997), e-court p. 7, P46 (Witness statement of Bego Selimović dated 21 June 1997), paras. 34–35, 38, P124 (Witness statement of Zijad Okić dated 24 June 1997), e-court p. 9. The Chamber notes, however, that these incidents are not charged in the Indictment. The list of the killed and missing civilians in Vogošća, prepared by Muračević, refers to 10 individuals who died while performing forced labour or serving as human shields during September 1992. These individuals are Enver Činara, Azem Durmić, Nail Durmić, Bajro Holujić, Bajro Hujčić, Safet Kruezi, Hamid Rizvo, Hasan Rizvo, Nermin Skando and Avdo Tirić. P2397 (List of people arrested in Vogošća during 1992–1995), pp. 5–6, 10, 14, 21, 23, 25. By contrast, Amor Mašović refers to 16 individuals, namely Azim Čović, Bajram Salkić, Avdo Tirić, Azem Durmić, Bajro Hujčić, Džmail Šehić, Enver Činara, Ferid Šehić, Hamid Rizvo, Mehmed Šehić, Nail Durmić, Nermin Skando, Nusret Selimović, Ramiz Handžić, Rasim Avdukić and Safet Kruezi, as victims of Scheduled Incident B19.1. P4853 (Updated Table 2 to the Report of Amor Mašović), pp. 97–98. Having considered these inconsistencies, the Chamber does not consider them to be of relevance, as it is satisfied, that a number of men indeed died in Scheduled Incident B.19.1. Furthermore, the Chamber notes that there are some discrepancies in evidence as regards the names of some of the victims of Scheduled Incident B.19.1, but it considers these inconsistencies to be minor. Accordingly, the Chamber concludes that these are in fact the same individuals.

of Vogosca. If there hadn't been a war, there would be formed two, or even three municipalities, each for one community, but the Muslim side was rather for a war than for a peaceful settlement. What is the President's liability for that?#Two municipalities – peace#!)

2436. Bosnian Muslims leaving Vogošća were required to obtain certificates of departure and were forced to either sign their property over to the municipal authorities or exchange it with Serb property in other municipalities in BiH.⁸¹⁹⁷ In an interview, published on 13 July 1992, Koprivica admitted that the distribution to Serb refugees of empty houses in the municipality of Vogošća had not been carried out appropriately and implied that there had been various cases where individuals had simply occupied houses without any form of registration whatsoever.⁸¹⁹⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!) That is why it was necessary to register the abandoned property, to be able to control its use, and to oblige the temporary users to preserve it and return it in the same condition!)

2437. By reference to the evidence of Nikola Poplašen, the President argues that (i) the intention behind the regulation requiring the departing non-Serbs to sign documents transferring ownership of property to the Bosnian Serb authorities was to preserve it and to prevent its misuse by organised armed groups,⁸¹⁹⁹ (This is a #grave distortion# of facts, since there never happened any “transfer of ownership” whatsoever, throughout the war and in any part of the Republic of Srpska! Even in the President's document it was written that both, refugees and abandoned property are the war features, and thus temporary! See D101, see also D111,

It has become common for local people to move into empty flats instead of refugees, and they sometimes even retain some kind of “right” to several flats.

The occurrence of abandoned flats is a war issue, and so are the refugees. This means that both occurrences are temporary.

Please strictly observe the following

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Temporarily abandoned flats can be given for temporary use to refugees only, not to local people.
2. Accurate records are to be kept on both the temporarily abandoned flats and the refugees. The temporarily abandoned flats can be given for use by a commission only, which issues the decision on the temporary use.
3. Any abuse, nepotism and failure to observe these instructions/ entails not only political responsibility, but also criminal prosecution/.

The document was issued on 23 August 1992, and from it there is visible information about abuse of the abandoned property, as well as that abandoned property is abandoned only temporarily!) (ii) the enactment of this regulation in itself suggests that there were no expulsions, because non-Serbs could otherwise not leave the municipality,⁸²⁰⁰ and (iii) non-Serbs relocated on their own accord to the areas where they were in the majority and where they thought they would be safer.⁸²⁰¹ The Chamber rejects these arguments. Poplašen himself conceded that the regulation did not provide for the return of ownership rights to the original owners and that it had to be annulled before such restoration could take place.⁸²⁰² (This is an #invalid finding#: the matter is #regulated by the law#, not by any regulation on how to handle abandoned property, since the regulation had a limited value, and was far below the law!) Furthermore, it is clear from the evidence before the Chamber that the main purpose of the regulation was to facilitate the use of the vacant property in question by Serbs who had just arrived in the municipality. In turn, this ensured that those non-Serbs who left Vogošća, due to the circumstances there, would not return. (This is a flagrant “reading in” and #distortion of facts#, because the abandoned property could in no way belong to any refugee, as it is evident from the after-the-war development, which had shown no example of “not return” on that basis! Such a construction by the Chamber is not acceptable, and must be reconsidered!)

2438. In light of the foregoing, and considering the surrounding circumstances in the municipality, the Chamber finds that the non-Serb population from the Serb-controlled parts of Vogošća was forced to leave. (A completely unfounded “finding” even according to the Chamber’s formulations and wordings!)

2. Legal findings on crimes

a. Chapeau requirements for Articles 3 and 5 of the Statute

2439. In the Municipalities component of the case, in addition to a count of genocide under Article 4 of the Statute, the President is charged with a count of violations of the laws or customs of war under Article 3 of the Statute, namely murder, as well as with five counts of crimes against humanity under Article 5 of the Statute, namely persecution, murder, extermination, deportation, and forcible transfer as an inhumane act.⁸²⁰³ The Prosecution alleges that there was a state of armed conflict at all times relevant to the Indictment.⁸²⁰⁴ (This assertion also couldn’t survive a criticism in many municipalities. The war was between the ethnic communities, Serbs, Croats and Muslims, all against each other. The communities had been established their respective territories, a future constituent units, agreed upon before the war. So, there was a “state of armed conflict” between these territories. What happened within those territories was not “a state of armed conflict”, it was a terrorism! An armed conflict has it’s criteria, and a sides to the conflict have their armies, declared, marked by amblems, with a structured units and known commands. The units are composed of soldiers. This was a civil war, and once the armies separated and declared their territories, amblems and commands, the rest were nothing but terrorists, who looked like civilians and fought like combatants!) It further alleges that all acts and omissions charged as crimes against humanity, except those that formed part of the sniping and shelling campaign in Sarajevo, were part of a widespread or systematic attack directed against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH.⁸²⁰⁵

Article 3 of the Statute

2440. Based on the evidence set out in detail above regarding the events related to this case, the Chamber finds that there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period relevant to the crimes alleged in the Indictment. At the latest, the armed conflict in BiH started in early April 1992. In the wake of the referendum on the independence of BiH on 29 February and 1 March 1992, (#Basically incorrect#! The war abrupted because the Muslim side reneged on the Lisbon Agreement, intending to deceive the Srb side and started the war! In spite of the fact that referendum had been held on 29 Februari and 1 March, in spite of the killing on the Serb wedding on 1 March and the crisis about barricades, the Lisbon Conference continued and resulted in an accord about the internal decentralisation of BiH on 18 March! In spite of the fact that the #Referendum was illegal# and failed, the Serb side remained conciliatory and ready for compromises! Neither the Prosecution, nor the Chamber, nor even the UN, considered whether the Referendum was legal, and whether the results enabled the proclamation of independence. All the violence of the Constitution, the one of BiH as well as the Federal, didn't attract any attention.) armed clashes between Serb Forces on the one hand and Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat forces on the other ensued.⁸²⁰⁶ (The Chamber erred extremely when accepted the Prosecution's claim that there were a #“Serb Forces” that comprised all and every Serb# involved in the conflict. However, even if so, the Chamber would have to exclude from the charges against the President and all the leaders of Serbs in Bosnia everything that happened before 20 May 1992, because to that date there was the JNA as superpositioned armed force over all other groups. Further, the President and his associates, at least Prime Minister Branko Djeric, Minister for Interior Mico Stanisic, and once he was nominated as a Commander of the Main Headquarter of the VRS, General Mladic issued all the necessary orders to protect the humanitarian law, banning all the violations of it, banning all the paramilitary groups, and the President publicly disowned all the independent armed groups and ordered their arrest. No court all over the world should stretch any liability on any of those officials, #no liability#!) These armed clashes intensified and in early April 1992, municipalities starting with those in Eastern BiH were taken over by Serb Forces.⁸²⁰⁷ (These “armed clashes” didn't intensify in early April, it started in early April, and before the April 92 there was a terror against the Serb civilians: in Kupres, in the Neretva River Valley, in Bosanski Brod and the nearby village Sijekovac, and in Bijeljina as of 31 March to 3 April 92. There is no reasonable possibility to deny this concept! #Muslims started war, Serbs first victims#!)

2441. For murder charged under Article 3 of the Statute, the Chamber has examined whether it was closely related to the armed conflict and made such findings where relevant in this Judgement.⁸²⁰⁸ (The Chamber erred in estimating all the events and incidents the same way. However, the clashes between the armies is one, and the terrorist activities far from the confrontation lines is another matter!# Terrorists are different#!)

2442. In relation to the four so called “Tadić Conditions”, the Chamber refers to the applicable law sections of this Judgement, which expanded on the legal basis for each of the crimes charged in the Indictment under Article 3 of the Statute.⁸²⁰⁹ In relation to murder, the prohibition stems from Common Article 3 which is deemed to be part of customary international law.⁸²¹⁰ Further, the Appeals Chamber has confirmed that violations of the provisions of Common Article 3 entail individual criminal responsibility.⁸²¹¹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the four Tadić Conditions are met, and consequently that the chapeau requirements for Article 3 of the Statute are fulfilled, in relation to murder. (#Satisfactory absurdity#! Sure, the Chamber “satisfied” itself, who would prevent them to do that? But this paragraph of the Judgement is the source of many irregularities, and it is a “novum sui generis” in the legal practice! No “tadic, or other conditions” should enable sentencing a completely innocent people, so far from any crime, majority of which had been committed hidden from the very same persons that are “found” guilty! So many “partial” solutions, so many discriminatory menus and possibilities to chose what “satisfies” the Prosecution-Chamber alliance. There is a substantial question unanswered: could it be exercised in the democratic countries that support this court – as it was exercised in this court?)

⁸²⁰⁸ See para. 2455. The Chamber notes that in relation to the Municipalities component, murder is the only charged violation of the laws or customs of war pursuant to Article 3 of the Statute.

ii. Article 5 of the Statute

2443. As found above, there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period of the Indictment. (It was “found above” by the chambers of this court #contrary to any logics and any jurisprudence#! There was no any conflict deep in the territories of the constituent units, there was a rebellion after rebellion and other subversive activities and terrorist attacks, first on the JNA and the Serbs generally, then against both, the Army of Republic of Srpska, and civilians. Nowhere in the world it could be considered as an armed conflict stricto sensu.) The evidence admitted at trial and explained in detail in the relevant factual sections of this Judgement, demonstrates that there also existed a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH at all times relevant to the crimes charged in the Indictment. (This sounds as a mere insult of the Serbian people and the Serb victims. And this was possible because the Tribunal prevented “the whole truth” to come out.

First, the #Serbs didn’t want the war#, and didn’t need it, because they had their sovereign territory and legitimate authorities; second, Bosnia didn’t exist as a whole at the moment it was recognised. The Republic of Srpska declared the independence in the eve of the international recognition of BiH, with the same, or even more rights as Bosnia declared independence from Yugoslavia; third, the Republic of Srpska followed the conclusions of the ICFY in the Hague in 1991 and commitments that Mr. Alija Izetbegovic have given pertaining to the future structure of BiH, as well as the results of this Conference in Lisbon; fourth, the Serbs didn’t cause the war, and didn’t initiate it, because the Serbs didn’t want any other ethnic territory except a main part of the Serb territory;

fifth, there was no any need for a war to achieve the Serb rights and legitimate objectives, while those who wanted to deny it to the Serbs – needed a war.) The attack took many forms, as shown below in relation to each of the relevant components of the case. As reflected below, the Chamber is also satisfied that the crimes upon which the Chamber has entered findings formed part of that attack and that the perpetrators knew of the attack and that the crimes were part of it.⁸²¹² (It is impossible to understand and explain how the Tribunal could have been deaf and blind for an obvious and proven fact that there was no a single Serb attack which wasn’t a response to the Muslim-Croat attack, and that the individuals and whole settlements that didn’t act against the RS – didn’t have any problem to the end of the war, as could be seen in D2424, and P3788 and other documents!)

2444. In the Municipalities, at the time relevant to the Indictment, the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations were the subject of a widespread and systematic campaign of violence, including through acts of murder, and forcible displacement.⁸²¹³ (#Wrong, fake and uncorroborated# by any evidence! Why some of the Muslims-Croats had troubles, while others didn’t? because those who had the troubles with the legal structures of the RS attacket the RS prior to any trouble. There were several incidents commited by a criminal individuals, but far from any official structure, and hidden from the authorities!) The acts of violence and crimes committed against the Bosnian Muslim and Croat populations included killings, cruel and inhumane treatment such as torture and rape, the establishment and perpetuation

⁸²¹³ See Sections IV.A.2.b.i: Legal findings on crimes (Murder: Counts 5 and 6), IV.A.2.b.iii: Legal findings on crimes (Deportation and inhumane acts (forcible transfer): Counts 7 and 8).

of inhumane living conditions, unlawful detention, forced labour at the frontlines and the use of human shields, plunder of property, wanton destruction of private and public property, as well as the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures.⁸²¹⁴ While the Chamber finds differences in each of the Municipalities, it is satisfied that there was a generally similar pattern of co-ordinated violence during and after the take-over of these Municipalities and in detention facilities throughout. Indeed, in twenty municipalities in Eastern BiH, the ARK, and the Sarajevo area, and in detention facilities therein, Serb Forces committed acts of murder, persecution, and forcible displacement, which resulted in a vast number of Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat victims. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that this demonstrates the systematic and widespread nature of the attack.

2445. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the chapeau requirements for the crimes charged under Article 5 of the Statute are met.

c. Crimes

1. Murder: Counts 5 and 6

A. Killing incidents

2446. The Chamber recalls its factual findings in Section IV.A.1 above, that a large number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were killed by Serb Forces during and after the take-over⁸²¹⁵ of Bijeljina,⁸²¹⁶ Bratunac,⁸²¹⁷ Foča,⁸²¹⁸ Ključ,⁸²¹⁹ Novi Grad,⁸²²⁰ Prijedor,⁸²²¹ Sanski Most,⁸²²² Sokolac,⁸²²³ Višegrad,⁸²²⁴ Vlasenica,⁸²²⁵ and Zvornik.⁸²²⁶ (There was no any “take-over”, except the Serb side took control over the Serb parts of these municipalities, formed their own municipalities, and offered the same to the Muslim side! #No “take-over” happened#! #Two municipalities – peace#!)

⁸²¹⁴ See Section IV.A.2.b.iv: Legal findings on crimes (Persecution: Count 3).

⁸²¹⁶ The killing of at least 45 civilians in the town of Bijeljina: Scheduled Incident A.1.1.

⁸²¹⁷ The killing of at least four people in the village of Hranča and the killing of at least 65 Bosnian Muslims in the village of Glogova: Scheduled Incidents A.3.1, A.3.2. The Chamber recalls that it did not have sufficient evidence to make a finding beyond reasonable doubt as to the circumstances surrounding the death of some Bosnian Muslims killed in Hranča in the municipality of Bratunac.

⁸²¹⁸ The killing of a number of civilians from the village of Jeleč and the killing of at least seven Bosnian Muslim civilians from the village of Mješaja/ Trošanj: Scheduled Incidents A.5.2, A.5.4. The Chamber recalls that it did not have sufficient evidence to make a finding beyond reasonable doubt as to the circumstances surrounding the death of three individuals during the initial attack on Mješaja/Trošanj in the municipality of Foča.

⁸²¹⁹ The killing of at least three civilians in the village of Pudin Han, the killing of 52 Bosnian Muslims in Prhovo; and the killing of approximately 200 Bosnian Muslims in Biljani: Scheduled Incidents A.7.1, A.7.2, A.7.3.

⁸²²⁰ The killing of 15 Bosnian Muslim men following the attack on Ahatovići: Scheduled Incident A.9.1.

⁸²²³ The killing of approximately 40 Bosnian Muslim men in the village of Novoseoci: Scheduled Incident A.13.1.

⁸²²⁴ The killing of approximately 45 Bosnian Muslim civilians near Paklenik, close to the village of Kalimanići in Sokolac municipality: Scheduled Incident A.14.2. While the killing incident charged in Scheduled Incident A.14.2 occurred in Sokolac, for ease of reference and as charged in paragraph 48 of the Indictment, the Chamber herein includes it under Višegrad since it occurred after the take-over of Višegrad and relates to Bosnian Muslims taken from this municipality.

⁸²²⁵ The killing of at least 20 Bosnian Muslim men in the village of Drum and the killing of at least 60 people including women and children in the village of Zaklopača: Scheduled Incidents A.15.1, A.15.2.

⁸²²⁶ The killing of at least 15 people in the town of Zvornik and the killing of a large number of Bosnian Muslim men at Gero’s slaughterhouse: Scheduled Incidents A.16.1, A.16.3.

2447. The Chamber also recalls its findings in section IV.A.1 above, that many Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were killed by Serb Forces while detained at detention facilities⁸²²⁷ in Banja Luka,⁸²²⁸ Bijeljina,⁸²²⁹ Bratunac,⁸²³⁰ Brčko,⁸²³¹ Foča,⁸²³² Ilidža,⁸²³³ Ključ,⁸²³⁴ Novi Grad,⁸²³⁵ Pale,⁸²³⁶ Prijedor,⁸²³⁷ Rogatica,⁸²³⁸ Sanski Most,⁸²³⁹ Vlasenica,⁸²⁴⁰ Vogošća,⁸²⁴¹ and Zvornik.⁸²⁴²

2448. The Chamber further recalls its findings in section IV.A.1 above, that some Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats died as a result of cruel and inhumane treatment by Serb Forces at detention facilities in Banja Luka,⁸²⁴³ Bijeljina,⁸²⁴⁴ Bratunac,⁸²⁴⁵ Foča,⁸²⁴⁶ Prijedor,⁸²⁴⁷ Rogatica,⁸²⁴⁸ Sanski Most,⁸²⁴⁹ and Zvornik.⁸²⁵⁰

Intent of perpetrators

2449. The Chamber recalls its findings that the death of the victims for each of the incidents identified above was a result of the acts of Serb Forces. The Chamber finds that the perpetrators of each of these incidents acted with the intent to kill the victims or at least wilfully caused serious

- 8227 The Chamber recalls that it did not enter factual findings with respect to killings of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats while detained at detention facilities in Bosanski Novi, Hadžići, Sokolac, and Višegrad as there were no Schedule B killing incidents charged with respect to these municipalities.
- 8228 The killing of six Bosnian Muslim men in front of the gates of Manjača, the suffocation of 20 detainees during transportation to Manjača, Banja Luka, the killing of eight or nine Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats on their arrival at Manjača, and the killing of at least 15 Bosnian Muslim men detained at Manjača: Scheduled Incidents B.1.1, B.1.2, B.1.3, B.1.4.
- 8229 The killing of at least six Bosnian Muslim men at Batković camp: Scheduled Incident B.2.1.

- 8233 The beating to death of two detainees at Kula Prison and the killing of at least three detainees from Kula Prison while performing forced labour: Scheduled Incidents B.13.1, B.13.2. The Chamber notes that the Indictment originally included Kula Prison as being located in Novo Sarajevo municipality; however it was subsequently corrected to include Kula Prison as falling within Ilidža municipality. See fn. 7285. The killing incidents related to this detention facility are therefore considered under Ilidža.
- 8234 The killing of 77 Bosnian Muslim men at Velagići School: Scheduled Incident B.10.1.
- 8235 The killing of 11 Bosnian Muslim detainees who were being held at the cisterns in the Rajlovac barracks and the killing of 47 Bosnian Muslim detainees who had been taken away from Rajlovac by bus: Scheduled Incidents B.12.1, B.12.2.
- 8236 The killing of at least three detainees who died as a result of beatings at Pale Gym: Scheduled Incident B.14.1.

The Chamber notes that with respect to its finding that 29 Bosnian Muslim men were killed near Nova Kasaba, it is charged in the Indictment as a killing related to a detention facility: Scheduled Incident B.18.4. While the Prosecution filed a notice of withdrawal with respect to the relevant detention facility (Scheduled Detention Facility C.25.4), the Chamber has considered these killings as a Schedule B incident as charged in the Indictment.
- 8241 The killing of at least 16 detainees taken from Planjo's House in Svrake and killed while carrying out work on the front-lines or while being used as human shields: Scheduled Incident B.19.1.
- 8242 The killing of approximately 88 men at Drinjača; the killing of at least 60 men at Čelopek Dom Kulture; the killing of approximately 160 men at the Karakaj Technical School; and the killing of at least two men at the Ekonomija Farm: Scheduled Incidents B.20.1, B.20.2, B.20.3, B.20.4.
- 8243 The Chamber found that one elderly detainee died during transportation to Manjača due to intense heat: Scheduled Detention Facility C.1.2.
- 8244 The Chamber found that some detainees from the Batković camp died from starvation, exhaustion or while being forced to work on the front-lines: Scheduled Detention Facility C.2.1.
- 8245 The Chamber found that one detainee died of suffocation after Serb Forces piled detainees on top of each other: Scheduled Detention Facility C.6.2.
- 8246 The Chamber found that at least one detainee died as a result of poor medical care: Scheduled Detention Facility C.10.1.
- 8247 The Chamber found that at least one detainee died as a result of beatings: Scheduled Detention Facility C.20.3. The Chamber also found that at least two men died of suffocation after being crammed into a garage for several days: Scheduled Detention Facility C.20.2.
- 8248 The Chamber found that some detainees died following beatings: Scheduled Detention Facility C.21.3.
- 8249 The Chamber found that one detainee died as a result of a beating: Scheduled Detention Facility C.22.4.
- 8250 The Chamber found that approximately 20 detainees died from suffocation after being held in cramped conditions: Scheduled Detention Facility, C.27.2. The Chamber found that one detainee died following a severe beating: Scheduled Detention Facility C.27.6.

bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death. (There were a very few that lost their lives! Many of them had been counted in twice or many times! The Tribunal didn't establish anything essential, particularly the number of victims and the way they died! If it was the Serb intention, why so many times the Serb superiors prevented crimes, disbanded and arrested members of disobedient and incompetent units, so many times rectified a misdemeanors of subordinates, reported every single known crime, and have undertaken many other measures to secure the law and order???)#Conduct of the Serb officials proper#)

2450. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the circumstances and the manner in which the victims were killed. With respect to the Schedule A killing incidents, the Chamber found that many of the victims were deliberately shot.⁸²⁵¹ In other incidents, while the Chamber did not have evidence that the victims were deliberately shot, the Chamber did find that they were killed during or after the take-over of towns or villages by Serb Forces⁸²⁵² and is satisfied considering the surrounding circumstances that these killings were deliberate.⁸²⁵³ (#All the way around#! The Serbs controlled only the Serb parts, and for that they didn't need any fighting. On the contrary, the entire war and everything that happened during it – was a result of the Muslim attempts to prevent the Serbs in achieving their rights for decentralisation, as agreed on the Conference in the Hague, London, Brussels and Lisbon! Nobody could contest these true facts!)

2451. With respect to killings in scheduled detention facilities under Schedule B of the Indictment, the Chamber found that the victims (i) were shot by Serb Forces during their detention;⁸²⁵⁴ (ii) died as a result of severe beatings by Serb Forces during their detention;⁸²⁵⁵ or (iii) were taken away from the detention facilities by Serb Forces and killed.⁸²⁵⁶

2452. The Chamber recalls its finding that in Vogošća and Ilidža a number of detainees were taken from their place of detention by Serb Forces and killed while carrying out work on the front-lines or while being used as human shields.⁸²⁵⁷ The victims died as a result of the actions of Serb Forces who used them for work on the front-lines or as human shields. In using the victims for work on the front-lines or as human shields, the members of the Serb Forces deliberately took the risk that they would be killed. The Chamber finds that in using them as human shields or in forcing them to work on the frontlines, the perpetrators wilfully caused the victims serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death.

2453. With respect to victims who died as a result of cruel and inhumane treatment at detention facilities, the Chamber found that the victims died in circumstances which showed an intent by the perpetrators to kill or at least wilfully cause them serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death.⁸²⁵⁸ For example the Chamber found that the detainees were severely beaten⁸²⁵⁹ inter alia with chains and metal rods.⁸²⁶⁰ Others were subjected

⁸²⁵³ For example with respect to the three civilians killed as a result of the shelling by Serb Forces in Pudín Han, Ključ municipality, the Chamber found that the mosque was blown up and levelled and that upon his return, KDZ024 found everything in the village burned, destroyed, and in ruins: Scheduled Incident A.7.1. On this basis the Chamber finds beyond reasonable doubt that the shelling was carried out with the intent to cause serious bodily harm which the perpetrators should reasonably have known might lead to the death of civilians.

⁸²⁵⁴ Scheduled Incidents B.2.1, B.4.1, B.5.1, B.10.1, B.12.1, B.15.1, B.15.4, B.15.5, B.16.2, B.18.1, B.18.3, B.20.1, B.20.2, B.20.3, B.20.4.

The Indictment refers to a separate category of killings committed during, and deaths resulting from, cruel and inhumane treatment and detention facilities. Indictment, para. 60(a)(ii). However, the Chamber notes that some of the Schedule B killing incidents pertain to deaths resulting from such cruel and inhumane treatment.

⁸²⁵⁶ Scheduled Incidents B.8.1, B.12.1, B.12.2, B.15.2, B.15.3, B.15.6, B.16.1, B.18.2, B.1.1, B.1.3, B.17.1.

to such conditions that they died from starvation, exhaustion,⁸²⁶¹ lack of medical care,⁸²⁶² intense heat,⁸²⁶³ or suffocation.⁸²⁶⁴

Status of victims

2454. The Chamber also finds that the victims of each of these incidents were civilians⁸²⁶⁵ or had been rendered hors de combat at the time of their killing. Many of the victims were executed or killed after being captured by Serb Forces;⁸²⁶⁶ some were killed while trying to escape from Serb Forces⁸²⁶⁷ while others were killed after being detained by Serb Forces in scheduled detention facilities.⁸²⁶⁸ (Escaping prisoners of war are a combat casualties. Did the Chamber establish – was there any combat casualties, and how many! The Muslim side waged three wars: a permanent against the Serbs, and for a considerable portion of time against the Croats, and against the secular Muslims (Fikret Abdic) - #No Muslim combat casualties counted#!)

Conclusion

2455. The Chamber has found that there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period relevant to the Indictment. As demonstrated by the Chamber's factual findings explained above, the Chamber finds that the killings referred to in this section were closely related to that armed conflict and thus constitute murder as violation of the laws or customs of war. (In many of these "Municipalities" it happened far from any conflict and front-line, and it wasn't a conflict between the two Armies. It had been a #conflict of terrorists and Police or Military# deep in the Serb territory!)

2456. The Chamber has also found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the killings referred to above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these killings knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these killings, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber therefore finds that these killings constitute murder as a crime against humanity.

ii. Extermination: Count 4

2457. The Chamber has also had regard to each of the killing incidents identified above to determine whether they amount to extermination. While the Chamber recalls that there is no minimum threshold of victims for the purposes of extermination, it still has to be satisfied that the killings occurred on a mass scale and needs to conduct a case-by-case assessment in that regard.⁸²⁶⁹

2458. As previously noted, extermination may be established based on the accumulation of separate incidents.⁸²⁷⁰ However, it has been found that “as a general matter, the element of killing on a large scale cannot be satisfied by a collective consideration of distinct events committed in different prefectures, in different circumstances, by different perpetrators, and over an extended period of time”⁸²⁷¹.

2459. In this case, the Chamber noted that a large number of killing incidents charged in the Indictment with respect to the Municipalities were committed in different locations, in different circumstances, and by different perpetrators over an extended period of time. Having considered these factors, where the Chamber found that the incidents in question were distinct, the Chamber assessed on a case-by-case basis whether each incident amounts to a mass scale killing for the purposes of the actus reus of extermination. In making that assessment, the Chamber has had regard to the scale of each of the killing incidents and the circumstances in which the killings occurred. The Chamber has done so where the circumstances indicated that the killings were committed in geographically proximate locations, in similar circumstances, over a relatively short period of time and were thus considered to be part of the same operation.

2460. On this basis, the Chamber finds that the element of killing on a mass scale is established with respect to each of the following incidents which occurred during and after the take-over of the Municipalities: (i) the killing of at least 45 civilians in the town of Bijeljina;⁸²⁷² (Nine Serbs, many Albanian mercenaries, and less than 27 Muslims! And the #Muslims attacked Bijeljina#, not vice versa!) (ii) the killing of at least 65 Bosnian Muslims in the village of Glogova in Bratunac;⁸²⁷³ (Glogova, a #Muslim stronghold#, which initiated all the subsequent events!) (iii) the killing of 52 Bosnian Muslims in Prhovo in Ključ;⁸²⁷⁴ (iv) the killing of approximately 200 Bosnian Muslims in Biljani in Ključ;⁸²⁷⁵ (v) the killing of 80 Bosnian Muslims in Kozarac in Prijedor;⁸²⁷⁶ (Kozarac, a very known and extremely militarized #Muslim stronghold#! All the victims were combat victims!) (vi) the killing of at least 300 non-Serbs in the village of Bišćani and surrounding hamlets in Prijedor;⁸²⁷⁷ (vii) the killing of about 50 persons at a mine in Kipe in Prijedor;⁸²⁷⁸ (viii) the killing of at least 68 people in the village of Briševo in Prijedor;⁸²⁷⁹ (ix) the killing of approximately 40 Bosnian Muslim men in the village of Novoseoci in Sokolac;⁸²⁸⁰ (x) the killing of approximately 45 Bosnian Muslim civilians near Paklenik after being taken from Višegrad;⁸²⁸¹ (xi) the killing of at least 60 people, including women and children, in the village of Zaklopača in Vlasenica;⁸²⁸² and (xii) the killing of a large number of Bosnian Muslim men at Gero’s slaughterhouse in Zvornik.⁸²⁸³ (All of the named incidents had been initiated by the #Muslim attacks# - and nothing similar happened in two third of the Serb municipalities!)

2461. Similarly, the Chamber finds that the element of killing on a mass scale is established with respect to each of the following incidents which occurred in charged detention facilities: (i) the killing of at least 50 detainees at the Vuk Karadžić School in Bratunac;⁸²⁸⁴ (ii) the killing of a large number of non-Serb men at the Luka Camp in Brčko;⁸²⁸⁵ (iii) the killing of over 200 detainees at KP Dom Foča;⁸²⁸⁶ (iv) the killing of 77 Bosnian Muslim men at Velagići School in Ključ;⁸²⁸⁷ (v) the killing of 47 Bosnian Muslim detainees who had been taken away from Rajlovac in Novi Grad;⁸²⁸⁸ (vi) the killing of at least 190 persons in Room 3 at Keraterm camp in Prijedor;⁸²⁸⁹ (vii) the killing of a large number of non-Serbs at Omarska or after they were taken from Omarska in Prijedor;⁸²⁹⁰ (viii) the killing of at least 120 persons taken from Omarska in the area of Hrastova Glavica in Prijedor;⁸²⁹¹ (ix) the killing of at least 150 persons from the Brdo region who were detained at Omarska in Prijedor;⁸²⁹² (x) the killing of approximately 200 non-Serb men at Korićanske Stijene including men taken from Trnopolje in Prijedor;⁸²⁹³ (xi) the killing of approximately 140 detainees taken from Sušica camp in Vlasenica;⁸²⁹⁴ (xii) the killing of approximately 88 men at Drinjača in Zvornik;⁸²⁹⁵ (xiii) the killing of at least 60 men at Čelopek Dom Kulture in Zvornik;⁸²⁹⁶ and (xiv) the killing of approximately 160 men at the Karakaj Technical School in Zvornik.⁸²⁹⁷

2463. The Chamber found there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the killings above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these killings knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these killings, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack. Further, given the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Croat civilian populations of BiH, the Chamber further finds that the perpetrators knew of the attack and that the crimes were part of it. The Chamber therefore finds that these killings constitute extermination as a crime against humanity.⁸²⁹⁸

⁸²⁹⁸ For the remaining killing incidents the Chamber was not satisfied that the element of killing on a mass scale was established. The Chamber also found that these remaining incidents were distinct and that it was impermissible to aggregate them for the purposes of assessing the mass scale element of the killings for the actus reus of extermination.

2464. The Chamber will deal with the issue of cumulative convictions later in this Judgement and the impermissibility of entering convictions for both extermination and murder under Article 5 of the Statute where the elements of both crimes have been established.⁸²⁹⁹

(All and everything in this chapter, since Chapeau requirements for Articles 3 and 5 of the Statute is wrong and invalid, all allegedly “established is fake, unfounded and represent the essence of the wrong concept that was implemented throughout all the cases before this Tribunal! A true and impartial experts would establish it immediately!)

iii. Deportation and inhumane acts (forcible transfer): Counts 7 and 8

(A) Actus reus

(1) Movement of population

2465. The Chamber recalls its findings in Section IV.A.1 of this Judgement that a large number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities⁸³⁰⁰ were displaced. Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Bijeljina,⁸³⁰¹ Bratunac,⁸³⁰² Foča,⁸³⁰³ Pale,⁸³⁰⁴ Prijedor,⁸³⁰⁵ Rogatica,⁸³⁰⁶ Sanski Most,⁸³⁰⁷ Sokolac,⁸³⁰⁸ Vlasenica,⁸³⁰⁹ Zvornik,⁸³¹⁰ Bosanski Novi,⁸³¹¹ Ilidža,⁸³¹² Novi Grad,⁸³¹³ Novo Sarajevo,⁸³¹⁴ Ključ,⁸³¹⁵ Hadžići,⁸³¹⁶ and Vogošća⁸³¹⁷ were displaced from their homes, villages and towns in which they were lawfully present to other locations in BiH. The locations to which they moved were mostly under Bosnian Muslim control including Tuzla, Konjević Polje, Srebrenica, Goražde, Visoko, Zenica, and areas of Sarajevo. In the case of Bijeljina, the Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims were transferred to “no-man’s land” before being able to cross to Bosnian Muslim controlled territory.⁸³¹⁸ With respect to these incidents the Chamber finds that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were displaced within the national boundaries of BiH.

⁸²⁹⁹ See Section IV.F.

⁸³⁰⁰ The Prosecution does not allege criminal responsibility for forcible transfer or deportation in Banja Luka, Brčko and Višegrad as an underlying act of persecution under Count 3 of the Indictment. Indictment, fn. 6. The Chamber notes that in fn. 13 of the Indictment, the Prosecution only states that with regard to deportation as a crime against humanity under Count 7 of the Indictment, it does not allege criminal responsibility for Višegrad. However, the Chamber has interpreted this restrictively in light of fn. 6 of the Indictment in favour of the Accused and will not make findings with respect to forcible transfer or deportation in Banja Luka, Brčko, and Višegrad under Counts 3, 7, or 8.

2466. The Chamber also found that Bosnian Muslims in Bijeljina, Zvornik and Bosanski Novi were displaced from their homes, villages and towns in which they were lawfully present to Serbia or Croatia.⁸³¹⁹ In addition, the Chamber found that following the attack on Zvornik in April 1992 by Serb Forces, thousands of Bosnian Muslims fled to Mali Zvornik in Serbia.⁸³²⁰ The Chamber also found that some Bosnian Muslims from Foča were transferred to Montenegro.⁸³²¹ The Chamber also recalls that Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat detainees from Prijedor were transferred in convoys to locations in Croatia.⁸³²² With respect to these incidents the Chamber finds that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were displaced across a de jure or de facto border between states.

2464. The Chamber recalls that the scale and extent of the expulsions and movement of civilians from the Municipalities resulted in the displacement of a vast number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁸³²³

(2) Forcible nature of movement

2465. The Chamber finds that the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats referred to above were forcibly displaced. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the surrounding circumstances in the Municipalities and found that the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were displaced as a result of physical force,⁸³²⁴ (This kind of displacement never happened, as far as it concerns with the official authorities. It is well documented that the persons wanting to leave some territory asked to be put on the list, submitted many papers about fulfilment of their obligations, payed taxes, electricity, housing and other papers, in some municipalities up to 15 dokument, and payed the transportation expenses, and even to bribe clerks to be put on the list. The #President issued all the necessary orders# for the respect of the human rights! This truth will never disappear!) threat of force,⁸³²⁵ (“Threats of force” had never been implemented by the official authorities, but some threats and unease could have been caused by the bitter Serb refugees that escaped from the Muslim-Croat areas!) or coercion.⁸³²⁶ (There could have been such an atmosphere created through the actions against the armed groups in some areas, municipalities, towns or villages. But, an intimidation had never been imposed by the authorities out of the actions of disarmament. A mere actions of disarmament, and in particular a search for perpetrators of criminal acts or attacks on the Army, police or civilians, by itself couldn’t be pleasant to anybody! But this was not caused deliberately, nor within any policy. Particularly the President had nothing to do with this,* since his orders were clear and strict against any abuse of means or situations!) Others fled out of fear.⁸³²⁷ (That was almost the only reason, certainly more than 90% of the displaced went for that reason, paying to intermediaries to convey them over the confrontation line. A liability is on the civil war, not on the authorities! How anyone could connect the President with any of those events, since he was too far from the terrain, so often out of the country for conferences, and without any insight in the local developments? The first UN documents indicated that the civilians escaped from combats, see#@ #) This fear was caused by ongoing violence and various crimes committed against non-Serbs including inter alia, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses and cultural monuments.⁸³²⁸ (Why it happened exclusively within the attacks caused by the Muslim extremists, and only in the municipalities, villages and other settlements where there was an attack of the Muslim forces? Why, for instance in Sanski Most, that happened only in several out of tens of the non-Serb villages? The horror of the civil war was present everywhere, but depended exclusively of the Muslim conduct. The war started in different times in different municipalities, and it never happened because of the Serbs, but always because of the Muslim-Croat alliance! Whoever is interested in the truth, will easily find a plethora of evidence within the file of this case!)

2466. Bosnian Muslims were often given limited time to leave their homes before being loaded onto trucks, buses or trains and transported out of the Municipalities.⁸³²⁹ (This is a negligence of the facts that it was only for those who were waiting for the transport, and when the buses had been secured, the people had been notified that the boarding will be in two hours or so. There had been examples that some villagers never came to the appointed buses, like in Kotor Varos, and the authorities returned the money to them, see: @) Some Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, when expelled, were forced to sign statements which left their property to the Bosnian Serb authorities.⁸³³⁰ In some cases they had to sign statements saying that they were leaving a particular area and would never return again.⁸³³¹ The Chamber also recalls its finding that in Vlasenica for example, some Bosnian Muslim women were forced to sign documents saying they were leaving the municipality of their own free will and those who refused to sign were subjected to threats to their lives and security.⁸³³² (This endless lies were possible because of the endless and uncritical trust that the Chamber had in many Muslim witnesses, who were prepared to lie. The Chamber already confirmed that the change of the ownership never happened in the entire Republic of Srpska. Particularly this allegation is senseless, and even more senseless in charges against this President, because he issued many orders against any violation of the humanitarian law, and specially annihilated any possible document, if issued, of that kind, see: D101 of 19 August 1992 #No Appropriation happened#! :

Pursuant to our document of 13 June 1992 concerning the observation of international standards in war, I hereby re-issue the following proper translation should be I order.... “[a]gainst the civilian population are to be prevented” with the stress on an imperative nature of this order! How any mentioning of this President in connection to this issue has any sense?)

2467. In many cases Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forced to leave following attacks against their villages or after the take-over of towns by Serb Forces.⁸³³³ In other cases, Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were first arrested, and detained in detention facilities before being transported out of the municipality.⁸³³⁴ While the transfers of some detainees out of detention facilities were described as “exchanges”, the Chamber finds that given that these “exchanges” were predominantly in relation to unlawfully detained civilians, they also amount to forced displacement.⁸³³⁵ (#Fights initiated by Muslim terrorists#! This kind of presentation neglects the essence: there had been fights, but initiated by the Muslim terrorists and extremists, and they never moved their civilians out of the combat zones, which was their obligation. The Prosecution had never proven that the Serbs attacked any settled place if there was no a strong Muslim armed group which attacked the Serb civilians or the Army-police units! Never!!! As the D2424 described it in Grbavica – Sarajevo, or Edward Vulliamy for Prijedor, P3788, describing the whole settlements of the non-Serbs where the inhabitants never had any problem because of a peaceful attitude towards the Republic of Srpska! How this in unjust and unfair to accuse only one side, could be depicted only by comparison of the acts against the Serbs in the Muslim/Croat territories with the acts of the Serbs against the non-Serbs. For instance, there are many settlements with the Muslim or Croat majority that had never been touched, and it depended on their conduct, such as Bosanski Dubovac, Bosanski Kobas, Brezovo polje (partly) Janja near Bijeljina (partly) Baljvine in M. Grad and others@@@)

2468. The Chamber recalls its findings that in some Municipalities Bosnian Muslims may have requested assistance or permission to leave, and in some cases they paid exorbitant fees to do so. However, these departures were not voluntary and occurred under circumstances in which they had no real choice but to leave.⁸³³⁶ (But this circumstances hadn’t been created by the Serbs, but by the inter-ethnic and inter-religious civil war!) Even when Bosnian Muslim leaders or other non-governmental organisations were involved in trying to evacuate Bosnian Muslims, this occurred in an environment of fear and threats which does not suggest that the population left voluntarily.⁸³³⁷ (The Chamber misses the essential fact: by whom or by what they had been threatened? It was never any official institution, but the civil war itself!!!) The Chamber finds that even though non-governmental organisations may have been involved in facilitating some of these displacements, this does not render lawful what were otherwise unlawful transfers. The Chamber found that in other municipalities while the Bosnian Serb authorities referred to movement of the population as “voluntary departure”, in reality civilians were fleeing out of fear for their lives; this occurred in intimidating and violent circumstances which negated any suggestion of voluntariness in their departures.⁸³³⁸ (Even more unlawful would be to prevent anyone to leave, and to deny the freedom of movement. Such an agreements had been signed by the side to the conflict many times, all of them forbidding the forceful transfer and forceful containment of civilians! The Chamber regularly misses to name the responsible, either person, or institution, or a situation of the civil war as itself, and for everything that usually happens in a civil war does charge the President and his associates, who in no way could influence the development! Is that a fair trial? #No liability established#!)

2469. In addition the Chamber recalls its finding that even in municipalities where Bosnian Serb authorities did invite citizens to return, the number of those who returned was extremely limited, and the pattern of mistreatment, intimidation and expulsions continued.⁸³³⁹ (By what, or by whom? This kind of “objectivisation” something that must be a subjective liability is unbearable in any justice system! The best example is the premature return of the Muslims in Bijeljina, when they had been invited by the President and the Prime Minister of Yugoslavia Mr. Panic. The general situation deteriorated immediately, see@) In Vlasenica for example, Bosnian Muslims when they returned to their villages found that their homes had been burnt down.⁸³⁴⁰ (#Military events#! Because there were a fierce fights, while the homes had been used as fortified military objects!) In another incident the Chamber found that Serb Forces turned away Bosnian Muslims who tried to return after fleeing their village in Zvornik.⁸³⁴¹ (This is also wrong and fake, because there is a document of the Muslim provenance, calling the Muslims not to return to the town, but to go to the terrain and join the Patriotic League! See:D1622, p.1:

Muslims, raise to arms, go to the woods or free territory, join the Territorial Defence of the municipality. Do not go back to the town or villages, do not go to work, exercise civil disobedience and paralyze economic and other activities which would give the legitimacy and the material basics for warfare to the newly establish occupying authority.

(#Muslim authorities forbade return#! Having this document, issued by the Muslim authorities of Zvornik on 8 May 1992, how was it possible to have this “finding” above?)

2470. The Chamber finds that there is no indication that the forcible displacement of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat population was carried out on any grounds permitted under international law. (Neither the Chamber established beyond reasonable doubt that there was any forcible displacement of population whatsoever! There is an overwhelming evidence that the civilians, for whatever reasons, requested and demanded to be transferred to the Muslim controlled territory, or to the third or neighbouring countries, as it was written in many agreements signed under the auspice of the ICRC, UNHCR or other mediators. See: D4710 p.1

We agree that all refugees will be permitted to return to the places from which they have been expelled and that civilians who are caught up in or trapped by the military situation, will be given freedom of movement.

The Council stresses the need for full compliance with all the requirements of the relevant resolutions of the Council towards which the agreement reached in London on 17 July 1992 is an important step. It reaffirms its decision to remain actively seized of the matter and to consider immediately, whenever necessary, further steps to achieve a peaceful solution in conformity with those resolutions.

(#No “permanent removal” possible#! #No “Joint Criminal Enterprise” possible#! This document rebuts the very foundation of the Joins Criminal Enterprise! After such a commitment, nobody was entitled to “find” the alleged “permanent removal” of the population. Nobody could be proud of the conditions which made the population to ask to leave, but the responsibility for civil war lies on somebody else, not on the Serb authorities! There are other documents, signed in 1992, beginning with the 12 April Sarajevo Agreement, through the 22 May Agreement, a 17 July Agreement, a 27 August Agreement, 30 September, 1 October Agreement, all of them regulatin the right of population to be transferred out of combat zones, with the right to returne preserved! Are the UN documents matter before the UN Court?)

ii. Mens rea

2471. With respect to the incidents in paragraph 2465, the Chamber finds that members of the Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs intended to forcibly displace the population within a national border. In relation to the incidents in paragraph 2466, the Chamber finds that members of the Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs intended to forcibly displace the population across a de jure or de facto border. (Even such an invalid finding, unfounded in evidence and completely fake, doesn't fit into the Prosecution's allegation about the JCE and alleged “permanent removal” of the non-Serb population out of the Serb territories! The mentioned paragraph is not by itself any evidence, it is only numbering od the municipalities allegedly cleansed by the “Serb Forces”....@)

2472. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the involvement of Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs in the systematic movement of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from the Municipalities. The Chamber also considered the similar pattern in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forcibly displaced and the involvement of Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs in creating an environment of fear in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats had no choice but to leave the Municipalities. (This is highly incorrect and unacceptable to allocate the inevitable atmosphere of a civil war to the willing conduct of the Serb side, which was only about 32% of the BiH population! Who was in fear, and who had a reason to fear? This is flagrant violation of a common sense, to charge the side which wanted “to avoid the at all costs”, see D1833, Cutileiro talks. Dr. Radovan Karadzic, the leader of the Serbs, was also positively inclined towards these talks. He wanted to avoid a war at all costs in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Secretary Vance for trying to exploit the war anf the fear for it's objectives. If it was so, why it didn't happen in all the municipalities with the Serb majority? Or, why it didn't happen at once, after the war broke out, on 6 April 1992? Why the Serb side proposed Bosnia to be like Switzerland? Why the Serbs proposed to the Muslims and Croats to form their own municipalities within the Republic of Srpska? No a reasonable courth could answer to these questions otherwise but as the Defense answers it!#Bosnia like Switzerland#! #Two municipalities – peace#!) As found above, this environment of fear was caused by ongoing violence, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses, and cultural monuments. In many cases the population fled following attacks against their villages and homes by Serb Forces. The Chamber finds beyond reasonable doubt that these circumstances demonstrate the requisite intent to forcibly displace the population. (This is equally wrong as all other findings in this Tribunal! Why? Because it is evident that the #Serbs never initiated# any of the armed skirmishes that appeared in the different municipalities in a different times. There is no example that any of those felonies numbered in this paragraph, “ongoing violence, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other aongoing violence, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses, and cultural monumentscts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses, and cultural monuments” ever happened without prior terrorist attacks of the Muslim or Croat forces, which thus inflamed the said municipality! There was no a single example that any settlement had been attacked without a military necessity, while there are many examples of the avoiding a skirmish once the said settlement handed over their weapons, or declared that will not fight. All of it is well documented in evidence in this case! If there is any opposition to this characterisation as a terrorist, it is the simpliest to see what is the #formulation of terrorism#, for instance in Encyclopaedia Britannica: Although conventional military forces invariably engage in psychological warfare against the enemy, their principal means of victory is strength of arms. Similarly, guerrilla forces, which often rely on acts of terror and other forms of propaganda, aim at military victory and occasionally succeed (e.g., the Viet Cong in Vietnam and the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia). Terrorism proper is thus the systematic use of violence to generate fear, and thereby to achieve political goals, when direct military victory is not possible. This has led some social scientists to refer to guerrilla warfare as the “weapon of the weak” and terrorism as the “weapon of the weakest. [...] Some definitions treat all acts of terrorism, regardless of their political motivations, as simple criminal activity. For example, in the United States the standard definition used by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) describes terrorism as “the unlawful use of force and violence against persons or property to intimidate or coerce a government, the civilian population, or any segment thereof, in furtherance of political or social objectives.” How else to qualify the attacks deep into the Serbian territory by the Muslim groups of armed extremists without any military prerequisites to be an army, without formed units, without uniforms and amblems, without known commanders, ready to hide at homes and get out now and then to kill, intimidate and even try to take over the power? #Terrorists by definition#!)

2473. In addition, the Chamber was able to infer intent from a number of explicit examples. In this regard the Chamber also recalls its finding that during attacks on Bosnian Muslim villages in Bratunac for example, members of Serb Forces said “this is a Serb country” and the Bosnian Muslims should be expelled.⁸³⁴² (Let us here see this para 744, which was the basis for such a finding: 744. En route, the soldiers provoked the Bosnian Muslims by saying that “this is a Serb country” and that they “should be expelled”. The men were lined up against the wall of the supermarket and ordered to put their hands up and stand in that position for half-an-hour. Many Bosnian Serb soldiers were gathered in the area near the supermarket. These soldiers were not regular JNA soldiers but included local Bosnian Serbs. There was also a tank with JNA markings and an APC in the centre of Glogova. (What does it mean, to found such a mean “finding” only on a #testimony of a Muslim extremist#, who fought against the Serbs and had lost? What significance may have anything that the soldiers could have said, if any at all? How this may be the President’s liability? Did these soldiers participate in the process of creation of the policy of Serbs in Bosnia? Why to “infer” anything if on the same subject there is so many #contemporaneous evidence#? Just look at the P941, from 26 August 1992:

2. Secretary Vance asked which areas Dr Karadzic considered to be Serbian land. Dr Karadzic said it was difficult to discuss which areas could be handed back. To do so would frighten the Serbian people in these places. He was willing to talk about giving back territory as part of an overall agreement. But any such agreement would also have to protect Serbian property rights in Muslim and Croat areas. Dr. Koljevic said it was clearly in the interests of the Serbs to return land in exchange for full political autonomy. Dr Karadzic said that the precise amount of land that may be returned had not been decided. But the total would be substantial. As far as Sarajevo was concerned, he favoured using the administration of Brussels as a model. The Serbian municipalities would be part of the Serbian constituent unit. Secretary Vance asked how this apparent will to talk about constituent units was compatible with ethnic cleansing. Dr Karadzic said that all sides had practised cleansing over many years. It was imperative for the overall agreement to allow all refugees to return.

this is a commitment of the most competent Serb leader, and how any nasty remarks of the bypassing soldiers could be taken to rebut this official standpoint? The President was sufficiently honest to notice that “all sides practised cleansing over many years” but didn’t accuse anyone, because the war circumstances brought about the horrifying atmosphere. See P2953 of 18 August 92:

Mr Mendiluce said it was not only the Serbs who are violating international law. The UNHCR was also documenting “violations of the rights of Serbs in other regions” controlled by Croatians and Muslims. “There are already 100,000 displaced Serbs from those regions,” he said.

Or para 5 of the same P941 exhibit:

Secretary Vance asked about Gorazde and Tuzla. Dr Karadzic said that in Gorazde the Muslims were still holding Serbian hostages. In Tuzla 30,000-40,000 Serbs had been held hostage. They should be allowed to move temporarily. This was not another form of ethnic cleansing. Once a settlement had been agreed they could return. Secretary Vance said it was important to avoid damaging the chemical plant in the town. That could cause a catastrophe. Dr Karadzic said that he had issued instructions to stop his forces from harassing those Muslims and Croats who were “willing” to leave Serbian areas from signing papers to that effect. He confirmed that any such papers would have no validity in the light of a final settlement.

This official position of the Serb side was not questioned by the Serb Assembly, or public! It was clear that the final arrangement is going to look as the President envisaged and accepted, or even proposed! And this is the only relevant position, not jokes, or nasty remarks of ordinary soldiers! #Jokes vs. documents#! The Chamber also recalls its finding that Bosnian Muslims were told that they would have to go to Tuzla because Bosnian Serbs were going to live in Bratunac.⁸³⁴³ In Pale, Bosnian Muslims were told it was better to go “voluntarily” to areas where they were a majority than to be “chase[d] through the woods” later.⁸³⁴⁴ (This is also #not founded, and was rebute#d by the witness from the Pale authorities, who anyway was very critical about the abilities of police, but as other defense witnesses, it was rejected. What some paramilitaries or refugees from other areas may have advised to the Muslims is not under any control of the local authorities, let alone the President, who was physically and functionally too remote from such a business.)

2474. Bosnian Muslims in Rogatica were also threatened and warned about the forthcoming “cleansing” and were told they would be allowed to leave to Visoko and Zenica because this was where Bosnian Muslims were “supposed to live”.⁸³⁴⁵ (#Protected lies#! This is as senseless as everything based upon a solitary statement, particularly of those protected witnesses. Who was authorised to say that the Muslims were supposed to live in Visoko? A bypassing civilian, or soldier? This was not decided by such a people, even if they said it. The relevant documents and commitments are signed by the highest officials, under the auspice of the UN agencies and ICRC, and that is the only what counts! Rogatica is particularly illustrative, because of the pattern of a new arrangements proposed by the Serbs in order to enable the BiH independence. This is the system of forming two or more municipalities within one existing. #Two municipalities – peace#! In Rogatica there were negotiations, but were interrupted by the Muslim killing of a Serb policemen on 20 May 92. If the Serbs had premeditated, let alone decided to expel the Muslims from Rogatica, why they waited for six weeks after the war broke out in Sarajevo? No reasonable chamber would be able to defend such a findings in this Judgment, and that is why all of it looks to the Serbs like an assault!)

In Vlasenica, members of Serb Forces were instructed to “cleanse” specific areas of Bosnian Muslims and that the “territory had to be 100 percent clean and that none of the Muslims should remain in the area”.⁸³⁴⁶ (Here is another #forgery#, #protected guilt plea lies#!: a protected witness with the guilt plea agreement testified something that he couldn’t know, but needed to please the Prosecution and preserve his agreement. But, even if he didn’t lie, let us see how the Chamber interpreted this in the quoted paragraph 1128:

1128. The Special Police Platoon first took-over “several villages” on the road from Vlasenica to Milići. Kraljević received orders for operations against Bosnian Muslim villages from Radenko Stanić. The aim was to “cleanse” the area of Bosnian Muslims and Kraljević instructed the Special Police Platoon that the “territory had to be 100 percent clean and that none of the Muslims should remain in the area”. In which area??? It is very easy to see that it was not any political, but strictly military order, #military necessity#, because it didn’t pertain to the “area” or “territory” but to the strip along the communication between Vlasenica and Milici, the only communication for the Army and economy. The Chamber didn’t allow the Defence to depict the context: a few days before the inhabitants-terrorists attacked two lorries transporting boxite from the nearby mine to Zvornik, killed the drivers, civilians, and ruined the lorries, which is well documented and known. No army all over the world would tolerate such a conduct deep within its territory! In Zvornik, the Chamber recalls its finding that Bosnian Serb authorities met to discuss the removal of Bosnian Muslims and that the Zvornik TO was ordered to organise and co-ordinate the movement out of the Bosnian Muslim population.⁸³⁴⁷ (Let us see how this assertion or “finding” is based in para 1363 of the Judgment:

1363. In late May 1992, Bosnian Muslim representatives met with local Serbs, including a member of the Interim Government to discuss the removal of Bosnian Muslims from the municipality. On or about 28 May 1992, the commander of the VRS 1st Birač Brigade, Svetozar Andrić, ordered the Zvornik TO to organise and co-ordinate the movement out of the Bosnian Muslim population, with only women and children to be moved out and men fit for military service placed in camps for exchange. So, the Bosnian Muslim representatives came to the Serbs not to ask to stay, but to ask to have their compatriots removed from (the Serb part of) municipality. Having in mind the Appeal of the authorities of the Muslim municipality of Zvornik of 8 May 92, D1622,p.1

Muslims, raise to arms, go to the woods or free territory, join the Territorial Defence of the municipality. Do not go back to the town or villages, do not go to work, exercise civil disobedience and paralyze economic and other activities which would give the legitimacy and the material basics for warfare to the newly establish occupying authority.

it is clear that they wanted their population to cross to their part of municipality. The Chamber neglected the fact that the Serbs controlled only some 30 – 35% of the municipal territory, the rest remained in the Muslim control to this days, as a separate municipality! #Muslim demanded to leave#!)

⁸³⁴⁶ See para. 1128.

⁸³⁴⁷ See para. 1363.

2475. The Chamber found for example in Bijeljina, that there was a plan for the organised expulsion of Bosnian Muslims.⁸³⁴⁸ (All of it was fully commented there, in the paras 671 and 672, and it is #all wrong and unfounded#. The main witness upon whom the Prosecution-Chamber relied, confessed that he didn't know for any of the plethora of the President's documents in his fight against crimes an irregularities! So, everything that M. Davidovic said before getting acquainted with the President orders in invalid!) This involved multiple phases which created an atmosphere of fear, hardship, intimidation and humiliation where a large number of Bosnian Muslims were expelled or fled the municipality out of fear.⁸³⁴⁹ (None of them "expelled" – and if it was so, after the war there would be a number of litigations before the Bosnian courts. Those who were indicted, hadn't been found guilty. For the second part of this sentence: "[o]r fled the municipality out of fear" should be the only one, but the President was not responsible either for the civil war, or for the conduct of intimidators who didn't act on behalf of the authorities!) In Rogatica the Bosnian Serb authorities were involved in the organised displacement of the Bosnian Muslim population and maintained lists of Bosnian Muslims who had been sent away from the municipality.⁸³⁵⁰ (There were at least five Muslim villages in the municipalities Rogatica, (one of these villages was Vragolovi, mentioned in para 1035 of the Judgment) in which the population handed over the weapons and lived freely until almost the end of the war, and in one of them (Vragolovi) some Muslims from the town had found the shelter before proceeding further. #Disarmed villages safe#!) In Pale, Bosnian Serb authorities convened meetings to discuss and take a position on the departure of non-Serbs from the municipality. They informed Bijljana Plavšić that there had been "forced and wilful" efforts to move Bosnian Muslims out of the municipality.⁸³⁵¹ (Certainly, this was not done by the authorities, because the authorities informed the member of Presidency, Ms. Plavsic. As it is evident and corroborated by many documents, the influx of Serb refugees from the Muslim areas brought some tensions, and possibly pressure, but the authorities opposed it. Otherwise, the Court wouldn't know it, but the vas majority of the charges against the President and other Serbs originate from the official documents that reported about the effort done against crimes. This should rather be #EXCULPATORY#! #Officials proper attitude#!)

2476. The intent to forcibly displace the population was also demonstrated by statements from Bosnian Serb leaders that for example in Foča, not a single Bosnian Muslim was in Foča and that there was "only one people" living in the municipality and "one religion" being practised there.⁸³⁵² With respect to Zvornik, the Drina Corps reported that "Turks made up 60% of the municipality's population and it has now been cleansed and replaced with an ethnically pure Serb population".⁸³⁵³ (All of it is commented in the said paragraph 1365. Speaking about Zvornik, Vlasenica, Foca, Gorazde, Bratunac, Ilidza, Vogosca, and many other municipalities it must be kept in mind that the Serbs controlled only a part, always less that 50% of the municipal territory. So, there was no a complete "take-over" of municipalities, if there was a critical number of the Muslim settlements! #Serb parts only#!)

(C) Conclusion

2480. With respect to the incidents above, which relate to forcible displacement within national boundaries, the Chamber finds that those who were displaced left their homes, belongings and livelihoods, without any guarantee concerning the possibility to return in the future and this caused the victims serious mental suffering or injury. (This is incorrect, since the UN and other mediators in the Conference (ICFY) #guaranteed return# for everyone, and property rights, and the President signed all of the agreements pertaining to the subject. The guarantees had been general and on the level of the entire country, and nobody ever proposed to issue such guarantees individually!) These acts were committed with the intent to inflict serious mental suffering, or with knowledge that these acts were likely to cause such suffering. These acts are of similar seriousness to deportation which is listed under Article 5(d) of the Statute. The Chamber therefore finds that these acts are sufficiently serious to amount to “other inhumane acts” pursuant to Article 5(i) of the Statute.

2481. The Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. (Absolutely unfounded and fake! There were many areast without any attack, and even where there was combats, it had never been against the civilians, and it was always initiated by the Muslim/Croats irregular forces! #Never against civilians! No evidence to the opposite direction#!) The Chamber finds that these acts of deportation and forcible transfer were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these killings, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents constitute deportation and other inhumane acts (forcible transfer) as crimes against humanity.

b. Persecution: Count 3

i. Killings

2482. The Chamber refers to its legal findings which address murder as a crime against humanity and a violation of the laws or customs of war charged under Counts 5 and 6 of the Indictment, respectively. The Chamber found above that many Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats (i) were killed by Serb Forces during and after the take-over of the Municipalities; (#No “take-overs#! The very foundation called “take-over” of the Municipalities hadn’t been proven, because all the time the Serbs controlled only their parts of municipalities, forming their own administration and offering to the other side to form their municipality with police and all other organs. In the municipalities where there was no preconditions to form the Muslim or Croat municipalities, i.e. the municipalities with a vast majority of the Serbs, also there was no any “take-over” because the authorities that had been elected in 1990 continued to exercise their duties until the next elections in 1996. But, the Chamber and Prosecution still like their construct calls “take-over” which never happened! What is needed to have this obvious and undoubtable fact recognised?) (ii) were killed by Serb Forces while detained at multiple detention facilities in the Municipalities; (Unfortunately, there had been some killings, but all together no more than 1 % to 2%, but there had never been established that it was done by the “Serb Forces”, but only by individuals who intruded the detentions, and committed crime clandestinely and in the absence of superiors. There is a plethora of evidence to that, and none to the opposite direction! #No official liability#!) or (iii) died during and as a result of cruel and inhumane treatment by Serb Forces at a number of detention facilities in the Municipalities. The Chamber also found that the perpetrators of each of these incidents acted with the intent to kill the victims or at least wilfully caused serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death. (Is this “second degree murder” equalised with murder? How this is in the other countries?) The Chamber further found that the victims of each of these incidents were civilians or had been rendered hors de combat at the time of their killing. (That would be correct if the real “Serb Forces” acted, but it never happened, but some #individuals committed crimes# out of any line of command, and these crimes can not be considered as a part of the system action!)

2483. The Chamber also finds that the perpetrators of the killings mentioned above intentionally targeted their victims solely on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats; these killings were carried out on discriminatory grounds. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber also had regard to the insults, taunts and threats directed at the victims by Serb Forces on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸³⁵⁴ (This is also an exaggerated qualification! That was a civil war with elements of a religious war, and the Serbs had been attacked, persecuted, killed or expelled only for being Serbs, and a revengeful sentiment comprised this general antagonism, with a very rare personal acquaintance and #reasons for revenge!#) As found earlier, these killings were part of a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH and the perpetrators knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. (The evidence, a big amount of it, doesn’t corroborate this assertion-finding. Otherwise, how to explain that #many Muslims and Croats didn’t have any troubles#? Why many of them remained living in the Serb areas to the end of the war, while some felt a fear and insecurity, or came under a suspicion for crimes and therefore were questioned? In the Ahmet Zulic testimony it was established that his father and two brothers didn’t have any trouble with the Serb authorities, while he did have. Even he confessed that he possessed a machine-gun, while denied 40 kg of explosives, which had been founded in his possession. So, the Prosecution summoned to testimony these kind of Muslims for whose interrogation there was a military or security reason, and the Chamber generalise “their case” as if all the Muslims had been mistreated! The mere affiliation to ethnicity or religion HAD NEVER BEEN DECISIVE IN TREATING THE CITIZENS BY THE AUTHORITIES! #Regardless of ethnicity or religion#!)

2484. Therefore the Chamber finds that these killings constitute persecution as a crime against humanity. (But, none of it could be connected with the official authorities, or with the President! This kind of judging opposes to everything the human kind had achieved to the days!#No official liability#!)

(B) Cruel and/or inhumane treatment

(1) Torture, beatings, physical and psychological abuse

2485. The Chamber refers to its factual findings in Section IV.A.1 with respect to acts carried out by members of Serb Forces in the Municipalities. These factual findings demonstrate an egregious level of mistreatment suffered by Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats throughout the Municipalities while in detention or during and after the take-over of the Municipalities. (This is well commented there, and is not founded, and particularly couldn’t be allocated to the authorities!)

2486. For example, the Chamber found that detainees were cut or stabbed with knives.⁸³⁵⁵ Some detainees had crosses carved with knives on their body including on their face, arm, and chest.⁸³⁵⁶ One detainee alone had 30 crosses carved onto his body with a hunting knife.⁸³⁵⁷ In one incident a detainee had salt rubbed into his wounds after being cut.⁸³⁵⁸ In another incident a knife was used to carve out a detainee's tattoo which depicted a crescent and star.⁸³⁵⁹ In another detention facility, detainees were forced to eat body parts which had been severed from other detainees.⁸³⁶⁰

(This is well commented there, and is not founded, and particularly couldn't be allocated to the authorities! In no way it can be associated with the President, not even his knowledge about such a cases, which may have happened as a solitary cases. If it was the case with the carving crosses and other cutting by knife, there would be documents about it, photos and descriptions, but it originates only from some testimonies of the Muslim extremists, who were facilitated an opportunity to continue their war against the Serbs in this Court!)

2487. The Chamber also recalls its finding that detainees were severely beaten and mistreated during interrogations.⁸³⁶¹ Some detainees were questioned about military operations and security issues and mistreated at the same time.⁸³⁶² They had their arms and legs tied and were beaten over an extended period of time.⁸³⁶³ Detainees were tied with chains and belts and some were beaten for several hours including on the soles of their feet with a bat,⁸³⁶⁴ while others were physically mistreated with pliers during questioning.⁸³⁶⁵ In another incident, a boy was tied to a fence and beaten with a rope.⁸³⁶⁶ Some detainees were also forced to lie on the ground where they were severely beaten and told to confess about their involvement with Bosnian Muslim forces.⁸³⁶⁷ At another detention facility, a guard repeatedly beat a detainee after he could not answer questions; the detainee fell to the ground and the guard then jumped on him until the detainee lost consciousness and was revived with water poured on him.⁸³⁶⁸ Detainees were also threatened or beaten before being forced to sign statements regarding their involvement in certain activities.⁸³⁶⁹

(The interrogations had been conducted by the highest professionals, the most competent and the most responsible. But the very fact that there was interrogations on the subject of military operations and security issues denied the allegations that there had been detention of civilians! Why would the authorities spend and waste resources on investigations of civilians about a military and security issues?#No civilians detained. Why civilians would be interrogated?#)

2488. In detention facilities, some detainees were forced to kneel on the floor, they had knives, bayonets, or guns put in their mouths as a scare tactic;⁸³⁷⁰ others were ordered to lie on the ground and then a guard jumped on them.⁸³⁷¹ In one incident a detainee was forced to lick his own blood off the floor after being severely beaten.⁸³⁷² Detainees were ordered to bend forward against a wall and kicked until there was a stream of blood running along the wall; their fingers were then stepped on as they were instructed to position them on top of the wall.⁸³⁷³ Members of the Serb

Forces also threw smoke grenades, tear gas grenades, and stink bombs into areas where the detainees were held.⁸³⁷⁴

2489. Other incidents of mistreatment included detainees being forced to swallow bullets,⁸³⁷⁵ hair which had been pulled from their armpits,⁸³⁷⁶ cigarettes,⁸³⁷⁷ broken glass,⁸³⁷⁸ and motor oil.⁸³⁷⁹ Detainees were also burnt with lit cigarettes⁸³⁸⁰ and had their teeth pulled out.⁸³⁸¹ Other detainees were ordered to sit for 40 hours in water, with their hands behind their heads and legs spread on the ground, as they were kicked and beaten.⁸³⁸² Detainees were also forced to stand up for several hours which in one incident caused the weaker detainees to faint and fall to the ground.⁸³⁸³ The Chamber also recalls an incident where detainees were packed on top of each other in lavatories and forced to lie in the midst of excrement.⁸³⁸⁴

2490. In another incident a prominent Bosnian Muslim detainee was thrown down the stairs and had to be carried out of the detention facility unconscious.⁸³⁸⁵ Some detainees were forced to jump, sometimes head first or chest first, from high points, and, as a result they sustained severe injuries.⁸³⁸⁶ In another incident, detainees were thrown into a fire made of rubber tires.⁸³⁸⁷

(#Deadly combination#! Fairy tales of the Muslim extremists#)

2493. Detainees were also subject to verbal and mental abuse, intimidation, and threats, including threats that they would be killed.⁸³⁹⁸ In addition, detainees were in constant fear as they were involved in moving dead bodies or could hear the screams of other detainees being beaten and physically abused during the night.⁸³⁹⁹ Some detainees were also forced to carry and bury dead bodies, clean toilets with their bare hands, clean traces of blood of detainees who had been beaten or killed, and were also taken to loot or clean Bosnian Muslim houses in the town for the use of Bosnian Serb families.⁸⁴⁰⁰

2494. Some detainees were singled out for severe beatings in front of other detainees as an example of what could happen to them.⁸⁴⁰¹ Detainees were also taunted when forced to carry dead bodies.⁸⁴⁰² Detainees were subjected to humiliation; this included being forced to (i) make the “Serb three-finger sign”,⁸⁴⁰³ (ii) make the sign of the cross,⁸⁴⁰⁴ (iii) walk or kneel with their heads bowed,⁸⁴⁰⁵ (iv) eat carbonised bread without dropping anything,⁸⁴⁰⁶ and (v) graze grass like animals at gun point.⁸⁴⁰⁷ Some detainees were spat at and verbally degraded.⁸⁴⁰⁸ In one case a Bosnian Muslim priest was targeted for humiliation; he was forced to drink beer, make the “Serb three-finger sign”, and sing “Chetnik” songs.⁸⁴⁰⁹ Some Bosnian Muslim detainees were also forced to sign papers saying that they had “voluntarily joined the Serbian Orthodox religion”.⁸⁴¹⁰ (#This never happened#! If did, there would be so many publicity, because this is the most sensitive issue in Bosnia, since the current Muslims had been forcefully converted into Islam, and during the WWII there was a forceful conversion of the Serbs to the Chatolic religion. If there was a single one case, there would be a lot of evidence, while there was no any “paper” or document, or media report! This court had been very easy to lie and number many crimes from the list of war crimes, although it never happened! Even president mentioned in an intern conversation that some Muslims asked to be returned in their previous religion, but the President advised not to do it ever!) The Chamber also found that Serb nationalist songs were played loudly and continuously in a detention facility.⁸⁴¹¹ In Pale, the Chamber found that detainees had their hair forcibly cut with a knife.⁸⁴¹² In another incident detainees in Novi Grad were forced to lie on the ground, beaten, and then subject to attacks by dogs.⁸⁴¹³

2495. The Chamber also recalls its findings that Bosnian Muslims were beaten or abused during or after attacks on villages⁸⁴¹⁴ or during and after their arrest.⁸⁴¹⁵ Some Bosnian Muslim patients were also severely kicked and beaten in hospitals when it was discovered that they were Bosnian Muslims.⁸⁴¹⁶ (Since there was no a single “attack on village” but exclusively on a groups of armed people, there may have happened some individual acts of violence against those who caused fighting and casualties on the Serb side. But, the President repeatedly ordered the respect of the humanitarian laws and forbade any abuse of the captured combatants, or civilians! If there was some cases of abuse, it must be seen as a revengeful conduct of the locals againste their local neighbours who dared to kill the people for nothing! Still it was a crime, but the state organs, and the President in particular has nothing to do with it, and shouldn’t even been mentioned, let alone incided and sentenced!#President ordered properly#!)

2496. The Chamber also recalls its finding that prominent Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, including professionals and leaders, were targeted, taken away, detained, and subjected to intimidation and beatings.⁸⁴¹⁷ (It is commented there, in the respective paragraphs, but to remind ourselves, those “prominent” professionals and leaders had been a very known extremists, listed in all the intelligence reports before the war, as the instillers, ideologists or financist of the armed rebellion and further terrorist activities deep in the Serb territories!) The Chamber also found that members of Serb Forces mistreated and intimidated Bosnian Muslims by making derogatory remarks, by shooting at their homes and mosques, and by stopping, beating, and mistreating Bosnian Muslims at check-points and barricades.⁸⁴¹⁸

2498. Having considered these incidents, the Chamber finds that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were subjected to intentional acts which caused severe physical and mental pain or suffering. These acts were intentionally carried out by members of Serb Forces and were aimed at (i) obtaining information or a confession; (ii) punishing, intimidating, or coercing the victim or a third person, or (iii) discriminating against the victim or a third person. The Chamber therefore finds that acts of torture were carried out against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities.

2499. In addition, these incidents establish that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were also subjected to deliberate beatings, physical and psychological abuse, including harassment, constant humiliation, and degradation. The Chamber finds that these beatings and abuse caused serious mental or physical suffering or injury or constituted a serious attack on human dignity and amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right. The Chamber therefore finds that these acts of beatings, physical and psychological abuse are of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute.

(2) Rape and other acts of sexual violence⁸⁴²⁶⁸⁴³²

2500. The Chamber found in Section IV.A.1 above that Serb Forces committed rape against Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat women and men in Bijeljina,⁸⁴²⁷ Brčko,⁸⁴²⁸ Foča,⁸⁴²⁹ Novo Sarajevo,⁸⁴³⁰ Prijedor,⁸⁴³¹ Rogatica,⁸⁴³² Vlasenica,⁸⁴³³ Vogošća,⁸⁴³⁴ and Zvornik.⁸⁴³⁵ Some Bosnian Muslim women and girls were raped on multiple occasions, sometimes on a continuous basis by members of Serb Forces while in detention facilities.⁸⁴³⁶ (There no a trustful evidence that there was rapes more than it happens during the peace times. We remember how the international media and humanitarian organisations claimed that already in the first several months of war the Serb soldiers raped up to 80,000 women. After all the investigations, there was no more than dozen of cases, which would be a rate of this felony during four peaceful years! #No rapes#!)

2501. In one case a woman was raped approximately 150 times during her detention.⁸⁴³⁷ There were incidents where Bosnian Muslim women who had been detained were taken out of the facilities and raped by Serb Forces; in some incidents the rape was accompanied by additional threats or use of violence and sometimes involved gang rape.⁸⁴³⁸ Some Bosnian Muslim women were moved to houses and apartments where they were raped on some occasions in front of each other.⁸⁴³⁹ Other incidents included women being raped and further humiliated publicly by members of Serb Forces in villages which had been taken-over.⁸⁴⁴⁰ The Chamber also found that some Bosnian Muslim male detainees, including a 13-year-old boy, were also raped by Serb Forces who used police truncheons and similar objects.⁸⁴⁴¹ (#No rapes, all lies#! Since the Muslims and Serbs in the “municipal armie units” knew each other very well, there would be many litigations after the war, nobody could prevent the lawyers to represent the Muslim women before courts, but that didn’t happen!)

wipe the blood with their clothes.⁸⁴⁴² In other incidents detainees were forced to have oral and sexual intercourse with each other, sometimes in front of other detainees.⁸⁴⁴³

2503. Other acts of sexual violence included male and female detainees who were ordered to undress, dance, and perform sexual acts in front of Bosnian Serb soldiers.⁸⁴⁴⁴ In other incidents detainees were forced to remove their underwear and bite or suck each others' penises while soldiers stood by and laughed.⁸⁴⁴⁵ In another incident detainees were forced to lick the buttocks of a Bosnian Serb woman, who threatened to slit their throats if they did not comply.⁸⁴⁴⁶ A female detainee had her breast exposed while a guard went over it with a knife and the other guards watched and laughed.⁸⁴⁴⁷ (Why the Muslim "victims" didn't sue the "perpetrators" after the war?)

2504. The Chamber finds that each of these acts of rape and other acts of sexual violence were committed by members of Serb Forces without the consent of the victims, that the perpetrators intentionally committed these acts, and that the perpetrators were aware that the victims did not consent to such acts. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber has had regard to the circumstances in which they occurred and the horrific nature of the acts themselves. This includes the fact that the victims were often detained and subjected to threats of or actual violence and humiliation. (A Muslim high official Silajdzic claimed that there was, in the first year of war, 80,000 raped women, and 300,000 Muslim casualties! The Chamber still keeps it as a "fact"!)

2505. With respect to the other acts of sexual violence referred to above, the Chamber finds that they involved serious abuses of a sexual nature which were inflicted upon the integrity of the victims by means of coercion, threat of force, or intimidation in a way that caused the utmost humiliation and degradation to the dignity of the victims. The Chamber finds that these acts of sexual violence amounted to denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and were of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute.

2506. The Chamber therefore finds that Bosnian Muslim women, men, girls, and boys were subject to rape and other acts of sexual violence. (And this is a specific contribution of the United Nations and this UN Court to the future hatred among those communities, since only rape people knew the truth! A high responsibility for this kind of forgery is on the UN! The only remedy would be a real and impartial investigation)

(3) Establishment and perpetuation of inhumane living conditions

2507. The Chamber found in Section IV.A.1 above that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were detained in multiple detention facilities. The Chamber recalls its findings that the detainees were held in terrible living conditions characterised by severe over-crowding;⁸⁴⁴⁸ poor sleeping conditions, including insufficient bedding and blankets;⁸⁴⁴⁹ insufficient or no heating;⁸⁴⁵⁰ lack of ventilation and light; stifling heat;⁸⁴⁵¹ poor sanitation and hygiene, including inadequate washing and toilet facilities;⁸⁴⁵² the provision of inadequate food and in some cases rotten food;⁸⁴⁵³ insufficient or restricted access to water;⁸⁴⁵⁴ and inadequate or non-existent medical care.⁸⁴⁵⁵

⁸⁴⁵⁰ See Scheduled Detention Facilities C.10.1, C.18.2. The Chamber found that this was done deliberately, with no heaters in the rooms, windowpanes left broken, and clothes used to combat the cold confiscated from the detainees. See Scheduled Detention Facility C.25.3.

2508. At some detention facilities, the detainees were held in dark, cold, and wet conditions due to leaking roofs.⁸⁴⁵⁶ In one of these facilities, food was distributed in bowls which had been used to feed dogs and in some cases the detainees' food was given to the dogs.⁸⁴⁵⁷ The Chamber also recalls its finding that in some detention facilities, there was a terrible stench due to the inadequate and leaking toilet facilities and that at night detainees were forced to use a pot and when this filled, they relieved themselves in their pants or in their rooms.⁸⁴⁵⁸

2510. While the Chamber did find that the conditions improved in some facilities with time, this does not detract from the fact that prior to these modest improvements conditions were deplorable in the overwhelming majority of detention facilities referred to in the Indictment.⁸⁴⁶² The Chamber also notes in this regard its findings that Bosnian Serb authorities and officials attempted to cover up and prevent the leakage of information regarding the conditions of detention and the condition of detainees.⁸⁴⁶³ These attempts included hiding detainees before the arrival of international representatives and threatening detainees with severe punishment if they complained about conditions and treatment.⁸⁴⁶⁴

2511. Having considered these factors the Chamber finds that members of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and Serb Forces deliberately established and perpetuated inhumane living conditions at a number of detention facilities in the Municipalities.⁸⁴⁶⁵ Having considered the extent and the deplorable nature of these inhumane conditions in so many detention facilities, and the grave consequences for those detained, the Chamber concludes that these acts amount to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and reach the level of seriousness of other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute.

(4) Conclusion on cruel and inhumane treatment

2513. In addition, the Chamber finds that the perpetrators of these acts or omissions chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. The Chamber finds that these acts or omissions discriminated in fact and denied or infringed on fundamental rights. The Chamber also finds that these acts or omissions were carried out deliberately with the intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸⁴⁶⁶ In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber infers intent from the fact that those targeted by these acts of cruel and inhumane treatment were almost exclusively Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. In addition, the Chamber also had regard to the insults, taunts, and threats directed at the victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats, which expressly demonstrated this discriminatory intent.

2514. Examples of such insults and taunts which the Chamber found were connected to these acts of cruel and inhumane treatment include the following. Detainees who were subject to beatings or mistreatment were called “balijas” and a “Turkish gang, a fictitious people, a non-existent people” and told that they would all be killed or exterminated.⁸⁴⁶⁷ Other detainees were subject to similar ethnic slurs during the beating and mistreatment.⁸⁴⁶⁸ In one incident a detainee was forced to run around the detention facility and swear at the detainees’ “balija mother”.⁸⁴⁶⁹ Some detainees were called “Ustasha” before or during their mistreatment.⁸⁴⁷⁰ Detainees were also forced to sing “Chetnik” songs⁸⁴⁷¹ and to make the “Serb three-finger sign”.⁸⁴⁷² Detainees were also taunted with political comments such as “You wanted a state: here is a state for you”, “where is now your Alija to save you?”, and “Where is Naser, your liberator?”⁸⁴⁷³ Bosnian Muslims were told “there would be no balija state soon” and they were “finished”.⁸⁴⁷⁴ The Chamber recalls that it found that during one rape, a Bosnian Muslim woman was told that “Muslim women should give birth to Serb children”, and the perpetrator also said that Muslims were not human beings.⁸⁴⁷⁵ The discriminatory nature of the conditions of detention was shown, for example, by the finding that in facilities where some Bosnian Serb detainees were also held, they received better food and did not suffer the extreme weight loss of non-Serb detainees.⁸⁴⁷⁶

⁸⁴⁶⁶ The Chamber considers that discrimination on the grounds of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats falls within the prohibited grounds of discrimination under Article 5(h) of the Statute.

⁸⁴⁷⁴ See para. 2093.

⁸⁴⁷⁵ See para. 1830.

⁸⁴⁷⁶ See paras. 893–894.

2515. In finding discriminatory intent for these acts of cruel and inhumane treatment, the Chamber also had regard to the surrounding circumstances in the Municipalities in the lead-up to, during, and after the take-over of the Municipalities including specific statements directed against the Bosnian Muslim population. In Foča for example, Bosnian Serb leaders made radio announcements that it was no longer possible for Bosnian Serbs to live with their Bosnian Muslim neighbours, that they could not be woken every morning by the hodza from the mosque, and that the “the time had come for the Serbs to settle accounts with the balijas once and for all, and that the Serbs would no longer allow their ribs to be broken. They will no longer allow their children to be circumcised”.⁸⁴⁷⁷ Similar radio broadcasts were made in Prijedor which referred to the destruction of the “balijas” and their property and mosques.⁸⁴⁷⁸

2516. In addition, the Chamber found in Bratunac, for instance, that in the lead-up to the conflict, SDS members wrote slogans on street and traffic signs as well as on public and private property, which were derogatory towards Bosnian Muslims, including messages to the effect: “Muslims, Balijas, Turks move out, you’re going to be slaughtered”.⁸⁴⁷⁹ In Vlasenica, Bosnian Serb leaders declared that when BiH “was proclaimed a sovereign state, we will draw up our borders in blood”.⁸⁴⁸⁰ Similarly in Vlasenica, graffiti was written on the houses of prominent Bosnian Muslims saying “Ustasha”, “Muslims out”, “We will slaughter”, “Out”, and “This is Serb, this is Serbia”.⁸⁴⁸¹ Bosnian Serb leaders in Vogošća said that “Muslims were simply going to disappear”.⁸⁴⁸² (No serious chamber would pay any attention to what individuals wrote on graffits, or said bypassing! It is well known that both Bratunac aand Vlasenica had concluded an agreement on forming two municipalities, which would guarantee an autonomy from each other, and nobody would be able to harras the other side. It is also established that the Muslim population in Bratunac and Vlasenica, after giving up the agreement, demanded to be escorted to the Muslim-controlled territory, and soon after that, many Muslim officials did the same! All of it is well documented! Also, it is documented that the Serb leaders from Vlasenica went to Tuzla, to persuade the Muslim citizens to return! But, none of this is of any interest for the Chamber!!!)

2517. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the acts or omissions referred to above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Croat civilian populations of BiH. (But, the two questions, if answered, ruin the entire construction explicated in this paragraph! First: #why it didn’t happen in the two third of the Serb municipalities#? Second: why in the one third of municipalities with these dramatic developments, there was never any “Serb attacks” prior to the Muslim terrorist actions? These periods without any skirmish lasted up to 7 and 8 weeks, and depended exclusively on the Muslim terrorist actions!)

2518. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents of cruel and inhumane treatment constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity.

(C) Forcible transfer and deportation

2520. The Chamber also finds that the perpetrators of these acts of forcible transfer and deportation chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. These acts were carried out on discriminatory grounds and with discriminatory intent. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber recalled its finding that Bosnian Muslims who were removed from their villages were subjected to a “barrage of insults” with respect to their “Muslim ethnicity”.⁸⁴⁸³ Similarly during expulsions in Novo Sarajevo Serb Forces made statements such as “all Ustašas and Balijas out!” and in Prijedor victims were cursed and told they would be sent to Turkey.⁸⁴⁸⁴ The Chamber also refers to its findings above relating to mens rea which are also indicative of this discriminatory intent.⁸⁴⁸⁵ The Chamber also had regard to its finding that these acts of forcible transfer and deportation were discriminatory in fact given that the victims of these acts were almost exclusively Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.

2521. As the Chamber found above, these acts were part of a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH and the perpetrators knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In addition the Chamber found that the acts of forcible displacement within national boundaries were sufficiently serious to amount to “other inhumane acts”. Therefore the Chamber finds that these acts of forcible transfer and deportation constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity. (This kind of errors must have been a part of #“systematic attacks against the Serbs in Bosnia#, as well as the entire Serb nation! The first UN documents reported that the civilians are fleeing because of the armed conflict and fights. That happened even before the war in a substantial quantity. Later on, the Chamber could have seen that the Serb municipal authorities rather made #many obstacles to leaving# the Serb areas, that the candidates to leave had to provide many poapers and pay many fees, taxes, spendings of electric power, and finally to pay for transport. Sometimes they had to bribe somebody to get on a “priority lists” to leave the area! Whoever wants to check it, could do it, undewr the key “#obstacles to leave#!)

(D) Unlawful detention

2522. The Chamber found in Section IV.A.1 that a large number of Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilians were detained by members of Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs in detention facilities in Banja Luka,⁸⁴⁸⁶ Bijeljina,⁸⁴⁸⁷ Bosanski Novi,⁸⁴⁸⁸ Bratunac,⁸⁴⁸⁹ Brčko,⁸⁴⁹⁰ Foča,⁸⁴⁹¹ Hadžići,⁸⁴⁹² Ključ,⁸⁴⁹³ Ilidža,⁸⁴⁹⁴ Novi Grad,⁸⁴⁹⁵ Novo

2523. The arbitrary nature of this detention was shown by the Chamber's findings that in some detention facilities the detainees (i) were not detained on any legal grounds; (#Armed rebellion was a legal ground#! What more legal ground could be than the armed attack on the military, civilians and public property, or preparations, instigation and financing of such an attacks? The Chamber asked in the court room for a reasons of detaining someone without an intention to process them, and they got a satisfactory response: a combatants without specific and personal crimes, were to be exchanged, unlike those with a personal crimes, aimed to be processed. After the first interrogations, the civilians had been released!!!) (ii) were not informed as to why they were arrested and detained; (iii) were not suspected, charged, tried, or convicted for any crime before being detained or while detained; (This both is absolutely wrong! How possibly could that be "established" while the Chamber "objected" the interrogations? While interrogated, they had to be asked about a very specific circumstances and their participation. Those who hadn't been interrogated, hadn't been suspected for any crime, except for a participations in combats. Such a POWs hadn't been aimed to legal procedure, but only for an exchange, and the Defence clarified that in the courtroom, when asked by the Chamber – why they had been kept, if not intended to be sued!) (iv) were not advised of their rights before or during their detention and (This is incorrect: those who were aimed for exchange, had been informed about it, and those who were to be interrogated, had been informed by the investigators, a high professionals!)(v) their detention was not subject to review.⁸⁵⁰⁵ (Then, how it happened that some of them had been released after the interrogations, some of them were conveyed to the prisons for POWs, for exchange, some of them echanged, some of them unilateraly released and abolished by the President, and some of them handed over to the International agencies, such as UNHCR and ICRC and conveyed to the third countries? This was a massive, formidable result of reviewing of the detentions! THIS PARAGRAPH IS A PROOF ABOUT THE #CATASTROPHIC ERRORS#, OMISSIONS AND IGNORANCE OF THE NATURE OF THIS WAR AND EVENTS THEREIN!) The Chamber also recalls, for example, that the local authorities in Brčko were informed that people were being detained without any legal grounds, and while some detainees were released, this was done in a selective manner and based on personal connections.⁸⁵⁰⁶ (But why it was forgotten that the detention in Brcko wasn't an endeavour of authorities, which escaped the city, but by renegades, for whose arrest the President asked the FRY Prime Ministed for help in manpower? #Renegades, not authorities#!)

2524. The arbitrary nature of the detention is also evidenced, for example, by the decision by the Bosnian Serb authorities in Hadžići to arrest and detain all Bosnian Muslim men of military age from certain areas in the municipality⁸⁵⁰⁷ and that in the Omarska camp the detainees were categorised, and included a category of detainees of “no security interest”.⁸⁵⁰⁸ (But, this qualification was not established prior to their detention, and they had been detained in spite of such a qualification, but they had been detained as suspects, and this qualification was established afterwards, #after the interrogations#, and such a detained had been released, and there was about 90% of released in Hadzici, and 59% of such a personsreleased in Prijedor, while only 41% were conveyed to Manjaca, a POWs prison!)

2525. The Chamber found that these detainees were arrested and taken to these detention facilities from their homes, following attacks on villages or towns, or transferred from other detention facilities.⁸⁵⁰⁹ In some cases, the Bosnian Muslim population was ordered to gather en masse and then moved to detention facilities.⁸⁵¹⁰ Most of those detained were civilians and included women, children, the sick, and the elderly.⁸⁵¹¹ (These two categories can not, and must not be merged into one! After a counter-attacks on villages from which the Serb Army or police had been attacked, some of the able bodied had been detained as a suspects, subjected to interrogation which resulted in one or the other way. See how Mr. Wulliamy wrote about that, P3788:

Omarska , they tell us, is an 'investigation centre' for men suspected of being in the Muslim irregular army. They are rounded up or arrested, then 'screened' to determine whether they are fighters or civilians.

Apart from their under nourishment and the humiliation of the drill, none of the 80 inmates we saw showed signs of violence or beating.

The purpose of “bringin them in” was this “screening” to determine whether they are fighters or civilians. Wulliamy could have been everytnig, but not a pro-Serb journalist! There was no bringing in all the able bodied men, but only those who may be participating in the fights. The “gathering en masse” was a legal, and #legaly obligatory action of removing civilians# from an area that was going to be embattled. A typical example was Mahala in Sanski Most, which had been a stronghold of the armed Muslim terrorists who fired agains the rest of the town. Once the civilians were moved out of the zone, there was a combat, which resulted in arresting some of the terrorists, while others escaped to some villages and continued with fightings! This happened because of the #abuse of civilians in battles# see what a Muslim said to Ed Wulliamy, P3788:

But some people have fled voluntarily to Trnopolje simply to avoid the raging battles in the villages around. Inar Gornic, clutching her crying baby in what was the school 'Foto Klub' room, says: 'I came alone, from the Trnopolje village.

The conditions are very hard here, but there was terrible fighting and we had no food at all. It is safer here, but we don't know what kind of status we have.

We are refugees, but there are guards and the wire fence.'

'No violence against us, just hot and smelly,' adds her husband, vacantly, among the sea of rugs, sweaty blankets and the odd mattress strewn along the floors and corridors,

The inmates came voutlarily, and brought their minors with them! Or, an example how a Muslim, well known sportsman, understood the nature of removing the civilians from the zone of battle, the same, P3788:

Then there is Igor, the Serbian soldier and guard whose uncle was killed last week, and who says: 'I have my old schoolfriends and my teacher in there,' and then introduces his old pal Azmir, a professional footballer, from behind the wire. 'I was taken here from Rizvanovici, after the fighting started,' says Azmir. 'There was some shooting from the Muslim side, then the police came and took the people away, to clear the village of Muslims and to do the fighting.'

The police removed the Muslim civilians “to do the fighting” #legal and obligatory#! But, what is the most disturbing is this arbitrariness and superficiality in establishing what some features were, and what didn't were!)

2526. The Chamber noted that a small number of detainees in some facilities were Bosnian Muslim soldiers or combatants.⁸⁵¹² The Chamber is not satisfied that their detention was unlawful. (Exactly, the soldiers were the Muslim combatants that had been captured along the confrontation lines, while the combatants that made the uprising deep in the Serb territory, as a matter of fact were #not regular soldiers, but terrorists#, without uniforms, insignias, known commands. Although the Serb side could have treated them as a terrorists, usually they had been treated as combatants! If there is any doubt about the terrorist nature of those combatants, it would be reviewed how many dugouts and other facilities had existed in Prijedor, Sanski Most and other municipalities, deep into the Republic of Srpska!).

2527. The Chamber considered the circumstances in which detainees were brought to and detained at these facilities, the extended period of detention, the large number of individuals detained across multiple municipalities, and the status of the overwhelming majority as civilians including women, children, and the elderly. (Let us see what Mr. Wulliamy wrote about the women of these same Muslim combatants, P3788:

As ever in this war, there are extraordinary elements that complicate any simple interpretation. Women flock into

Back in the town of Prijedor, women line the pavement outside police headquarters, waiting for transit papers to leave the area. Some say their menfolk had been in Omarska for four months.

Prijedor, carrying their children, telling how their menfolk were rounded up and taken to Omarska, Kereter or Trnopolje, and never seen again. Some villages are completely destroyed.

But down the road are other Muslim villages intact, peasants calmly bringing in the hay. Every house hangs a white flag - a piece of sheet or pillowcase - from the roof or from a tree: it is a guarantee against Omarska or Trnopolje.

'These are the people who accept the Serbian republic,' explains Major Milovan Milutonic from Army HQ in Banja Luka. 'If they do that, we just leave them alone.'

There are Croatian communities around Banja Luka too, exchanging their docility to the new order for a relatively quiet life

So, not only several percent of the suspects had been brought in for the screening, and not only 59% of the “brought in” had been found not guilty and released, but their families took a refuge in the Prijedor city core, under the Serb control. While some Muslim and Croat villages didn't have any trouble, because they declared not to fight against the Serb Army, police and civilians! How the Chamber made this kind of conclusion pertaining to “women, children and elderly”? see what else Mr. Wulliamy wrote, P3788 pasted above!) On this basis the Chamber finds that with the exception of the Bosnian Muslim soldiers referred to in the previous paragraph, the detainees at these facilities were arbitrarily deprived of their liberty with no legal basis and that the perpetrators intended to arbitrarily deprive these individuals of their liberty. The Chamber finds that this amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and was of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute. The Chamber therefore finds that there was unlawful detention of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. (So what? There was a civil war of the Muslim-Croat coalition against the Serbs. Also, the Muslims (Croats to the lesser degree) organised terrorist groups deep in the Serb territory, which initiated fights and caused the war in these areas. Those who were suspected for those unlawful activities had been detained, and after the professional interrogation either released, or kept in the prisons for POWs. What is wrong with that? But, if the Chamber doesn't want to establish the truth, it will accept that those #terrorists were civilians#!)

2528. (2528) In addition, the Chamber finds that the perpetrators of these acts of unlawful detention chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. (This finding can not survive a simple question: why only 2 to 3% of the Muslims and Croats (i.e. non-Serbs) in Prijedor had been detained, and had been subject to the investigations? In all other municipalities it was even less than that, while in the two thirds of municipalities nobody was detained? Why the detainees had been investigated, while their ethnic or religious affiliation was known to everyone, and there was no any need to investigate that? Why not all of those known to the local authorities as Muslims or Croats? And why there was many Croats in the VRS, on a very high positions, and in ordinary units, and why there was a whole unit ("Mesa Selimovic unit") composed exclusively of the Muslims in the VRS? If there was a bit of truth in these findings, none of the Croats and Muslims would stay in the Serb Army, where they defended not the Serbs, but common values and secularism! #All together, a small number had been detained#!) The Chamber finds that these acts were carried out deliberately with the intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸⁵¹³ (The same comment as the above!) In concluding that these acts were carried out with discriminatory intent, the Chamber had regard to its finding that these acts of unlawful detention were discriminatory in fact given that the unlawful detention was almost exclusively directed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats whereas the guards and those in charge of the detention facilities were Bosnian Serbs. (No an Einstein mind needed to realise that it was a civil, interethnic and interreligious war and it was sufficient to have the Muslims and Croats in the Serb Army on a battlefield, but it would be very malicious to task them with such a job! #But, none of the Muslims, or Croats left the VRS because of the Serb attitude towards the Muslim and Croat population!#) In addition, the Chamber also had regard to the insults, taunts, and threats directed at the victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats, which expressly demonstrated this discriminatory intent.⁸⁵¹⁴ (Did the Chamber find that it was a part of the policy of the Serb authorities? Those who did capture these who were captured first had to fight against them, losing members of families and friends from their unit, and if they expressed their anger verbally, it was on the basis of this sentiment, and not on the basis of the state policy! What the inter-soldier cursing and swearing has to do with the central, or even local authorities, let alone with the President?) For further evidence of discriminatory intent with respect to unlawful detention, the Chamber also recalls its finding that, for example, in Vlasenica, the Sušica camp was established pursuant to an order of the VRS, following a decision of the SAO Birač on regulating the "moving out of the Muslim population".⁸⁵¹⁵ (#Moving out population, due to law and agreements#!The "moving out of the Muslim population” signed on 28 May 92, P3240, was an obligation derived from the Agreement of 22 May, D1603 p.1 – 6, and another document under the same number, p. 7 – 11, also see D1141! So fierce fights between the Muslim and Serb units would cause many civilian casualties, and Col. Andric signed the order on the basis of the Birac Government, which founded it’s decision on the Agreement concluded a week earlier, on 22 May 1992 in Geneva!) In addition, the Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims during their transportation to the Sušica camp were subjected to threats and racial slurs.⁸⁵¹⁶ (#The only perpetrator got a guilt plea agreement! A unique case!#) In Zvornik, the Chamber found that a member of the Serb Forces said that they would bring in every Bosnian Muslim who was found in town.⁸⁵¹⁷ (That kind of the #”Serb Forces” didn’t exist#! “a member of the Serb Forces” was insolent, or indecent, or... Such a conceived “Serb Forces”, as a sum of the JNA, volunteere, paramilitaries no matter disowned by the President, members of the Territorial Defence, or any other Serb that fought against the Muslim irregulars, said something nasty to the Muslims!!! What does it have to do with the President? This is the first time in the history of criminal procedures that some of the high, even the highest official could be indicted, charged and sentenced on the basis of “findings” that some Serbs cursed some Muslims, not to mention killings of some Muslims by some Serbs! For the first time in the human history a president was charged and sentenced for such a #side-products of a civil war#!)

⁸⁵¹³ The Chamber considers that discrimination on the grounds of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats falls within the prohibited grounds of discrimination under Article 5(h) of the Statute.

⁸⁵¹⁴ The Chamber has had regard to its findings with respect to the insults, taunts, and threats which were discussed in the context of cruel and inhumane treatment of these detainees.

2529. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the incidents of unlawful detention were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations and time period of those acts, and the identity of the victims, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack. Further, given the magnitude of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH, the Chamber further finds that the perpetrators knew of the attack and that the crimes were part of it. (The Chamber neglected an obvious fact that there had been #fire from the Muslim settlements#, then there had been an ultimatum by the Serb Forces to disarm the settled place and hand over the perpetrators of crimes committed during the Muslim-Croat assault on the Serbs, and then there was continuation of fighting, and the Serbs moved the civilians out of the combat zones until they finish the fights. The Chamber had the first class evidence about it, written by Edward Vulliamy, a notorious anti-Serb journalist, see: D1898, p.5

But some people have fled voluntarily to Trnopolje simply to avoid the raging battles in the villages around.

Inar Gornic, clutching her crying baby in what was the school "Foto Klub" room says: "I came alone, from the Trnopolje village. The conditions are very hard here, but there was terrible fighting and we had no food at all. We are refugees, but there are guards and the wire fence."

"No violence against us, just hot and smelly," adds her husband, vacantly, among the sea of rugs, sweaty blankets and the odd mattress strewn along the floors and corridors, while primitive bread ovens are set up outside.

Or the statement of Azmir, a Muslim, D1898, p. 5.

"I was taken here from Rizvanovici, after the fighting started," says Azmir. "There was some shooting from the Muslim side, then the police came and took the people away, to clear the village of Muslims and to do the fighting."

The situation is, says Azmir, that he can leave only if his family arrives to claim him, or if he can produce some sort of guarantee or transit papers. "But how am I supposed to do that?"

⁸⁵¹⁷ See para. 1317.

(#Shooting from the Muslim side#! Said a Muslim, wrote down Wulliamy!#So, it was quite clear to this Azmir, an able bodied Muslim man, who didn't fight, but was informed that they as civilians have to be moved until the fights are finished! Nothing similar happened in many neighbouring municipalities, such as Srbac, B. Gradiska, Derventa, Celinac, Laktasi, Prnjavor, B. Dubica, Mrkonjic Grad, and many other settled places. No Muslim attacks, no moving of the population, no detained suspects! And nothing and nobody can prove anything else! #All depended of the Muslim attacks#!)

2530. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents of unlawful detention constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity. (Who and how had established that these detentions had been unlawful? Those that had been collected during the skirmishes and hadn't been responsible, had been released immediately after establishing non-participation in the rebellion! #No unlawful detentions#!)

(E) Forced labour and the use of human shields⁸⁵¹⁸

2531. The Chamber recalls its findings in Section IV.A.1 that detainees at a number of detention facilities in Bijeljina,⁸⁵¹⁹ Foča,⁸⁵²⁰ Hadžići,⁸⁵²¹ Iliđža,⁸⁵²² Novo Sarajevo,⁸⁵²³ Rogatica,⁸⁵²⁴ Vlasenica,⁸⁵²⁵ and Vogošća.⁸⁵²⁶ were forced to perform labour on the front lines including, inter alia, digging trenches, clearing mines, burying bodies, and carrying munitions.⁸⁵²⁷ (Since none of this was proven, because there was a plethora of evidence that the prisoners of war #wanted to go to work#, for the benefits as food, cigarettes, alcohol drinks, this is senseless to comment, particularly because it has nothing to do with the President, who issued all the necessary orders forbidding any declination from the International law of war! If anything happened in contrast to the President orders, #no liability#!)

2532. By way of illustration, the Chamber found, that while undertaking work on the front lines the detainees were exposed to sporadic crossfire.⁸⁵²⁸ The Chamber found that some detainees were forced to work in all weather conditions which affected their health.⁸⁵²⁹ The Chamber further recalls that in some municipalities, detainees who did not work fast enough or do exactly as they were instructed were beaten, insulted, and threatened.⁸⁵³⁰ The Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims in Bijeljina were subject to a work obligation including on the front lines.⁸⁵³¹ Those who did not comply with this work obligation were either sent to Batković camp or expelled from the municipality.⁸⁵³² (This is a sort of "gallimatias" a senseless salade of words and accusations. Also, there is no evidence that President Karadzic had been informed that his orders on human rights are violated! Also, when

2533. The forcible nature of this work was demonstrated by the Chamber's finding that detainees were afraid for their lives and of being beaten if they refused to work.⁸⁵³³ The Chamber also found that in one incident detainees were also severely beaten and did not receive any food or water while they worked.⁸⁵³⁴

2534. Bosnian Muslims in Rogatica,⁸⁵³⁵ Ključ,⁸⁵³⁶ Vogošća⁸⁵³⁷ were also used as human shields on front lines to protect Serb Forces. In one incident Bosnian Muslim detainees were instructed to lead Serb Forces through an area, which had been mined, to recover dead bodies.⁸⁵³⁸ (This is all an unproven rubbish! How possibly an army with a permanent defence copuld have used civilians as a human shield??? No retreat, no advancement, just defending tranchese, #no any need and no any sense for a human shields#!

2535. The Chamber also had regard to the nature of the forced work, the circumstances in which the detainees were held, and the vulnerable position of the detainees, including the cruel and inhumane treatment and unlawful detention discussed above. Having considered these factors, the Chamber finds that the acts of forced labour and use of human shields amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and were of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute.

2536. In addition, the Chamber finds that the perpetrators of these acts of forced labour and use of human shields chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. The Chamber finds that these acts were carried out deliberately with the intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸⁵³⁹ In reaching this conclusion, the Chamber had regard to its finding that these acts were discriminatory in fact given that only Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who had been detained were forced to work or used as human shields. The Chamber also had regard to its findings with respect to the insults, taunts, and threats which were discussed in the context of other underlying acts of persecution which expressly demonstrated this discriminatory intent. In addition, the Chamber recalls its finding that in Vlasenica some detainees who were taken away for forced labour were subject to insults such as references to "Balija's mother".⁸⁵⁴⁰ In another incident where Bosnian Muslims were used as human shields in Rogatica, when one person was hit by incoming fire, a member of the Serb Forces cursed the detainees by reference to their "Balija mothers".⁸⁵⁴¹ (Had it been so, there would be many legal litigations in the Bosnian courts, but that was not a case!!! But, even if was true, it has nothing to do with the President or any other high official of the RS. But, it was not proven in the court room, all was based either on an adjudicated facts, or the Rule 92bis evidence, so that couldn't be challenged by the Defence, i.e. #Deadly combination#! Each side soldiers used to curse each other, but certainly that hadn't been commanded by their superiors. sometimes with a history of mutual extermination that lasted through the centuries! What all of that has to do with the President!

2537. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. (Not established, and not found even a single case of the Serb attack against any civilians or settlements if there was no a Muslim attack from such a settlement! Not a single one! the Muslim Army, as well as the Muslim terrorists deep in the Serbian territory abused their own civilians, firing from the civilian areas and thus forcing the Serbs to respond! Just as simple as it, and the international representatives noticed that, but were biased in favour of the Muslim side! #No Serb attacks on civilians#!) The Chamber finds that the acts of forced labour and use of detainees as human shields were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these acts, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH.

2538. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents of forced labour and use of human shields constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity.

(F) Plunder of property⁸⁵⁴²

2539. The Chamber found in Section IV.A.1 that Bosnian Muslims were expelled from their homes, which were then seized by the local authorities and assigned to Serb refugees.⁸⁵⁴³ Some Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forced to sign statements leaving their property to the local authorities.⁸⁵⁴⁴ (In a war times any authority has a right to have “at disposal” all movable or real estate to be temporarily used for a purpose of defence. There was no a single case that somebody appropriated a private property for the state or local authorities, and the Chamber recognised it, see @ @....) The Chamber recalls its finding that in Ključ, for example, the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs effectively seized the abandoned property of Bosnian Muslims on a permanent basis.⁸⁵⁴⁵ (Let us see how this para 1562, as a basis for this finding, looks like: 1562. The Accused contends that the renunciations and reassignments only pertained to temporary use, and not to ownership of such property. The Chamber received evidence that the municipal authorities did not pass any decision which would have collectively converted abandoned properties into state property, and that no changes were made to the land registry books such as would indicate a permanent change in property ownership. However, the Chamber notes that on 19 June, the ARK Crisis Staff took a decision that all “abandoned” property would be proclaimed property of the state and placed at the disposal of the municipal assemblies. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that such real property was effectively seized by the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs on a permanent basis. First, The Chamber admitted and confirmed that it “did receive evidence” that there was no evidence of conversion of private property into a state property, and that there was no change of property. The Chamber could also mention the President’s order from 19 August 1992 in which the President forbade any such a practice and annulled any paper issued on this matter,

3. Forcible resettlement and other illegal measures against the civilian population should be prevented, and any certificates of sale of property or statements that refugees will not return shall be considered as legally invalid and are declared null and void;

But, the Chamber prefers an alleged decision of the ARK Crisis staff, which had never been implemented, as many other decisions of the ARK organs. And, finally this decision from June was subject to the order D101, which declared it “null and void”! so more is the last sentence senseless: How the Chamber could have been “satisfied that such a real property was effectively seized by the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental organs on a permanent basis,” while there was no a single case. Even if there was any case, it would be a subject of litigation after the war, which never happened! Those who helped the Chamber to assemble the Judgement made a bad service to it! #No appropriation, President annulled and forbade#!)

2540. Serb Forces also looted property and homes belonging to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats during and after the take-over of towns and villages in Bijeljina,⁸⁵⁴⁶ Bosanski Novi,⁸⁵⁴⁷ Bratunac,⁸⁵⁴⁸ Foča,⁸⁵⁴⁹ Ključ,⁸⁵⁵⁰ Iliđža,⁸⁵⁵¹ Novi Grad,⁸⁵⁵² Novo Sarajevo,⁸⁵⁵³ Prijedor,⁸⁵⁵⁴ Rogatica,⁸⁵⁵⁵ Vlasenica,⁸⁵⁵⁶ Zvornik.⁸⁵⁵⁷ The Chamber also recalls its finding that in some cases Serb Forces used Bosnian Muslim detainees to loot Bosnian Muslim homes and move furniture and belongings to Bosnian Serb residences.⁸⁵⁵⁸ (That could have been some members of the “Serb Forces” but in no way the Serb Forces, which would mean with the knowledge, tolerance, approval or order of the commands. That never happened, while we have seen many orders of the commands #to the opposite direction#! Also, there were examples of return of stolen property to the real owners on the command of the officers!)

2541. The Chamber found that Bosnian Serb authorities allocated premises left vacant by Bosnian Muslims for the use of refugees in Sokolac.⁸⁵⁵⁹ However, it has insufficient evidence to determine whether this amounted to an unlawful appropriation of property given that there was evidence that the Bosnian Serb authorities prohibited the unlawful and unauthorised occupation of premises, and that when property was allocated to refugees, these were temporary measures and followed a set criteria including the taking of an inventory of contents by a committee which was created for the allocation of this property.⁸⁵⁶⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! This was the procedure for the entire country. A temporary user was obliged to leave an assigned property in the same condition, and all the movable property too. Not only Sokolac, but all the municipalities, since all of them got the same order of the President and Government!)

2542. Bosnian Muslims had their money, identification documents, jewellery, and valuables taken away from them before leaving the municipality,⁸⁵⁶¹ on arrival at detention facilities,⁸⁵⁶² or before their execution.⁸⁵⁶³ The Chamber found on one occasion that Serb Forces were also instructed to search the bodies of killed Bosnian Muslims for valuables before the bodies were taken away for burial.⁸⁵⁶⁴ Serb Forces also seized the vehicles of Bosnian Muslims.⁸⁵⁶⁵ (This sounds insulting for the Serbs as nation, because this never happen with any knowledge of the officials. Taking away valuables from the POWs and other prisoners was a #legal obligation#, as it is even in this UN Detention Unit. For that reason, all of the recovered from mass graves who had their OWN valuables, ID cards and other belongings that were to be taken away, for certain weren't captured prior to their death. An ordinary Serb didn't search a killed combatants, and in Srebrenica there was up to 40% of the exhumed who possessed their belongings, which is a firm evidence that they died as a combatants, WITHOUT BEING CAPTURED. Of course, those who use to steal valuables in a peace time would be expected to do the same in a war time, but certainly not with any tolerance by the superiors!)

2543. The property of Bosnian Muslim businesses was also looted or confiscated.⁸⁵⁶⁶ The Chamber also found that Bosnian Croat companies were looted by Serb Forces in Bijeljina.⁸⁵⁶⁷ (In a cases the state organs – not “Serb Forces” – appropriated some property, #due to the Law on Defence#, it was done in a regular manner and with recording, and the owners had been compensated after the war. In some cases, as “Alijagic case” in Trebinje, the owners hadn't been satisfied with compensation, and there was a long litigation, and the state lost the case!)

2544. The Chamber finds that these acts involved the unlawful appropriation of the private property of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats by Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs. Having considered the extent and scope of the unlawful appropriation of property owned by Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in multiple municipalities, the Chamber concludes that these acts had grave consequences and amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and are of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute. (#Never happened# This issue was the easiest to check with the Bosnian authorities after the war: not a single case was reported, and not a single case could be hidden, since there would be a litigation! This “finding” and such a “findings” are shading a grave doubt on everything the Tribunal had done! The Defense should be thankful for that!)

2545. The perpetrators of these acts of plunder chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. The Chamber finds that these acts were carried out deliberately with the intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸⁵⁶⁸ (#All senseless#! Bosnia is not a wasteland without courts, which are under the Muslim domination, and certainly wouldn't be biased in favour of the Serb perpetrators, but there is #no any judicial evidence# to support this findings of the Tribunal!) In concluding that these acts were carried out with discriminatory intent, the Chamber had regard to its finding that these acts were discriminatory in fact given that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were systematically targeted by these acts of plunder which were directed at their homes and property. The Chamber also had regard to its findings with respect to the insults, taunts, and threats which were discussed in the context of other underlying acts of persecution which expressly demonstrated this discriminatory intent.

2546. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. (This senseless assertion had been repeated many times in this Judgment, but never corroborated by any evidence. Repeating a lie doesn't deliver a truth!!! The simple question is: when and where the Serbs attacked unless forced by the Muslim attacks? #Serbs never attacked, only reacted!#) The Chamber finds that the acts of plunder were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these acts, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH.

2547. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents of plunder constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity. (If and when there was some criminal plunder, not appropriation, that could only be committed by criminals! This hadn't been a state plunder, the state didn't benefit from it, the state persecuted it, and the most logical and reasonable inference would be that these tiefs were the only one to benefit. There are documents in the file which confirm that the state organs persecuted tiefs and returned the stolen stuff to the real owners! Why the Chamber didn't notice these evidences?)

(G) Wanton destruction of private property and public property including cultural monuments and sacred sites⁸⁵⁶⁹

2548. The Chamber recalls its findings in Section IV.A.1 that during attacks by Serb Forces, Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat homes and businesses were set on fire and Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat villages were destroyed by Serb Forces in Bosanski Novi,⁸⁵⁷⁰ Bratunac,⁸⁵⁷¹ Foča,⁸⁵⁷² Ključ,⁸⁵⁷³ Novi Grad,⁸⁵⁷⁴ Pale,⁸⁵⁷⁵ Prijedor,⁸⁵⁷⁶ Rogatica,⁸⁵⁷⁷ Sanski Most,⁸⁵⁷⁸ Sokolac,⁸⁵⁷⁹ Vlasenica,⁸⁵⁸⁰ Vogošća,⁸⁵⁸¹ and Zvornik.⁸⁵⁸² For example, in the municipality of Ključ alone, the Chamber found that approximately 3,500 houses were razed to the ground and burned in Bosnian Muslim villages.⁸⁵⁸³ (Did the Chamber established, and how, that these destructions weren't done in the #frame of the armed conflict# and the fierce fightings in these municipalities? But down the road are other Muslim villages intact, peasants calmly bringing in the hay. Every house hangs a white flag - a piece of sheet or pillowcase - from the roof or from a tree: it is a guarantee against Omarska or Trnopolje.

'These are the people who accept the Serbian republic,' explains Major Milovan Milutonic from Army HQ in Banja Luka. 'If they do that, we just leave them alone.'

There are Croatian communities around Banja Luka too, exchanging their docility to the new order for a relatively quiet life.

While the Republic of Srpska was defending its boundaries, far from those "Municipalities" the Muslims – Croats had two choices,

a) to live "quiet life" or

b) to fight against the Serb civilians, police and military, so far from the frontline, and have a problems that come out of these skirmishes.

What the President could have done about it, even if informed, although he wasn't informed? No president is entitled to prevent the people from defending themselves and their families! This wasn't a professional army, which came from somewhere, this was a local army, an ordinary people, who died because of those Muslim rebellions, and who feared about their families. And who could order them to undoesimate the danger of the Muslim armed extremists? #People defend#)

2550. The Chamber finds that the property referred to in paragraphs above was destroyed or damaged extensively and such destruction or damage was not justified by military necessity. (When and how it was established? There is so many examples of the #Muslim/Croat homes untouched,# that it was the Prosecution's duty to prove that in the cases of destruction there was no #"military necessity"#. Why all the Muslim homes hadn't been destroyed?)

⁸⁵⁸⁵ See para. 1196.

⁸⁵⁸⁶ See para. 2549.

2551. While the Chamber also found that Serb Forces shelled Konjević Polje in Bratunac,⁸⁵⁸⁷ the villages of Kramer Selo, Kozarde, Dobrašina, and Borovsko in Rogatica,⁸⁵⁸⁸ the village of Musići in Hadžići,⁸⁵⁸⁹ the village of Blagaj in Bosanski Novi⁸⁵⁹⁰ it has insufficient evidence about the property destroyed or the extent of damage to conclude whether this amounts to wanton destruction of private property.

2552. The Chamber recalls its finding that Serb Forces completely destroyed, almost destroyed, or heavily damaged multiple mosques, Catholic churches and other cultural monuments and sacred sites in Bratunac,⁸⁵⁹¹ Bosanski Novi,⁸⁵⁹² Foča,⁸⁵⁹³ Ključ,⁸⁵⁹⁴ Novi Grad,⁸⁵⁹⁵ Prijedor,⁸⁵⁹⁶ Rogatica,⁸⁵⁹⁷ Sanski Most,⁸⁵⁹⁸ Sokolac,⁸⁵⁹⁹ and Zvornik.⁸⁶⁰⁰ (At least for Zvornik the Chamber had a convincing evidence that the state organs didn't have anything to do with destruction of this mosque. A member of the Yellow Wasps testified that the Serb police insisted that he disclose who and why the Zvornik mosque had been ruined, and he explained that it had been done because of the metal on roof, cuper probably, which was #thieved by criminals#!. See: @@@ for other mosques there was no a single evidence that it was done willingly, nor an evidence that there was no a military necessity, for instance whether a mosque was used to fire from it, or not. Another reason for a destruction could have been a placing of explosive and other war materials by the Muslim combatants. It is up to the Prosecution to prove that none of these features were the reasons, or was it a wanton destruction within the policy!) The Chamber finds that the Serb Forces intended to destroy these monuments and sites. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber had regard to the nature and extent of the damage to these monuments and sites and the manner in which they were destroyed. For example, the Chamber notes evidence that Bosnian Serb fire brigades stood by and watched while mosques were burnt in Foča.⁸⁶⁰¹ Many of the mosques were completely destroyed by explosives; the rubble was removed from the site and the location was later used for other purposes including as garbage dumps and parking lots.⁸⁶⁰² (Certainly, there were some cases of destruction of the sacral objects, but it was always against the President's stict orders pot reserve it. We remember how a member of the Yellow Wasps had been questioned by the Serb police mainly on the occasion as who destroyed the Zvornik mosque and why. In this inter-ethnic and inter-religious war these things are happening, many, many Serb Orthodox Churches had been destroyed at the very beginning of the war, and there was many revengeful acts. But, it has nothing to do with the authorities, in particular with the President, who was too far from these events!The #President forbade it#!)

2553. The Chamber recalls its finding that the evidence presented with respect to Bijeljina,⁸⁶⁰³ Pale,⁸⁶⁰⁴ and Vogošća⁸⁶⁰⁵ was insufficient to allow for an inference to be drawn that Serb Forces destroyed the cultural monuments and sacred sites in those municipalities. The Chamber did not enter a finding with respect to the destruction of the Catholic Church in Ključ.⁸⁶⁰⁶ The Chamber also found that three mosques in the Vragolovi area of Rogatica were destroyed but had insufficient evidence to determine when they were destroyed and who was responsible for their destruction.⁸⁶⁰⁷

2554. The Chamber finds that the destruction of these mosques, cultural monuments, and sacred sites was not justified by military necessity. (When and how? This could only be a sort of belief, but not a fact, particularly since the Prosecution even didn't try to prove it!#Believes, impressions vs. documents and common sense#!) For example, with regard to Foča, where the President argued that certain mosques were used for military purposes in Foča, the Chamber concluded that this evidence was unreliable and further that there was no other indication that the mosques were used for military purposes.⁸⁶⁰⁸

2555. The Chamber also finds that these acts of wanton destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites, were carried out with discriminatory intent against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁸⁶⁰⁹ In reaching that conclusion the Chamber noted that in some cases adjacent Bosnian Serb homes were untouched and there were notes which identified them as Serb property that should not be torched.⁸⁶¹⁰ In addition, fire engines were used to protect Bosnian Serb houses while Bosnian Muslim houses burned.⁸⁶¹¹ In an attack on a Bosnian Muslim village in Vlasenica, Serb Forces were specifically ordered to torch all Bosnian Muslim houses and told “you can see for yourselves that if we don't set fire to these houses, they'll return later on”.⁸⁶¹² (The #most reasonable inference# would be, if not the only one, that from the Serb houses nobody fired against the Serb Army or police, and that was why nobody touched these houses, as nobody touched the Muslim and Croat houses as testified by Edward Vulliamy, D3788! The Prosecution-Chamber alliance pretended as if there was no other warring factions, all of them were a peaceful civilians, and wilde Serbs attacked them! And if the Muslim terrorists used their homes as a fortified military objects, as they did all the time, then these houses were a legitimate targets and should be destroyed, which would any army do!)

2556. With respect to the cultural monuments and sacred sites, the Chamber found that the sites destroyed were targeted given their significance to the Bosnian Muslim or Bosnian Croat people in those locations and were discriminatory in fact and were carried out with discriminatory intent. (All of it would be correct if it is process against a civil war, but to “find” this as it did the Chamber, it iz invalid, since there is no any connection with the President. What does it, and many other contents of the civil, interethnic and interreligious war, one of many during five centuries, has to do with the President? Is there any obligation of the Prosecution to establish the President's liability for those deeds “found” by the Chamber? The way it is presented in the Judgement, it appears that all the other possible causes had been excluded, such as: hatred, revenge for the monuments destroyed by the adversary, abuse of a sacred site for a ⁸⁶⁰⁸ See para. 927.

⁸⁶⁰⁹ The Chamber considers that discrimination on the grounds of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats falls within the prohibited grounds of discrimination under Article 5(h) of the Statute. (#Why only some of them#? One can conclude whatever wanted, since there was no possibility to depict the conduct of the other sides. Thus it looks as if there was a peace and total innocence of others, only the Serbs acted criminally without any challenge, jeopardy, provocations, as a born criminals!)

combat, accidental collateral damage, all of it was not excluded, and the Chamber “inferred” that the only reason for destructions in a war like that was a plan, decision to target objects that were very important to the Muslims and Croats!!! No a word about evidence to that diorection! The Defence had pointed out the fact that in the eastern part of the RS, in which many Serb refugees came from the Muslim areas, and none from the Croat areas, no a single Catholic church had been damaged. This indicates that at their own places no Catholic perpetrator ruined any Orthodox church, and the refugees didn’t have any anti-Catholic sentiment. It was different in the western part of the Republic of Srpska, which admitted many Serb refugees from the Catholic areas!)

2557. Having considered the nature and extent of the private and public property destroyed, the Chamber finds that the impact of the destruction was serious given that it affected indispensable and vital assets of the population, including homes and religious sites. The Chamber therefore finds that these acts of wanton destruction of private and public property amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and were of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute. (All highly senseless, and would have some sense if there was no any civil war. Anyway, the destructions in Bosnia during 44 moths of war was not comparable with the destructions resulting in other current wars, nor even #! comparable with Mostar and three months of war there#, not to mention cities in the Middle East!)

2558. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the acts of wanton destruction were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these acts, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. (#All wrong, unfounded, arbitrary#! There was #no a single example of a Serb attack on any civilian settlement# if there was no Muslim military presence and their active combat actions against the Serbs. It was very easy to establish, since there was many more non-Serb settlements that had never been attacked than those that had been under an attack! Why it was so?)

2559. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents of wanton destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites, constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity.

(H) Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures⁸⁶¹³

2560. The Chambers found in section IV.A.1 that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were removed from positions of authority and dismissed from their employment in Bijeljina,⁸⁶¹⁴ Bosanski Novi,⁸⁶¹⁵ Bratunac,⁸⁶¹⁶ Foča,⁸⁶¹⁷ Ključ,⁸⁶¹⁸ Pale,⁸⁶¹⁹ Prijedor,⁸⁶²⁰ Sanski Most,⁸⁶²¹

Vogošća,⁸⁶²² Vlasenica,⁸⁶²³ and Zvornik.⁸⁶²⁴ In Foča for example, announcements were made that the administration of the entire municipality would be run by Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁶²⁵ In addition, after the dismissal of Bosnian Muslims in Bratunac, all key positions in local government were taken over by Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁶²⁶ In some municipalities, Bosnian Muslims were prevented or discouraged from reporting for work,⁸⁶²⁷ while others were subject to threats, harassment, and insults after which they stopped going to work.⁸⁶²⁸ In Vlasenica, the Chamber also found that the salaries of Bosnian Muslim workers were stopped while Bosnian Serb workers continued to be paid.⁸⁶²⁹

(In order to be minimally fair, the Chamber should find that prior to these events there was a long time process of #negotiations about forming two ethnically defined municipalities# - #Two municipalities#! . Those non-Serbs who would remain to live and work in the Serb municipality, would have to accept already proclaimed Republic of Srpska and it's Constitution, and to commit themselves to the new laws and new organisation of state. If not, they couldn't execute any duty with the special authorisations, such as arresting, investigating and judging citizens. Since the Muslims accepted to form their municipalities and at the last moment reneged on it, that was their choice, but they could have do either way! As far as it is concerned with the coming to jobs in companies, a private companies had every right to decide whether it was safe to have all the workers coming, but both the private and state enterprises had a drastic decrease in production due to the war and sanctions, and they didn't need all the workers from the pre-war time. As far as it is concerned with the public servants, they could stay in the Serb administration, or cross to the Muslim municipal administration.)

2561. In Bratunac, Vlasenica, and Zvornik, Bosnian Muslim judges were expelled,⁸⁶³⁰ (Let us first see what is “established” in the para 1276 of the Judgement, from this footnote: 1276. Some Bosnian Muslims were prevented from going to work, and those who attempted to do so, were stopped at a barricade in Karakaj, slapped, insulted, and sent home. In April 1992, Bosnian Serb authorities called on both Bosnian Serbs and Bosnian Muslims to return to work and live in Zvornik, declaring it was safe to do so. However, Bosnian Muslims who did return were taken in for interviewing, had to register, and in order to remain employed, had to sign a pledge of loyalty to the Bosnian Serb authorities. Some Bosnian Muslims after being questioned by the police were kept effectively under house arrest, and in one case in May 1992, Serb Forces called out the names of Bosnian Muslims who were still living in a building in Zvornik White Eagles also searched Bosnian Muslim apartments, at times using violence. Here it is clear than only “some of the Bosnian Muslims were prevented from going to work”... and not establish why not all of them, which would more look like discriminatory measure. Thus, it seems that “some” of them had been suspected for something, and some not! Not to forget that the Muslim authorities of Zvornik issued a proclamation on 8 May, demanding the Muslims not to return to Zvornik, but rather to fight, see: D1622:

Muslims, raise to arms, go to the woods or free territory, join the Territorial Defence of the municipality. Do not go back to the town or villages, do not go to work, exercise civil disobedience and paralyze economic and other activities which would give the legitimacy and the material basics for warfare to the newly establish occupying authority.

⁸⁶²² See para. 2382 (the Chamber found that non-Serb workers were suspended from their jobs at the medical centre).

Knowing that many Muslims demanded to be let go to Tuzla, and having in mind this "Proclamation", no any room for a Serb ethnic cleansing, particularly since the Zvornik municipality did split in two parts till now! Let us see what is in the para 723 of the Judgement, from the same foot note: 723. After the Serb Forces arrived in Bratunac, Bosnian Muslims in factories and municipal bodies were fired from their jobs and all key positions in the local government were taken over by Bosnian Serbs. At the 17th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 26 July 1992, Rajko Dukić stated that he hoped they would not be judged for having expelled all Muslim judges from the municipalities of Vlasenica, Bratunac, and Zvornik. Serb Forces began patrolling Bratunac and took away the most prominent Bosnian Muslims, some of whom were detained at the Vuk Karadžić School. First and the most important: the Serbs didn't arrive in Bratunac, they had been the oldest population in the area. Second, there was a very succesfull negotiations about forming two municipalities, the police separated peacefully and successfully, there was a good prospective for the peace to be preserved, and two ethnic communities to live peacefully! But, the Chamber misses the main point: on 3 May the Muslim extremists attacket the JNA while withdrawing to Yugoslavia. At the same time the Muslims from Srebrenica reneged on the similar agreement and attacked the Serbs, expelling thousand of them to Bratunac. Further, on 8 May the Muslim extremists made an ambush and killed judge Goran Zekic, a prominent Serb representative in the common Assembly. Then the war broke out in Bratunac, a month after the war start in Sarajevo! Therefore, the Chamber is making decisions as if there was no any war, or any negotiations, or any event except a Serb misdeeds! As far as it is concerned with Zvornik, the Serb authorities called all the refugees, Serb and Muslim, to return , but the fights were still going on, and the Muslim side issued on 8 May another call, an appeal for the Muslims not to return to the town, see D1622 above! But, the Chamber never mentioned this contemporaneous document! Why it was more important to quote an unofficial sentence of Rajko Dukic, who was critical of the President's nomination of Muslim/Croat judges, while still there was the most fierce fighting, and many young Serbs arrived in the towns in coffins. Dukic even wasn't a deputy, but many had been disappointed by the President's action as a prematured, when the President nominated at least 18 Muslims and Croats as judges or prosecutors in the regional courts, see:D418 of 30 June 1992:

A Muslim gentlemen! Afther that date the President didn't appoint judges and prosecutors, since the Assembly gathered regularly! Why the mens rea and actus reus of the President wouldn't be seen from his documents rather than from the jokes or other unofficial words of the deputies or other low ranking Serbs?) : while in Pale,⁸⁶³¹ Sokolac,⁸⁶³² and Vlasenica,⁸⁶³³ Bosnian Muslim members of the SJB were dismissed. (This is also #insufficient, distorted and not true#. In the inter-party agreement there were pairs of municipalities of those with similar share of population. In Stari Grad municipality and in Pale there was similar rate of minorities, and what the Serbs got in Stari Grad, the same Muslims got in Pale, pertaining to the number and positions in police, administration, and so on! It functioned well until the Muslims expelled all the Serbs from the Stari Grad police. Those policemen had been sent to Pale, to work there. Then the police in Pale hired these policemen, but dir reciprocal measure and fired the Muslim policemen. Without the entire picture and the "whole truth" we get such a kind of deliberations! As far as it is concerned with Vlasenica and other municipalities in process of transformation into two wthnic municipalities, the Muslim policemen that didn't want to recognize the Serb municipality, Constitution and laws – had a choice, to join the Muslim municipality and its police. Why it is #neglected, although it constitutes the essence# as it was, not as it is interpreted by the Prosecution?) The Chamber also recalls its finding that a Bosnian Muslim officer in the JNA was progressively stripped of his duties and authority until he was told that his safety could not be guaranteed and he left the JNA.⁸⁶³⁴ (That was not the case, since Dzambasovic left the JNA on 6 April, the first day of war in Sarajevo. However, he loudly opposed any idea of the Republic of Srpska and persecuted any cooperation of the Serb reserve units and the JNA, and for that reasons he was seen as a risky man, disobedient to the highest commands of the JNA, which recommended a good relations with all that join the JNA and respond to the mobilisation calls! He himself said that he left with dignity and understanding of the other officers in the Brigade!)

2562. Other discriminatory measures included forcing Bosnian Muslim police officers to pledge loyalty to the Bosnian Serb authorities and wear the Serb flag on their caps to retain their jobs.⁸⁶³⁵ (How could it be “discriminatory” since the #Serbs had to accept the new state organisation too#? Without the oath, none could have the special authorisation in the state organs, as to arrest, investigate and so on! In no country in the world it would be possible! #The same is all and every country#!) Similarly in Bratunac, Bosnian Muslims were given a deadline to pledge loyalty to the Serbian Municipality of Bratunac but continued to be subject to searches of their homes and other intimidation.⁸⁶³⁶ (Although the Bratunac Muslims accepted to form their municipality and the police station, which is documented in the file, the Muslim policemen could have stayed in the Serb police station, provided they accept the laws and Constitution! This is not discriminatory, on the contrary!) Bosnian Muslims in Zvornik who returned were required to register and sign a pledge of loyalty to the Bosnian Serb authorities in order to remain employed.⁸⁶³⁷ (That concerned only those who would have a special authorisation, others had to be loyal to the laws and Constitution, as in any other country. No a state would employ somebody decisive to harm the state, particularly in a state of war!)

2563. The dismissal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from their employment was discriminatory in fact. In addition, the Chamber found in Ključ that the Bosnian Serb authorities expressly decided that only Bosnian Serb officials could occupy certain important posts in the municipality and that those dismissed from their jobs were so treated because of their ethnicity.⁸⁶³⁸ (Not because of their ethnicity, but #because of their disloyalty to the new inner organisation of Bosnia#. Such a decisive opponents to the peace would harm the municipal peace and cause sufferings!)

2564. In Foča there were widespread arrests of Bosnian Muslim male civilians who were rounded up and arrested in the streets or in their homes, workplaces, or hospitals.⁸⁶³⁹ Similarly the Chamber found that there were random arrests of Bosnian Muslims in Pale and Prijedor.⁸⁶⁴⁰ (Wherever it was an unjustified arrest, such a detained people were released after the first interview. But, the Chamber is accepting the Prosecutor's qualification of “civilians” as if civilians couldn't be culprits in a civil war. There is a big rift between what the Prosecution/Chamber “found” and the reality. Why the Serb local authorities would arrest innocent civilians, while not be able to house, guard and feed their ownm population and army, let alone additional civilians? Another question: why only several percent of the Muslim population in the most denigrated municipalities had been brought in and detained? This finding had been based on one of 2,379 adjudicated facts, introduced in this case, which diminished any illusion of a fairness of the trial! #Deadly combination#!) For further evidence on arbitrary arrests, the Chamber refers to its findings in Section IV.A.2.iv.D above regarding unlawful detention. During and after these arrests, Bosnian Muslims were referred to by Serb soldiers by the derogatory term “baliija” and cursed.⁸⁶⁴¹ Bosnian Muslim homes were also subject to arbitrary searches sometimes accompanied by violence or intimidation towards the occupants.⁸⁶⁴² On occasions those searches were on the pretext of searching for weapons but intimidated the Bosnian Muslim population.⁸⁶⁴³

2565. The Chamber also found that restrictions were placed on the movement of Bosnian Muslims, including the issuance of movement passes which did not apply to Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁶⁴⁴ (In the war zone everyone had to have a sort of pass, otherwise couldn’t pass. This was a security measure, and depended on the local security organs, not on the President, nor the President was entitled to ban it, since it could affect security of soldiers and civilians. The “non-Serbs” were easier to obtain it, because they hadn’t been obliged to the Army! But, again, the Chamber neglects the fact that in those several municipalities #there were the fierce fightings# on a daily basis. In such a situation the local commanders were sovereign in deciding and implementing the security measures, and neither the President, nor anyone else could order anything what would indanger the lifes of his soldiers and civilians!) Some Bosnian Muslims who were involved with the SDA were not issued with passes, and others who did have such passes were still often arrested and detained.⁸⁶⁴⁵ Some Bosnian Muslims were only able to secure transit passes if they had connections or they had to pay substantial amounts of money in order to leave the municipality.⁸⁶⁴⁶

2566. The Chamber also recalls that there were restrictions on Bosnian Muslims meeting each other, their phone lines and utilities were cut, and some were placed under virtual house arrest.⁸⁶⁴⁷ The Chamber found that in Zvornik, for example, Bosnian Serb authorities banned the sale or trade of real estate in the municipality unless it was between Bosnian Serbs and and only ordered the back pay of pensions for Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁶⁴⁸ (All military and security necessities# Would the UN or this Tribunal be responsible if the Muslims succeeded to bucher the Zvornik Serbs, as they din the Pofalici Serbs in the middle if the Muslim part of Sarajevo, or in Bradina, all of it in May 92? REPORT

ON THE STATE, ORGANIZATIONAL, AND FORMATIONAL STRUCTURE AND THE COMBAT READINESS OF THE UNITS OF THE ARMED FORCES

ZVORNIK

Sapna, 11.05.1992

The defense of Kula Grad, from April 9th to April 26th, was carried out while the JNA was still the legal armed force in the region of Tuzla, when the state of Bosnia and Herzegovina had still not named an aggressor, and was not yet organized or ready to conduct a defensive and liberating war. At that time, Kula Grad was the symbol of the BiH resistance to aggression. The Kula Grad situation had indicated that resistance was possible even while being surrounded, and that the Aggressor is vulnerable, regardless of the fact that it is armed to the teeth and exceptionally well equipped.

The grounds of the successful resistance were accredited to the preparations undertaken months in advance of the war, which were thus reflected in the effectiveness of most of the activists, the organized arming, and the decidedness to offer resistance at any cost. A particular effect in the sustaining of the freedom of the territory was created by the arrival and activity of Captain Hejrudin Mesic, who had, along with Captain Mehdi-Senad Hodzic, and a smaller number of other organizers of the resistance and uprising, had managed to create a sense of need for armed resistance, as well as the potential and the effectiveness of the liberating combat. Captain Hajra's group was the first combat unit in this region.

The defense of Zvornik, carried out on April 8th and 9th, 1992, indicate that the preparations were brief, that the technical equipment was limited, and the quick defeat due to the surprise and cunning attack of JNA formations, the Territorial Defense of the Republic of Serbia, and the Serb military and paramilitary formations of the SDS.

The Aggressor, in the attack on Zvornik just as in the defense of the Tower, had suffered large casualties, despite the fact that the defense was poorly armed and prepared, divided into half by the psychological propaganda activities, and poorly commanded and organized in the military sense.

The grounds of the successful resistance were accredited to the preparations undertaken months in advance of the war, which were thus reflected in the effectiveness of most of the activists, the organized arming, and the decidedness to offer resistance at any cost. A particular effect in the sustaining of the freedom of the territory was created by the arrival and activity of Captain Hejrudin Mesic, who had, along with Captain Mehdi-Senad Hodzic, and a smaller number of other organizers of the resistance and uprising, had managed to create a sense of need for armed resistance, as well as the potential and the effectiveness of the liberating combat. Captain Hajra's group was the first combat unit in this region.

In this period, many combat activities took place, from which we distinguish a few: the liberation of Sapna and Gaj on May 6th, 1992, the battle for Zaseok on May 10th, 1992, the taking of Brdjane on May 14th, 1992, Odzacin on June 11th, 1992, the battle for Boskovice on June 22nd, 1992, the forming of the First Zvornik Squad on June 22nd, 1992, the forming of the Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Squads of those two independent companies, the heavy artillery shelling of the entire region by the Graduates here was 5,056 soldiers decisive to fight against the Zvornik Serbs. Hadnt the Zvornik Serbs been responsible, that would be a carnage, and nobody in the world cad demand the Serbs to sustain such a massacres! Let us see what is in this para 1236, that served as a basis for this assertion: 1236. Also on 15 March 1992, the Assembly of the Serb Municipality of Zvornik passed a decision banning the sale or trade of real estate within the municipality unless it was between "ethnic Serbs". In late March 1992, local youth were given assignments by Bosnian Serb police to erect barricades at specific locations, secure important facilities in Karakaj, and seize bridges. (#All under the JNA auspice, there was no the VRS yet# The ban on the sale or trade of real estate in a gloomy war atmosphere was rather a #commendable#, because prevented any deception or the influence of circumstances. The barricades are by definition a defensive, not offensive action, and since the local Serbs knew what the SDA extremists had been preparing against the Serbs in Zvornik. Again, the Chamber is "finding" the Serb felonies as if there was no the war situation, and a carnage of the Serbs in several Bosnian towns! Let us see para 1279, the same as a basis for this paragraph: 1279. On 17 June 1992, the President confirmed the appointment of five members of the War Commission of the Serb Municipality of Zvornik, which was to disband the Interim Government and restore the Municipal Assembly. On the same day, the Serb Municipality of Zvornik ordered the back pay of pensions for Serbs. So, if the President ordered re-organisation of the municipal authorities, it doesn't mean that he ordered that only the Serbs to get their pensions! Certainly, he didn't. at the same time, in Grbavica, in the centre of the Serb Sarajevo, all the citizens regularly received pensions. In Zvornik there was a separation of municipalities, and fonds and all the administration, so understandably the Serb municipality was not able to remunerate incomes for thos that lived in their municipality!) In Vlasenica, the Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims had restrictions placed on the amount of money they could withdraw from the bank.⁸⁶⁴⁹ (It had been rebuted in the court room by the testimony of Stanic, who confirmed that there was a general shortage of the cash, because the money, Yugoslav Dinar, was printed in Belgrade, and it was not simple to obtain it! This practice was introduced throughout the entire Yugoslavia already in 1989. But, even if it was as said, what does it have to do with the President, or any other Serb official? The #monetary policy# was under the control and in competences of the Central Bank of Yugoslavia!)

⁸⁶⁴⁹ See para. 1119.

2567. The Chamber considered the circumstances and the environment in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were subjected to restrictive and discriminatory measures. The Chamber did not consider these measures in isolation, but also had regard to its findings that contemporaneously Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities were also subject to killings, torture, beatings, physical and psychological abuse, rape and other acts of sexual violence, cruel and inhumane living conditions, forcible displacement, unlawful detention, forced labour, plunder, and the wanton destruction of private and public property.⁸⁶⁵⁰ When these restrictive and discriminatory measures are considered in conjunction with these other underlying acts of persecution which were perpetrated at the same time, against the same category of victims, the Chamber finds that this amounted to a denial of or infringement upon a fundamental right and was of equal gravity to the other crimes listed under Article 5 of the Statute. (This is so biased, arbitrary, and not proven to be any part of the state policy. If there was a civil war, one of many among the same opponents and adversaries, the Prosecution was obliged to show what of it was in control of the state organs and institutions, what was caused, controlled, neglected or in other way caused by the President's actions or missing of the action! The crimes must be defined as personal, not as general!)

2568. In addition, the Chamber finds that the perpetrators of these restrictive and discriminatory measures chose their victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats. The Chamber finds that these acts were carried out deliberately with the intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁸⁶⁵¹ In concluding that these acts were carried out with discriminatory intent, the Chamber had regard to its finding that these acts were discriminatory in fact given that the restrictive and discriminatory measures were directed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats whereas Bosnian Serbs were not subject to the same restrictions. (#Absurdity#! Probably because the "Bosnian Serbs" didn't wage the war against the Bosnian Serbs, while many Muslims and Croats did wage a cruel war against the Serb army, police and civilians, as several times in the same century! Again, the Chamber's finding look like there was a peace, and the authorities discriminated a peaceful citizens. As a matter of fact, the vast majority of the "non-Serbs" didn't have any trouble living in the Serb areas, and only some percentage, less than 5% all together, did have troubles as their own choice! There is a sufficient evidence for this in the file!) In addition, the Chamber also had regard to the insults, taunts, and threats directed at the victims on the basis of their identity as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities which expressly demonstrated this discriminatory intent with respect to other underlying acts of persecution.⁸⁶⁵²

2569. Further, the Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations in the Municipalities. The Chamber finds that the incidents of restrictive and discriminatory measures were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these acts, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude and systematic nature of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH.

2570. The Chamber therefore finds that the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures constitute acts of persecution as a crime against humanity. (#Absurdity#!)

⁸⁶⁵⁰ For the Chamber's findings in this regard, see Section IV.A.2.iv: Legal findings on crimes (Persecution: Count 3).

⁸⁶⁵¹ The Chamber considers that discrimination on the grounds of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats falls within the prohibited grounds of discrimination under Article 5(h) of the Statute.

⁸⁶⁵² The Chamber has had regard to its findings with respect to the insults, taunts, and threats which were discussed in the context of cruel and inhumane treatment of these detainees.

Was it established that it was on the ethnic basis only? Why the vast majority of the “non-Serbs” in a critical municipalities hadn’t been treated this way, and why in many municipalities there was no troubles at all? The Chamber missed to establish the causes and consequences, the contribution of the other sides to the troubles, as in the criminal justice must be found out whether the indicted side had any other choice, or had to act in an ultimate defence. All what the Tribunal made is so arbitrary, unjust and unfounded, so that will be a paradigm of what must not be done ever!)

1. Genocide: Count 1

2571. In Count 1 of the Indictment, the Prosecution charges the Accused with genocide pursuant to Article 4 of the Statute. It alleges that between 31 March and 31 December 1992, in seven of the Municipalities, namely Bratunac, Foča, Ključ, Prijedor, Sanski Most, Vlasenica, and Zvornik (“Count 1 Municipalities”), the alleged persecutory campaign included or escalated to include conduct that manifested an intent to destroy in part the national, ethnical and/or religious groups of Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats as such.⁸⁶⁵³ It submits that the crimes charged in the Indictment were not aimed at the victims as individuals but as members of an “undesired community”; the President “intended the demographic restructuring of Bosnia to be accomplished by the destruction of substantial parts of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat communities” in the Count 1 Municipalities.⁸⁶⁵⁴ According to the Prosecution, the proper name for this crime is “genocide”.⁸⁶⁵⁵

2572. In his Final Brief, the Accused concentrates his argument in relation to Count 1 on the lack of genocidal intent from his part or from anyone in the Bosnian Serb leadership; this argument will be addressed below. The Chamber notes that at the end of the Prosecution’s case, in his submissions pursuant to Rule 98 bis, the Accused argued that there was no genocide in the Municipalities in 1992 and that there was therefore no evidence upon which the Chamber could conclude that the Accused was guilty of genocide as charged in Count 1.⁸⁶⁵⁶ More specifically, he argued that “displacement does not equal destruction”,⁸⁶⁵⁷ and referred to all of the previous Tribunal judgements in which genocide was not found to have been committed in the Municipalities, or at least in some of the Municipalities.⁸⁶⁵⁸

(A) The protected group

2573. For the purpose of Count 1, the Prosecution alleges that the protected groups are the national, ethnical and/or religious groups of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁸⁶⁵⁹

2574. The Chamber notes that other Chambers have concluded that both the Bosnian Muslims and the Bosnian Croats are protected groups within the meaning of Article 4 of the Statute.⁸⁶⁶⁰

⁸⁶⁵⁹ See Indictment, para. 38; Prosecution Final Brief, fn. 2147 (making reference to the “national group of Bosnian Muslims and of Croats”).

⁸⁶⁶⁰ In relation to the Bosnian Muslim group, see Krstić Appeal Judgement, para. 15 (holding that identifying “the protected group as the national group of Bosnian Muslims” comports with the guidelines in relation to the definition of the protected group pursuant to Article 4 of the Statute). See also Popović et al. Trial Judgement, para. 840; Krstić Trial Judgement, para. 560. In relation to both the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat groups, see Stakić Appeal Judgement, para. 36 (concluding that the Trial Chamber did not err in law either by defining the groups allegedly targeted for genocide as Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats). See also Brđanin Trial Judgement, para. 736.

The Chamber is satisfied for the purpose of Article 4 of the Statute that the protected groups were the Bosnian Muslims and the Bosnian Croats.

(B) The actus reus

2575. In relation to Count 1, the Prosecution charges three types of acts under Article 4(2) of the Statute: (i) the killing of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, including leading members of these groups;⁸⁶⁶¹ (ii) the causing of serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, including leading members of these groups, during their confinement in detention facilities;⁸⁶⁶² and (iii) the detention of thousands of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, including leading members of these groups, in detention facilities, under conditions of life calculated to bring about their physical destruction.⁸⁶⁶³ The Prosecution alleges that the evidence is overwhelming that these acts of genocide within the meaning of Article 4(2) of the Statute occurred on a massive scale.⁸⁶⁶⁴

2576. When presenting the Accused's closing arguments on genocide under Count 1, the Accused's legal adviser acknowledged that "crimes such as murder and infliction of serious harm, were committed during the 1992 events in the municipalities in Bosnia".⁸⁶⁶⁵

2577. The Chamber will examine below each of the categories of acts charged under Article 4(2) of the Statute.

1. Killing members of the group

2578. The Chamber entered findings that a large number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were killed by Serb Forces throughout the Count 1 Municipalities. Victims were killed during and after the take-over of these municipalities. Victims were also killed while they were detained at detention facilities; some of them died as a result of cruel and inhumane treatment inflicted on them.⁸⁶⁶⁶ (#Eight mistakes#! There are at least eight huge omissions in this finding: 1. there was no any "take-over" by the Serb side, but only a "take-over" of control on the Serb territories only, leaving the same possibility to the Muslim/Croat side; 2. In all and every of these municipalities the Serb side had been attacked militarily by the illegal terrorist groups, which first attacked the JNA, and later the Serb institutions, and finally the VRS and Serb police; 3. There was no a single case of any harassment, detention, hostility prior to an armed conflict initiated by the Muslim side; 4. There was no a case of the Serb initiation of armed conflict; 5. There had been detained only persons connected to the armed rebellion, and if by mistake some civilian had been arrested, such a person had been released immediately after established the fact. In the most critical municipalities of Sanski Most and Prijedor, 41% and 59% respectively had been released; 6. In these the most critical municipalities there had been detained less than 2,8% of the non-Serb population – always and exclusively on the basis of personal involvement in rebellion; 7. Except in an incident in the Keraterm detention in Prijedor, where during an escape attempt had been killed close to ⁸⁶⁶¹ Indictment, para. 40(a) (referring to killings carried out during and after take-overs and in detention facilities, including those committed during, and deaths resulting from, cruel and inhumane treatment at detention facilities).

⁸⁶⁶² Indictment, para. 40(b) (referring to cruel or inhumane treatment, including torture, physical and psychological abuse, rape, other acts of sexual violence and beatings).

⁸⁶⁶³ Indictment, para. 40(c) (referring to cruel and inhumane treatment, including torture, physical and psychological abuse, rape, other acts of sexual violence, inhumane living conditions, forced labour and the failure to provide adequate accommodation, shelter, food, water, medical care or hygienic sanitation facilities).

⁸⁶⁶⁵ Accused Closing Argument, T. 47935–47936 (2 October 2014).

⁸⁶⁶⁶ See para. 2446. For Bratunac, see fn. 8223, 8236, 8251; for Foča, see fn. 8224, 8238, 8252; for Ključ, see fn. 8225, 8240; for Prijedor, see fn. 8227, 8243, 8253; for Sanski Most, see fn. 8228, 8245, 8255; for Vlasenica, see fn. 8231, 8246; and for Zvornik, see fns. 8232, 8248, 8256.

200 inmates, there was no killings in other detentions, except a very few incidental, and always out of control of the officials! 8. The Chamber facilitated the Prosecution witnesses to lie as much as they wanted, and among others, the Chamber accepted that there was no a combat casualties on the Muslim side, during the legal anti-terrorist actions throughout the militarised villages, thus counting all the combat casualties as a civilian!!! Everyone is free to challenge these facts, because as time goes, the truth will prevail!!! The general question remains un-answered: #why only a few villages in the critical municipalities had been embattled, #why only few percent of the non-Serbs had been participating in rebellion, and #why it happened in less than one third of the Serb municipalities!

2579. The Chamber is therefore satisfied for the purpose of Article 4(2)(a) of the Statute that members of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat groups were killed.

2. Causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group

2580. Throughout the Count 1 Municipalities, the Chamber found that a large number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were subjected to cruel treatment, including torture, beatings, as well as physical and psychological abuse. The Chamber described these acts in detail above in relation to Count 3 and provided vivid examples of the most egregious acts found to have been committed against the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in detention facilities as well as during and after take-overs in the Count 1 Municipalities. The Chamber also found that prominent Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, including professionals and leaders, were targeted for such treatment. Following these acts, the Chamber found that many detainees bore serious injuries, had visible wounds, were unable to walk or talk for days, and suffered long-term psychological and physical effects. These acts were found to cause serious mental or physical suffering or injury. (By such a partisan approach, the Chamber is becoming a part of the Muslim propaganda apparatus. It couldn't be otherwise, since such an #un-critical acceptance of the partisanship# of the Prosecution and its witnesses – which made these trials unnecessary! During these alleged misdoings of the Serb side, many #Muslims and Croats participated in the VRS# against the same enemies, fundamentalists and pro-nazi forces. Had it been even close to what the Chamber found, there wouldn't be a single Muslim or Croat in the Republic of Srpska, let alone in the Serb Army!)

2581. The Chamber also found that in some of the Count 1 Municipalities, namely Foča, Prijedor, Vlasenica, and Zvornik, Bosnian Muslim women, men, girls, and boys were subjected to rape and other acts of sexual violence, involving serious abuses of a sexual nature.⁸⁶⁶⁷ These acts were found to cause serious mental or physical suffering or injury.⁸⁶⁶⁸ (Not true! Why there was no any litigation on this after the war! Both sides had known each other very well, and it couldn't happen without a common knowledge! #No mas rapes#!)

2582. The Chamber considers that these acts were of such a serious nature as to contribute or tend to contribute to the destruction of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Count 1 Municipalities. The Chamber is therefore satisfied for the purpose of Article 4(2)(b) of the Statute that members of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat groups were subjected to serious bodily or mental harm in the Count 1 Municipalities.

(3)Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part ⁸⁶⁶⁷ See paras. 2500–2505. In particular for Foča, see fn. 8435; for Prijedor, see fn. 8437; for Vlasenica, see fn. 8439; and for Zvornik, see fn. 8441.

⁸⁶⁶⁸ See paras. 2499, 2505, 2512.

2583. The Chamber recalls that when the same acts are charged under Articles 4(2)(b) and 4(2)(c), a chamber will consider whether these alleged acts amount to conditions calculated to bring about physical destruction only when it does not find them to amount to “causing serious bodily or mental harm”.⁸⁶⁶⁹ The Chamber shall therefore limit its assessment to the acts which are not included above. These include the imposition of inhumane living conditions, forced labour and the failure to provide adequate accommodation, shelter, food, water, medical care or hygienic sanitation facilities.⁸⁶⁷⁰

2584. In all of the Count 1 Municipalities, the Chamber found that Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat detainees were held in terrible conditions.⁸⁶⁷¹ (In an #improvised prisons and detentions, not deliberately#) For the purpose of Article 4(2)(c), the Chamber recalls its findings that the detainees faced severe over-crowding in the detention facilities.⁸⁶⁷² This combined with stifling heat and lack of ventilation led to unbearable conditions for the detainees and some died.⁸⁶⁷³ In these detention facilities, medical care was non-existent or inadequate, at best.⁸⁶⁷⁴ Access to water and food was insufficient, which led to severe weight loss, malnutrition, and at times, starvation.⁸⁶⁷⁵ Hygienic conditions were poor and the lack of access to washing facilities led to dysentery, lice, and skin diseases spreading throughout the facilities.⁸⁶⁷⁶ The Chamber further found that the living conditions in some of the detention facilities had serious effects on some of the detainees.⁸⁶⁷⁷ (#Unpredicted number of detainees and Prisoners of War#, a #general shortage of everything# because of general poverty and particularly because of sanctions, #no professional militaries or police# capable of handling so many POWs, a #2,000 kilometres of frontline# and a severe attacks on the borders of the Republic of Srpska; these #rebels deep in the Serb territory# presented the ultimate jeopardy for the Serb civilians, including families of these soldiers that kept 2,000 km of frontline!)

2585. Further, in Foča, Ključ, and Vlasenica, the Chamber found that a number of Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat detainees were forced to perform labour at the frontline.⁸⁶⁷⁸ They were put in dangerous situations, were afraid for their lives and of being beaten if they refused to work.⁸⁶⁷⁹

2586. However, the Chamber recalls that the “actus reus of Article 4(2)(c) of the Statute ‘covers methods of physical destruction, other than killing, whereby the perpetrator ultimately seeks the death of the members of the group’”.⁸⁶⁸⁰ While Article 4(2)(a) and (b) in that Article 4(2)(a) and (b) proscribes acts causing a specific result, i.e.: death and serious bodily or mental harm, respectively, Article 4(2)(c) concerns “those methods of destruction that do not immediately kill the members of the groups, but which, ultimately, seek their physical destruction”, i.e.: slow death.⁸⁶⁸¹

2587. While the conditions in the detention facilities in the Count 1 Municipalities were dreadful and had serious effects on the detainees, the Chamber is not convinced that the evidence before it demonstrates that they ultimately sought the physical destruction of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. The Chamber is therefore not satisfied for the purpose of Article 4(2)(c) of the Statute that conditions of life calculated to bring about the physical destruction of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were deliberately inflicted on these groups in the Count 1 Municipalities.

(C) The mens rea

2588. The Prosecution first alleges that there is direct evidence that the President had genocidal intent.⁸⁶⁸² This is exemplified, according to the Prosecution, through the statements the President made as to the fate of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats if they persisted in pursuing independence.⁸⁶⁸³ The Prosecution also claims that by casting the conflict as existential and genocidal and by requiring the use of reciprocal force, the President “prepared his followers for the use of destructive forces”.⁸⁶⁸⁴

2589. Second, the Prosecution alleges that the existence of genocidal intent is confirmed through indirect evidence.⁸⁶⁸⁵ (#indirect evidence# for such a sensitive matters!) For the Prosecution, the pattern of crimes in the Count 1 Municipalities, taking Prijedor as the core example,⁸⁶⁸⁶ demonstrates the intent to destroy the very existence of the Bosnian Croat and Bosnian Muslim communities in the Count 1 Municipalities and to prevent their ability to reconstitute themselves.⁸⁶⁸⁷ The Prosecution submits that “[n]ot only can the paramount leader of the Bosnian Serbs’ intent to destroy be inferred, it is compelled by the nature and extent of the underlying genocidal acts”.⁸⁶⁸⁸ It further claims that other members of the Overarching JCE shared the Accused’s genocidal intent, in particular Mladić, whom the Accused personally selected to command his military forces and continued to entrust with carrying out his policies, even when the VRS was perpetrating widespread acts of genocide.⁸⁶⁸⁹ (That would have some sense had General Mladić been already proven as a “master of genocide”, which is #out of mind#!)

2590. On the contrary, the President submits that there is no direct or indirect evidence that he or the Bosnian Serb leadership had genocidal intent with regard to the Count 1 Municipalities.⁸⁶⁹⁰

2591. The Chamber recalls that in the present case the required mens rea for genocide is the intent to destroy, in part, the Bosnian Muslim and the Bosnian Croat groups as such.⁸⁶⁹¹ The Appeals Chamber held that given that the President is charged under Count 1 for his participation in the first form of JCE, “it is the genocidal intent of Karadžić and other alleged JCE members, not the physical perpetrators of the underlying alleged genocidal acts, that is determinative”.⁸⁶⁹² The Chamber notes, however, that the President’s responsibility under Count 1, is alleged in relation to all modes of responsibility under Articles 7(1) and 7(3) of the Statute and therefore at this stage the Chamber must examine whether there was genocidal intent present at any level from the physical perpetrators of the crimes to Bosnian Serb representatives not named as alleged Overarching JCE members, all the way up to the named alleged JCE members, including the President himself.

2592. In determining the existence of such specific intent, the Chamber has considered the evidence as a whole and examined whether there existed direct evidence or whether such inference could be drawn from all the facts and the circumstances in the case. In this regard, the Chamber recalls that such inference must be the only reasonable inference that could be made based on that evidence.⁸⁶⁹³ Given that the intent of the named alleged JCE members, including the Accused, is intrinsically connected to all of the evidence on the record pertaining to the existence and the scope of the Overarching JCE, the Chamber conducted a holistic and contextualised assessment of this evidence and will indicate below, where relevant, the appropriate cross-references to these sections.

Intent to destroy the group as such, in part 2593. In the instant case, under Count 1, the Prosecution refers to the intent to destroy a part of the protected groups of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, namely the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Count 1 Municipalities.⁸⁶⁹⁴ It argues that the part of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat groups in each of the Count 1 Municipalities satisfies the substantiality requirement when considering the numeric size and significance of the targeted parts as well as the areas of the perpetrators' activity and the possible extent of their reach.⁸⁶⁹⁵ Prijedor is taken as the primary example of the part of the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat groups that would meet the substantiality requirement with regard to numeric size and the significance of targeting these communities, given that Prijedor represented a symbol of "brotherhood and unity".⁸⁶⁹⁶ (The Chamber is here on a very weak ice: The Croats in Prijedor didn't participate massively in the rebellion, and for that reason, a very few Croats had been suspected and questioned! As far as the Muslims is concerned with, there was at least some more than 50% of the Muslim settlements didn't have any trouble, i.e. all of the villages that didn't serve as a strongholds of the terrorists! Out of around 55,000 of the non-Serb population, only about 3,000 had been arrested and questioned, which makes around 5%, but after the first investigations around 1,700 had been released, while around 1,400 had been considered liable for the armed rebellion and conveyed to Manjaca as a POWs, which makes #about 2,5% of the non-Sern population#was found liable! Full stop!

2594. The Chamber will examine below whether it can be satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that there was intent to destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups, namely the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Count 1 Municipalities.

Evidence of genocidal intent of the President and named alleged Overarching JCE members 2595. In assessing whether or not the President or any of the named members of the alleged Overarching JCE had genocidal intent for the purposes of Count 1, the Chamber relies on the findings in the section of the Judgement pertaining to the ideology and objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership, and in particular paragraphs 2634 to 2903 therein.

2596. The Chamber found that the speeches and statements made by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership denigrated Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, portrayed them as their historic enemies, and exacerbated ethnic tensions in BiH. This evidence also demonstrates an intent to create an ethnically homogeneous Serb state in BiH, to separate from Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, and remove them from Bosnian Serb controlled territory. It also shows that the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership advocated a position that co-existence with non-Serbs within Bosnian Serb-controlled territory in BiH was impossible.⁸⁶⁹⁷ However, the Chamber is not satisfied that the evidence which demonstrates this objective also shows an intent to physically destroy a part of either of those protected groups.

2597. Even where the Bosnian Serb leadership called into question the identity of the Bosnian Muslims as a nation or a people,⁸⁶⁹⁸ these speeches were delivered in the context that the Bosnian Muslim population residing in Bosnian Serb-claimed territory should be separated from the Serbs—by force if necessary—but did not suggest that a part of that group should be physically destroyed as such.

2598. The Chamber also found that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership repeatedly referred to the historic grievances of the Serb people.⁸⁶⁹⁹ The Chamber found that these speeches were used by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership to remind the Bosnian Serb population about crimes committed against Serbs by Muslims and Croats and emphasised the need to ensure that they would not be repeated.⁸⁷⁰⁰ The Chamber also found that these references were used as justification for renewing historical Bosnian Serb claims to land in BiH where they had once been a majority.⁸⁷⁰¹ These speeches also had the effect of creating fear and inciting inter-ethnic hatred amongst the population.⁸⁷⁰² This rhetoric then made it easier for the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership to promote their objectives of ethnic separation and the creation of an ethnically homogeneous state. However, the Chamber did not find any evidence to demonstrate that these constant references to the historic genocide against Serbs were used to call on the Bosnian Serbs to do the same. The Chamber therefore finds that while these statements had the effect of identifying the historic enemies of the Bosnian Serbs and furthering the objective of ethnic separation, they do not demonstrate that the only reasonable inference is that the Bosnian Serb leadership intended to physically destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in order to achieve these aims.

2599. While there were certainly highly inflammatory speeches and statements in which the President and other alleged members of the Overarching JCE spoke about the “disappearance”, “annihilation”, “vanish[ing]”, “elimination”, and “extinction” of the Bosnian Muslims, the Chamber has considered these statements in the full context in which they were delivered and not in isolation.⁸⁷⁰³ The Chamber finds that the early speeches which contained this kind of rhetoric were delivered mainly as a warning that Bosnian Muslims should not pursue a path to independence which was contrary to the Bosnian Serb interests, and as a threat that if they did do so there would be war which would lead to severe bloodshed. The Chamber also recalls that some of the statements made by the President himself reflected how angry he was about the proposed moves towards the independence of BiH, which would lead to violence if Bosnian Serb demands were not met.⁸⁷⁰⁴ The Chamber finds that when the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership issued these threats they envisaged that any attempt to circumvent the interests of the Bosnian Serbs would result in chaos and extreme violence. (#Not threats, a warnings#. If there was no a WWII experience, and the most recent experience from Croatia in a civil war, again it wouldn't be a threat, but warning! Who is the institution that could impose an illegal solution of any nation? Why it is understood in the Tribunal that the Serbs didn't have any rights to reject the solutions that turned them into a second class citizens, on an unlawful basis? The UN Court should be more cotious in pursuing such a views!#Denied right for political life#!)

The record shows that the Bosnian Serbs were prepared to use force and violence against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in order to achieve their objectives and assert their historic territorial claims. However, in light of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber is not convinced that the only reasonable inference to draw from these statements is that the respective speakers intended to physically destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups.

2600. For example, the Chamber recalls its finding that in the President's speech in October 1991 to the SRBiH Assembly in which he spoke about a "highway of hell", he issued very specific threats about what would happen if the Bosnian Muslims continued to pursue the path of independence and ignored the will of the Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁷⁰⁵ (In the very same speech there is evidence that it hadn't been a threat, but a #warning and begging# to stop pursuing a war policy!) The Chamber finds that the President was clearly threatening war if the Bosnian Serb interests were ignored, and that he also envisaged that such a war would be "hell" and that the Bosnian Muslims would be unable to defend themselves in such a scenario. The Chamber finds that through this speech the President intended to threaten the Bosnian Muslims against pursuing independence for BiH and that he was fully aware that a potential conflict would be extremely violent. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that the only reasonable inference is that this statement demonstrates that the President intended to physically destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim group .
2601. Another example is the speech the President delivered in July 1992 before the Bosnian Serb Assembly where he said that the conflict had been "roused in order to eliminate the Muslims [...] They think they are being nationally established, but in fact they are vanishing".⁸⁷⁰⁶ The Prosecution refers to this statement as evidence that the President was preparing his followers for the use of destructive force.⁸⁷⁰⁷ However, the Chamber also notes that right after making this statement, the President went on to say: "I think we have to save the Serb people in their ethnic and also historical territories [...]. We'll have for sure, we'll have in the beginning so many Serbs, but I think that they will leave those states, both the Muslim and the Croat state. In the state that we are building, we have to ensure that they have all the rights that we have, under the condition that they are not hostile and that they leave the weapons".⁸⁷⁰⁸ When read in the full context, the Chamber is not satisfied that the President's statement at the Bosnian Serb Assembly demonstrates that he intended to physically destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups.
2602. Similarly, the Chamber considers that while Šešelj, Plavšić, and Koljević sometimes delivered highly inflammatory and violent statements,⁸⁷⁰⁹ the evidence before the Chamber does not lead to the conclusion that the only reasonable inference was that they intended to physically destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups.
2603. With respect to an order of 10 April 1994 in which Mladić is quoted as encouraging VRS operations because "The [t]urks must disappear from these areas", the Chamber notes that the area covered by this order is not related to the Count 1 Municipalities.⁸⁷¹⁰ In any event, the Chamber also notes Michael Rose’s testimony with regard to this order, namely that he and other international representatives had thought that the objective of the combat operations in Goražde was to move the Bosnian Muslims out of the right bank of the town and therefore he suspected the reference in the order to “[t]he Turks must disappear from these areas” to mean just that: the removal—not the destruction—of the Bosnian Muslim population in those areas.⁸⁷¹¹ The Chamber also noted statements made by Mladić at the Bosnian Serb Assembly where he stated that their enemies should be eliminated but later stated that there are ways of neutralising the Muslims which do not mean that they have to be expelled or drowned.⁸⁷¹² The Chamber therefore considers that, while the evidence clearly evinces the intent to separate and move Bosnian Muslims out of Bosnian Serb claimed territory, it is not satisfied that the only reasonable inference is that Mladić intended to destroy a part of that group in the process.

2604. In relation to the 20 September 1994 entry in Mladić’s diary, in which Slobodan Milošević stated that he opposed the view of Krajišnik to “kill off all the Muslims and Croats”,⁸⁷¹³ the Chamber notes that it has very limited information about when or in which context Krajišnik expressed this sentiment, and therefore, that it is of low probative value. The Chamber is therefore not satisfied that the only reasonable inference is that this demonstrates intent to destroy a part of either of the protected groups.

2605. The Chamber has also analysed the totality of the evidence relating to the statements, speeches, and actions of the Accused and the named members of the alleged Overarching JCE. The Chamber has characterised each of these statements and reached a conclusion about what they meant and what they showed in terms of intent. In conducting that assessment, the Chamber did not simply look at these statements in isolation, but also had regard to their meaning in the context of the totality of the evidence on the record. (#That happened too rarely! The #context# of the totality of evidence is needed, but the context of events is more substantial. To estimate a solitary event or even a sentence of some unofficial persons without #context of events# is unfair and manipulative!) As has been discussed in this section, the Chamber has found that these statements, speeches, and actions were consistent with the Bosnian Serb objective of ethnic separation and the forceful creation of an ethnically homogenous state. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that this evidence—even when considered in the context of the pattern of crimes found to have been committed in the Count 1 Municipalities as will be detailed below—allows the Chamber to conclude that the Accused or the named members of the alleged Overarching JCE had genocidal intent for the purposes of Count 1. In other words, the evidence does not support a conclusion that the only reasonable inference is that the President or any of the alleged members of the Overarching JCE had the intent to physically destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or the Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such.

Evidence of genocidal intent of Bosnian Serbs not named as alleged members of the Overarching JCE

2606. In relation to the intent of the Accused’s “followers”, the Prosecution refers to what it coins as a threat by Miroslav Deronjić that the Muslims of Bratunac would disappear.⁸⁷¹⁴ (A #trivial lie#, repetition of the part of President’s speech of 15 October 91!) At a meeting between SDS and SDA representatives in early April 1992, Deronjić reiterated that the police should be divided into separate Bosnian Serb and Bosnian Muslim units and when the SDA representatives opposed the idea, fearing it would lead to further tensions, Deronjić threatened that if they did not comply, “Muslims would disappear”.⁸⁷¹⁵ He went on to say that the division would be the best way for the Bosnian Muslims to prevent violence breaking out.⁸⁷¹⁶ (#EXCULPATORY!#) In the context of negotiations at the republic and the municipal levels to divide the police into separate entities,⁸⁷¹⁷ the Chamber considers that, in the statement above, Deronjić clearly intended to intimidate the SDA representatives and coerce them into accepting the division. However, the Chamber is not satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from this statement is that Deronjić possessed genocidal intent. (#For heaven’s sake, in early April 1992 there was a Lisbon agreement in furtherance of the #ICFY results from 1991, which all envisaged# the separate police forces! The Chamber #denied the Serb rights on political life#!)

2607. The Prosecution also refers to a speech made before the Bosnian Serb Assembly in July 1992 by Miladin Nedić, member of the SDS Main Board and representative at the Bosnian Serb Assembly, which the Prosecution coins as “the executioners’ speech”.⁸⁷¹⁸ The President, on the contrary, refers to Nedić’s evidence that this particular statement must be understood in light of his later address during the same session.⁸⁷¹⁹ During his first address to the 17th Bosnian Serb Assembly session, Nedić stated the following

I am against solving the situation in Bosnia in haste, we must admit that the Muslims have been planted to us as a people whose executioners we are to be. I do not want the Serb people to be executioners but I am also against us giving up our state, our land and our territory.[...] Therefore we should not hurry, because we are a people who have been determined to be executioners and to do someone a favour.⁸⁷²⁰

2608. Nedić testified that the essence of his statement was that he was advocating a peaceful solution to avoid the war.⁸⁷²¹ The Chamber notes that Nedić indeed described the Serb people as having been called upon to be the executioners of the Muslims. However, it also notes that he immediately stated: “I am against any defined borders while people are getting killed”.⁸⁷²² Furthermore, later in the session, during a second address, Nedić reiterated that he opposed any discussion on the definition of borders and advocated the following:

Let us leave the time to solve that, but I am not for waging a war in order to enslave some and us to become oppressors. Let us treat the soldiers in accordance with military codes, let us not kill women and children for wearing dimijas. [...] I told a colonel that I am for a knightly warfare and not for genocide.⁸⁷²³ (#EXCULPATORY!#)

2609. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution refers to later statements made by Nedić before the Bosnian Serb Assembly, which it claims contradicts Nedić’s evidence that he was advocating peace.⁸⁷²⁴ Having considered these statements, the Chamber finds that they show Nedić's exasperation with the position of the Bosnian Muslims during negotiations and his wish that peace be established; albeit solely under the conditions established by the Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁷²⁵ 2610. In light of the above, the Chamber is not satisfied that the only reasonable inference that can be drawn from Nedić's statement at the 17th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly is that he possessed the intent to destroy a part of the Bosnian Muslim group as such.

2611. The Chamber notes that these are merely examples referred to by the Prosecution to show genocidal intent of the "President's followers" but that the Chamber conducted its own assessment of the remainder of the trial record to examine whether there was genocidal intent towards the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such, on the part of Bosnian Serbs not named as alleged Overarching JCE members.

2612. In light of the above and having assessed the entire trial record, including the pattern of crimes described below,⁸⁷²⁶ the Chamber is not satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the only reasonable inference that can be drawn from the facts and circumstances is that Bosnian Serbs not named as alleged Overarching JCE members possessed the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or the Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such.

⁸⁷²⁶ See paras. 2614–2615.

2613. The Chamber examined the record to assess whether there was evidence of genocidal intent by the perpetrators of the above acts in relation to the Count 1 Municipalities. In relation to Count 3, the Chamber found that victims of crimes during the take-overs of the Count 1 Municipalities and in detention facilities in those municipalities were targeted solely on the basis that they were Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁸⁷²⁷ This led the Chamber to find that the said crimes were committed with discriminatory intent.⁸⁷²⁸ The Chamber is not satisfied, however, that there is evidence establishing, beyond reasonable doubt, that the perpetrators of these crimes possessed intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such.

(5.)Evidence of genocidal intent through the pattern of crimes

2467. The Chamber will now examine whether the pattern of crimes in the Count 1 Municipalities, as considered in light of the whole trial record, satisfies the Chamber that the only reasonable inference that could be drawn from the facts and circumstances was that the acts described above in the Count 1 Municipalities were committed with genocidal intent.

2468. The Chamber recalls a few key factual findings made above in relation to each of the Count 1 Municipalities, first in relation to eastern BiH (Zvornik, Foča, Bratunac, and Vlasenica) before turning to the ARK (Ključ, Prijedor, and Sanski Most).

2470. In Foča, steps towards the creation of separate Serb institutions were taken starting at the end of 1991.⁸⁷³⁸ The town was taken over by Serb Forces in early April 1992.⁸⁷³⁹ During and after the take-over, Bosnian Muslim houses were looted and destroyed and Bosnian Muslim inhabitants left.⁸⁷⁴⁰ Then, ensued a period of large-scale arrests of non-Serb men who were taken to detention facilities throughout the municipality and of restrictions on the Bosnian Muslim population.⁸⁷⁴¹ The Chamber found that Bosnian Muslim civilians were killed either during attacks on villages throughout the municipality or in detention facilities.⁸⁷⁴² In the detention facilities, detainees were held in terrible conditions; they were also mistreated and subjected to rape and acts of sexual violence.⁸⁷⁴³ The Chamber also found that two mosques were destroyed by Serb Forces between April and August 1992.⁸⁷⁴⁴ Finally, the Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave Foča and that by mid-August 1992, there were almost no Bosnian Muslim left in Foča.⁸⁷⁴⁵

2471. In Bratunac, the Chamber made findings that at the end of 1991 and the beginning of 1992, preparations were made to divide municipal structures and create separate Serb institutions.⁸⁷⁴⁶ On or about 17 April 1992, Serb Forces entered the town.⁸⁷⁴⁷ From then on, Bosnian Muslim houses were searched and looted,⁸⁷⁴⁸ Bosnian Muslims were dismissed from their jobs,⁸⁷⁴⁹ Bosnian Serb refugees settled in the homes of Bosnian Muslims who had left,⁸⁷⁵⁰ and mosques and other Muslim monuments were destroyed.⁸⁷⁵¹ In the days following the attack on the town, surrounding Bosnian Muslim villages were attacked by Serb Forces; during the course of these attacks, houses were looted and burned, and villagers were told to leave.⁸⁷⁵² Bosnian Muslims were also killed by Serb Forces in these villages.⁸⁷⁵³ From May 1992, hundreds of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were rounded up from their homes and detained in facilities throughout Bratunac, where they were subjected to severe mistreatment and held in cramped condition; some detainees died.⁸⁷⁵⁴ In these detention facilities, prominent Bosnian Muslims intellectuals were targeted.⁸⁷⁵⁵ The Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave Bratunac and that by the end of June 1992, very few remained in the town.⁸⁷⁵⁶

2472. In Vlasenica, measures were adopted to divide municipal institutions and create Serb organs at the end of 1991 and the beginning of 1992.⁸⁷⁵⁷ Serb Forces took over Vlasenica on or about 21 April 1992.⁸⁷⁵⁸ After the take-over, the movement of Bosnian Muslims was restricted and they were dismissed from their jobs.⁸⁷⁵⁹ They were arrested and interrogated.⁸⁷⁶⁰ During the course of the take-over of villages within the municipality, Bosnian Muslim houses were set on fire.⁸⁷⁶¹ Bosnian Muslims were also killed during the course of these attacks.⁸⁷⁶² There were a number of detention facilities in Vlasenica; there, Bosnian Muslims were detained, held in appalling conditions, beaten, raped, and some were killed.⁸⁷⁶³ The Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave Vlasenica in 1992 and early 1993 and that by then there were very few Bosnian Muslims left in Vlasenica town.⁸⁷⁶⁴

2620. In Prijedor, measures were also taken for the division of municipal organs and the establishment of Serb institutions at the end of 1991 and the beginning of 1992.⁸⁷⁶⁵ At this time, propaganda in the municipality against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats was common.⁸⁷⁶⁶ The town of Prijedor was taken over on 30 April 1992 by Serb Forces.⁸⁷⁶⁷ After the take-over, non-Serbs were dismissed from the workforce and their houses were searched and looted.⁸⁷⁶⁸ About a month later, villages in the predominantly Muslim areas of Kozarac and Brdo, as well as in Briševo were attacked by Serb Forces; villages were shelled, set ablaze, and for the most part destroyed.⁸⁷⁶⁹ During the course of these attacks, Bosnian Muslims and Croats were killed.⁸⁷⁷⁰ Thousands of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were detained in detention facilities in Prijedor.⁸⁷⁷¹ The Chambers has made findings that the conditions in these detention facilities were, in general, abysmal, that detainees were subjected to frequent and severe beatings, rape and other acts of sexual violence, and that some were killed.⁸⁷⁷² In Prijedor, 17 mosques and two Catholic churches were heavily damaged, almost destroyed, or completely destroyed by Serb Forces.⁸⁷⁷³ The Chamber found that following the attacks on towns and villages in Prijedor between late May and end of July 1992, the non-Serb population was expelled from the municipality.⁸⁷⁷⁴ As detention facilities were closed in Prijedor, detainees held there were transferred around the municipality as well as to camps outside of the municipality and ultimately often to third countries.⁸⁷⁷⁵ The Chamber found by 1995, the population of Prijedor municipality consisted of approximately 92% Bosnian Serbs, 5% Bosnian Muslims, and 1% Bosnian Croats.⁸⁷⁷⁶

2621. In Sanski Most, Serb municipal organs were only established in early April 1992.⁸⁷⁷⁷ Bosnian Muslim neighbourhoods and villages were attacked on 25 May 1992.⁸⁷⁷⁸ Houses were destroyed and individuals were captured.⁸⁷⁷⁹ Thereafter, Bosnian Muslims were dismissed from their work and Bosnian Croat and Muslim political leaders were arrested.⁸⁷⁸⁰ Bosnian Muslims and Croats were killed.⁸⁷⁸¹ After military operations against Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat villages in Sanski Most, soldiers collected the able-bodied military-aged men from the village and transferred them by bus to Sanski Most town.⁸⁷⁸² Over a thousand individuals were thus detained in detention facilities throughout the municipality in poor conditions; they were beaten and some were also killed.⁸⁷⁸³ The Chamber also found that at least 16 mosques and the town Catholic church were heavily damaged, almost destroyed or completely destroyed by Serb Forces between May and December 1992.⁸⁷⁸⁴ The Chamber also found that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Sanski Most were forced to leave and that by February 1995, the population of Sanski Most municipality was approximately 3,350 Bosnian Muslims, 1,050 Bosnian Croats, and 33,600 Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁷⁸⁵

2622. In Ključ, preparations to establish separate Serb institutions started at the end of 1991.⁸⁷⁸⁶ Violence intensified in March 1992 and the town was taken over in early May 1992.⁸⁷⁸⁷ After the take-over, Bosnian Muslims were expelled from the police, administrative organs, and the workforce.⁸⁷⁸⁸ A large number of Bosnian Muslim houses were destroyed and Bosnian Muslims were killed during the course or after attacks on villages.⁸⁷⁸⁹ Other Bosnian Muslims from Ključ were rounded up and detained in facilities throughout the municipality, where they were subjected to mental abuse and physical mistreatment.⁸⁷⁹⁰ The Chamber found that eight mosques were destroyed by Serb Forces between May and August 1992.⁸⁷⁹¹ The Chamber also found that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forced to leave Ključ and that by 1995, only 1,200 of Ključ's original 17,000 Bosnian Muslims remained.⁸⁷⁹²

2623. As summarised above, the Chamber's findings in relation to the Count 1 Municipalities show a clear pattern of widespread intimidation, violence, killings, and expulsions targeted at the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, for the most part of 1992 and, in some instances, into 1993. The Chamber has already found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat population of BiH, demonstrated by the existence of a campaign of co-ordinated violence during the take-overs and in the detention facilities.⁸⁷⁹³ Further, the acts which the Chamber has determined herein to constitute acts under Article 4(2) of the Statute were found to have targeted their victims solely on the basis of their ethnicity and were therefore found to constitute persecution.⁸⁷⁹⁴ This campaign of violence resulted in the Serb-claimed territories of the Count 1 Municipalities being cleared of the overwhelming majority of their Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat populations, as most had left by the end of 1992 and into 1993. (The Muslim-Croat coalition was as #twice more numerous as the Serb side#, and how the Serb side could have intimidate already intimidated Serb minority? Also, the #genocide against the Serb# people during the WWII shouldn't be contested by a decent institution as the UN, to the same degree as it shouldn't be contested that there was the Jasenovac camp, paralelly with the Auschwitz and other dreadful places, created to exterminate the Jews, but also the Serbs and others. Presenting and depicting the Serb side in BiH as a superior and aggressive is a grave mistake equal to a crime in WWII against the Serbs and Jews! This kind of stigmatisation, fortunately, ceased in the Jewish case, but not against the Serbs! The Wiesenthal Centre made a statement, and it was presented in the court room: Jasenovac was the largest concentration camp in Croatia. Between 1941 and 1945, over 600 000 were murdered there: the Serbs, the Jews (around 30.000), and the Gypsies." The Wiesenthal Centre, <http://motlc.wiesenthal.com> Or another Wiesenthal Centre assertion, depicted in the courtroom: The Ustashe were a Croatian nationalistic and terrorist organization. Their hatred toward the Jews could have been surpassed only by their hatred toward the Serbs. After the creation of the Croatian puppet state by Hitler in 1941, the Ustashe terrorists had murdered over 500.000 Serbs, expelled over 250.000 and forcibly converted 250.000 to Catholicism. The Wiesenthal Centre, <http://motlc.wiesenthal.com>. Even a Nazi dignitaries had been astonished with the treatment of the Serbs in Jasenivas, as shown in the court room: The terrible deeds were committed by the Ustashe in Croatia against the Serbs. The Ustashe groups had committed their horrendous acts especially against the elderly, women and children, in the most atrocious ways. The estimation of about 300.000 Orthodox Christian individuals, whom the Ustashe had butchered and tortured with their sadistic methods, must be taken into account. Letter of the Chief of Germany's Secret Police, Turner, addressed to Heinrich Himmler, February 17th, 1942. Until midd February 1942, for the ten months of the war, the Ustasha's Croatia had already killed around 300,000 Serbs! Now, the UN and it's Court owe the Defense and the entire Serbian people a #great apology#, for distorting this well known fact. At the same time, the Chamber made an additional burden to the Defense, to spend a limited sources on this #“fighting a wind-mills”#. Unseen and unbelievable!)

2624. This pattern of crimes in the Count 1 Municipalities is illustrated by the commission of dreadful crimes, namely crimes against humanity and violations of the law or customs of war, against the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats on a widespread scale. As a result, many Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Count 1 Municipalities, including some prominent members of that group, were subjected to the acts described above. (Certainly, it is regrettable, but it can not be #reduced to their ethnic or religious affiliation#. All of those names of the “prominent members of that group” had been registered in the intelligence reports as a very “prominent” in the preparations for war, which caused many innocent Serb victims. Still there is no answer to the crucial question: why only several, less than 5% of the non-Serb population had some troubles with the Serb Army and Police, and why only one or two individuals out of thousand had been killed in the detention facilities? A mere answer to these questions would shed a light on the entire war, at least one half of it. When the Muslim conduct would be depicted, just for an understanding, not for justification of the Serb conduct, then it would be a complete picture, the “whole truth”!) The Chamber found that the scale and extent of the expulsions and movement of the civilians from the Municipalities, including the Count 1 Municipalities, resulted in the displacement of a vast number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and in drastic changes to the ethnic composition of towns with almost no Bosnian Muslim remaining there.⁸⁷⁹⁵ As recalled above, by early 1993, practically all of the Bosnian Muslims had been moved out of Serb held territory in the Count 1 Municipalities. (This is #far from being true#! There was no any census of population, there were some assumptions. But, it was established that even in 1994 there was so many Muslims in Prijedor. After a carnage of the six Serb policemen by the Muslims, many of them wanted to leave, and the President went through a presser by the UN and humanitarian organisations to allow a daily rate of 80 trucks full of emigres to cross to Croatia. In Sanski Most there was 12,000 Muslims till the end of war. Not to mention so many municipalities where there was no armed conflicts at all!) The total number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats displaced—especially when examined in light of the portion of the groups of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats allegedly targeted for destruction in the Count 1 Municipalities through the commission of the acts under Article 4(2) of the Statute identified above as well as the fact that Serb Forces exercised control over these territories—does not satisfy the Chamber that the only reasonable inference is that there existed an intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such. Rather, the Chamber considers that a reasonable inference to be drawn from the pattern described above is that the intent behind those crimes was to ensure the removal of members of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from the Count 1 Municipalities.

2625. In assessing this pattern of crimes also in the context of its findings on the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership, including the President,⁸⁷⁹⁶ the Chamber recalls that their objective was to create an ethnically pure Bosnian Serb state as well as contiguous Serb areas, which would require a redistribution—rather than the physical destruction—of the population.⁸⁷⁹⁷ (This is as wrong as many other findings. First of all, the Serb side accepted the Lisbon Agreement in a good faith, and the Agreement didn’t comprise the territorial continuity of the Serb territory, because there was no a war, and the #model of Switzerland#, proposed by the President, was possible to implement; second, even when the war broke out, the continuity was not an imperative, see: P941, p. 1 of 26 August 1992:

1. Secretary Vance welcomed Dr Karadzic to the Conference. He said it was time to bring the fighting to a halt and begin serious negotiations. Dr Karadzic said that the Serbs were willing to negotiate. Regrettably the Muslims had always negotiated in bad faith. The Muslims had accepted the 18 March principles but had now reneged on them. They were only interested in a Muslim state. Earlier in the year he had urged the international community not to recognise Bosnia. After recognition, the Serbs had been forced to act in order to protect the Serbian population. The Serbs were willing to return territory and were content to remain part of Bosnia and Hercegovina within the existing boundaries. But the Serbian people of Bosnia wanted full autonomy from the Muslims and Croats.

2. Secretary Vance asked which areas Dr Karadzic considered to be Serbian land. Dr Karadzic said it was difficult to discuss which areas could be handed back. To do so would frighten the Serbian people in these places. He was willing to talk about giving back territory as part of an overall agreement. But any such agreement would also have to protect Serbian property rights in Muslim and Croat areas. Dr. Koljevic said it was clearly in the interests of the Serbs to return land in exchange for full political autonomy. Dr Karadzic said that the precise amount of land that may be returned had not been decided. But the total would be substantial. As far as Sarajevo was concerned, he favoured using the administration of Brussels as a model. The Serbian municipalities would be part of the Serbian constituent unit. Secretary Vance asked how this apparent will to talk about constituent units was compatible with ethnic cleansing. Dr Karadzic said that all sides had practised cleansing over many years. It was imperative for the overall agreement to allow all refugees to return.

And this was #the most official position#, and the only relevant one, because it was the President's commitment to the chairmen of the Conference on Yugoslavia. The thesis that the Serbs "could not live with anyone else" is wrong, and it would be a very malicious if it was not a linguistic problem. It always pertained to the autonomy, and as the Accused said on 12 May 92, it was a matter of a "state separation", not ethnic separation! There was no problem in living with the ordinary people, but the problem were the common institutions abused by the Islamic fundamentalists on account of the Serbs (and Croats) and a repeating this floscula about ethnic separation is deeply incorrect, since the President literally said: "#a state separation"#. ; Bosnian Serbs promoted the idea that they could not live with anyone else and therefore that BiH had to be divided along ethnic lines.⁸⁷⁹⁸ The results on the ground, including in the Count 1 Municipalities, were consistent with these goals. (#Why not in all and every municipality#? Why it didn't happen in municipalities in which the Muslim terrorists didn't initiate fightings? Since these municipalities are more numerous than those with the armed skirmishes, the peaceful municipalities were a rule, and embattled municipalities were an exception!) As an example that this pattern of crimes is consistent with the Bosnian Serb leadership's intent to create ethnically pure territories through the removal of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, (This is one of the most incorrect myths in this Tribunal. It had never been proven that the Serbs wanted to create ethnically pure territories. On the contrary, there are many proofs and evidence in the file on the opposite attitude of the Serb side, see @@@ the Chamber refers to the President's speech at the 37th Bosnian Serb Assembly in 1994 where he congratulates Foča, then renamed as Srbinje, for being "a true Serbian town" as well as to the broadcast in which he announced that Bosnian Muslims have given up on Foča in their negotiations.⁸⁷⁹⁹ (#Serb parts only#! Foca had never been entirely under the Serb control. A half of municipality was under the Muslim control See first para 2810 of the Judgement: 2810. When the President visited Foča to open a medical school, he gave a speech in which he said that he was "satisfied and happy that Foča has been preserved" and it was important for the citizens to know that the Bosnian Muslims had given up on Foča in negotiations. ("Foca had been preserved" is what the President said, and he never said that Foca was "a true Serbian town”. Further, Foca was aimed to be a fundamentalist centre in Europe, with the most militant education of future terrorists, so called “white Al Qaeda” no matter the Serbs had been about 50% of population, while in the Foca town itself the Serbs were majority. Instead of accepting the ongoing negotiations on the two municipalities, including the urban area, the Muslims started the war, and lost the urban area, but kept majority of their villages and a town Ustikolina, which is their municipality of Foca to those days! What is quoted here was a part of the President’s tries to persuade the deputies to accept a peace and standstill to the fights, and as usually the Prosecution is abusing the President’s political speeches!) When seen in this context, the Chamber is not satisfied that the only reasonable inference that can be drawn from the pattern of crimes described above is that there existed intent to destroy the parts of the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such.

⁸⁷⁹⁹ See paras. 2810–2811.

(6) Conclusion

2626. Having reviewed all of the evidence on the record, for the purpose of Count 1, the Chamber is not satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the acts under Article 4(2) identified above in the Count 1 Municipalities were committed with genocidal intent. Further, it is not convinced that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the evidence is that named members of the alleged Overarching JCE, including the President, other Bosnian Serbs not named as alleged members of the Overarching JCE, or physical perpetrators possessed such intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such.

3. Overarching JCE and the Accused’s responsibility

2627. The Chamber recalls that with respect to the Overarching JCE, the Prosecution alleges that from at least October 1991 to 30 November 1995, the President participated in an “overarching” JCE, the objective of which was to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory in BiH.⁸⁸⁰⁰

2628. The named individuals who are alleged to have been members of the Overarching JCE and to have acted in concert with the President are Krajišnik, Mladić, Slobodan Milošević, Plavšić, Koljević, Mićo Stanišić, Mandić, Jovica Stanišić, Franko Simatović, Arkan, and Šešelj.⁸⁸⁰¹

2629. In addition, the Prosecution alleges that other members of the Overarching JCE included members and leaders of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and commanders, senior officers, chiefs of the Serbian MUP, JNA, VJ, VRS, RS MUP, Bosnian Serb TO, and leaders of Bosnian Serb paramilitary forces and volunteer units.⁸⁸⁰² In the alternative, the Prosecution alleges that some or all of these individuals were not members of the Overarching JCE, but were used by members of the Overarching JCE to carry out the crimes committed in furtherance of its objective.⁸⁸⁰³

2630. The Prosecution alleges that the objective of the Overarching JCE was achieved through the commission of the crimes of genocide, persecution, extermination, murder, deportation, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer).⁸⁸⁰⁴ The Prosecution charges the President with the first and the third form of

JCE in relation to the Overarching JCE.⁸⁸⁰⁵ It primarily argues that the President shared the intent for the commission of each of these crimes with other members of the Overarching JCE.⁸⁸⁰⁶ Alternatively, the Prosecution argues that the shared objective of the Overarching JCE included at least the crimes of deportation and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) and that for the remaining crimes the President is responsible as it was foreseeable that the remaining crimes might be perpetrated in order to carry out the actus reus of the crimes which formed part of the shared objective.⁸⁸⁰⁷

2631. The Prosecution alleges that members of the Overarching JCE implemented its objective by personally committing crimes, and/or by using others to carry out crimes in furtherance of its objective.⁸⁸⁰⁸ Those alleged to have been used by members of the Overarching JCE to carry out these crimes were members of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and members of the Serb Forces.⁸⁸⁰⁹

2632. The Prosecution lists ten ways in which it alleges the President significantly contributed to the objective of the Overarching JCE.⁸⁸¹⁰

2633. The Chamber will consider the evidence presented with respect to (i) the objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership; (ii) the President's authority over Bosnian Serb political and governmental structures; (iii) the President's authority over Serb Forces; (iv) the knowledge and acts of named alleged members of the Overarching JCE; and (v) the President's knowledge of crimes and measures taken to prevent and punish crimes in the Municipalities. The Chamber will analyse this evidence to determine whether the Overarching JCE existed, and if so, when it came into existence, what was its common purpose, and whether a plurality of persons, including the President, shared and acted pursuant to that common purpose. The Chamber will then analyse whether or not the President significantly contributed to the alleged Overarching JCE and which crimes if any were intended or, alternatively, whether any of the alleged crimes were foreseeable in the implementation of the objective of the Overarching JCE.

i. Objectives of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership

(A) Unity of the Serb people and promotion of Serb interests

What a horrible crime! What is illegal and unacceptable in it? The foreign court doesn't know what the inter-Serb divisions and rifts means, but it was presented to the Chamber, and should be at least explained why it is rejected! The main issue was the ideological rift at the beginning of the WWII, when a substantive part of the Serb nation accepted the communist ideology and fought more against the royalist army than against the occupiers, Germans and Italians! After the WWII the number of the Serb victims was contested by some internationals, and Germany enjoyed pointing out that the majority of the casualties was caused by the Croat – Muslim nazi alliance against the Serbs, and on the second place it was assumed that the Serbs royalists and Serbs communists caused many casualties! So, the Serb unity is already a myth, and pertains only to the ideological rift! And this in no way could be a crime!

(1) Analysis of evidence

2634. In the period leading up to the start of the conflict, the President made statements calling for the unity of the Serb people and the promotion of Serb interests. These are discussed below.

2635. The Chamber recalls that the SDS was established on 12 July 1990, and the President as president of the party stated that the objectives of the SDS included “a federative Yugoslavia, and in it an equal federal Bosnia and Herzegovina”.⁸⁸¹¹ During this speech he also spoke about how decades of “single-party rule have intensely disturbed the natural development of the Serbian nation”.⁸⁸¹² In addition, he spoke about how “Serbian entities” in BiH had been broken down and had been left in an inferior “economic, demographic and political position”.⁸⁸¹³ [This is a political position that in no way insulted others, nor was aggressive, nor pledged for any action except for a unity in the struggle for democracy and the multiparty system, particularly in terms of the old ideological rift between the royalists and communists. Anything else what would be added to this interpretation is incorrect and mean. Also, we have all evidence that the Serbian municipalities had been retarded in its development, and it was easy to prove. THE CHAMBER DIDN'T EXPLORE #WHAT KIND OF UNITY# OF THE SERBIAN PEOPLE WAS ADVOCATED BY THE PRESIDENT, ALTHOUGH IT WAS SAID MANY TIMES! But as if anything that the Defense submitted didn't matter!]

2636. On 13 October 1990, in a speech before Serb representatives in Banja Luka, the President expressed his view that the “Serbian nation” was united and spoke of his fear that BiH would set its course to separate from Yugoslavia and that the Serbs would be separated from Serbia and be a national minority.⁸⁸¹⁴ (So what? BiH couldn't become independent without the consent of all the three constituent nations. But, in ruining Yugoslavia everything was permitted, unlike in Spain with Katalonia or elsewhere! This is #exclusive responsibility of the West and the United Nations#, and one day it is going to be recognised!) The President also said “[w]hether a greater Croatia or greater Bosnia and Herzegovina as some kind of independent state, separate from Yugoslavia, they are equally unfavourable for us, the Serbs. [...] The Serbian people of Bosnia and Herzegovina will not abandon its demands to live in a state which also includes its main country, the country of Serbia”.⁸⁸¹⁵ In the same speech, the President spoke about changes to “the essence of the borders, the quality and nature of our internal borders. So the administrative lines which are supposed to join us have been transformed, or will soon be transformed into firm state borders which separate us. (Which was a #drastic violation of the Helsinki Agreement# on non-violation of international borders without consent of all in these boundaries!) [...] They would like to chop the Serbian nation up in pieces against its will.”⁸⁸¹⁶ The President also expressed his concern regarding the collapse of Yugoslavia “into the abyss” and warned that the Bosnian Serbs would take any threat of civil war seriously.⁸⁸¹⁷ It is now a moment to comment this. First of all, taking into consideration this #political speeches#, the Chamber entered into the constitutional matters, and therefore can not leave the mentioned speeches without establishing whether it was unjustified, aggressive, senseless and finally – illegal and criminal.

1. Was the President entitled to make such a political speech, particularly since his the only post was the President of the political party?
2. Was he right concerning his worries that Bosnia might go towards the secession, thus turning a sovreign and constituent Serbs into a national minority against their will.
3. Did the Serbs have any #experience with the independent Croatia and Bosnia#, and whether they did have any reason to fear about this course of events.
4. Did the Serbs, demanding to maintain the situation of living in the same state with their other Serbs, demanded some changes of the existing order that would violate anyones rights, or they just called on their right that they already havbe enjoyed.
5. Was the President wrong saying that our internal, administrative borders are tried to be turned into a hard interstate borders, which would partition the Serb (as well as the others) into several states, making them a national minorities, and was it an #anti-Constitutional action#?
6. Was the Chamber aware that at that moment there was an electoral victory of the HDZ in Croatia, with the anounced rehabilitation of the Ustasha's NDH, (Independent State of Croatia) which was a Hitler's ally. Was the Chamber curious who mentioned "civil war threats, and why the President warned that the Serbs must take such a threats seriously? #Hitler allies again#!)
7. Was it clear to the Prosecution-Chamber alliance that in Sarajevo there already was an alliance of the SDA, founded by the Hitler's allies, and the HDZ from Croatia. The last such a coalition caused more that 700,000 Serb, Jew and Gipsy victims during the WWII?)

At this same meeting, Koljević identified the purpose of establishing the SDS as a means of expressing the national objective of the Bosnian Serbs, which was "a federative Yugoslavia and for the Serbs to be able to survive [...] in that Yugoslavia and for all the other peoples to be able to survive together".⁸⁸¹⁸ #EXCULPATORY#! Koljević also emphasised that the SDS was formed in "response to the new situation which has arisen and which we will not and must not tolerate" and that they should not remain unprepared.⁸⁸¹⁹ In this same speech Koljević called on the other national parties in BiH to think about "what the partition of a confederal Yugoslavia means and for them not to push us into another civil war".⁸⁸²⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! what was wrong in this Koljević's speech? If the Chamber wasn't interested in what was the "new situation which has arisen and which we will not and must not tolerate" dr. Koljević was talking about, it could explore through the file, and would find out that the new authorities in Croatia are returning to the fascist rhetoric and insignias: "It was extremely provocative for the Serbs in Croatia that Tudjman's Government had adopted the Independent Croatian (NHD) flag with the same symbol used by Paveli}, the red and white checkerboard" David Owen, "Balkan Odyssey", pg.100

2638. In an interview in November 1990, the Accused discussed the possibility of Serbs being outvoted in the BiH Assembly and predicted that if that happened "all conditions for a civil war would be in place, because the Serbs in BiH are no longer helpless, but very powerful and united".⁸⁸²¹ The Accused stated that he did not think civil war would happen "because the Serbs won't start the skirmish first and others are afraid to. No one has reason to fear the Serbs if they have no misdeeds against them”.⁸⁸²² The President further stated that “under no circumstances will Serbs accept to live in several independent states, and to become a national minority everywhere outside Serbia. The Serbs will stay in one state – Federative Yugoslavia” and would not be separated from Serbia.⁸⁸²³ (The outvoting itself is not necessarily a cause for an alarm, but if it is an outvoting on the #constitutional issues#, and issues pertaining to the equality on nations, neglecting the provision about two third majority, then it is the #most serious violation of the Constitution.#)

2639. The Accused also indicated that the political life of Bosnian Serbs “had been fully revived and established”, which was the main purpose of setting up the SDS, and that in all places where Serbs lived they had set up municipal organisations with municipal and local boards.⁸⁸²⁴ He spoke about how the SDS had become the party of all Serbs and there was now “only a unified Serbian people”.⁸⁸²⁵ These statements were made before the first multi-party elections, which the Chamber recalls were held in BiH on 18 November 1990.⁸⁸²⁶ (Again, the Chamber erred by not establishing #what kind of unity# the President spoke. The Serbs were the only Yugoslav nation that during the WWII had been sharply divided within itself: about one quarter were the communists and revolutionary, who fought more against the monarchy than against occupier, and the two third of monarchists, who fought against the occupier, and against the communists when they attack the former. There is no other reasonable explanation or inference for the term “the Serb unity” than that, and it was known to everyone but to the foreigners, including the Chamber. #Criminalisation of a legal political life#!)

2640. The Accused delivered a speech in 1990 in which he said that Bosnian Serbs did not agree to “sacrifice any Croat, any Muslim, and any human being in organizing a state” and that those who did not know how to organise their state “except with blood and corpses, they must go!”.⁸⁸²⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! The President opposed any idea of a forceful unilateral secession! The meeting was held on the border with Croatia, where the HDZ had already won the elections, and threatened to form the Independent Croatia and to destroy Yugoslavia. The President’s speech was a message to the Croats and Muslims living in the (predominantly Serbian) Srbac municipality. Mr Milincic, a professor of literature, was a very sincere and trustful by his fellow citizens Croats and Muslims, and nothing happened, except a solitary incident, to anybody in this municipality. The entirely #Muslim settlements remained undisturbed# in Srbac, as well as Croat, and this is the best recommendation of the sincerity of Mr. Milincic, who also was a member of the Main Board of SDS. It was always like that: wherever a president of municipality was a member of the main Board of SDS, there was no crimes. It was the case with: Mrkonjic Grad, Banja Luka, Bosanska Dubica, Gradiska, Srbac, Celinac, Laktasi, Skender Vakuf (later called Knezevo) B. Samac, Trebinje, Gacko, Ljubinje... and so on.) In this speech the Accused also said they would act democratically and be benign so long as democracy was able to function but that the “moment anyone attacks us, we shall bring out the spear”.⁸⁸²⁸ (Yet another #abuse of the Serb epic poetry#! After being criticized for being milder than the Serb opponents in Croatia, the President responded quoting a well known poem from 14th Century:

But see D3528 (Witness statement of Milan Martić dated 7 May 2013), para. 69; Milan Martić, T. 38106–38109 (13 May 2013) (testifying that contrary to what the Accused said in P2555, the Accused’s position was not that he wanted to keep Serbian parts of BiH linked to other Serbian parts of the former Yugoslavia). The Chamber does not find Martić’s evidence in this regard to be reliable. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber found that his testimony was marked by contradictions, evasiveness, and indicators of bias.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: We shall not be harsh also on account of that old poem about Marko Kraljević, when he carried the spear upsidedown and the fay warns him not to carry it upsidedown. And Marko replies: "I shall easily bring about the spear, should trouble beset me." We shall be benign and democratic right up to the moment until which democracy is able to function. The moment anyone attacks us, we shall bring about the spear.

: Mi nećemo biti oštri još i zbog one stare pjesme o Marku Kraljeviću kad je nosio koplje naopako pa ga vila upozorava da ne nosi koplje naopako. A Marko odgovara: "Ja ću lako koplje obrnuti, ako meni do nevolje dode". Mi ćemo biti blagi i demokracijski sve do onog trena dok demokratija može da funkcioniše. Onog trena kada nas neko napadne, mi ćemo koplje obrnuti.

a conciliatory and milde attitude of the President is #taken as a crime!#) The Accused also stated that one of the objectives of the SDS was to improve multi-ethnic relations but that it would not co-operate with any parties which "have even the slightest trace of anti-Serbism".⁸⁸²⁹ (#Crippled sentences#! What is wrong with that? And why other "anti" had been skipped: anti-Yugoslavism, Anti-Semitism, Anti-Democracy? Look at this para.:

Coexistence also created some permanent values which the Serbian Democratic Party will nurture and develop. In that sense, the Party will be open for cooperation with all democratic organisations in the Republic and the country. We cannot and will not cooperate with parties which have even the slightest trace of anti-Serbism, anti-Yugoslavism, anti-semitism and anti-democracy in their programme or dealings.

2641. In May 1991, the Accused and Plavšić discussed preserving the common state of Yugoslavia, the danger of BiH "sliding into chaos and civil war", and the need to reach an agreement with Izetbegović in line with their interests.⁸⁸³⁰ The President, in June 1991, repeated his position that BiH would never be independent and that it would not follow the footsteps of Croatia.⁸⁸³¹ He also Miloš Milinčić, T. 44937–44940 (11 December 2013). The Chamber notes that this is based on Milinčić's own interpretation of the Accused's speech and is thus of limited weight. In addition, Milinčić's evidence was marked by extreme evasiveness and indicators that he lacked candour. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence in this regard to be reliable. (#Defense witnesses carnage#! This is a model of treatment of the Defence witnesses and documents. Milincic didn't have any reason to be evasive, he was an example of a good president of municipality, in his Srbac municipality there remained pure Muslim settlements and quarts in the town untouched. As a member of the Main Board of the SDS, he implemented the SDS policy towards other ethnicities, as did every single meyer who was member of the Main Board of SDS at a same time. This is the only reasonable inference: if a criminal treatment of minorities was part of the SDS policy, it would be the most thoroughly implemented in municipalities with Mayors – members of the Main Board. Beside that, Milincic's understanding of the President's speech is mutually corroborative with the speech itself, literally! What else is needed to respect this testimony and this document?

said that if BiH were to collapse, there would be chaos but that they would not bow their heads.⁸⁸³² Neither this could be understood by the foreigners, who didn't know what happened at the very beginning of the WWII. Then the Serbs in Croatia-BiH didn't have any representation, and once the NDH was proclaimed on 10 April 1941, started the #genocide against the Serbs, Jews and Gipsies#, without any resistance. The President warned Izetbegović out of frustration that they would form a parallel government and parallel police if their people were excluded and that the Bosnian Serbs were all armed.⁸⁸³³ (Again, we have to deal with a #wrong interpretation#, one time made by the interpreters, another, as here, by the Chamber. The quoted sentence didn't mean that "all the Serbs are armed" but:
" We would exclude all our people who are armed," i.e. we would withdraw our armed part of the common police) The Accused also said in a related conversation that they had "prepared an alternative, which will be atrocious. We prepared it and we'll fuck their mothers"⁸⁸³⁴ Another abuse of the fact, and #missing the context#. See:

1. on 9 Sept. 1991. Milan Martić, a beloved Serbian leader from RSK, had been illegally detained by the Muslims in Otoka.

2. it was an extremely risky situation, and the President spoke by telephone with the JNA, MUP and Milošević.

3. the President thought that the crisis will be ended without problem.

4. the President was called, for the first time ever, by M. Koroman, the chief of the Police in the region of Romania, a mountain wrap around Sarajevo, informing him that the people are extremely upset and ready to come to Sarajevo and punish those responsible for the illegal arrest of Martić. Within this framework the President promised to do his best to resolve the problem, so to avoid the clashes in the City. Is that his sin??? The President in another conversation also spoke about territories which would be integral to the Serb part of BiH in the event that there was a split and that they would have their own "army and militia"⁸⁸³⁵ (With such a #patchwork collection of a disseminated sentences# of the President, from different times, occasions, significance, and different interlocutors – even St. Peter would look as guilty as devil! AGAIN, TOTAL #LACK OF A BASIC UNDERSTANDING#! At the time there is an inter-Serb "polemos" about the RSK and Vance plan for Krajina Knin. That is why Babić was mentioned. However, in the Banja Luka Krajina a several areas wanted to secede from BiH and to have the same what was proposed to RSK in Croatia: their Police, TO and so on. And this President was dissuading them, infirming his interlocutor in the common mind, to stay refrained. How this can be used against the President? #EXCULPATORY#!!!)

2642. On 23 July 1991, the President told Kuprešanin that the referendum for an independent Krajina would be a mistake for negotiations at that time because the Bosnian Muslims had prepared "all the evidence that the Serbs are creating the Greater Serbia. D2923 (Witness statement of Vitomir Žepinić dated 11 February 2013), paras. 40, 43, 48–49. While the Chamber accepts that Žepinić formed this impression during these conversations, the Chamber finds that these conversations show that the Accused was indeed angry about proposed moves towards the independence of BiH and was prepared to change their strategy if Bosnian Serb demands were not met and this would include violence. CONSEQUENTLY, THE CHAMBER DID #wrongfully INFER# AGAINST THE SERBS.

In an intercepted conversation on 4 September 1991, the Accused said that the army had been invited to Tuzla and that the Bosnian Muslims should be warned that the Serbs could defend themselves.⁸⁸³⁷ When informed about tensions in Bratunac, the Accused responded “we will arrest them and kill them. [...] Tell them that Serbs in Bosnia and Herzegovina [...] can defend themselves and defend themselves successfully. There are two hundred thousand armed men and they should not mess around”⁸⁸³⁸ (Unbelievable!!! Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	After Friday, SUP deployed er ... police force in these villages - hot spots, so, only Serbs were deployed in Kravica.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Because that is what they demanded and the patrols, consisting both of Serbs and Muslims were in Konjević polje and in that place over there, in Lolići.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Aha, good.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	That has been an around the clock duty. There has been this duty and village guard ever since. After those two persons from Han Pijesak were wounded, at the barricade.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	After that?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	After that and before the shooting at this President of the Executive Council.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Two persons were wounded and the motive for it was putting up of the barricade up there in Han Pijesak; they informed you about that.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, two men were wounded, okay.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	... ad then, after the wounding, er ... the attempt of the assassination of this President of the Executive Council, down there.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay then, and again Serbs were wounded, so again his..., er, they shot at a Serb.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes, the President of the Executive Council of the Bratunac Municipal Assembly.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay, but these two men in Han Pijesak were also Serbs?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	And these who were wounded in Han Pijesak are Serbs.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Listen, last night, those four men in that car who rode slowly through Kravica, their main military strategist on behalf of the SDA and the biggest stool pigeon was in that car with other three men.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	They drove two times through Kravica.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And Kravica is a Serbian village?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Kravica is ... Serbian villages, like the Mokro region las written ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, yes, so it seems that they were provoking, weren't they?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes, they were riding through with all four windows rolled down and barrels of their machine guns sticking out of the windows.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	At two spots the police patrol gave them a sign to stop but they refused to do it.

⁸⁸³⁸ D1643 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Zvonko Bajagić, 4 September 1991), p. 7.

Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	And they received the message; well, some of these were provoking with machine guns; the police tried to stop them at two points; they did not want to stop; so these men up there tried to stop them; they refused; they opened fire; they killed two and wounded one of them.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Whom did they kill?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	They killed two Muslims, not the main one.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Furthermore, earlier today, now, Muslim people went down to Bratunac and they are rejoicing lapparently meaning: insisting to go to attack Kravica.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Furthermore, the Kravica men are still holding their positions, they do not allow anyone to ... they shoot if a single man from MUP should put his foot on their territory.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	It can easily happen that those from up there move in an organised manner before the dark and that will cause then a frontal ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	To move in an organised manner?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes, if the MUP and one from down there moved towards Kravica.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	That's it, Kravica men, they decided that firmly and they will not give it up.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Are they armed?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes, they are. Furthermore, their people, Serbs from the villages having a common border with villages with Muslim population are evacuated and they are moving across Drina and they go to the centre of the village and into the woods.

And

that was a Muslim torture of the Serb population of Bratunac as early as 4 September 1991. The Serb villages deserted, population crossed over to Serbia, males were keeping guards.

See further:

Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Everything is deserted, it is horrible to see that, they would come to Milići to ask for help.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Maybe some of these volunteers should go; they also asked me to go to Han Pijesak. Thus, I've come home from Milići and I am reporting to you; as far as I can see, nobody contacted you about these things.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	No, nobody contacted me about this.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Well, in general, you should know that this is extremely urgent; I think that someone should show up immediately, otherwise it'll be trouble.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Who needs to show up?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	The ones who can ... the most influential ones ... you and someone on behalf of the SDA, someone who can ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And what should they do?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Well, what ... to come down among the people ... that line ... to talk with our SUP ... they should not send the MUP men ... there will be shooting.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Directly ... if someone should come, then one should consider the Army, because they do not believe in MUP.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay, the Army has been invited and the Army will come from Tuzla, as far as we know they are under way.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay, but, tell me this, who could head to Kravica ...?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Only these Muslims ... if they move forward, they will just shoot, but our regular Bosnian MUP men las written .
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	It's better that they do not go, you should say that if you have influence.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Okay, Zvonko BAJAGIĆ, there is nothing to be done from here.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	You should manage this yourself wisely, on the spot, do not allow anyone to enter Serbian villages, but these volunteers who are under way ...
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Let them go lapparently: comel , the volunteers; you should see to it that they are ... that they are in the second line, because the local people will not shoot so easily and kill their neighbours, the volunteers from outside always shoot more easily.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Well, they are not ... they are neighbours and in case that someone comes, it will be from Milići and Han Pijesak.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, yes, okay, from Milići and Han Pijesak ... the ones who go there, they should not shoot first, not under any circumstances, but the local villagers should decide whether to shoot or not, because the people still know each other up there and that means the chance that they do not shoot at each other.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Well, that is not ... there is not that tolerance ... that ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Never mind, they caused this thing and you should defend yourself lcould also mean: and you are defending yourself , you should organise good defence and nobody should enter Serbian villages, they should not play with that.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Yes, well ... you know what's going on, that is their decision ... well, you are not kept up to date.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	I am not ..., I only knew that these two guys had lost their lives and I didn't know how, whether it had been a provocation or whether Kravica had been attacked. And I was with IZETBEGOVIĆ until ten minutes ago and we concluded that we should wait, to get a proper information. ŽEPINIĆ and HEBIB are up there somewhere and ŽEPINIĆ has not contacted me yet, he should call me and I shall tell him that Serbs ... that they should not send MUP men into Serbian villages, I ...
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	He should not dare ... Well, please let them know that as soon as possible, to avoid that someone from Bratunac goes to take control, to patrol or to try to get in with the excuse to calm down the population, that would not do.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And what do you assume; whose fault is this?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	It is their fault; they failed to stop by the two police patrols, their rifles sticking out of the car at the ready, their windows open ... and shouting ...and provocations.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And it was all about draft registration, wasn't it?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	For all las written / ... and it started with the draft registration.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ.	It is also their fault.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	They.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And why did that fellow shoot at the President of the Executive Council?
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	He was charged with it, probably to assassinate him.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	He was charged with it, fuck those bloody idiots, it seems they want to fight against the Serbs.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Radovane, one other thing, you know, I as a laic think that the SDA headquarters are behind all this, because I think that they do not have any other municipality which is more appropriate for them to provoke Serbia; and at the moment, Bratunac is the most suitable municipality to do that thing between Serbia and Bosnia.

Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	If they sacrificed the Muslim people down there in order to provoke, in order to provoke...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	They sacrificed ... in order to provoke.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	In order to provoke Serbia.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	You should tell them over there ... also Serbia ... they do not need Serbia, we will arrest them and kill them.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	And you know what, Radovan?
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Tell them that Serbs in Bosnia and Herzegovina can, can defend themselves and defend themselves successfully. There are two hundred thousand armed men and they should not mess around, those idiotic mother fuckers.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	But listen, here across Bratunac is Serbia.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	The people there are all mixed through family relations, they are godfathers and best men to each other, they are friends could also mean: in-laws! . Nobody there will wait for an order of the Serbian Government or to ask someone for permission; the people will cross over to defend their friends and relatives and it will be immediately exploited in a way: Well, Serbia attacked Bosnia.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, yes. Don't ... See to it that Serbia does not break into Bosnia and tell the neighbouring Muslims that they have been sacrificed and tell them not to dare to struck against Serbs, because we can defend ourselves successfully throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina; there is no place where they can put us in danger, there is no place where they can put us in danger!
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Tell them that we are so organised that there is no spot where they can bring us in danger.
Zvonko BAJAGIĆ	Listen, I ... like I ... No Serb can get from here into Bratunac and nobody dares to go down there.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	I am going now to try also to inform the MUP and you should organise yourself good and you should not attack anyone up there, but defend yourself.

Meanwhile, the JNA as a regular force (it was Sept. 91) was expected to come from Tuzla. So, the JNA was not “invited to Tuzla” but was there regularly, and was expected to come to Bratunac and intervene in an inter-ethnic conflict caused by the Muslims. The President tried to prevent an involvement of Serbia, and to limit the Serbs only to the defense. This is a #commendable# and for a decoration, not for accusation!!! And this is a #CRIMINAL WAY OF DISTORTION# OF MEANING! Regardless of a high possibility that the Judges weren't aware of it, the full responsibility is on them, on the Tribunal and the United Nations!) On 13 September 1991, referring to a proposal by Izetbegović to resolve the question of the army in BiH and demilitarisation, the Accused said to Koljević “we will put the army in all our areas, Serbian Bosnia, right? Down there, on Neretva...”⁸⁸³⁹ (Putting the only legal Army in the Serb areas was #legal and obligatory# while not letting an army to do it's job is a federal crime#! That was not a “proposal to resolve the question of the Army in BiH, because no federal unit could resolve it without the federal state. The entire intercept is about an illegal and cunning try of Mrr. Tudjman and Izetbegovic to remove the JNA out of Bosnia, while Tudjman was preparing the war against Yugoslavia, the Serbs and JNA. The Serb side in BiH opposed any idea to deny the hospitality to the JNA, and offered the Serbian areas (which in reality happened during the war, that the JNA dared to stay only in the Serb areas. What inference the Chamber could draw from this conversation from early September 91?) The Accused also told international representatives that unless the Serb areas in BiH could remain tied to Yugoslavia war would result.⁸⁸⁴⁰ (#Warnings, not threats#! This witness admitted that his #note books were not to be understood verbatim#, since he intermingled what he heard and what he thought and assumed! Certainly, the President didn't mean that the Serbs needed a war to achieve what they wanted, since they did have it already. Beside that, the President was asked (this is in the file) who would start a war if it appears, and the President said, it would be someone from the lowerest stratum of society. Just to remind: neither Serbs in Bosnia, nor in Croatia needed any war to achieve their constitutional rights. A war was needed to those who wanted to prevent and deprive the Serbs from their legal interests and constitutional rights! On 30 September 1991, the President stated that the "war goal" of the Serbian people was Yugoslavia.⁸⁸⁴¹ (#Wrong translation# of the document, P2543:

*Jugoslavije.
Najkrupnije je naše političko postojanje
Jugoslavije i BiH. Bez Srba i njihove volje se u BiH ne može ništa napraviti.*

and wrong interpretation. In the original it meant that the most important for the existence of the Serb people to have Yugoslavia and Bosnia exist, not as it was interpreted:

We are politically most numerous in Yugoslavia and Bosnia. Nothing can be done in BH without the Serbs and their will.

The second sentence is correct, but this certainty didn't rely on the number of citizens, but on the constitutional guarantees. Further, the "war goal" of the Serbian people" pertained to the Serbs in the entire Yugoslavia, not to the Serbs in Bosnia, where there was no a war, and couldn't concern with the Serbs in BiH. See the same document:

The army was attacked by Croatia and realised it was dealing with fascists. Those who supported the idea that Slovenia and Croatia should remain in Yugoslavia are no longer in the JNA.

The country that already had the war was Yugoslavia! Anyway, the document is #dubious#, no name of the note-taker, it is written in the Croatian variant, which a Serb would never do, particularly then. Also, the last sentence about "war goals" is #added somewhere later#!

The SDS was ready to have Serb territories secede from an independent BiH if that was the only way for Serbs to remain in Yugoslavia.⁸⁸⁴² (#Wrong and unacceptable#! First, the Chamber is making a #political assessments from the standpoint of the secessionist republics#, and from those who encouraged these Republics to violate the Constitution and all the laws. Even if so, what does it have to do with this Tribunal? The SDS was not intending "to secede" from Bosnia, but #“not to secede” from Yugoslavia#, which was a #conservative and legitimate attitude#. The same happened when West Virginia seceded from Union, the western part of Virginia refused to secede, and President Lincoln accepted their decision, and even after the victory of Union, West Virginia continued to exist! #The right to maintain a status quo# against an illegal change is superior to this illegal change. Beside that, the quoted document, the exhibit P02543 is dubious one. First of all, the language: the Serbs would never say “općina” for municipality. Further, there was no any form of a shorthand or a regular record of a meeting. Further, the last sentence, added, pertaining to #“the war goal” is nonsense, since Yugoslavia already existed# over 70 years, why anybody would wage a war to achieve what already existed. This leaf of paper was probably handwritten by the Muslim spy who bugged the room!)

2644. In May 1991, Slobodan Milošević told the President that his position should be that they were against the secession and wanted BiH to remain in Yugoslavia, to which the President agreed.⁸⁸⁴³ In another conversation in July 1991, Milošević told the Accused that their objective was to “have disintegration in [...] line with our inclinations” and that they “should take radical steps and speed the things up”.⁸⁸⁴⁴ (What does in mean? What inference could be drawn from it? President Milosevic sounded conciliatory towards the Slovenian/Croat intentions to secede, but was againste their violent and unilateral secession! What is a crime here?)

This is all a mess in translation and interpretation, all misunderstood. Milosevic was ready to allow those who wanted to separate to do so, but along the lines the Serbia and Serbs could have accepted. The speed up was Milosevic’s prediction that we do not have three months as we required, but much shorter time, and it didn’t mean that the Serbs were interested in “speeding up” what is this, anyway? What does it show? This is another #CRIMINAL DISTORTION#! Let us see what really was said: P5890:

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: You see, this, this was given just to say something, they haven’t given our statement. They accepted to guarantee, to guarantee, well, that Croatia and Slovenia will fulfil their obligations and suspend these acts...

KARADZIC Radovan: Well, these are their obligations. Are there any other obligations of theirs? None?

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: Even if that violence stops, etc, these obligations still remain theirs.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: They are the Warrantor and they have spoken their mind, so we will see, we will see how it will further go on. But I think that by this we have put an end to the pressures imposed that Serbia disunite Yugoslavia, and on the other hand warranties given by the European Community are much more important to us than those ones given by the Croatian Parliament.

KARADZIC Radovan: Yes.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: The Croatian Parliament may talk lies, but the European Community is still taking extremely important political decisions.

KARADZIC Radovan: Yes, yes. Considering the further development of this issue, for us... for me... these forthcoming three months are extremely important.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: What three months are you talking about? God may help us that the matter can last three weeks, let alone three months!

KARADZIC Radovan: You think so?

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: Three months are out of question, I think that some things should be radically changed now, radically.

KARADZIC Radovan: Yes.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: and that there is no place in the Army which is pro-Yugoslavian by orientation for those shooting at its soldiers’ backs.

KARADZIC Radovan: Yes, yes.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: There have nothing more to do, now we are the ones making the move, it’s time for our move now. GLIGOROV and the that man can do whatever they want, they won’t... the thing is clear there, we can’t discuss it detailedly now. They want to separate.

KARADZIC Radovan: That’s clear.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: That’s clear and they should be allowed to separate.

KARADZIC Radovan: Yes.

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: Now, there is only one question left, to have disintegration in the line with our inclinations.

However, this is distorted first in translation. In Serbian it was:

Milošević Slobodan:	To je jasno i treba ih pustiti da se otepe.
Karadžić Radovan:	Da.
Milošević Slobodan:	Sad je samo pitanje odcepljenja po liniji koja nama odgovara.

Should be translated as: M.S.: That's clear, and they should be allowed to secede! K.R.: Yes!
M.S. The only question now is that this secession goes along lines that suite us!

KARADZIC Radovan: Is, is the issue in connection with Serbian violence in Croatia, is that the condition?

MILOSEVIC Slobodan: Everything is inside, any violence must be stopped.

Another mistake in translation: Karadzic asked whether it comprises the Serbian "naselja" (which meant "settlements") in Croatia, but the two words sound really similar: "naselje" is "settlement" while "nasilje" is violence. Not big deal, but other distortions and interpretations as a Serb agressivity, is a CRIMINAL!)

2645. In other conversations, Slobodan Milošević told the President that the Serbs would not be divided into many states, and that this "should be the basic premise for your thinking".⁸⁸⁴⁵ He also questioned who could "take the Serbian people out of Yugoslavia if it is against their will", to which the Accused responded that it was important to emphasise that the borders had been artificially created by Tito and did not follow an "ethnic [or] historical principle".⁸⁸⁴⁶ (So what? #Imperial and communist borders#! That was right. That was why we proposed the Scandinavian model "Scandinavisation" i.e. re-drawing the border on a democratic way, and let people decide where they wanted to live. The Yugoslav Constitution provided for the sovereignty to originate from the constituent peoples-nations, not from Republics. And only a change of the federal Constitution could envisage secessions!)

2646. In July 1991, Milošević encouraged meetings between Serbs and Muslims because the population did not want war.⁸⁸⁴⁷ The President agreed but said that it was Izetbegović who was preparing for civil war and suggested to "let everybody identify themselves now, who does not want an agreement with the Serbs obviously wants a dispute with the Serbs".⁸⁸⁴⁸ Milošević made it clear that they were "offering nothing else but an integral Bosnia, equal to other republics in Yugoslavia".⁸⁸⁴⁹ The President repeated that they wanted to have strong ties with Yugoslavia and if the Bosnian Muslims refused, the alternative would be war.⁸⁸⁵⁰ This was confirmed in an intercepted conversation towards the end of the conflict, where the President and Krajišnik spoke about the fact that they had waged war because they did not accept BiH as "integral and separate from Yugoslavia".⁸⁸⁵¹ (Is it now, all of a sudden, important #who was liable for the war#! If so, than the Defense would have something to say too!)

(#Contrary to Statute#! No matter the crime against the peace is not a subject to this Tribunal, all of those "words" of this President are searching for the cause of war and a guilt, responsibility for the war. But, nobody has any right to deny the Serbs their rights to continue living in their own state as they did till this moment! If somebody wanted to change this state, it's shape and nature, integrity and anything that concerns the Constitution, has to ask for a consent of all the constituent nations. The #Serbs didn't need a war to achieve what they wanted#, because they had it already. A war was necessary for those who wanted to change the nature of this state, AND TO IMPOSE THOSE CHANGES TO ALL OTHERS! #Not without the Serb consent#!. Such a Judgement looks like a political lecture of the former regime, which was also anti-Serbian!)

2647. On 2 October 1991, in an intercepted conversation with Krajišnik, the President alluded to there being “very concrete plans for transfer” and combat operations from Western Herzegovina to “that Ustasha’s oasis in Goražde and further to the Drina River”.⁸⁸⁵² In this conversation, the President and Krajišnik agreed upon and discussed the importance of unifying Serbs in a common state, and Krajišnik stated that they had a clear, unified vision of a “state over the state”.⁸⁸⁵³ At a joint meeting between the government of the SAO Krajina and the ARK Executive Council in Banja Luka on 20 October 1991, which was attended by the President and Krajišnik, a conclusion was reached to support and implement the objective that the Serb people would remain in a single joint state.⁸⁸⁵⁴ The Accused also spoke to Milošević and told him that Serbs had one third of the electorate in BiH and that they were “going to forcefully make some other moves and they can no longer keep up with us”.⁸⁸⁵⁵ (Again, it is an irresponsible #omission in translation# of the documents, the intercepted conversation. “[t]o forcefully make some other moves” must not be translated like that, because the President said:

RK - Jer računamo da jednu trećinu, da smo više od jedne trećine dobili bosanskog biračkog tijela. I sad mi idemo snažno u neke druge poteze i to nas više ne mogu pratiti.

Another #CRIMINAL DISTORTION#! After establishing that the electoral body inclined to the Serbs was far over one third, the President said that the Serbs are “decisively going to make some other moves”! Therefore, “snažno” doesn’t mean forcefully, but rather decisively. Second, the “forceful” i.e. “decisive was going to be the Serb “goings” – not the moves. So, the proper translation should be: “And now we are decisively going to make some other moves...”! the Prosecution-Chamber alliance looks desperate when trying to exploit such an insignificant conversation with the help of a clumsy, if not malicious translation!)

2648. In an intercepted conversation in January 1992, the President emphasised his ideology with municipal leaders and said that the policy of the SDS “is the unified Serbianhood” in BiH and that if anybody had a problem they could create their own party.⁸⁸⁵⁶ (This was an intra-party discussion about some members who wanted to pursue another party’s program, which is not allowed in any party in the world. Since there was a multiparty system, everyone who was not satisfied, could leave the SDS and form a new party. Why it would be significant to the court?) The President also spoke about working towards an option involving a “union of Serbian states” which would involve preparing a Serbian federation and defending “it with arms and at any cost”.⁸⁸⁵⁷ He also said that if they could not preserve Yugoslavia, the Serbs would find their own “place in the Sun” and that the “back up option” was to have all Serb territories in one state.⁸⁸⁵⁸ Similarly in February 1992, in the context of discussing their position at international negotiations, the Accused emphasised that: “Our optimum is a Greater Serbia, and if not that, then a Federal Yugoslavia” and that while they could settle for a cantonal structure he stated that “[t]here are no further concessions”.⁸⁸⁵⁹ (So what? All the others who fought against Yugoslavia proclaimed their ultimate goals, based on their ethnic interests. Only the Serbs made so many concessions, far from their ultimate interests! 2649. The President also spoke derisively of Serbs who did “not comply with the policy of the SDS, which advocates a single solution for the Serb people in Yugoslavia”.⁸⁸⁶⁰ At a rally in February 1992, attended by Bosnian Serb leaders including Krajišnik, Plavšić, and Koljević, speeches were delivered, including by a minister from Serbia, who said that nobody had the right to separate the Serbian people from Serbia and that if the Bosnian Serbs did not get what they were asking for in BiH they could rely on the support of Serbia.⁸⁸⁶¹ (So what? So what? How it fits with the Statute of the Tribunal? But they will achieve it.”⁸⁸⁶⁴ (The #Serbs did have it already#, but the others changed their position, which affected the Serb position, which was unacceptable, because the Serbs had a constitutional capacities to influence and determine their destiny! Conclusion

2651. Having considered the evidence above, the Chamber finds that from 1990 and into mid-1991, the political objective of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership was to preserve Yugoslavia and to prevent the separation or independence of BiH, which would result in a separation of Bosnian Serbs from Serbia. (#EXCULPATORY#!!! That was completely legitimate, and the #only legal position#. All others were violating the Yugoslav and the respective republican Constitutions. So, this is wrong inference, if taken against this President! In this political position and activity there was no a trace of hostile attitude towards the “non-Serbs”).

2652. The Chamber also finds that the Accused emphasised that the Bosnian Serbs did not want to be a minority in an independent BiH and would not accept separation from Serbia. (#Legal and legitimate#! Why the Protestants in #Northern Ireland# didn't accept to be a minority in a unitary Ireland? Of course, that was the most drastic change in their life and existence. The Serbs in Bosnia had been deprived from freedom for several centuries, their existence under the Turkish occupation is hard to be described, the last forty years of Austro-Hungarian occupation didn't make any difference, although it was a Christian and European Empire. Finally, the Empire attacked Serbia and thus caused WWI. Freedom and unity came after the WWI, but again in WWII the Bosnian Serbs became a minority in NDH, an “Independent State of Croatia” under the Nazi regime, which caused a genocide against the Serbs, Jews and Gipsies. Again, in 1990 the Hitler's allies won the elections in Zagreb, Croatia, and in BiH, and the Serbs in Bosnia again became the target, although neither Croatia, nor Bosnia could get the independence without consent of the Serbs living in these Republics. So flagrant violation of constitutions, laws, rights and international treaties (Helsinki) had only one precedent – Hitler's suspension of the League of Nations, with the full backing by the “International Community”, it's western part! The Chamber didn't allow any context to be presented, nor any element of the conduct of others, but now, in this Judgement the Chamber is considering the pure political issues and conduct of only one - Serbian – side. The Serbs were entitled to veto the independence of BiH, and if they didn't agree, the whole BiH would stay in Yugoslavia. This is a matter of the Constitution, but the Serbs made many concessions in order to please the two other sides and to avoid a war. And it didn't depend on the President, but of the people. In these speeches, the Accused also spoke about the marginalisation of the Serb people and the need to protect their interests. (What kind of crime is this? #No crime#!) These speeches and statements also demonstrate that the Accused was passionate about a common Serb identity and working towards creating a unified Serbian nation, which was viewed as an age-old aspiration of all Serbs living in one state. (The Chamber is #not entitled to assess the political stands of President Karadzic, unless the crime against peace is not considered! This way, the Chamber is smuggling this issue, without any obligation to consider the issue comprehensively! The Serbs had achieved this state twice in the 20th Century, 1918 and 1945, paying an enormous price in millions of lives! The Serbian people is much older than it is believed, but even if it was 5th or 6th century, the Serb people fought many battles to survive, and the only way to survive is to have their own state!) The Accused continued to adhere to this ideology of Serb unity and the importance of creating a Serb state into 1992. (This is a #mere ideological element# in the Judgment, and as such it compromises the entire trial. The Serb unity has it's history, and pertains mainly to the very same ideology of division of the Serbs on rightists (monarchists) and leftist (communists), since the common state already existed. But it is wrong for another reason: it was not true! The Serbs and the President didn't seek anything new, #anything that didn't exist#, but only tried to oppose to the unlawful and unconstitutional attacks. Unilateral and forceful destruction of Yugoslavia, which was envisaged to develop on the account of the Serbs. And the secessionist peoples were led exclusively by their ethnic interests!)

(Since dealing with the #political issues#, the Chamber was in a position to see what was the political development at that time. The Chamber should have notice that the Serbs had #already lived in a unique state#, from 1918 til 1941. and from 1945 till this crisis. So, the #Serbs didn't demand anything new#, anything they didn't have. The other wanted to leave Yugoslavia, which could have been agreed upon, but they didn't respect the constitutional rights of the Serbs. AND THE SERBS, WHEN ENVISAGING A WAR IN A CASE OF SOME DEVELOPMENTS, DIDN'T MEAN THAT THEY NEED A WAR TO ACHIEVE WHAT THEY WANTED, BECAUSE THEY DID HAVE IT ALREADY, and it was protected by the Constitution of Yugoslavia and the constitutions of the respective Republics! The war was necessary only to those who wanted to impose the new status to the Serbs.

2653. The Chamber finds that this evidence demonstrates the central role which the President played in developing the ideology and role of the SDS after its formation in 1990. The President also promoted the SDS as the party which would address the political aspirations of Bosnian Serbs and spoke against Serbs who did not follow the policy of the SDS. (This is also #erroneous finding#, first of all, the newly formed parties were based on ethnicity, because the Communist regime neglected the development of traditional culture, and so on. As evident, the SDS was the last one formed in BiH (not taking into account that the HDZ acted throughout BiH while being seated in Croatia) The SDS didn't speak against the Serbs who didn't follow the policy of the SDS, but if SDS won ballots, it was responsible to voters, and no Serbs of communist or other ideology should "smuggle" their ideology in the SDS work. This can not be anywhere in the world. Who has a program, should have own party, not lay down its eggs in others nest, like cuckoo bird. Somebody that won 3% of the Serbian votes can not pretend to speak on behalf of the entire Serbian community! But, this is an eminently #political issue# and a matter of responsibility for the war (a crime against peace) which wasn't envisaged to be considered in this Court. In a drastic shortage of evidence against the President, the Prosecution-Chamber are collecting a patchwork, a puzzle of irrelevant rests of political sentences, to assemble whatever "mens rea" of this President!)

2654. In this period, the Accused also foreshadowed the prospect of civil war if the Bosnian Serbs were politically outvoted in the BiH Assembly or if Serb areas could not remain tied with Yugoslavia. He also warned that the Bosnian Serbs were prepared for such a threat of civil war and were powerful and united. It was clear that even in the speeches in which he spoke in favour of improving multi-ethnic relations and against violence, the Accused stressed that the Bosnian Serbs were ready to use violence if they considered that they had been attacked and would not co-operate with anyone seen to be against the Serbs. (#Another CRIMINAL DISTORTION#! Not "to use violence" but "not to cooperate" not only with those that are against the Serbs, but "anyone with an anti-Serbism, anti-Yugoslavism, anti-semitism and anti-democracy! But, again wrong inference! The President was dissuading the others from a policy that would cause a war. Having in mind how the Serbs had been slaughtered during the WWII, this time they saw and recognised what was prepared. Also, to "consider that they had been attacked" is an objective matter, and anyone is entitled to rebut any attack, and also everybody is entitled "not to co-operate with anyone seen to be against" him. A lot of ridiculous matters!!!)

Again, the Chamber erres and is confused: first of all, the Serb unity concerns the ideological rift from WWII, which was present in a more than in trace between the SDS and the Army officers. For the first time in the Serb civil wars the Serbs in BiH were a bit prepared to defend, and this was their own right. #Right to defend#!) He also adumbrated chaos and violence if BiH followed the path towards independence. The President also spoke about alternative preparations Bosnian Serbs had made if their demands were not met, and it was clear that these alternatives envisaged violence. (#Wrong conclusion#! The Serbs didn't have any demands except to respect the laws and Constitution. This is the strongest political and moral position. The Serb "demands" were supported by the Constitution, and if anybody wanted to change the constitutional order, should do it according to the provisions of Constitution. If somebody was ready to impose something contrary to the Serb rights, the Serbs would defend. But, what the Chamber could easily find out as a firm evidence, not an inference, would be the "Islamic declaration" as a comprehensive political program. Having in mind the "Islamic declaration", as well as the fact that Izetbegovic didn't meet the President's begging to denounce the Declaration for the sake of the peace in BiH, the Chamber would see the President's political acting as mild and polite as it could be! Why such an important evidence was never mentioned in the Judgement?)

(B) Identification of historic enemies

2655. At the founding assembly of the SDS in July 1990, the President called for the unity of the Serbs and also made reference to the genocide which had been carried out against them by their “enemies” and his opposition to a system in BiH “which seemed to have been established to ensure our national annihilation”.⁸⁸⁶⁵ (Does the Chamber infer that there was no WWI and WWII, and that the same enemies, the Muslim and Croat Nazis, didn’t attack the Serbs, committing a horrible extermination? Or the Chamber suggests that the Serbian people didn’t know that part of their history, but the President reminded them, or maybe persuaded them that they are again in the same jeopardy? This is an #ideological inference#! There is no a single Serbian family in BiH which didn’t suffer a grave loses from those enemies!) At the founding meeting of the SDS in Brčko, the President delivered a speech in which he said that the “Serbian people for the first time in its history had a chance to set up its own party and that for the first time in history the Serbian people would have enough political strength to avoid the repetition of the bloody history”.⁸⁸⁶⁶ (So what??? Why any Chamber would even notice this speech? For what purpose, and for what inference this quotation may serve, and in what sense. At the same time, the entire Yugoslavia has a storm of political speeches, plans and intentions, all of them aimed against the unity of Yugoslavia and against the Serbs. But, if the Chamber considered these speeches as wrong and criminal, the Chamber then was obliged to point out what #was not true it these speeches#, what was false and war-mongering in these speeches! If it stayed that way, it would mean that the #Chamber altered the history# of the WWI and WWII in Yugoslavia!)

2656. In an interview in May 1991, the President stated:

“We have today at play the Croat-Muslim party coalition, but we cannot be outvoted in the Assembly. The Serbs cannot allow the Muslims to declare themselves the majority people on the basis of the Ustasha genocide against the Serbs in World War II, before which the Serbs were the majority people in Bosnia. We are a state-building people even if we are just five, let alone 31%.⁸⁸⁶⁷ (So what? This was also true. This is a legal normative that the #results of genocide# and a war crimes must not become a legalised as a legitimate. Anyway, without this position, there was another: the Serbs were one of the three constituons peoples, and had a veto right on the constitutional questions. Even this communist Constitution of BiH contained the provision about veto on some issues pertaining to the equality of ethnic communities! Any attempt to alter this constitutional provisions would be drastic violation of the rights guaranteed by the Constitutions! The international community shouldn’t encourage this kind of subversive and destructive action, but to warn all the sides not to play with fire!)

2657. Both Šešelj and the President spoke at a rally in May 1991, where Šešelj stated that in the Serbian part of BiH, they had only one political party, the SDS, and its leadership had “saved the dignity of the all-Serbian brotherhood”.⁸⁸⁶⁸ Horrible!! What is criminal it that? Or it is sufficient to mention Mr. [e{elj} and the President in the same paragraph and to conclude that there must be some crime?! Šešelj in this speech also spoke about the “traditional enemies” of the Serbian people and the need for Serbs to be united to prevent a “new genocide against the Serbian people”.⁸⁸⁶⁹ (Horrible!! Should Mr [e{elj} speak in favour of the genocide against his own, or any other people?! He emphasised that they would avenge the current and historic Serb victims and that they would not “give an inch of the Serbian land”.⁸⁸⁷⁰ He also warned the Muslims not to “become a weapon of the Croatian Ustashas again” and that if they repeated history again it would be “fatal to the Muslims, because us Serbs shall no longer forget or forgive. Our revenge is going to be terrible”.⁸⁸⁷¹ Acquitted!!!! Acquitted even it this court! Again, the Chamber is again rummaging through the trash in order to find any ideological rooth of an President “mens rea”, confirming thus the ideological nature of this court. This way the entire Serbian people is undermin, assaulted and convicted, because none of these incriminations wer the President’s “inventions”, but a deeply rooted fears of the entire population. Even the international mediators, like Lords Carrington and Owen, admitted that the Serbs had a good reason to be worried in 1990-es!

2658. In January 1991, at a commemoration ceremony, the President stated, “Serbs are the only people in the world who were persecuted and killed only because they exist. That is why we will no longer allow them to separate us and divide us in three states and gradually destroy us.”⁸⁸⁷² He also assured the population that the Bosnian Serb leadership would “not let you be slaughtered like in 1941”.⁸⁸⁷³ (#Permanent mistake#! Did the President lie? Had there been a slaughter of the Serbs in the NDH, including Bosnia? What was criminal in this statements? What issues of the Serb political life the Chamber consider to be forbidden as criminal ones?) The President told Koljević in June 1991 that he had told Izetbegović that “nobody can form a state on a territory where there was genocide”.⁸⁸⁷⁴ At a meeting with Bosnian Serb representatives on 10 June 1992, the President stated that the plan was to empty BiH of Serbs (Had the Chamber admitted the evidence of a Tudjman-Holbrooke meeting, there would be what Izetbegovic told Tudjman about expelling the Serbs from Bosnia, and President Tudjman was astonished and asked him, how he intended to expel one and a half million of Serbs from Bosnia. Had the Chamber admitted a similar evidence of the Tudjman-Ganic meeting, after the Dayton Agreement, when the Muslim extremist Ganic repeatedly said to President Tudjman that they (Muslims) “will marginalise the Serbs in Bosnia”, and again, they intend to “marginalise the Serb entity”!) and that Bosnian Serbs should persist and defend their borders against attacks but not attack themselves.⁸⁸⁷⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#! This is the most honest and the most clear position. What is wrong in it? We do have evidence that it was just like the President said, and the genocide didn’t repeat just as the President said. And that is his the only guilt! To defend oneself from any attack, and not to attack is the basic right which nobody can object, why the Chamber found it to be objected?)

2659. The Accused in his speeches before the Bosnian Serb Assembly repeatedly referred to the threat faced by the Serb people and the historic threats they faced dating back to World War II and the need to protect themselves from their “enemies”.⁸⁸⁷⁶ (So what? The Chamber is doing a very risky job, denying the very known events, as if some court would contest the Holocaust against the Jews! And this is something in line with the anti-Serb policy of the part of international community, but there is a crucial question: whether the United Nations support this approach, because this court is the UN institution? #Contesting notorious facts#!) In June 1992, the President signed the “political platform for the survival of the Serbian people in BiH” which noted that a war to extinction had been imposed on the Serbs.⁸⁸⁷⁷ This platform called for the Bosnian Muslims to end the war and negotiate and claimed that both Muslims and Serbs had a right to stay in the country.⁸⁸⁷⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The President continued to make speeches which emphasised the historic suffering and victimisation of the Serbs.⁸⁸⁷⁹ For example, in September 1992, the President spoke about the continuation of the fascist policy of World War II in which one third of Serbs were to be expelled, one third converted to Catholicism, and one third were to be killed.⁸⁸⁸⁰ (All #political speeches#, all founded on the historic truth. The author of the “two third” policy is known. This famous sentence, pronounced by the highest Croatian official #Quaternik# became an official policy of Croatia, and was carried out thoroughly. That is why only from BH 700.000 Serbs had been killed. If the Chamber challenges this, we should have known it. Not to forget that both in Zagreb (Croatia) and Sarajevo (BiH) on the 1990 elections the power was taken by the same ideology, by the then Hitler’s allies. To be honest, President Tudjman was no Hitler’s ally, but he rehabilitated Hitler’s allies who returned from the world with the same rhetoric as in WWII)

2660. These constant references to World War II and the historic suffering and grievances of the Serbian people polarised the population in BiH and incited inter-ethnic hatred.⁸⁸⁸¹ (. The Chamber erred relying on an “opinion”, while it was a generally known that the interethnic hatred never disappeared, and the top of its revival was in 1971 and on. Every European and western government knew and predicted a bloody ruining of the SFRY after the Tito’s death. So, to draw such an inference is not even serious, and is deeply wrong, unjust and insulting for the entire Serbian people. The UN and the European Community didn’t think so, and that is why the Conference (ICFY) was established far before the President said this sentence!) The media was also used as a propaganda tool to emphasise the historic suffering of the Serb people and to encourage people to fight for their “motherland” so that all Serbs would be together.⁸⁸⁸² (This is another #political and ideological “invective”# of the Chamber against the very truth and the real facts. This manner disqualifies the Chamber and the Tribunal as a whole! While the two other sides at the same time were preparing for the war against the Serbs, and in Croatia the cruel war already started, by killing the civilian Serb families, the Chamber is accusing the Serb media for propaganda!?) In August 1992, VJ General Panić told Mladić that there should be “propagators among ordinary people”, that is a person in every region instructed to say one thing but do another.⁸⁸⁸³ (But this is the #first class proof that it wasn't that way#. Had it been so, this “advise” wouldn't be said. And what it has to do with the President? And further, is the Chamber collecting an evidence to prove how the Serbs are bad? During the process the Chamber repeatedly warned the President not to defend the Serbs, because the Serb people is not accused, but we see that it was accused and sentenced!)

At a meeting with Sarajevo municipality presidents and commanders of SRK units on 14 January 1994, the Accused suggested to “give a little more thought to the propaganda war” and to create a small propaganda staff.⁸⁸⁸⁴ (So what? #Is that a crime#? The Serbs were losing the propaganda war, because they didn't wage it at all! And the international mediators recognised it and suggested to the Serbs to do more about bringing the Serb part of truth!)

2661. These messages of suspicion and hatred were also reflected at a municipal level where messages were broadcast on the radio in the lead-up to the conflict to the effect that “the time had come for the Serbs to settle accounts with the balijas once and for all, and that the Serbs would no longer allow their ribs to be broken. They will no longer allow their children to be circumcised”.⁸⁸⁸⁵ (If it was in an official media, #it would be a widely known#, but many carnages, including one of 45 people from the place of KDZ239, were mutilated and already known as a tragedy, because it had been done after an agreement to let the column pass, and the column had been ambushed and massacred! Is the Chamber of an opinion that there wouldn't be any war had the Serbs been mute about so formidable preparations for the war? So, either it was a lie, or it was some “radio communication” among soldiers, but not in public media!)

2662. International observers such as Okun noted the constant references to, and intensity with which the President spoke about, the genocide committed against the Serbs and warned him that if he kept “talking about the genocide of the Serbs so much, you will commit a pre-emptive genocide”.⁸⁸⁸⁶ (#Said somebody else#! How possibly something that was said by Mr. Okun could be used in this Judgement, particularly against the President? This practice, as similar in this process, with a testimonies of many incompetent and ignorant international observers who dropped by in Bosnia from time to time, deeple compromise the Tribunal, as well as the internationals. The best advise would be – not to admit biased internationals in any area of crisis, not to talk to them, not to serve them diners, not to chat with them, and to communicate with them only by a public announcements! Of course, those that were incorrect are a vast minority compared to the very helpful internationals, but it was sufficient to have #only several incorrect internationals# to have a disaster in the public presentation of the marked side!) Okun made this statement to the President to express his shock at the argument that the genocide committed during World War II “justified all of Bosnian Serb behaviour”.⁸⁸⁸⁷ (#Said somebody else#! Again, an obscure “conclusion” of Okun is used as a “fact” against this President?!? Not even Communists in Yugoslavia would do it that way.) Mladić in meeting with international representatives also spoke about the genocide committed against Serbs in World War II in areas including Srebrenica and Sarajevo.⁸⁸⁸⁸ (This is senseless to object it, because it was the same on the entire territory of the NDH, (Independent State of Croatia) – and why would Mladic mention “Srebrenica and Sarajevo”? This is an #intention to fabricate a mens rea# for what was happening in Sarajevo and Srebrenica. A search for a premeditated plan, in spite of the fact that the Serbs were #against the war at any cost# is incorrect and malicious, so more since the crime against peace is not subject of this tribunal! Not to forget what Okun himself admitted, that his notes shouldn't be taken verbatim!

(One doesn't need to say anything after the following facts: Tudjman said that "they shall be hit so hard that will practically disappear; real, practical disappearance of the Serbs from Croatia; the Izetbegovic's "promis" to Tudjman that he will expel all of the Serbs from BiH; Ganic's "promises" to Tudjman, even after the Dayton, that we [the Muslims] will marginalize the Serbs, and, "you know that the international community will allowe us to marginalize the Serbs. See:...@. If the Chamber is taking into account such a material, then the Chamber wasn't fair towards the Defense when limited us in tendering similar evidence)

2663. Other Bosnian Serb leaders including Biljana Plavšić,⁸⁸⁸⁹ Nikola Koljević,⁸⁸⁹⁰ and Momčilo Krajišnik⁸⁸⁹¹ delivered speeches about the historical and contemporary threats faced by Serbs, the importance of all Serbs living in one state, and the political decisions made by Muslim and Croat representatives which made it impossible to live together. This sentiment was also reflected in political rallies attended by other Bosnian Serb leaders; for example at a rally in Banja Luka in November 1991, Predrag Radić stated "[t]wice they slaughtered us. We have forgiven but not forgotten. If they try to do the same for the third time, we shall neither forgive nor forget, regardless of how non-Christian it may be".⁸⁸⁹² (#Mentioning WWII genocide forbidden by the Tribunal#! The main issue is: was Mr. Radic telling lies? If he wasn't lying, why he would be guilty of anything? And who is entitled to ban the peoples that suffered genocides to talk about the subject? That would be the similar crime as the first one, and the Comminists in Yugoslavia forbade talking about the genocide during the WWII! Would it be the same as if somebody, as there are such a "somebody" – proposes that the Holocaust be banned to be mentioned?) At this same rally Krajišnik spoke about not allowing the "dark forces" to "destroy our common fatherland, to tear us into pieces".⁸⁸⁹³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! Krajisnik called for the preservation of our "common fatherland"!) The Accused spoke and said that by voting to remain in a federal state "with all the Serbian lands and those who wish to stay with us, we hope to, once and for all, put a circle by state where there will be no traitors, a state that will not fall apart every 20 years or so".⁸⁸⁹⁴ (Even #without context#, those words are not exaggerations, because it all was the truth. But it was spoken out in the middle of the political crisis of the destruction of Yugoslavia, and the armed skirmishes had started already, AND THE FIRST Serbian families slauthered in Zagreb. THIS IS NOT DECENT FROM ANY CHAMBER TO CONTEST THESE FACTS!)

2664. In January 1993, other deputies such as Vlado Kovačević spoke in the Bosnian Serb Assembly about the threat faced by the Serb people, and described the Islamic and Catholic threat as a "two-headed dragon" which wanted to destroy the Serb people and that Europe wanted to push them into being “imprisoned in the dark realm of Islam”.⁸⁸⁹⁵ (When Kovacevic gave his speech, he already in April 92 had in his small town Gacko 690 refugees, the Serbs from the Neretva River Valey, see R012-0676-0685 The UNHCR, lately disclosed in BATCH 1491. also, in his small town Gacko there is a very famous cave Koritska jama, which was filed by the innocent and helpless civilians in 1941. this is a very famous fact. The main issue is: if the #Tribunal doesn’t know these facts#, there shouldn’t be accusations why the Serbs mentioned it!) Krajišnik thanked Kovačević for his speech and praised him, saying “you are the best when we have opponents”.⁸⁸⁹⁶ (Senseless! What is wrong with that? That was a Krajišnik’s #courtesy#.) Krajišnik went on to say that the Bosnian Muslims were not a nation or a people and called on the Bosnian Serb Assembly to take a position that Muslims were a group of unbelievers, a sect, “a communist creation and that they are a religious group of Turkish orientation”.⁸⁸⁹⁷ (What the President has to do with the #statements of others#, who were members of Parliament, and therefore #free to tell whatever they wanted#? Beside that, up until 1963 the Muslims were considered only as a religious group, and they mainly declared themselves in an ethnic terms as a “non-decrealed”, or as Serbs, rarely as Croats. In any case, it was for the first time that a religious group was “proclaimed” as a separate ethnic group. (Since it seems important to the Chamber, and therefore must be important to the Defence, let us clarify: nobody said that the Muslims were unbelievers. It is well known, even among the scientists, that the Christianity and Islam are only a sects of Judaism. However, the Muslims in Yugoslavia were the Serbs, rarely Croats, who adopted Islam. Many of them, through the centuries, and the most prominent Muslim scientists and artists, writers, movie makers even now, kept identifying themselves as a Serbs. It was only after 1963. that the Communist party promoted them into a separate ethnic group. The quated words of Krajišnik delth with this issue, and the proposal was to stop considering the Muslims to be the Serbs any longer. But, it is totally irrelevant, as an #academic discussion#!) Krajišnik also spoke about the need to “take the Muslims out of Serbism for ever”.⁸⁸⁹⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! If they didn’t want to be Serbs any longer, the Serbs should stop considering them as a Serbs!) Šešelj also did not recognise the Bosnian Muslims as a people but described them as “Muslim Serbs” and stated that there was no such thing as a Bosnian language and that the Croatian nation was an “artificial nation under the direct patronage of the Catholic church”.⁸⁸⁹⁹ (This is all #scientific discussion# with a lot pro/con arguments, why it is important for this case? If it was posed as a problem, the Defence would obtain more evidence. Also, the #linguistic problems# appear again: To “take the Muslims out of Serbism (more appropriate – Serbdom) meant not to nourish the hopes that the Muslims will remember that they had been Serbs any more, which the extreme Muslims would like to here!)

2665. In addition to historic crimes committed against Serbs, there were also references made to the killing of Bosnian Serbs during the conflict. For example, when 29 Bosnian Serb soldiers were killed by ABiH forces, the funeral was held on 30 September 1992 at the Orthodox church in Vlasenica.⁸⁹⁰⁰ Over 1,000 people attended the funeral, including the Bosnian Serb leadership from

Pale that consisted of the President, Ostojić, Koljević, and Svetozar Andrić.⁸⁹⁰¹ The President and others gave speeches at the funeral and the speakers and the crowd “were very agitated and embittered” by the death of the Bosnian Serb soldiers.⁸⁹⁰² The Accused delivered a speech in which he said:

“Nor must we forget their executioners and attackers. I do not know if I am allowed to say that we must not forgive either. Who knows how many times this century our brothers, who are no brothers at all, have been at our throats. They assault our good men. But the Lords sees that and has given us strength to resist [...] I will keep telling the international powers that Serbs do not persecute anyone, that Serbs only defend their homes. And if they do not want to believe, it’s up to them. The God believes, and he turned his face to us, and He will help us get out of the darkness of slavery, fears, lies, pretence, and to become what every nation in the world deserves.⁸⁹⁰³

It was not only soldiers that had been killed, but peasants staying at their homes, guarding, and not attacking anyone. It was in the eve of the Conference in London, and the ceasefire was supposed to be respected, but the Muslim leaders wanted this drastic and unexpected action in order to have the Serbe to reject to attend the Conference, and for that purpose they #killed almost 30 innocent people#, among others to sabotage the London Conference. Whose “genocidal intent” was confirmed by this crime?

These speeches created a feeling that the Bosnian Serbs would be pardoned for whatever they did and created a fear that Bosnian Muslims who remained in Vlasenica would be killed.⁸⁹⁰⁴ The Chamber recalls its finding that following this funeral, approximately 140 detainees were taken from Sušica camp and killed by Serb Forces.⁸⁹⁰⁵ (The Chamber was able to hear the speech, not only to read the transcript, and to see that the speech was a depressive and mild, and not inflammatory in any sense!) The Accused also gave an interview on the day of the funeral and said: “We are concerned about Muslims, we want them to have their own territory. Since we wanted to separate from them, since we see that we can’t live together any longer. But, if they do not proclaim a realistic objective concerning territories, they may lose everything.”⁸⁹⁰⁶ (In the #context# of the conference the President was going to attend. Has nothing to do with the funeral)

2666. Such speeches were in contrast to statements the President made to international representatives. For example, in a meeting with General Morillon in February 1993, the President claimed that their army had discovered a mass grave containing more than 50 bodies in the recaptured territory south of Zvornik and that General Milovanović had requested that he not release this information as it would “inflame the local Serb population in the area.”⁸⁹⁰⁷ (So what? Is a politician obliged to speak in public as same as he speaks with the negotiators. The #political speeches# are with a specific aim, and sometimes even a negotiating speeches are stronger than would be at the end, as even witness Donia admitted. He agreed that at a beginning of any negotiations, a negotiating positions are higher than it would be at the end. So there is always some space for compromises! But, the most important is: there were discovered the mass graves, and Gen. Morillon himself attended some of the mass funerals. And if the President didn't say too much in public about the matter, and said to the negotiator, it should be understood as an attempt of the President not to inflame the public! Not a single good deed of the President went unpunished!

However, the Chamber notes that Savkić’s evidence was marked by multiple contradictions and indicators that he was not forthright in his testimony and therefore does not rely on his evidence in this regard. In addition the Chamber has had regard to the text of the speech itself, and Savkić’s evidence is in direct contradiction to the content of that speech.

2667. At a meeting of Serb representatives on 8 January 1993 in Belgrade with the President in attendance, Vladislav Jovanović, who was the foreign minister of Serbia, stated that the destruction of the Serb people was a necessary condition of the plan to divide the FRY.⁸⁹⁰⁸ (So what? It was well known that some of the European countries, Germany at first place, didn't want Yugoslavia to exist, and they assessed that there were the three guards against the destruction of Yugoslavia: the Communist party, the JNA and the Serbian people, which was living in almost all of the republics, because the republic borders were provisional and arbitrary. If Jovanovic meditated why we are under the attack, he was right, the Communist party was ruined already, the JNA was in the troubles, and only Serbs opposed to an unlawful destruction of the country.)

2669. At a symposium of the VRS held on 15 January 1994, in the presence of the President, Mladić opened his speech with: “For three years now our people have been shedding blood, defending their country and infants from Ustasha and Islamic hordes which have, for decades, in secret and from within the bosom of our people, been preparing its extermination”.⁸⁹¹³ (First of all, if Gen. Mladic intended to say what he wrote in his notebook, it doesn't mean that he spoke like that. Certainly, he couldn't take a notes of his own speech. Second, what is wrong with what he said, if he said it? Third, what does it have to do with the President?)

2670. The evidence above demonstrates that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership in their speeches repeatedly and consistently referred to the historic grievances of the Serb people and the crimes which were committed against them by Muslims and Croats. The Chamber finds that these speeches were used by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership to remind the Bosnian Serb population about crimes committed against Serbs and emphasised the need to ensure they would not be repeated. (Even if so, what would be criminal in it? But, the Chamber adopted the Prosecutor's formula that those speeches "reminded" the Bosnian Serbs on what they have experienced from the Muslims and Croats. Contrary to that, the Defence have shown that there was no a Serb family that didn't have an innocent victim during WWII, and that many contemporaries were still alive. This is ridiculous. So, if the Chamber pays any attention to those issues, then the Chamber was obliged either to allowe the Defense to submit evidence on the subject, or to facilitate their own expert for the WWII and the Serbian memories on it. Otherwise, this sounds as an insult. If anything from this denial of the sufferings of the Serbs in WWII served as a basis for this deliberations and the outcome of the trial, the trial is wothrless and should be either repeated, or the President acquitted! Let us see what Colin Powel said about the Serb fears:

Colin Powell: The biggest mistake was recognizing all these little countries when they started to decide they were independent. [...] The Serbs had very good reason to be worried about being in a Muslim-dominated country. #It wasn't just paranoia#. (Henry Louis Gates, Colin Powell and the Black Elite, The New Yorker, 25 September 1995) In order to convey this message the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership often portrayed the Muslims and Croats as the historic enemies of the Serbs and stressed the importance of recognising this fact for the future survival of the Serb people. The Accused also used these historic references to emphasise the important role of the SDS in protecting the Serbs. (#Was there a genocide during WWII#? So what? If the Chamber was considering the causes of the war, then it should be notified in advance and enabled the Defence to present it's case! Otherwise, it is irrelevant, and serves only as a proof of the biase of the entire project case ICTY!

- 1. This could have a significance for this trial only if it was established that it was false assertion,
- 2. that there was no genocides against the Serbs that were committed by the Croats and Muslims in the WWI and WWII,
- 3. and if established that the Serbian people didn't know it, but the President and his associates indoctrinate them, and finally
- 4. that there were no the elections in Croatia end BiH were the #Hitler's allies won#.
- 5. The Chamber is trying to establish a liability for war, although the Defence was prevented to present the arguments that would directly justify the speeches that are now taken as the President's and his associate's "crimes".

2671. The Accused also often referred to the genocide committed against Serbs during World War II which made them a minority in BiH and asserted that they could not allow the Bosnian Muslims to declare themselves a majority people in BiH on this basis. (This also is not correct. The Muslims had an ambition to turn BiH into a monoethnic state, a new monoethnic nation, while the Serbs and Croats would be minorities. The Serbs supported the Croatian status as a constituent people, no matter they were about 17% of population.) The references to the genocide committed against the Serbs was also used as justification for renewing the historical claims to land in BiH where they had once been a majority.⁸⁹¹⁴ (But those claims hadn't been either a cause of war, or a reason for any atrocities. #Pure political speeches#, but the UN court seems to be against any #political life of the Serbs# in Bosnia! Such a huge changes of the entire region were planned and pursued by others, and the Serbs are forbidden to express their political interests. What would be the UN court's position if the Serbs were a revolutionary side, demanding changes, instead of being conservative, defending the existing state of Yugoslavia?) The Chamber finds that speeches and messages of this nature were delivered by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership from as early as 1990 and continued throughout the conflict in BiH. (Why it is of any interest of the Chamber. This was a political struggle initiated by the secessionist republics, and the #Chamber is making an arbitrage in a political dialectics#. If they really wanted to see what ideas were responsible for the crimes, since they didn't search for the cause of the war, they should study the speeches of others too, and the Islamic declaration obligatorily.)

2672. As these speeches demonstrate, the reference to the historical threats faced by the Serbs was used by the President to justify his position that the Serbs would not allow themselves to be separated or outvoted in BiH. It was also used to promote the idea that the Bosnian Serbs could not live together with the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and formed the foundation for the separation of the three people and the creation of an ethnically homogeneous Serb state.

(#Contrary to the true positions.# A #dilettant distortion of truth#! This was not a question of living with others, but whether living as a free and equal, or a in-slavered people! If the Muslim/Croat coalition wanted to live with the Serbs as an equal people, they wouldn't convey a horrifying genocide during the WWII, because the Serbs in the NDH (Croatia and Bosnia) didn't do anything to provoke this genocide! The Serbs wanted to stay in Yugoslavia with all others. The others wanted to create their national states, and did it on a criminal and anti-constitutional way. The Serbs then wanted to continue with this "transformation of Yugoslavia, i.e to have in BiH the three ethnically based states, not only "the Serb" state. If the Chamber really wanted to establish what that meant, there are many evidence in the file to establish that a "homogeneity" didn't mean "clear" but it pertained to the distribution of the territories in accordance with its ethnic distribution.)

(This is a dilettante distortion of the truth. The Serbs were completely clear: they wanted to live with all of the Yugoslav nation, provided they live in Yugoslavia, with their rights guaranteed by the federal state. So, this is incorrect and deliberate misinterpretation and denigration of the Serbs as a xenophobic people, who can not live with the others. But, it is so clear even to the guards in the Tribunal, that it was not the case. The problem is to be equal and free, or to be dominated by the traditionally antagonized neighbour. The Chamber is forcing the Defense to hold a political argumentation. What is this? Doesn't the UN and it's Court justify what happened to the Serbs in Croatia, Macedonia, Montenegro, Kosovo? They do not exist there any more, and this is the responsibility of the international community! Why it would be better is the Serbs in Bosnia failed to defend their rights?)

The Chamber also finds that this rhetoric, which was amplified by the media, had the effect of adding to ethnic divisions and tension in BiH and incited inter-ethnic hatred. (it could be said only by someone who just came from the March. The hatred is old almost a millennium, and this generation had a little to do with this. The Defense is deceived because it was prevented to show what was the anti-Serb propaganda, and present other evidence of a horrifying treatment of the Serbe, because the Chamber always indulged the Prosecutor's claim "Tu quoque".) The Chamber further finds that it encouraged Serbs to fight for what was portrayed as their survival and to fight for the creation of a state were all Serbs would be united. (The Chamber finding is wrong, because it was not the Serbs who didn't want to live together with others, but those ethnics who wanted to secede from Yugoslavia and make their national states, with the Serbs as an ethnic minorities. This kind of ignorance of the subject of this process is unacceptable, and looks like mockery. The only nation who called to live together were the Serbs. Being a constituent nation, and taking into account the constitutional safeguards against any unilateral secession, the Serbs opposed their degradation to the minority status. What is not understandable in it?)

2673. These speeches also demonstrate that the Bosnian Serb leadership went so far as to suggest that the Bosnian Muslims were not a nation or a people at all and that Islam posed a threat to the Bosnian Serbs. (Erroneous conclusion. Wrong inference Whether the Muslims were a Serbs of the Islamic religion, which many people are convinced, even Lord Owen, or they are a separate ethnicity is not a dilemma of yesterday, but it doesn't have any but academic relevance. We think they are the Serbs, but nobody prevents them to be whatever they wanted. Neither war, nor any crime appeared because of it. If the Serbs equalize the Muslims to themselves, it is not denigration or degradation, or rascism, but rather claims for equality!)

(C) Reaction to proposed independence of BiH

(1) Analysis of evidence

2674. The Chamber took judicial notice that a confidential SDS document, dated 23 February 1991, considered specific actions to be taken should BiH move towards independence.⁸⁹¹⁵ (Adjudicated fact!?) This document provided that in this situation, municipal authorities were to ensure that only Yugoslav (federal) law would apply, suspending the implementation of republican regulations and thus creating a foundation for direct communication and co-operation between the municipalities and Yugoslavia and its organs. It also provided for the engagement of the JNA and the Federal Secretariat for National Defence.⁸⁹¹⁶ (Adjudicated fact!?) This policy was adopted by the SDS Deputies' Club, the parliamentary caucus of the party, and was made public in a document dated 10 June 1991.⁸⁹¹⁷ (Adjudicated fact!?) This document indicated the opposition of the Serbian deputies to unilateral action which would break up Yugoslavia.⁸⁹¹⁸ They also expressed their opposition to the separation of the Bosnian Serbs from Yugoslavia.⁸⁹¹⁹ At a meeting of the SDS Deputies' Club on 30 September 1991, the President stated: "We are politically most numerous in Yugoslavia and Bosnia. Nothing can be done in BiH without the Serbs and their will".⁸⁹²⁰ (The same comment as in para 2643: Wrong translation of the document, P2543:

Jugoslavija najvažnije je naše političko postojanje i BiH. Bez Srba i njihove volje ne u BiH ne može ništa napredovati.

and wrong interpretation. In the original it meant that the most important for the existence of the Serb people to have Yugoslavia and Bosnia exist, not as it was interpreted:

⁸⁹¹⁵ See Adjudicated Fact 1917.

⁸⁹²⁰ P2543 (Minutes of meeting of SDS deputies' club, 30 September 1991).

We are politically most numerous in Yugoslavia and Bosnia. Nothing can be done in BH without the Serbs and their will.

The second sentence is correct, but this certainty didn't rely on the number of citizens, but on the constitutional guarantees. Further, the "war goal" of the Serbian people" pertained to the Serbs in the entire Yugoslavia, not to the Serbs in Bosnia, where there was no a war, and couldn't concern with the Serbs in BiH.

(This was the Serb #constitutional right and obligation#, to respect the priority of the Federal state and the federal laws over the republican. The legalist Serbs could only cry: "President Linkoln, where are you?!?")

(Nothing here was illegal, clandestine, aggressive or out of the scope of a political party work. Now we see how unjust was the process, when the Defense was prevented to tender many opinions of the most prominent officials of the international community, who among other, supported this Tribunal. Those opinions were unanimously characterizing these secessions as a unilateral, unlawful and anti-constitutional. Is the Chamber incriminating he Serb political life, as the Prosecution tried?)

2675. The Chamber recalls that in October 1991, the coalition government in SRBiH broke down and during the night of 14 to 15 October 1991, the President addressed the SRBiH Assembly, stressing that the proposed secession of BiH from Yugoslavia was unconstitutional and was against the will of the Bosnian Serb people.⁸⁹²¹ While the President professed that he was not acting like the "God of war", he emphasised that the Serb people wanted to live in Yugoslavia and that if the same situation developed in BiH as it did in Slovenia and Croatia, "the hell would be one thousand times worse".⁸⁹²² (#Prophesy to punish#! According to which law it was punishable to profess such a development? And was it one thousand times worse? Did the President try to persuade the deputies of the common Assembly to go towards a war, or was he trying to #dissuade them from a war#?) He also stated that while he was not threatening the Bosnian Muslims, he was asking them one more time to take seriously the will of the Serbian people. (Again, the President underlined that it was the Serbian people's will, not his own. There were many Serbian uprisals in BiH in the past centuries, much earlier in times before the President had been born, and he knew what the people he represented could accept and what not! The President repeatedly stated that the SDS does not create the policy of the Serbs in Bosnia, but only interpret in and present it. If it wasn't presented literally, the people would turn back to some other, more extreme parties!) He finished with a warning that "[t]his is the road that you want [BiH] to take, the same highway of hell and suffering that Slovenia and Croatia went through. Don't think you won't take [BiH] to hell and Muslim people in possible extinction. Because, Muslim people will not be able to defend itself if it comes to war here!"⁸⁹²³ Given that these speeches were broadcast, the sentiments and particularly the suggestion that a people would disappear created fear among the Bosnian Muslim population.⁸⁹²⁴ (This was an #anti-war speech#, and if the Chamber doesn't consider that, it can not be taken as a crime in any other way. It was a public speech in the Parliament, within the discussion on the matter of the independence of BiH, pursued unilaterally and anti-constitutionally. As can be seen below, both the President and his community retreated from this position and made many concessions in order to avoid the war, so that C. Vance confirmed on 8 March 92 that the President was ready to avoid the war at any cost, see:..D01833

Cutileiro talks. Dr. Radovan Karadzic, the leader of the Serbs, was also positively inclined towards these talks. He wanted to avoid a war at all costs in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Secretary Vance

This is the #first class evidence#, given by the highest international and the UN representative, and this is an evidence of an evolution of the Serb position and also a prove of their #concessions and decisiveness to avoid the war#. So, how possibly the Chamber could accept the Prosecutor's claim that the Overarching Joint Criminal Enterprise was established in October 1991? Between October 1991 and the beginning of the war there was a development of positions with a constant Serb concessions, to the acceptance of the secession of BiH provided there would be transformation of the inner structure, which was accepted by the EC and UN! Had the Lisbon Agreement survived, there would be no war, no any war crimes, and the solution would be more or less the same as in the Dayton Agreement! And it is well known that the Serbs remained faithful to this Agreement!)

2676. This statement was greeted with a loud reaction from the BiH assembly to which the President responded "I know these are serious words. Serious situations call for serious words. How will you prevent that everybody start killing everybody in [BiH]" and he concluded that he wanted them to take the matter of the independence of BiH off the agenda.⁸⁹²⁵ (#Context, course of events#! Between this speech of the President and the beginning of the war there were many events, including the Conference on BiH led by the European Community, with the aim to facilitate a compromise. The seriousness of the situation as described by the President was recognized by the entire international community, particularly the EC and UN, and that is why both of them nominated their mediators far before the war broke out, and the special Bosnian Conference was posted within the Conference on former Yugoslavia. Had it not been so serious, there wouldn't be a #separate conference on BiH#!, as it wasn't for Macedonia, Montenegro, Slovenia. But, is the Chamber of an opinion that the state of mind of an entire people was a cause of the war? How many alternatives to the war the #Serbs offered and accepted#, but the Muslim side kept the only variante that secured the war? #The interest for a war is crucial# in determining any mens rea, any joint criminal enterprise, any criminal plan. Those who wanted to avoid the war could not have any criminal plan!)

2677. This was not the only occasion on which the President spoke in these terms about the inability of the Bosnian Muslims to survive if they insisted on independence which would lead to civil war. On 4 September 1991, he told Krajišnik: "We'll make our point, you see, that's where it leads, where your policies lead!!! [...] Do you realise that you will disappear in all this?! [...] Man, you will disappear. Many of us will also disappear, but you will be annihilated!"⁸⁹²⁶ In response, Krajišnik suggested that they should deliberately say that both sides would disappear and the President agreed.⁸⁹²⁷ (Again, it was a #prediction, not threat#, and that was a result of a political meditation on a possibility that already had been seen in Croatia, where it was a civil war, to a higher degree than in Slovenia. On what occasion the President said that? It was on the occasion of the armed skirmishes in Bratunac, when the Muslim SDA activists prevented the JNA in taking its record, and the Muslims tried to assassinate Rodoljub Djukanovic, the president of the Executive Board of Bratunac, then there was the killing in Kravica, and so on. The President said to Krajičnik what he intended to say to Izetbegovic concerning his policy. This crisis was one of the first bloody fruits of the SDA policy, and it was clear that the President opposed this policy. Even out of the context, this can not be used against the President, because it was aimed to dissuade the SDA from such a policy!

2634. The President made a similar observation in an intercepted conversation on 12 October 1991 where he said that if the Bosnian Muslims started a war “they should be thrashed” and that they would “disappear, that people will disappear from the face of the earth [...], if they start now. Our offer was their only chance”.⁸⁹²⁸ (The same, #EXCULPATORY#! Dissuading from the war policy!) The President continued and said that they did not understand that they would be “up to their necks in blood and that the Muslim people would disappear, the poor Muslims would disappear, who don’t know where he is taking them” (Meaning the poor Muslims didn’t know where is their leader Izetbegovic was leading them!) and that it would be a “real bloodbath”.⁸⁹²⁹ In a similar vein in another conversation on the same day, the President repeated that the “Muslims know what it is, it is hell in which five-six hundreds of thousands of them will disappear, they will disappear”.⁸⁹³⁰ (Such a fearful predictions are not a crime. Particularly since it was made with the aim to dissuade the Muslims from the course of events that led towards the war.)

(Yet the Chamber interpreted the #political as well as academic# discussions as threats#, or a predictions based on some hidden intentions of the President. However, had the Chamber, as the OTP didn’t, read the President’s words with seriousness, it would be clear that the President’s position as the position of all the Bosnian Serbs was always defensive. The position was that the Muslim illegal sovereignty can not be introduced to the Serbian homes and areas, and therefore they would need a war, to impose the independence to the Serbs. The Serbs #didn’t have to wage any war# to keep what they did have – a Federal state and federal laws, which were superior to any republican. Just see what this President said about this how far the imposed sovereignty would spread: (not further from the Kozja Cuprija, Goats bridge,) But, there is a plenty of evidence that the Serbs wouldn’t fight to achieve anything, but would prevent the Muslim authorities to enter their regions and their homes, see below! Also, a threat must be directed to a subject that is threatened, while a #wards of prediction# communicated to the others can not be considered as a threat, because in such a case it is not aimed to produce any effect! This must be built up in a jurisprudence!)

2679. The President echoed this sentiment in an intercepted conversation with Mandić on 13 October 1991 in which he also referred to what happened in Croatia. The President said that what would happen had nothing to do with his decision or anyone else’s decision but they knew what was going to happen in BiH and that “[i]n just a couple of days, Sarajevo will be gone and there will be five hundred thousand dead, in one month Muslims will be annihilated in BiH”.⁸⁹³¹ (Exactly, the President said that nothing will depend on him, since the Serbian people sees what is happening to their brother Serbs in Croatia. In corroboration to this assertion, we may remind ourselves on the telephone conversation between M. Koroman and the President, P00962,

Malko	Well, this, I heard this morning that MARTIĆ was blocked up there in Otoka.
KOROMAN:
Malko	And please, you are to, tell this er, a..., a..., CENGIC freely, that if Mr.
KOROMAN:	MARTIĆ is not released, he is going to have all Romanija region above Sarajevo tonight...
Malko	That is our personal opinion, er, I spoke to Romanija guys and our attitude is
KOROMAN:	that we are not going to let them get away with this, because it means that tomorrow they can do it to you or to anyone in this way...
Radovan	Yes, yes, now, I will tell him that now but, er, they said they were going to go
KARADŽIĆ:	and I was... er, told me that this ŽEPINIĆ was going to go. I will call him now... and other documents proving that the ordinary people would act on their own initiative, had they felt in jeopardy!

2680. In a telephone conversation on 15 October 1991, the Accused spoke about the attempt to create an independent BiH, and said “[t]welve percent of Serbs made hell in Croatia, they didn’t allow an Ustasha state to be introduced into their homes, and these here are trying to do this with thirty-five percent” and further stated: “[t]hat would mean war until their extinction. [...] The Serbs would never forgive them such a thing, it would destroy them completely. First, none of their leaders would survive, they’d all be killed in three to four hours. They’d stand no chance of surviving whatsoever”.⁸⁹³² (Many of these intercepts were just before or after 15 October 91, in the occasion of the famous Assembly session on which the Muslim/Croat coalition voted for the independence. In such a dramatic circumstances all the emotions were excited, because this was a final, climax of the crisis. But anyway, the President only #predicted what would happen#, not what would he like to happen#, let alone what would he initiate. Also it wasn’t communicated to the Muslims and can not be considered as a threat.

(If the Chamber interpret the President’s #prediction as his plans#, then it is insane. Neither the President led the Serbs in Croatia, but they didn’t allowe the Ustasha regime “to be introduced in their homes” nor could the President stop the Serbs in Bosnia to prevent the same. From the structure and nature of those conversations it is clearly visible that the President expresses his own #opinion and expectations, not his intentions#, which was confirmed in an intercepted conversation (D @) when he said that he doesn’t know to wage a war, and he doesn’t want to wage a war.

2635. The Accused also warned Izetbegović that if the Bosnian Muslims proceeded with a constitution and referendum for BiH, the Serbs would not be able to recognise BiH since “events will overrun you” and that he would not be able to hold back the “extremists” who he had until then restrained with “all [his] might”.⁸⁹³³ (#EXCULPATORY#! Exactly, what is in the previous comment. The Chamber could draw the only reasonable inference that Karadzic was against the war, and that the events wouldn’t depend on him. Here is a portion of the conversation:

Yes, yes, I don’t know how will it, how will it reflect on us, this referendum of theirs, but we told Alija here that, we told him yesterday, that there is no more conversations, if you go with the platform, with the constitution and referendum. We don’t, there is no discussion, events will overrun you and you will not be able to recognise Bosnia in ten days. And it really is like that, I am holding our extremists back with all my might, but now..., when..., if, they start the procedure with the platform and the constitution and the referendum, there is no discussion, there is no Bosnia, nobody can recognise it, nobody will be able to recognise it! It is not possible, I cannot hold the people.

In the same document (P5877) there is the first killings in BiH, and the President is informing President Milosevic about that, pointing out the importance of the time and pace of finding out solutions that are today possible, and tomorrow may not be possible, :

Karadžić: So that we have to bear that in mind, too, however, people are already being Radovan: killed, there, they shot at some of our people, wounded them, then ours killed
 Karadžić: two of theirs, of their bullies (“kabadahijas”).
 Radovan: Deputy Commander of some secret unit of theirs... etc, it is there in Bratunac. I told him that the events to occur soon will make some of the solutions impossible, that maybe at the moment these solutions are possible but tomorrow they will not be possible any more. Everybody is sending their regards, Gaša

(And that this was exactly as it was said it is corroborated with the evidence from Prijedor (they said: “who is Karadzic to tell us what to do? Let him speak in Sarajevo”. Or from Bratunac, when Mr. M. Deronjic said that Milosevic-Karadzic policy of preserving Yugoslavia was wrong and there will be different now!) In October 1991, the President told Milošević that the solution Izetbegović was pursuing could “trigger a long-lasting civil war” and that the Bosnian Serbs would not accept the BiH authorities “in 40 municipalities and all forces would be turned towards opposing this”; in short, the situation would be even worse than in Croatia.⁸⁹³⁴ Milošević responded that it would be better than in Croatia because the balance of forces was “vastly more favourable”.⁸⁹³⁵ (This is a mere fact, and a hope that nobody will chose a war while can not win. What is wrong in that? It was clear to the United Nations and the European Community that the Serbs would simply reject the hostile fundamentalist authorities, and this fundamentalist authorities couldn’t achieve their supremacy over the Christian majority without a war!)

2682. The Chamber recalls that after the SRBiH Assembly was adjourned on 15 October 1991 and the Bosnian Serb delegates walked out, the HDZ and SDA delegates reconvened without the Serb delegates and passed a declaration of sovereignty.⁸⁹³⁶ (#Illegal Assembly session#! It was an illegal session of the Assembly, which could be “reconvened” only by the Chairman, or with his authority! But, it seems to the Chamber that the law and Constitution don’t mean too much! The only one who could reconvene the Assembly session was it’sh Chairman, Mr. Krajisnik. #Illegal session means illegal everything#, and anything that was produced at such a session was nul and void. But some part of the international community do not care about legal norms!) The SDS Political Council then met to assess the situation.⁸⁹³⁷ At this meeting it was noted that the Serbs had to “shed the illusion that a form of coexistence with the Muslims and Croats can be found”.⁸⁹³⁸ (The Prosecution, and now even the Chamber, is confusing two crucial elements: there was no any problem with the multy-ethnicity, but only with the organisation of the state. In other word, the Serbs in BiH, as well as those in Croatia, didn’t feel secure without protection of the federal state, federal laws and Constitution. Thi is deeply unfair to shift the main issue of security towards a ethnic intolerance!) The SDS leadership demanded that the declaration of sovereignty be repealed before 24 October 1991.⁸⁹³⁹ The SDS position was that unless the declaration of sovereignty was withdrawn within seven days, the SDS would instruct its members to leave governmental institutions and start creating parallel institutions.⁸⁹⁴⁰ The Bosnian Serb leadership also objected to earlier violations by the Bosnian Muslims of the inter-party agreement on the sharing of power in BiH.⁸⁹⁴¹ (So what? This was the #Serb democratic response to a non-democratic violation# of the Constitution. Why the Chamber takes this arguments in favour of a convicting judgement? No law or any international provision can deprive one of the constituent communities to rely on the Constitution! If there is no Constitution, if one side dismisses the fundamental act as constitution, then the people has rights to self-organisation!

2683. On 24 October 1991 the President complained to Slobodan Milošević about the steps which had been taken by Izetbegović towards the independence of BiH.⁸⁹⁴² The President indicated that they had given Izetbegović a deadline to abolish the decisions taken with respect to the independence of BiH, but Izetbegović did not intend to abolish them.⁸⁹⁴³ The President explained that they would “respond with all means possible” and that they would “establish Yugoslavia in all the areas where we live”.⁸⁹⁴⁴ He continued and told Milošević that the Bosnian Muslims wanted “Europe, to give them a state in which we would be locked within these borders by international agreements, we can’t allow that, we have to [...] prepare everything, and we have prepared everything to create a de facto situation [...] which they will break their teeth on, they simply have to break them, there is no way we will live in a country with them. No, no way at all, that’s it”.⁸⁹⁴⁵ (This was the Serb right to reject such a huge change of the status without their consent and against everything that the Constitutions of the SFRY and BiH guaranteed to them! This was a flagrant #violation of the Serb rights#, and the western “international community” didn’t react. Any reasonable chamber would see that the #Serb side only reacted# to the violations of the most important and fundamental rights, by a democratic means!)

2684. Slobodan Milošević encouraged the Accused to speak to Izetbegović to explain the position of the Bosnian Serbs but the Accused responded that Izetbegović was a religious fanatic who could not be talked to.⁸⁹⁴⁶ When Milošević asked whether he should speak to Izetbegović, the Accused responded that he could tell Izetbegović that “Karadžić and the others will not give up on establishing an Assembly and parallel organs of authority” and that the “Serbian Assembly” would decide on what was to be respected and not.⁸⁹⁴⁷ The Accused also suggested that Milošević tell Izetbegović “that the Serbs are moving on [...] that you can’t exert influence over us to mellow things down. We are moving on. We will establish full authority over the Serbian territories in BiH [...]. He will not be able to exercise power. He will not have control over 65% of his territory. That is our goal”.⁸⁹⁴⁸ (#over the Serbian territories# Once the Muslims violated the basic principles of the Constitution, particularly those that were guaranteeing the security of the entire constituent people, there was no more Constitution. At that moment the Serbs did have every #rights to self-organisation and self-defence#. From this document it is clear that the Serbs didn’t plan any aggressive move, but only defensive, to prevent the hostile regime to take over the Serb homes. And these 65% of the territory with the Serb majority wasn’t result of any military action, that was the fact far before the war!)

2685. Milošević questioned whether it was wise to use “an illegitimate act in response to another illegitimate act” and questioned the legality of forming a Bosnian Serb Assembly. However, the President dismissed this and stressed the illegality of the measures taken by the Bosnian Muslims and the importance of the Bosnian Serb interests.⁸⁹⁴⁹ The President emphasised that they held power in 37 municipalities and had relative majority in about ten municipalities and that they would not implement “any of their decisions” given that they were leading them to secession from

Yugoslavia.⁸⁹⁵⁰ (This is only another proof that Serbia didn't run the Republic of Srpska and that the President and President Milosevic weren't of the same opinion. President Milosevic was not right, implying that the Serbs shouldn't respond on an illegitimate act by another of the same kind: what illegitimate act, according to what? According to the Constitution which the Muslims ruined? Once the Muslim/Croat coalition dismissed the Federal and the BiH Constitution, there was nothing to respect! Finally, the #Badinter's commission gave the Serbs right#, and all the conferences right to the Dayton! How come the UN #Tribunal doesn't accept what the UN approved and put in a UNSC Resolution#?)

2686. Milošević also suggested that they should not announce the Bosnian Serb Assembly but the President responded “[b]ut we have to announce it! There can be no discussion about it, this is an obligation of the Serbian people and the representatives of the Serbian people in [the] executive, because they will start arresting us, they’ll start pacifying municipalities forcibly, forcibly, installing special forces, we will not allow that”.⁸⁹⁵¹ When Slobodan Milošević suggested that the President not call it an assembly, the President insisted: “No [...] we can’t do that to the people. The people [...] feel they have been robbed and destroyed”.⁸⁹⁵² (A perfect evidence that the Sebs in BiH were autonomous from Belgrade! There was many other disagreements and discussions, until President Milosevic got into some obligations to the West, and did a lot efforts to through the President out of the Office!))

2687. In this same conversation Slobodan Milošević expressed his reservations about how a Bosnian Serb Assembly could exclude the Muslims who were “for Yugoslavia”, but the President replied: “There are none, President! Not even 10% [...] we can’t take a risk for those 10%! That’s out of the question! The Serbian people want a clear situation. We cannot go on pretending anymore. They’ve destroyed us, we have to respond. We can’t just mobilise the people for nothing”.⁸⁹⁵³

2688. The President also stated that “the army can no longer agree to cease-fires, it is out of the question. Tudman has to be militarily crushed, the military might of Croatia has to be destroyed. I guarantee you that after Friday 500,000 Serbs must rise again, there can be no more discussion about it, this is destroying, exhausting, crippling, dragging us into the winter and we will all be ruined”.⁸⁹⁵⁴ (Even now many would say that the President was right. The Croatian secessionsis attacket Yugoslavia, illegally changed the Constitution, expelled the Serbs from the Constitution, created a secret army, clandestinely armed it, and finally attacked Yugoslavia on the territories where the Serbs made majority! The JNA was obliged to preserve the territorial integrity without waiting any special order. If it was Izrael, the Army would be in the Croatian Capitol within a few days, instead of exhausting itself, it’s resources, and creating a bad image in the world public! But, this pertained to the war in Croatia, and is not relevant for this case, since it was the President’s private opinion, a sort of “tith-for-that” with President Milosevic, who wanted to influence the Bosnian Serbs! During the war in Bosnia the President also ordered a maximum of restraint on the battlefield!) When Slobodan Milošević suggested a more considered approach without getting excited, the Accused replied: “No, we’re not excited at all. Our steps are calculated and we have to establish authority and control over our territories, so that he doesn’t get his sovereign Bosnia. Croatia doesn’t have control over 30% of its territory, and Bosnia will not have control over 60% of its territory!”⁸⁹⁵⁵ (#Control over our territories#! The President described to President Milosevic what he ought to do, as did President Linkoln, when the country was facing the destruction. He didn’t do as Lincoln would. That is why now there is no Serbs in their eternal areas in Croatia and Kosovo! The Great Britain didn’t allow the Falkland Islands to unilaterally secede, nor it allowed the Northern Ireland to join the Republic of Ireland, and this is #the most similar example (Northern Ireland)#: majority of Unionists in the north part of the Irish island, the same as the Serb majority in a big portion of BiH!)

2689. Despite these words of caution, Slobodan Milošević, in meetings with international representatives, did not accept the independence of BiH and spoke of the desire of all Serbian people to live together.⁸⁹⁵⁶ (Because it had been a status quo, it had been achieved in 1918, but with the Communist tricks it was ruined. Any resistance to the illegal moves is obligatory!) In September 1991, Milošević told the Accused that they should “get mobilised, acquire the arms and get going”.⁸⁹⁵⁷ (A #CRIMINAL DISTORTION#! This is a forgery of the worst kind. President Milosevic responded to the President’s question whether the ceasefire with Croatia is sincere, and President Milosevic responded that it seems sincere for a short term, because they are in troubles, but will not be sincere for a long term. They (The Croatian Army) would mobilize, get armament and continue with their path: see P5861, p. 5:

Karadžić Radovan:	A, šta...mislite da je ova ovo iskreno prihvatanje primirja?
Milošević Slobodan:	Pa, za sada je iskreno, zato što su u teškoj situaciji.
Karadžić Radovan:	Da, da.
Milošević Slobodan:	Ali, nije iskreno u dugoročnom smislu.
Karadžić Radovan:	Da. U dugoročnom smislu....
Milošević Slobodan:	Dok poprave situaciju, mobilišu se i nabave oružje, opet će da krenu.
Karadžić Radovan:	Da, da.
Milošević Slobodan:	O tome se radi.

Karadžić Milošević Slobodan:	And what... do you think it is honest accepting of the cease-fire? Well, for now it has been honest, since they are in a difficult situation.
Karadžić Radovan:	Yes, yes.
Milošević Slobodan:	But it is not honest in a long-term sense.
Karadžić Radovan:	Yes. In a long-term sense...
Milošević Slobodan:	Until they improve the situation, get mobilised, acquire the arms and get going.
Karadžić Radovan:	Yes, yes.
Milošević Slobodan:	That is the point.

So,

President Milosevic described what the Croats are going to do, to temporarily respect the ceasefire, until they mobilise more people and arme them, and then they are going to continue with the fights. However, the Chamber interpreted it in the above paragraph as if President Milosevic gave an advise to the President what to do and what the Serbs should do! Couldn't be worse distortion. In the same document the President confirmed that the Serbs do not need any party units, and that the SDS is supporting mobilisation and it's influence is stopped at the entrance of the JNA barracks. President Karadžić also confirmed what were the "Serb war objectives: only those of the Army, to defend the country, wrongly translated as "to defend the Army: See P5861:

Karadžić Radovan:	To, ovde, tu bi mog'o puno da pomogne ovaj Sava Janković, komandant Tuzlanskog korpusa. Da malo, da malo, objedini to. Mi nemamo stvarno nigdje nihi dopuštamo da naš narod se naoružava, ili da ima neku ...neke svoje ideje o ratu. Ili o....ima da e javljaju armiji i gotovo!
Milošević Slobodan:	Samo to. Sigurno.
Karadžić Radovan:	Armiji. Mi nemamo ratnih ciljeva drugih, osim onih koje ima armija. To je odbrana zemlje.
Karadžić Radovan:	That, here, Sava JANKOVIĆ could help a lot here, Tuzla Corpus Commander. To unify it. We don't really have, nor are we allowing our people to get armed, or to have some, some ideas of theirs on the war. Or about... they have to report to the army and that's it!
Milošević Slobodan:	Only that. For sure.
Karadžić Radovan:	To the army. We don't have any other war targets except for those that the army has. That is the defence of the army.
Milošević Slobodan:	Yes.

his was a genuine expression on the "war objectives of the Serbs" but neither the Prosecution, nor the Chamber payed any attention to this important sentence! Also, in September 1991 there was no a war in Bosnia, and how the Chamber could have allowed it's associates to make such a huge error?) In November 1991, when the Accused informed Milošević that Izetbegović did not want BiH to be in Yugoslavia, Milošević asked him to "take care of this and nothing else".⁸⁹⁵⁸ The Accused responded that he would but that they should "prepare a reserve variant" because he did not "know what will it be like tomorrow".⁸⁹⁵⁹ (A precaution forbidden to the Serbs#!) In a conversation with General Uzelac on 2 November 1991, the President discussed the mobilisation of the Serb population in BiH, stating "I'll call all the presidents of the municipalities [...] to deploy the army".⁸⁹⁶⁰ (Without a #temporal context# this may sound whatever someone wants, but it must be kept in mind that it was still Yugoslavia with all laws and obligations. Those who rejected and resisted mobilisation, committed a federal crime. Those who facilitated the mobilisation had fulfilled their obligation. Even Izetbegovic admitted that they violated the law by hindering the mobilisation.)

2690. The Chamber recalls that a plebiscite was held in November 1991 to determine whether Serbs in BiH wished to remain in a joint state of Yugoslavia, and the overwhelming majority voted in favour.⁸⁹⁶¹ The President delivered a speech connected with the plebiscite where he said if there was a sovereign BiH it would be "without our areas" unless there was an exchange of population.⁸⁹⁶² (This is again an unacceptable misinterpretation. It was said as follows:

Get that kid to bring it.) The third alternative is that we secede, i.e. that we put ourselves in the situation of those who wish to secede from Yugoslavia, and not from B-H, Croats and Muslims who wish to form their own states /sentence unclear/. They want a sovereign Bosnia... OK, but without our areas, because it would comprise some of our areas, the ones around Zenica where we are minority, unless we exchange population...

(In numbering out the alternatives of the solution of the BH crisis, the President said that the #third alternative was to let the two other sides to form their state# or states, but without the Serb areas. In that case some of the Serb areas must stay in the state of others, unless they decide to exchange the property and resettle. This was an alternative that would go without any war, and in negotiations. Such a way West Virginia was founded, such a way North Ireland remained in Britain, that was the third democratic alternative, without any war, and re-settlement would depend only on a free will!)

The Accused in this speech said that he had openly told Izetbegović that “no Muslim foundation shall ever be laid in Serb areas and Serb villages whether or not you import Turks because we will instruct Serbs not to sell land to Muslims. [...] The first foundations that are laid will be blown up, and all foundations that are laid will be blown up”.⁸⁹⁶³ (#Distortion#! One has a right to expect a trial Chamber to be accurate, let alone honest and impartial. However, this quotation is managed and edited with the aim to damage the President. Look how it is originally:

The Muslim gentlemen are now establishing a ministry for emigrants. Yesterday, I told Izetbegović openly - I don't know whether Biljana was there, but Krajišnik was - you are now establishing a ministry for emigrants; you want to move all the rabble, beggars and scoundrels from Turkey and settle them in our territories. But I am telling you, whatever Bosnia we have one day, no Muslim foundation shall ever be laid in Serb areas and Serb villages whether or not you import Turks because we will instruct Serbs not to sell land to Muslims (applause and ovation). The first foundations that are laid will be blown up, and all foundations that are laid will be blown up. You took Novo Sarajevo, now you have 300 houses that are being built

It was more than clear that the President told to Izetbegovic that the Serbs would oppose their plan to #resettle a millions of Turks# into BiH. This kind of artificial alteration of the ethnic composition is not allowed anywhere. Now we see how it could have been achieved: the whole Europe sees it: they make a chaos in the Midle East, and a millions of refugees flee towards Europe. But, those manipulations are even worse than those of the Prosecution. It looks as if the same aiding clarks constructed the Indictment and the Judgement. A so called “new settlements” of one ethnicity built up on the terrain of another, antagonised, ethnicity is an act of aggression and an act of war, and when that happens somewhere else, the whole world is protesting! Remember the West coast settlements#!) He also envisaged that there was a chance that they would fight, and they were prepared to “let the chips fall where they may” in the knowledge that the Serbs were better armed and that the war would be bloody.⁸⁹⁶⁴ He also emphasised that they would not give up on their territories and that it was “a fight to the finish, a battle for living space”.⁸⁹⁶⁵ (#Not give up their territories! What it was if not a defensive strategy? But, everyone knows that those who are defending their space are not fighting for a new living space, whyle those who do so much to occupy other’s living space are fighting for the living space. And what the Accuse said meant that the Muslims are in a campaign for gaining a living space. Now, the entire Europe sees it clearly.)

2691. In December 1991, Milošević told the Accused that he should not give in to Izetbegović and that they had to stick to their line and that “if they want to fight, we’ll fight” given that the Serbs were stronger.⁸⁹⁶⁶ (#Abused#! Let us see how this intercept is [ab]used for the purpose of the Prosecution, P5790:

 R - And who wants to live in peace, we're fine with that, nobody will live better or worse than we do, we don't have anything else to.

 M - There's nothing to discuss, we don't give in to anybody. We're moving on. And, damn it.

(#Choice

to fight is their#! Which of those sentences of the President could be used against him? The President Milosevic, talking about forthcoming tour on the Conference in the Hague (ICFY) announced that there will be no more Serb concessions, no matter what pressure will be posed on the Serb side. In his words it is clear tha the choice o fighting is on the other side, not the Serb choice, because the Serbs didn't demand anything they already didn't have. And the President confirmed the prospective of a common life in a complete equality! : They also spoke about the unconstitutional nature of the decision changing the status of BiH.⁸⁹⁶⁷

(Correct, and #EXCULPATORY#!!! There was no possibility for the BiH to declare an independence bypassing the Constitution. The whole Europe was obliged to warn the SDA on this violation of Constitution. To be honest, Mr. Badinter contested the BiH declaration on independence, rejected to approve it, mentioned that already there is the Republic of Srpska, and directed BiH to a normal procedure encisaged for the changes of Constitution!)

In an intercepted conversation on 17 December 1991, the Accused affirmed his commitment to use force to ensure that the establishment of a sovereign and independent BiH did not result in the separation of Bosnian Serbs from other Serbs in the former Yugoslavia.⁸⁹⁶⁸ It is again #forged and misinterpreted#. Let us see how was it in original: P5794, p. 4 (B. Kostic – the President):

 Branko Kostić: ... nobody can make a decision on his own, er, each possible Bosnian request for recognition and so on, leads directly into a conflict.
 Radovan Karadžić: Directly to war, a bloody, bloody and dangerous war...

⁸⁹⁶⁷ P5787 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Slobodan Milošević, 25 December 1991), pp. 2–3.

⁸⁹⁶⁸ P5794 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Branko Kostić, 17 December 1991), pp. 4–5 (wherein Kostić stated “nobody can make a decision on his own, er, each possible Bosnian request for recognition and so on, leads directly into a conflict” and the Accused responded: “[d]irectly to war, a bloody, bloody and dangerous war”).

BRANKO KOSTIC SAID THAT NOBODY IN BIH COULD DO ANYTHING ON HIS OWN, BECAUSE IT LEADS INTO CONFLICT, AND THE PRESIDENT AGREED. BUT, IT WAS NOT AS THE JUDGMENT SAIS, THAT THE PRESIDENT “AFFIRMED HIS COMMITMENT TO USE FORCE...”! IT WAS A DISCUSSION ABOUT WHAT MAY HAPPEN IF THE SOLUTION IS NOT SETTLED BY THE TALKS, AND NOBODY INDICATED THAT IT WAS SOMETHING THE INTERLOCUTORS WANTED OR LIKED TO SEE, OR THAT IT WAS IN ANYONE’S HANDS. HOW THE CHAMBER IS ALLOWED TO DISTORT THE FACST IN SUCH A WAY? AND THE PRESIDENT CONTINUED:

Radovan

Karadžić: Which would not have the end, therefore, if there is a wish to, something, to improve, define some position of Bosnia and Herzegovina, that is not a problem, it can be done, hello.

And on p. 7, talking about an agreement among the four republics, the President said what the #Chamber mis-interpreted as his “commitment” to use the force#:

Karadžić: It will be denied and so on. Fine, well done Branko. Fine, I think that your plan is great and, let’s do this now (?), and I think that, simply, absolutely, we will completely defend the country, including, if necessary, the war, fuck them, if they fuck around, the country should be defended with all powers, and go for, go for the United Nations, Europe should be absolutely denied a right to continue to fuck around. We are its, its members, fuck them all...

So, there is a word about a new arrangement between the four republics, and the President supported the Yugoslav Presidency’s plan to defend this new arrangement even with a war had it be necessary. So, this had nothing to do with any plan of the Serbs in Bosnia, nor their plans and actions, A COMPLETELY WRONG QUATATION AND CERTAINLY WRONG INFERENCES THAT WERE BASED ON IT.

In relation to the possible secession of BiH, the President stated “we will completely defend the country”, including if necessary by war, “fuck them, if they fuck around, the country should be defended with all powers”.⁸⁹⁶⁹ This is what was pasted above, and has #nothing to do with the Bosnian Serbs#. In the same conversation B. Kostic [a member of the federal Presidency] presented what will be agreed “next week”, and the President informed him how many political parties, particularly non-Serb parties wanted to contribute to the preservation of Yugoslavia. All was about the Yugoslav Presidecy plans how to preserve this smaller Yugoslavia, although after that the republics would have a possibility to secede on an agreed way:

Kostić: And, er, gradually then, without any denial to Macadonia, or any other nation, er, we are going into further, er...

Karadžić: Transformations, huh?

Kostić: Further transformations including the right of Macedonia of separation and international recognition even by our side and by the European Community and so on, you know (?).

Kostić: But I think that it would decrease tensions and create more favourable conditions in a whole, er, to easier solve the conflict issue of one-sided secession of Slovenia and Croatia.

And explaining that Slovenia #should be granted the independence# immediately, and the Federal Parliament to be in a constant session, to decrease the tensions:

Kostić: good and this idea to see the Federal Parliament, let’s say, and the Presidency of Yugoslavia give for Slovenia, er. /as stated/

Karadžić: Well, I have sent today, Ajga has a draft text, he has the draft text, I have just sent him a telegram, and I gave it to the foreign, and these, and these domestic public media, in order, to commence with, the tensions are decreasing immediately, let it start, let it urgently., I proposed a constant session of the Parliament, and I proposed that all Yugoslav affairs be brought back to the Federal Parliament.

No confusion: the two were talking about the possibilities to decrease the tensions, to facilitate a legal secession for the two already seceded Republics, consolidate the state and further enable Macedonia to secede if wanted. All of it by peaceful means, except if somebody attacks the Federal State.

(Any #violation of the Constitution deserves a resistance#. Any unilateral and anti-constitutional partition of a sovereign state can be prevented by politics, but if it turns to be armed secession, to be opposed by the army. This is in every constitution of every state. President Lincoln was not sued, because he was right. The examples from recent history are supporting the Serb right to stay in the Federal state while it existed: Northern Ireland, West Virginia, Belgium, Spain, and many other states with the different ethnicities. Who was authorized to subjugate the Serbs to the Muslim domination, even if there was no the Islamic declaration?)

2692. On 21 December 1991, at the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the President issued another warning about the hundreds of thousands of deaths, destruction, displacement of people and population homogenisation which would occur if there was a civil war in BiH.⁸⁹⁷⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! Putting this back in context, first should be remained that on 19 December 91 the Muslim-Croat part of the Government unilaterally and un-constitutionally checked to the EC for the independence. Neither the Government was authorised to do that, nor any body could do that without the consent of the Serb legitimate representatives, and after that, without a referendum. That is what the #Badinter commission said in it's Opinion No. 4#.

(This is a flagrant proof that this #court is a political# one, because it is dealing with a #selective political issues#. For instance only in this document (D00086) there is a complete survey of the political life in the crisis, discussed by the most prominent Serbs, representatives of the Serbian community. In this discussion there had been explicated all and every irregularity and violation of the laws and constitutions, and yet presented the #Serbian conciliatory suggestions and alternatives#, all of which led to a peaceful solution. The President words from only this one document are sufficient to discharge him of any mean thoughts or intentions. Instead, we see in the Judgement a few klips or a #crippled sentences#, which heavily compromise those who assembled this Judgement. Here are some examples, only from the President's speeches: D00086, P. 20 r.

Our partners in government respect neither human nor God's laws. There is not a single regulation, there is not an institution, there is not a document, from the Constitution to a Government's decision that they respect.

The Constitution of BiH clearly defines how important decisions are made. All that has been blatantly violated.

The Assembly of BiH has reacted in this new situation by adopting a decision, or I should say an opinion, which is the last legally adopted opinion on that matter involving the three points that were agreed by all representatives in the Assembly of the existing Bosnia and Herzegovina, which specify that there would be no forceful imposition of solutions, that all suggestions must be treated equally.

Karadzic:

In their vocabulary, this synchronised destruction of Bosnia and Herzegovina and Yugoslavia and the violence against the Serbian people is called democracy. Despite all this and for the sake of peace in the house, the Serbian people as a whole and the parties that represent it has attempted, as far as possible, to behave in accordance with the Constitution and the relevant statutes. Our representatives in government simply cannot and must not behave or act illegally.

Illegal activities are taking place in all ministries, and above all in the Interior Ministry, as well as at the level of local government. There are many acts of violence. The Serbian side continues to be cooperative only for the sake of the peace in the house. Not because we are willing to be enslaved, but for the sake of the negotiations, that is, the negotiations on the transformation of Yugoslavia are still going on.

Ladies and gentlemen, in the constitutional and legal sense, BiH no longer exists. It has been destroyed by the holders of the highest offices, people from the SDA and HDZ. (applause)

They have suspended AVNOJ [Anti-Fascist Council of People's Liberation of Yugoslavia] and ZAVNOBiH [Regional Anti-Fascist Council of People's Liberation of Bosnia and Herzegovina]. Their actions take us all back to the situation before AVNOJ and ZAVNOBiH. They take us back to the era of the old unitary kingdom of Yugoslavia. They are undermining everything that was done in that period and they are taking us back to the previous situation. The previous situation is not a medieval Bosnia and Herzegovina but a united kingdom of Yugoslavia. (applause)

Where we are going and what we are doing is not going to be decided by them, however. We will continue to do our best to preserve the civil order in BiH. If I am allowed to make a suggestion, I would like to express my hope that the Assembly will adopt the presented motions because it is not only your right but also your duty since you

This Assembly should send a sincere message that nobody should be afraid of Serbs. But, at the same time, nobody should have any illusion that they will determine the future of the Serbian people without their consent or using violence, either constitutional or physical.

I would like you to consider these documents. I hope you will endorse them because it is our duty to prepare and organise democratic response of the Serbian people to what they have in store for us. This same sentence was said a year ago on St Peter's Day. Our only purpose, the purpose of the party that we established is to prepare the democratic response of the Serbian people to all challenges that might face us. Thank you.

An agreement is possible. According to ZAVNOBIH [The Anti-Fascist Council of People's Liberation of Bosnia and Herzegovina] which has been dead since yesterday, Bosnia and Herzegovina is a republic belonging to Serbs, Croats and Muslims. I think this is the exact order in which they are listed there.

We, therefore, suggest the establishment of Serbian, Croatian, and Muslim Bosnia and Herzegovina and also the existence of three parliaments; apart from the Serbian parliament, which is sitting here today, we want to see the Croatian parliament as well as the Muslim parliament. We want to see peaceful coexistence of three equal national communities, side by side, without causing any nuisance or trouble to each another. If possible we want them to set positive examples to each other in the same way that good neighbours set examples to each other. If that is not possible we want them to at least be tolerant and fair among themselves so that we can have some common functional institutions.

Although this proposal looks complicated and unique, and indeed it is complicated and unique, as is BiH itself, we think that it can be realised. It is better than civil war. As rational beings, we know what civil war means; the experience of Croatia tells us exactly what civil war has done to us.

Apart from causing the deaths of several hundred thousand people and complete destruction of several hundred towns, a civil war in Bosnia and Herzegovina would also result in massive and rapid population movements; in other words, it would lead to population homogenisation. What would be the end result of it all? The end result would be the situation as it is today: separate Serbian, Croatian, and Muslim areas, left impoverished by several hundred towns and several hundred thousand people.

(#Commendable# used against Karad`i)#! And those are the critical parts of the President's speech at the Serb Assembly (D00086) it is absolutely clear that the President strongly advocated and defended the idea that later had been proposed in the Lisbon Agreement, in all other peace proposals, and finally in the Dayton Agreement. And this wasn't a "warning", it was an explanation of the Serb leadership to the Serb Assembly how we can avoid the most dreadful scenario. Instead of awarding the President for his peacefull efforts, it is used against him. In the same speech, a bit later (p.38) The President explained what is at a disposal, which alternatives:

I can inform you that our first proposal, and this is according to the mandate you have given us, that is, the option preferred by the Serbian people was the preservation of a united, equal Bosnia and Herzegovina as a federal unit within Yugoslavia, which is, de jure and de facto, the existing situation despite the illegal decisions made by the sections of the Presidency and the Government of BiH.

Our proposal accepts that Yugoslavia and Bosnia and Herzegovina can be democratically transformed in accordance with the Constitutional procedure. Therefore, we are not suggesting in our initiative, which is also a part of our earlier initiatives, including the Belgrade initiative, we are not insisting that relations should be defined in cast iron terms or that further democratic transformation should be ruled out.

Anticipating that one proposal from the Serbian side, that is, from the Serbian national community would not be enough we put forward another proposal which incorporates the idea of a fundamental transformation of Bosnia and Herzegovina into a union of the three equal national communities bearing in mind that we have to acknowledge the expressed wish of the Muslim and Croatian people to change their position in relation to Yugoslavia, regardless of whether these wishes are expressed in a legal or illegal way.

We may be sorry that some people want to loosen their ties with Yugoslavia. We can vote against it. But we do not want to resist them in any other way except by using political means. We do not even want to use political means to resist them.

We have the right and the ability to prevent anybody on the territories where we conducted our referendum to secede from Yugoslavia. In all territories where Serbs took part in the referendum, regardless of whether they make 5% or 55% of the population, they are the constituent element of that town or that Republic. All territories where we voted in our referendum to remain within Yugoslavia must stay within Yugoslavia if we decide so. (applause)

Therefore, we can prevent them, but for the sake of peace in the house and because of two bad experiences of keeping certain people within Yugoslavia, we are prepared to accept the transformation of Bosnia and Herzegovina so that Muslims and Croats, if that is really what they want, can loosen their links with Yugoslavia or leave it altogether.

Our partners argue that such a transformed Bosnia and Herzegovina should remain a link between Croatia and Yugoslavia, that is between Croatia and such a transformed Yugoslavia, or Serbia.

We think that links are used for purposes other than being states but, nevertheless, we can accommodate their proposal. We can accommodate everything; everything is better than civil war; everything is better than imposing one's solution onto others. Everything is better than the chaos and hell, which we can see developing and evolving. We are committed not to instigate any such thing; even more, we are committed not to take part in any such thing, unless it is imposed upon us in the way that it was imposed on our brothers in Croatia.

We in Bosnia and Herzegovina do not want armoured personnel carriers; we do not want barricades; we have no intention of preventing those who live on the territories where we conducted our referendum to change their position in relation to Yugoslavia. But it has to be done within the framework of the Conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina.

And it was the same Assembly session, on 21 December, when the President proposed (D00086, p.40 eng) the final political solution that prevailed in all the European and American capitols and Governments. It was a #peaceful and democratic solution#:

We, therefore, suggest the establishment of Serbian, Croatian, and Muslim Bosnia and Herzegovina and also the existence of three parliaments; apart from the Serbian parliament, which is sitting here today, we want to see the Croatian parliament as well as the Muslim parliament. We want to see peaceful coexistence of three equal national communities, side by side, without causing any nuisance or trouble to each another. If possible we want them to set positive examples to each other in the same way that good neighbours set examples to each other. If that is not possible we want them to at least be tolerant and fair among themselves so that we can have some common functional institutions.

At the very beginning, when we were establishing the Party we said to the Serbian people: everything that can be done more effectively together should remain shared. On the other hand, everything that that can be done more effectively separately, like for example culture (this is why Prosvjeta [Translator's note: the Cultural and Educational Association of the Serbian People in Bosnia and Herzegovina] was established) and some other areas, should develop separately.

We, therefore, suggest the establishment of three entities in BiH, which would not threaten or confront each other. On the contrary, they should, at most, complement each other, or, at least, be neutral and impartial towards each other so that common institutions could be formed at the level of BiH, that is, the existing Republic of BiH.

(#Karad'i} proposals valuable, accepted by EC, UN and great powers, built in all the peace plans#! All other constructions about the mens rea of this President, and others from the leadership, should be dismissed with the indignation, because the solution proposed by the President was so valuable to survive the three and a half years of a fierce fratricidal war, for which the President is not liable a bit, while those who are condemning him are liable 100%. And this truth is not going to disappear or become pale.)

2693. In January 1992, the Accused spoke to Krajišnik and said “we have to realise our minimum aim, there’s no other way. Nothing should and nothing can stop us. No way”.⁸⁹⁷¹ (Do not oversee #“our minimum aim”#, which is crucial minimalist determination. All other sides were never satisfied with their minimum, they wanted their maximums, which included the subjugation of the Serbs to their power.) The Accused was also angry about Izetbegović speaking openly about a sovereign and independent BiH, and said: “Does he want someone to destroy Sarajevo? [...] he’s really crazy [...] fuck him. We will release our tigers and let them do their job”.⁸⁹⁷² He went on to say that he had been calming the Serb people for a year, but that he “will not be calming anyone anymore, nor can I” and that they could no longer hold back their people anymore.⁸⁹⁷³ (The President was very angry! It was a minimum taking into account circumstances! Once and for all – nobody, nobody was entitled to violate anyone’s basic rights, guaranteed in the Constitutions and laws. Nobody! And this Chamber, and this Tribunal is lecturing the Serbs that their protection of their political rights was a crime, while all others, including the UN and the Tribunal supporting governments made all these crimes they charged the President and the Serbs for. Apart from it, this was obvious that the leadership had a #difficulties to calm down the people# that was extremely upset seeing what the Muslims were doing!)

2694. As early as January 1992, Koljević warned of the danger of an Islamic republic being created.⁸⁹⁷⁴ In this regard, Koljević spoke with Tuđman and noted that they had a common interest of separating people, that an independent BiH did not suit them as it would separate them from their “mother lands”, and that they advocated a sovereign Muslim, Serbian and Croatian

What Dr. Koljevic proposed to President Tudjman had been immediately accepted by the UN and the European Community! But, anyway, how this #political talks can be incriminated#? Dr. Koljevic wasn't alone with the President Tudjman, he was in his capacity of the member of the Bosnian Presidency, together with another, a Croatian member of the same, Mr. Franjo Boras. And it was a talk between the two Presidencies, #what does it have to do with the President#?)

2695. At a meeting of the SRBiH Assembly on 24 January 1992, the issue of a national referendum was discussed and the speakers from the SDS opposed the holding of a referendum.⁸⁹⁷⁶ (#Interpretation instead of document itself#! #Criminal distortion#! Not exactly. And it is not clear why the Chamber used an interpretation of a member of the ECMM, instead of the original transcript. The ECMM were monitors, not analysts, neither they understood what was going on, or had the interpreters of the Muslim provenance, who conditioned their understanding. Neither they had been all the time in the hall. A #deceptions after deceptions#. This is what was the Serb position, not only SDS, because at that time there was already the Serbian Assembly formed of several parties. In the eve of this session there was a meeting of the Club of representatives, discussing the attendance of the Serb MP-s, and here is what the President said: P03119, p. 1

The President of SDS Party, DR. Radovan KARADZIC accepts to attend the session and proposes that Bosnia and Herzegovina should be transformed into a confederation. A new state of affairs should be achieved in Bosnia and Herzegovina safeguarding the sovereignty of all of the three nations in Bosnia and Herzegovina, not allowing partial solution to the state which leads into disaster.

(#Commendable, conciliatory#! This Assembly session was one of the most important, the Chamber had a complete transcript of it (D00087) to estimate what was the position of this President. From p. 99 (eng) there was a completely clear position of the President. The SDA Vice-President Muhamed Cengic (who at the same time was a Deputy Prime Minister) agreed with the President to propose to the Assembly the following: the Government to do the regionalisation and establish a new regions that would make all the three ethnic communities feel free and be sovereign. Then, all the three communities participate in the referendum to confirm that such a transformed Bosnia be independent and sovereign. For that purpose, Mr. M. Cengic proposed that the referendum be postponed to 10 March. The Serbs and the President agreed. And this is what happened at this session, contrary to what Mr. Doyle reported to the EC, and the Chamber took it as a meritory "expertise". #Opinions contra documents#! This is unacceptable and deeply erroneous and damaging of the President's position. Look at that:

Muhamed ČENGIĆ:

Ladies and gentlemen. I would like to inform you and suggest you something. The Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina got the order and made a decision to establish the regions, new regions of Bosnia and Herzegovina. I think that the Serbian Democratic Party as well as the Party of Democratic Action and the Croatian Democratic Union need to give their requests on how the regions should be established, /word illegible/, what needs to be done there. I think it would be useful that we create those regions, that is the task of the Government too, and that we schedule the referendum date and to set the deadline for both the referendum and the establishment of regions. There will not be the referendum before the elaborate on the establishment of regions is presented. I think that this would be the solution and it would satisfy all the citizens of BIH, because it is useless to talk about all Serbs wishing to live in one state or Muslims or anyone else, but we have to start talking with each other. We have to get closer and that is the only way, even if BIH becomes sovereign and independent or if we become a part of whatever association, we, inside Bosnia and Herzegovina, have to determine how we want to live. Therefore, this would be my proposal, the one I just offered and I think that it would be acceptable to Mr KARADŽIĆ who agrees with it, too. I also request you to declare on this.

Naim KADIĆ:

Mr Chairman, colleagues Members of Parliament.

It would be very bad if I would say now that we, in the parliamentary group, need to make a break. We will not do it because I know very well what is our path and what we want. What the Deputy Chairman just said is acceptable, believe me, it did not take us long to agree on this, it is acceptable, only provided that today we make a decision on holding of the referendum and we set a date when the referendum will be held and meanwhile to establish these regions.

Radovan Karadzic (...)

Therefore, let us create Bosnia and Herzegovina in the way it can be, that Croats in every moment (applaud), that Croats are not lost for Croatia, that they have links, their representatives in Zagreb as well their representatives in Sarajevo.

If we recognise, if the international public recognise the border between Croatia and Bosnia, Croats will remain in Bosnia for good, as well as the Serbs. They will not remain in such Bosnia where they will lose... Sir, they already lost Travnik due to the Muslim birth rate, Travnik used to have Croats as majority and now it is not the Croatian town anymore.

We think that Bosnia and Herzegovina can be Switzerland, we can organise it as a link between Serbia and Croatia and everything else without that and prior to that is a catastrophe.

I was delighted with ČENGIĆ's proposal, let us go in this direction, let us make the decision, let us set a firm deadline for the democratic transformation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. After those 15 days, let us hold a referendum, whatever we agree to, it must be agreed in the way that all three nations have the full freedom.

The President further said, responding to a question how the JNA would react on the agreement of the three Bosnian communities: (D00087, p. 109)

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Of course, I am not a soldier. But I can confirm that I said that we would use all our power that the Yugoslav National Army does not disrupt our political agreement, i.e., what we conclude and agree as three national communities, and what we sign. I suggest that it should be a constitutional act, the constitutional declaration on the transformation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. And if we put our signature on it, I am convinced that no one in the Yugoslav National Army will object that or will wish to object to something that the legitimate representatives of three nations agree to and what people, I suggest that it is fixed like this, 15 days after the signing of such act, automatically 15 days afterwards, that the referendum is scheduled and that no one can postpone it /sic/.

I truly believe in this. That is one thing.

Secondly, when we talked about the reorganisation, I said that the Croatian sovereignty in Bosnia and Herzegovina and sovereignty of Croatian people cannot be endangered by anyone and of course, I meant both Serbs and Muslims. It means that after we finalise our political affairs, and reach the agreement, reach the constitutional act, and verify that on our referendum, there is no one who could endanger that sovereignty. On the other hand, I think that the need for the army will completely change and if we do not start the war here, everything will be brought to normal conditions and into normal frames in much easier way.

It looks to me that we have never been closer and that we cannot miss this chance, that Bosnia and Herzegovina becomes Switzerland in Balkan. We can ensure for each enclave, each village, wherever it is situated, we can ensure its administration, and sovereignty. We can make things less tense. We can arrange that no one has power over anyone. For good we can finish the job as good masters and

That is how close to the solution was the Bosnian Assembly, with the full participation and contribution of the Serb side (all the Serb parties) and the President). The #solution agreed at this session even before the Lisbon Agreement and Cutilleiro plan, maximally resembles the Lisbon as well as the final, Dayton Agreement#. But let us see how the Chamber came to this conclusion, #though an unacceptable distortion#!. After this accord there was a break of an hour or two, and the SDA withdrew its own proposition sincerely accepted by the Serbs. As it can be seen from p.113 and on, the document was not on the agenda at all, and the Muslim side tried to smuggle it and have it voted without the procedure. And that is the truth about this session, not what the Doyle's interpreter suggested to him. And why use an interpretation of an interpretation from an interested in the affair to an outsider (Doyle and his interpreter) instead of using the original?

The Serb position was that they would not accept or allow themselves to become a minority in BiH and that they would not be forced to do something they did not want to do. (Should they?) The Serbs also expressed their concern that the SDA wanted to create an Islamic state in BiH and that the only guarantee for the Serbs was to have a separate state in BiH.⁸⁹⁷⁷ (This was not exactly what the Serbs expressed at this session of the common Assembly, see the above comment. As far as it is concerned with the Islamic state, it became of the Serb concern only after the SDA pushed towards the independence of the unitary BiH under their domination. The SDA or Mr. Izetbegovic never denounced the Islamic declaration as a state program. What else could the Serbs think of it? And why the Chamber is quoting that within the frame of this sentencing Judgement? Was it the President's crime?) The SDS under the leadership of the President withdrew from the session when no agreement could be reached and, following their withdrawal, the BiH Assembly supported a referendum being held between 29 February and 1 March regarding the sovereignty and independence of BiH.⁸⁹⁷⁸ (#Illegal Assembly session#! They did not have right to re-convene the session, nor to make any decision which would be contrary to the will of the legitimate Serb representatives. That pertained to any vital and important decision, particularly those of the constitutional nature. What is to be done that the Court and some chambers take a look of the constitutions of the republics in the region? How would it look like if the Flamish people decide for the entire Belgium to join the Netherlands, contrary to the will of the Valona people?) On 19 February 1992, the Chairman of the SDS Executive Board ordered the municipal and regional boards of the SDS to hold immediate meetings and to draw up a plan of action to stop the referendum and to explain to “every adult Serb” that they should boycott the referendum which would be illegal after the adoption of the Constitution of the SerBiH.⁸⁹⁷⁹ (#Wrong, not to stop the referendum, but to boycott it# Boycotting is legal democratic action! The referendum was illegal no matter the Constitution of the SerBiH is adopted or not! This is a part of anyone’s political rights. A general remark: the Chamber is doing something which must not be done by anyone, let alone by a judicial institution – #dealing with the politics, denying the political rights#, the rights on the political life, and drawing a #politically motivated inferences# under a presumption that the said ethnic community (in this case the Serb community) didn’t have any rights prior to the crisis, nor it had any rights to influence the changes that had been initiated by the two other ethnic communities.

2696. The Chamber recalls that on 23 February 1992, the Cutileiro Plan was proposed and called for an independent and geographically continuous BiH, comprised of the three constituent units that represented the Bosnian Muslims, Bosnian Croats, and Bosnian Serbs.⁸⁹⁸⁰ The Cutileiro Plan included constitutional principles for BiH and proposed the structure of the Assembly and government of BiH.⁸⁹⁸¹ The President decided to accept the Cutileiro Plan notwithstanding the fact that it contemplated BiH as an independent state, with cantons where ethnic minorities would remain, even though this was less than what the Bosnian Serb leadership had wished for, namely to remain in Yugoslavia.⁸⁹⁸² (#This is not correct#, although not criminal!!! Already on 21 December 91 the Serb Assembly listened to what the President proposed to the MPs as a new political platform for negotiations, and the main part of this new platform was this concept of the BiH as a confederation of the three constituent units. And that was a move of the good will of the Serbs in Bosnia to coexist in one state of BiH in a way nobody dominate. However, it was a #painful compromise and concession# from the Serb side, a minimum of the safeguards of security! The acceptance of the Cutileiro plan is the crown evidence that the Serbs didn’t have any plan alleged in the Indictment!) In a conversation with Kuprešanin on 23 February 1992, the Accused expressed satisfaction with the recent international negotiations where the Cutileiro Plan was discussed, stating:

We achieved maximum success because we achieved that Bosnia cannot be a single state anymore and that it will be composed of three republics. In one paper they even called them states. [...] Our police on our territory. Our national guard on our territory. Our national guard, and we’re pushing further: our army on our territory, one that is placed under a single command in case of an external enemy.⁸⁹⁸³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! The EC and UN and USA recognised it as a just and honest plan, and that is how it was proposed in all the five peace plans, and how it had been adopted in the Dayton. Why the war was waged? Who needed this war? The local ethnic communities didn't! and the Serbs and the President do not bare any responsibility for this catastrophic development!)

2697. On 25 February 1992, the Accused summarised the outcome of the talks at a session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly and stated that the Bosnian Serbs had agreed to the three main principles of the Cutileiro Plan which stated that BiH would (i) be an independent state, (ii) maintain its present borders; and (iii) consist of three constituent parts.⁸⁹⁸⁴ However, when war broke out the option of an independent BiH with cantons was dropped.⁸⁹⁸⁵ (#Unacceptable distortion#! #Quite opposite#: first the "options of an independent BiH with cantons" i.e. the Lisbon Agreement and the Cutileiro Plan was abandoned by the Muslim side, and then the war broke out. Everyone knows that there wouldn't be any war if the Muslims didn't reject already agreed plan, see: D02981 Cutileiro's letter to the "Economist" and Cutileiro's testimony, D02981: "Letters" part of The Economist, on 9-15 December, 1995.

In your article on Bosnia (November 25th), you say that in February 1992, before the war had started, Lord Carrington and I "drafted a constitution that would have turned the country into a confederation of Swiss-style cantons. The Muslims refused to accept what they considered to be the disintegration of Bosnia." Not quite.

After several rounds of talks our "principles for future constitutional arrangements for Bosnia and Hercegovina" were agreed by all three parties (Muslim, Serb and Croat) in Sarajevo on March 18th 1992 as the basis for future negotiations. These continued, maps and all, until the summer, when the Muslims reneged on the agreement. Had they not done so, the Bosnian question might have been settled earlier, with less loss of (mainly Muslim) life and land. To be fair, President Izetbegovic and his aides were encouraged to scupper that deal and to fight for a unitary Bosnian state by well-meaning outsiders who thought they knew better.

Jose Cutileiro,
Secretary-General,
Western European Union,
Brussels

(Certainly, the solution in the #Cutileiro plan was the bottom line concession# of the Serb side to accept Bosnia to secede from Yugoslavia. It was a "conditio sine qua non" any Bosnia with the Serbs out of Yugoslavia. Those who decided to achieve more through the war are widely responsible for all catastrophe that followed, and that were not the Serbs, not even the Bosnian Croats, but the Muslims and their international mentors. It was so natural that the previous peaceful solutions couldn't survive after the war broke out. The same was with the Serbian negotiating position, which had to be redefined, as in "6 strategic objectives" which were different before the war.

2698. The Chamber recalls that the referendum on the question of SRBiH independence was held on 29 February and 1 March 1992 and resulted in a vote in favour of independence.⁸⁹⁸⁶ (#Criminal alteration of facts#!!! This is not right!!! Wrong inference, i.e. wrong finding! There was no even close to the required two third of the general list of voters. Further, even if they had the two third on the referendum (which was not the case), they were obliged to come back in the Assembly and get at least one MP above the two third of all representatives voting in favour of independence. So, this Tribunal, not only it's Prosecution, but some Chambers too, participates in the huge lie and forgery of the results in BH crisis! #This all looked like a lynch, so hasty and irregular, that nobody verified the result! But, anyway, after this referendum there was agreed the Lisbon Agreement and the Cutileiro's plan, on 18 March!

2699. (How come, the Chamber #neglected the most dramatic development#, the killing at the Serb wedding ceremony on 1 March 92?) In February 1992, Jovanović spoke with the Accused and Koljević about the Cutileiro Plan; they discussed internal borders in BiH and the establishment of cantonal units in BiH based on ethnic principles.⁸⁹⁸⁷ Jovanović explained to the Accused that his priorities should be to synchronise the negotiations in order to provide the maximum protections for the Serbian people and to form cantons which were both economically and geographically sustainable.⁸⁹⁸⁸ (#What is wrong with that#? What would do the Prosecution without these illegally obtained intercepts? What is wrong with Mr. Jovanovic advises?) Jovanović warned the Accused that Europe could ask for a commitment towards an independent BiH, and told the Accused not to mention state borders.⁸⁹⁸⁹ The President spoke about having three entities in BiH as a confederation “based on the national territories where national communities make a majority and they have their organs plus common organs”.⁸⁹⁹⁰ (#All legal, peaceful, democratic and already negotiated and agreed in the Hague during the 1991# sessions of the Conference on Yugoslavia. Does this Tribunal deny this heritage of the EC – UN activity on the Yugoslav crisis in the ICFY in 1991?) Jovanović spoke with Koljević about maintaining the right to self-determination and to independently organise or integrate with “the mother country” but that in negotiations they did not have to mention directly integration with the mother countries.⁸⁹⁹¹ (Totally irrelevant! It was #discussion about what already been agreed upon with Cutilleiro.# The “integration” with the “mother countries” was codified in the Dayton agreement as a “special parallel ties”).

2700. In February 1992, the Accused in meetings with international representatives expressed his view that the request of BiH for independence was a “very irresponsible move” and he had a tough time keeping Serbs quiet and that he was worried about deaths and disaster.⁸⁹⁹² (#EXCULPATORY#!#! The President was not the only one who said that the offering Bosnia to request the independence was very irresponsible. Almost all of the contemporary politicians said so. Peres de Cuellar said so, Cyrus Vance said so, Pinheiro said that Bosnia could only have been a tripartite, Lord Carrington said it was premature, and many, many others. Lord Owen said that the Serbs had a very founded reasons to fear from the new authorities established after the 1990. elections.@@@ to paste!) He also stated that it was very hard to disarm the people in BiH because individuals held 500,000 weapons.⁸⁹⁹³ (The Chamber should already have known that the Tito's #Doctrine of the armed people# and a very developed net of the Territorial defence organisations obtained an enormous number of weaponry, aimed to be used in a defence against the Warshow pact. What is the crime in this opinion of the President? Wasn't it also an anti-war attitude? This was another warning of the President that a war had to be avoided!) He emphasised that any moves towards the independence of BiH would imply a very cruel war.⁸⁹⁹⁴ (This is yet another #irregularity, unfairness and unacceptable error#. The Chamber is relying on a conversation interpreted in another process, in which nobody represented the interests of this President. The interpreter of this conversation is from an organisation that should never be a witness, nor speak on this subject which is #out of his scope#. Beside it, the Chamber knows very well that to the time it was widely known that the Serb position was not that there can be any independence of Bosnia, and that the Serbs accepted a possibility of the independence of a transformed Bosnia. The same witness testified in this case, why the Chamber needed something that happened out of the presence of the President?) The Accused was described by international representatives as “very radical” and they observed that it was important that the Accused’s “illusions” were overcome.⁸⁹⁹⁵ International representatives also identified that negotiations with the Accused, Koljević, and Krajišnik were the most difficult.⁸⁹⁹⁶ (#What a mockery#! The international representatives were not qualified to judge personalities of the Serb representatives, particularly not to offer their “psychological expertise” to a court. They were there not even to negotiate, but only to mediate between the sides to the talks (later conflict). This is #insolent and brutal#, and arrogant to judge what are “illusions”, and it would rather be a reason for the Chamber to dismiss this testimony, than to pay a credit to it. The negotiating process has its dynamics and axiomas. If the President was a very permissive, then his opponents on the Muslim-Croat side would estimate that the Serb side is weak and should be pressed more. And what is that anyone’s business how the Serbs negotiated? The Chamber should neglect that kind of opinions of the people who hoped to be more successful on the Serb weakness. This is going to be remembered as many other pearls of a distorted justice. The international community imposed the war on the Serbs, then negotiated on behalf of the Serb enemies, and then characterized the Serbs from the standpoint of the interests of the Serb adversaries. Finally, the final solution, The Dayton Agreement, was what the President indicated as the last Serb concession, and it is the best proof that he wasn’t radical!)

THERE IS NO MORE FLAGRANT EVIDENCE THAT ALL THIS AFFAIRE IS #PURE POLITICAL MANIPULATION#. THE INTERNATIONAL MEDIATORS, WHO CAUSED AND CONTRIBUTED A GREAT DEAL TO THE VIOLENT AND UNLAWFUL DESTRUCTION OF YUGOSLAVIA WERE NOT SATISFIED THAT THE SERBS HAD THEIR LEGITIMATE RIGHTS AND REPRESENTATIVES WHO PRESENTED IT.... .

2701. The Accused also told international observers that Bosnian Serbs would not fight after the map of BiH was decided.⁸⁹⁹⁷ (The #bay-pas opinions of a rare and “from time to time” interlocutors are abused# by the Chamber. It was never said that the President would not fight after the map of BH be decided. It was an assessment of the President that once the provinces, the constituent units are agreed, nobody would fight. This was within the President’s opinion that not too many people wanted to remain in an area which could have changed the “owner”, i.e. to belong to another ethnic community. ALSO, IF THE TERRITORIES HAD BEEN ALLOCATED DEFINITLY, NOBODY WOULD FIGHT ANY LONGER, BECAUSE THERE WOULD NOT BE ANY REASON.) At an SDS

⁸⁹⁹⁵ P779 (Sixth notebook of Herbert Okun’s Vance Mission Diary), e-court p. 24. Skoko stated that the Accused always looked for reasons to accept international peace plans and to make concessions during negotiations with respect to other ethnicities. D3321 (Witness statement of Milorad Skoko dated 1 April 2013), para. 30. The Chamber noted that Skoko’s testimony was marked by multiple contradictions, evasiveness and indicators of partiality and bias and therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard. How the Chamber was biased, it is clear from this footnote. It is well known that this accused accepted four out of five offered peace plans. And where is here Mr. Skoko unreliable/ why do the Chamber needed Mr. Skoko for this issue?

Deputies' Club meeting on 28 February 1992, the President spoke about a confederal BiH with an "integral Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina within it".⁸⁹⁹⁸ At this meeting the President also said:

Bosnia and Herzegovina will remain in Yugoslavia until we say it has left Yugoslavia. If Bosnia and Herzegovina is to leave Yugoslavia, then only three Bosnia and Herzegovinas will leave Yugoslavia. As Mr Krajišnik says, Muslims who used to be a religious sect, and have recently been given the status of a people, that's what I say, should now get their independence. For what? [...] If they want independence, then we want independence too!⁸⁹⁹⁹ (#WRONG INFERENCE, i.e. suggestion#. This clearly shows that the Serb side accepted Bosnia to secede provided there is another internal organisation of BiH. This is based on the #Serb right to veto# any constitutional matters for which was required the consensus of all the three sides. From this speech it is clear that the Serbs made a concession, i.e. Bosnia may become an independent state if transformed. Is this Tribunal advocating a violation of the constitutions of some countries? What is wrong, or criminal in these President's sentences? None!)

2702. The Chamber recalls that the Cutileiro Plan was further refined through a Statement of Principles which was agreed upon by the parties to the conflict on 18 March 1992.⁹⁰⁰⁰ The Statement of Principles stated that BiH would be one state "composed of three constituent units, based on national principles and taking into account economic, geographic, and other criteria".⁹⁰⁰¹ The Statement of Principles also provided for a working group to be established to define the territory of the constituent units.⁹⁰⁰² Bosnian Serb negotiators reported back to the Bosnian Serb Assembly regarding this plan and noted that it aimed at a division of BiH into three constituent units based not only on nationality, but also on economic and geographic considerations and would be marked as a "basis for further negotiations".⁹⁰⁰³ (A "further negotiations" pertained to the maps only, because the constitutional principles had been agreed! For the reason and fact that the constituent units were to be defined according to some other than ethnic criteria, it was clear that there would be a minorities in every of those constituent units. There wouldn't be possible any "ethnic cleansing" had the Muslim side remained faithful to the Cutileiro plan! Therefore, it would be wrong to infer that the Serbs wanted to have an ethnically pure state.)

2703. In April 1992, the Accused in a meeting with international representatives agreed that all sides would lose if there was a conflict and complained about propaganda against the Serbs.⁹⁰⁰⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) He also said that they founded the TO because many troops were out of control.⁹⁰⁰⁵ (#JNA perion#! The Chamber should have already known for a more convincing and original documents pertaining to the TO. The Muslim side had fired Gen. Vukosavljevic (a Serb) from the post of the Commander of common TO on 6 April, and the Serbs formed their own TO on 16 or 18 April. No matter when, it was a legal obligation, since even if not formed on the central level, the TO units existed and had to exist in every municipality, local commune, bigger company. The international representatives, Colm Doyle in particular, was aware that in April 1992 there were present the JNA and some armed groups backed by the JNA, which is a proof that the President didn't have any unit under his control, see P941, p.

escalation of fighting around Sarajevo. Dr Karadzic said that the Muslims were responsible for the escalation. The Serbian forces had permission to fight back only in order to defend themselves. The Muslims regularly shelled their own people. They could have been responsible for the heavy shelling of Sarajevo on 24-25 August. Commandant Doyle said that the Serbian paramilitaries, backed by the JNA, had started the fighting by shelling the old town of Sarajevo in April. The Muslims might be responsible for some provocations. But the Serbs had much to live down. Inflammatory statements by Serbs

2 So, none of firing in April 1992, right to 20 May and further in June 92, the President didn't have any influence on the units capable of firing, particularly big calibre weapons! But, the Prosecution-Chamber alliance unjustifiably #coined a new name "Serb Forces"# that comprise every single Serb, regardless the local laws, and the President's announcement that the #RS disowned all paramilitaries#!) Koljević at this meeting said that he and the Accused had agreed that they should divide Sarajevo.⁹⁰⁰⁶ (That happens always when a #short hand written notes are used as evidence#, because it misses the crucial part for a proper understanding. The Chamber has enough evidence what kind of "division" of Sarajevo Koljevic meant: it was well known that the Serbs proposed that #BH be organised like Switzerland and Sarajevo like the Brussels#, i.e. that the ethnic communities have their own municipalities, administratively delineated, like in the Brussels. The same model had been proposed for all the municipalities in BiH, in order to facilitate a peaceful co-existence. See the same document P941, p.1:

So, how a book of notes of Mr. Okun, which he recognised had been composed of #arbitrarily taken notes amalgamated with his thoughts#, opinions and assumptions, could have any #priority over the official UN report# such as P941#? This way, this kind of selectiveness secures a total victory of the Prosecutor, and failure of defense. If there is the most relevant UN document in favour of the Defence, then the Chamber will undermine this document and accept a completely #subjective, private opinion of some note-taker, who never reported what he testified#! From this evidence it was clear that there was no any idea of "division" of Sarajevo, because neither the Brussels is divided, but only administratively organized according to the needs of the two ethnicities. To #neglect such a first class evidence and replace it with a "hear-say" evidence, or jokes on an unofficial interlocutors# – that is an insult of the United Nation, of Justice, of the President. #This must not happen ever#!) During a discussion with international observers in September 1992, the Accused proposed constructing a wall in Sarajevo to separate the Serb controlled areas and the Muslim controlled areas.⁹⁰⁰⁷ (#Observers never reported it!# Aernout van Linden is a shameless liar and a person without integrity. He pretended as if he was broadcasting a live bombardment of Sarajevo, while it was too far from being true. Why those international observers didn't report to their central about this alleged proposal, this would be a big issue and would be repeated endlessly. Nobody ever reported this kind of the President's meditation, let alone proposal. The only proposal of the Serb side was that Bosnia be transformed to be as a South Switzerland, and Sarajevo to be as the Brussels. And this official attitude of the Serb side is well documented in all the official documents, while some "hear-say" guessing shouldn't be superior to the official documents!)

Krajišnik wrote to Cutileiro on 3 April 1992, suggesting a continuation of negotiations based on the Statement of Principles.⁹⁰⁰⁸ In June 1992, Izetbegović withdrew his agreement to the Cutileiro Plan.⁹⁰⁰⁹ (#This is not correct#. The Muslim side withdrew their consent to the Cutileiro plan on 25 March, and in June 92 they abandoned the Lisbon Conference. Why it is important to be accurate about the date: the Agreement was accepted on 18 March. All jubilated, and particularly the Muslims expressed their happiness, and predicted that the Serbs will deceive the EC and give up the Agreement. However, the Muslims reneged on the Agreement on 25 March, explaining that their acceptance was just a #maneuver to gain a time# and deceive the Serbs. The next day, 25 March there had been killing of the two innocent Serbs in Bosanski Brod, and the day after, 26 March there was a massacre of the Serb civilians in the Sijekovac village! What is right was that the international mediators gave up the Agreement in late June 92! From that moment on there was a preparation for the Vance-Owen plan that stepped on power in August 1992!) By July 1992, Izetbegović stated that he could not agree to certain elements of the Statement of Principles.⁹⁰¹⁰ (#This is also false#. It is widely known that Mr. Izetbegovic was persuaded by the US Ambassador Zimmerman to leave the agreement and go for the whole BiH. But, before this statement of Izetbegovic, on 20 June the rump Presidency of BiH declared the war against the TO of the Serbian Autonomous Regions, against Yugoslavia and JNA. And nobody in the Tribunal does pay any attention to this notorious fact, the crucial for the development of events!) The Accused stated that while he continued to agree with the Statement of Principles, the proposal of BiH being a unitary state was not satisfactory.⁹⁰¹¹ (#Exactly, the Principles envisaged a tripartite Bosnia#! Was that a crime? Exactly because a unitary Bosnia was not acceptable to the Christian majority (the Serbs and Croats equally) the Statement of Principles had been accepted. What was unacceptable, was the deception by the Muslim side, to negotiate falsely and buy some time to prepare a war!)

2705. The Chamber recalls that during a meeting in September 1992, the President and Koljević stated that the Bosnian Serbs and the Bosnian Croats would not accept a unitary BiH state; a state based on one-man, one-vote.⁹⁰¹² (The Chamber should have known that this accord of the Christian majority in BiH (i.e. the Serbs and Croats) existed always, and at least since 6 May 92, when Boban and Karadzic met in Graz in Austria. So, the Bosnian Croats were in accord with the Muslims pertaining to the secession from Yugoslavia, but at the same time the Croats had been in accord with the Serbs about the internal structure of BiH.) Koljević also stated that the Bosnian Serbs would not accept the internal borders of BiH without some form of cantonisation.⁹⁰¹³ At international negotiations, the President also expressed the Bosnian Serb position that while they wanted a political resolution they would not abandon their sovereignty or accept a unitarian state or a “loss of national status on our land”.⁹⁰¹⁴ The Accused also called for three units for the three constituent peoples in BiH and emphasised the security of the Serb people who he presented as the “principal victims”.⁹⁰¹⁵ (Those are all #legitimate political positions and subjects of the negotiations#, and it can not be used against the President as a proof of his guilt. Wrong inference! The Chamber is #criminalizing the entire political life of the Serb community# in BiH. The Serb side didn’t demand anything new, but only defended the status quo and constitutional order, and demanded that any change in it be done in accordance with the Constitution itself. It is unusual and not understandable why the Chamber is criminalising the Serbian legitimate political position that had been immediately recognised by the United Nations and the European Community, and built in all the agreements mediated by the international mediators?!? It is even more peculiar, since these proposals were aimed to secure the secession of BiH without a war!)

2706. At first the President expressed that he wanted to be loyal to Yugoslavia and for the Bosnian Serbs to stay in this joint state.⁹⁰¹⁶ When the situation deteriorated and it became clear that BiH would not remain in Yugoslavia, the President adapted this goal.⁹⁰¹⁷

(#EXCULPATORY#! The Serbs in Bosnia had every right to stay in Yugoslavia, no matter the Muslims and Croats stayed or not. In the Yugoslav Constitution it was provided that the “peoples” i.e. nations that constitute Yugoslav federation, are sovereign, and have the right for selfdetermination. Not Republics, but peoples! But, the President advised tho his constituency to redefine this position, only to avoid a war! That was the most painful concession, and it was not easy to the President to persuade the people to support Bosnia and Herzegovina as an independent state out of Yugoslavia. The minimal condition was that this independent Bosnia be decentralised, so that all the three ethnic communities could secure their equality and freedom! Was it the President’s crime too? Shouldn’t he be awarded for this flexibility, instead of being indicted?)

In October 1992, Plavšić stated that the “establishment of a Muslim state without observing the interests of the Serbian people verges on insanity” and that Izetbegović had walked into that situation and “the consequences are now obvious”.⁹⁰¹⁸

(Ms. Plavsic was polite saying that! It was perfectly clear that Mr. Izetbegovic was a fundamentalis from his early youth. And he was #devoted to creation of an Islamic state# “once the Muslims become strong enough to ruin the existing system and to build up another, the Islamic one (The Islamic Declaration!) For the activities towards the realisation of this exclusive and racist idea he was convicted at least twice. However, the Serbs didn’t fear that he may introduce the Islamic regime in one of the Yugoslav republics, but when it came to an independence, it was obvious that he was going to do that. It wasn’t only the Serbs who suspected Mr. Izetbegovic for that, there were many European oriented Muslims too. The President had shown to the Chamber that the Serbs made many concessions, and the most painfull was the one to leave Yugoslavia PROVIDED they get their constituent unit within such a transformed BiH. Full stop. All rightfull and legal. And the recent developments, from the Midle East to Madrid, Brussels and the whole Europe give the Serbs the bitter right!)

1. Conclusion

2707. The Chamber finds that the President’s speech to the SRBiH Assembly in October 1991 in which he spoke about a “highway of hell” clearly shows the President’s consistent opposition to the proposed independence of BiH. (#Opposition to illegal independence was a democratic right, not a crime#! First of all, an opposition to the proposed independence, as a legal and legitimate political position can not be a crime, except in a Nazi dictatorship regime! Particularly since the Federal and Bosnian Constitutions provided that for such a huge change required a consensus of all the republics, and in Bosnia of the three ethnicities. Second, this was spoken on behalf of the entire Serbian community in BiH, and it wasn’t a private opinion. The President could have accepted this “independence” but within hours the Serb people would reject it in a riots and a very chaotic way. At the very same session the President said exactly that – the SDS is not creating the policy of the Serbian people, it is only presenting it. But, there were many statesmen all over the Europe who predicted the same as did this President, and prior than he did it. Anyway, being it a private or national standpoint, this was a legitimate political position based on the Constitution and laws. After all, nobody had any right to make such a vital changes contrary to the Constitution. If the constitutions do not matter, then it should be said publicly, but until that, it stays a legal practice, and violation of it have consequences!) While the President in the speech stated that he was not threatening the Bosnian Muslims, the Chamber finds that on the contrary, the speech contained very specific threats about what would happen if the Bosnian Muslims continued to pursue the path of independence and ignored the will of the Bosnian Serbs. (#Warnings, not threat# Wrong “finding! It was not as simple as “ignoring the will of the Bosnian Serbs”, it was a #violation of the Serb vital rights# and interests consistent with their survival. The President expressed a mere prediction, and the Chamber erred in substance, #neglecting the right semantics#. The President was always advocating against a war, and persuaded his Serb community to give many concessions in order to avoid a war. The Muslims would suffer even more, because as the President predicted, at one moment they waged three wars: one against the Serbs, another against the Croats and the third one against the pro-European Muslims. The West didn’t help those pro-European Muslims, but helped the fundamentalists a lot. At the same time, the Serbs didn’t want to defeat them, otherwise there would be many more casualties!) The Chamber finds that the President was clearly threatening war if the Bosnian Serb interests were ignored, and he also envisaged that such a war would be “hell” and that the Bosnian Muslims would be unable to defend themselves in such a scenario. (The President #didn’t have anything to threaten with#, because there was the Federal state and Federal army. The President didn’t persuade Muslims and Croats to go towards the war to be annihilated, but quite contrary, not to go towards the war. And the events confirmed that the President was right: the Muslims waged the war on the three sides: against the Serbs, Croats and the Abdic Muslims. Hadn’t the Serbs being so restrained, and hadn’t the Western allies supported the Muslims, they would be in a very bad position. The President said many times that his main worry is to obtain the possibility for a kind of peaceful life after the war. And this possibility is still too far. And all of that was the #Muslim choice#!)

2708. The Chamber also finds that these warnings by the President were not just an isolated aberration. (Now, the #Chamber accepts that it was about “warnings”# - not threats, but “found” it as an aberration!) The Chamber finds, by reference to multiple intercepted conversations in September and October 1991, that the President discussed how he would warn the Bosnian Muslims that if they persisted with their policies relating to the independence of BiH, this course of action would lead to extreme bloodshed, annihilation and the disappearance or extinction of the Bosnian Muslims. These conversations, in addition to speeches made by the Accused in 1991, underscore that the Accused intended to threaten the Bosnian Muslims against pursuing independence for BiH and that he was fully aware that a potential conflict would be extremely violent and result in thousands of deaths, the destruction of property, and the displacement of people and that it would be particularly devastating for the Bosnian Muslim population. (#A completely wrong inference#! 1. Had president Karad`i} wanted the Muslims top suffer, to be devastated, he wouldn’t warn them, and not dissuade them from this kind of policy. On the contrary, he would be happy, as any Muslim enemy was happy when they have chosen a war;

2. Talking to somebody else his own predictions and expectations of a future events IS NOT A THREAT, because a threat could be only if it is directed right to the subject of threat, with a conditions and consequences if not accepted!

3. President Karad`i} didn't have anything, any power and device to threaten the Muslims, since there was a Federal state, federal Army (JNA) and Constitution!

4. This is not right that Karad`i} was totally denying the Muslim?Croat intentions to secede from Yugoslavia, and the Chamber doesn't have any right to skip the essence – that the Serbs didn't want to be taken out of Yugoslavia and turned into a status of ethnic minority, against their will. The last Serb, the most painful concession was to accept the secession, provided the Bosnia got decentralised!)

Any reasonable chamber would see that it was not something that the President wanted, or something that he could have caused or exercised, but that it was something that he feared of. There is the sufficient evidence that the #President only predicted a catastrophic course of events#, on the basis of the centuries long experience of the antagonisms, and on the basis of an insight in the state of minds, as well as on the basis of experience from Croatia.

The President made many efforts to DISSUADE, not to PERSUADE the Muslims to go towards an independence and to risk a bloody war. It must be brought back to our attention and to our consideration that the Muslims didn't have a legal possibility for an independence of the entire BiH. Here is the first class evidence that Karadzic didn't threat and didn't want a war – between the times of those speeches and the beginning of the war, the President persuaded his community to give so many concessions just to avoid such a dark scenario. So, in spit of the assertion that “the President” was against the independence of BiH, the independence was accepted by the Serb community under a minimal conditions, a minimal safeguards of the rights. This fact absolutely makes all allegations about the threats and violence vain.

Exactly because he “was fully aware that a potential conflict would be extremely violent and result in thousands of deaths, the destruction of property, and the displacement of people and that it would be particularly devastating for the Bosnian Muslim population,” he fought to the last moment to avoid the war under any cost, see D01833. Instead of being awarded and prized for those peacefull efforts, everything is put upside-down.)

2709. The Chamber finds that the declaration of sovereignty by the SRBiH Assembly in the absence of the Bosnian Serb delegates on 15 October 1991, escalated the situation. The Bosnian Serb leadership made it clear once again that they would not accept a sovereign BiH and issued an ultimatum for the revocation of this declaration. However, it is clear from the conversation on 24 October 1991 between the President and Slobodan Milošević that the President did not expect the Bosnian Muslims to abolish the decisions they had taken with respect to the sovereignty of BiH. (It can not be ignored or forgotten that the #Declaration was an illegal and unconstitutional act#, and the Serb Ultimatum was calling for the return to the legality. Is the Chamber of an opinion that the Serbs had to accept any unlawful decision??? And the “situation didn't escalate” because of the absence of the Serb delegates, but because it was an illegal session and an illegal decision. Does the Chamber respect the domestic constitutions and domestic laws? Is the UN backing this kind of justice?)

2710. The conversation with Milošević in October 1991 is also instructive as it shows that the President envisaged responding in such a way that the Bosnian Serbs would establish full authority in Bosnian Serb territories, create a de facto situation to ensure that the Bosnian Serbs would never live in the same state as the Bosnian Muslims, and create their own parallel and separate institutions and structures. It is also clear from this conversation that Slobodan Milošević was attempting to take a more cautious approach while the President was adamant that their goal was to ensure that they would establish full authority in their territories, which would mean that Izetbegović would not have control of 65% of BiH, and that they would announce their own Bosnian Serb Assembly. (Is the Chamber of an opinion that the #illegal and anti-constitutional acts had to be accepted by the Serbs#? Even then, while still in Yugoslavia, with the protection of the Federal Constitution and Federal laws? Beside that, this is an evidence that the Serbs had been sovereign on the 65% of the territory of BiH, and thus the assertions of the OTP, and “finding” of the Chamber that the Serbs “grabbed” 65% of the Bosnian territory are not correct. One of the myths in this court is so called “take-over” of municipalities, but it never happened that the Serbs took over any municipality, or a part of municipality in which they hadn’t been majority.

(This was the #Serb right, to defend their basic freedom and not to accept a hostile Islamic fundamentalist regime established illegally#. In some of the judgements it was found legal to establish another order once the old one collapses. When a sovereignty breaks apart, the autonomous constituent elements are entitled to maintain an order in accordance with the law, and to self-organize!)

2711. The Chamber also finds that while Milošević expressed reservations about excluding Bosnian Muslims, the Accused was adamant that there were not even 10% of Bosnian Muslims who supported Yugoslavia and that they could not take such a risk. (#To exclude the Muslims, from where#? From the fights in favour of Yugoslavia! Karadžić moderated his objectives only to preserve the Serbs in BiH interests and survival. He realised that a small Serb community in BiH can not save Yugoslavia! Therefore, this is a part of wrong inferences, either because of the Chamber’s ignorance of the Constitution and the domestic laws, or because of an intention to promote a dis-respect of the Yugoslav and BiH, as well as the international basic documents. Nothing can justify such a violation of the constitutional rights of one of the communities in BiH. Beside, this is not correctly presented. President Milosevic was interested not in a solution for the Bosnian Serbs, but for the preservation of Yugoslavia, and counted on the Bosnian Serbs and some Bosnian Muslims to achieve some majority in favour of Yugoslavia. That was a very wrong calculation, because those who demanded some changes needed a two third majority votes, and in that case it would be “pro-Yugoslavs”. However, those who wanted to secede needed those 2/3 majority, while those who were for preservation of the common state needed only one vote above the 1/3 of the votes. The Defense is fighting against wind-mills!) The Accuse also spoke clearly about steps Bosnian Serbs would take to establish authority and control over territories which they claimed and that the Bosnian Serbs would be moving towards mobilisation. (Wrong inference! #This kind of mixing facts and manipulation must be forbidden forever#! The control over owns territories was a constitutional and legal obligation, and a defense necessity, exclusively political matter. The issue of mobilisation didn’t have anything to do with any other armed formation except the JNA, which was in the war against the Croatian secessionists!) The Chamber finds that this demonstrates that the President from October 1991 vehemently opposed the independence of BiH and planned on taking over Bosnian Serb claimed territory. (Wrong inference! #Not to take-over, but to protect and defend#! There was no any plan or even any need to “take over” the Bosnian Serb claimed territories, but there was a need to protect the Bosnian Serb majority territories from an imposition of a hostile regime! Is this UN Court of an opinion that the #Constitution doesn’t matter#? Everything what the Tribunal exercised towards the President implies that the legality doesn’t matter! (How it is possible that the Chamber have forgotten and neglected so impressive circumstances:

1. in Croatia there was the war going on;
2. the Muslim side made a formidable military preparations: a) 30. March 1991, the Muslim participants in the Presidency and Government decided to form a secret Army; See: @ b) On 30 April 1991 the Patriotic league started to exist, and the members are counted their term in the PL from this date; 10 June 1991 the Committee for defence of the Muslims, with the Chairmen of the Presidency Izetbegovic was elected as a president. c) The Patriotic league had its political and military headquarters, and nine regional and 98 municipal headquarters and units, BUT THE CHAMBER NOTICED ONLY THE SERBS ANNOUNCING THAT THEY MIGHT MOBILIZE.
3. See: D00298, The secret Muslim Army, called the Patriotic league already in September 1991 had organized, as follows:

Immediately after involving myself in preparations for the defence of R BH /Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina/, in September 1991, together with the late Safet HADŽIĆ, who was appointed president of the crisis staff of the Sarajevo region, and with the help of Mirsad ČAUŠEVIĆ, now in the MIP /Ministry of the Interior/ and Senad MAŠOVIĆ, now at the command of the Third Corps, I drew up a proposal for organising the Patriotic League for the Sarajevo area, organised the regional staff of the Patriotic League and a plan for the defence of the Sarajevo area.

On the occasion of a meeting with President Alija IZETBEGOVIĆ in Hrasnica, when I informed him of what had been done up to then and proposed a way of organising the Muslim people and other citizens of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and a strategy for the defence of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, he accepted and approved them.

After that I set about realising the plan that had been accepted and organising the Main Staff of the Patriotic League of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, nine regional military staffs, 98 municipal military staffs of the PL. /Patriotic League/ and a large number of manoeuvre, area and logistic units.

The Muslim side had already over a hundred of thousands of soldiers, former JNA reservists, mobilized in the Patriotic league and the Green Berets. Every community that would find itself in such a circumstances is entitled to take a #precautionary and preventive measures#. This is provided in our All-peoples Defence law, but what is the most important, it is deep in the recent memories of the fratricidal wars among the South Slaves. At least half of these 98 municipalities the Serbs were a majority, and in all others a substantively contributed in the general population. Everyone can imagine how the Serbs felt seeing these secret preparations for a war against them!)

This conversation also demonstrates that the Accused envisaged a separation of the Bosnian Serbs from non-Serbs in BiH and that war in BiH would result in “population homogenisation”. ”. (Is an # “envisaging” of the course of events a crime#, or a matter of inteligencia and political experience? What would be a responsible politician expected to do when seeing what may happen? To remain silent, or to speak up and warn everyone that the course of events is dangerous?) The Chamber also finds that the Accused supported the creation of ethnically based entities in BiH. (#Is this a crime? Tell it to the Belgian people! Or Bavarians, or Scottish people#!) The Accused also encouraged the identification of Serb areas which would be to the exclusion of Bosnian Muslims. (#A “state separation#! Not only a wrong inference, but also a forgery! The Chamber is altering what the President said at the Serb Assembly session on 12 May 92: a state separation with the Muslims and Croats, not personal, or ethnic separation.

A STATE SEPARATION, see P00956, on the first strategic objective:

The Serbian side in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Presidency, the Government, the Council for National Security, which we have set up, have formulated the strategic priorities, that is to say, the strategic goals for the Serbian people. The first such goal is separation from the other two ethnic communities - separation of states.

(#All the Yugoslav republics wanted a secession on an ethnical basis!#Why the Chamber do not specify what would be to the exclusion of Bosnian Muslims. But, for the ethnically based entities, it has to be said that the entire Yugoslav crisis was about ethnically based entities. The Slovenians wanted to separate from Yugoslavia not because the rest of Yugoslavs had a dark eyes, or were taller than the Slovenians, but because the rest of the Yugoslavs were not Slovenians. So was with Macedonians, Croats. The destruction and dissolution of Yugoslavia was caused by the different ethnicities of the population in the different republics, which wanted to be alone on their own ethnic territories. The only Yugoslav republic that didn't have a clear precondition to claim for the independence was BiH, and it was established in the Badinter's Commission (see: opinion No. 4) the whole crisis was to secure that one ethnicity didn't dominate over another. And this Tribunal is implying that the Serbs should be obedient and accept the dictate. There must be something very wrong in the very foundation of such a court, which disables it to recognize what is right and what is wrong, or what is lawful and what is not! #Tribunal can not differentiate right from wrong#!)

2712. The Accused's conversation with Krajišnik in January 1992 also demonstrates the Accused's continuing anger with respect to the proposed independence of BiH. (#Not anger, but responsibility#! This was not a matter of "anger" but of a responsibility for the people who voted for the SDS, to represent their interests. The independence could not be decided without the consent of all the three constituent peoples (ethnic communities) In this regard the President said that he would not be calming the Bosnian Serb people any further and that he would "release [their] tigers and let them do their job". The President also spoke about the non-negotiable character of the Bosnian Serb objectives and his position that they would not allow anything to stop them. (To stop them to preserve the basic and the most vital interests of the Serbian people that he represented from an unlawful jeopardy! What is wrong with that? This was a duty, and couldn't be waved off!) The Chamber finds that the President's position was that the Bosnian Serbs would not allow BiH to secede from Yugoslavia, and if BiH insisted on independence so would the Bosnian Serbs. (Exactly, reciprocity. There was no any Bosnia without the Serb community, as an equal component with the two other communities! The Serb position was legally stronger than the Muslim one, because they were seceding from the internationally recognized state, on an un-lawful manner, while the Serbs were conservative, trying to preserve the country that existed 70 years. Just to please the Muslims, the Serbs intended to secede from an illegally seceded state and a hostile fundamentalist regime!)

2713. The President also described the Bosnian Muslims as a "religious sect" who had only recently been given the status of "people" and that they had no basis for their independence. The Chamber finds that this rhetoric when combined with the President's references to the Bosnian Muslims as their historic enemies, created an environment which sought to quash any claim to independence by BiH and to re-assert the Bosnian Serb interests in BiH. (Wrong inference! First of all, the matter whether the Muslims are a separate nation-people doesn't have anything to do with their rights to independence. The Croats were a separate nation-people, but they also didn't have a right to secede the entire Bosnia, and hardly only themselves. That was the Serb position about both of them, the Muslims and Croats: if they wanted to leave Yugoslavia, the Serbs were not willing to prevent them. The Serbs denied the Muslim and Croat intentions to secede the Serbs from Yugoslavia against their own will and interests. Why the Serbs in Bosnia wouldn't have their own interests in BiH? This is the most legitimate interest, and those who legally and legitimately represented the Serbs in Bosnia were obliged to take care of those interests. (It is not difficult to understand: the Serbs didn't deny anything to the others, while others denied to the Serbs their fundamental rights! The Chamber already had a sufficient evidence that this was not a Serb standpoint to deny any rights of the Muslims, but to preserve the Serb rights to stay in Yugoslavia, or, at least, to remain sovereign within BiH, and not under the Muslim domination. According to the Yugoslav, as well as the BiH Constitutions, the Muslims didn't have any right, nor any legal possibility to form a unitary BiH as their own national state, while the Christian majority (i.e. The Serbs and Croats) were supposed to be turned to become a minorities!)

Those discussions about whether the Muslims are a religious group, or a separate ethnicity were held by the highest state institutions, and this is an academic question. Until 60-es of the last century it was widely kept that they were only a religious group of the Serbs, and some Croats, who converted into Islam. Although the Serbs and some prominent Muslims still think that the Muslims are the Serbs of the muslim religion, the President's standpoint is that nobody should prevent them to feel whatever they want. The scientific and political aspects are involved. But if the Serbs consider the Muslims to be the Serbs, it does contradict to the Chambers finding???

2715. The Chamber also finds that there was a disjuncture between what the President said in private conversations or before a Bosnian Serb audience and the tone he took in international negotiations where he was more conciliatory, spoke against conflict, and claimed that the Serbs were the victims of propaganda. The Accused took a leading role in portraying the Bosnian Serbs as the victims of the conflict and used this as justification for pursuing their territorial and political objectives of a separate Serb state in BiH. (Wrong inference! What the President said to the international mediators was obligatory and was planned to be signed and respected, while the political speeches are in every country quite different from a formal negotiations. The main issue is: the #Tribunal is denying the Serb rights to political life!#.

The two very prominent witnesses, Ambassadors Cutileiro and Akashi, said in the courtroom that they had never taken into account the #President's political speeches#, because it is aimed to the public that has to be kept in their morale. The Chamber should have known that as well!)

- ii. Advocating separation of population and creation of a Bosnian Serb state

1. Analysis of evidence

(a) Separation of population—inability to co-exist

2716. On 27 August 1991, in an intercepted conversation with Koljević, the President expressed his opposition to BiH independence and indicated his willingness to divide BiH along ethnic lines by stating “[l]et us see what it is, what the solution for each ethnic group would be, and for everyone to agree to it [...]. Because if there is no solution acceptable to us in [BiH], we will find our own solution”.⁹⁰¹⁹

(First of all, it is a #deeply incorrect re-interpretation#, suggesting that the President advocated the separation of population. The Chamber should not do it, since the original speech of the President is available, and in the speech the President underlined “the state separation”, only if the Muslim/Croat communities insist to secede from Yugoslavia! And again, the document quoted here is misinterpreted and misunderstood. Look what had been said in this tel. conversation, P5878:

what you are describing, Alija, is a matter of two political wills clashing. We are in a position to decide whether we have a united solution for Bosnia and Herzegovina, therefore, one that would be acceptable to all three ethnic groups.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: And if there isn't one, then let us find a solution for each ethnic group separately. Let us see what it is, what the solution for each ethnic group would be, and for everyone to agree to it, or rather, everyone should look for their own solution. Because if there is no solution acceptable to us in Bosnia and Herzegovina, we will find our own solution. But Momo gave him the brush off as far as the referendum goes.

This is #the most conciliatory proposal#. The Serbs didn't ask for the changes of the structure of either Federal, or Bosnian state. The two other communities demanded the changes, i.e. secession from the Federal state, for which they needed the Serb consent. At the beginning, the Serbs opposed the idea to ruin Yugoslavia, but in a chain of compromises and concessions the Serbs came to the conditional acceptance of the secession. Parallel to this process there was the process on establishing the Historic Serb-Muslim Argeement, which was acceptable to the Serbs and several Muslim parties, but not to the religious organisation. Another word, the Serbs were running their political life by defending the Constitution and the laws, and this mustn't be incriminated, particularly not such isolated from the other events and demands of other participants. Dr. Seselj is right sayin that everything looks like an Inquisition.

Pertaining to the intercepted conversation od 27 August 91, again this is Wrong inference! It was Alija Izetbegovic who proposed the division of BiH, for the first time, in May 91. See:

⁹⁰¹⁹ P5878 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Nikola Koljević, 27 August 1991), p. 4.

KARADŽIĆ

intensive talks with our ... they surprised us the day before yesterday, after that lunch, they completely took us by surprise. IZETBEGOVIĆ talked about the division of Bosnia, explicitly and openly, he'd never been more explicit! I, we were shocked. We hadn't thought about that. Then we

D01282

Therefore, the first who mentioned and proposed the division of BiH was Mr. Izetbegovic, and the President sad that the Serbs never thought about that, and that they had be shocked!

2717. In November 1991, the President spoke about the “principle of reciprocity” and that the Serbs alone would not move out of certain areas and then allow the Bosnian Muslims to “stay in our areas to settle and build their colonies”.⁹⁰²⁰ (This is not correct, and probably not allowed to imply something from one to another context. This had been said in the occasion of the Muslim plans to import 4 millions Turks and settle them in the Serbian traditional areas, so to change the ethnic composition. This speech was a very conciliatory, presenting to the Muslims what is acceptable and what is not under any circumstances, reminding the Muslims what they wanted and announced earlier, to make a sovereign those parts of BiH that they can control prosperously. Let us see what had been said in the quoted document, P958, p.7:

*The Muslim gentlemen are now establishing a ministry for emigrants. Yesterday, I told Izetbegović openly - I don't know whether Biljana was there, but Krajišnik was - you are now establishing a ministry for emigrants; you want to move all the rabble, beggars and scoundrels from Turkey and settle them in our territories. But I am telling you, whatever Bosnia we have one day, no Muslim foundation shall ever be laid in Serb areas and Serb villages whether or not you import Turks because we will instruct Serbs not to sell land to Muslims (applause and ovation). The first foundations that are laid will be blown up, and all foundations that are laid will be blown up. You took Novo Sarajevo, now you have 300 houses that are being built there without licenses. We are going to ask for, Serbs are going to ask for 900 houses... so that we would get that too. You took Ilidža with the Sokolović kolonija from us. That's what Hamdija POZDERAC⁶ deliberately and consciously did right in the middle of Ilidža; they settled people from Sandžak⁷ in Vogošća, they took Vogošća... There, around Ilijaš we are sort of equal. We have Pale left. But there on Pale (Mokro), they planned to build a thousand or more flats for the market. And we know which market that is. Then we could say that Sarajevo has been cut off from the Romanija /mountain/. They are implementing a demographic policy here; but we will be implementing one too, and the whole world will understand that. The world will understand /us/ when we tell them that we will not allow the demographic picture to change, either naturally or artificially. No way, our territories are ours, we may be hungry but we will be there. That's why we told him, I told him openly yesterday, it is not always good to disclose one's plans but it is not bad to say that we will not give them up because we will proclaim: "You must not sell land to Muslims!" You must not! Because this is a fight to the finish, a battle for living space. They have a plan to conquer Bosnia, to keep all of Bosnia for themselves so that when the next census is taken within ten years, they will have an absolute majority and turn us into *raja*⁸. They have turned us into raja in several areas already, into mere raja. On TV, press,*

⁸ Raja - derogatory for non-Muslim subjects under Turkish rule radio, in many firms, they've turned us into mere raja. In hospitals, doctors are Muslims and cleaning women are Serbs, so on average there are both Muslims and Serbs, but Serbs do the menial jobs. For example, there are 75% Muslims among doctors, and 75% Serbs among the cleaning women. To sum up, prospects look very bad unless we are alert and energetic, if we are not equal to our ancestors, equal to our task, the task put forth before us by our posterity... that we secure a country for them.

The examples of of such a ruthless manipulation and domination are numerous even during the communist regime, and in a fundamentalis regime it would be even worse! An artificial change of the ethnic picture is a crime!

This is very serious, the situation is very serious and we must not give in. I visited Alija yesterday and we did not want to talk about anything else but the partition. You did what you did in the Assembly and we will discuss nothing but partition! How we will separate ourselves but still stay together, live together, but in such a way that you have nothing to do with our affairs nor we with yours. Then he said he didn't know how and so on. Then I reminded him of what he said long ago, during the pre-election campaign, and what I thought was good. He says: "What nonsense did I say, /it must have been nonsense/ because you liked it?" I say it is not nonsense. You said that if you could not make all of Bosnia sovereign you would make that part of Bosnia sovereign which you can control prosperously. Didn't you say that? Yes, you did. Very well then. That's what we are going to do. Let everything you can control prosperously be "Muslim B-H" and everything we can control prosperously "Serb B-H". And it will be in a union with other Serb countries, i.e. a confederation with other Serb countries, and it can also be a confederation. We do not have to have two passports; we can have the same dinar; everything can be the same, but let us separate as many things as possible. Like in the days of the Turks.

And further, the President presented a conciliatory form of co-existence with the Muslims, the way that later proposed the EC and UN mediators, and which had been accepted in the Dayton Agreement:

One Serb čaršija', one Turkish čaršija, Serb affairs, Turkish affairs, and Serb cafes, theatres, schools, and everything else. This is the only solution (applause). I told him that long ago. Mrs Plavšić and Krajišnik know that. Alija, let us not start an irreversible process, like the one between Serbs and Croats. Now we wouldn't go along with Croats any more even if they wanted to. Don't make us decide that we don't want to go along with Muslims either. Because if we decide that, we will no longer want to be with you. And they are close to that. They've showed us how merciless they are. We have the example of the Stari Grad municipality where they showed us, as an experiment, what a sovereign Bosnia really means. There, Serbs have been deprived of all rights. There, we used to have three school masters. They have been fired. They fired the petrol station manager too. Everything is fine with us, but let us make a deal first. Serbs are not going to be more liberal than they. No! And everything will be done according to the principle of reciprocity. We will behave towards them the way they behave towards us. We alone are not going to move out /illegible - ?out these areas/, and have them stay in our areas to settle and build their colonies. In no way are we going to behave like gentlemen wearing white gloves. If you are thrown into the sheepfold, you can play the lamb and nothing will happen to you. But if you are thrown among the wolves, no more talking... You can't be the lamb. You have to be equal to your task and to your adversary. Whatever the outcome, and I am speaking on the level of the plebiscite, we will be the crucial factor. Europe will have to take into account what the BH Serbs say. They will have to.

So, that was a Serb proposition, to have a reciprocity in dealing with each other, to understand each other and live together in a way not to dominate over each other!. And we already have seen how the domination looks like in the areas where the Muslims were majority. What is the sense of the representation of an ethnic community, if not to protect it's rights and facilitate them a free political, economic and cultural life?)

The President called on the Bosnian Serbs to "get ready and establish your authority in your territories; in municipalities, regions, local communities, and to prepare yourselves for restructuring and regionalizing the municipalities" and for them to control the process until the very last moment.⁹⁰²¹ The President concluded that after and during the plebiscite it was important to "seize power wherever you can".⁹⁰²² (They already had been keeping the power, but pretty comfortable and with a surplus tolerance towards the communist officials, who were adversaries to the SDS and other victorious parties. Anyway, this was just one sentence, an appeal to the local authorities to exercise the power strictly, and it does have nothing to do with the war or war crimes, since it was in October 1991, when all hoped that there would not be a war. The Chamber is persistent in criminalising every aspect of the Serb political life! Let us see P958, p.12, what really the President said and what it did mean:

So I am here asking you, there are two big jobs, two big tasks... The priority is the PLEBISCITE. And after the plebiscite and during the plebiscite it is important that you should seize power wherever you can. Sit down with managers, with good and capable managers, sit down with them and talk. And you will see that your interests are identical because you belong to the same people and you want to create the same state. Don't talk with bad managers. Organise plebiscite, i.e. referendums on confidence among workers the way Communists did. But only after this plebiscite. Right now, don't do anything, let's not mix things up. They are doing things to us! They are misappropriating property, plundering, seizing power everywhere, removing our people. If you have a look at the map, we have a huge territory in B-H, a huge territory!

It is clear

what the President meant: to talk to the good, successful managers in companies, so to be able to secure a good course in economy for which the SDS authorities had been responsible. Therefore, not to take-over any power from anyone, but to be strict and responsible in exercising the power!)

2718. With respect to the “three national communities” in BiH, the President suggested that “the more separate things there are the better it will be”.⁹⁰²³ (It would be better for the Prosecutor if the Chamber didn't deal with such a piece of speeches, because it shows how Karadzic was right, and the meaning of his words are quite opposite to what the Chamber ruled. Let us see a portion of this speech.

In connection with these municipalities: the fact is that the Serbs are nevertheless maintaining a balance in some municipalities even though they are a minority and sometimes just about there and managing to protect primarily their human and civil rights as well as their national, economic and other rights. But, in some municipalities, Olovo, for instance, they cannot do anything. All of them there were fired, even the manager of the gasoline station. They could not allow a Serb to be in charge of anything there.

This part says that the Serbs were already in a very bad situation in some municipalities, where they are such a minority, so that they can not protect their human rights. For instance, in Olovo all of the Serbs were fired, even the last one, working on the gasoline station. Let's see next:

In some municipalities, for instance, they want to take the schools at any cost and change their names. For instance, the Vuk Karadžić school in Bratunac; of the two schools in the city they want both, to change their names, etc.

In the Municipality of Bratunac the Muslim majority doesn't allow that one of the two schools have a name of the great Serb from 19th Century, a reformer of our culture and very important for all of us. That is a violation of the national rights of the Serbs, and a flagrant humiliation. If the unique municipality of Bratunac doesn't tolerate that one of the two schools has a Serb name, then it is better to have two municipalities. Or the next:

D84 (Shorthand Record of 3rd session of SerBiH Assembly, 11 December 1991), pp. 13–14; P958 (Radovan Karadžić's speech at the Plebiscite of the Serb People, November 1991), p. 7. See also D424 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Vojo Kuprešanin, 10 February 1992), p. 11.

When we think things over, when we plan the future, despite the fact that we will remain in Yugoslavia, I see that Bosnia cannot be organised like the other republics, predominantly nation republics, because it is a Republic (BH) with three national communities. And, I ask that both in terms of language and terminology we adhere to this: three national communities.

The Parties represent these national communities, this time it is the Serbian Democratic Party, next time it might be the Federalists Party of Mr. Djokanović. Some Parties will act together. But, the terminology should be: THREE NATIONAL COMMUNITIES BECAUSE THEY EXIST.

It is so clearly democratic attitude, to respect the specificity of Bosnian three ethnicities.

In this Republic the life of the three national communities overlaps in places, in places they have things in common. But to my mind, the more separate things there are the better it will be. Perhaps these three national communities will have three school systems, perhaps even three health care systems, etc. Perhaps in formulating this Recommendation we should state that in places where the Serbs are not able to preserve their civil, national, economic and other rights due to being vastly outnumbered, the Assembly of the Serbian people recommends that they form their municipality. In this way we would achieve what Mr. Milojević vividly described for us, that we must not lose what we have taken, what we have invested in.

Even the smallest municipality can have three municipalities if we agree on that. If that is agreed on at the Conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Recommendation should state that this is not obligatory, but it should be done unless national equality cannot be secured otherwise.

Those are all peaceful meditation, how to regulate the life in a republic which is different from others, because of the existence of the three communities with the different needs. And the main objective was to secure everyone's national equality, and if it can't be done otherwise, than could be done by forming a separate municipalities, and all within the Conference, and all through an agreement. This was the Serb well known Recommendation for the new municipalities, and not obligatory! That was recommended on 11 December, while everyone hoped that there will be a political settlement, and would be no any war. There is no a trace, let alone evidence about any Joint Criminal Enterprise, because every single person could have stayed at own native place, and enjoy a protection of his own municipal authorities. There couldn't be any "ethnic cleansing" anything irregular!

And the prediction from this part of the President's speech had come to reality, as many others predicted, among them the most prominent politicians and statemen in the world! As the President said, if we enter a civil war, we will enter a chaos, and then the chaos is going to control us, we can not control the chaos! Wasn't it just as predicted by the President and many others?)

2719. The President in a speech in January 1992 stated that the Bosnian Serbs would "not impose anything on each other" and that they would work towards a form of state organisation to which Croats, Serbs and Muslims would agree.⁹⁰²⁴ This was not that the "Bosnian Serbs would not impose anything on each other" but that the three ethnic communities will not impose anything to each other, but to work hard and find out a solution that will be acceptable for all the three communities. The President repeated his commitment to such a conclusion of the common Assembly from the session at the beginning of September 1991.

...and we will not impose anything on each other. We will not stop, we will work around the clock until we achieve such state organisation and such form which all three nations will agree to, Croats, Serbs and Muslims. Then we will hold a referendum that will be finished in 15 days. Gentlemen, that is the only way we can avoid unwanted effect, so that people calm down, so that they start living normally. Believe me, we have no influence over the war or peace, the situations are very often uncontrolled and it happens always or very often that no one can have a control over such situations. Gentlemen, all of you, including me, can picture now what would say, a Serbian federation or wherever, it does not have to be called Yugoslavia. Our offer cannot be more fair, and that is that every nation decides the distance that it will have towards other nations and that they rule on their own, and preserve their sovereignty. Do not deceive yourselves that Serbs and Croats in BiH will accept to lose their sovereignty. The only way to do something together is to reorganise Bosnia

The President also said that they had “no influence over the war or peace” and that if an inter-ethnic or religious war started in BiH, Serbs, Muslims, and Croats would run away and go to their own “fully homogeneous” areas and that there would be severe bloodshed and destruction of towns.⁹⁰²⁵

(EXCULPATORY!!! The President warned on what would inevitably happen, not because somebody would want it, but because nobody would be able to influence the cours of events. This was not a “war-mongering “ statement, but a try to dissuade the detrimental policy that was leading to the war! Also, warning about “running away” to the ethnically homogenous areas, the President depicted an undesirable course of events, and therefore rebuts all the allegations about the “ethnic cleansing” as a Serb objective!)

Similarly the President told Vance that BiH independence could lead to war and that there “will be great mass movements, homogenisation of territories, migrations from one area into another and, of course, accompanied by instances of shooting out of hand”.⁹⁰²⁶

2720. In January 1992, in a conversation in which there was discussion about having Bosnian Muslims within their borders, the President said “they will have their region, we will have our own region”.⁹⁰²⁷ (There is no limits to these distortions of meanings. On 7 January 1992 there still was no any entity borders, nor entities, it was a unitary Bosnia still within Yugoslavia. See

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	We'll talk about that ... Krajina can become so and so the moment we have got our state. To chop up the Serb people now and to have each principality solve the question one by one ...
Miroslav	It will happen if we stay ... erm ... within these borders and if the Muslims stay with us.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yeah, but, but ... they will have their region, we will have our own region ... there are not any ... anymore ... I mean, this thing that's being done is complete madness.
Miroslav	You know how many problems I had with the Knin Krajina and you know ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, yes.

P2596: There was said that if “we stay within these borders – meaning the unitary Bosnian borders – not entity borders – the Muslims would stay with the Serbs, and the President said that in a new structure of BiH the Muslims will have the same as the Serbs, their own areas. Therefore, to interpret it as if the President excluded a possibility that some Muslims stay in the Serb areas is out of mind! That pahhens when the Prosecution-Chamber alliance don't have sufficient incriminatory evidence, and make a patchwork of sentences out of the time frame and other contexts! The President also spoke about the importance of creating their country first and then establishing “krajinas” and the danger that they would never create their state if they started establishing “krajinas” first.⁹⁰²⁸ (How possibly a political talks, persuading, argumentation, negotiation... can be used to convict somebody? Beside that, the President was advocating a restrain from any strong political proclamations which could be condemned by the EC, see P2596:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes. The other day I shouted at ... we shouted at each other ... that, that LAZAREVIĆ guy. They did some stupid things regarding the solution to the question of the Krajina as a federal unit, that is, as a constituent element of the Federation. That's stupid ...
Miroslav	That's very popular again, you know, here in the Krajina.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Those are all idiots. Whoever mentions that is brainless and does not comply with the policy of the SDS, which advocates a single solution for the Serb people in Yugoslavia as such. That ... erm... what they are doing ... it would mean the same as if Serbia said ... accept The Hague document and I don't give a fuck for the Serbs outside of Serbia ... finished by work and I'll take my ten billion dollars and solve the problem.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Listen, all these ideas about autonomy must be suppressed... principalities cannot exist.
Miroslav	But not to declare, rather to ... there are departments ... the people should work on the economy ... I don't know, they should work on security, economy, traffic ... you
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	They'll have lots of work.
Miroslav	... federal units ...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Lots of work, lots of work ...
Miroslav	You know what? It would be foolish towards Europe to declare anything. Europe would not take us seriously without an ultimatum, without a reason, you know.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Never mind. You are part of a single BH, there is no way we'll give up on that.
Miroslav	Europe would ask why and what would we ... I mean, what would someone say? Why? Where is our Constitution, our reason? Why, for what?
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	That must not be done.

From the entire conversation it is clear that the President didn't decide any personal solution in Krajina (ARK) but only suggested. Also, it is visible that the President was preventing a political proclamations which wouldn't be welcomed in the European Community, but to work on education, economy etc.

2721. In February 1992, Krajišnik stated that if they were successful in creating a confederal BiH it would consist of three states and he was “not interested in Muslims in [BiH]”.⁹⁰²⁹ And this is another blasphemy, done by extracting a sentence out of the context. Mr Krajišnik was in a polemics with the ARK leaders, and was talking that we (the Serbs) have to take care of our interests, and not to strive for any Yugoslavia which would be wanted only by the Serbs and no one else. In that context Krajišnik said that he is (no longer) interested in having the Muslims from Central Bosnia within Yugoslavia: see D88 pp.63-64

⁹⁰²⁸ P2596 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and “Miroslav”, 7 January 1992), p. 6.

⁹⁰²⁹ D88 (Shorthand Record of 8th session of SerBiH Assembly, 25 February 1992), pp. 62–63.

Gentlemen, if we succeed in creating a confederal BH, it shall consist of three states. And the Serbian State will form an alliance with the Serbian States. Everyone will have one State. We don't need the relics of Yugoslavia which no one else wants. We accept Yugoslavia as a Serbian state, and not as a Yugoslavia which would have to include Macedonia, Slovenia and Croatia. I am not interested in Muslims in Bosnia and Herzegovina. That is why I think we need to be open and honest here. The

There can not be any confusion, Krajisnik said that he wasn't any longer interested in keeping the Bosnian Muslims in Yugoslavia, and it was an "open and honest" approach! Quite contrary to that what the Judgement suggested! He also stressed that everything which the Bosnian Serb Assembly did, and everything he did, was "for pure areas" of BiH, that he was in favour of a "monolithic Serbian state" where all Serbs live together.⁹⁰³⁰ (Again, wrong inference, either because of misunderstanding, or a manipulation, but it is unacceptable anyway. Mr. Krajisnik was again in a polemics with the ARK separatists, he said nothing that would be blamed for. Let us see P05623, p.3:

into account any /unintelligible/ objection that comes from Krajina. . . I think that it is only a matter of . . . even the Constitution in this period, we can allow that we don't vote for it each time but rather say we agree to it because nothing will come of it if we now want to rule over someone /unintelligible/ the Muslims /unintelligible/ Croats /unintelligible/. But this thing that has begun, we don't need a confederal Serbian BH, gentlemen, we need wisdom, we only need a monolithic Serbian state and

It is clear that there was a discussion on the Constitution, and Mr. Krajisnik pointed out that nobody will "rule over someone". Pertaining to the Muslims and Croats, but the main point was his opposition to a confederal concept of the Republika Srpska itself, because it would be unusual to have the BiH as a confederation, and within it a Serb entity as another confederation. Let us see what to do with the "pure areas", P05623, p.4.:

reality. Look at these priests of ours: every time we discuss with great respect and then we say, "God help the Serbian people to agree," no one has the right to do that by bypassing our unity. I tell you, everything we do in this Parliament, everything I do personally, I do exclusively for pure areas of /unintelligible/ and Herzegovina and /unintelligible/ and I will not yield the right to tell the people of Krajina that they are not right. The people of Krajina are not working for the whole Serbian people, but we are working for the people of Krajina. But that is difficult to prove. I say that at this

This kind of manipulation is not tolerable! Mr. Krajisnik was persuading the ARK autonomists that he was taking care of all the pure Serbian territories, which meant – all undisputedly Serbian areas, in terms not to neglect their needs. Again, the Chamber is picking a sentences from a political polemics in order to prove – what? Nothing can be proven that way, and this is not correct and fair. The discussion went on before the war, (28 February 1992) and there was a good prospective that there wouldn't be any war, and it can not be understood as an ethnically purified areas! Koljević also emphasised that they would not allow the Bosnian Muslims to have a sovereign state which extended over both the Serb and Croat parts of BiH and that they had therefore constituted a Serb Assembly.⁹⁰³¹ (Koljevic was talking about the main problem, the Muslim intention to preserve Bosnia as a unitary state under their domination. What is this Chamber now doing? Justifying the Muslim unlawful ambitions? However, the entire international community, including the owner of this Court, the UN, gave us right for opposing to be subjugated to one of the constituent communities in BiH. Koljević acknowledged that the process of re-organising municipalities was with the aim of creating "homogeneity of certain areas" and argued that contrary to the political assertions, it was not impossible to divide BiH.⁹⁰³² (How much is this incorrect, it is the easiest way just to see sentence:

It is not so impossible to divide Bosnia. You know, everything is possible, but that option is excluded for us on the basis of a stand taken in advance. Look at that

So,

Koljević said that it was possible to divide Bosnia, “but that option is excluded for us on the basis of a stand taken in advance. The first class evidence about the Serb intentions, all the contrary to the assertions of the Prosecution/Chamber/ Who is responsible for such a drastic distortion of meaning and imputation of a criminal statement, although it didn’t exist? The Serbs excluded this in advance, in order to satisfy the Muslim needs for Bosnia.)

Koljević stated that at a municipal level they had tried separate municipal assemblies and formed new municipalities.⁹⁰³³

(This was also all within the constitution and law provisions, and any people in any local commune is entitled to leave an old and join a new municipality. (This was an inter-republic visit, and had nothing to do with the President. Koljević first expressed a condolence for the Croatian victims, than stated that the visit of him and Mr. Boras, as the two members of the BH Presidency, was to try to pacify the Serb-Croat relations. Koljević (p.4) proposed to avoid any provisional solution for BH and advised the talks as long as necessary in order to make everyone satisfied. The next of Koljević’s interest was a pacification, and what he said:

these unhappy circumstances of war which have occurred, rests on a premise which I personally as well as innumerable Serbs believe in, that is to say that pacification can be attained through separation. If you want to prevent people from engaging in conflict or to create trust among them, you have to separate them first. That’s what the peace forces likewise do – they separate first.

So, the separation was envisaged as a temporary, and with the aim to disengage the antagonised communities. All of it happened after the Yugoslav-Croatian war, and before the war in Bosnia, and was aimed to avoid the war in Bosnia! COMMENDABLE! Finally, what does it have to do with the President? This was an official visit of the members of the BH Presidency, not of the RS Presidency, and the President even didn’t know about it. How a words and thoughts of another people could represent a mens rea of this President? Further, he repeatedly called for the expulsion of Bosnian Muslims and the homogeneity of territories,

1 Dr. Karadzic is saying what Dr. Karadzic always says, so I write
2 "continuous emphasis on ethnically based territorial units." He may have 3 spoken for 5 or 10 minutes on that subject; that is to say, we have to 4 have, you know, ethnically pure, we can't live together, they hate us, we
5 hate -- you know, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera. This was the same old 6 story. So I just note that "continued emphasis on ethnically based 7 territorial units." But it's important to note that there is no deviation
8 in the Bosnian Serb position. Indeed, there was no deviation throughout 9 the months and months of negotiation.

10 Q. And just below that entry, it appears that Dr. Koljevic is 11 underscoring the need for physical separation and the inability, in his 12 view, of the Serbs and Muslims to live together, where he says, "War has 13 shattered trust. Communities cannot live together any more. To deny that 14 is fantasy."

15 A. Yes, this was part of the standard line. No trust. Hatred 16 between the communities. And then again, I notice in parenthesis at the 17 bottom, a lengthy expatiation on those points, again, by Koljevic and 18 Dr. Karadzic. The elaborations went on at great length.

19 Q. Was there any deviation from this position by any of the Bosnian 20 Serb leaders present?

21 A. No, not at all. They were all consistent on that, and they all 22 said the same thing. Dr. Karadzic, Mr. Krajisnik, Nikola Koljevic, Buha, 23 Lukic. Buha and Lukic were somewhat cruder in their presentations. That 24 just reflects their personalities. But the top leaders, Dr. Karadzic, 25 Mr. Krajisnik, Koljevic, were very consistent.

There is no mentioning of any "expulsion" of the Muslims. Also, there was nobody in the courtroom who was interested in a rebutting or challenging anything that concerned Koljevic or Karadzic. But, let us see another page of the same transcript (P776, Okun) to see of how much value are those notes: This is the previous page, 4219 of the Transcript of Okun testimony I in the Krajisnik case, P776

Vitimir Žepinić, T. 33594–33595 (13 February 2013); Herbert Okun, P776 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajisnik), T. 4220. During a meeting with Serb and Muslim representatives in May 1992, Koljević precluded any possibility of Muslims and Serbs cohabitating in Pale; the former had to leave. This is the most disgusting lie, because Koljevic met the Pale Muslims to dissuade them to leave for Sarajevo P733 (Witness statement of Sulejman Crnčalo dated 1 November 2009), para. 38; Sulejman Crnčalo, T. 1164–1165 (14 April 2010).

1 explained about the nature of the negotiations and the information --

2 A. I don't think so. What Dr. Karadzic was saying here reflected the 3 fact that by September of 1992, the VRS, the Bosnian Serb Army, the 4 Bosnian irregulars, had conquered and controlled about 70 per cent of 5 Bosnia and Herzegovina. So he was saying we should stop now. Obviously, 6 it was to their advantage.

7 Q. On the next page, the second entry indicates Dr. Koljevic saying,
8 "You need to put pressure on the Muslims if you want to stop the fighting.
9 But international community has not done this." What was the pressure 10 aimed at getting the Muslims to do? What did Dr. Koljevic ask you as 11 representatives of the international community to get the Muslims to do in 12 order to stop the fighting?

13 A. Well, what he would have wished was that we, as negotiators,
14 convince the Muslims to sign a peace based on the current territorial 15 holdings, the current situation, which it goes without saying they would 16 not do that.

17 Q. Two more entries I'd like to bring your attention to: The first 18 appears immediately below the remarks to which you just referred. It's 19 Dr. Karadzic saying, or as reflected in your entry, "continuous emphasis 20 on ethnically based territorial units."

21 A. That is my gloss of what he was saying. I mean, he's not saying 22 that. He goes on and on. This is a meeting that lasted almost two hours, 23 and you notice that I've covered one hour and 25 minutes in two pages.
24 Now, if you had a transcript of that, it would probably run, I suppose, 20 25 or 30 pages. But I didn't have to write everything down because he lines 17 – 25 clearly disqualify this kind of notes of any witness. Amb. Okun admitted that Karadzic didn't say what was written down. So, the Defense must object using any of those notes particularly when other sources are available. The heads of the negotiating teams obligatorily made their reports to those who empowered them, and they always report every significant opinion not only of the head of the Serb delegation, i.e. Karadzic, but of every member of the negotiating team. Among so many undecencies, the Tribunal should exclude from the evidence all of those "meditations" of those who used to put some words down now and then.)

2722. Krajišnik also stated that "[o]ur aim is to divide with the Muslims, if the Muslims were to capitulate we would remain with them, if they remained with us they would soon be the majority?" and outlined the Strategic Goals, including dividing from Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁹⁰³⁵ (The entire document is EXCULPATORY, and many elements of it completely rebutted many Prosecutor's allegations: see the same document, P01479, p.130 - 131, the VRS officers were very critical of the authorities and the President (the President) in particular: Colonel Kovacevic objected generally; reporting that "the President had accepted that all systems be put under the UN control." Understandable, the Prosecution doesn't have any interest to depict this fact, but the Chamber should notice this big concession of the Serb side to the UN, for the sake of peace. On p. 139 Karadzic said: "we are already a state, but a state that doesn't function well. That is why we met." On p. 140 (srb) it had been said that there are still a paramilitaries and a para-authorities, and a fighting for power, 15 kinds of uniforms. P. 141, authorities do not function, the courts also, there is no clear stand toward the Muslims who declared the loyalty, (which was responded by Mr. Misikin on p. 155, that those Muslims should be included in the military industry and digging trenches) and by Karadzic, p.156 eng.: "the relation with the Muslims: in our state we do have to have a national minorities"

* Attitude towards the Muslims, we must have ethnic minorities in the state as well.-

at was said in a close meeting, among the deputies and officers, was not aimed for a public, and it is clearly said that there, in the Republic of Srpska will be ethnic minorities, which is contrary to all the allegations of the OTP that the leadership and the President pleaded for an ethnic putiry!

A huge distrust between the civil authorities and the military was underlined, there are attempts to form another army; p. 142, the Serbian people in the Area of Responsibility of IBK (East-Bosnian Corps, comprising Bijeljina), nobody prepared for the war, which contradicts all allegations that the Serbs wanted or prepared for a war. NOW, the quoted Krajisnik's sentence: at the beginning of the counseling Karadzic presented what possible outcomes of the war are at stake, pp. 26 – 30, and concluded that the EC wanted this war, and Krajisnik added that the Europe wouldn't like to see a Muslim state, and if the Muslims surrendered, then the Muslims would again dominate, explaining that both, the total Serb victory or the Muslim surrender, would be equally bad.

On p. 24 srb. Karadzic reports that the "EC offered a text of a new Constitution of BiH, where it is envisaged a federation. We said that we should continue to work on it, the Muslims rejected it, while the Croats gave some objections. There was said "sovereign peoples". On p. 25 srb. Karadzic informed that he appointed that the Jewish community from Sarajevo leaves the City through the Serb Sarajevo, and expressed his fear that the Muslims may fire on the Jews and blame the Serbs.

At pp. 27 I 28 Krajisnik and Karadzic informed the meeting that there are a different options, that the Europe doesn't like the Muslims and the first place, and the Serbs at second, that the West initiated this war in BiH in order to prevent the Muslims to form their own state, and that for this purpose the Western Europe wants us, the Serbs and Croats to stay in the same state and control the Islamic factor. Karadzic said that the West is encouraging the Muslims, but doesn't help them. It is absolutely irrelevant whether this information was right or not, it was a reality in the Serb minds.

2723. In February 1992, the Accused spoke about having less than 10% of Bosnian Muslims in their "canton" of BiH according to the proposed maps.⁹⁰³⁶ This was after the first accord pertaining to the inner structure of BiH. Since the idea was to form the three mainly ethnically based constituent units, it was a general attitude to include as many people of the same ethnicity into their constituent unit, in order to have as least minorities as possible, because they would be dissatisfied and probably move out. Mr. Izetbegovic expressed this wish of his own, see:____, and the Muslims jubilated after the acceptance of the Lisbon Agreement on how well they did, having the Muslims as least as possible out of their unit. (See D00302) But, in all of those speeches there was undoubtedly envisaged that every unit would have minorities, and that there will be a reciprocal protection of their rights. Finally, look at what was the first Muslim reaction after the first accord on the Cutileiro plan, 18 March 92; see D00302, Ajanovic in "Politika":

REACTIONS IN SDA TO THE FIFTH ROUND ON BOSNIA

Muslims satisfied with the agreed upon statehood

Commenting on tonight's fifth round of the Conference on the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the spokesman of SDA, Irfan Ajanovic, estimated that the Muslim nation in its constituent unit or future ethnic canton would be a majority of 82 percent, while the Serbian nation would comprise 50 percent of the Serbian unit. He said that the approved document that has not yet been signed will allow Bosnia to remain indivisible and unified in its current borders and that after the fifth round of talks it practically became a "state with all of the attributes of a state". He supported that with a statement saying that at the meeting with Jose Cutileiro, it was agreed, among other things, that this republic would get its own national currency, a single defense system, unified foreign affairs and court system, and the protection of human rights and freedom.

o, from the beginning of the Conference on BiH there was an issue of how many of each of the ethnic communities would be in their respective constituent units, and how many will remain in the other's units as a minority. It was never meditated to expel anyone, or to resettle, or to exchange the population. And it was agreed being aware that a war is been avoided by this agreement!) The President continued to deliver speeches in which he (i) spoke about avoiding the subjugation of the Serb people; (ii) advocated the creation of a "Serbian state"; and (iii) blamed the Muslims and Croats for destroying the unity of BiH and Yugoslavia.⁹⁰³⁷ (So what? Was it forbidden? Was he right or not? Even if he wasn't, so what, this is how the political life goes. But, the sequence is not correct: the first was destruction of Yugoslavia, then BiH, and then the Serbs, being deprived from their state called Yugoslavia, advocated a Serbian state"?) The President in May 1992 spoke with Krajišnik, Mladić, and other military leaders and said that BiH as a state did not exist because it did not have any territory and that the Serbs were "on the threshold of achieving our centuries-old dream of creating our own state without many internal enemies".⁹⁰³⁸ (The audience understood it properly: the Accuse was always critical of the King Alexander I for his greed for territories, for including Slovenia and Croatia in the common state in 1918, which the Serbs payed by million and a half lives during the WWII. For the same reason, the President advocated not to include settlements with other's majority in the Serb entity without their will, because they wouldn't be satisfied! And this was the only reason and the only instrument in achieving the homogeneity, just not to force others to live in a constituent unit they don't prefer! In this regard, the President also stated that they were "controlling the Serbian settlements" in Sarajevo and were expanding them.⁹⁰³⁹ (Again, so what? If a state is not capable of controlling its own territory and rule it, such a state doesn't exist. Because, the basic preconditions for a state are: a territory, a people, and an efficient authority on the entire territory. The Bosnian Muslims envisaged a different Bosnia which never existed, and then participated in the destruction of Yugoslavia, pretending that the entire Bosnia would be only their. The Chamber should be clear: whether it deals with the constitutional, political, historical, geographical matters, whether the Chamber explores and searches for the cause of the war, and the responsible – or it is clarifying the war crimes? Otherwise, all of the inferences are wrong!)

2724. In February 1992, the Accused went on to state "now our main goal is the only goal that can be achieved: to solve the issue of the majority of the Serbian people", namely the creation of their republic of BiH.⁹⁰⁴⁰ ("now our main goal" it is clear that it had been agreed in the framework of the Conference that there will be the three republics, constituent units. So, if it is already agreed, "our main goal" is no longer to obtain it, because it was agreed, and now "our main goal" is to realize it in praxis, to make a good map which would comprise as many Serbs as possible. That happens when the things are created as a salad of small leaves. A time and context must not be neglected. But, this part of the President's speech concerned Krajina and disputes with some Krajina's locals. Let us see what was that: P00938, p. 35:

DR. RADOVAN KARADŽIĆ:

When we have problems the first step is to analyse it: what is the essence of the problem in Krajina?

The essence of the problem is not in the measure of competence. It is not that they are unhappy with what they can do in the future Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina. The essence of the problem is extremely childish and unfair, they want to make a state the way children sit in the mud and make a mudcake. They don't see that it's impossible.

Not a chance. We are not alone in the world, nor can anything be done by force. We have taken all the Serbs areas in Croatia and now JOVIĆ has called me and told me that they are trying to finagle something in the UN, because there are attempts to cheat them, but Ghali has said that the Serbian interpretation is one hundred percent right.

Therefore, this context is so far from anything that the Judgment suggested. The President was defending the result of the Conference on BiH, and criticising the childish conduct of some local leaders in ARK. Let us see how enthusiastic was the President about the Conference:

We can and must solve this. The issue of competence will remain open. The issue of the number of districts in the region will be solved easily. We will solve that when we establish a confederal Bosnia and Herzegovina with an integral Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina within it and when they are recognised. We will be able to agree easily on the division of competences.

that. There will be the legislature, the judiciary and the executive government in the districts. But now our main goal is the only goal that can be achieved: to solve the issue of the majority of the Serbian people by achieving that they get their Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. And they will roll over. They will have to roll over,

⁹⁰⁴⁰ P938 (Minutes from SDS Deputies' Club meeting, 28 February 1992), p. 35.

It's not that easy to make a state. If it were possible to do it that way, ask KRAJIŠNIK how many times we have discussed this, if it were possible to do it that way, we could establish the Bosnian Krajina and make it unproblematic and then fuck about with them here (my apologies to the ladies) to take as much as possible. But, that's impossible.

What can happen? That both Bosnian and Knin Krajina end up being at issue, i.e. that Bosnian Krajina be as problematic as the Knin Krajina. That the UN forces come, that "Zone A" and "Zone B" are created and for you to definitely lose "Zone B" and for "Zone A" to remain at issue.

So, the President was fighting against the greed for territories and warned the locals to be modest, and not make the ARK problematic. And further, still on the dispute with the ARK local leaders:

dominance. Now the tables have turned completely. Sympathies now lie with the Serbs and Croats in Bosnia and Herzegovina who want to overcome the Muslim domination.

We are thus on the threshold of realising our goal. We have taken the safe road, we have made moves that we have had to make, we have prepared them in advance, and now we have every now and again idiots barging in like brigands and causing problems. Who are they? Let's go to the Main Board and check it out.

and the conclusion of the discussion about the dispute with the ARK local leaders:

I think that we should put a stop to that!

I am personally prepared to begin each session of the Main Board with a secret ballot of confidence.

Let's not fool ourselves, none of us is irreplaceable. But, while we do the job, we do it together, and we have to listen to each other. Because these differences which have not been overcome, something being denied. We didn't say that. There will be the legislature, the judiciary and the executive government in the districts. But now our main goal is the only goal that can be achieved: to solve the issue of the majority of the Serbian people by achieving that they get their Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. And they will roll over. They will have to roll over, especially after we achieve progress with the Constitution, followed by the government. Those very same loudmouths who have done nothing to set up a real government in the field. They do nothing but blather, burn straw, they only want to hold rallies, and there's nothing behind the rallies, it's all hollow, completely hollow.

And this para is used to prove, what? That the President did what? Discussed within the Party, persuading the locals to be moderate, not to proclaim the unification of the Knin Krajina and the Bosnian Krajina, not to strive for more territory, and so on. What is wrong with this? And since everything was accepted and agreed in the Conference, the main problem was to define what the territories with the undisputable Serb majority to include in the Serb Bosnian Republic. Instead to reward the President for his devotion to the agreements and the peaceful solutions, we have an obscure charge.

He also stated that "it is clear to every Serb that Croats and Serbs cannot live in a single state.

Consequently, they cannot be in the same army, and also that BiH cannot have its army. There would remain national guards in each of the republics, and the police which would be under the control of the respective republics".⁹⁰⁴¹ ⁹⁰⁴²

(This is what Karadzic reported to the meeting about what was agreed upon. Those weren't his words, or his wishes, just look at the draft agreement.

⁹⁰⁴² P938 (Minutes from SDS Deputies' Club meeting, 28 February 1992), p. 6.

We can't make any concessions now because of that in this respect. In our opinion this is how it will remain, and we can't make any concessions. We have an obligation to our Assembly, and we have an obligation to our people: that if the status of Bosnia and Herzegovina towards and within Yugoslavia should change, the changes must be threefold, i.e., that out of Yugoslavia, like meat out of a meat grinder, come three spurts, three Bosnias and Herzegovinas which may be in some kind of contact and have some kind of links. They will have to be, because of transport and many other functions which are indivisible, undivided, but at any rate, with the sovereignty of the people in its territory.

I have to say that a part of the delegation, its English member, worked very hard with the maps, as if an agreement had been reached. He was obviously sure that an agreement would be reached, or to persuade us to accept? That the agreement would be along the lines that we had drawn. /as printed/ To designate and separate the territories, install the ethnic communities in power, sovereign power, there.

(This is what the President reported to the meeting about what was agreed upon. Those weren't his words, or his wishes, just look at the draft agreement. The President reviewed the Serb-Croat relationship in general, and here is what was concluded:

We talked about the need to sort out the relations between Serbs and Croats in general, not only in BH but everywhere. We opened their eyes to the prospect that the UN forces would remain there for 30 years, but they could leave after 30 days. If they stayed there for thirty years, their tourism would go to hell. And it is not our goal for Croatia to cease to exist. It is our goal for Croatia to consolidate its territory, but it is clear to every Serb that Croats and Serbs cannot live in a single state. Consequently, they cannot be in the same army, and also that BH cannot have its army. There would remain national guards in each of the republics, and the police which would be under the control of the respective republics.

We discussed a little about the principles on which Serbian-Croatian relations in general could be resolved as regards the Krajinas. They think that the best solution would be to relocate the population. The Europeans' hair stands on end at the thought. They deem that there are 150,000 to 250,000 Serbs in barren wasteland, that they are very poor, etc., and that we would give the richest farmsteads in Vojvodina, as if the people from Vojvodina would be willing to go to the barren wasteland. That's an unrealistic picture.

This issue pertaining to the situation outside of BH was like some kind of taking of the pulse.

They are in complete agreement about Bosnia and Herzegovina, and that was obvious. LASIĆ has been eliminated, a delegation which fully shares our views of how Bosnia and Herzegovina should be set up has now arrived.

So, the President interpreted what had been discussed with the Croats, and the Chamber allocate this to be the President's words and his standpoint. There can not be more wrong inference, and that must happen if one is considering documents out of context! The President emphasised that there was tension and conflict in undefined territories where "two national communities touch each other" and that they should be defined as soon as possible.⁹⁰⁴³ (prior to these sentences, the President said that a quantity of disputed territories is not as large as could be meant: @

2725. In meetings with international representatives, Bosnian Serb leaders including the President, Krajišnik, and Plavšić openly stated that it was impossible for Bosnian Serbs to co-exist with the other communities, particularly the Bosnian Muslims, and that it was better to separate the communities.⁹⁰⁴⁴ For example in discussions with Owen and Morillon, the President repeated that separation from the Bosnian Muslims and Croats was essential.⁹⁰⁴⁵ “The state separation” was the crucial determination, and if it is skipped, then nothing have any sense. The Chamber does not have a reason to not understand, nor they can pretend as if it was not known what kind of separation the Serbs, and the Croats too, proposed: like in Switzerland, and Sarajevo like in the Brussels, see P941:

2. Secretary Vance asked which areas Dr Karadzic considered to be Serbian land. Dr Karadzic said it was difficult to discuss which areas could be handed back. To do so would frighten the Serbian people in these places. He was willing to talk about giving back territory as part of an overall agreement. But any such agreement would also have to protect Serbian property rights in Muslim and Croat areas. Dr. Koljevic said it was clearly in the interests of the Serbs to return land in exchange for full political autonomy. Dr Karadzic said that the precise amount of land that may be returned had not been decided. But the total would be substantial. As far as Sarajevo was concerned, he favoured using the administration of Brussels as a model. The Serbian municipalities would be part of the Serbian constituent unit. Secretary Vance asked how this apparent will to talk about separation...

Does it mean that Switzerland, Belgium and other composed countries are a criminal creation?

(The entire crisis with Yugoslavia was about the ethnic majorities and the ethnic states. Why the Muslims insisted to leave Yugoslavia? It wasn't on a racial, or economic or sport, or any other basis, it was that they wanted to have their own national state, while the Serbs and Croats were envisaged to be minorities. The minority rights in the Balkans are never settled properly, and are always a source of wars and other skirmishes and unease.

This policy was introduced after the illegal secessions of the Yugoslav republics. Karadzic was obliged to be clear to the international mediators about what the RS would and what wouldn't accept.

2726. In meetings with Harland, the President as well as Plavšić openly said that the basic Serb war aim was to redistribute the population of BiH so that the Serbs would be left in control of a single continuous block of territory embracing the whole border with Montenegro and Serbia and also including all of the traditionally Serb-inhabited areas.⁹⁰⁴⁶ (The President had never had any meeting with Harland, see below the part of Harland's answer to the President questions! Now, the time comes to analyze Mr. Harland as a witness, which was given a very high position only in the courtroom, while on the terrain about which he was supposed to testify he wasn't competent, he wasn't prominent, he wasn't present, he wasn't important, he wasn't acquainted even with his job and tasks. As the above para said: "in meetings with Harland, the President..." must be said that there was never any meeting between Harland and the President. Further, the subject he testified, i.e. "the basic Serb war aim" was never discussed with him, but always with the mediators, and only with the highest representatives, like Lord Carrington, Amb. Cutilleiro, Cirus Vance, Lord Owen, Henry Darwin, Thorwald Stoltenberg and others of the simmilar level and leverage. Mr. Harland looks like a milky cow, and the Prosecution is milking out of him whatever can not obtain from the first clas interlocutors of the President. Why the Chamber admitted this testimony, while this drastic statement hadn't been found in any report of the international mediators? If it had been said, it would be the main issue on the Conference and in media! But, let us see further, what he said about Karadzic:

247. I met KARADŽIĆ about fifteen times in 1993 and 1994, never as principal but almost always as part of a delegation going to Pale, as set out above. He was normally with several others, namcly KRAJIŠNIK, KOLJEVIĆ, ZAMETICA, BUHA, MLADIĆ, GVERO or TOLIMIR.

It is obvious that he was in a delegations, "never as a principal". Let us se what he answered to the question of the President about their "meetings" (Harland, T. 2057)

Q. Thank you. Can I just ask you something. Who held that position before you? A. Immediately before me was a colleague called Emma Shitaka. Q. I'm sorry that I did not manage to remember you and that I cannot remember her either,

(...)T.2061:

Q. If I understood you well, you said that you drafted your reports based on other people's reports. A. I certainly used the information from the UNMOs and our battalions, but I also had my own office. We had, I mentioned yesterday, a medical doctor. We also had a statistician. We had political officers making meetings with people in the city and outside, and, of course, I attended directly the meetings with the leadership on both sides. I was usually sitting quietly in the background. But -- so I would say it's not correct to imply that what I had was second-hand information. There was a range of sources. Q. You're saying that you had a direct insight, a direct assessment, but most of your report was a compilation and analysis of other people's reports. Could you please tell us what you based your reports on? You had two types of documents, reports and political assessments, so tell us what kind of documents you produced and what they were based on. A. Okay, sure. So the reports on specific incidents, whether it's a meeting or something that happened to a convoy or on the battle-field, if it was at a meeting, normally I was present. Normally, I didn't say anything, but normally I was present with yourself, or President Izetbegovic, or any of the other actors, or General Mladic, or General Delic, or many others. And so normally I observed, myself. If I did not observe, myself, I had a couple of colleagues who could play the same role.

Is it now clear that Mr. Harland was a low level clerk, who didn't communicate but just was "observing" and making notes. Also, it is clear, isn't it, that he was no in a position to talk to the President or Ms. Plavsic, but the Prosecution kept "milking from him out as much as possible." And the Defense made this objection at the courtroom, but the Chamber highly evaluated this "milky" witness. But, look for what purposes the Prosecution used this "milky" gentleman:

248. KARADŽIĆ would tell us, with his psychiatrist's hat on, that the peoples of Balkans had "irrational hatred" for each other, and that there was no other explanation for the conflict, other than what this "irrational hatred" had done to the Serbs, who, he said, had been the principal victim of that hatred.

Of course, everyone knows that the President didn't wear any hat, let alone a "psychiatric" one, and certainly wouldn't speak with guests with a hat on him. But, if it was a figure, it is not an appropriate conduct, to have such a hostile remarks about a dignitary of the one of the sides between which the UN mediated, not appropriate, but rather very rude.

250. While the war was going well for the Serbs prior to 1995 KARADŽIĆ appeared to have good command and control. He would make precise decisions about military issues, such as in the Mt. Igman agreement and the attack of Goražde in April 1994 where he spoke of what specific units or guns would do.

Nothing could be less accurate. One should just listen to the intercepts pertaining to the Igman crisis, and see that the President didn't command nor controled, but argued and threatened to be obeyed. Also, it was a well known fact that the President hended the operational command over to the HQ. Anyway, Harland couldn't have known anything about it, because he didne have a required education or a position! It was just enough for Mr. Harland to know or guess what the Prosecution wanted, and he would deliver. The Defense is disgusted by the credit the Chamber gave to such a kind of witnesses. The Chamber (and the Apeal Chamber too) may remember how Mr. Harland and Mr. Banbury concieved their mandate: to protect the Government, i. e. to be against the Serbs.

And now, the quotation from this fn.

Goals of the Bosnian Serbs

267. The basic elements of the Bosnian Serb war goals as I understood them were: control of the territory in which there was a predominantly Serb population; control of the areas adjacent to the borders of Serbia and Montenegro; a continuous territory, joined through Posavina, and without enclaves; and, if possible, access to the sea.

This was published in the official gazzette and given to the EC mediators, so there was nothing to ask him, or for him to "understend. He wasn't an expert witness, nor he was qualified to have his own "understanding" of the things that were in the competence of his bosses.

268. I have been shown a document dated 12 May 1992, describing what purports to be the Strategic Objectives of the Bosnian Serbs, marked 0210-0267- 0210-0268). I had not seen this document before. The objectives enumerated appear to be consistent with what the Serbs told us were their goals, as well as being consistent with conventional thinking of UNPROFOR at the time.

So, Harland was summoned to be prepared to testify what the OTP needed, not what he himself saw on the terrain. Look further:

269. I have been asked what connection there was between what was happening in Sarajevo and the population movements being enforced elsewhere. KARADŽIĆ openly said – and so did PLAVŠIĆ in particular – that the basic Serb war aim was to redistribute the population of Bosnia and Herzegovina so that the Serbs would be left in control of a single continuous block of territory embracing the whole of the border with Montenegro and Serbia and also including all of the traditionally Serb-inhabited areas.

This is a shameless forgery. Who was he to have such a kind of talks with the highest Serb leaders? Only his superiors could have testified about this and such a subjects, but the Prosecution couldn't obtain anyone who would be indecent enough to lie or to invent. If anything of it was even similar there would be in all the official reports of the mediators, and in media.

270. The Bosnian Serb leadership would say that due to an historical accident, this required the removal of very large numbers of Bosnian Muslims because Bosnian Muslims were the majority population along the Drina River Valley in North-Eastern Bosnia, adjacent to Serbia. They were quite open that the purpose of the war and the purpose of the pressure they were applying was to extract from the Bosnian government an acceptance of this redistribution of the populations, this ethnic cleansing. This pressure, as the Bosnian Serb leadership stated, included what was being done in Sarajevo.

Why his superiors didn't report this Serb standpoint, or demand, whatever it was? How drastic it had to be to have attracted their attention? Had it ever been mentioned by any Serb, that would be on the front pages of every news paper and a headline in other media. And how the Prosecution allows itself to use such a shameless manipulation, but it is even more unusual that the Chamber accepted this kind of manipulation. Thus the UN court is compromising everything that the UN did in the mediation, in the humanitarian mission, in it's presence there?

DO WE HAVE TO CONCLUDE THAT THIS #UN COURT NEGLECTS THE FIRST CLASS UN DOCUMENTS# IN ORDER TO ACCEPT MEMORIES AND OPINIONS OF THE FIFTH CLASS UN NOTE-TAKERS? See the next par of the paragraph, a literally taken from the Harland's statement: The Bosnian Serb leadership said that due to "an historical accident", Bosnian Muslims were a majority in certain areas and to achieve their goal, large numbers of Bosnian Muslims had to be removed because the majority of the population along the

Drina River in northeast BiH, was Muslim.⁹⁰⁴⁷ They openly stated that the purpose of war was for the Bosnian government to accept this redistribution of the population and the President acknowledged that some “old people will probably want to remain” but he envisaged that to a large extent the overwhelming majority of the population that would remain in Serb areas would be Serb and Muslim in Muslim areas.⁹⁰⁴⁸ (Again, the Chamber is turning a possible academic discussion and predictions into an official standpoint of the entire Serb side. More than wrong inference, a forgery. The Chamber knew that the Serbs envisaged that both the Serbs and Muslims had been envisaged to have their own municipalities regardless of the entity where they lived! If it had been said as an official position, as Harland testified, the whole international community would have known that!) At these meetings, some members of the Bosnian Serb leadership openly stated that it was good if all non-Serbs left and that they wanted them to go because they were not living well together.⁹⁰⁴⁹ (Look at this “hard proof” – some members of the Serb delegation said something, what his superiors and chiefs of delegations didn’t here and didn’t report to their headquarters! How the Chamber accepted such a flagrant lies?)

it should be most important to concentrate on partition of the territory. We must be engaged to the maximum, we should execute the partition properly as this business awaits us.

And we should introduce the term union of states, if we can manage, I think it would be very good.

As far as the proposition to change the team, I am not for the change for many reasons.

It is very well that the impression so far is positive that we have not changed our team. It creates confidence in our people. Because changes in negotiating teams are being commented upon in various ways. In order not to have it in connection with the changes that you want to impose here, don’t, I think it would be badly interpreted.

On the other hand people who already have the continuity still know some details that could be decisive in the remaining work. Bear this in mind: the most difficult job is the partition of territory. On the Croat model I saw how it can be perfected in the existing conditions and how perfectly their state is functioning.

But, this even wasn’t translated correctly. In Serbian it look as follows:

Prema tome čini mi se da bi bilo najvažnije od svega koncentrisati se na razdvajanje teritorija. Tu moramo biti maksimalno angažovani, mi ta razraničenja treba da napravimo kako treba jer nas taj posao čeka.

It should be translated like that: “Therefore, it seems to me that it would be the most important than everything to concentrate on the separation of territories. We must be maximally engaged, we have to do those delineations properly, because this job is waiting us.”

Therefore, not “partition” but “separation” and “delineation” and this was an obligation towards the Conference, the mediators asked for that, and nothing criminal was in that, since there was the Agreement reached! But, the main question is: why the Tribunal needed a “note-taker, summoned to testify of the facts to testify as an expert, about a public statements and documents? Finally, it was a daily job for the delegation of the EC. Look what the President said at the meeting of the Club of representatives 28 February, P00938, p.5

I have to say that a part of the delegation, its English member, worked very hard with the maps, as if an agreement had been reached. He was obviously sure that an agreement would be reached, or to persuade us to accept? That the agreement would be along the lines that we had drawn. /as printed/ To designate and separate the territories, install the ethnic communities in power, sovereign power, there.

We now know that it was Mr. Henry Darwin, who was the first to create the territorial shape of the future constituent units, and the sides had been pressed by the EC to accept the plan as soon as possible! She also expressed the idea that Bosnian Serbs could no longer live with Bosnian Muslims; on one occasion at a funeral for a Bosnian Serb soldier she said that the Bosnian

Muslims should be slaughtered or exterminated.⁹⁰⁵¹ In May 1992, Plavšić spoke of the entitlement of the Serbs to 70% of the territory and that Bosnian Serbs “were used to living in wide spaces” while Muslims typically lived in cities.⁹⁰⁵²

This is a big misunderstanding among the two whose native language wasn't English. What the lady (if it was Ms. Plavsic, since Doyle didn't say that, it was suggested to him by the prosecutor, T.2667: (A. Yes. This particular comment was brought up by an official of the Bosnian Serbs when I went to Pale on the 1st of May, 1992. I don't know in what capacity she was, but certainly she was one of the Bosnian Serb officials I met up there.) As a matter of fact, it was a very frequent question from the foreigners, how come the Serbs are majority on 70% of the territory, while the make 32% of population, and the answer was always what Mr. Doyle heard, but didn't understand. It was not any political position, it was just an explanation how come the Serbs are more rural.

Plavšić further stated that “if it takes the lives of 3 million people to solve this crisis, lets get it done and move on”.⁹⁰⁵³

(Ms. Plavsic denied this assertion immediately after it appeared in public. This was, she explained, a malicious framing in by the communist circles in Belgrade! If Ms. Plavsic didn't accept it, and there were no other evidence but a communist gossip, it shouldn't be in this Court and it's documents!) Plavšić also spoke about creating the conditions for “forced emigration” and that the “last thing that can be allowed [...] is a compromise at the expense of conquered territories” and that foreign countries should be reminded that the Bosnian Serbs would not give up what they had conquered.⁹⁰⁵⁴ (Let us see what Ms. Plavsic was discussing in the Assembly, for which she couldn't be President in any country, because it was a legislative body discussing the platform for negotiations:

maps and conquered territories. Let me tell you immediately that I feel that no difference should be made between these two concepts. 65% of Serb territory belong to our people according to the cadaster and 70% of the conquered one, which is only 5% gain in relation to the previous number. If we presume that the enemy will gain as much as we will give him then who would dare explain our people to abandon what they already have, something which is compensation to them for destroyed or burned

Since Ms. Plavsic couldn't be charged for expressing her opinion in the Parliament, how possibly the President's “mens rea” could be derived from another person's parliamentary discussion??? Contrary to that, the two elements: the Serbs didn't conquer, it was their territory, and second, the envoys had been the only acquainted with the official position, see P941, and Lord Owen said that it was for the first time that an army that wasn't defeated agreed to role back 1/3 of the territory. Doyle couldn't testify about those things, and his opinion or assumptions are not relevant. The Chamber had the insight in the President's commitment that the territorial issues are relative, and that the Serb side doesn't recognize any forcefull occupation of the territory, and that the territorial issues are to be defined on the Conference. Such a commitment the President made as early as 22 April 1992 in his Platform for a peacefull resolution of the crisis, see: D220:

This particular comment was brought up by an official of the Bosnian Serbs when I went to Pale on the 1st of May, 1992. I don't know in what capacity she was, but certainly she was one of the Bosnian Serb officials I met up there. And she said, Mr. Doyle, you know, I'm quite happy to live with others, but I want a fence built round my house. I will only feel safe if I'm inside my house and I have protection outside. And that was the feeling we got at the time. IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN KNOWN THAT IT WAS A PARAPHRASE of a very known American poet, R. Frost: “a good fence make good friends”. It didn't say what the paragraph said. Again, instead of documents, the Tribunal is picking up a patchwork of sentences that were said without any obligation, and by unknown persons. This is a spying on the people when they are out of office. However, no mentioning of any slaughter

Do the documents matter at all, or a gossips are stronger? This is his mens rea and whatever others said, it can not be used against this President!

2728. Koljević was particularly extreme in his views and continued to repeat at important meetings that it was impossible for the communities to live together.⁹⁰⁵⁵ (This is a blasphemy to say that Mr. Koljević was an extreme in any sense, because everyone knew how mild and moderate was he. Again, talking out of context, Koljević took into account the new course of the Muslim leadership, and their plans to reform BiH and life in it on the basis of the Izetbegović' program called Islamic Declaration. Professor Koljević could have been everything but not extreme in anything. But all of those allegations come from a two or three obscure witnesses, who are picking up a parts of sentences from private talks or a privileged parliamentary talks in the middle of a bloody war with daily loses of lives. This looks like a political lecturing and advocating of the multiethnicity at any costs. What is that? Does the Chamber have the right to judge the Serb political response to the illegal secession of BiH, and the Muslim persistent attempts to avoid any decentralisation of BiH in order to be able to dominate. This is something that the Defense should cease to deal with and to defend against the allegations that the Serbs didn't accept to live with the Muslims, i.e. "under the Muslims" and their domination. So what? That was their right. And there were many other outcomes from this crisis, but the Muslims and their western friends favored the war, for which they want to accuse the Serbs. This is another crime of the cosmic dimensions. Stop it! This crime is developing under the auspice of the Security Council and the UN. What does it matter if some deputies said in the middle of the war that they didn't want to live with those who are killing the Serbs every day?) A deputy at the Bosnian Serb Assembly echoed this sentiment and spoke about their common wish for an "ethnically pure Serbian state" and the need, in the context of negotiations, to "emphasise that we can not live with them".⁹⁰⁵⁶ (Any deputy was entitled to say whatever wanted, without any possibility to be President, let alone indicted. How somebody else, as the President, with the different opinion, could be charged of a deputy's words? This part of the alleged "ethnically pure state" is a monstrous lie, particularly if it implies the "ethnic cleansing" which usually does. When it was a word of the ethnic delimitation, it meant that a villages be free to decide to belong to one or other municipality and thus entity. This construction is so unfair, and is perpetuated from the biased media and political flosculas. Anyway, all that is in the foundation of the Indictment and this Judgement is from unofficial sources, the fifth class evidence. At the same time, there are a plethora of a genuine evidence, contemporaneous documents and commitments to the opposite of these allegations, while there is no valid evidence in the documents of the RS in favour of any crime!) Lukić, who was the second Prime Minister of the RS, also advocated “ethnic cleansing” and told leaders in Serbia that Bosnian Muslims could not be trusted.⁹⁰⁵⁷ them. But we are also obliged to understand that we can hardly cooperate with someone who, like the Prime Minister of Republika Srpska, advises us to ethnically cleanse Sandžak and kill the Muslims there.

Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ:

Who says that?

President Milosevic asked: “Who said that?”

that? Bulatovic confirmed:

The Prime Minister of Republika Srpska, LUKIĆ. He advises us to do it as soon as possible, for Muslims are not to be trusted, they will stab us in the back, they will mine our railroad, and so on.

As

if Prime Minister Lukic advised leadership of FRY to ethnically cleanse” Serbian region callse Sandzak! A bit later President Milosevic said:

Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ:

It is new to me that the people, with whom we seriously discussed that, are the disguised promoters of the idea that Muslims should be killed and expelled from this area. We have nothing to talk about with such people.

And

President of FRY Dobrica Cosic

said:

Dobrica ĆOSIĆ:

All right, we must collect the right pieces of information as soon as possible.

At

the very same moment neither President Milosevic, nor President Cosic knew or believed it, and Cosic concluded that a right information must be collected as soon as possible. Let us now see what President Bulatovic said in his testimony, T34540 Q: Mr. Bulatovic, is it your evidence that the expulsion and crimes that the Serbs, the Croats, and the Muslims suffered during the period from 1991 through to 1995 in Croatia and in Bosnia are not the result of the policies and the actions of their respective leaderships? Is that your evidence? A. Very strong lifelong conviction is that it was a consequence of the civil war that raged in those areas, and that civil war was due to the uncontrolled and unlawful breakup of the previous state; that is to say the expulsions and the crimes are a consequence of the fact that there was a civil war not that there was any plan. So much about allegations that the gossip about Lukic’s invective on expulsion was believed by President Bulatovic! Here is the critical sentence about alleged

Bulatovic, I would like to quote what you said on -- and you say here: "We are obliged to help them," referring to Republika Srpska, "but we are also obliged to understand that we can hardly co-operate with someone who, like the Prime Minister of the RS advises us to ethnically cleanse Sandzak and kill the Muslims there." And can we have the next page in the English. And then you also say: "The Prime Minister of Republika Srpska, Mr. Lukic, he advises us to do it as soon as possible, for Muslims are not to be trusted. They will stab us in the back, they will mine our railroad, and so on." Mr. Bulatovic, that's what you said and that was your information; right? A. I remember this meeting very well. It was being decided how to meet the requests of the Government of Republika Srpska for their military conscripts to be arrested, those who are in the territory of the FRY and how to deliver them by force to the VRS. That decision was not taken and I'm very proud about that. This passage deals with the decision-making process. It is true that this decision was not notified to us in person, but we were just told that in the ranks of the Government of Republika Srpska occasionally there are some extreme views. It turned out that those extreme views were something we could not share, they were not our convictions, and they could not support the making of the decision that was asked of us to make.

Let us see further, T3454-57 Q: Here you see it basically in where you speak. It's the third paragraph in which you speak, and that is -- that should be the quote that I had: "That is one of the most important elements of our national strategy, all the more so because the highest leadership of Republika Srpska suggests that we should initiate organised ethnic cleansing and that would be a disaster." That's what you said; right? A. Yes. But look, this was a normal and responsible reaction to an atrocious crime that was committed. This is a discussion about what the paramilitary unit of Mr. Lukic had done. They had killed innocent citizens of Serbia and Montenegro. They were killed on the train only because they were Muslims. You see in the text a strong conviction of that. There is talk about Lukic and he is described as a horrible person. The text also speaks about our efforts to preserve peace and tolerance. Sandzak, for your information, Your Honours, is an area populated mainly by Muslims. That's why I said one of the main elements of our state strategy was to preserve peace and tolerance. And the sentence that comes next is linked to the previous one where we describe an extremist excess by one person from the leadership -- THE PRESIDENT: [Interpretation] If I may say ... JUDGE KWON: I'm not sure the translation of Mr. Bulatovic's answer has been translated. Yes, we'll hear what you say, Mr. Karadzic. THE PRESIDENT: [Interpretation] A. I wanted to draw your attention to the fact that Mr. Bulatovic said it was one of the most important elements of our state strategy, all the more so because from the highest -- it originates from the highest places in Republika Srpska, whereas the interpretation refers to the "highest leadership of Republika Srpska." He actually said from the highest places in Republika Srpska. "Highest places" is not legally the same as the "highest leadership." [...] MS. UERTZ-RETZLAFF: Q. Mr. Bulatovic, when you -- I assume that "highest places" is the correct translation as Mr. Karadzic says, and "highest places" means the Bosnian Serb leadership or who would you mean? A. It's clear. This is a continuation from the same session where we strenuously condemn the then-Prime Minister of Republika Srpska, Mr. Lukic.

So, there was discussion about another Lukic, President for a killing of the Muslims in a train, while the assertion about "an extremist excess of one person from the leadership concerned with the allegations about the Prime Minister! All on the level of gossip! Let us see what President Bulatovic said in his testimony, T34584 - 85: Q. Mr. President, in light of what His Excellency Judge Kwon said on page 40, lines 20 and 21, about Lukic's statement at the Supreme Defence Council, can you explain, was Lukic present and did he state that at the Supreme Defence Council session? A. No. From the whole context it is obvious that the position of Mr. Lukic was conveyed to us in a hearsay way. We were just referring to a common place that was indirectly passed on to us in the absence of Mr. Lukic. Q. Thank you. In the course of your work, did you encounter similar positions of Mr. Lukic reflected in some reliable documents? A. No. Those positions were never officially stated, but the thinking of the Supreme Defence Council was that we did not want to co-operate with Republika Srpska based on extreme views. But since we were co-operating non-stop, in my view it is proof that their views were acceptable to both us and the international community. Q. Thank you. Mr.

President, how does what we saw in the previous document fit in with what reached you in that hearsay form? A. The difference is obvious. An official address by Prime Minister Lukic is something that cannot be objected to, whereas the information we received at the Supreme Defence Council was cause for great concern and for that reason was rejected by us. Q. Can I just put this to you. This is the 7th Session of the cabinet after that meeting of yours, so on the 19th of May. We have one document from before the session and this one is after the session. I will read carefully the conclusions of the government. First sentence: "The report on the work of the commission for refugees and humanitarian aid for the first quarter of 1993 has been endorsed." And then further below it says: "Of particular importance is to ensure balanced distribution of aid relative to Muslims and Croats and the commission shall pay special attention to this." Q. Mr. President, can you tell us from your experience what was the degree of accuracy of that information, that kind of information that reached you? To what degree did they prove to be wrong or correct? A. It is well-known that the first casualty of every war is the truth. Intelligence and security services that cover and monitor every territory are not always slaves to the truth. They work for their own interests, but most often it is the only source of information. You have to work with that information although you could never swear that they are completely correct or truthful. Q. Thank you, Mr. President. (Now, when we see that the allegation about Prime Minister Lukic criminal proposals is rebutted from the very source of the information, how was it possible to have it remained in the Judgement? What is the sense of trials at all? If everything that the Prosecution alleges becomes a fact, why to call any witness? Only this episode is sufficient to compromise the entire process as unfair and fake!) International observers reported that the JNA acquiesced in, or in some cases supported, the creation of ethnically homogeneous regions in BiH which involved "the seizure of territory by military force and intimidation of the non-Serb population".⁹⁰⁵⁸

2729. Krajišnik often recalled that the main Bosnian Serb objective was to separate from the Bosnian Muslims and to create their own state which was ethnically “pure”.⁹⁰⁵⁹ (Wrong, see the comment of the fn below!)

2730. In July 1992, Mandić spoke about the Bosnian Serb territories which were “supposed to be taken”, had already been taken, and identified areas which were still disputable, including in Sarajevo.⁹⁰⁶⁰ Mandić also questioned “what to do with the Turks” and suggested that there “should be an airlift established with Turkey and let them go, we should split Bosnia in two parts”.⁹⁰⁶¹ In this same conversation, Mandić said “[w]e don’t want to have a single-nation state, man. We want to have democratic state where the Serbian people would be in the majority.”⁹⁰⁶² higher level, we must amend the Constitution, it must be in accordance with the will of the people. Neither Sarajevo nor any other city can rule over anyone. We must completely /unintelligible/ the democracy of Bosnia. And now it is inevitable, a letter is inevitable if we can adopt a decision in that manner. There is no reason not to take

is only a matter of . . . even the Constitution in this period, we can allow that we don’t vote for it each time but rather say we agree to it because nothing will come of it if we now want to rule over someone /unintelligible/ the Muslims /unintelligible/ Croats /unintelligible/. But this thing that has begun, we don’t need a confederal Serbian BH, gentlemen, we need wisdom, we only need a monolithic Serbian state and /unintelligible/ with one centre. Let us say whether it’s /unintelligible/ we have not . . .

The Serb entity had already been accepted at the Conference, but Krajsnik fought his political fight against the Krajina separatism and pleaded for a solid, unitary Serb entity, not a confederal one. No a word about “ethnic purity”, and this kind of abuse of evidence is disastrous for the state of the international justice. Let us see p. 4.:

one else. We don’t have to fear that much, they are Serbs who cannot understand reality. Look at these priests of ours: every time we discuss with great respect and then we say, “God help the Serbian people to agree,” no one has the right to do that by bypassing our unity. I tell you, everything we do in this Parliament, everything I do personally, I do exclusively for pure areas of /unintelligible/ and Herzegovina and /unintelligible/ and I will not yield the right to tell the people of Krajina that they are not right. The people of Krajina are not working for the whole Serbian people, but we are working for the people of Krajina. But that is difficult to prove. I say that at this

This is a problem with wrong translation, Krajsnik didn’t mean “pure areas” it meant “clearly Serbian areas”, meaning undisputable Serbian. But even if it was as it is interpreted, taking into account that it had been said before the war and in the context of the Agreement that exclude any war, it would only mean that Krajsnik advocated to claim for only those territories that are “clearly Serbian” and no way to interpret it as an intention to “purify” the territories. Clearly commendable!!! P1481 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 5 October–27 December 1992), pp. 146–147; Let us see what is written in this exhibit:

Krajsnik praised the military for their “successes” but warned that “it (is) very dangerous to seize their territories”. And that was the only manner to accomplish a homogenous Serbian entity, not to grab their territories. Commendable and exculpatory, although it is clear that this kind of notes are to verbatim, but interpretative and shortened. Anyway, no space to comment every single exhibit, but all of them are misinterpreted, misconceived, removed from context, and this is unacceptable and must be condemned!

In an earlier conversation in May 1992, Mandić said that they “should settle the Sarajevo problem through war and then sit down and talk”. Mandić acknowledged that Croats and “the rest of Muslims” would also have rights after “we clean them out”.⁹⁰⁶³ (This was a jokey conversation between a Serb (Mandić) and the two Croats (Kvesić, Rezo) and not an official standpoint. Certainly, Mandić would never say anything official to the “enemies” since at the time there was a war between the Serbs and Croats. This is a pathetic patchwork with the aim to sentence the President! Mandić was acquitted even in the BH court!)

2731. The Chamber recalls that Kuruzović, the Commander of Trnopolje, confirmed that the plan of the Serb authorities was to reduce the number of Bosnian Muslims in Prijedor to 10% or less, and then later to reduce this to 2% or less.⁹⁰⁶⁴ (This is also a very peculiar: Kuruzović was in charge of the Trnopolje reception center, not a high official of the RS. Also, the president of the Prijedor municipality rebutted this assertion in his testimony, under the same footnote! What the interest would have president of Prijedor Mr. Stakić to lie, since he was already finally sentenced? So, an Adjudicated Fact was rebutted by a very competent person, but in vain. Is that a justice?) The Chamber also heard from KDZ051 that around September 1992, he was told by the President of the Rogatica SDS, Sveto Veselinović, that “all the Muslims were going to disappear from the territory” and that in conversations with the President in Pale, “[i]t has been decided that one third of Muslims would be killed, one third would be converted to the Orthodox religion and a third will leave on their own”.⁹⁰⁶⁵ Sveto Veselinović testified that he did not meet KDZ051 in person, that he did not make such a statement, and that he did not have such a conversation with the President, as he did not speak to him between January 1992 and autumn of 1993.⁹⁰⁶⁶ The Chamber finds that Veselinović’s evidence casts reasonable doubt on this issue and thus dismisses KDZ051’s evidence on this point. (The Chamber had been informed that this famous “formula” was in reality invented in the WWII by Quaternik, the Croat fascist official, and everyone knows it. That was the official policy of NDH, independent Croatia as a satellite of the Third Reich. That was the only witness saying such an allegation, nobody ever said anything like that.)

2732. The President made a number of speeches which spoke about the inability of the “three peoples” in BiH to live together, and for example compared them to “plants which cannot grow side by side. They have to be separated to flourish”.⁹⁰⁶⁷ (The Chamber is quoting these speeches as if it was a cause of the unfortunate development. However, it was only an attempt to understand such a persistent antagonism among the BH ethnic communities that last for centuries. This could not cause any consequence, but to the contrary, the tragic consequences are always caused by a negligence of these antagonisms and attempt to include many antagonised communities in a common state!) He also stated that “they lived together only when occupied or under a dictatorship. [...] We can only be together like oil and water. When you mix us, we are together. When you leave us alone, we separate” and that if they

⁹⁰⁶⁵ P3405 (Witness statement of KDZ051 dated 17 September 2011), para. 95.

⁹⁰⁶⁷ D304 (Shorthand Record of 14th session of RS Assembly, 27 March 1992), p. 8. See also Vitomir Žepinić, T. 33586–33587 (13 February 2013) (also testifying that in his own talks with the Accused, he “was not convinced that [the Accused] really thought about physical elimination of non-Serbs from [BiH]”, but that it was impossible to live together due to the extremism of the nationalist parties). While the Chamber accepts that this was Žepinić’s own assessment, it does not rely on his opinion in this regard. (Once and for all: the President said that they can not live under the same political and judicial system, because when the fundamentalist Islam comes, this region loses tranquillity!)

were put in the same pot the soup would not mix.⁹⁰⁶⁸ (The Chamber forgot that this was a Njegos's strophe, stance, illustrating a complicated relations between the two religions. This was the greatest Serbian poet and Prince-Bishop of Montenegro in 19th Century, a sort of icon in the region.) The President stated that “[w]e are really something different [...] we should not hide that. We are not brothers. We must know that” and that when the world asked why they could not live together, he would answer that “we are three cultures, three peoples and three religions” and that they had never lived together in democracy.⁹⁰⁶⁹ (So what? It was said before the war as an explanation why Bosnia has to transform into three entities, and such a political position didn't cause any harm. Quite opposite, the denial of this transformation caused the war! The Chamber could have noticed, if wanted, that the Serbs always considered the Muslims to be the Serbs who converted to Islam. This was a sort of duping ourselves, because the vast majority of the Muslims joined our enemies in every single war. Only some extraordinary individuals, whose ethnic identity was stronger than the religious, considered themselves the Serbs of the Islamic religion. So is nowadays. Even Lord Owen said (in the movie Death of Yugoslavia) that all of that was a civil war among the Serbs of the Orthodox, Catholic and Muslim religion)

2733. This sentiment was also reflected in speeches delivered by Bosnian Serb leaders at a municipal level. For example, the Chamber recalls that in early April 1992, there were radio announcements in Foča in which SDS President Miroslav Stanić said it was no longer possible for Bosnian Serbs to live with their Bosnian Muslim neighbours, that they could not be woken every morning by the hodža from the mosque, (Again, this is a famous line from the Njegos's “Gorski vijenac”, a line of poetry, also well known!) and that there was a danger that the Bosnian Serb population would be circumcised.⁹⁰⁷⁰ (But, anyway, whatever said somebody else is not a liability of the President! Foca had a long history of mutual extermination of the two communities!) In May 1992, the President attended a meeting where he said that if there was a response to the mobilisation of the 1st Krajina Corps, “then we clear the Posavina of Croats”.⁹⁰⁷¹ (Again, this is a grave manipulation with this un-finished sentences, not taken verbatim, but in a short, crippled view! If it was meant to “clear” Posavina from the Croatian civilians, why there would be needed any mobilisation? Obviously, as well known to everyone who wanted to know, Posavina was extremely militarised, and the fights lasted until the beginning of July 92. Therefore, to clear Posavina from the Croatian Army and HVO was a legitimate, and even vital because there was the corridor between eastern part of the RS and Banja Luka region! While exploiting the Mladic's notes, the Chamber should notice other elements on the same pages: see P1478:

⁹⁰⁶⁸ P5596 (Video footage depicting interview of Radovan Karadžić on CNN, with transcript), p. 1; P12 (Extended session of Main and Executive Boards of the SDS, 14 February 1992), p. 19; P6688 (Interview with Radovan Karadžić in Duga Magazine, 23 May 1992), p. 3.

⁹⁰⁶⁹ P12 (Extended session of Main and Executive Boards of the SDS, 14 February 1992), pp. 19–20. KDZ310 testified that the Accused as the head of the SDS pursued a policy which was designed to prove to “both peoples that they can no longer live together” even though they had lived together for years. (If so, why the Muslims wanted a unilateral and illegal secession from the common state? Why the Tribunal pretends to be naïve? It was clearly said that the Serbs didn't want to lose their freedom accepting a hostile fundamentalist regime in an independent Bosnia! Once the MBO – Muslim-Bosniak Organisation, proposed the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement, the Serbs and the President accepted immediately, and abandoned the regionalisation and other plans!) KDZ310, T. 9178, 9182–9183 (29 November 2010). During cross-examination, KDZ310 acknowledged that he was in no way involved in politics and he formed these views based on conversations with people and what was reported in the media. The Chamber therefore places no weight on his assessment. Similarly the Chamber places no weight on Mujadžić's opinion that in Prijedor, the Accused placed his confidence in Stakić as a municipal leader, as he came from a typical “Chetnik” background, to create a rift between Bosnian Muslims and Serbs and to impair the belief that it was possible for the two ethnic groups to co-exist. - * Mauzer (in Bijeljina) has grown arrogant and he cannot work in the way that he wants
- In Bijeljina the Muslims are settling (Message intercepted: No checks, weapons arriving you don't need to) –
- * If there is response to mobilisation into the 1st Kr. K /Krajina Corps/ then we clear the Posavina of Croats. -

The Chamber would notice that the Accuse was very critical about Mauzer, the Muslims are returning in Bijeljina, on the appeal of the President and the Prime Minister of FRY Panic, but they have a hostile intentions, and finally, Posavina!

2734. These speeches are in stark contrast with an interview on 20 July 1990, where the President stated that an illusion was created about a discord between the Serbs and the Muslims. [...] Basically, there is nowhere a conflict of interest between the Serbs and the Muslims. Regardless of what may happen, the Serbs and the Muslims will always live in a common state, and they know how and they will know in future how to live together. There is no need for a third party to fix the things between them.⁹⁰⁷² (EXCULPATORY!!!)

Exactly, that would be as the President said, if only the Muslims didn't force the illegal, unlawful and forceful secession. What is not clear here? I the World War I the Muslims joined the Austro-Hungarian Empire against the Serbs. In the WWII they joined the Third Reich and the Croatian Nazi regime against the Serbs. Meanwhile the Serbs and Muslims lived peacefully. The President said that the Muslims do not have any reason to fight against the Serbs for a sake of another side. However, the President was too optimistic! He didn't change his position, the Muslims did!

2735. The President also stated:

Here, the Muslims are Slavs, people with our blood and language who, for the most part, opt for the European quality of life and preservation of the Islamic faith. There is no room for panic neither among the Serbs nor among the Muslims. According to my estimation, the Serbs do not have to defend the boundaries of the Christian Europe and fight the Islam. We are much closer to our Muslims than with that Europe.⁹⁰⁷³ (EXCULPATORY!!!)

There was many Bosnian Muslims, an elite of this community, that was of this opinion and orientation, as the President hoped to be in majority. Unfortunately, these pro-European Muslims, who made the elite of this community, were in the MBO and other secular parties, and they didn't win the elections. From the beginning of the Yugoslav crisis the President had a good cooperation with such a secular Muslim parties, but they couldn't influence their electoral and create a peaceful solution!

2736. The Chamber notes, however, that these statements were made by the President in a very different environment and were delivered in a period where the political objective of the Bosnian Serb leadership was to emphasise the unity of Yugoslavia and the existence of a common state.

(EXCULPATORY!!! It is clear that the President didn't have a negative attitude towards the Muslims, and living together in the same state, but the President and the entire Serb community in BiH had a negative attitude towards the independence pursued against their will, interests and rights! It was also an open hands of the Serbs towards the Muslims, to encourage them for the common life. It was known (see: Rebecca West book, and another book: "The Guardians of the gate" meaning the Serbs were defending the Christian Europe against Islam. (As it is expected now, in this crisis). But, it wasn't just at the beginning. See the intercepts throughout entire 91. in which The President demanded from the Serbs to make the Muslims feel comfortable among the Serbs see:D03171, D03172, D01282, D03377, and more intercepts from 91.

But, the most important is that this attitude of the President was a presumption that there will not be the Islamic declaration as a political program, and the encouragement of the pro-European Muslims, as well as relaxing the Bosnian Serbs about the Izetbegovic's past. This is quite contrary to what the Prosecution/Chamber alleged, namely that the Serbs didn't want to live with the Muslims. They wanted to live with the Muslims, but not in an Islamic State, under the Muslim unique domination!

2737. Similarly the Chamber recalls that in the summer of 1991, the President attended an SDS rally in Zvornik,⁹⁰⁷⁴ thereafter, the SDS and SDA issued a joint declaration expressing the need to maintain peace in the municipality and calling for greater tolerance between ethnic groups there.⁹⁰⁷⁵ In August 1991, the President spoke about peace and reaching an agreement with the Bosnian Muslims.⁹⁰⁷⁶ Was it, by any chance, a reason to acquit this President, or at least to reconsider what could have changed this steady attitude of the President from time to time. Then the Chamber would be in a position to conclude that the conduct of the Serbs and the President depended on the conduct and intentions of the other two sides. Everything in this fn. is highly exculpatory!

2738. On 12 May 1992, there was a large public rally in Banja Luka. The President, Mićo Stanišić, and Stojan Župljanin, amongst others, were present.⁹⁰⁷⁷ The President addressed the rally and said that it demonstrated the organisation and power of the SerBiH and that he regretted that the war in BiH had been imposed on them by the two other national communities and that the "mutual extermination, killings and tortures have been imposed to us".⁹⁰⁷⁸ The President stated that while they had no conflict with the Croats and Muslims they would not allow their "militant leadership" to make them second class citizens and this was the reason why they created their state ⁹⁰⁷⁴ D3693 (Witness statement of Marinko Vasilic dated 9 June 2013), paras. 17–18; D3723 (Witness statement of Čedomir Zelenović dated 22 June 2013), paras. 15, 18. See para. 1230. Vasilic stated that the Accused at SDS rallies in 1991 spoke in favour of a peaceful solution and respect for everyone in BiH. D3693 (Witness statement of Marinko Vasilic dated 9 June 2013), para. 17. The Chamber notes that Vasilic's testimony was marked by inconsistencies, evasiveness and other indicators that he was not forthright in his evidence. The Chamber therefore does not consider his evidence on what the Accused said at SDS rallies to be reliable. But IT IS THE LEAST PROBLEM, BECAUSE IT MUST HAVE BEEN RECORDED IN THE MEDIA. See Javnost, 17 August 91, to translate. Since it is contested, we have the right to tender it now. And it would be more honest to forbid testimonies of a defence witnesses, because all of such witnesses in this case are disqualified as not "reliable".

unit in BiH.⁹⁰⁷⁹

The essence of this speech is quite different, see: D494
 mutual extermination, killings and tortures have been imposed to us. We are trying to take part in all that as little as possible. Sometimes we do not respond on fire for hour-and-a-half and than respond when we are endangered. Issues that /inaudible/ from the other exclusively /inaudible/ on the Conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina. We have decided to declare unilateral cease fires, let all world /everyone/ see who is starting troubles and who is violating cease fires /truce. We in Bosnia and Herzegovina are not in conflict with Croats and Muslims. We are in a conflict with militant leadership which would like to impose their state to us, the one in which they would dominate and we would be second class citizens , that is to say the escort people to the leading people /nation/ which was communicated to us in a clear fashion on some of rallies. But, Serbian people is not demanding to be a leader, but will not agree to be manor and second rated. That is the reason why we decided to organise our state unit in Bosnia and Herzegovina. /applause/

The essence is that 50,000 citizens of Banjaluka applauded to these words of the President, as after the next words:

lives. Today the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina is such that in two other parties, sides of the militant part of the army, I can not say that for the civilians, there have been formed numerous territorial defences /units?/, they are announcing formation of the armed forces and all that with the aim to endanger Serbs on these areas. And the Serbs are endangered in all parts outside of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. We are proud to say that Muslims and Croats are not and will not be endanger on the territory of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. /applause/

Again, 50,000 citizens of Banjaluka applauded. And this was the President's commitment, but also made widely public, so that everyone knows his attitude towards the Muslim and Croat citizens of the Republic of Srpska, and to adopt the same! There is an additional element to be noticed, see D494, p.5

Herzegovina, but until than /moment/ we have to achieve a balance to defend the borders of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina and /inaudible/ all its citizens regardless to their confession or nationality. /applause/

And again, the applause when all the citizens are mentioned. See further: D494, p.

In this war time and devastation of waste areas of Bosnia and Herzegovina we can say that the security situation is stable and under control for the areas that the CSB Banja Luka is in charge for, and that we are doing our best to save the peace on our territories.

On the territory of the Centre the first war conflicts and destructions were caused by the Croatian armed forces in the bordering area with the Republic of Croatia. Innocent casualties, refugee exodus of the Serbian population in W. Slavonia, fear, panic, unrest, were characteristic of this dead end street situation in the hot August days of 1991. This CSB was in very specific 2 situation.

Mr. Zupljanin was publicly reporting that after five weeks of the war in other parts of BiH, in this region there is a peace and order. Had the Serbs had any Joint Criminal Enterprise to expel the Muslims and Croats, it would have been done already! But, nothing happened in the area until 22 May, the Muslim attack in Hambarine, Prijedor. See further: D494, p. 3

I am glad that I can point out from this place that the majority of authorised employees, 85% of them, have signed the solemn oath. Among them a great number are professionals of the other ethnicity that remained to work in this CSB and they are among us now. /applause/

While already five weeks there is a fierce war in other parts of BiH, but in this huge predominantly Serb region there is a peace, and there is a public commitment to save the peace and to make the other ethnicities feel comfortable, and equal to the Serbs, and the police was proud to have “a great number” of professionals of other ethnicities that remained to work in the Serb police. And all of it was praised by the applaudiment of 50,000 ordinary citizens of Banjaluka! Does it say anything about the alleged criminal plans, allegedly coined out in October 1991?) The President also said that they were proud to say that Muslims and Croats were not in danger in SerBiH and that they had to defend the borders of SerBiH for all citizens of BiH regardless of their “confession or nationality”.⁹⁰⁸⁰ (EXCULPATORY!!! It was a public announcement that there would be only a defensive strategy, a defence of the territory and population regardless of their ethnicity. Exactly as Gen. Milovanovic said in his interview with the Prosecution on, see: D1598, p. 5

General MILOVANOVIĆ then said that the Tribunal should not try to prove the character of the war in BiH through such trials. At the beginning of the war, the Serbs wanted, above all, to stay in the SFRY, the Muslims wanted to form their Muslim state and the Croats wanted access to the Drina River. At the beginning of the war, he asked the leadership at the time to provide objectives of the war, which were the following:

1. to protect the Serbian people from destruction in order to avoid a repeat of events that took place between 1941 and 1945,
2. to stay within Yugoslavia, or as an alternative to this, have our own state.

That was it! Not a word about alleged plans pertaining to the JCE! Not a word about any offensive strategy! All legal, legitimate and necessary!) Similarly in June 1992, the RS Presidency issued a press statement condemning the BiH declaration of war and noting that this placed pressure on Serbs to fight “against their brothers” and that they wanted a peaceful resolution of the conflict and that all those who sought protection in SerBiH would be provided the bare necessities “irrespective of their nationality”.⁹⁰⁸¹ (A HIGHLY EXCULPATORY!!! And this is widely corroborated by the events: many times, while the two other sides fought among themselves, the Serb side helped with the humanitarian actions, accepting a great number of refugees on the Serb territory, and throughout the war time the Serb hospitals treated the “adverse” wounded or ill soldiers equally as the Serbs!)

2739. In contrast to these public statements, when the President spoke to Žepinić about his view that the different nationalities could not live together in BiH, Žepinić expressed his concern about what was going to happen to the large number of mixed families in BiH and the difficulty of dividing people who lived in the same high-rise buildings.⁹⁰⁸² (First of all, the President didn't have his own intentions, he was obliged to understand what his people wanted and why. And the Serbs in BiH did want to live together with the Muslims and Croats in Yugoslavia, or in the Republic of Srpska, but not in a unitary BiH! Why the Tribunal and some other international institutions pretend not to know what it was all about? Europe has many

⁹⁰⁸² Vitomir Žepinić, T. 33588–33589 (13 February 2013). Žepinić also testified that he could not accept this policy of division and he did not believe that the Accused was able to do so either, but that the Accused faced problems from extremists in his own ranks. Vitomir Žepinić, T. 33589 (13 February 2013). (Finally, the difference from “facing” some problem and discussing about it, and advocating it as a desirable solution – is noticed by a witness! That should be implied to all the academic and political discussions. If the President expressed his opinion about some feature, it doesn't mean that he desired it, or advocated it, but if it was a reality, he had to be aware of it, and make others to be aware of it!)

identical examples, like Northern Ireland, like Flandria and Valona in Belgium, like Switzerland with so many cantons, like many complex countries, in which their territorial components would never give up their autonomy! The Serb side never opposed living with the Muslims and (or) Croats, but the main issue was a nature of a state, and an issue of the human and national rights protection safeguards, which wouldn't exist if the Serbs are in a position of national minority! Rebutting so many confused, false and fake accusations, which are very easy to understand, looks like fighting against a windmills.

As usually, for the Chamber is of a greater relevance some chatting in private, than all documents and public activity which obliged, while the private chatting doesn't oblige, and may have not happen as well. Mr. Zepinic never spoke in two with the President! Beside that, he could have expressed his regret for the development in BiH, as the President too expressed his regret for the destruction of the common life, see the comment in the fn. Below! The main point is constantly missed: the new occasions, the BiH wanting to be independent, unitary and led by the Islamic fundamentalists. When talking about the inability to live together, it was exclusively because of those circumstances, and one of them was sufficient not to accept that kind of BH, let alone all the three for the Serbs horrifying conditions. Also, the Serbs didn't have to accept anything, because the secession of BH was illegal without the Serb consent! Žepinić was threatened by Mićo Stanišić and later arrested for his opposition to ethnically based parties and also faced pressure from both Koljević and the President.⁹⁰⁸³ It is a flagrant proof that Zepinic lied. The ethnically based parties had been formed in 1989 and 1990, participated in the elections, won the elections, formed the Government, offered to Zepinic a high position in the MUP on an ethnic list, and after a year and a half Zepinic objected about the ethnically based parties??? Can you believe it? Nobody was satisfied with his work, that was the reason!

2740. In May 1992, the President issued an announcement to Bosnian Muslims appealing for a cessation of hostilities and assured them that Muslims who remained in SerBiH and had laid down their arms had full protection and lived peacefully.⁹⁰⁸⁴ (EXCULPATORY!!!) The President warned against the “crazy idea of an Islamic state” and that the West wanted Muslims to be “obliterated” but the Serbs wanted to reach an agreement with them.⁹⁰⁸⁵ (EXCULPATORY!) He also assured Bosnian Muslims that they would be allowed to leave in the direction of their choice with the right to return when the war was over.⁹⁰⁸⁶ (EXCULPATORY!!!) Okun described this announcement as “thoroughly disingenuous” and noted that it was issued at the same time as the Bosnian Serb Assembly issued its war aims.⁹⁰⁸⁷ (How Okun could have known that it was “thoroughly disingenuous” since he was there rarely and from time to time? Let us see how the events on the terrain look in comparison to the Okun's assertion: 1. at least five entirely Muslim villages only on the Romanija mount, laid the weapons down and continued to live freely, some of them to the very end of the war. (see@____) 2. The Muslims started to return to Bijeljina, and the Minister of Interior reported to his collegium that the Muslims are returning to Bijeljina on the President's invitation, which might be a bit too early, see D473, p.10

⁹⁰⁸³ Vitomir Žepinić, T. 33603–33607, 33619–33620 (13 February 2013). Žepinić testified, however, that the Accused did in certain situations try to protect him from extremists in the SDS. When questioned about whether the Accused took a position that Bosnian Muslims and Croats should be expelled, he testified that if the Accused or the SDS had directly made such a statement he would have been arrested for such an unconstitutional decision. ⁹⁰⁸⁷ Herbert Okun, T. 1810–1811 (28 April 2010).

The situation in Bijeljina is relatively satisfactory, but in truth is much worse than at first glance. The problem with the Muslim section of the population is compounded by the arrival of Muslim refugees and the return of those who had left Bijeljina before, influenced by Mr. KARADŽIĆ's and Mr. PANIĆ's recent statements. This population includes a number of Muslim extremists, and it is believed that a large number of Muslim citizens own weapons. The misunderstandings between the MUP and the representatives of the Bijeljina SO /Municipal Assembly/ have partially been resolved following a meeting attended by the Minister of the Interior.

General Mladic was reported that the Muslims are returning in Bijeljina, see P1478 (Ratko Mladić's notebook, 27 May–31 July 1992), p. 40.

- In Bijeljina the Muslims are settling (Message intercepted: No checks, weapons arriving you don't need to) – Finally, the President asked Mr. Okun about this characterisation of the announcement as “disingenuous”, the answer was as follows (see: Herbert Okun, T. 1818 (28 April 2010).

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

Dr. Karadzic, I'm surprised to hear you say that I alleged that your appeals were disingenuous. I said the opposite. I said they were praiseworthy, I said they were commendable, I said they had merit. I said they were not observed in the field, but I never President those documents of being anything but sincere. (How come this assertion of the Prosecution survived after it was rebutted by the very same witness, Ambassador Okun? It appears that every defence is in vain, even if the wame witness clarified his misinterpreted statement!)

2741. On 2 June 1992, the President issued a decision which called for all citizens who had temporarily left the territory of the SerBiH to return and report to the Crisis Staff in their place of residence by 20 May 1992.⁹⁰⁸⁸ It also promised the right of return to “[p]ersons whose actions were not contrary to the interests of the [SerBiH]”.⁹⁰⁸⁹ It provided that persons who had left and did not return or did not explain their inability to return to the relevant municipal crisis staff, would be denied the right of citizenship of SerBiH and all acquired rights regarding employment, housing, health and retirement insurance would cease and their property would be used temporarily for the needs of defence of SerBiH.⁹⁰⁹⁰ Let us see how this is wrong and misused:, see P2617, p. 2-3

All citizens who, for reasons of personal safety, temporarily left the territory of the Serbian Republic of BH, which had been engulfed in war, are obliged to return to their places of residence as soon as possible, until 20 May 1992 at the latest, and report to the Crisis Staff if their place of residence is controlled by the authorities of the Serbian Republic of BH.

⁹⁰⁹⁰ P2617 (Radovan Karadžić Decisions, May–June 1992), pp. 2–3.

Men of Serbian nationality aged from 18 to 60, previously residing in areas which are now not under the control of the authorities of the Serbian Republic of BH, are obliged to report to the nearest crisis staff on the territory of the Serbian Republic of BH until 20 May 1992.

This the first paragraph pertained to all the citizens of the Republic of Srpska. The second part of para 1. and all the following paragraphs concerned only with the able bodied male citizens of the Serb nationality:

Here is the rest of this document, P2617

Article 2

Persons whose actions were not contrary to the interests of the Serbian Republic of BH have the right to return.

Article 3

The municipal crisis staff shall decide on the further engagement of persons mentioned in Article 1, keeping in mind the needs of defence, the functioning of state organs, public services and the economy in the municipality as well as the professional training and the overall health of these persons.

Article 4

Those persons who left and do not comply with Article 1 or do not explain or justify their inability to return to the municipal crisis staff, shall be denied the right of citizenship of the Serbian Republic of BH.

All acquired rights regarding employment, health and retirement insurance and housing shall cease for the persons mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

Property belonging to persons mentioned in the first paragraph of this article shall be used temporarily for the needs of defence of the Serbian Republic of BH. The municipal crisis staffs shall take care of and provide for the utilisation of this property.

None of the restrictive measures didn't pertain to the non-Serbs, as it was known that the Muslims and Croats hadn't been listed for the Army. Only para 2 pertained to the non-Serbs too!

All of it that pertained to the able bodied Serbs was in accordance with the law. Skipping this fact, the entire document looks as a bad will and violation of the rights of non-Serbs. But, anyway, this measure had never been implemented! And this is an abuse of the document, and distortion of evidence!

2742. On 4 July 1992, at the 36th session of the Bosnian Serb Government, it was noted that the “question has been raised whether there are agreed criteria regarding the moving out of the Muslim population from the territory of the [SerBiH]. It has been concluded that the Government has not until now had a point of view on this matter. The Ministry of the Interior is entrusted with preparing information on this issue that the Government would consider and take the appropriate standpoint”.⁹⁰⁹¹ (This two can not be associated, because the Government was searching for the criteria when and why somebody would be approved to leave SerBiH. There is evidence that even in Pale, where the Government was sitting, had been a Muslim petition to be approved to leave! There were some conditions required, particularly concerning with the distance from battlefield and a degree of jeopardy for civilians!) This idea of ethnic separation was also supported and reinforced by municipal leaders such as Prstojević who said that “those who convert to Orthodox religion on the spot, they can stay”.⁹⁰⁹² (This example was rebutted and denied by the witness himself, Prstojevic, and that kind of chatting and jokes can not be equalized with the official documents!)

2743. At a meeting of the Bosnian Serb leadership on 10 July 1992, the President stated that unlike the Bosnian Muslims and Croats, the Bosnian Serbs were going to build a law-abiding state rather than an ethnically clean state. Other attendees expressed their agreement as to the stance to be taken in that regard.⁹⁰⁹³ (EXCULPATORY!!! It had been said in a close meeting and in no way had been envisaged to be public! Had it ever been different, had there was any meditation about crimes, about JCE, the other participants of this meeting would protest and remain the others about already agreed opposite standpoint! And why the Chamber pay more credit to some unofficial chats or telephone intercepts than to this official statements?)

2744. On 11 July 1992, at the 17th session of the Bosnian Serb Presidency, attended by the President, it was decided “that a decision be adopted on the signing of a proclamation on the moving out and retention of citizens from certain parts of the former [BiH], and on guarantees and safety, on condition that the people be disarmed, enemy activities halted and peace established”.⁹⁰⁹⁴ (So, a retention of citizens in some areas could be unlawful too. Neither expulsion nor retention could be forceful!) On the same date, the Presidency made an announcement to the citizens of RS stating that civilians living in areas affected by war must be allowed to leave those areas and that any emigration had to be voluntary and cannot be obstructed or encouraged.⁹⁰⁹⁵ This same announcement indicated that Croats and Muslims in the RS were “guaranteed all rights granted by a legal state” and that the authorities were not forcibly detaining people in war zones, as that would make them hostages, or forcing them to emigrate as that would amount to “ethnic cleansing”.⁹⁰⁹⁶ The announcement also indicated that all refugees would be allowed to return.⁹⁰⁹⁷ (EXCULPATORY!!!What is “But” here? The same day the President greeted the St. Peter’s day to the SDS, and again pleaded for the honour and humanity, see:

D94:

The responsibility of the Serbian Democratic Party, which is to defend the nation and the Serbian Republic, is enormous. Along with a military victory, we also need rights and morals to win as well.

The state, which we, the Serbs, are creating, must rest on the rule of rights and humanity, since "a kingdom does not demand inhumane people to defile itself before the world." With that, I ask of all members and representatives of the Serbian Democratic Party to constantly monitor our behaviour, so that the glory of our just battle would not be tarnished by inhumane actions.

Special attention should be given to just behaviour towards civilians of other nationalities within our Republic. Similarly, towards our defeated counterparts, we need to not only honour the Clauses of the Geneva Convention, but we also need to show our Orthodox Christian mercy.

It was public, so that everyone know what is his position, and position of others in the leadership!)

2745. Despite these public announcements, the President continued to advocate the division of BiH on ethnic lines.⁹⁰⁹⁸ (Here is this "But". Let us see why it is wrong: by guaranteeng the human and ethnic rights for all the inhabitantns in the Republic of Srpska, didn't mean that the Serbs gave up the idea of their own constituent unit. It only meant that the Serb constituent unit will be multiethnic, based on law and equality of citizens regardless of their religious or ethnic affiliation. It was the ultimate condition for the Serbs: either the entire and unitary BiH remains in Yugoslavia, or the Serbs get their constituent unit within the independent Bosnia. All the time throughout the war the Republic of Srpska was a multiethnic, there was no a single settled plase without the Muslims and Croats living to the end of war. There are many genuine documents that the President and all the leadership were always faithful to the idea of law and order and humanity, while contrary to that there is no a single genuine evidence, but only some jokes, gossip and a statements of biased witnessesof the Muslim provenance!) For example in July 1992, he spoke about the dangers of living in a unitary state where they could not control the Muslims. (The control was mentioned because the attendees knew what that meant: namely, it was a widely understood that the West wanted us, the Serbs and Croats to control the Islamic element, not to achieve an islamic regime in the middle of Europe. (See: Q:There is widespread belief among some Serb and Muslim intellectuals that the West had intended to neutralise the Muslims in Bosnia-Herzegovina by using the Serbs and Croats. Are you denying that? A: (Okun) That's nonsense. The sympathy of the West, whether correct or incorrect, was overwhelmingly on the side of the Muslims. We've established that already. Dr. Karadzic has made that point repeatedly, and it's correct. (Okun, T. 1811) (...) T1812. Q Thank you. Now I'm going to read out what Izetbegovic had written:T.1813: "As for Tudjman's bragging that some Europeans had entrusted to him the Europisation of the Bosnian Muslims and the prevention of the creation of a Muslim state on European soil, I think that there was some truth in these stories of Tudjman's. Many in Europe and America, with a few honourable exceptions, viewed with suspicion what was going on in Bosnia. What they considered to be Islamic revival in the country needed to be extinguished. Many ugly things were done in order to achieve this. One of them was the criminalisation of the Bosnian authorities in the BH that would intensify after the war and culminate in a 'New York Times' article in 1999."

This is what pertaines to a "control", and it should be clear that the participants in those meetings knew that, but the Chamber should have known it, because the Defense submitted the evidence about the Western expectations from the Serbs and Croats to control the Muslims, as well as the evidence that it wasn't a natural birth rate that worried the Serbs and Croats, but the three powerful sources of the artificial enlargement of the one kind of population:

1.) Re-settlement of many Muslims from Sandzak, Serbia to BiH,

2.) Import of up to 4 million Turks allegedly descendants of the old Bosnians, and finally

3.) the Fatwa of Cerić, the head of the Islamic religion in BiH that every Muslim woman was obliged to deliver at least five children, so to be able to sacrifice one for the Bosnia.

(See @@_____ of DFB) It was absolutely irrelevant whether it was that way, it is more important whether and how much the people and their leaders in BH believed in it. If it was widely believed, than it had a power of reality. In this regard he said “[w]e know very well what the fundamentalism is and that we cannot live together, there’s no tolerance, they quadruple through the birth-rate, and we Serbs are not up to that”.⁹⁰⁹⁹ The President also spoke about the Bosnian Muslims overwhelming the Bosnian Serbs “with their birth rate and their tricks. We cannot allow that to happen”.⁹¹⁰⁰ Exactly, the tricks that were mentioned pertained to their three sources of the artificial, manipulative political motivated increase of the birth rate. But, the main problem was a political, and that speech of the President was a political speech against some renegades, who wanted to unite the two Krajinas, Knin and Banja Luka Krajina, just in the eve of the Agreement was to be concluded. Since the main tensions were among the ethnicities, the main criterion for the transformation of BiH was ethnic. And some people were close to damage everything, to partition Croatia and Bosnia, and to ruin almost concluded Lisbon Agreement, it was 28 February.

Let us see what the President said at the same meeting: p.37

So, tomorrow, we will first hold a session of the Main Board in the presence of the deputies and party presidents, then there will be the Krajina Assembly, where we will take the floor and if need be explain for 15 hours why something is not good and something else is. If someone manages to convince us otherwise, then fine. But the developments in Krajina are not good, it’s not good that it’s being partitioned, the partitioning of Bosnia and Herzegovina has terrible consequences on the position in Europe. And we have great enemies who can’t wait for us to make a mistake. We have very few friends who pray to God that we don’t

p.38.

We are halfway there, no, not halfway, we’ve achieved 90% of the things. There’s no turning back. Alija is softening things up and playing down the importance, he says, this will not be an ethnic unit, there will be other criteria.

There will be other criteria, but the ethnic criterion will be the basic criterion. We here want our Republic in which we will gather about 90% of the Serbs. So that if we are left with 150,000 Serbs with the status of an ethnic minority, it’s better than having 1,500,000 of them.

If they remain in Zenica or somewhere else, we will make it possible for the people to come here and to live well.

This is absolutely unacceptable that a UN court is judging a legal and legitimate political activities of one of the sides! This is particularly unacceptable since the same activities of the other two sides are not even taken into account as a reason for the Serb reactions! The fact that the others produced the crisis by a unilateral and unlawful secessions on the ethnic basis, imposing to the Serbs such a changes of the existing state which were legitimately rejected by the Serbs. The whole crisis was based on the ethnic antagonisms, and why the President wouldn’t take care of the main problem. From the whole evidence it was clear that the main objective was not to achieve all the territory the Serbs had as a majority, but to reorganize BiH like Switzerland, which is also organized due to ethnic (linguistic) principle.

BUT, ALMOST ALL OF THE AGRAVATING EVIDENCE AGAINST THIS PRESIDENT IS OF A POPLITICAL NATURE, NO MATTER THE WHOLE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY RECOGNIZED THAT IN THE DESTRUCTION OF YUGOSLAVIA ON SEVERAL MONOETHNIC STATES, THE PROBLEM IN BOSNIA WAS PRIMARILY ETHNIC. And it wasn't the problem caused by the Serbs, who offered many solutions, but by the Muslims, who wanted to dominate over the Serbs and Croats. And the Serbs do not accept to have forgotten that the Islamic Decralation was a political program of a new Bosnia.

2746. In meetings with international observers, these sentiments were repeated by Bosnian Serb who kept emphasising that “they simply couldn’t live with the Muslims” and that Bosnian Muslims wanted all of BiH which they could achieve through their higher birth rate.⁹¹⁰¹ (Again, this is an abuse of the linguistic problems: in Serbian language there is a term “prirodni prirastaj”, which means “natural birthrate”. If there is no this attribute “prirodni” then it is not a natural birthrate, but political, artificial enlargement of population of certain ethnicity!) The President continued to emphasise this issue and stated that in “all variants we must be cautious so that Muslims don’t wind up in our state” and cited to the example of Serbia as being unstable even though the population was 65% Serb.⁹¹⁰² Other Bosnian Serb deputies also spoke about the danger faced by the Serb people due to the high birth-rate of Bosnian Muslims which would change the demographic percentages in BiH.⁹¹⁰³ (What is that? Not even a communist criticism of the Serb national policy was so meticulous and rude! These sentiments were not a cause of any development, but only a reaction, a consequence of the development imposed by the secessionist republics and ethnicities! And the Bosnian Muslims wanted something that they didn’t have rifght to: the whole Bosnia under their dominatio. That is why they needed the whole unitary Bosnia. The Serbs had their rights to their autonomy in managing their life!)

2747. The SDS leadership also commissioned a number of studies on the changing demographics in BiH which showed the growth rate of the Muslim population and reflected the fears of the SDS leadership that Bosnian Muslims would soon become an absolute majority in an independent BiH and impact the position of the Serbs.⁹¹⁰⁴ This concern about demographics and the Bosnian Muslim birth rate continued to be emphasised by the President throughout the conflict. For example, at the 37th Bosnian Serb Assembly Session on 10 January 1994, the President stated that the Muslim population increases by 1% daily because “that is how it is with them”.⁹¹⁰⁵ (It is only a partial presentation of the affair. If the Chamber took just a short look of the Islamic Declaration, it would draw another inference. It is known in any Islamic society that after Muslims achieve 50% of a general population, this become an Islamic society, and all others are oliged to accept the Shariah and other Islamic laws. Mr. Izetbegovic made it for the BiH even easier, establishing that “once the Muslim community is strong enough, it has to ruin the existing order and build up another, an Islamic one. No reasonable chamber would neglect the Islamic Declaration as a mens rea of one of the warring sides.

The Chamber considers that this falls outside the scope of his expertise and does not rely on his evidence in this regard.

Rajko Dukić in July 1992 delivered a speech at the Bosnian Serb Assembly in which he asked “why we expelled all Muslim judges from Vlasenica, Bratunac and Zvornik. Will we be President then, I hope we will not [...] I would be ashamed and I would regret all the victims if I lived in a state in which Muslims and Muslim ideology would judge and where their justice is done”.⁹¹⁰⁶ However, the Chamber is wrong in inferring on the basis of Mr. Dukic’s words. Let us see what was said, and why: D00092, p. 72 of behaviour. One day Muslims will rule Bijeljina. And when I looked at the Official Gazette a moment ago I realised that we ourselves are on the road to establishing such authorities very soon. There, it says that judges have been appointed to the Bijeljina Court: Smajil SALIBEGOVIĆ, Muhamed GLUHONJIĆ, Alida MAĐAR, Alija ZVIZDIĆ and I do not know, I also found a fifth one – Alma HALIBEGOVIĆ. So I am asking you gentlemen why we expelled all Muslim judges from Vlasenica, Bratunac and Zvornik. Will we be accused then, I hope we will not, but will these others be better there working like this? I would be ashamed and I would regret all the victims if I lived in a state in which Muslims and Muslim ideology would judge and

So, Dukic was complaining to the President’s decision to nominate the Muslim and Croatian judges and prosecutors in the Bijeljina regional courts, no doubt about that. The names are all Muslim. And to whom he complained? To a person who nominated the Muslim/Croat judges. And who was this person? This was the President. See D00422. Mr. Dukic had his own rights to express his dissatisfaction, although he was not an MP, but his criticism of the President didn’t change anything. Let us see further Mr. Dukic’s arguments: D92, p. 73 where their justice was done. We all know what sort of justice that is, come on, gentlemen MPs, please do not allow for a single judge, not a single judge or prosecutor to mete out justice in our municipalities in the future or now. I am convinced that the opposite will not be so either. We heard a moment ago the pleading of the gentlemen from Konjic. Now please compare that with the fact that in Bijeljina people are sitting around in cafes, drinking Turkish coffee and singing Turkish songs. That is the truth. In Bijeljina even the Head of the Outpatients’ Clinic can be a Muslim, as well as a doctor or a judge. You see our 3,500 women and children are counting their last days there, etc. We cannot do it like that, we have to decide about

So, the President was ready to stand any criticism, but didn’t change his decision to have a proportionate number of Muslims and Croats among the judges and prosecutors! Later, when the Assembly could sit regularly, the President returned this authorisation back to the Assembly, and many of the MPs were against it that any Muslim or Croat judge work in the courts in RS, until the war ends, and the President was politically fighting in the Assembly in favour of the Muslim/Croat participation in every aspect of the social and political life once the conditions are normal, but for the judges to start immediately! The Chamber, as would any reasonable chamber do, should grant the President for his doings in spite of such a mighty resistance. It is known to the Chamber that nobody have expelled the judges from the Birac region, but they left after a Serb judge (Goran Zekic) was assassinated on 8 May 92 between Srebrenica and Bratunac. If the hunting of judges was opened, the Muslim judges were afraid, and left, although Mr. Stanic of Vlasenica went to Tuzla to persuade them to return. But let us see further, Dukic’s arguments, D92, p. 73 : Dukić also stated that there were 120,000 Muslims in the Birač region and he hoped that this number “has at least been halved”.⁹¹⁰⁷ (A people from the terrain witnessed every day many tragedies and innocent casualties, and could be angry, but their words could not be used to illustrate or establish the President's mens rea!) In August 1992, at a Bosnian Serb Assembly session, Brđanin proposed that they “appoint only those judges who are of Serbian nationality. We cannot say this to Europe or the rest of the world, but we can say it here between ourselves. Our people do not have the right to live, yet here we are, crying over those ones”.⁹¹⁰⁸ Since the Chamber mentioned this Assembly session, there should be quoted what the President said, because his mens rea should not be drawn from the words of others. Let us see how the President defended his concept of the multi-ethnic judicial system, see D422 (the 12 August Assembly session in BL p.19):

Dr KARADŽIĆ:

I need to say something not only about this proposal but about the principle of the matter, if I may. Look, as we said yesterday, we have to determine if he or she is appropriate. But, as far as other nations are concerned, we have to have a percentage, a proportion participating in the municipal authorities. We have to be responsible, as we are creating a state. You are the organ creating it. The state must be created swiftly and in the best way. The state must have all its elements in order to survive and remain as a state. I can't elaborate on this longer but I know what I am saying. Believe me, Alija pays fortune to any he Chairman of the Assembly clarified, p.19:

The President:

Radovan, let me explain. Nobody rejects them because they are not good, or because they are Muslims or Croats. Simply, we have decided to declare ourselves now because we are in the state of a civil war. So, they will lose this number of judges and when the war is over they will be re-elected.

the Chairman of the Assembly clarified, these reserves were temporary, because of the war situation. But there was more officials who were in favour of the multiethnicity of the judicial system, D422, p. 1:

Momčilo MANDIĆ:

I propose to include in the Agenda, as an item of the Agenda, the election and the appointment of the judges of the Banja Luka Lower Court and the Deputy Public Prosecutor in Banja Luka and one judge of the Banja Luka High Court. Since we, obviously have not prepared the material, Banja Luka Municipal Assembly delivered a proposal – so that it does not undergo a summary procedure – so I am kindly asking you to use the presence of the Deputies and to elect the judges and prosecutors.

p.10, Mandić:

We have the names of the proposed High Court judges, a total of seven. They are Vladimir RADOSAVLJEVIĆ, Ružica TOPIĆ, Lazo SAVIĆ, Gojko VUKOTIĆ, Zinaida KADIĆ, Duško MEDIĆ and Berislav KOVAČIĆ.

On this list there are 3 Serbs, one Montenegrin, two Croats and one Muslim judges to be nominated! To use only a piece of the D422 is not correct and not fair, because there is much more EXCULPATORY elements than those in favour of the Indictment! By such a selective usage of evidence not even St. Peter would be acquitted!)

2749. On 2 September 1992, the President was among the Bosnian Serb political and military leaders who met in Bijeljina on 2 September 1992.⁹¹⁰⁹ At this meeting, the President observed that “[w]e are close to the goal and we must run across it [...] the Serbian people will either create their own state [...] or we will be squeezed into a small area”.⁹¹¹⁰ (Again, the unfinished had-written notes, a several lines of a speech that must have been lasting at least a half an hour. Proves nothing. If the Chamber didn't oppose to the Defence proposals of a documents which have corroborated the Muslim plans to expel the Serbs from BiH, there wouldn't be any wondering. But this is exactly what happened to the Serbs from Croatia and Kosovo!) At this meeting it was observed that there was "no political position as to how to proceed with Muslims who have declared loyalty".⁹¹¹¹ (It is clear from the note in question that it was a question of the 2nd Krajina Corps Commander, and it pertained to the service in the Army, whether to admit the loyal Muslims or not. That is what a Corps Commander could ask only, since the civilian authorities didn't have any dilemma. If the Chamber suggested something else, it would once again be wrong, and it is already unfair, to cripple sentences and be obscure, so that it looks like the question was about civilians!) The President expressed his view that "we must have ethnic minorities in the state as well".⁹¹¹² Look how Mladic wrote it down in a laconic manner: P01479, p. 156:

* Attitude towards the Muslims, we must have ethnic minorities in the state as well.-

Obviously, there had been said more on the subject, but Gen. Mladic put down only one sentence, which is sufficient to confirm that the President was in favour of a multi-ethnic composition of the RS, and not on the monowhnic. Krajišnik reminded those present that the VRS should not distance itself from the SDS. He also recalled that the aim of the Bosnian Serbs was to divide with the Muslims.⁹¹¹³ The President then noted that he had not heard a "single political difference".⁹¹¹⁴ At a meeting with the Bosnian Serb Presidency and VRS commanders in October 1992, the President stated that the Bosnian Serbs must insist on having a single Serbian community.⁹¹¹⁵ This was the President's interpretation what had been said in the Geneva Conference. An objective chamber would notice that the Serb side was praised for a conduct in humanitarian matters:

Item 1: KARADŽIĆ said the following:

- The Conference in Geneva is held at 3 levels. We have been praised for the conduct with regard to the question of humanitarian action. -

And then what all the three delegations proposed:

- The Croats are planning a small joint army
- The Muslims are planning joint:

- * army
- * currency
- * judiciary
- * foreign affairs
- * 7-8 constituent units

Neither we nor the Croats agree with this.

- We will have one constituent unit, and the Muslims can have as many as they want.

(Why it was of any interest of the Chamber? What is wrong with that? The Serbs accepted that the Muslims may have as many constituent units as they want, while the Serbs will have one. No crime at all, no relevance. To see the right meaning. Generali speaking, this is nothing but a patchwork of the President's political short notice, comments, observations and meditations without any official obligation, and participation in many unofficial meetings, mainly how it was taken notes in short!)

2748. The Bosnian Serb leadership did envisage small enclaves in RS where Bosnian Muslims could live.⁹¹¹⁶ (This is well known "Switz" idea that every community with a certain number of their ethnics could form their canton. No matter if their municipalities would be in RS, they would be free from any Serb domination. And the same pertained to the Serb and Croat communities. The President was known for advocating Bosnia to be transformed in a sort of Southern Switzerland, and it is well known. But, the main issue is: why this Chamber needed the Okun's testimony on that issue, since he was rarely in situation to hear what the BSL "envisaged". Why it was not sufficient and more proper to see the UN and EC mediator documents, which were the only official Serb position. Beside that, Mr. Okun himself admitted that his notes shouldn't be taken literally, since it wasn't verbatim, and it was amalgamate of what he heard and what he meditate about what he heard. THE MAIN QUESTION IS: WHY THE CHAMBER SELECTED LESS CREDIBLE SOURCES INSTEAD OF THE ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS OF THE EU AND EUROPEAN COMMUNITY? WAS IT BECAUSE THE PRESIDENT WOULDN'T BE SENTENCED WITHOUT THIS FREELY MENTIONED OBSERVATIONS OF WITNESSES? IF SO, THIS IS NOT A COURT AND THIS IS NOT A JUSTICE, BUT A POLITICAL SHARADE AND MOCKERY OF THE HUMAN KIND'S ACHIEVEMENTS. For example, the President said that while Bosnian Muslims could stay in the enclaves, "it is going to be our state".⁹¹¹⁷ At a meeting on 19 June 1993 in Pale with members of the Supreme Command with, inter alios, Krajišnik, Koljević, Lukić, Mladić, and Milovanović in attendance, the President stated that the Serbs and Croats should work together so that the Muslims get some territory in central BiH.⁹¹¹⁸

Let us look what is written down on this subject:

- In our assessment and the assessment of the rest of the world, we have won, and we will be given a state.
- Both the Croats and we should do something, so that the Muslims get some territory in Central Bosnia; first there was talk about 38, then 34 municipalities, and now we are talking about the treasures of Bosnia in 30 municipalities. -

This was the President's interpretation of the content of the Conference, and not of his own intentions or wishes. It is visible that the President and his delegation in Geneva were very cooperative and constructive. That was not "so that the Muslims get some territory in Central Bosnia", but to "get some additional territory", so to have 33,33%, as can be seen in our comment of para 2768..

There was always a problem about percentage for the Muslim constituent unit. The President proposed not to have the only Serbs giving concession, but to agree with the Croats to participate in solidarity. Otherwise, the war was going to last. Any reasonable chamber would infer many good conclusions in favour of the President on the basis of it, and none for the conviction.

2751. At the 34th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, Mladić stated that they had not allowed “any connection of the enclaves in Eastern Bosnia” and that his “aim was, and I am sure that if we establish Republika Srpska they could not wait to get out of the enclaves. However, if they don’t want to, we have to provide the conditions so that they could feel glad when we offer it to them”.⁹¹¹⁹ (This is a military logics, because those enclaves were full of a well armed combatants. Disabling them to have a connection with the rest of their units would be against any military logics. But, even as military, these ideas didn’t have anything mean or wrong or aggressive towards the Muslims. If the Muslims would like to stay after the war, they will have a good conditions.)

2752. The President in meetings with international negotiators stated that “Serbs would never accept to be ruled by Muslims”, but that if Muslims gave up their claim to rule over all of BiH, “they could quite happily live alongside each other” but each with their own administrations and safeguards for minorities.⁹¹²⁰ (EXCULPATORY!!! The minorities had been envisaged, as well as the safeguards for they life!) In contrast, at a meeting on 8 September 1992, the President stated that there were no Serbs, except in Sarajevo, who wanted to live with the Bosnian Croats and Bosnian Muslims in one state.⁹¹²¹ (Nothing is “in contrast”! Is this President guilty for what those Serbs felt, or for saying what they felt? Even a stalinist courts would make a difference. The key word is “in one state” which meant “in one system, under one administration” and that was right, no matter how the entire world could think of it. But, any reasonable chamber would find out a way to comprehend the semantics of the Serbian language, and there would be less misunderstandings.)

2753. Later on, in meetings with international negotiators, the Bosnian Serb leadership indicated that they were prepared to accept changes in internal borders “to accommodate ethnic realities”.⁹¹²² (This falls under the witness’s own remark that his assessments are of not the first class validity. However, this part pertained to the changes of the municipal boundaries, so that a village could join neighboring municipality with the same majority if wanted, as it happened before the war, with the Dobratic group of villages. And this was envisaged to be valid for all the three communities. It had nothing to do with so called “new realities” because the Serbs never denounced the agreements on the free return of refugees. How this was wrong inference shows the key word: internal boundaries! What the internal boundaries have to do with the refugees? It concerns only domestic inhabitants of a village that would like to join another municipality, which was their constitutional right.) However, by the time these statements were made, there had already been a large forcible displacement of Bosnian Muslims from their homes and the Bosnian Serb leadership sought a peace deal on the basis of the large percentage of territory in BiH which they had already taken.⁹¹²³ (“Wrong: the Serbs didn’t take the “large percentage of territory”, that had it in control always, and it was known to the Chamber from the evidence that the Serbs kept telling about 65% of the territory that the Muslim fundamentalists can not include in their state! This is another arbitrary and a mean conclusion, since it was always agreed that the territorial issues had to be settled on the Conference, and that a “fait accompli” would not be accepted. It was well known to every mediator that the Serbs didn’t request even everything of their majority. There are a plethora of evidence that the Serb side kept from the beginning to the end of the crisis that the territorial matters would be resolved around the negotiating table. So, this is a wrong, and even mean inference, since it contradicts to a huge evidence to the contrary! Similarly, the Bosnian Serb leadership also suggested holding referenda in early 1993 to solve “controversial areas” but in reality by this time there were very few Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats who remained to vote.⁹¹²⁴ (Again, one of the #witness’s meditations built in his notes, as he admitted!# A very, very wrong inference. The inhabitants of the “controversial areas” would vote in the places of the temporary residence, as is the praxis even today in the whole BiH, that the people vote in BiH from all over the world, in an organised way. The same would be in the areas that were contested by any side, the votes would be counted for the areas of their original residence! A suggested referendum would be conveyed according to a rules acceptable to all the parties, otherwise, the areas would remain controversial!)

2754. In September 1992, the Accused continued to stress that their objective was to have a state and that its borders “towards the Muslims and Croats are to be thicker than our borders towards Serbia and Montenegro and the Serbian Krajina”.⁹¹²⁵ (In September 1992 there was the bloodiest war, and the Croats attacked the Serb Protected zones, and the Croatian regular Army was present in the battlefields in Bosnia! So what, this is not a crime, to have priorities in affiliation! It would be a lie if the Serbs said that the Muslims or Croats are going to be closer to them than the Serbs in Serbia!) When the President discussed maps of BiH and issues of population and division of territories this also caused a feeling of fear, anxiety, insecurity and uncertainty amongst people who “saw themselves living in the territory of another people or another nation”.⁹¹²⁶ (Now, the Chamber should better understand the Serb fears to leave Yugoslavia and live in a Muslim dominated state. But, the witness lied as if it was so much of fear from the President’s words, even more than from the shells, so that the family of the KDZ310 remained in the Serb territory all the time, although the witness deserted the VRS. But, anyway, how come that the Chamber takes note of those people’s fear, but not the fear of 1,5 million Serbs who were to live under the Muslim-Croat domination? But, the Tribunal doesn’t look sensitive for the Serbian fears, interests or even rights!?)

2755. On 30 October 1992, the Accused delivered a speech at the 21st Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly in which he described an artificial state in which we were forcefully held in an artificial creation that is Bosnia and Herzegovina together with our centuries-old foes. It all reminds me of the experiment in which a dog and cat are held in a box together against their will, or a bad marriage maintained by all sorts of forceful means. It transpired that a dog and cat can remain in the box together under only one condition, namely that they lose their natural characteristics and cease being a dog and a cat. We will remember that we could not be Serbs and live in such a box.⁹¹²⁷ (So what? The President characterised the relations, and didn’t jubilate for that, nor he created such a relations, but as a politician was obliged to be aware of it! Although this part of the speech falls into the range of an academic discussion, everything else is true. First, at the First session of AVNOJ there wasn’t envisaged that there would be any BiH. It had been proposed later. Second, the last 30 years before the war the Muslim nationalism was rapidly developing, and particularly the Serbs were under the surveillance. Many tens of thousands of the Serbs moved during these years towards Serbia or abroad. The Defence was prevented to depict what was the situation before the fundamentalists took power. It was nearly horrible, but wasn't involving the religion and the Shariya law.

2756. The President characterised the conflict in BiH as a “conflict among peoples” and stated that “Muslims cannot live with others. We must be clear on that. They couldn't live with the Hindu, who are as peaceful as sheep. [...] They couldn't live with the Greek on Cyprus, they couldn't live in the Lebanon with Arabs of the same blood, same language, but of a different faith. (The Chamber permanently questions the President's #academic discussions and assessments of the situation, as if the situation depended on the President's opinion or conduct!# For all of such “inferences” it could be commented just wit a “So what?” Here, again, the Chamber is selective in quating and judging the evidence. The President clearly associated the “inability” to live together with the Muslims in a same political and judicial system – with the fundamentalism as a new form of Islam, and it was associated so that it was a #crucial part of the sentence#, and without it, the sentence gets a completely different meaning. Let us see: P00012, p. 18:

questionable. As for the judicial system, this all shows that we cannot really live in the same political and judicial system as Mr KOLJEVIĆ says. Gentlemen, the moment the Muslims get hold of the fundamentalism, they cannot live anywhere, with nobody, in the same legal and political system.

This was a survey of the situation in the countries where the Muslims were in conflict with their fellow countrimen of a different religion. That was true, and the Serbs in BH realized that this kind of Islam came to Bosnia. This is a survey, was it wrong? So what? How this can incriminate the President?) There can be no discussion here [...] We are in power, and we should exercise that power”.⁹¹²⁸ (This words had nothing to do with the other ethnicities. It was a discussion about the inter-party discipline, see P938, p. 36:

But, we have to clear the issues at the party level. VUKIĆ, who is a member of the Main Board and Executive Committee cannot behave in this way. No party in the world would stand for that, to have people acting in contravention of your platform and to sabotage you at the moment when you are on the brink of achieving your goals. You can't do this, no party in the world would suffer for it.

I have to admit that I am partly to blame, because I've said, open the door partly to everyone, communists, non-communists, admit them into the party.

But, there had to be another criterion: admit communists into the party, but not so that they can implement the communist agenda, but to implement our agenda. And they are creeping up to the saddled horse to ride it in their direction again.

This a personal conflict. They want power. They want glory. They want money. They want the honour too. They want everything: honour, power, money – they want it all. And glory and everything else that goes with it.

I think that there's no reason for us to be ashamed of being in power in Krajina too. This party has won power in Krajina, The first day after the elections we said that the election campaign for the next elections (in four years) began then. Your actions now will determine how you fare in four years.

We are in power, and we should exercise that power for the good of the people.

We can and we must renounce everyone who refuses to work the way we have agreed. Brdo and all the rest. When Brdo appears somewhere, he's like a bomb, he blows up everything. Then he winks at him /as printed/ and I won't allow it, as a psychiatrist and as the party leader.

(Several deputies say, "Well, he's demanded that the Krajina deputies be dismissed for allegedly betraying him.")

He's crazy, he's not normal, Dr. KARADŽIĆ continues. He doesn't know what he can do and what he can't do.

(The sentence about the power is exclusively concerned with the authorities in Krajina, a party that won the elections 1990. This is a serious and grave abuse of the President's sentences dispersed throughout the documents, and chosen selectively and arbitrarily, in order to patchwork any mens rea in a criminal sense!) In this regard the President noted that there was nothing new, and that in the case of India and Pakistan there had been a "huge resettlement of the people" and the separation was "covered in blood".⁹¹²⁹

(This part is again misinterpreted, see P938, p.36:

Imagine the stupidity of it: the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina is basically a conflict among peoples. Just as it was the case between India and Pakistan, and that's nothing new, it resulted in a huge resettlement of the people.

Muslims cannot live with others. We must be clear on that. They couldn't live with the Hindu, who are as peaceful as sheep. That's the Indian religion. They are a peaceful people and yet they couldn't live with them. They couldn't live with the Greek on Cyprus, they couldn't live in the Lebanon with Arabs of the same blood, same language, but of a different faith.

Wrongly translated, the President said: "Imagine this idiotism: the conflict in Bosnia..." Ant the President characterised the conflict between Hindu and Pakistani as an idiotism that is now taking place in Bosnia. The President called it "an idiotism" to initiate a war in such a mixed country, and have a consequence in re-settling of population. Since it was "nothing new" the world lords should have known what will happen if they encourage a war in such a country!)

2757. At a gathering in January 1993 attended by UN personnel, the Accused emphasised that they could not live together anymore with the Bosnian Muslims, they would not allow the past to repeat itself, and that therefore the Bosnian Muslims would be transferred out of Bosnian Serb territory.⁹¹³⁰ (This witness shouldn't testify anything about a political issues, because #he didn't understand anything.# For instance, this issue of "transferring" Muslims and Serbs was a regular topic at every meeting with the UNPROFOR officials. But it was about a temporary release of the civilians to cross to their territory, to suffer as less as possible. The Chamber could remain itself of how many times it was the discussion with general Morillon, to facilitate transfer of the Serbs from Tuzla and Muslims from Srebrenica. The Serbs always tried to get the Sarajevo Serbs out of the City while the war was going on. Had it been meant a resettlement, this issue would be condemned in all and every single report of the UN. But it never happened that the political officials of the UN understood the transfer of civilians as a permanent removal! Many agreements reached among the sides under the auspice of the ICRC and UNHCR regulated this transfer!) The Bosnian Serb leaders who attended included Mladić, Krajišnik, and Plavšić, and they all agreed with what the Accused said in this regard.⁹¹³¹ They spoke about “ethnic cleansing” as something which was necessary.⁹¹³²

Another misunderstanding: the necessary was to let people move freely, it had nothing to do with the permanent status. Did this witness report to the UN in New York about it? Was he a part of any delegation? Who was a leader of it? Why the Chamber accepts a “third class evidence” and not establish what the political interlocutors with the President said about the subject? But, let us see what he said in his Statement, P01258, p. 5:

Again, I want to stress that the kind of meetings I held with the parties were military to military meetings. These meetings did not require Ms. Plavšić’s presence or decision- H e himself recognized that he didn’t have anything to do with the political leadership, but then he lied as if the President invited him to a meeting, which is an absurd:

I recall that when we met with Mr. Karadžić, it was in Pale. I recall that Dr. Karadžić asked for a meeting with me in Pale a few days after he returned from Belgrade. Mr. Krajišnik and Ms. Plavšić attended the meeting. We met in a small room in Pale at the SDS offices. At the beginning of the meeting, Karadžić introduced himself, welcomed me and expressed a willingness to co-operate. At that meeting Karadžić tried to discuss his boarder plan. This plan was the removal of Muslims from Serb territories and the Serbs from Muslim territories. I told him that this was not in our UN mandate and that his boarder plan was a new mission. I recall that he was coming back from the London conference. His boarder

Removal” of population? If true, that would be a world news No. 1.# and all the UN documents would contain it!# How possibly any chamber can accept this nebulous assertion? Why would the President invite him for a meeting? And how could he accept such an invitation without an approval of his superior? And had the President said what the witness claims, this would be immediately on the table of the witness’s superiors, and on the table of the mediators of Conference. Obviously, he was listening to some other meeting, because he mistakenly understood the issue of the monitoring of the heavy weaponry: to put his heavy guns under the control of the UN. He said no. His statement was clear. I showed him a copy of his statement at the London conference where he said he would put the heavy guns under the UN control. He said “no, not so.” We, the UN force, did not have

The issue wasn’t whether the heavy weaponry would be under monitoring of the UN, because the Serbs wanted it, but the #Serbs never committed themselves to have a UN control of the weaponry#. Anyway, any chamber would clarify such an obscure assertion, which contradicts to everything the Chamber had seen on the subject. Here is what was discussed in Geneve on this subject, D4765, p.40:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

I told Boyer: “If Vance wants the military document to succeed, let him erase the word “control”.

Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ:

It says “monitoring” everywhere. This paper says “control measures”, but “declaration monitoring...”, “declaration of heavy weapons” is used throughout; “once located, under monitoring, to ensure...” Only that verb is used, not other ones. That is Annex 4.

This is the evidence that Razek misunderstood everything, and that he couldn’t be invited by the President on any meeting.

2758. In January 1993, at a meeting attended by Bosnian Serb and Serbian leaders, Vladislav Jovanović spoke about the importance of ensuring the territory they got was “nationally homogeneous as soon as possible”.⁹¹³³ Jovanović stated that this was not to be achieved by “ethnic cleansing” but through the “exchange of inhabitants”, and stressed that where life in BiH becomes impossible everybody rushes off to their “original provinces”.⁹¹³⁴ This was described by Jovanović as a “strategic goal to which we should aspire, and which should be achieved”.⁹¹³⁵ Jovanović stated that they had to be conscious that there was attention on Serbs and they were trying to catch them on “anything that even resembles ethnic cleansing or linking” and that they would have to look out for these traps and try to ‘catch’ them where they are weak”.⁹¹³⁶ (Although the quotations and contexts are erroneous, see P794, p.3: what is more important is to make the territory that we get, nationally homogeneous as soon as possible, but not by means of ethnic cleansing and so on. Ethnic cleansings are palm offs /as written/. So, we should use the peacetime process of the exchange of inhabitants, in other words migration and immigration, which will flow. What is important is that life in that future Bosnia becomes impossible and that everybody understands that individually, that they rush off to their original provinces. This is a the words “in other words migration and immigration, which will flow” drastically difer from what is suggested in the Judgement. Mr. Jovanovic pleaded for a peaceful processes according to the will of the population. Nothing criminal in the Jovanovic’s words, and particularly nothing that could be allocated to the President.)

2759. Jovanović also spoke of the need to ensure in an “indisputable way” a territorial link with Serbia and Montenegro.⁹¹³⁷ (So what?) Jovanović also cautioned against freedom of settlement which could result in the “mixing of the composition of the population to our disadvantage” and that what they had gained would “gradually erode”.⁹¹³⁸ (The Chamber neglects the fact that Mr. Jovanovic said that a territorial link has to be ensured in an indisputable way, which means to be acceptable for all the sides. Also, a greed for territories would result in a non-Serb dominance, which was a legitimate concern!)

2760. The Accused went on to say that “this which Jovanović is talking about, has already happened to a huge extent. There was fifty-fifty of us in Zvornik. The number of inhabitants of Zvornik is now the same, approximately 50,000, and they are all Serbs. More than 24,000 Serbs from Zenica and Central Bosnia have arrived and stopped in Zvornik.”⁹¹³⁹ The President also stated that there will not be a unitary BiH of the civic type or one in which the Muslim majority will come to the Jovanović acknowledged that this meeting took place but that when he spoke about developing an area which would be as “nationally homogeneous” as soon as possible, this was to be achieved by allowing people to freely move to other cantonal units if they did not want to live in a particular canton. The Chamber notes however, that Jovanović’s testimony was marked by indicators of evasiveness and bias. In addition, the Chamber considers that he had an interest in characterising his own words in a favourable light. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable with respect to the voluntary nature of the movement of population which was envisaged. But together with what the President said that the things are going in this direction by itself, corroborates what Jovanovic said, as Mr. Jovanovic himself confirmed while testifying, see T... ..

Such a high official why would he lie? Or be evasive?

Beside that, was the President responsible for the arriving 24.000 Serbs from Zenica. Yet, the President didn't accuse the Muslim side for having 24,000 Serbs escaped from Zenica, because this was understandable, because of fear! What the President said in many occasions neither was his wishes nor his intentions, but just the state of cause. The Chamber makes wrong inferences!)

2761. The Accused further stated that Serbs must fight for these territories to get a quality piece and said "we want some of our rich areas to belong to us".⁹¹⁴¹ (So what? This was an inter-ethnic war, and what is wrong in having the Serbian rich areas to belong to the Serb Republic?) The Accused also said that the Neretva was disputable and that they could live without it, but that they could not give up Podrinje and Posavina.⁹¹⁴² So what? This was a discussion about what was going to be claimed for on the conferences. Let us see how the dialogue was going on, P6164, p.65:

No, these borders will be great once we make some small corrections. What is the percentage of the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina that is within these borders?
Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Approximately 40%.
Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ:

That is going to be increased to over 50% because there is 20% that is disputable.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Posavina and Podrinje are disputable.

Neretva is disputable but we can live without Neretva. However, we cannot live without Podrinje and Posavina. Without them we have no chance of establishing the state and integrating in the future. There are several problems. If they allow us to amend the paper so that it does not prevent us from achieving something, we can talk about it.

(Th ere is no any doubt that this pertained to the ongoing Geneva Peace Conference, and had nothing to do with any military matters, or any use of force. The issue was whether to sign the peace paper, or to seek for more changes! Irrelevant, and can not be used against the President, because the UN-EC mediators proposed a territorial arrangement tyat was discussed among the Serbs! But, whatever the Serbs say, it is a sort of crime!) Further, the President agreed with Slobodan Milošević and Kontić that they could not invoke the democratic principle if they abandoned the "ethnic criterion".⁹¹⁴³ (So what???) The President said that they would gladly exchange prisoners but would no longer make unilateral releases.⁹¹⁴⁴ (So what? Should the Serbs continue to release prisoners unilateraly, while the Serbs imprisoned in the Muslim camps to stay there?) Slobodan Milošević also expressed the view that had there not been the war, the changes on the ethnical basis would not have taken place, but that now they had the changes based on the ethnical principle.⁹¹⁴⁵ (#Nothing criminal is in this considerations of the situation and academic discussions!#. For heaven's sake, why this academic discussion is important to this Chamber? Does it mean that anything could be good to charge a Serb?)

2762. Krajišnik said that what was important was not how big the territory was but the “quality of that territory” and that they had to seriously consider the issue of maps.⁹¹⁴⁶ (So what? Krajišnik, as the President, pleaded for a moderate attitude towards the territorial claims!) Krajišnik also stated that they had to “solve one part at a time – something through politics, something else through migration, and some things through settlement”.⁹¹⁴⁷ (The same pertains to Mr. Krajišnik’s words: #all of it was a preparation for the Geneva Conference#. And why the #Chamber incriminate the political talks and the legitimate claims that were to be posed as a negotiating position?# What does it mean? The negotiations were organised and mediated by the same United Nations which founded this Tribunal, and does it mean that the UN are under the suspicion too?) He also emphasised that the continuity of the territory which they had was very important to allow for the unification of Serb territory in the RS and also spoke in favour of connection with their motherlands in Serbia and Montenegro.⁹¹⁴⁸ (So what? #This attitude was communicated to the mediators as a condition to accept the peace agreement. How it is forbidden?#) Koljević stated that they would have to “develop the activity of settlement homogenisation” while there was still time.⁹¹⁴⁹ (At that moment there were more Serb refugees than the Muslim and Croat together. So, professor Koljević didn’t have any hope that these Serbs would ever return to their homes, and thus suggested to have settled them. But, all of that was a preparation for the Conference. What is to be objected, let alone incriminated in it?)

2762. In 1993, Velibor Ostojić also referred to their goal of “ethnic – geographical continuity of Serb population” and that they were “building new demographic politics for the RS” and the need to have Serbs settle in areas which they held.⁹¹⁵⁰ Ostojić was responsible for the Commission for Refugees and Humanitarian Aid which organised this settlement of Serbs and did not provide for the return of Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.⁹¹⁵¹ Ostojić was the Minister of Information and was trusted by, and had direct contact with, the President.⁹¹⁵² So what? #Words of others#! The Chamber finds that Vladimir’s Lukić’s testimony with respect to this issue was marked by evasiveness and indicators of insincerity particularly when confronted with the speeches made by Ostojić which suggested that the Bosnian Serb policy on refugees was connected with its goal of achieving ethnic geographic continuity of the Serb population and did not make provision for the return of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence in this regard to be reliable.

Mister OSTOJIĆ :

Mister President, Your Excellency, deputies of the president, members of the parliament and guests. I will also mention only the things that are not in the report, taking your time into consideration I am mentioning that I was leading the committee as a minister without portfolio. We were aiming to achieve our goal, which was ethnical - geographical continuity of Serb population, while accommodating the refugees, and actually we were building new demographic politics for the RS. With this aim, we had two tasks. Those are to as soon as possible shelter and accommodate displaced persons and to find them jobs so that the economical consolidation and later on political integration of their lives in the area would move on. This geographical continuity was accomplished in several points that were prioritised by a Government and in its program. Those points are Stara Hercegovina, Birač and Posavina which could be connected and become integral territory of Serb nation, first of all I think of Hercegovina, Romanija, Krajina and Semberija. In this process, which is completed now, I did not mention in the report, but I can say it, having in mind that all this is for documenting only, in accordance with the plan for this year, from the beginning of March until now approximately 57 thousands of people were accommodated in this area. SRJ has probably accommodated 130-140 thousands of people. People are Therefore, so far, so good. Mr. Ostojic reported that Yugoslavia is accepting three times more Serb refugees, while the RS is accommodating much less, and exclusively in the traditionally Serb areas. The Serbs held those areas for a centuries, and there was nothing illegal to accommodate the Serb refugees, expelled from their homes in the Muslim/Croat areas. Further: P01388, p. 168

Velibor OSTOJIĆ:

Mr. Chairman, gentlemen members, although the issue of the refugees has been raised many times here, I want to point out the complexity of this problem that has to be prioritised. I want to inform the members of Parliament in order to clarify one thing first. This is not the Ministry, I am actually managing the commission for planning and co-ordination of work of the institutions that are working on the accommodation and shelter for the refugees. I took over this job in the end of January last year, and almost 2/3 of the population that had migrated, had already been accommodated somewhere, in a quite unorganised and chaotic way. The refugee centres are in the jurisdiction of the Commission for Refugees and Humanitarian Aid. The government suggested to the Commission where to establish the refugee centres. We suggested Sokolac, Lopare, and Prijedor. First we suggested Ključ and then exists in the field. I am trying not to present ugly events and ugly things that the refugees are doing and which the displaced and migrated Serbian population is doing, because I do not want to speak in this way about my people. But many individuals and groups made a business out of their refugee status. And it is true that there are groups of refugees who are walking around like nomads from town, from municipality to municipality, usurping properties, looting them, selling them etc.

First, the President not greeted, means he wasn't present. Second, Ostojic nowhere mentioned Muslim/Croat return. See p. 169

The more honest self-criticism is not possible. The Serb refugees were a big burden for the local and central authorities, as well as, the most probably, for the local Muslims and Croats, but all against the will and intentions of the authorities. But, let us see what Ostojic said further, p.168-69:

Government has put efforts and tried to organise the administration and establish the full co-ordination of the municipalities regarding this issue. Mr. BRĐANIN pointed out those things that the municipalities were doing self-willingly. And now we will make the resolution but I think that without a decision and order to the municipalities, we probably will not be able to finish this job. But if it is centralised now, then probably we can continue working on its solution. But there is a limit in the financial

So, as usually, the Assembly gathers for making decisions, documents, and it is clear that the session was planned to adopt a resolution on this issue. #Is anything in this resolution unlawful, criminal, or even morally unacceptable?#

This process of settling Serbs was done with a view to filling a particular area so Bosnian Muslims did not have a place to return to.⁹¹⁵³ This was in contrast with statements made at sessions of the Bosnian Serb Government in March and May 1993 where they emphasised the need to create conditions for the return of refugees who had left the RS during the conflict.⁹¹⁵⁴ So, the speaker was criticising the “state and political leadership”, calling on them to “consider once again the issue and to find the option”... how possibly any reasonable chamber could neglect this criticism, and a separate and opposite opinion allocate to the authorities? Otherwise, the care of the refugees was an obligation, and the Serbs didn’t chase those Serbs from the central BiH, but somebody else. The authorities never adopted what this speaker proposed “to be considered again”.

2764. In April 1993, in discussions with international representatives, the President stated that he could not persuade Bosnian Serbs to remain in the Posavina and that they were asking for new land and territories.⁹¹⁵⁵ It seems that nothing from the Serb political life was innocent. The situation in Posavina was as a matter of fact the situation of the Province No. 3, according to the Vance-Owen plan. #How Karadzic could have been liable for the fact that the Serbs didn’t dare to stay in Posavina,# if it become the Province 3? This was not the President’s sentiment, or decision, it was a complaint of the Posavina Serbs. We have seen how the Serbs from Sarajevo left their centuries old homes and properties because it was assigned to the Federation. Otherwise, it is no more correct, and even decent to rely upon such a short notes of Okun, Mladic or anyone else, after Mr. Okun admitted that his notes could be red and understood differently, see, Okun, T1819-1820 A. That’s correct, yes. And your point -- the earlier point you make, that the readers of the note-books could draw different conclusions from them, is also correct. Mladić also spoke at this meeting and suggested that all sides sit down to resolve the problems.⁹¹⁵⁶ The President also explained why the proposals at the time were absolutely unacceptable to the Serbs and questioned whether they could set up a regime to identify areas where they had to withdraw from and areas where they would have to resettle Bosnian Serbs.⁹¹⁵⁷ In April 1993, Krajišnik also expressed his opposition to “any kind of joint state with the murderers of Serbian people, Muslims and Croats”.⁹¹⁵⁸ In August 1993, Krajišnik noted with respect to Banja Luka that the Muslims and Croats had asked for the municipality during negotiations, but he stressed that the Bosnian Serbs did not accept that “because we must have that territory clean”.⁹¹⁵⁹ (The Chamber is picking up a pieces of a parliamentary discussion about which part of the RS to leave to the other side. Obviously, both the discussion in the Assembly and Okun’s diary speak about the Conference, and the Assembly and leadership are trying to find out what to do with the people who are going to leave their areas that would belong to the other communities. This kind of “salade” and melange of sentences and* polemics are something that no reasonable chamber would put in a judgment. Of course, the Serbs were ready to facilitate the Muslims and Croats to form their municipalities in Banjaluka or elsewhere before the war broke out, even when the war started, but after such a long war (30 Sept. 93) there was no longer this readiness!

2765. The President also suggested that Krajina would “take on an appearance of a rotten apple” if their enemy was in Krajina.⁹¹⁶⁰ This kind of #abuse of materials from a free parliamentary discussions# is without precedents. This was a discussion on the Assembly session about the peace plan of Contact group. Here is what the President said: P01394, p. 12 immemorial until the genocide in the First and the Second World War. It is expected from us to give in for good some twenty bigger and smaller towns into the possession of our irreconcilable enemies and terminators. According to this plan, we should hand over Krupa on the Una River, Sanski Most, Kupres, Srbobran, that is former Donji Vakuf, Jajce, Doboje, Derventa, Brod, Odžak, Šamac, Brčko, Višegrad, Serbian Goražde, then Petrovo with entire Ozren, Ustiprača, Ustikolina, Borci, Zijeplje, and the entire Neretva Valley, Ripač, Kulen Vakuf, and to harm to a large extent, the territory of many of our municipalities: Prijedor, Novi Grad, that is, former Bosanski Novi, Teslić, Rogatica, Han Pijesak, Nevesinje, Modriča, Sokolac, and the others.

The Muslim territory, presently in several enclaves, would get its appearance, entirety and continuity, while the Serbian state, presently in continuity, would end up in enclaves. Serbian Krajina and Banja Luka Krajina would be separated from the other parts and turned into Nagorno-Karabakhs. Our Krajina is the nucleus of Republika Srpska; it is round as an apple and sound as an apple. With enemy’s pulling into Ključ and Jajce, Krajina would take on an appearance of a rotten apple, and in the extension of the war, or in a new war, the enemy would get an opportunity to cut off and separate Drvar Krajina from Banja Luka Krajina.

So, it was not, as the Chamber suggests, if the enemies are in Krajina, but if the parts of the territory deep in Krajina are given to the Muslim side’s constituent state. Nobody said that “the enemies” were those Muslims and Croats who lived with the Serbs in RS, and fought against the fundamentalist’s concept of Bosnia, but those who incited and waged the war against us past three years. And why the President was against this part of the Contact Group plan, can be seen just from the next para:

We would have to create conditions for humane relocation of about 400,000 Serbs from the territories which we would have to abandon in order to avoid chaos, breaking of lines, massacre and commotion. Less important, but not an unimportant issue is how would these Serbs make a living and where would they live. Or is it perhaps planned that all of them, all other Serbs from the Republika Srpska and the Republic of Serbian Krajina, escape to Serbia, creating thus chaos and commotion so that Serbia could be more easily finished? However, even without these gloomy predictions, let’s also think about the mildest implications of this plan, about the fact that we should reclaim so many territories and towns, once for all time.

suitable, and not to answer to anyone but to their voters. That is how it is in all the democratic countries! And others, while fighting by words for another look of a peace plan are just presenting their fears and concerns. This #Judgment is relying on a several foundation on which no judgment should be founded, such as the discussions of parliamentaries, a short handwritten crippled notes of journalists or a side negotiators, like Okun, or a note takers and a fifth row note taking clerks, like Harland and Banbury, or a dishonest journalists like Van Linden and other dishonest journalists who participated in a satanisation of the Serb people, or a “free thinkers” who were there accidentally and had their own “understanding of the situation”.# This never happened so far in the human history, not even in the Hitler’s courts, where Georgy Dimitrov was acquitted!) Similarly the Accused spoke about a “green stain” which had appeared on maps given that there were proposals for portions of territory to be allocated to Bosnian Muslims and that the Serbs in that area would not allow that to happen.⁹¹⁶¹ (So what? This was a matter of negotiations, and only Serbs were supposed to give the concessions. How possibly that could be a subject of this litigation? Why the Chamber is attempting to problematize and resolve the negotiations so much time after it ended? The existence of such an island-like enclaves of territory was possible before the war, because it would be in a peaceful environment, but after the Muslim side rejected all the Serb peaceful proposals, there was no more such a possibility, particularly since many Serb enclaves in the Muslim-Croat territory hadn’t been given the same opportunity! Otherwise, the local Muslims would have their administration, but within the Republic of Srpska, which was not offered to the Serbs in Muslim territory!)

2766. At the 37th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 10 January 1994, Mladić addressed the assembly on the issue of lack of resources and material support for the VRS.⁹¹⁶² He went on to describe how the Bosnian Serbs had an historical chance to create an “all Serbian state” with as little enemies as possible and that the Muslims and the Croats represented a danger.⁹¹⁶³ He thus recommended to keep on fighting as the enemy the Bosnian Serbs were facing was getting stronger and stated: “They started the war at first, they are heading this war, but that is not my concern. My concern is not that they will create the state. My concern is to have them vanish completely.”⁹¹⁶⁴ (The reference to the Serb state without too many enemies must be understood in the light of the forming of the first Yugoslavia. Namely, the Serbs had been offered by the Western allies to form the Serb state composed of the traditional Serebian territories. The Serbian Government pleaded for the liberation of all the South Slaves. By the end of the WWI the Allies wanted Serbia to make a big state, including all the South Slave countries. This caused an enormous number of casualties during WWII, 95% of which were killed by the Croats and Muslims. #Words of others#! But, what does it mean what somebody speaks, if it is not taken into a document and realised. A military “bravado” is expected from a military people, but it was not decisive or of any influence on the political process.)

2767. At the same session, Krajišnik stated that “the biggest tragedy would be if the Muslims accepted to live with us now. [...] That is the only thing I would never accept, and I would rather accept that we get a smaller percentage of the territory than it is the case now, provided that we remain separated from the Muslims and that we have our country”.⁹¹⁶⁵ (This is a political speech aimed to persuade some representatives to accept some of the territorial solutions. Anyway, why Mr. Krajišnik would be obliged to live with the Muslims, since they have changed their political views approaching the Fundamentalism?) The main point in the Krajišnik's statement was "a smaller percentage of the territory than it is the case now" and it was the part of persuasion of the Assembly to accept that some Serb territories would belong to the Muslim-Croat Federation!) He also spoke about their goal being "to separate from the Croats and Muslims forever".⁹¹⁶⁶ Krajišnik continued to make similar statements and by 1995 spoke about their first Strategic Goal being to separate from the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.⁹¹⁶⁷ (If anything what the Croatia and the Muslims in BiH intended and did was legitimate, the Serb decisiveness not to live in such a states is completely legitimate. And it was never about not to live with the Muslims, but not to live under their authority. They were very welcome to stay in Yugoslavia, but they didn't want to. For the same reason, nobody was entitled to force the Serbs to live in a new state that was to be formed against their will and their interests. And all the international documents, and all the peace conferences recognized these Serb objectives as legitimate, and finally it was sanctioned in the Dayton Agreement!)

2768. At the same Bosnian Serb Assembly session on 10 January 1994, the Accused noted that they were now a "state and what we hold is 100% ours".⁹¹⁶⁸ The President also acknowledged that "[i]f we are going to divorce from the Muslims, we must give them something. It is impossible to make the Muslims vanish, and that we keep the entire territory".⁹¹⁶⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The Accused also noted that they could not declare a ban on the return of refugees according to international law and that in principle they would say that all refugees could return on a reciprocal basis.⁹¹⁷⁰ (#That was not "on a reciprocal basis", it was said that it has to be a comprehensive process, see in Serbian#:

се вратити избјеглице, у принципу све избјеглице се могу вратити, али ја сам додао једну реченицу: "И то мора да буде свеукупан процес".

. All other quoted by the Chamber is #EXCULPATORY#!!! That was a #political speech and persuasion of the MPs to be more flexible on the territorial issues of the peace plan#. But, the entire paragraph is an illustration of what and how the Chamber erred, by using the Assembly discussions as a deeds and as a facts. The President was explaining to the MPs, and fighting in favour of a peace through a territorial generosity towards the Muslims, which should be in his favour before any court, not against him. A reciprocity is the most legal and legitimate. Let us see what he said: P01385, p. 107

I beg you, I know what I am talking about, I know what actions are ongoing and I know how difficult their execution is. Do not count on finishing the enemy off, it rarely happens in local wars. You saw Palestine and Israel, you saw Iraq and Iran, there is no winner there. Local wars are long and exhausting and there is no winner. We can consider ourselves as winners after occupying this land, since the land is 100% Serbian now. Therefore, even if we come down to around 50 per cent, we should be more than happy and satisfied, it is Dušan's empire. If we are not happy

(Wrong translation, it is not "occupying this land" but rather "pressing" or "keeping" so much territory, and continued to advise that the Serbs could return a half of it, and still be happy with the rest. So, the President was advising a halt in fighting, and in the ambitions it terms of territories or in terms of a final victory. Further, the President was persuading the MPs that even 50% of what the Serbs controlled would be sufficient for the sake of peace. See further: at the same session, P01385, p. 109, the President was fighting against the further waging war:

Today we must agree whether we will sign it if those 33,3% remains the percentage required, considering the fact that we saved the majority of our territory. It is true what Mr VJEŠTICA said, not to accept it, but to force them to cave in. But in that case, it must be the decision of this Assembly. I have no power to make such a decision and neither do Mr KRAJIŠNIK, KOLJEVIĆ, or BUHA, and all those who participate in our negotiations. It is a tremendous and far-reaching decision. It means shedding blood until one of us is destroyed. The balance of forces in Yugoslavia, i.e., on the battlefield is in our favour to some extent - not the manpower but the war

If the Chamber didn't learn anything about the President from this speech, then there is no chance for any international justice. The President said that "we saved the majority of our territory." Means, not all of it, but the majority of the Serb traditional territories, not the Muslim, or Croat territories. The President opposed the MP's opinion to "force – the Muslims – to cave in", advocating non-victory, a "win-win" solution! Let us see further: P01385, p. 112:

It is a bit wider in the mountain area. Believe me, we cannot get separated, and we cannot end the war, and we cannot have the sanctions lifted unless we give those 33,3% of the territory to those unfortunate Muslims. Yet, the document reads that it can be less than that, and especially in Sarajevo it can be different, but it is important to fulfil this so that we could have the sanctions lifted and get the peace. I guarantee to you that it is not possible to preserve 70% of the territory, when you have the entire world against you, it is surely impossible.

(#Flexibility on territorial issues presented as "ethnic homogenisation#! So, the #President continued to fight for a flexibility on the territorial issues#. And the sentence about the "some territory" in the Central Bosnia that the Serbs and Croats must find for the Muslims was a task given by the Co-Chairmen of the Conference, so that the Muslim community has at least one third of the BH territory. (see comment on para 2750) But, the Chamber takes it against the President, as seen in para 2750.

2769. In April 1994, Mladić was quoted as encouraging VRS operations because "[t]he Turks must disappear from these areas".⁹¹⁷¹ Michael Rose testified that he and other international representatives had thought that the objective of the combat operations in Goradže was to move the Bosnian Muslims out of the right bank of the town and therefore he suspected the reference in the order to "[t]he Turks must disappear from these areas" to mean just that.⁹¹⁷² However, all know that the Serbs consider the Muslims to be Serbs of the Muslim religion. Only those who fight against the Serbs were called the Turks, and it was through the centuries. The same is with Ustashas and Croats. Those Croats who do not kill the Serbs are merely Croats, other who kill the Serbs, Jews and Gipsies are Ustashas. If Mladic said "Turks", he as any other Serb, meant "armed Muslims". But, the President never used a real derogatory name for the Muslims as "balijas", and very rarely the Turks, which the Muslims preferred to be called for a centuries, and recently, Reis Cerić said in Rogatica, on a public meeting, that the Muslims and Turks were one, not two! If the Defence knew that it will be important, it would tender this evidence.)

2770. In July 1994, the aCCUSED in an address before the Bosnian Serb Assembly, spoke about achieving our primary strategic aim, which is to get rid of the enemies in our house, the Croats and Muslims, and not to be in the same state with them any more. Every divorce has a price, we have to give something up, but we are the winners, we have a majority of the territory now, not only under our control, but also in our ownership.⁹¹⁷³ #Political speech, because the President persuaded the Assembly to give back territories, and not to cry for Yugoslavia#, which was “our common home”, not the Republic of Srpska. But, again, this was a #parliamentary discussion, and the President was under a criticism for being too flexible#. Let us see the entire paragraph, P01394, p.

Dr. KARADŽIĆ:

I fully accept the part of the criticism regarding the negotiating team. We do not have our own proposal, we do not have a proposal because it is impossible to cut off one's finger, or to say: “I want to cut off this finger” and do it in advance, if it is possible to keep the whole hand. Enormous areas in the former BH are now Serbian or used to be sacred Serbian land, and it is very difficult for us to say: “We offer you this map.” I made some experiments to mislead this Contact Group a bit and to show them what we shall not give up, so I showed them where we could perhaps permit them to impose some map on us. We also said, half joking and half seriously, that if it is 49% of everything, 49% of municipal seats, resources, etc., let's talk then and agree to this proportion. According to the Owen-Stoltenberg plan, we had 53 municipal seats and three halves of towns, that is 56 out of 109 municipalities, we had 56 at the time and that was a map in the creation of which we and the Croats had the leading roles, so that if something were to be imposed on us, it should be like that. We know for sure that we have to give something up, that is clear beyond a shadow of a doubt, if we wish to achieve our primary strategic aim, which is to get rid of the enemies in our house, the Croats and Muslims, and not to be in the same state with them any more. Every divorce has a price, we have to give something up, but we are the winners, we have a majority of the territory now, not only under our control, but also in our ownership, and if the proportion is exactly 49%, then it is the winners who should choose which 49%, although we would find it hard to say, every mountain is dear to us, every mountain is our history and cemetery and church, and so on, but it would be much easier for us to keep what is important, our towns and our holy places, our traditional mountains, such as Kozara, Grmeč, Ozren, etc. That is why we find it

So, if the Serbs wanted to “divorce”, they had to sacrifice some dear territories out of a great amount of what is their ownership and under their control, which is guaranteed by every international convention.)

2771. In August 1994, in video footage taken of Mladić and Milan Lešić, the founder of a Canadian charitable organisation called “Serbian Humanitarian Public Organisation”,⁹¹⁷⁴ in a car as they drove through Han Pijesak and Crna Rijeka, Mladić boasted that he “kicked the hell out of the Turks [...] who gives a fuck about them!” and commented that Lešić should film what they had done to the Turks and pointed to abandoned Bosnian Muslim houses.⁹¹⁷⁵ (What does it have to do with the President. A military are boasting frequently, how come it is important to the Chamber, particularly against this Accuse? Mladic didn't want the war, he didn't initiate it, that was the Muslim side, and Mladic used a #military language, which was without any relevance!#)

2772. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in November 1994, the President gave a speech in which he explained that “[w]e have created new realities” and that Zvornik used to be 60% Muslim but that Bosnian Serbs from Zenica arrived, occupied Kozluk and the Bosnian Muslims left.⁹¹⁷⁶ He went on to say that they were requesting Zvornik “which comes out of a new reality. Zvornik according to this right”.⁹¹⁷⁷ (#This “syntagma” the “new realities” was imported by the International community as an explanation for their support for a forceful destruction of Yugoslavia, saying: “Yes, you may be right, but now we have a new realities” Before the war, and without the war, Zvornik would be a unique city with the two ethnic municipalities. Since the Serbs didn’t want the war, the Muslims pursued the war, and the new realities got created. Within these new realities is the one that there was no Serbs anywhere in the Central Bosnia. But, what does it mean, if the President from time to time qualifies the situation that occurred? It doesn’t mean it was his will, or his plan, or he was happy about it.) At this same session, Krajišnik stated that “the primary strategic goal of our people and this Parliament is partition and separation from Croats and Muslims. And the partition can only be made if they will have their state while we have our own. How big these states will be is another issue. We cannot get entire Bosnia”.⁹¹⁷⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#! It was the cause of the war, because the Muslims wanted the entire Bosnia only for themselves. Krajisnik was preparing the MP-s to give back some territories, it is so obvious. But all of this is about the poilitics of only one side in the political process, as well as in the conflict. This is what Mr. Krajisnik said, P01304, p. 262:

The third, I saw that the Members of Parliament applauded to you when you said that we wanted whole Bosnia. I would like somebody to explain to me how are we going to do it.

If somebody believes that we can conquer whole Bosnia by expelling and killing the Muslims, that is just one variant.

The other variant is to stay with them after they capitulate. And the third is something which I do not understand, those are not our strategic goals...is that some new version? I am not trying to be sarcastic but I do not understand it. Gentlemen, the primary strategic goal of our people and this Parliament is partition and separation from Croats and Muslims. And the partition can only be made if they will have their state while we will have our own. How big these states will be is another issue. We cannot get entire Bosnia. I know what General TOLIMIR is saying. He is saying that we have to go on and fight probably until either they or we win this war. There are different kinds of victory but (#EXCULPATORY#!!! This is now quite clear that Mr. Krajisnik was advocating the peace and flexibility towards the Muslims and Croats in the territorial terms. How possibly any chamber could read this speech so selectively? But, the translation of this document is not correct. Mr. Krajisnik didn’t use the word “partition” but “division”, “separation” and a same for the Muslims and Croats, to have their own states. Only in a political court, which would try to preserve some ideology this could be noticed by a chamber. But, when noticed, it only can be inferred in favour to the President and his associates!) The President in 1995 confirmed this objective when he stated that if they were able to secure the territory they decided on and if it was “nearly 100% Serbian”, they would be great victors and would have realised their ultimate dream, a Serbian State west of the Drina.⁹¹⁷⁹ But, again, the Chamber is selective! What motivated the Bosnian Muslims to force a unilateral secession, if not their “ultimate dream” to have their own state, which would be legitimate if they didn’t want the Serb and Croat territories in their state. We know that the Prosecution made a selective persecution, but the court as a whole do it. Let us se #what the President said about that what the Chamber “noticed” as a felony: P01417, p. 59#:

We lost some Serbian areas, but it would have been better if some municipalities where the Muslims accounted for 70% and the Serbs for 30% of the population, it would have been better if they had belonged to them and that those in which the Serbs accounted for 90% belonged to us, but from the point of view of state-building, compactness, communication, future, it may not be better. It is better for our generation emotionally, but believe me, much more of us are refugees than it seems. I had a most beautiful apartment, Professor KOLJEVIĆ knows. When I moved

We should realise that many people have lost everything. We will take back everything we can. If we offer something in the east in exchange for something in the west and the Muslims do not accept it, that is what the Croats should give back to us, under international pressure, that after the NATO bombing we are being forced to accept this plan, when we accept it, which does not mean that we can go to a referendum, we must go to a referendum, but I am confident that a solution accepted by us will also be accepted by the people, because we are in great difficulty, but it seems to me that we have a chance to make a way out for the future generations, to say, all right, we will accept the solution, but in unequal circumstances and so on.

The entire speech is a sort of mourning for the traditional Serb territories that had been lost, but the President was trying to heal those wounds, and the Chamber shouldn't take some parts of it to present it as the President's political will, or program, or intention for a future doings. And now, the “critical sentence of the President:

certainly raise a lot of objections and we, too, will raise a lot of objection. As someone said, if the State, Boro SENDIĆ spoke well at a meeting of the Banjaluka Municipal Committee, he spoke like PAŠIĆ, we are moaning, but if it is 49% and if we mostly decide what 49%, that is nearly 26,000 square kilometres, Montenegro, four times richer than Montenegro, if it is nearly 100% Serbian, we are still great victors, we will have realised the dream of all dreams, a Serbian State west of the Drina. We had to go

(So, a mere political speech aimed to mitigate the resistance of the MPs against the peace plan, according to which a many traditionally Serb territories had to be handed over to the Muslims, or Croats.)

The President also acknowledged that they had undertaken military operations to expand the territory but that after the Bosnian Muslims had been packed into small areas, “thus achieving their concentration”, there was not much more that could be done.⁹¹⁸⁰ (How this is relevant? The President described what happened on the battlefield, in order to mitigate any militant wish for a total victory. How possibly this can prove any guilt of the President?)

2773. At a meeting of the Supreme Command on 31 March 1995, the President made reference to the danger posed by Bosnian Muslims who remained in their territory and stated that “Muslims remaining there in any way is disastrous for us”, and that their policy had been the “separation of peoples, of cultures, of worlds”, based on the idea that “birds of a feather flock together”.⁹¹⁸¹ (It was in the occasion of the disclosure of the complicity in BL and Teslic – Tesanj zone, where the Muslim military units were invited to attack, and once they attack, they will be helped by the domestic Muslims, see the pasted part below!). He also spoke about turning a blind eye to private agencies and arrangements through which Bosnian Muslims left for western Europe because in those situations “no one can accuse us”, whereas if a state institution was involved they would be President of “ethnic cleansing”.⁹¹⁸² Krajišnik stressed that freedom of movement was allowed in order to pull Serbs out of Muslim territory and “if the Muslims want to go from our territory, then we enable them to leave our area, without coercion, because we do not have the right to do that, nor should anyone take on himself their ethnic cleansing, but there would be no crying if they left from here”.⁹¹⁸³ The #picking up only one sentence is not correct##. There was a long argumentation between the GHQ od the VRS and the Supreme Command about many things. But only one of it was about the able bodied Muslims in our territory, who are prevented to leave. Karadzic and the civilian authorities were in favour to allowe them to go to the other countries. The Army people opposed it, because they may become a spies, or return and fight against us. On the ather side, those able bodied Muslims, deprived from the freedom to leave, are rady to meet their troops. Here is why it was a subject: P03149, p. 65

Dr. KARADŽIĆ:

Let me first say something. This is what it is. Srđa SRDIĆ keeps pestering us that this should be done by his CK /Red Cross/, that state agencies etc. should do it. Muslims remaining there in any way is disastrous for us. We know exactly their plan which MURATOVIĆ communicated to President KRAJIŠNIK, He said that this eastern part was Serbia, but west from Brčko you will never get, what do you mean we won't. Just what I say. We will come to Ključ and to Sanski Most, there are 300 thousand of us there, there are 8 thousand of us in Prijedor, 18 thousand in Banja Luka, 5 thousand in Teslić, this many here, that many there, in five years Krajina will be ours. It is the standpoint of our policy, there has been a separation of peoples, of cultures, of worlds, /?birds of a feather flock together/, what Vojkan did is not allowed, for Vojkan too worked illegally, he was excluded from the State Commission, etc. What do private agencies do, they find, probably for big money, they secure him a foreign visa and secure him a passport to travel to that foreign country. What happens now, if that were being done by a state institution, we would be accused of ethnic cleansing. A private arrangement between a Muslim and a private firm is absolutely none of our business, absolutely none of our business, and of the 100 Muslims who go to Europe only ten will come back, there is no patriotism in them, they are simply looking to take to their heels. He would ask to go to Travnik if he felt like fighting, but he does not feel like fighting. He got a visa for a third country. We told those Croats /?why/ don't you let them pass, why don't you let them go, they will scatter all around the world and that is that. Five thousand Muslims by the line in Teslić are waiting for an attack to join in and to slaughter our people. Five thousand, of whom 1000 to 1500 are Muslims fit for combat, that is why we had to say that they should be pulled in the depth to guard them like civilians lest they come to harm, because we expect that an attack on Teslić can take place and we asked, someone requested from the GŠ, someone asked where labour brigades /?details/ were necessary, put them to work, they too have to work.

At the same time we had the whole entirely Muslim units in the VRS, but those who lived in the different cities, not working nor doing any civil obligation, were angry for being prevented to leave. And this is a high risk for my country. The Chamber easily forget that we were in the middle of the bloodiest war, were civilians suffered a lot. The Muslims returning in Bijeljina on the apeal of the President, got the message from their fellow Muslims: “just come, not need to carry weapon, we have it. See P1478, p.40

- In Bijeljina the Muslims are settling
(Message intercepted: No checks, weapons arriving you don't need to) –

So, the issue was whether to allow the Muslim able bodied men to leave to the third countries until the war is over, so not to have them joining the Muslim Army! And they could have joined the ABiH either if the Serbs allowed them to move to the Central Bosnia, which they had a right to do, or to allow them to go to the third countries, from which only 10% of them may return and join the Army! These concerns are justified and appear as a military and security necessity! The Chamber should have demanded that the Prosecution prove that some moves were mean and criminal, and not a military or security necessity!)

(b) Territorial claims and control

2774. On 23 December 1991, the President spoke about the plebiscite which had been conducted and stated that in principle, even if Serbs constituted only 5% of the population, “everywhere where Serbs live and where they have voted against secession, or to remain in Yugoslavia, no one can break away there. In other words, there remain only five municipalities that could separate from Yugoslavia”.⁹¹⁸⁴ In a conversation with Koljević in December 1991, the President stated that there was great media interest in whether the Serbs wanted war but they had said that “we want war by no means” and that “we have no aims, we don’t want to take what belongs to someone else”; “we just don’t want them to take ours”.⁹¹⁸⁵ (The example about 5% was an illustration of the “constitutivity” i.e. if one community is a constituent part of society, it was not important how numerous it was, if the community had a “veto right” it had it no matter how numerous was it. Of course, as any hyperbola, it was not in a literal sense of words, but it is not serious of the Chamber to put it in the Judgment. As the Chamber knows, the Serbs made a concession and accepted the possibility of the BiH independence, with some safeguards for the Serb community!)

2775. In February 1992, Krajišnik suggested that the Serbian people had two options, to either fight by political means or to “break off the talks and go for what we have done over the centuries: win our own territories by force”.⁹¹⁸⁶ In this regard, Krajišnik said “[y]ou know what our profession has always been – to wage war”.⁹¹⁸⁷ (#Jokes! Sayings! Is the Chamber really serious?# What is the third way? There is no a third way, but only a political means, and if it is denied by the force, the only way is securing the rights by resistance to the force implemented!)

2776. In March 1992, Krajišnik also stated that “[s]ince municipality borders may be adjusted, we have already made some adjustments and we plan to include all parts that will be Serbian territory in our municipalities, and what remains to be discussed, the discussion will be about where it is going to be, where are we going to put our lines” and that for strategic reasons “we could start implementing what we have agreed upon, the ethnic division on the ground. That we start determining the territory”⁹¹⁸⁸ (#In context of Conference, legal, obligatory, agreed#! This is a worse and more cunning than it was in the Indictment. It is proven that in March 92 the Conference on BiH was in a final phase and what could we do with the municipality boundaries unless it was agreed? This is when nobody thought that there would be any war. How this can be incriminated? There was a constitutional right of inhabitants of any settled place to reconsider where, to which municipality it wanted to belong, and to change it’s affiliation. If there is an accord on the issue, a referendum is not necessary, but if necessary, nobody could deny this right. Remember, the group of the Croatian villages Dobratci did it far before the war, and before this Krajišnik’s words, in the presence of the ECMM, concluding an agreement with their former municipality Skender Vakuf, see d3980, OF 17 December 91, far before the war:

DOBOJ

The team today visited the village of DOBRETIC, 4800 Croatian inhabitants, within the Serbian-dominated municipality of SKENDAR VAKUF.

Present at the meeting were:

████████████████████	Mayor
████████████████████	Chief of Police
████████████████████	Vice-Pres of Assembly
████████████████████	Pres of HDZ
████████████████████	Local community President

The President of HDZ and the president of the local community expressed the wish to leave the municipality of SKENDAR VAKUF and join either the municipalities of JAJCE or TRAVNIK, or be an independent municipality.

The Mayor and Assembly of SKANDER VAKUF have no objections against this plan.

The necessary procedures will be started up in the next months.

And this adjustment of the municipal boundaries was #the only instrument to achieve the ethnic homogeneity#, established and agreed among the sides before the war, when it was meant that there will be no any war. See Mr. Krajišnik’s sentence: “we could start implementing what we have agreed upon, the ethnic division on the ground. That we start determining the territory.” What the Chamber concluded, in March 1992, with whom the Serbs had agreed the ethnic division? Obviously, with the two other sides and in the framework of the Conference! This could only be #EXCULPATORY#! Krajišnik, in interviews, also spoke about the borders and territory held by the VRS but refuted the suggestion that they were holding territories populated by other national communities, although he acknowledged that it may have been the case with certain enclaves within their territory.⁹¹⁸⁹ (It is quite different to talk about the determination of territories in peace time and while the Conference was regulating the territorial arrangements, that to talk about the same during the fierce war. And what is criminal in it? The Serb side always kept saying that it was ready to return a substantial portion of the territory, see P941, but not before the peace is established!)

2777. In March 1992, the Accused explained that SerBiH existed, (Right, it was proclaimed on 9 January 1992, and Mr. Badinter recognised it when decided that BiH can not get independence as other republics, since there is the Republic of Srpska established, and the Serbs have a different attitude, see Opinion No. 4 of Badinter Commission!) that there would be no return to a unitary BiH and the only contest was of “quantity, there is a tug of war about who will have more. We won, we have drawn the rope to a certain point and we are not going to yield it back”⁹¹⁹⁰ (#No connection with the war, it was achieved at the Conference!#) The President stated that the goals of the Bosnian Serbs were being accomplished stage by stage.⁹¹⁹¹ (Here is

D90, p.43, what the President said:

Dr. Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

I will have to provide at least a digested response to what has been said so far.

What we have here is a process. And the mistake that Dobrivoje VIDIĆ is making has to do with the fact that an unfinished process should not be assessed as if it were a finished one. We have entered into this process with our strategic goals and we are accomplishing them stage by stage.

You remember what a hullabaloo was raised about a simple regionalisation. Today, IZETBEGOVIĆ did not appear at the press briefing. Instead, his people appeared pretending to be pleased and saying that all the Muslims should be happy and pleased and so on.

They were forced to accept that the BH was divisible, along national lines at that, and into three constituent units, instead of 15. In this stage we have succeeded in achieving our strategic goal. If the BH wishes to change its position towards Yugoslavia, then the same process should be applied to the BH too.

I assure you that there is no such Krajina which would be recognised by the world, but the world has already recognised Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina. We have preserved the Serbian people as a corpus, in its entirety, in the BH and detached it as an entity, and now it is a matter of quantity only. We have achieved the quality. This is what Europe recognises: Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina exists. The only remaining question is the one of quantity, there is a tug of war about who will have more. We won, we have drawn the rope to a certain point and we are not going to yield it back. There is no return to a unitary BH, we can go forward and obtain more power for the constituent units. So, we have led them into "the waters" into which we wanted to lead them. The fact that it is not up to here (showing at his neck) but only to the waist, that has to do with quantity.

And it will happen according to our political will, our right to self-determination and organisation, it will happen according to the actual conditions which are up to you to create.

What still remains /to be done/ is to have contacts with other republics and organisations, to establish new and maintain old contacts that suit us. Of course, in such a way that it would not harm the BH interests, and there should be some proof of that too.

We shall provide proof that it is in the interest of the BH that the Serbs maintain strong links with Serbia and the Croats with Croatia.

And this is a process, too.

That was almost the entire report about the achievement of the Carrington-Cutileiro Conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina. All achieved by political means, has nothing to do with the war, or with any crimes, all legal, legitimate and peaceful. Had the Muslim side stick to the Agreement, there wouldn't be any war, see D2981, Cutileiro's letter:

"Letters" part of The Economist, on 9-15 December, 1995.

In your article on Bosnia (November 25th), you say that in February 1992, before the war had started, Lord Carrington and I "drafted a constitution that would have turned the country into a confederation of Swiss-style cantons. The Muslims refused to accept what they considered to be the disintegration of Bosnia." Not quite.

After several rounds of talks our "principles for future constitutional arrangements for Bosnia and Hercegovina" were agreed by all three parties (Muslim, Serb and Croat) in Sarajevo on March 18th 1992 as the basis for future negotiations. These continued, maps and all, until the summer, when the Muslims reneged on the agreement. Had they not done so, the Bosnian question might have been settled earlier, with less loss of (mainly Muslim) life and land. To be fair, President Izetbegovic and his aides were encouraged to scupper that deal and to fight for a unitary Bosnian state by well-meaning outsiders who thought they knew better.

Jose Cutileiro,
Secretary-General,
Western European Union,
Brussels

The Accused also said that the Bosnian Muslims were forced to accept that BiH was divisible along national lines, (The same as the Serbs had been forced to leave Yugoslavia, and for the secession of BiH, which was a painful Serb concession for the peace and the Serb entity!) and that the Bosnian Serbs would "decide what our constituent unit is" based on "what conditions we establish on the ground".⁹¹⁹² (#All EXCULPATORY# Before the war, without any war, achieved at the Conference#! The Chamber should have already known what happened on 18 March 1992. The Chamber should not decide on any evidence unless put it back in the context, the time frame and a chain of causes-consequences! All what had been said in this paragraph was the President's report of what had been achieved on the Conference the very same day. The President recommended the Agreement to the Assembly with all his skilfulness. This was achieved before the war, without a war, pure politically and under the auspice of the EC, with the contribution of the UN. Once the Muslim/Croat coalition expressed their will to secede from Yugoslavia against the Serb will, they had to accept that BiH would not be a unitary state any more, and it was recognized by the Badinter commission, by the EC, by the UN. This is the crucial proof that the Serbs did have their rights for which they didn't have to wage a war. A war was needed to those who wanted to deny the Serbian rights.)

2778. On 23 April 1992, Mandić was informed that Višegrad had been taken.⁹¹⁹³ Prior to this, there was a year of the Muslim terror over the Serbs in Visegrad. The dramatic development was broadcast on TV live. At a first moment, the Muslim terrorists had taken over Visegrad and expelled the Serbs out of the town. Then, they attacked the JNA too, and lost! How come both, the Prosecution and the Chamber is not interested in the "whole truth", i.e. in what really happened?) On 30 April 1992, the Bosnian Serb Government was informed about the situation in Foča and that Bosnian Serb authorities had control over "liberated areas".⁹¹⁹⁴ (The then there was a war lasting already four weeks. The Muslim/Croat war coalition started the war, what is illegitimate, in order to put the places under their own control? General Mladic still was the JNA officer, not the officer of the Republic of Srpska, because the VRS didn't exist at that time. Was it a crime of the President or any other official to know the outcome of the local skirmishes?)

2779. In meetings with international representatives in April 1992, the Accused showed maps on which the ethnic composition was marked, as was Bosnian Serb claimed or controlled territory; in total, this amounted to approximately 70% of BiH.⁹¹⁹⁵ This was consistent with earlier speeches by the Accused where he stated that it would be #impossible for Izetbegović to establish authority in 70% of the territory in BiH.⁹¹⁹⁶ (#Far before the war the Serbs settled and controlled 70% of the territory of BiH, which directly rebuts all the allegations and “findings” that the Serbs “took-over” the territory by force.# As of the elections 1990 the Serbs did have their legal and legitimate authorities on all of this 70% of the BiH territory. Some of the settled places and towns may have some Muslim majority, but the area was with the Serb majority. Also, many settled places in the Muslim-Croat areas had the Serb majority, but both of it was to be negotiated.) Many of the areas which the Bosnian Serbs claimed included municipalities along the Drina River and in the Posavina area which had a majority Bosnian Muslim population but later became Bosnian Serb controlled areas with very few Bosnian Muslims remaining.⁹¹⁹⁷ (This is erroneous consideration and conclusion. First of all, until that time there were a well known several maps of ethnic distribution, submitted by the sides in the talks and one submitted by Ambassador Cutileiro on behalf of the European Community. The witness (H. Okun) didn’t discover anything new, and couldn’t testify on the subject already considered at the Conference. Showing the pre-war ethnic map was an obligation before the Conference, which was a precondition for a territorial allocation to the agreed three states in BiH. Already in April 92 there was the war going on. This map didn’t deal with the municipality boundaries, but with the settled places, and that was why it looked like all Serbian. It is well known, and easy to check that the Serbs were living in the rural areas surrounding the urban cores. But, presenting the status quo didn’t mean that the Serbs demanded everything marked as a Serbian to be in the Serb unit. This is well known to the main envoys and negotiators, not to their note-takers!)

As far as it is concerned the Izetbegovic’s inability to establish his authority in 70% of the territory in BiH, well in advance he was told that he can not make a new state against the will and interests of the one of the three constituent nations, and that was recognized by the EC, and by the Badinter commission, and that was why we did have the Conference. A state can not be recognized if it doesn’t have people, territory within borders and efficient control on the entire territory. And a control can have only in democracy, if a vast majority of all of the three nations accept the state and its power. If anyone would find it other way, then it would be a new era in history. Why #everything concerning the Serbs is criminal before this Court?#) 2780. The Accused had previously spoken about territorial issues. For example in an intercepted conversation in September 1991, the Accused spoke about negotiations regarding territories and the plan to free Bosanska Krajina, Semberija and Doboj and said that Eastern Herzegovina and Romanija were “clean”.⁹¹⁹⁸ (It was #Drastic abuses! far before the war, before even the war in Croatia, when it was meant that there will be no any war, but only a political talks. So, there could not be any talks about “the plan to free Bosanska Krajina”#! Here is what was it about: there was the regionalisation going on, and it was discussion about what would be #“clean” which was “clear”, i.e. undisputed in belonging to one of the ethnic communities. #Linguistic mess#! Let us see, P05864, :

o, it is clear that something had to be negotiated with the other sides, and once they accept a principle, all other would be subject to the negotiation. Let us see further:

Clear, the proclamation of a new SAOs was going on, after the SDA reneged on the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement. Meanwhile the ARK was proclaimed, without any influence of the central SDS, and the process accelerated, because the SDA have chosen not to make any agreement. See further:

Karadžić	Yes, fine. Err, and then Eastern Herzegovina and Romania, that is clean.
----------	--

And if somebody suggested to the Chamber that this conversation had to do something with an ethnic cleansing, it must be an insane person. There was no any idea of war, there was negotiation how BiH was going to look like, whether to stay in Yugoslavia, or to secede, and in this case, what would be it's internal structure.) In November 1991, the President had a conversation about the situation in Novo Sarajevo and said that they would teach the SDA "the law pretty soon" given that they had blocked the work of the Municipal Assembly and that they would "probably carry out some kind of reorganisation of the city".⁹¹⁹⁹ The SDA was cheating in this city municipality with the Serb majority, and it was unlawful, and the President was obliged to secure a lawful conduct. The President then said, "[a]nd they can go to fucking hell".⁹²⁰⁰ But, let us see what had been said (D0090) during the Assembly session on 18 March 92. What the OTP, and now even the Chamber constructed out of this is not only a selective persecution, it is also a selective deliberation. Let's start from the beginning. This is the Agenda of this session:

AGENDA:

- 1) Information on the latest session of the Conference on solutions for the crisis in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and the political situation in BH and in Yugoslavia;
- 2) Questions raised by deputies.

Everyone knows that the 18 March 92 was the date when the Lisbon Argeement was agreed upon. This Assembly session was held in this occasion, as it can be seen from the Agenda. Then, on p. 43. responding to a MP.:

It is clear that the Serb side did have their "strategic goals" before the war, and those goals were to be achieved through the negotiations, on the Conference.

the ethnic principle. Finish! No war was needed, all was within the political framework, under the auspice of the EC. Nobody has any right to criminalize the Serbian legal political activities.) The President also asked where Bosnian Muslim settlements were in Novo Sarajevo and questioned how many Bosnian Muslims lived in specific areas and in the municipality generally.⁹²⁰¹ (#Not a crime#! How this collecting of information about the ethnic composition of this municipality could be a crime? It was necessary for the purpose of delineating between the two municipalities, so that no one be allocated in the unwanted municipality.

2781. On 6 May 1992, Mladić was at a meeting where he was informed that “Foča has been finished”.⁹²⁰² (It was exactly a month of the beginning of the war. Mladić still was a JNA officer!) At the 16th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 12 May 1992 the President stated that the conflict in municipalities, including Foča, Zvornik, and Višegrad, had ended successfully.⁹²⁰³ So what? The Muslim side wanted the war, and initiated it along the Drina River, and wasn’t successful. How come the Chamber was so desperate to pick up every single sentence of the President and try to milk anything wrong out of it?) On 19 May 1992, in an intercepted conversation, Mićo Stanišić said that Foča had fallen along with Višegrad and that all those who had left these municipalities were in Goražde.⁹²⁰⁴ Stanić reported to Mladić that in contrast to what it was before the conflict, the percentage of Serbs in Foča was 99%.⁹²⁰⁵ (#Serbs controlled only Serb partys#! But to have in mind that the Muslims all the time controlled a big portion of the Foca municipality. So, Stanic may have been talking about the town itself, where the Serbs had always been a majority! Anyway, #how the President may be liable for a conversation of the two other persons, although it was not a crime#?)

2782. On 8 May 1992, the National Security Council tasked the Ministry of Justice with proposing the state borders of SerBiH.⁹²⁰⁶ On 24 May 1992, Prime Minister Branko Đerić wrote a letter in which he stated the Serbs in BiH were “not an invented people as we have been living on this land for thirteen centuries”. (Right! But, what is the meaning of this paragraphs that deal with history? This is the #politics, not a crime#! All what had been said is correct! Since the Constitutional principles had been agreed on 18 March, the determination of the boundaries was a task given to the sides by the mediators at the Conference. No any other conclusion could be inferred out of this fact!) He also wrote that the Bosnian Serbs held title to 64% of the arable land, and that they used to be a majority in BiH before the genocide jointly carried out against Serbs by Muslims and Croats during World War II.⁹²⁰⁷ (Right! What is criminal in it? That would be as if a #Jewish minister was indicted for remaining of the genocide and holocaust?#)

2783. The Accused also stated “[w]e must prove to the international factor that [...] we hold no siege over Sarajevo. Basically, we are protecting our territories and here it is visible that Sarajevo sprung up in Serbian territory, as Serbian property, and the entire surrounding of held Sarajevo is Serbian”.⁹²⁰⁸ (So what? That was a very known fact. But, even if the Serbs held the siege of a capital of the state that declared a war against the Serbs!) The President spoke about Serbian villages, towns, and settlements which were beyond dispute and that they should seek to solve issues where ethnic areas and maps overlap.⁹²⁰⁹ Right! WHAT IS UNLAWFUL IN THIS? All of it was true, and it was an #argumentation for the political talks, why it is used as a proof against the President, and for what#?

2784. At a meeting of the Bosnian Serb leadership on 6 June 1992, Krajišnik stated that “we have to conquer what is ours and be prepared to defend our state” and that the goal was to form and unite the “Birač-Romanija area”.⁹²¹⁰ (#Conquer what is ours and... defend our state#! This was all the Serb rights, because they were pushed into the war, and denied their rights to influence the changes of our state. In the same “document” (as much as a notebook may be it) the President said what was the European standpoint on BiH, p. 95:

- * Europe’s political concept is is a BH composed of three parts. —
- * In the political field, this is the maximum that could be done. —
- * We have to protect our territories militarily. —

2785. After a meeting on 30 June 1992 when he received reports on the combat success of voluntary formations, the Accused stressed that the Bosnian Serbs had “by and large outlined their territory” and the most pressing tasks involved successfully establishing democratic civilian authorities and that the Serb side was ready for a political outcome and negotiations.⁹²¹¹ (#EXCULPATORY#! What is wrong with that? The others decided to have the war, and the military outcome, or the first to defeat the Serbs, and then to talk. But, the Serbs “outlined” their territories, and were ready for a talks. What else the Serbs were expected to do? To surrender?) At a meeting on 30 June 1992 attended by the President and General Mladić, a municipal leader from Vlasenica reported that part of Cerska would be liberated in the days to come and if they brought back their forces from Kalesija they “would liberate everything” and that “[w]hoever controls Vlasenica, controls eastern Bosnia”.⁹²¹² So what? This is a legitimate wartime subject. Is it still forbidden to the Serbs to run their politics. All of that looks like a ideological-political lecture from the communist regime. And #while the war goes on, to control everything is legitimate. WHAT IS UNLAWFUL IN THIS#?)

2786. At the 17th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly held in July 1992, Krajišnik stated that there were territories which were not under their control but which should be part of SerBiH “due to them being ethnic territories” and over which the Bosnian Serbs claimed their rights.⁹²¹³ (So what? Before the final settlement, any side is entitled to claim what does belong to it. Even if it will not be included in a respective entity, it is important to see how much territory this side gave up. In other word, a bargaining chip. Also, the population of this territory would object why the leadership “even didn’t try” to include their areas in the Serb unit. How this is proving a guilt even of Krajisnik, let alone of this President?) Krajišnik on this issue explained that the territories they held constituted the SerBiH and were indisputable to them,

“[w]hat is ours, is ours. We do not want to take the territories of others and we cannot give away what is ours”.⁹²¹⁴ He also emphasised that the final goal was the formation of a state and that the “single space” of the SerBiH “must be achieved”.⁹²¹⁵ So what? #EXCULPATORY, not UNLAWFUL?# The Chamber missed to point out what Mr. Krajisnik said further: D92, p. 49:

this standpoint because this Assembly has already given one such strategic goal. Also, there are territories which are not under our control now but which should be part of the Serb Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina due to them being ethnic territories. So, we should say that these are non-debatable areas and these are debatable areas, since we are not alone in Bosnia and Herzegovina /as written/. Then we should say that this is the proposal of the leadership, the parliament, the Government and all state-political organs of the Serb Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina to the two other national communities because our real strategic goal is to have us divided, to have the three national communities divided. Let them give their proposals about debatable issues, we will lead the discussion. There is no negotiator, I would never take part in it, none

Mr. Krajisnik said that beside “non-debatable” areas, (which meant non disputed, nobody contested) and a “debatable areas” which meant, somebody else claimed the same rights on it, and it had to be negotiated. It couldn’t be more clear, and nothing wrong was in it. Mr. Krajisnik also said that “since we are not alone in BiH” which meant that the others also have their rights to be respected.)

2787. At the same session, the Accused reported that “we control all of our territories, and perhaps also some territories that will be given to other national communities once a deal is reached” but that those territories could not be handed over during the war.⁹²¹⁶ (#Right! Understandable! Rationale! Legal!#) The President gave credit to the JNA, the TO, and the army of the SerBiH and stated that the borders of their state had been marked by a difficult and bloody battle.⁹²¹⁷ Koljević also acknowledged how much had been achieved militarily.⁹²¹⁸ The President emphasised the significance of controlling territory and the factual situation on the ground.⁹²¹⁹ At this session there was a statement made about the danger of losing Foča which would allow the creation of the “green transversal”.⁹²²⁰ (All #legal and legitimate#. It was the war, and a Muslim secret strategy of the “Green transversal” is reality, and the whole Europe is watching it now. Taking into account the war: WHAT IS UNLAWFUL IN THIS?) Particularly since the other side rejected the President’s Platform of 22 April, which proposed that a forcefully taken territories wouldn’t be recognised, and continued to fight!)

2788. Prstojević also spoke at the 17th Bosnian Serb Assembly session and said that after the President visited Ilidža and encouraged them, “the Serbs from Sarajevo retained control over the territory, and even extended their territory in some areas, driving the Muslims out of the territories where they had actually been the majority”.⁹²²¹ Mr. Prstojevic said something about this allegation during his testimony, and clarified it. But, the main issue is, when speaking about “driving out” somebody, whether it pertained to civilians, or the armed forces. #In the military vocabulary it is always meant that the armed forces had been chasen out!#)@.

2789. At the same session, the President said that the conflict had been “roused in order to eliminate the Muslims. [...] They think they are being nationally established, but in fact they are vanishing. The Chamber doesn’t understand what was been talked about. The creators of this war were, according to the Serbian understanding, the West, and in particular Vatican, and those who persuaded the Muslims to abandon the Lisbon Agreement.) If that’s the case, then we have our interests for our historical territories”.⁹²²² Right after making this statement, the Accused went on to say:

I think we have to save the Serb people in their ethnic and also historical territories [...]. We’ll have for sure, we’ll have in the beginning so many Serbs, but I think that they will leave those states, both the Muslim and the Croat state. In the state that we are building, we have to ensure that they have all the rights that we have, under the condition that they are not hostile and that they leave the weapons.⁹²²³ (It is more than clear that it pertained to the Muslims and Croats who will live in the Serbian state. 2790. At the end of the 17th Bosnian Serb Assembly session in July 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly adopted the “Decision on establishing disputable and indisputable borders of its territory” and identified where those borders would run, which could be subject to corrections and verifications in accordance with international agreements.⁹²²⁴ (#EXCULPATOR#Y!!! 2791. The Accused acknowledged with time that during negotiations they risked losing traditional and “centuries-old Serb territories”.⁹²²⁵ These historical territorial claims were also reflected in the proclamation of the Bosnian Serb Assembly in January 1992 where reference was made to “areas in which the Serbian people is now a minority due to the genocide carried out against it in World War II” and in the statements to the international observers that these areas should be part of the RS.⁹²²⁶ (#Politics, not crime#! At the beginning of any negotiable affair the sides involved always put the highest price, knowing that there will be concessions. Also, the people on this territories were a very sensitive to this subject, since they have lost their families, and now they are supposed to give up the areas because they a minority due to the genocide! But, instead of #collecting a patchwork of “here-and-there sentences of the President#, or even worse, of the other people that spoke for themselves, the Chamber should stick to the binding documets that the President signed or proposed#! Only documents are relevant, not a parliamentary discussions which were a free speeches, and if didn’t prevail and influenced documents adopted, all of these speeches are IRRELEVANT# for this case!)

2792. The objectives which the Bosnian Serb leadership spoke about in the lead-up to and during the conflict were also reflected in VRS reports. (#Malignant distortion#! The Serbian objectives were originally pure political, see: D90 of 18 March 92. once the Muslim side decided for the military outcome, the Serb objectives had to adjust to this Muslim decision, see the Assembly session on 12 May 92.) For example, the VRS Main Staff analysis of armed activities in 1992 noted that the declaration of independence by BiH and its premature recognition threatened the Bosnian Serbs and made them a national minority that faced the prospect of being “subjected to genocide”.⁹²²⁷ (So what? Every relevant contemporaneous world leader expressed own concerns about the premature recognition without a safeguards for the ethnic communities!) This report noted that in order to prevent this “humiliation”, the Serbian people organised itself politically and when it was attacked, “it started a defensive and liberating war” with the SDS taking on the most significant political role in the organisation of the Serbian people.⁹²²⁸ (Right: #when attacked politically, defended politically, ##when attacked militarily, defended militarily!#)

2793. The VRS reported that during the early phase of the conflict in the RS there were units of the Serb TO which had been “formed on the initiative and under the leadership” of the SDS and had been able to protect the Serbs until the formation of the VRS.⁹²²⁹ (To have formed, prepared and trained TO units, it was a #law binding obligation#, and all in BH had the same. The Muslim side expelled the Serb component from the TO on 6 April 92 and the Serbian municipalities and companies had to refresh and reestablish their units. #Every single municipality had to have a TO unit#! No matter what party exercised the power, it would have to be the same! that these units failed to achieve the “main strategic objectives of the armed struggle of the Serbian people” in BiH.⁹²³⁰ They failed to open and secure the required corridors and to “gain control over a considerable part of the territory of former [BiH] which historically and ethnically belongs to the Serbian people”.⁹²³¹ This report further noted that the VRS was capable of protecting the Serbs and “liberating territories which by [historic] birthright are ours” and that this would lay the foundations for a Serb state.⁹²³² (This came out of a rivalry of the VRS and the TO component. #Not relevant#. That is why armies exist, and every single nation has its rights to have an army. An Army is doing a military job, and a state and political leadership negotiate. Where it is another way?) The report further noted that the President, as the Supreme Commander, orally assigned a number of tasks which were vital to “protecting the Serbian people and its territories” and the Main Staff “translated the set objectives and tasks into general and individual missions”.⁹²³⁶ The Accused spoke in favour and praised the military successes of the VRS under Mladić.⁹²³⁷ (A horrible crimes?!?! 2795. On 26 August 1992, in a meeting with Vance and Carrington at the London Conference, the President stated that following the recognition of BiH, “Serbs had been forced to act in order to protect the Serbian population” and that they wanted full autonomy.⁹²³⁸ (So what? a #commendable and # EXCULPATORY#! A mere #legitimate and democratic political position, that had to be accepted without any war!#) The President further stated that the Bosnian Serbs were willing to negotiate and even return some territory as part of an overall agreement, as long as Serb property rights in predominantly Croat and Muslim areas were protected.⁹²³⁹ When the President spoke about Bosnian Serb territory being geographically continuous, Vance asked how this could be achieved without “moving people”.⁹²⁴⁰ Nothing impossible. 2796. The #only relevant was what the President talked to the official mediators#, and what he handed over as a Serb official propositions. This is an abuse of journalists, by both, the journalist and the Tribunal (Prosecution/Chamber.) Nothing that the Accuse said or not said to the journalist pertaining to the political aims or solutions was irrelevant, because it was not official, and maybe never happened. 2799. In November 1992, in a meeting attended by General Morillon, Pyers Tucker, Mladić, and Koljević, the Accused showed maps with the ethnic distribution in BiH and claimed that “Bosnian Serbs had only seized those territories to which they had a right, which [were] territories where the population was more than 50 per cent Bosnian Serb” and they had “no wish to live with the Muslims”, whom he called “Turks”.⁹²⁴⁸ (This must be a lie, because the President used this term only several times with soldiers, in order to be closer to them, although a “Turks” can not be derogatory, because the Turks are a great nation. But the Bosnian Muslims wanted to be considered Turks anyway, we have evidence about it. Anyway, this was a legitimate right to declare what territories the Serb community in BiH claimed for itself. Why the Chamber needed witness Tucker to confirm something that was publicly known from the beginning of the crisis? And why it was a crime?) On 7 November 1992, at a meeting attended by Đerić and other ministers, the situation in a number of municipalities was discussed and it was reported that the largest part of the municipality of Vlasenica was “free”.⁹²⁴⁹ (So what? #Free from another armed forces#. Many other places, towns and cities, were free from the adversary forces, but not from the minorities, which lived in the Serb areas to the end of the war!) In January 1993, the Accused also spoke about how they had created a state with their own forces.⁹²⁵⁰ (So what? #By their own forces” doesn’t mean by military forces!!!# It was the first anniversary of the Republic of Srpska, which was created by the political means, and was accepted by the international community and the two other sides, codified in the Lisbon Agreement, and finally denied by armed forces of the two other sides. Secondly, about 15% of the territory of the former BH where the Serbs are the majority population inside the various municipalities, has not been included in what is our territory. The drastic examples are in the regions of Old Herzegovina, Birač, Posavina, Ozren and Doboј, where there live about 350,000 Serbs. These regions have been painted green. In the Birač- Central Podrinje region, the Serbian population numbers about 100,000, i.e. more than in the Herzegovina - Romanija region - the Serbs have an overall majority in 68% of the territory, and are the majority along the Drina, along 180 /km/ of the total length of the border which is 200 kilometres. The municipal ethnic principle singles out only Šekovići, the poorest section of Birač, in which 10% of the population of the region live. Zvornik municipality alone now has a larger Serbian population than Herzegovina, and Vlasenica municipality has more Serbs than Han Pijesak, Kalinovik, Ljubinja and Čajniče. On 65% of the territory of the municipality, the Serbs are an overall majority. In the area of the municipality of Milići, which was constituted by a special agreement and through municipal decisions as a new municipality before the war in agreement with the Muslims, the Serbs account for 98%. However, it is all painted green according to Vance.

What a connection of it is with the statement by the President? An MP was entitled to say whatever he found true, and this this was true: only fifty years before this moment the Serbs in Prijedor had been subjected to a genocide! Did the Chamber consider that there was no a genocide over the Serb people in BiH in WWII? Also, from this place, I want to say that I was shocked with the map presented to us by our respected president, Mr. KARADŽIĆ. 2801. Following the ICFY, the Vance-Owen Plan was formally introduced on 2 January 1993 and provided for constitutional and military arrangements in BiH and a map of the provincial structure.⁹²⁵⁵ Izetbegović objected to the map on the basis that regions from which the population had been removed could not come under the control of those who removed them.⁹²⁵⁶ The President noted that certain territories were still under dispute and when the map was discussed, he asked for a larger Bosnian Serb territory and proposed his own boundaries.⁹²⁵⁷ (So what? In April 1993, the President also spoke about the importance of certain Serb areas in the context of international negotiations pertaining to maps of BiH.⁹²⁵⁸ In the context of discussing whether or not to accept the Vance-Owen Plan, Brđanin at the Bosnian Serb Assembly stated “[e]verything we have liberated is Serbian land. At the 34th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly in August 1993, the Accused cautioned against the view that they had given up on their far-reaching goals with respect to the union of Serb states and explained that “[i]t is a phase we have to finish”.⁹²⁶⁵ (The Chamber is picking a #solitary sentences from a long arguing between the President and the deputies,# who were very free to oppose and deny many presidential opinions. Look at this sentence of the MP D. Djuric:

Republic or any other does it. You will not drag around children from Krajina anymore to some territories to get killed and we do not know if it is going to be ours or not. The day before yesterday, for example, the president of the state said that it

And the President had to quarrel about every single village whether it will be included in the RS or not. Within those discussions the President had to give a wide explanations of the historic prospectiveness. But, the Chamber is, just as the Prosecutor, doing a #patchwork of some words and sentences,# while trying to convict a president of a country in making. Where are those documents, laws, orders of the President, which brought about any crime? This is ridiculous. Since the crime against the peace is not the subject of this Tribunal, all what is brought against this President so far is vain. How possibly a #political arguing could be taken for granted, particularly when it is an academic or historic reminiscence#?) When the Accused refused to accept the Vance-Owen Plan, he claimed that the old BiH ceased to exist and that there was now a state with three constituent peoples.⁹²⁶⁶ Given the Accused’s refusal, Owen stated “I weep for your country. The path you are heading on is bitterness, hatred and death”.⁹²⁶⁷ (Until that time the Serbs already had a year and a half of misery prepared to them by the European Community and the rest of the West, and this is a firm conviction of the entire Serb nation! And what kind of evidence against the President could be some meditation of the author of the plan that didn’t succeed? This is going to be remembered as a unique reasoning in the international jurisprudence. #Lord Owen’s concern was noble, but has no relevance for this case#! The mediators would be even more noble if discouraged Mr. Izetbegovic to wage a war, and offered the respect of laws and Constitution!# Or, at least, if the mediators offered more balanced and fair solution!)

2805. At this same session, the Accused stated that while he did not think there would be a broader war in Europe, if there was one “we shall be stronger” and that they would have a corridor again on the map of BiH.⁹²⁶⁸ The Accused explained that “[i]f we want it by force, we could have taken some more, we can still do it”.⁹²⁶⁹ (#Crippled sentences#! So what? The President said it conditionally, because the Muslim side kept refusing any agreement. Let us see what the President said: P01379, p.62:

Gentlemen, three sides are needed for the agreement and for the signature. Let the Muslims keep on not wanting, that is their business. This is why we need Croats. If we want it by force, we could have taken some more, we can still do it. We can even take Sarajevo. I am asking you, Sarajevo natives should speak about Sarajevo.

This is what the President said in a discussion on the territorial concessions that the Serbs had been giving for the sake of peace, see p. 63:

and we still keep 72% of Bosnian territory. We shall not withdraw from anywhere until all of this is firmly agreed and until we are given guarantee that this is the solution. We wouldn't give an inch if it wasn't for the peace and for the /final/ solution. We need a solution, we don't want any more of war. We shall lessen our territory, we shall lessen our own, but we want it then to remain our for all the time that we can organize it in free, democratic society, economy, educational system, information, renaissance of the Serb society. This is why we made concession so that we don't have to do it in some 10 or 30 years. But we shall make no concession if it doesn't lead to the final solution. Concessions that we made, such agreement is in

He went on to state that they were militarily ready and would not withdraw from anywhere until they had firm guarantees about the resolution of the conflict.⁹²⁷⁰ (#Logical, rational legal#!

Which army in the world would withdraw before a peace is guaranteed?) He stated that while they did not want the war to continue and would be willing to lessen their territory, he wanted the land they retained to remain theirs "for all [...] time".⁹²⁷¹ (#See above, what is skipped.#) The Accused also suggested that the Serbs would vanish if they were weakened, but they would be given a state if they were seen as strong militarily, economically, and politically.⁹²⁷²

(Now, let us see what this Chamber is doing. The President was defending the Owen-Stoltenberg peace plan, advocating against the selfishness and greed for the territories. He did it mixing his considerations with the strategic projections of the near future, as a president has to do. Here is the "incriminated" part of speech, P1379, p. 63:

now. We could simply say now that we don't want any kind of union of the states, we want independence immediately. But we won't get it. I really don't know, I feel like sitting here and saying: Darn it, how come I am such a weak Serb that I keep on listening such good Serbs who know what they want. But, can that be, gentlemen?

Please, the citizens of Brčko are listening to us now and if they are listening, they must be upset. Yet, they have no reason for that. Look, here, under the assumption that we remain militarized and that we're the enemies, the Muslim forces are here, in this very city, the half of the city or whatever is allotted to the Muslim side. And this is where the Serb forces are. Should these Serb forces fear these Muslim forces over here? And Croatian ones from the north? We had all those forces on our back up until now and we shall continue to have them in the future. There will be no wars in Europe. If there will be one, we shall be stronger. Please, if there is war, the first thing that we'll do is that we'll cut off this thing here (indicates on the map). We shall have the corridor again. I see no reason for the Serb army and the Serb people who are positioned all over the place here, have the right because that is their territory, better than the forest that have no maneuver over here. This is what we'll discuss with our generals tomorrow. But, this panic and paranoia that doesn't allow us to see the correct situation /as printed/. This is all /done/ under the assumption that

This is #the most illustrative example of the abuse of words, shifted out of context#. In this speech the President is persuading the deputies in the Assembly to accept the Owen-Stoltenberg Peace Plan, and in response to the "panic and paranoia that doesn't allow us to see the situation correctly" he is explaining that the Serbs should accept the map, because they are not as weak as they assume, and because there will not be wars in Europe... Instead of being commended for his efforts, the President is President!)

2806. Koljević at the 34th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly stated his view that they had entered “this fight” not with the aim of winning the most territory but with the aim of the “spiritual and moral revitalisation of Serbhood”.⁹²⁷³ (#EXCULPATORY#! There could be no more justifiable reason to resist the violence over the people! Koljevic was fighting against the greed for territories too, and said that for us it is more important to be free and to revitalize our culture which suffered under the Communists, than to have more territories.) At the same Bosnian Serb Assembly session, Mladić stated that if the negotiations and agreement failed, they would “have to find the means and organise ourselves for the continuation of the even bloodier war”.⁹²⁷⁴ (So what? If the army commanders are not decisive, they are not commanders! #How this statement could be a crime of the President#? Is it a position of the Chamber that the Serbs would be right and not guilty only if they surrendered?) Another deputy spoke and recognised that they held 13 municipalities including Prijedor, Sanski Most, Ključ, Zvornik, Vlasenica, Rogatica, Višegrad, Foča and part of Brčko even though they “did not belong to Serbs, according to indicators of relative or absolute majority”.⁹²⁷⁵ The Chamber recalls its finding that the control of municipalities, including Bijeljina and Vlasenica,⁹²⁷⁶ was geographically important with respect to the Strategic Goals of the Bosnian Serb leadership. (This is #another distortion. All of this political quarrelling in the Assembly# was within the acceptance of the Owen-Stoltemnebr Peace Plan (OSPP) and these arguments were pure political, aimed to get the Assembly consent for this plan. Before the war these municipalities with a balanced participation of the ethnic communities were proposed by the Serb side to be transformed into the two ethnic municipalities. Even at the first year of the war the Serb side kept offering this option. But after the war made a “new realities” on the terrain, there had to be some concessions. The quoted sentence pertained to the municipalities allocated by the Conference to the Serbs, although not majority, as a response to the objection why some of the 100% Serbian municipalities were allocated to the Muslims-Croats. Let us see the entire discussion of an expert, not an MP, quoted here: P1379:

Mr. SKOKO:

Mr. President, what I explained here yesterday are really not some improvisations, this is really the fruit of a hard work. I used the statistical analysis for the year 1990. I maybe do not know how to do many things, but I've been doing this for 12 years and I've been taking care of the development of the economy for 12 years, and I know each and every industrial facility in Bosnia and Herzegovina. If Dr Karadžić will allow me – this is not for the public – I would like to say one thing. Don't we, gentlemen, hold 13 municipalities which did not belong to Serbs, according to indicators of relative or absolute majority? Prijedor, Sanski Most, Ključ, Derventa, Bosanski Brod, Doboj, Bosanski Šamac, Zvornik, Vlasenica, Rogatica, Višegrad, Foča, and a part of Brčko, where these indicators are from. If you unfold the map of Herzeg-Bosnia and Muslim Bosnia, you'll see that in Muslim Bosnia we have the following industrial centres: Tuzla, Travnik, Konjic, Zavidovići, Visoko... have a look at the municipalities which are empty, in Herzeg-Bosnia we have Mostar, N.Travnik and a part of Čapljina and nothing more. Zenica /mining industry/ is dead, Zenica is the greatest Bosnian loser and anyone who knows at least anything about the economy would gladly give Zenica to some foreign partner for free, so that he could employ some people there.

And then the Prime Minister Lukic, who was an expert in geography, took the floor as an expert:

⁹²⁷⁶ See paras. 600, 1099.

Dr LUKIĆ, Prime Minister:

I would kindly ask you to be more precise about these areas. The first time that I was asked something about the territory of the former BiH was in 1971, when Military-Geographical Museum asked that question. That's when we started, of course not publicly, and we came to the area of 62,5%, 63%, later on 64%, so we rounded figures and said it was somewhere between 63 and 64% /of the territory/ that belongs to the Serbs. This means that these are Serb properties and state-owned property in their surroundings. Therefore, it's not a surprise that during the 90s – and even before – a figure that everyone is repeating right now occurred.

In Sanski Most, 73% of the land is Serb, and the rest belongs to Croats and Muslims, there is even some Jewish property. The percentage is smaller in Prijedor, but as far as the land is concerned, the ownership is considerable. Thank you.

So, Mr. Lukic objected to the Skoko's analysis and rectified him. But# all of it was with the aim of persuading the Assambly that the mediators weren't the anti-Serbs, and that we should accept the peace plan!#) All the discussion was of a political nature! Although the crime against peace is not the subject of this Tribunal, the Chamber is making a "salade" of sentences of a different people in a different occasions, officials and non-officials, joking, alluding, a folklore sayings, poems, idioms, and whatever, in order to allocate it to the President and to prove his intentions. So many official documents didn't have any attention of the Chamber in comparison to this "salade" of words!)

2807. The municipality of Brčko was an example of where the Accused and the Bosnian Serbs continued to emphasise their territorial and strategic interests. Brčko was considered of strategic importance by the Bosnian Serb leadership as it was viewed as necessary for the formation of a corridor in the Posavina region through to Bosanska Krajina; this was in accordance with the second Strategic Goal.⁹²⁷⁷ Given the strategic importance of Brčko, despite the Bosnian Serbs constituting a minority, the Bosnian Serb leadership insisted that it would become a province of RS.⁹²⁷⁸ The President also spoke about negotiations relating to Brčko and the importance of protecting Serb interests.⁹²⁷⁹ A representative from Brčko acknowledged that it had never been a Serb town, but that even before the war there had been "strictly defined Serb areas within the town, separated from the areas in which the other two peoples lived" and by agreement this area had been defined.⁹²⁸⁰ This representative spoke about the possibility of having to return "Muslim territories that we have liberated" but emphasised which areas of Brčko should be retained.⁹²⁸¹

(Exactly: there was the Serb varos (town in Hungarian) as a very core of the city. And the Serbs were ready to have the solution called "bridge-viaduct" so that the city and municipality be organised that every community governs it's own part of the municipality. And it had been accepted and built in the Owen-Stoltenberg Peace plan (OSPP) as a fair and sustainable solution. The Muslims had been given the Muslim parts of the town, the port on the Sara River, and a viaduct access to it over the Serb parts of the city. But, why the Chamber considers so many normal and legal political or military matters as if it was a crime?)

While the Chamber notes that the only crimes charged in Indictment with respect to Brčko are limited to the Luka camp, it has had regard to this evidence as supporting the pattern of what occurred in the Municipalities and how this corresponded with the strategic interests of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership.

2808. At a meeting held in August 1994 between the President, Krajišnik, and Milan Martić, Krajišnik stated: “Everyone is telling us not to give up Brčko”.⁹²⁸² The President stressed that the corridor being offered to them through Brčko was too narrow and could not be defended.⁹²⁸³ In a meeting with UNPROFOR on 19 August 1994, the President expressed his view that if an “arrangement” was reached for Brčko similar to the plan for Sarajevo, it should “not prevent the Serbs from transiting the area with their armaments” and that if the Bosnian Serbs kept “sovereignty in Brčko” they would seriously consider the proposal of not attacking Tuzla.⁹²⁸⁴ (#Again, “bla-bla”#. This is of #no relevance# for any crime committed in BiH, except the crime against peace! The Serbs had their legitimate interests, and had been ready for compromises for the sake of peace, but the peace was an issue that nobody except the Serbs had been interested in!).

2809. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session on 11 May 1994, the President stated: “We have never been [a] majority in Brčko, but we were always the third, but we have to solve that with a combination, we cannot call upon one principle, that is ethnic and historical. [...] This is not [an] important town for the Muslims, but it is important to us”.⁹²⁸⁵ In meeting with Akashi in May 1994 the President warned of an ABiH offensive on Brčko and that they would not agree to withdraw Bosnian Serb troops to make Brčko a safe area because it was historically a Serb area and it had been under Bosnian Serb control since the beginning of the war.⁹²⁸⁶ (Another proof that the foreign judges couldn’t understand too many things. In BiH there was a #permanent “Gerry-manderism”, i.e. merging the Serb settlements with the Muslim, in order to avoid any Serb majority municipality#. In the very core of Brcko there was and stil is a “Srpska varos” an old Serbian downtown. Had it be normal situation as in any other European country, there would be a Serb municipality. Another matter is a military outcome of the crisis, which was a Muslim choice. In that case, everything is negotiable, because the current situation must be taken into account!).

2810. When the President visited Foča to open a medical school, he gave a speech in which he said that he was “satisfied and happy that Foča has been preserved” and it was important for the citizens to know that the Bosnian Muslims had given up on Foča in negotiations.⁹²⁸⁷ (Let us first see what the President really said in Foca, P6206:

This town, whose inhabitants managed to liberate it in a heroic struggle more than 16 months ago, was visited for the first time yesterday by the President of Republika Srpska, Dr Radovan KARADŽIĆ and his wife. [

We had no problems in Foča, which is why we have not visited before. Otherwise, we would have certainly found a way to come here. I am satisfied and happy that Foča has been preserved and that civilians are safe. May those who have lost their lives to save Foča rest in peace. We must not and never will forget their families. The orphans and disabled my personal belief that a great future is awaiting Foča. I can inform you that the Muslims gave up on Foča in these negotiations. They told me openly: “All right, we are not asking for Zvornik or Foča any more, but give us Višegrad and Bratunac”. Of course, we could not have given them that, but it is important for the citizens of Foča to know that the Muslim republic has given up on Foča.

What the President said during this visit to Foca after 16 months of the war for the first time, was a greetings for preserving Foca and civilians. He also said that the Muslims “gave up on Foca in these negotiations (...) but it is important for the citizens of Foca to know that the Muslim republic has given up on Foca”. Therefore, that #concerned only with the political solution, a negotiations as which constituent republic Foca will belong to, and had nothing to do with the Muslim citizens rights to live in Foca#!

Foca, the town itself had the Serb majority. There was envisage to have the two municipalities, the Serb and Muslim, both communities would have a part in the urban core, and the belonging hinterland. Since the Muslims abandoned already reached agreement, the outcome was to be military. In such a case, Foca belonged to the Serbs, but a large portion of it was kept by the Muslims, and even now it is a Muslim municipality of Foca, as in many municipalities, like Srolac (the town is Muslim-Croat, Borkovici is Serb) Foca, Zvornik, Pale, several Sarajevo municipalities, Doboј, Kljuc – Ribnik (Serbian) Skender Vakuf (Dobratric Croatian) Odzak (Vukosavlje) etc. In 1994, Krajišnik attended a celebration in Foča with other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership and delivered a speech in which he addressed the people of Srbinje, which was the new Serb name of Foča.⁹²⁸⁸ In this speech Krajišnik said:

Today you are not as you were before. Now I see a true Serbian town. And you proudly bear your Serbian name. You are the example to every Serb. All that was coming from this town you’ve managed to eliminate you prevented it from happening. [...] Izetbegović said that this town would be another Mecca. But you did not let them. And for that, in the name of all Serbs, I thank you.⁹²⁸⁹ (#Words of others, jokes, sayings#! Is it really significant, every joke? Anyway, so what, the city of Foca itself was the Serbian majority, and just in the eve of the war, the Serbs had been so humiliated and fired from Focatrans. The Muslims had been offered to make their own municipality of Foca, with a urban core for the Sewrb and Muslim municipality, and the rural areas to administratively belong to the respective municipalities. Since the Muslims reneged on the agreements and have chosen a war outcome, the Serbs were entitled to demand the Serb parts of municipality to belong to their republic within Bosnia. It is not cleare what the crimes are this Tribunal after, a Serb political rights and a political struggle, or a crimes that weren’t within the military necessity, and had been commited wanton, just to damage the non-Serb population? Such a kind of courts, that prevent a presentation of the causes and consequences, a conduct of all sides involved – can never establish the truth and secure the law and justice!)

2811. The Accused also noted that in Foča the Bosnian Muslims had a plan to “build a big Islamic centre” and that Foča was extremely important to the Bosnian Muslims but “it will never be theirs again”.⁹²⁹⁰ (Foča was planned to become a very aggressive Islamic Center for the entire Europe, against the consent of the Serbs. It had nothing with a religious needs of the population, it was aimed to be a springboard of the fundamentalistic Islam to influence the whole Europe, both politically, and in recruiting the so called “white Al-Qaeda” which would be easier to enter Europe and act there! This must not be done without a consent of the Serbs! Or the UN Tribunal considered that it should be done?)

2812. In 1993 and 1994, commemorations were held to celebrate the anniversary of the “liberation” of Zvornik which were attended amongst others by the President, Koljević, and Arkan.⁹²⁹¹ The President in an interview also said that the Bosnian Serbs would “never leave Zvornik again, and the state of facts established by this war, by this one year of the war, will not be reconciliated without large crimes”.⁹²⁹² The Accused’s position was that Zvornik could not be given to the Bosnian Muslims because that would mean that the Serbs could not return and would be refugees.⁹²⁹³ (It is an incorrect interpretation: #not that Zvornik wouldn’t be given to the Muslims, but it will not be in the Muslim republic#, because the Muslims wanted the war, there were a lot of victims, and the Muslims kept even more than a half of municipality, but since they wanted the war, and lost urban part of Zvornik, it had to be in the Serb republic!)

2813. The Accused stated that during the war he had placed the SDS on hold but that in the first 45 days of the conflict, the SDS had been instrumental in “practically defin[ing] the borders”.⁹²⁹⁴ (As of 12 May 92 the President was no any longer a Party leader, since the SDS was on hold, until February 93. However, the state officials acted not as a party officials, #but the state officials#. The SDS officials and experts gave a technical service to the negotiating team by providing it with the accurate data about population and settled places, which was a task given by the mediators in the Conference! But anyway, what does it mean? Is the Chamber after the SDS? It could have not been on hold, no any other party was on hold. Why the SDS wouldn’t be active? The putting SDS on hold was a good will of the Party towards the first prime minister Djerić, to help him to work independently. #The Chamber erred whenever considered the SDS and other political and state organs as a criminal organisation. This is wrong, and this is unacceptable!#) In an interview in July 1995 the President stressed that everyone should accept the reality that BiH was completely Serbian. He went on to state:

We now possess 64% of the land and control 70% of the territory of that false State Bosnia, which does not exist, and we are not going to accept anything less than 50% We are not going to give up on our own State, the ultimate objective for any nation; it is like our home. And we are not going to end up homeless in a Bosnia dominated by Muslims.⁹²⁹⁵ So what? This was a political statement, in accordance with the 45 months of war. #Who authorised the Chamber to criminalise everything that is Serbian#. During the trial, the Chamber used to claim as if the Serbs weren’t indicted. However, we see that the entire Serbian people is indicted. Still the President said that the Serb side was ready to reduce the territory to 50%!#)

In the same interview, the President stated that they were ready to end the war on the condition that the Bosnian Serbs' right to self-determination was recognised and observed that if "we are fighting and dying for certain places, we cannot hand them over afterwards. Nobody can expect us to guarantee the Muslims that they are always going to keep the same percentage of territory [...]. If they want a military solution, they will get to keep what they have now, at most. But if they want a political solution, we are ready to be flexible".⁹²⁹⁶ The President also said that they would "never accept giving up a single Serbian place, especially if it was taken by force".⁹²⁹⁷

(This is wrong, and the #President never said something like that#! There was no the Serbian places that had been taken by a Serb force. But, let us see what the President said, P05063, p.

If the war would last 20, 30 years, the Serbs would be where the Serbs are, the Croats were the Croats are and the Muslims where the Muslims are. There would be some shifting of the lines left or right but we would never accept giving up a single Serbian place, especially if it was taken by force. So the war could go on for years and decades and the position would be the same as during the Lisbon conference. The Muslims do not have a legitimate goal. If the Croats and the Serbs have, to a substantial degree, legitimate goals, with some disputable territories overlapping, the Muslims have a completely illegitimate goal to have whole Bosnia for themselves. It is not possible. It is not possible neither in ethnical nor in historical terms and also in terms of factual conditions and I think that it is a tragedy for the Muslim people that their young men are dying for something that will never be theirs, and they could all have stayed alive and maybe, through negotiations, to do much better than they will do at the end of this crisis.

(This is rather #EXCULPATORY#! Now, it is obvious that the President said that no matter how long the war would last, it would all be in vain, because if the Muslims take some Serbian place by force, the Serbs wouldn't recognise it. In no way it could mean that the Serbs took some of their settled places by force, and wouldn't return it. To whom they would return their own territory? If it was their, why would they have taken it by force?

2815. In August 1995, Mladić issued a notice to the Main Staff of the VRS which, inter alia, praised the VRS and observed that it had thwarted "a planned and prepared genocide of the Serbian people, protecting the greater part of Serbian territories, and achieving victory after victory in the liberation of occupied historically and ethnically Serbian areas".⁹²⁹⁸ (So what? Why this court measures every Serb word, and contests every Serb right on political and democratic life? From the content of this greetings it is visible that Gen. Mladic praised the Army for protecting the people and territory, which relected exactly what was the task of this Army – to protect!)

2816. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in August 1995, the President said: : (He was selling the Dayton plan out to the MP-s, justifyin why some ethnically dominant Serb areas had been envisaged to belong to the Muslim-Croat Federation.)

To tell the truth, there are towns that we've grabbed for ourselves, and there were only 30% of us. I can name as many of those as you want, but we cannot give up the towns where we made up 70%. Don't let this get around, but remember how many of us were in Bratunac, how many in Srebrenica, how many in Višegrad, how many in Rogatica, how many in Vlasenica, in Zvornik, etc. Due to strategic importance they had to become ours, and no one is practically questioning it any more.⁹²⁹⁹ (A reasonable chamber would see what was the context and reason to say that.

It was within persuading the parliamentaries to accept the peace plan, in spite of the fact that many towns and cities with the clear Serb majority were given to the Muslim-Croat Federation, in spite of the fact that the Serbs defended all of them. Those municipalities were: Drvar, 99% Serbian, Bosansko Grahovo 95% Serbian, Glamoc 89% Serbian, Sanski Most, balanced proportion, Bosanski Petrovac 77% Serbian, Ilijas, only Serb part, 90% Serbian, Hadzici, only Serb part 90% Serbian, Vogosca, the Serb half, 90% Serbian, Rajlovac 90% Serbian, Ilidza, the Serb half, 90% Serbian, not to mention the Muslim settlements in many other municipalities, like Pale, Foca, Zvornik, Novo Sarajevo, Novi Grad in Sarajevo, a half of Doboje, a half of Odzaci, and so on. Defending the peace plan, the President numbered several towns where the Serbs weren't majority, but got those municipalities, or at least the Serb parts of it. #How this political argumentation in the favour, and for the sake of peace may be used against this President#? Let us see what was the context of this discussion: P988, p.4

Since things are going downhill for us, you no longer have any credit, gentlemen. Up until now it was possible. Now things are going downhill for us and now everything has to be at /word unknown/. I do not trust anyone anymore, except, I want for those of my fellow townsmen from Prnjavor who were killed, if they, my God, you must give your life for the state, but so that I can explain to the family why they were killed, how, how long it will be ours, then when you open the issue of the current political situation, military and security-wise, then we have to answer.

President Radovan KARADŽIĆ was not mandated by this Assembly to return this, the patriarch, I believe in God, but I am not a celestial Serb, gentlemen, but a worldly one. The state President did not have the right to annul his decision because the Assembly supported him. You did not annul it, you returned it. I don't want to live like this in nothing, like our former friend and probably present one like the Serb Brdo would say, there's no such thing as being a little pregnant and a lot pregnant.

An MP Dragan Djuric criticised the President, alike many others, since it was an introduction to the final peace conference in Dayton. See further: now, on p.26 the President informed the Assembly on the importance of the Serb part of Sarajevo:

exchange of Goražde for parts of Sarajevo is mentioned there. We absolutely cannot leave Sarajevo because then the Muslims would really have a good state, and they would /?reduce us to/ these three provinces, Eastern Herzegovina, Old Herzegovina and Romanija, nothing would be left there if we don't have our own Sarajevo and that regional centre, so people can go to school there, get treatment, trade and do business. Therefore we cannot, we have to get used to the idea that we would have to accept something, but we absolutely cannot make anybody think that we will accept something nor can we accept something that eliminates us as a state and as a people. We cannot accept that and there's no other way.

I wrote a letter to Carter. We adopted it a lot with his deputy, Ambassador Vance. That letter was forwarded to Holbrooke, Holbrooke accepted it and it was supposed to be published today, but this thing that happened, this massacre in Sarajevo that they are blaming us for, it is smothering the media, so Carter couldn't publish it today, but he will publish it tomorrow. However, Holbrooke already has that in the letter, that letter in his pocket, and he accepted what it said.

and on p.67 the President, explaining a painful negotiation, said

Contact Group plan, it means a lot. Believe me, in international relations, whatever is accepted will be applied, if not willingly, then by powerful force. No one has a chance of avoiding an international obligation. Prof. MILANOVIĆ, Prof. LUKIĆ are others are here, let them say what a yes means. Now we say yes to the US peace initiative, which is very fluid, we can always say, you were talking about a corridor, this and that Sarajevo, exchange, etc. So it's not the acceptance of the Contact Group plan that could ruin us if they wanted to secure the union, to secure that and the recognition of Yugoslavia itself, and then to come between us, and then to have the territorial issue resolved who knows when and how.

I would personally recommend to this Assembly and the people, less is better, but a defined status finally, and not a temporary one because the Serbs are moving out, leaving their homes in a temporary status. No Sarajevo in a temporary status, no temporary territory. Let's see what we can break off. A fox bites off its leg when it's caught in a trap, bites off its leg and goes. We'll have to bite off something, but let's decide about that together and stand behind it. No one from the army can /?score/

The words #“less is better” pertained to the territorial issues, and the President pleaded for a humbleness in the territorial claims.# In that context the President numbered out some municipalities that the Muslim have lost at the negotiating table, as the Serbs had to, see p.68:

be accepted and what might not be. We know exactly what our priorities are. Getting Kupres back might not be a priority, if it's outside of our percentages that we can get, but the Una, Krupa and Sanski Most are priorities, the Sava and the corridor are priorities, Doboje and part of Ozren, Drvar and Petrovac, the meat of our territory is a priority. We cannot let someone /?put worms/ in our territory, to drill it with some channels and something. Part of Sarajevo must stay. We've drawn some maps into

However, the Serb side was even more modest than the President pleaded: the Serbs defend several urban areas in the City of Sarajevo, i.e. municipalities: Ilidza (a Serb part) Blazuj, Hadzici (a Serbian part) Grbavica, Rajlovac, Nedzarici, Grbavica and Jagomir as a parts of the municipality Centar, Vogosca (a Serb part) Ilijas and Trnovo, a Muslim part, but had lost all of it around the negotiating table! Not to repeat Glamoc, B. Grahovo, Petrovac, Drvar, Serb part of B. Krupa and Sanski Most in the western part of the RS.)

a. Creation of a Bosnian Serb state

2817. In December 1991, the President spoke about how in some municipalities it was “really necessary to create separate municipalities” and to have dual municipal authorities.⁹³⁰⁰ (#Wrong inference. There are many cities with more than one municipality#. Who said there would be a “dual municipal authorities”? is such a situation in Brussels, or in Sarajevo with 10 municipalities? This is a #mean forgery#! The city of Sarajevo had ten municipalities, although many of them had been tailored (Gerry-manderism) so to prevent it to be a Serb majority. It was not about any “dual municipal authorities” but a separate municipalities, with a unique authorities. It was completely legitimate and legal, and in accordance with the Constitution and laws. That much even a foreign chamber should have known about the domestic legal system. Further, let us see what the President really said: D84, p. 13

In connection with these municipalities: the fact is that the Serbs are nevertheless maintaining a balance in some municipalities even though they are a minority and sometimes just about there and managing to protect primarily their human and civil rights as well as their national, economic and other rights. But, in some municipalities, Olovo, for instance, they cannot do anything. All of them there were fired, even the manager of the gasoline station. They could not allow a Serb to be in charge of anything there.

So, this was a matter of the human and civil rights, the ethnic, economic and cultural rights, and not about duality in power. Let us see further, p. 13:

In some municipalities, for instance, they want to take the schools at any cost and change their names. For instance, the Vuk Karadžić school in Bratunac; of the two schools in the city they want both, to change their names, etc.

Look at that!!!, pp 13-14,

In this Republic the life of the three national communities overlaps in places, in places they have things in common. But to my mind, the more separate things there are the better it will be. Perhaps these three national communities will have three school systems, perhaps even three health care systems, etc. Perhaps in formulating this Recommendation we should state that in places where the Serbs are not able to preserve their civil, national, economic and other rights due to being vastly outnumbered, the Assembly of the Serbian people recommends that they form their municipality. In this way we would achieve what Mr. Milojević vividly described for us, that we must not lose what we have taken, what we have invested in.

Even the smallest municipality can have three municipalities if we agree on that. If that is agreed on at the Conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Recommendation should state that this is not obligatory, but it should be done unless national equality cannot be secured otherwise.

What is wrong with that??? It was a matter of the protection of the very basic rights, and all of it through the negotiations and agreements within the framework of the Conference, and without a war. Is the Chamber of an opinion that the Serbs are to be deprived of the rights that are guaranteed to every community by the International Covenants on Human Rights?.

2818. The Chamber recalls that on 11 January 1992, the first session of the Council of Ministers was attended by Bosnian Serb leaders including the Accused, Krajišnik and Plavšić.⁹³⁰¹ At this meeting one of the identified priorities with respect to the declaration on the promulgation of the SerBiH was “the defining of ethnic territory, establishment of government organs in the territory and the economic disempowerment of the current authorities in the [SRBiH]”.⁹³⁰² On 17 January 1992, the Council of Ministers discussed the need to adopt the Constitution of the Republic as soon as possible and to consolidate and organise the territory of the regions, including through the formation of new municipalities.⁹³⁰³ (#What is illegal in this? The Serb Republic in BiH had been proclaimed on 9 January, the international mediators accepted it and organised the Conference, and the next steps were to organize a responsible authorities. #A legal and obligatory matter.#)

2819. In February 1992, the Accused spoke about their hope that nearly 90% of the Serb population would be in their republic in BiH and that this would be a “sovereign area of the Serbian people”.⁹³⁰⁴ (#Due to the Conference results#! This was after the Conference established that an ethnic reorganisation of BiH was possible and acceptable. As far as it is concerned with the sovereignty, the Serb people was sovereign on the entire territory of BiH as one of the three sovereign peoples, but in a new organisation, and in a new situation of BiH as an independent state, with a new (Islamic) regime, the Serbs wanted to be sovereign only on their territories. There was no any idea that the Conference wouldn’t succeed, and that there will be a war. Nothing illegal in it. A fluid sovereignty of the Serbian people, an “ideal” participation in the assets called BiH, the Serbs wanted to convert into a “real” part. All legal and legitimate. At a meeting of the SDS Deputies’ Club in February 1992, the Accused stated until two or three months ago we were hoping to be able to play the ‘Yugoslav card’ [...]. This is slipping out of our grasp. That’s why we started on another track: a Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina. Our sovereign right, our army. We are preparing the constitutional framework to be able to have immediately [...] to have a national guard, to have our own police force, to have a government, to turn the Yugoslav army into the army of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina.⁹³⁰⁵

(Let us first see #what was skipped and replaced with the brackets# and three points [...]):

We are preparing the constitutional framework to be able to have immediately, and on the basis of the negotiations in Lisbon, to have a national guard, to have our own police force, to have a government, to turn the Yugoslav army into the army of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Exactly this sentence #“and on the basis of the negotiations in Lisbon” is skipped#!#! Why this sentence was not worthy to be in the quoted text? Because then the President words couldn’t be interpreted as a criminal intent! Only this manipulation would be sufficient to dismiss the entire Indictment in all and every democratic country! This was a public consideration how the Serb community in BiH would respond to the illegal and anticonstitutional moves of the Muslim-Croat coalition towards the independence. In such a situation any nation, any people is entitled to express their view, and if neglected in an illegal manner, they are entitled to self-organize. But let us see which crucial parts of the President’s speech had been skipped, i. e. replaced with the brackets and full stops. The entire para looks like this:

Please, until two or three months ago we were hoping to be able to play the “Yugoslav card” and to say, the Yugoslav army, Yugoslavia, legality, etc. This is slipping out of our grasp. That’s why we started on another track: a Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina. Our sovereign right, our army.

We are preparing the constitutional framework to be able to have immediately, and on the basis of the negotiations in Lisbon, to have a national guard, to have our own police force, to have a government, to turn the Yugoslav army into the army of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina.

/#The

first skipped part of sentence is: “[t]o play Yugoslav card, and to say, the Yugoslav army, Yugoslavia, legality, etc., underlined was skipped. Next that was skipped is: “[t]o have immediately, and on the basis of negotiations in Lisbon...” what was the purpose and the meaning of this “omission” in quoting the President? Does this paragraph look a bit different? Is the brackets and three points a new legal instruments for avoiding the true meanings? And all of it was explained before the war, when it was meant that there wouldn’t be any war, and all what happened was a result of the International Conference on the Yugoslavia – ICFY, and there fore couldn’t be used in any criminal case#!#!)

2820. At this meeting Koljević expressed his agreement with the Accused over the outcome of the recently held peace negotiations and the proposed division of BiH into a confederation.⁹³⁰⁶

(Mr. Koljevic didn’t “propose division of BiH into a confederation” this was a subject of the Conference!) Koljević stated “our only chance is to draw borders, to tear them down. That’s what we have been doing in Bosnia and Herzegovina, what we have begun in order to be able to draw the borders and to create our own, and then not to give up on our goal until the times are better”⁹³⁰⁷

(How it was of the interest of this Chamber, in this case? It all described a political fight before the war and without a war, and represented the Serb “red line” in concessions for the sake of peace!) Krajišnik stated with respect to the creation of a unitary Islamic BiH, “that will not succeed. We are a force to be reckoned with. We will not agree to that

[...] there is nothing more important than Serbian freedom”.⁹³⁰⁸ (Big deal! What is wrong with this? Is it a communist political lecture? Why the Chamber is dealing with the issues that were a part of the constitutional rights of the Serbian people in BiH, discussed at the international conference? Should Krajisnik be right if he said that we will give up our freedom, and support an establishment of the Islamic regime?)

2821. The President also spoke to other Bosnian Serb leaders about the chance to create “our independent state and our Army”.⁹³⁰⁹ In this regard, the President also spoke about the preparation of their constitution and laws which would create “the basis to receive the Army on our territory”.⁹³¹⁰ (#None of that was illegal#. The Conference on the future structure of BiH was going on, with this agenda, and the President was obliged to inform the Serb official instances about the course of the talks. 9 February 1992 was a time of the Conference, there was no a war yet!)

2822. The President at Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions reported on the progress of international negotiations with respect to the situation in BiH and his view on what conditions and developments were unacceptable to Bosnian Serbs and what he viewed as attempts to prevent the Serbs from creating a state and exercising their right to self-determination.⁹³¹¹ No crime! In March 1992, the President complained about the manner in which Bosnian Muslim leaders were conducting negotiations but stated that “[f]ortunately we have not been relying on those talks but have created preconditions for the security of the Serb people in their ethnic space within BiH [...] we have not passed the opportunity to complete all the actions necessary for the protection of Serb people”.⁹³¹² (So, the President was supposed to be #stupid and naïve and allow to the SDA to cheat and indanger his Serb community#, or he will be charged and sentenced? Let us see what had been said, P01353, p. 7:

zero in Brussels. And that is our experience of talks with SDA, we have not been talking for more than a year, three months we are on one point and we consider that we have made some progress and then, tomorrow, they retreat to their starting point, to zero and annul everything. Fortunately we have not been relying on those talks but have created preconditions for the security of the Serb people in their ethnic space within BiH, thus they will not putting us around. They have not succeeded in this, as we have not passed the opportunity to complete all the actions necessary for the protection of Serb people.

If we remind ourselves what Ajanovic said a few weeks later about the reason why the Muslims falsely accepted the Lisbon Agreement, to gain a time, than everything is clear: the President was obliged not to trust and rely on the false promises of the SDA. See: D00303, p. 3

Asked by journalists why his party had accepted the recent agreement in Sarajevo, AJANOVIĆ answered that in a manner of speaking it had been a political game which would have ensured international recognition of a sovereign and independent Bosnia and Herzegovina. He further said that his party did not want to

The Chamber had this exhibit in the case file, and still it blames the President for being cotious not be cheated!

2823. In March 1992, the SDS Executive Board confirmed the objective of creating a Serb state in BiH, with its own army and media.⁹³¹³ Doyle testified that at the conferences he attended the general understanding was that “the overall objective of Serbs was to join physically the territories that the Serbs controlled in Bosnia to the territory of Serbia to create a Greater Serbia”.⁹³¹⁴ (“The general understanding” was their own assumptions, of an incompetent witness#!, but it must not be used against the President, as it wasn’t his “understanding”, nor it had been pronounced. Had it been, it would be in their reports to their superiors! This kind of merging the two states couldn’t be done without an agreement that would be accepted by the three Bosnian sides and the Security Council of the UN!) Okun also testified that the goal of the Bosnian Serb leadership was to create an ethnically Serb state in BiH.⁹³¹⁵ The difficulty of this objective of ethnic separation was that BiH was highly intermixed.⁹³¹⁶ What #Mr. Okun thought about it wasn’t relevant, since all those for whom he worked thought different#. Mr Vance thought different, and it was not a decent to ask for the Okun’s opinion on that subject. Also, the Chamber erred in reconsidering such a political question that had been widely agreed and accepted by all the participants in the ICFY, even in 1991 in the Hague, and the sub-conference on Bosnia. Those as Okun, Zepinic and others should tell what they allegedly said when the SDA forced towards the independence of BiH, which was much more “intermixed” than the future constituent units were to be. #Simply, the Chamber must not charge the President with the political issues based on the legitimate basis and accepted by so many participants#. Vitimir Žepinić, for example, warned Plavšić that if they tried to separate the ethnic communities “there would be violence and thousands of innocent civilians would be killed”.⁹³¹⁷ (Zepinic lied! Nobody was going to separate anybody unilaterally, but through the negotiations. And Zepinic wouldn’t have any basis or opportunity to address Ms. Plavsic, since she was his President, i.e. a member of the Presidency, and he was a deputy Munister!)

2824. Krajišnik in March 1992 wrote to Cutileiro and emphasised that the Bosnian Serbs were opposed to the independence of BiH and the creation of a unitary state which could have “catastrophic consequences” and he advocated the creation of “three-national state entities”.⁹³¹⁸

⁹³¹⁵ Herbert Okun, P776 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajišnik), T. 4352–4355, 4414–4415 (further testifying that there was no way to achieve this objective and to separate the people except by forcible means). The Chamber erred in inferring that on the basis of this testimony. #Okun wasn’t an expert witness,# and it was not about separating individuals, but the ethnically defined areas, as it was envisaged by the EC and Amb. Cutileiro. There are more than enough evidence that in every constituent unit there would be a minorities, which meant that there was no envisaged any separation of people. Similarly, other witnesses testified that (i) the SDS had “a policy of ethnically cleansing the territories which they conquered and removing the non-Serb populations from most of those territories”; No witness could testify on this subject without any evidence. Their understanding of “a policy of ethnic cleansing” is a mere gosipp and a reasonable chamber shouldn’t take it into account. (ii) the identical pattern in which the Bosnian Muslim population was moved out of areas where the SDS was in power meant that it “could not have happened spontaneously” and that it was a planned, organised, and systematic operation in accordance with the policy of the SDS and that the local authorities were simply implementing the instructions they had been given; This is not a serious inference, because there was no any model, there was a demand of the scared population to be allowed to leave, and the allegation that there were some instructions given to the local authorities is a baseless assertion. There must be something more in terms of evidence. M. Davidovic redefined his answers after being confronted with the President’s orders, and every reasonable chamber would mention it, either to discredit, or to accept it. Banbury and Kirudja were a shame of this court, and they could have expressed only their believes, nothing else, at least on this subject. (iii) the forced expulsions could not have occurred without there being a policy or participation by Bosnian Serb authorities. Krajišnik also expressed their fear about becoming a national minority in a fundamentalistic Muslim BiH.⁹³¹⁹ (So what? #Why the Chamber deals with such a questions which were legitimate political claims#? For what the President is accused, indicted? It was a legitimate claim, either against the independence, or towards an internal transformation of such an independent state. Is the Chamber of an opinion that the Serbs didn't have any rights to pose their political claims? Or that the Serbs weren't the constituent people in BiH, with the right to veto such a crucial decisions? It seems that the Chamber neglects all the constitutional and legal premises of the political system in BiH and Yugoslavia, particularly if the Serbs enjoyed these rights! Other ethnics were entitled even to a unilateral secessions and violations of the constitutions and the Serb rights!)

2825. On 17 May 1992, the Accused, Krajišnik, and Mladić attended a meeting with the SAO Romanija and heads of neighbouring municipalities in Sokolac where the political and security situation was discussed and the President indicated that “[w]e are looking for results from the army [...] [w]e want our people to be kept safe”.⁹³²⁰ (This was a week after the Assembly decided to form the Army. What is wrong with it? It was the main task, to protect the people!) The Accused went on to recall that creating a separate Serb state and taking that state out of BiH remained the priority and that they should continue with the transformation of the JNA.⁹³²¹ Krajišnik at this meeting indicated that the “time is ripe for a demarcation of the areas between Croats, Serbs, and Muslims because [...] a common state with them is no longer possible, not because we do not want that but because that is what they want. The Muslims leadership has imposed the war on us even though the Serbs wanted a political solution of all problems”.⁹³²² (What is wrong with that?)

2826. Even in August 1992, Krajišnik spoke about Serbs wanting a unified state: “We have our plan, which we must carry out by political, military, and other means, depending on the situation”.⁹³²³ (So what?) why Mr. Krajisnik should not express his own opinion after five months of the war, that was declared and waged against his community? That was a decision of the Parliament and the entire community supported it in at least one elections and one referendum? Would the Chamber be happier if the Serbs subjugated them to the Muslim fundamentalist regime?)

2827. At a meeting of the 1st Krajina Corps in September 1992, attended by Mladić and Bogdan Subotić, and the commanders and presidents of municipalities, it was also noted that the temporary ceasefire “cannot replace the aims of our struggle to create a new Serbian Republic”.⁹³²⁴ (The new Serbian Republic was already created in January 92, by the political means and in the framework of the International Conference. Even Mr. Izetbegovic committed himself to an obligation to facilitate a wide authonomy for the Serbs and Croats, it the Serbs accept the cession from Yugoslavia. This is all in the documents of the ICFY in the Hague in 1991. Why it is not of any importance to this Court of the United Nations? Would the UN and international community back up the deceptions of the Muslim side, as described by Mr. Ajanovic, a high Muslim official, when they reneged on the Lisbon Agreement? The Republic of Srpska had been attacked in April 1992, three months after it was established, and it was attacked by a military means, and had to be defended by a military means. At this meeting, a conclusion was reached to “[e]liminate sectarian feelings towards other nations” based on certain conditions, including their contribution to the advancement of the Serbian Republic.⁹³²⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#! that was in favour of the other nations, ethnic communities, why it would be wrong#? And this is the best proof that there was envisaged the existence of the ethnic minorities in the Republic of Srpska! Therefore, the key charge about a #“permanent removal of non-Serbs is rebutted#!)

2828. In October 1992, the Accused outlined how before the international recognition of BiH they were able to declare their republic “a sovereign and independent state” and that he, along with Buha, and Koljević had insisted in meetings with diplomats on a constituent entity for the Serbian people.⁹³²⁶ (#Legal and legitimate#! This wasn’t something that the President introduced, it was so throughout centuries. In the BiH Constitution it was so, and the Serbs never gave up this right of their own! With such a #lack of knowledge of the domestic legal system#, this Court couldn’t do better!) He expressed his view that the criteria for establishing provinces in BiH were unacceptable and noted that Serbs would only be a temporary majority in one or two provinces.⁹³²⁷ During this speech, the Accused also outlined his view on the position to be taken during negotiations and that one of the provinces would be a Serbian state called Republika Srpska.⁹³²⁸ (So what? For heaven’s sake, what this Chamber was searching for? Those are a pure political questions, completely legitimate and legal! It was accepted by the international mediators, the UN – EC representatives from the very beginning of the crisis. And this was a known precondition for the independence of BiH, otherwise only the Muslims and Croats could have seceded from Yugoslavia! How this can be a crime?#Agreed at ICFY#!).

2829. When the RS and RSK were unified on 31 October 1992, Bosnian Serb leaders including Plavšić emphasised the unity of the Serbian people and their right to self-determination and continued to make similar speeches emphasising this right.⁹³²⁹ (Again, nothing criminal in it, but there is a wrong assertion, and therefore wrong inference! The two Republics never united or unified, they only cooperated. Let us see what was this Declaration really:

and aspirations towards unification of Republika Srpska and the Republic of Serbian Krajina

So, the Declaration on cooperation, and about the unification there was only aspirations declared. But, again, this is a pure political question, without any criminal doings or influence on the criminal developments! It had been declared the wish of the two entites, so that the mediators have it in their minds!) The declaration of unification (wrong quoting) also decided that a co-ordinating committee would consist of the presidents of the republics, the presidents of the assemblies of the republics and the prime ministers of the republics.⁹³³⁰

Is there #any sentence said by the Serbs, no matter officials or not, that is not criminal one#?)

2831. In June 1993, the Accused spoke about recognition of the Bosnian Serb legitimate right to self-determination, that BiH would certainly be divided into three parts, and that Bosnian Muslims should be satisfied with the division because of the municipalities which they would obtain, but if they continued with the war the Bosnian Muslims could lose everything because the Bosnian Serbs would not allow themselves to be “subjugated and dominated” by Muslims.⁹³³² (#”The Accused spoke about... various rights of the Serb people”# So what? Only in a case the Serbs had been forbidden to have any rights and any political life, it would be a felony. Is it an understanding of the Chamber? This is an insulting and humiliating approach to the Serbs and their existence, while the “internationals” i.e. European Community and some in the United Nations kept silent when the Muslim side violated all the constitutional and human rights of the Serbs in Bosnia!)

2832. The Chamber recalls that, at a meeting with international negotiators on 11 January 1993, Krajišnik stressed the Bosnian Serb objective of territorial continuity and named three conditions from the Bosnian Serb Assembly: (i) BiH must be a “composite state community”; (ii) the Bosnian Serbs must have relations with other “states”; and (iii) they must have territorial continuity.⁹³³³ Mladić told Okun and Owen that the Bosnian Serbs wanted “peace with justice” for all three peoples but that the Bosnian Muslims could not “beat”, “exterminate”, or “cause [the Serbs] to disappear”.⁹³³⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#) The following day, at a plenary meeting, the Accused expressed his reservations about the ICFY’s constitutional principles and stated he could not accept them but that he would convey the ICFY’s proposals to the Bosnian Serb Assembly.⁹³³⁵ (So what? This was a #political negotiation, and Mr. Krajisnik, the President and other officials had been authorised by the Assembly to negotiate, to pose the Serb standpoints and fight for an acceptable solution. No need for a witnesses who were involved only partially and from time to time, there are a genuine UN-EC documents from the Conference!)

2833. At a meeting with VRS commanders on 29 January 1994, the Accused stated that while everyone was aware of the Bosnian Serb objectives, “appropriate statements” should be issued to hand trump cards to other parties; he instructed not to make “war-mongering statements” but instead to discuss peace.⁹³³⁶ (So what?) The Chamber recalls that in April 1994, UNPROFOR representatives went to Pale to speak to the President, who declared that the right bank of the Drina will be the Bosnian Serbs’.⁹³³⁷ (So what? It was a very small part of the Gorazde municipality. The Muslims literally expelled all the Serbs at the very beginning of the war, and the local Serbs declared that they would accept not to live on the left bank of the Drina River, which was the only urban area, provided they be allocated the suburb on the right

2834. The Chamber recalls that on 7 July 1994, the Contact Group unveiled a new peace plan under which 51% of BiH would be administered by a newly formed Bosnian-Croat Federation and that 49% be administered by the Bosnian Serbs.⁹³³⁸ On 19 July 1994, at the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the Accused spoke about the Contact Group's proposed plan stating that the acceptance of the plan would not be a guarantee for peace.⁹³³⁹ (So what?) The Bosnian Serbs rejected the plan stating that the plan was unfair and their demands were not met and in a later referendum in Bosnian Serb-held territory, 96% of voters rejected the plan.⁹³⁴⁰ (So what? The Chamber erroneously concluded that the plan was rejected by the President, which was wrong. The President conveyed all the plans to the Assembly accept it, or not. Not only the Assembly, but the entire population in the referendum rejected it only because of the unfair and mean maps?)

2835. The Accused met with Ronald Hatchett in 1994 to discuss a proposal to end the war and asked Hatchett to bring back the proposal to the highest level that he could reach in the United States of America.⁹³⁴¹ The Accused proposed that: (i) BiH would remain a single country; (ii) it would be comprised of two autonomous republics; (iii) each republic would have its own constitution and government; and (iv) he would be willing to accept a division of BiH which would give Bosnian Serbs 49% of the territory so long as it was contiguous and that there would be some trade of areas held by Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Serbs.⁹³⁴² (So what? At least #EXCULPATORY#! This was a proto-type of the Dayton Agreement that was negotiated and concluded a year and a half later. Still, the Serbs sacrificed many areas and interests, but the President did fight in the Assembly that the Dayton Agreement be accepted! The President and Richard Holbrooke were the two main creators of the Agreement!)

2836. At a meeting held in August 1994 between the Accused, Krajišnik and Martić, the President of the RSK, the President advocated that “we should unite in essence, and use formal unification as a threat. Our unification is not enough to arrive at a complete solution. The right solution is unification of all Serbian lands”.⁹³⁴³ (So what? The President tried to postpone a real unification, which could have caused troubles in the region, but to develop an essential cooperation instead. A formal unification would have been interpreted as a violation of the territorial integrity of the two countries, Croatia and BiH. How possibly this can be used against this President? It is rather #EXCULPATORY#!) Krajišnik also stated that the “[t]he objective is a single Serbian state to be agreed upon between the Republic of Serbian Krajina and Republika Srpska. We must work towards that objective without ever losing ties with Serbia”.⁹³⁴⁴ (Not criminal!!! The Serbian people in Srpska Krajina in Croatia were extremely concerned about their destiny, as now we see, with a very good reason. The people saw the only security if the R. Srpska and R. Srpska Krajina united, but the President and his associates advised the essential closeness, equalising school system, legal system and economy, but to avoid territorial and political merging, because it would be against the integrity of the two countries. Certainly, all the Serbs would like to see the Serb question resolved smoothly and democratically, but not a reasonable Serb would risk an instability in the region. There are a plethora of evidence on how the President tried to please the people in the both Republics, but to avoid anything that could cause another war. Commendable, rather than blameable!)

In September 1994, when discussing the possibility of tightened sanctions on Pale with international representatives, the President said "if the international community treats us like a beast, then we will behave like a beast".⁹³⁴⁵ First of all, Mr. Harland wasn't in this delegation at Pale, see what his superior Andreev said: P00834:

1. I have just returned from Pale, where General Rose and I met with the Serb leadership. General Rose and Mr Harland have since met with President Izetbegovic.

Therefore, Harland was with Izetbegovic, not with the President. Second, there were the two main events against the Serbs in Bosnia: the Muslims just had exercised an attack on the Serb Sarajevo from their part of Sarajevo, and the border between the RS and Serbia had been sealed, and the Serbs in BiH "cornered", see P00834

2. Dr Karadzic and his colleagues (Prof Koljevic, Mr Krajisnik, Gen Milovanovic) began the meeting in Pale with an angry statement about the Bosnian attack out of Sarajevo on Sunday (18.9.94). Karadzic said that "there could be no talks on demilitarization after such an attack," and that he would "flatten the Presidency" if there were a repetition of the episode.

Further:

3. The Serbs then entered into a lengthy discussion on the closing of the border with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. They are clearly anxious about this, and are threatening various retaliatory measures. They are also concerned about the possibility that the Security Council will soon tighten sanctions on Pale. Such a move, Karadzic stated, would put UNPROFOR in the position of having sided with the enemy. In his words, "If the international community treats us like a beast, then we will behave like a beast." He specifically mentioned, in this regard, the use

And that is one of problems with the linguistics. There is a saying in the Serbian: if one tells you that you are drunk, but you weren't, jus laugh a bit, if another say the same, just think a bit, and if a third one tells you that you were drunk, start to stagger. Finnaly, the Chamber skipped to mention that the President "mellowed somewhat" like a beast." He specifically mentioned, in this regard, the use of utilities as a means of war. As the afternoon progressed, he mellowed somewhat, indicating that he might consider restoring electricity, water and gas to Sarajevo if this were done in the context of repairs to utilities in Bosnia as a whole. He

This is how the #Chamber is exploiting (and abusing) a negotiating tactics# of the President (which is always harsher at a beginning) to establish and maintain a dark image of him!

The Accused made a similar observation in an interview when he said that if they were treated as animals or "wild beasts in a cage" they could not be expected to "act in a tolerant and correct manner".⁹³⁴⁶ negotiations, the President stated that if peace was not possible through political means, the Bosnian Serbs would put an end to the war by military means.⁹³⁴⁹ (All of that was entirely legitimate, although it was not written by the President. The Chamber had a sufficient evidence to infer that the President only signed it bypassing the VRS Main Staff, while several elements of the document, like the protocol number and seal, prove that it was not created in the President's office,! The President could be relaxed because the first subordinate would read it carefully and correct any incorrect matter, as Gen. Subotic always did. In this case it was done by Gen. Mladic, and the operative form of this directive, the Directive 7/1 didn't have the critical sentence. It should be known to the Chamber that the President handed the operative and tactical competence of command to the Main Staff, and thus none of his orders were operative directly, without elaboration of the Main Staff as a professional body!)

2838. The Chamber recalls that the Dayton peace talks began in November 1995 and even though the President had been removed from the RS negotiating team he played a central consultative role in regards to RS negotiations.⁹³⁵⁰ (So what? First of all, nobody removed the President, he removed himself because of the Indictment before this court, but he didn't cease to exercise his duties. Because of his absence in Dayton, many agreed elements of the Agreement, and all the "gentlemen agreements" had been erased!) These talks concluded in the Dayton Agreement, however, the RS delegation was unsatisfied with specific details of the agreement and refused to attend the final plenary session of the peace talks as well as the ceremonial initialling of the peace agreement.⁹³⁵¹ The Dayton Agreement was initialled by Tuđman, Slobodan Milošević, and Izetbegović on 21 November 1995 and signed on 14 December 1995.⁹³⁵² (Wrong! The President initialled the Agreement after the delegation returned to Belgrade. Although it was a case of fait accompli, the President didn't want to deteriorate the situation, and later on he defended the Dayton Agreement before the Assembly, which was not happy with many elements of the solution!)

1. Conclusion

2839. The Chamber finds based on this evidence that the Accused as early as September 1991 was identifying territories which were to be claimed by Bosnian Serbs. (That happened as a part of the Serb concessions, without which there wouldn't be any independence of BiH! It was rather commendable, because the President gave up the idea to prevent the Muslim and Croat community from seceding from Yugoslavia, which could be achieved through the Constitution, and accepted a painful compromise. Beside that, an identifying and claiming territories is not a crime, nor the Indictment pretended to it!) It is clear that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership advocated and worked towards a territorial re-organisation which would allow the Bosnian Serbs to claim control and ownership of a large percentage of the territory in BiH. (The Chamber presumed as if the illegal steps of the Muslim-Croat coalition towards the independence was legal and legitimate, although the authorised international arbitrage commission, the Badinter's commission found that BiH can not claim for the independence as other Yugoslav republics did, and that BiH needed a referendum! "Working towards a territorial re-organisation" is also a #legitimate conduct and legal intentions#, particularly after the Muslim part of the common Government decided to go towards an independence. Izetbegovic announced as early as in March 91 that the document on independence will be adopted, with or without the Serbs, which couldn't be done legally!) In terms of establishing control over this territory, the Accused worked towards the creation of parallel institutions, organs of government, and military and police structures which could gain or retain control of those areas. (Couldn't be more erroneous! There was no any idea that there would be any war, because the political process was mediated by the international community, and there was no any space to "gain" control. However, to "retain control" it was an obligation, since the Serbs won the elections 1990 in all the areas with the Serb majority, and this authorities remained on power until the 1996 elections! Therefore, the President and his Party had every right and all the obligations to establish and retain this control. But, unlike the Chamber's suggestion, it was an obligation, not a crime. Now, when the Chamber deals with the political issues, the un-fairness of the trial is more visible for another reason: the #Chamber prevented the Defense to present the reasons for the political measures of the President and the Serb side, i.e. the conduct of the two other sides#. Either the President and his side had those reasons, or he and his side were mad. In either case, it must be considered: #if they did have reasons, these reasons had to be known to the Chamber, to see whether the President's conduct was adequate and legal, or not.# If the President and his 1,500.000 Serbs didn't have any rationale reason for their fears, concerns and actions, they must have been either born criminals, or had been mad, and therefore not liable!) The Chamber's findings with respect to the creation of these parallel structures will be further elaborated in Section IV.A.3.ii. (Whatever the Chamber concluded about the political action of the President, there is a fundamental question: how come #the UN court is contesting everything that the same UN initiated, led and ended in Dayton, and by its SC Resolution?#) 2840. Having considered this evidence, the Chamber finds that from November 1991 the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership spoke against Bosnian Muslims being allowed to stay in Bosnian Serb claimed territory and emphasised the importance of taking control of power and the creation of separate municipalities and municipal structures. (#Criminal distortion#! The inference is wrong and impossible, and #contradicts to a huge amount of evidence#. There was no a simple evidence to that direction, nor it happened in reality. First, "against Bosnian Muslims being allowed to stay in B.S. claimed territories": what evidence it was based upon? There was no any mentioning of such a feature. The Serb side, after being offered by Mr. Izetbegovic, to divide Bosnia (see D01282) and being confronter with the illegal and anticonstitutional actions of the SDA towards independence, decided not to accept it, and to use its constitutional rights to selforganize. This self-organisation was clearly in accordance with the Constitution and laws, and pertained to the corrections of the composition of municipalities, so that every ethnic community could govern its own affairs. The list of evidence contrary to this inference will be added! @@!) The Chamber considers the Accused's statement in February 1992 and the supporting statements of both Koljević and Krajišnik to be highly probative in terms of explaining the changing objectives of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership. The Chamber finds that this speech by the Accused confirms that until late 1991, the Bosnian Serbs were still hopeful of maintaining Yugoslavia, (This approach was the only legal and legitimate, in accordance with the Constitution and laws!) but when it became apparent that this objective was slipping away, (It "was slipping away" because of an illegal interference of the western countries, which supported the unilateral, illegal and violent secessions!) they changed course and made preparations for the creation of their own sovereign Serb entity in BiH which would include its own political, civilian, and military structures. (Insufficient and erroneous inference: before the elections both SDA and SDS, i.e. the President and Mr. Izetbegovic were for the preservation of Yugoslavia, which was the basis for their coalition Government. #The SDA changed the position, the SDS didn't.# The entire 1991 was full of events and political negotiations about the future of BiH. The SDS and the President kept giving the concessions for the sake of peace and good relations within BiH, among others giving up the Serb plans to form the regions within BiH, which was in accord with the Constitution and laws. Only after the Muslim side maintained its secessionist plans, the Serb side posed before the Conference its own proposals and conditions under which the Serb community would accept the independence of BiH. This was acceptable to the EC, and later to the UN mediators. As far as it is concerned with the Serbian “political, civilian and military structures” all of it already existed in every municipality, and in the central organs within the common structures, were the Serb side had at least one third of every structure. A so called “ideal one third in ownership in everything in BiH” the Serb side decided to turn in a so called “real one third ownership of assets” because the Muslim side unilaterally changed the structure of the Bosnian Republic by introducing the Islamic Declaration of Mr. Izetbegovic as a program!)

2841. The Accused’s rhetoric and discussions with international representatives also made it clear that he advocated the separation of people and believed that co-existence with the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats was not possible. (Wrong inference! #Deliberately distorted, and properly quoted, it would be: “a co-existence in a unitary Bosnia under the Muslim fundamentalist regime was not possible”!#There was no this kind of decision among the Serbs in BiH. It didn’t pertain to co-existence with the people, and to corroborate that, it is sufficient to remind ourselves what the Serbs were ready to accept if only the two other ethnic communities remained in Yugoslavia, where they would live together with the Serbs, as they did until that moment. The crucial element was a new political and judicial system, the independent state under the Muslim domination. So, it wasn’t a question whether to live together, but under what system. Even the Croats, who at the beginning were allies of the Muslims in seceding from Yugoslavia, didn’t accept the Muslim concept of the unitary independent Bosnia, and expressed a solidarity with the Serb claims. This kind of negligence of the facts, known to everyone after the eight years of the trial, is unbelievable and unacceptable. This kind of a simplicistic inferences must not be accepted. His rhetoric also emphasised that they were fundamentally different people who had been forced to live together. No matter what we all may think about it (the President, as well as Lord Owen, thought that all the three communities were Serbs) the truth is that the three communities were extremely antagonised throuout centuries, with many armed clashes and civil wars. There are three religions, two languages (some said even three languages, as the President said, see@...) and whenever the central authorities, whether in Istanbul, in Vienna or in Belgrade, collapsed, these ethnic communities fought against each other. This fact will not be changed by any inference of this Chamber, or anything in the world. The President’s “rhetoric” was rather a loud meditation within the circles of politicians, in form of an academic discussion, but still the President was ready to give up any Serb plans for the sake of the preservation of common life, which wasn’t possible and wasn’t safe for the Serbs in a unitary Bosnia under the Muslim domination, not even without the new fundamentalist ideology! The Chamber finds that this ideology was repeated and used by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership as justification for the creation of ethnically homogeneous entities in BiH and for minimising the number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who would remain in Bosnian Serb claimed territory. (#Wrong inference and simplicistic, and even malicious approach, and CRIMINAL IN SUBSTANCE#! 1. There was never any claims or intentions for a “ethnically homogeneous entity” but for a ethnically based entity#! 2. This was not any President’s ideology, but a very heavy burden of heritage of historic developments, and anyone minimally educated knew that, see what I. Eaglburger said about it: Lawrence Eagleburger:” I think the major lesson here is when you got involved in something like this with a thousand years of history underlying it all, you need to understand that once the dam breaks, the viciousness can be pretty awful – on all sides. Yugoslavia, the Avoidable War, Part 1, at 46:00.)

It was closely tied with the Muslim decision whether they insisted on the independence, which they couldn't achieve lawfully or not. A "minimising the number of Bosnian Muslims and Croats, who would remain in the B.S claimed territory" as well as "homogenisation" of the territory are falsely depicted in the Judgment. In spite of a plethora of evidence that a #homogenisation pertained only to the territories that would or would not be included, a process of including-excluding settled places from a certain constituent unit.# The only instrument in homogenisation was to respect the free will of the settled places, villages, even entire municipalities or it's parts, to join a constution unit with it's majority! And this happened even before the war, in a presence of the ECMM, see D...@(Dobratici from Skender Vakuf – Knezevo, to join Jajce)... There is no a piece of evidence that there was any other mechanism of homogenisation, that would pertain to individuals, it is not found and submitted, and will never be found. The Chamber had seen an original speech of the President on 12 May 1992 in the Assembly, in which he underlined that it is going to be a "state separation", see P956, p.3:

KARADŽIĆ: Ladies and gentlemen, deputies, honourable guests, we find ourselves in a situation created by the historical fate of the Serbian people and its geo-strategic and geo-political position. It seems as if something new is happening to us, but in fact we are experiencing something that has happened to us before, only this time our answer is different, if I may say so, we are more prepared and more successful. The political conditions in Bosnia and Herzegovina in the last two years, since the foundation of the HDZ /Croatian Democratic Union/, first in Croatia and then in Herzegovina, and later in Bosnia too, with its militant and dangerous gatherings, with insignia of the Ustasha regime which committed genocide against us, and the setting up of the SDA /Party of Democratic Action/ at its founding assembly, with its militant Islamic fundamentalism and guests from Croatia who drew the Croatian border on the Drina river, the first defence line of Croatia on the Drina have been very crowded complex. The number of events in unit of time was enormous. These two events, which followed the breakup of the one-party system and the arrival of democracy, that is to say, the multi-party parliamentary system, were a great challenge for the Serbs. With their natural readiness for law, order, and peace, the Serbs were willing even to put up with a regime in which peace and order were for the most part paid from the funds of Serbian spirituality, culture, statehood and economy. However, as a people known for and inclined to democracy, we accepted the challenge of the time, accepted the multi-party parliamentary democracy and, as it was obvious that the Croatian Democratic Union and the Muslim national community were taking certain roads which aimed not only at the prosperity of their peoples, but would inevitably suppress the Serbian national interest in these areas, we set up our national movement, called the Serbian Democratic Party, entered the elections and, in these very tense times, you as deputies managed to keep pace with those who were destroying Yugoslavia while wishing to solidify Bosnia and Herzegovina and their positions in a Bosnia and Herzegovina under their domination.

This is the very beginning of the President's speech. Let us see further, first the explanation of the recent events, an then the part that pertained to the "strategic objectives" P956, p.4 in it. During that period, we gave our full contribution to the preservation of peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but in a way which did not sacrifice a single Serbian political or state interest. Our moves, which led to the setting up of our own State in this area were sequential, successive and always provoked by violations of the rules of the game, violations of the Constitution, human and written laws on the part of our partners. We remember very well how much care we took not to make moves which would undermine our neighbourly relations, undermine peace, and lead to unrest and a possible war conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina. All our moves were provoked, they were well measured and they led us in the direction of establishing a balance that was disrupted by our partners and their unjust acts. That is how we came to this assembly, after the deputies from Muslim and Croatian national communities, assisted by some opposition parties, denied any meaning of the BH Assembly, after they had decided to enclose us in their own state, to make us wake up in a foreign state, whose signs and symbols are quite well known to us from our near and distant past, both under Croatian and Turkish occupation. We were forced to exercise our right to self-determination and set up our own state. The European Community became an ally, meaning that part of the European Community which was allied to our opponents in the Second World War, but they nevertheless accepted our proposal for a conference on Bosnia and Herzegovina, recognising that the Serbian people would not accept the

It was spoken publicly, and nobody ever denied the accuracy of it!) Now, see the part about the "separation", P956, p.9

The Serbian side in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Presidency, the Government, the Council for National Security, which we have set up, have formulated the strategic priorities, that is to say, the strategic goals for the Serbian people. The first such goal is separation from the other two ethnic communities - separation of states.

Therefore, there is no any confusion: a separation of states, not of population!) . The Chamber notes that these sentiments were in contrast with public statements the President had made in 1990 when the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership continued to emphasise the unity of Yugoslavia and the existence of a common state. (Wrong inference! This is in a complete accord! The Serbs wanted Yugoslavia to be preserved, with all the Republics in it, including a united Bosnia. However, the others changed their course, and the Serbs were entitled to pose their opposition to the secession of BiH. Finally, the Serbs made concessions, provided the internal organisation of BiH be changed. Therefore, no obstacle to a common life was advocated by the President, provided the Serbs-Muslims-Croats remained in a common and federalised state, with all the safeguards of everyone's rights protection. In Yugoslavia wasn't a unitary state, because the Muslims and Croats wouldn't accept it, why BiH would be a unitary state, while the Serbs had their rights?)

2842. The Chamber further finds that the President made extensive use of maps to highlight the territorial claims of the Bosnian Serbs. These territorial claims included strategically significant areas where Bosnian Muslims were a majority prior to the conflict. #The Accused defended these claims and noted that they only seized territories to which they had a right. (#It wasn't seizing, it was a legitimate controlling the areas in which the SDS won the elections and had the responsibility for it. The Muslim side had chosen the war as a mean of achieving their objectives militarily, otherwise, all the territorial issues would be negotiated.) This rhetoric was also linked with the stated position of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership that they had no interest in living with Bosnian Muslims. (#Not, "living with Bosnian Muslims", but under the Bosnian Muslim domination, or under anyone's domination, as many European ethnicities do not accept to be minorities in their own state, and therefore have their entities, cantons (Switzerland) or other forms of a separate self-government like in Belgium, Flandreau, Valona, Norther Ireland, Scotland, Welles, Pharos Islands, and others#! Wrong inference!!! It was not only the Serb side that had the maps, every side had maps, and the mediators (Carrington, Cutilleiro, Vance, Owen) expected the sides to the talks to deliver their view of the territorial distribution of the ethnic communities. The first one who made the maps of the ethnic distribution was Ambassador Cutilleiro and his expert Mr. Darwin. But what the Chamber is trying is identifying the main villain for the war. In such a case, the Defence didn't have a fair and correct trial and possibility to depict who was doing what. Living with the Muslims was one thing, and another living under the Muslim domination, and that was unacceptable for both the Serbs and Croats, even without the fundamentalism!)

2843. The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership repeatedly referred to and re-asserted the historic territorial claims of the Bosnian Serbs. (There is an international provision that a #results of genocide and war crimes must not have a permanent effects, and the Serb side has a right to remind the world on this#. But, the President didn't demand those areas, he was only reminding everyone what happened to the Serbs in BiH and Croatia!) In making these arguments and territorial claims, reference was also made to the historic crimes committed against the Bosnian Serbs, which meant they were no longer a majority in BiH and in areas which they claimed as a "birthright". The Chamber finds that the Accused's position with respect to these historic territorial claims was endorsed by the Bosnian Serb Assembly and formed a core aspect of the Bosnian Serb objectives in including these territories in the RS. (#Wrong inference!!! There was anyway too much of territory that the Serbs wanted to return for the sake of peace.# The rhetoric was a part of political speeches and a preparations for negotiations, not an ultimate claim!) The Chamber finds that constant references to historic crimes committed against Bosnian Serbs were used as a means of justifying their territorial acquisitions which they viewed as belonging to them. (#There was no any “acquisition”# without a war, it would be negotiated, and as the Chamber concluded, the claims of territory was not a crime. From the beginning of the war, the #Serb side was ready to return a big portion of their territories for a political solution#. There is a lot of evidence on it. But nobody, and certainly not this UN court is entitled to deny the Serb memories of the genocide which had been committed on them, the Jews and Gipsies only 45 years before the crisis in Yugoslavia started. That would be as if the Chamber advise that the Jews do not mention the holocaust any longer!) The Chamber also finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership referred back to historic attacks they faced from their “enemies” and the manner in which the Serbs became a minority in BiH to justify their objective of creating a Bosnian Serb State. (#Wrong inference! The Chamber is criminalizing entire Serb political life, contesting the Serb rights to influence the process of secession and transformation of BiH# This is unbearable and shouldn’t be allowed to any court, let alone to the UN court#! Even if there was no any genocide against the Serbs, the position of a constituent nation, and also as a more that one third numerous population, the Serbs had right to veto the secession!# #The Serbs gave up all the plans, including the plan on regionalisation for the sake of the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement. Had there wasn’t the illegal secession with the aim to form a unitary BiH under the fundamentalist’s control, there wouldn’t be any of the Serb claims and plans. In a new situation, created by the illegal and anti-constitutional acts of the Muslim side, the Serbs had every rights to declare their interests and a legal basis for it. Although the Serbs became a minority in the BiH as a whole, and although it was a result of the war crimes of an incomprehensible extent, the Serbs remained the majority in about 65% of the BiH territory, and nobody had any right to deny it to them! The Chamber is adopting the communist strategy, to ban the Serb memories on the genocide. Because of this communist ban, the Serb victims of the genocide were buried properly only after 1990, after the fall of communism!)

2844. The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership also spoke about the importance of controlling Bosnian Serb claimed territories and how significant the factual situation on the ground in terms of controlling territory was for the purposes of international negotiations. (#Even without any war, all the authorities in municipalities and local communes had both the rights and obligations to control the entire territory, particularly against any arms smuggling, an illegal military organisations out of the JNA control, and to maintain a full control in terms of prevention of any criminal activity.# The war in Croatia made it even more urgent. The domestic laws required it due to the All-peoples Defence Law, and the rules of the Social Self-protection! Not to mention that Bosnia was a lawlsss country, with a chaos and the civil war!) The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership emphasised the Serb nature of the land which they claimed and controlled and the importance of those territorial claims in preventing the Islamisation of those areas. (Not exactly! #It wasn’t a matter of “islamisation” it was a matter of an interethnic balance, which must not be changed artificially, through a planned re-settling of the people of other ethnicity#. The same is in any ethnically mixed territories, in Israel, West Bank of the Jordan River, in Northern Ireland, in Belgium, everywhere where an ethnic balance was established and preserved. So, the Chamber doesn’t have any right to expect the Serbs or any other etnic community to accept that kind of jeopardy for it’s survival! #That would be a colonial attitude of the UN court#!)

2845. The Chamber further finds that the strategic objectives of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were also communicated to and formed a core element in the military strategy of the VRS which was to create the RS. (#Wrong inference. The VRS didn’t have a task to “create the RS”, because the RS had been created on 9 January 1992 by the political means.

The VRS wouldn't be even formed had the Muslim side kept its obligation towards the Lisbon Agreement#. The VRS was formed with the aim to defend the VRS, because the Muslim side did everything to deny the existence of the Serb entity, and did it by forming a secret army, the Patriotic League and the Green Berets, and finally by reneging on the Agreement and attacking the JNA and the Serbs. No reasonable chamber would neglect these facts! See D1598, p.5, General Milovanovic first interview with the OTP in 2001 about the task the political leadership posed before the VRS, D1598:

General MILOVANOVIC then said that the Tribunal should not try to prove the character of the war in BiH through such trials. At the beginning of the war, the Serbs wanted, above all, to stay in the SFRY, the Muslims wanted to form their Muslim state and the Croats wanted access to the Drina River. At the beginning of the war, he asked the leadership at the time to provide objectives of the war, which were the following:

1. to protect the Serbian people from destruction in order to avoid a repeat of events that took place between 1941 and 1945,
2. to stay within Yugoslavia, or as an alternative to this, have our own state.

No one in BiH has completely achieved their objective, and the Serbs have been given the alternative solution. There is an anecdote about the Serbs, that they won two wars

o, no a #military task before the VRS, only a defensive and protective ones#!) These speeches and statements also demonstrate that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership supported and endorsed the territorial acquisitions which had been achieved militarily by Serb Forces. (#There was no military acquisitions of territory!# Wrong inference! There was a very few places that had been "acquired" by the "Serb Forces" which wouldn't be the Serb majority territory. Even when the war started, the Serb side offered the Muslims to form their municipalities wherever they had enough population. Then, at the beginning, the Serb side even didn't try to take control over the Muslim settlements. So, in Zvornik there was more than 50% of the municipality under the Muslim control all the times, in Ilidza also, in Hadzici about 80% under the Muslim control, in Foca about 40%, in many other municipalities, particularly if there was no a war at the beginning, in April. #When it was clear that there is going to be a long lasting war, some of the location had been kept for the tactical or strategic reasons, and couldn't be handed over to the opposite side before the peace was reached#!) The Chamber finds that while these military operations were described by the Bosnian Serbs as being "defensive" or for the purposes of "liberation", their purpose and effect was to take control of Bosnian Serb claimed territory in BiH and to expand the area which would be included in the RS. The Accused supported these military successes and viewed them as a means of defining Bosnian Serb territory and creating their own state which they would not relinquish. (#Wrong inference, not even close to a real.# First of all, the Chamber can not name any significant territory which the Serbs allegedly "liberated" with an aim to keep them after the final solution. On the contrary, there was always both declaration and conscious that the territorial issues were to be defined in the Conference#, see the President's Platform from April 22, 1992- D110,

5. Public commitment by all sides in BH that the policy of an accomplished act, even the one originated from the communist heritage, will not be accepted and territorial advantages gained through the use of force will not be recognized.

and all other documents. The fact that the Serbs had taken off several municipalities around Sarajevo that were almost 90% Serb proves that even defended areas were not guaranteed to any side! This UN court is not relying on the UN documents, accepted on the Conference in a different stages of it, but on a political speeches, gossips, intercepts of the telephone conversations and other fifth class documents. And this must not be done!!! Otherwise, the UN as such would be responsible for many negative precedents and a bad consequences!)

2846. While the Accused publicly claimed that he had no influence over the issue of war, it was clear that he envisaged that in a war, there would be bloodshed and all the communities would flee towards their “fully homogeneous” areas. In contrast to public statements where the Accused foreshadowed what could happen, the #Accused was simultaneously calling for seizing power in Bosnian Serbs claimed territories (#A typical mess of time frame and meaning. First, President Karad'i said that if there will be a war, “we (all) would not be able to control it, but it would control us”, while the “seizing power” in the Serb areas has nothing to do with a war, because the Serbs got the power through the elections, and it was their obligation, and it was necessary to be done even when it was meant that there wouldn't be any war! There a many more Serb municipalities in which the Serbs “seized power” and there was no any population movements, particularly in the municipalities with presidents who were the members of the Main Board of the SDS at the same time#!) which would result in the population movements which he envisaged. (Couldn't be more wrong inference! It was not a clearvoyance, it was an experience from the previous wars, and particularly from the war in Croatia, which lasted to early 92 in a harsh form. In every civil war in this area the same happened always: the population fled to an area with their people in majority and under control of their own army. When the President “predicted” what would happen if BiH enters into a war, it was within a framework of his fighting for a political solution, and within a process of dissuasion of the two other sides to continue towards a war. In support to this efforts of the President there are many concessions made by him and his community, just with the aim to avoid a war. The bloodshed and movement of the population didn't happen because the President predicted it, but because the two other sides wanted a war to achieve their objectives. At the end, the solution was as the EC and the President proposed before the war. Why the Chamber didn't point out a single evidence that it was as it concluded?) The Chamber finds that the Accused was not simply foreshadowing what he thought could happen, he was outlining the pattern which was actually put into practice. (Why it was “put into practice” in only one third of municipalities, and not in all of them? #”Seizing power”# wasn't “taking-over, but a lawful obligation!# look at that sentence: #Accused was simultaneously calling for seizing power in Bosnian Serbs claimed territories //which would result in the population movements which he envisaged.// The second part of sentence is unbelievable, and presents a very mean distortion of meaning by the Chamber itself. “The population movement was envisaged in a case of a civil was and chaos, and to prevent it there was necessary to execute power efficiently, not vice versa!!!#) The Chamber also finds that the Accused and Bosnian Serb leadership were aware and put on notice that the objective of ethnic separation would result in violence given the extent to which the population in BiH was intermixed and yet still proceeded to pursue this objective. (#Again, it is “ethnic separation”, although it was clearly underscored a “state separation#! How anyone could defend against this persistent distortion and manipulation??#! Why some internationals encouraged the Muslims to secede and form a unitary Muslim state, in spit of the fact that the Christian majority didn't agree? If there was a political solution at the beginning, as it was at the end of the crisis, there wouldn't be any movement of population. The movement of population didn't happen because the Serbs wanted their own authonomy, but because the Muslim leadership tried to militarily prevent the Serbs to achieve the objective which had been supported by the European Community and the United Nations! The Chamber is avoiding so obvious truth, that there wouldn't be any population movement if the Muslims didn't renege on the Lisbon Agreement! The Serbs are not responsible for the war, and only the war caused all misfortune and disaster! #And finally, there, even with the war, there was no movement of population in two third of municipalities, in which there was no the rebellion of a secret terrorist organisation!)

THIS PARAGRAPH 2846 IS A PARADIGMATIC FOR THE ENTIRE JUDGMENT, BECAUSE CONTAINS ALL THE TYPICAL ERRORS AND DELIBERATE MANIPULATIONS THAT LEAD TO A SENTENCING CONCLUSION AGAINST ANY LOGICS: 1. Time-frame shifted, “control over the issue of war” was said before the war, in advising against the war; 2. a “foreshadowing what could have happened” was said in the same context, before the war, arguing against the war; 3. “...simultaneously calling for seizing power in Bosnian Serb claimed territories” was a legal obligation and in accord with the Conference (ICFY) and meant a responsible execution of the local power which anyway belonged to the Serbs since the 1990 elections; 4. which would result in the population movements which he envisaged, which has nothing to do with a chaotic “population movement” in a case of civil war. So, all the measures that President Karad`i} recommended to the local authorities had a completely OPPOSITE MEANING AND AIM!#) 2847. The Chamber finds that in international settings and press conferences, the Accused defended the actions of Bosnian Serbs and spoke in favour of the interests of minorities and denied the suggestion that people would be forced from their homes. (And that is how it was not only in the two third of municipalities, but even in this one third – in the settled places where there was no fights and terrorists intrenched! Out of more than sixty Serb municipalities, #with more than 3,000 settled places, there were the armed confrontations only in about 50 to 70 settled places#!) However, despite these public statements, the Chamber finds that the evidence demonstrates that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were informed when municipalities were taken over by Serb Forces and were also aware that their territorial claims and the military manner in which those claims were asserted resulted in the displacement of thousands of non-Serbs. (Couldn’t be more wrong inference! There shouldn’t be a war, everything could have been settled down peacefully and through the Conference, as it happened at the end. The others decided to be a war. There is #no leadership and command that could order a defeat of people#. Once a war brakes out, the social processes can not be controlled. The public statements of the President were aimed to calm down the population and to make the people know what is the position of the leadership. “Being informed” means nothing. The municipalities that had been “taken over” wouldn’t be taken over if there was no a war, otherwise the Serbs had been interested in #only the Serb settled places in those municipalities#, and even when the war broke out the Serbs offered to the Muslims and Croats to form their municipalities too, and this process started, but was stopped by the SDA Centre. NOBODY CAN NEGLECT THIS FACT. When the SDA rejected it and ordered the war against the “aggressors”, meaning the domestic Serbs, all other went out according to the war axioms! But, the Chamber is accepting the Prosecution’s generalisation, although there are meny more municipalities without the events “found” in the Judgement than those in which the crimes happened. The only difference is: if the Muslims-Croats didn’t attack the Serbs in their municipalities, there was no these events!) The Bosnian Serb leadership was also informed about the drastic demographic changes which resulted in Serbs becoming a majority in a number of municipalities. The Accused himself acknowledged the new demographic and territorial realities which they had created and that in undertaking military operations to expand their territory the Bosnian Muslim population had been concentrated in small areas. (#This is an ogly forgery: it had been said about fights, which resulted with more dense Muslim lines, and had nothing to do with the demographic or territorial issues!# This demonstrates yet again the difference between the public statements made by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership and the reality on the ground, of which they were fully aware. Wrong inference! What is the evidence? If the President said that the new realities had been created, those who know Serbian would see that it was an academic comment of facts, not any bragging or accomplishing any plan. Since the Muslims declared the war against the Serbs in Bosnia, the Serbs were entitled to defeat them on every inch of the territory, and then to negotiate. The Serbs didn’t do it, although that would be a military logics. The Chamber was able to notice that the President kept saying that he didn’t want a soldiers to die for some areas that hadn’t been Serbian and are going to be returned to the others, see...@.. Why the Chamber neglected it? The Chamber knew that the President kept saying from the beginning of the war (Platform of 22 April 92, i.e. D110, and public statements, see...@) that the forcefully taken territories shall not be recognised. The Chamber could have known that the President opposed this military logics and took a risk to have his people defeated and destroyed, see@....

(1) The sentence “the Muslim population had been concentrated in small areas” never pertained to the population, but to the forces along the frontlines. The shorter confrontation line, the more Muslim soldiers on a km. of confrontation line, and more the Serb soldiers needed. It was a mere conclusion after observing what was happening on the terrain. Such a conclusions didn’t mean anything else but a conclusion and explanation how this change influenced the war events, and didn’t pertained to the President’s will or conduct. The Muslim forces attacked, and lost, and retreated, and the population.

(2) To conclude that the Serbs “in undertaking military operations to expand their territory” is contrary to everything that happened, and the Chamber knew that. It is sufficient to see the official documents of the UN and EC adopted in the ICFY, and during the meetings with the mediators, such as P941. The Serb side knew from the beginning that it can not comprise all the Serbian territory, that they will return a substantial amount of territory, and that the President prevented the Army (VRS) to fight for territories, which put him in a very bad relations with the military people

(3) #Being “aware” of the processes doesn’t mean being able to change the course of events. #Once an army is attacked, all the events afterwards depend of both, not of only one #side. There were the four warring sides, and no unilateral moves could help in any way. Should the Serb side surrender, because the enemies were losing?)

2848. The Chamber also finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were aware that some of the territory which they took over and controlled were areas where Serbs had not been a majority but the Accused emphasised that these municipalities had to be taken for strategic and/or historic reasons. (#Once the other side decided that the outcome of the crisis was to be military, it was fully legitimate# to say that. Even if it was temporary, until the war ends, no reasonable army, no reasonable warring side would hand over a tactically or strategically important spots. And if it was a prospective to have a long lasting conflict, the strategic importance is even more remarkable! The President never said that he was going to include such a places in the Serb entity, but while the war lasts, there could not be any retreat!)

2849. The Chamber notes that there were some speeches, statements, and announcements by the Accused which placed the blame on the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats for the separation of people and claimed that in contrast the Bosnian #Serbs were not creating “an ethnically clean state”. However, the Chamber finds that these statements and announcements were used as a means of creating a narrative, particularly for the international audience in which the Bosnian Serbs would not be blamed for the separation and the movement of people. (This is a #very mean, and completely wrong conclusion-finding#. There is a serial of evidence from the closed meetings of the Serb leadership with tis kind of conclusions, without any possibility to be public. See: P1478, p.313:

KARADŽIĆ:

* Unlike the Muslims and Croats we are going to build a law-abiding rather than an ethnically clean state.-

This was communicated only to the VRS officers, and would never be seen public if the Mladic’s diaries hadn’t been included in evidence. On the same meeting Professor Koljevic said, the same page:

KOLJEVIĆ:

- We should take a stand → discuss law-abiding versus national state and make our policy known.

* STAND TAKEN – LAW-ABIDING STATE –

So, Mladic wrote down that the final decision on the stand was – #LAW –ABIDING STATE!- concluded at a strictly confidential meeting#! : In this regard the Chamber notes for example that the President made it clear that the Bosnian Serbs were making preparations for their own “ethnic space” in BiH regardless of the tone of negotiations between the parties to the conflict at that time. (This is completely misunderstood! It was the Serb “condition sine qua non” any BH independence, and the Serbs gave the last concession. The Serbs had their “ethnic space” in BiH from immemorial times, they had been the oldest population in BiH. This “ethnic space” was inhabited mainly by the Serbs, a rural areas of a great extent, but economically much poorer than the Muslim areas. So, to conclude that the Serbs made preparations for their own “ethnic space” is out of mind. The Serbs negotiated already in a good faith, and there could be no other solution without this minimal Serb condition! What the Serbs wanted was either the entire Bosnia to remain in Yugoslavia, or a new administrative distribution of power, so that no ethnic group dominate over the other. There are many such examples in the western world, and that is why the European Community immediately recognised the problem and gave its proposal about three autonomous republics within BiH. The way the Chamber treats the core of the crisis, it appears as if the Serbs came from somewhere and wanted to secure their own “ethnic space” on the account of the others! How it is possible to defend against such a cosmic lack of knowledge about a very essence of the problem, and a cosmic reluctance to hear about this essence, and about the domestic legal system?) The Chamber finds that this is indicative of the position taken by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership and that their public statements often directly contradicted the plans which they had for ethnic separation. (#Wrong inference and a very mean position of the Chamber#. #There was never any plan for “ethnic separation” – but only for a “state separation”#! If the Chamber deals with this issue, then there must be considered the conduct of the two other sides, because the President’s statement got this qualifications. Now, we see how unfair was it to prevent the Defence to depict the conduct of the other two warring factions. #The Chamber can not deny that already in September 92 there was no a single Serb settlement in the Muslim-Croat territory#, while there was many Muslim and Croat settled places in the RS; that The Serbs emptied the M/C territory in a hasty way, leaving everything behind them, and being killed meanwhile, while the Muslim and Croat civilians that demanded the transfer to “their” territory formed a list and got a transport vehicles and police escort; that there was more Serb refugees than the Muslim and Croat refugees together; if the Chamber is contesting the President’s assertions, frankness and accuracy, it must check whether it was so by finding out what the two other sides were doing, particularly if it influenced the events on the Serb territory.

Since the Muslim/Croat side wanted to change the nature of Bosnia, the Serbs publicly and legitimately declared that either they will stay in Yugoslavia, or will demand another internal organisation of the state. “Regardless of the tone of negotiations” means nothing, because this was a “condition sine qua non” the Bosnian independence. It was clear to everybody, no cheating.

The public statements never contradicted to the plans for a “state separation” because it wasn’t an ethnic separation in a personal terms, see what the President said on 12 May 92, P956. There was no contradiction, the three states based on the ethnic majorities, with the minority rights guaranteed and protected reciprocally. No other clandestine plan existed. And there was no any legal way that the Muslim side impose to the Serbs this hostile and unacceptable regime. The outcome was known, but the ways and nuances had to be negotiated, or Bosnia should return to Yugoslavia, or at least let the Serbs stay in Yugoslavia!)

2850. The Accused also issued public announcements which promised respect for the rights of all citizens, promised the free movement of people, prohibited the forcible detention or movement of people, and guaranteed the right of return of refugees. However, the Chamber finds that these public announcements were also in stark contrast to the reality on the ground which was marked by the unlawful detention and forced movement of thousands of people.⁹³⁵³ (#As if the Chamber concluded: “He promised to give the umbrellas, but still there was a rain, and a wind in addition”!# Wy would President Karad`i} “promise” protection against something what didn’t happen??? But, the President DIDN’T PROMISE, HE ORDERED PROTECTION AND ANNULED ALL BAD PRACTICE IF HAPPENED!# “The unlawful detention” didn’t happen. It must have been established whether somebody had been detained in spite of the evidence that there was no liability for some crimes, including the participation in the armed rebellion. Nobody can say it was unlawful detention in a cases the investigations were conducted by the highly educated professional state officers, which resulted in releasing many of those detained, at least more than 50% of those captured in the combat areas. In any country there are “taking in” of the suspects – and releasing, or indicting, how could it be different in Bosnia and the RS during the war? Nobody without any criminal liability was detained a day longer. Why the authorities would do that, particularly since there was no adequate facilities, food, medicines and other necessities? And if the President’s public statement and secret orders were in a “stark contrast to the reality on the ground” it didn’t mean that the President wanted that his orders be neglected, but rather that the state apparatus was not capable of conducting all the orders!) The Chamber finds that these public announcements were also issued by the Accused following repeated protests at an international level about the treatment of non-Serbs in Bosnian Serb controlled territory. (Wrong inference-finding! That weren’t “announcements issued by the President following repeated protests...” #that were the top secret reports of the UN or EC representatives#! There was no any mistreatment of non-Serbs, but there was a treatment of a suspects regardless of their ethnicity. The Chamber could have known it even from document of the international community representatives. Let us just remind ourselves on the #document D02424#:

Subject: visit protection officar to Grbavica on 9 March 1993.

2. General observations.

Outward appearances basically same as rest of Sarajevo (under B-H control); no electricity nor running water, damaged buildings, more weapons to be seen on the street, several tanks.

The same sufferings and shortages in the Serb parts of Sarajevo as in the Muslim parts.

3. Displaced persons.

According to mr. Prijic, there are no DP centres in Sarajevo, as most people who lost their house had left to areas outside Sarajevo, mainly Lukavica, or Belgrade.

⁹³⁵³ See Section IV.A.2.b. (in relation to deportation, forcible transfer, and unlawful detention). (9363)

Nobody have chasen anybody, but people displaced themselves because of circumstances.

4. Minorities.

There are appr. 1200 Muslims still in Grbavica. The males are not drafted, but those of a certain age have to "do work". (follow up). Between 100 and 150 Muslims have indicated a willingness to leave to "the other side". They signed a declaration, stating that they will voluntarily leave their property behind. What will actually happen to their property will be "discussed" after the war is over. The departure of these people will be part of an exchange for a similar number of Serbs from "the other side".

Why those Muslims weren't "mistreated"? The same as the Serbs, who is not drafted, has a working obligation.

Talked to a Muslim mother and daughter who happened to pass by the president's offica. Clearly pro-Serb (husband/father killed by Muslims during WW II), well to do and friendly with the president. Asked about ID cards, still the same as before the war, Pale is working on passports and ID cards. Interpreter told me afterwards that reference was made to a declaration of loyalty, but the 2 women were advised (by Prijic) not to further discuss this (will follow up).

The President of the RS had a Muslim friends, and it was publicly known!

Visited Muslim professor at home, son in B-H part of Sarajevo, wants to evacuate to Belgrade for medical treatment. Was recommended by president of Republika Srpska as important citizen of the republic. Is financially supported by his son. In this regard, interesting

The #President protected the prominent Muslim#, professor, and other Muslim intellectuals as a vulnerable! A small and unnoticed document brings us a remarkable evidence against many Chamber's inferences.

Further observations.

Regarding position of Muslims: impression that those with known loyalties to the Republika Srpska face no difficulties. Position of those who want to leave or have not signed declaration of loyalty needs further investigation. Will try get copies of a/m document and document of voluntary (temporary) release of property.

Have agreed follow up visit on 17 March and NFF will follow.

P. Janssen, 11 March 1993.

Similar document of the international representative visit to Grbavica in 1994 had been lately disclosed, and will be submitted. Almost with the same wording Edward Vulliamy #described the situation of the Muslims and Croats in Prijedor municipality#, in August 1992, after all the skirmishes in Prijedor had taken place, see D1898, p. 6:

But down the road are other Muslim villages intact, peasants calmly bringing in the hay. Every house hangs a white flag - a piece of sheet or pillowcase - from the roof or from a tree: it is a guarantee against Omarska or Trnopolje.

"These are the people who accept the Serbian republic," explains Maj. Milovan Milutonic from army headquarters in Banja Luka. "If they do that, we just leave them alone."

There are Croatian communities around Banja Luka too, exchanging their docility to the new order for a relatively quiet life.

Why the Chamber of a UN court neglected such a genuine evidence obtained by the UN personnel, and by thje Prosecution's witness? Is it clear that there was #no any persecution of those who were loyal to the RS, and even of those who weren't loyal, but didn't do any crime while waiting to be approved to cross to the Muslim side of Sarajevo#? Or, let us see another document about visit of the internationals to the same Grbavica, later in the course of the war, see: D00163, a Muslim mil. Intelligence document, April 3, 1994

◆ According to information from the SVB /Military Security Service/ of the 1st Corps, General Michael ROSE visited the zone of responsibility of the 2nd Battalion of the 102nd mbr /Motorised Brigade/, escorted by four officers. Visiting the feature that the soldiers are using as preparation to go to the line, Mr ROSE spoke to the soldiers present and explained to them that the part of the city controlled by the Army has begun to live a different sort of life (“it is starting to wake up”) and that it is receiving more supplies than Grbavica, which is abandoned and without food.

Or another document, a news note about a Muslim propaganda alleging the Jews sufferings in Grbavica, 23 June 92, D886:

Datum: 23rd of June 1992
Sarajevo

Jews are safe on Grbavica

The delegation of Sarajevo Jews, residents of Grbavica settlement visited today the barrack of Lukavica and denied yesterday’s news by Sarajevo media on alleged capturing of the Jewish group and their detention in this barrack.

Blanca Romano, leader of this delegation stated that the Jews, residents of Grbavica feel completely safe, having so far no problems whatsoever with the members of the Serbian BH Republic army and therefore, do not want to move from this settlement.

or another news note about a visit of internationals to Grbavica, see the SRNA and other news agency reports how the #UN personnel was surprised that many Muslim families rejected to go to the Muslim Sarajevo, because they had been treated fairly.#)

The Chamber finds these announcements were issued as means of easing that political pressure but did not translate into a real improvement in the situation on the ground given that the pattern of mistreatment, detention, and forcible transfer continued. The Chamber also finds that these expulsions were discussed at Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions by deputies who warned that they could only talk about these issues amongst themselves but could not speak about it to the rest of the world. (Reference???)

2851. The Chamber also finds that these announcements were inconsistent with the Accused’s continued emphasis and rhetoric on the importance of a division of BiH along ethnic lines and the dangers and impossibility of living with Bosnian Muslims. (Wrong conclusion! #There was no an issue of impossibility of living “with Muslims,” but of living in a unitary Bosnia UNDER THE MUSLIM DOMINATION”!# There was no the approach of “division of BiH along ethnic lines” but there was a proposal and a general accord of the internationals and at least two out of three sides in BiH, that BiH should form a three ethnically based entities, so that the sovereignty of the three communities be preserved, and existence of BiH in the existing borders secured. The President and no one else ever said that it was impossible to live with the Bosnian Muslims in Yugoslavia, or in the Republic of Srpska, but it was unacceptable to live in a Bopsnia as envisaged by the new political team, the Islamic fundamentalists that were irreconcilable with anything that wasn’t Islamic, as established in the Islamic Declaration by Mr. Izetbegovic. The Chamber is neglecting a big amount of evidence that there was in question only a Serb opposition to unitary state under the Muslim domination, and nothing else. There is a lot of evidence that the Muslims and Croats had been welcome in the RS, and particularly by the President!) The Chamber finds that while the ACCUSED did envisage some minorities in the state the Bosnian Serbs were creating, his position was that this number should be kept at a minimum and that the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats should have their own entities in BiH #and should be moved out of Bosnian Serb territory#. (#Wrong and impossible inference. On what evidence is it founded? On some testimonies of an incompetent witnesses as was Harland, Bandury, while their chiefs and the main negotiators, who were familiar with the President's views, never said such a thing! #The only "instrument" of TERRITORIAL (not "ethnic") homogeneity of all the three ethnic republics was a flexible approach to the inclusion-exclusion of a settled places in a republic-entity contrary to the will of their inhabitants!# There is plethora of evidence that the President advised a moderate claim for territories, and public statements that the municipal boundaries are not bible, and should be adjusted to the will of the inhabitants#! Even before the war the Serb authorities in Skender Vakuf (Knezevo) approved secession of the group of villages and hamlets Dobratci and it's merging with the neighbouring municipality of Jajce!@) The Chamber finds that the Accused disseminated propaganda about demographics and the Bosnian Muslim birth-rate as a further justification for ethnic separation even after he had issued public announcements guaranteeing that nobody would be forced to leave Bosnian Serb territory. (Again, #the Chamber is mixing "babe i zabe" (grannies and frogs, apples and oranges) because the birth rate the President was talking didn't pertain to the Republic of Srpska, but the whole Bosnia, and it wasn't a natural birth rate, but an artificial one, motivated by political ideas of changing the ethnic balance, with the aim of taking over the whole Bosnia#. In the Serbian there are two terms for birthrate, with and without attribute "natural". If there is no "natural" – this "birthrate" is a manipulation, and in Serbian it is not literally "birthrate" but rather "prirastaj" which would be more accurately translated as "growth". If it was not said "prirodni prira{taj", i.e. "natural growth", then it was meant an artificial enlargement of population. The Defence submitted the evidence about three sources of this artificial increase of population: re-settling the Muslims from Sandzak, Serbia; re-settling up to four millions of Turks allegedly descendants of the Bosniaks, and the "fatwa", a religious order that every woman deliver at least five children, in order to sacrifice one for Bosnia. The whole Europe should react on this horrible plan, but certainly the neighbouring nations, as the Serbs and Croats wouldn't like to see this development, and for their protection the two ethnic communities needed their constituent units, their autonomy and self-government, as Mr. Izetbegovic committed in the Hague in 1991, and in Lisbon in 1992!)

1. The Chamber also finds that the Bosnian Serb policy on refugees was connected with its goal of achieving ethnic geographic continuity of the Serb population and did not make provision for the return of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. (Wrong inference, without any basis! It had nothing to do with a "continuity of the Serb population", but it concerned the #territorial continuity of the Serb entity regardless of the composition of population#! Even before the war the Serb side accepted that the Serb republic may not have the continuity, but after the war broke out, the continuity was a "condition sine qua non" of the Serb survival. There would be so many skirmishes and incidents, that would indanger the stability, if some Serb areas remained encircled and without territorial connection with the ehtirety of the Serb entity!) The Chamber finds that with respect to the right of refugees to return, the Accused was aware that from a legal perspective they could not declare a ban on their return but that they should insist that it occur on a reciprocal basis. (#Why the Muslims would have the right to return and the Serbs wouldn't#? The reciprocity was envisaged by the international mediators, as a normal issue, amog others because of a technical matters: where to house so many people, if the Serbs are not entitled to return, while the Muslims were to return, as happened in reality, that many more Muslims returned to the RS than the Serbs to the BiH Federation. If the Serbs had been banned to return, the two groups of ethnic refugees would rise the tensions and maybe a conflict!) The Chamber finds that this is instructive in terms of interpreting statements or declarations which ostensibly guaranteed the right of return of refugees. It demonstrates that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were conscious of making public statements which were in accordance with international expectations and obligations, but which were at odds with the reality on the ground. (#If it was “at odds with the reality on the ground, it meant that the state instruments weren’t sufficient enough to secure the implementation in all and every settled place, but in the vast majority did. Also, many of (un)implemented depended on the conduct of the other side#! #This UN Court permanently neglects the most relevant documents created by the UN agencies and signed by the Accused and his associates under the UN-UNHCR-ICRC auspice, and judges on the basis of a gossips, telephone intercepts of even unofficial persons, and on the basis of public announcements, by minimising the sincerity and interpretations of it to the contrary meanings#. Beside that, the Chamber had the most convincing evidence that was in accordance with the “public statements” on the Serb proposals, and a Serb signature to every single agreement of a rights of refugees to return, which at the same time obliged the Muslim-Croat Federation to do the same. And the President communicated his devotion to these right not only in the public statements, but in all the confidential meetings, even with the Army commanders, see: P1478, p.358

- 1.- The agreement envisages a 14-day truce / not to reply to provocations
- 2.- All heavy artillery to be presented to the UN for inspection -
- 3.- All refugees are allowed to return to their homes

It was the President’s meeting with General Mladic and other commanders of the VRS, and it was an equivalent of a written order, and far away from any publicity! But it must have been that the judges didn’t compose this Judgment, but some inexperienced associates, because it is so wrong, that couldn’t be done by responsible professionals!)

2853. The Chamber finds that there was a clear disjuncture between the public announcements and statements made to international representatives and the continued speeches and policy of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership which advocated ethnic separation and the creation of an ethnically homogeneous Bosnian Serb state. (Again, the Chamber is making a wrong inferences, although it had all the evidence that the ethnic separation pertained only to the state separation, not personal. Look at the President’s speech in the Assembly, a first strategic objective was a state separation, see P956, p. 9

The Serbian side in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Presidency, the Government, the Council for National Security, which we have set up, have formulated the strategic priorities, that is to say, the strategic goals for the Serbian people. The first such goal is separation from the other two ethnic communities - separation of states.

#Neither the claim for territories, nor for autonomy are a criminal actions, but a natural rights stipulated in the ICFY in the Hague in 1991, with the Izetbegovic’s commitment that the Serbs and Croats are going to have a high degree of autonomy if Bosnia would be independent. But, this Chamber is persistent in numbering the President’s attitude to achieve this autonomy, in a new situation and a new circumstances produced by an illegal secession of BiH, as if it was a crime itself#. In this regard the Chamber finds that the Accused spoke about the importance of the Strategic Goals to the creation of their state and how they had succeeded in forcing acceptance of the division of BiH along ethnic lines. (The #allegations about a “forcing acceptance of the division of BiH” deserve a separate elaboration, now first about the political objectives: What is wrong with that? The entire International community understood and accepted the concept, which resembles the system in several European countries#! #Why the Chamber is against the political issues, while it was not the subject of the Indictment, and the political claims hadn’t been a crime, so more since the liability for the war is not incriminated before this Court#! That is why this #Judgment looks like a communist propaganda and ideological invective#! #The war didn’t appear because of the Serb political claims, but because of the Muslim attempts to deny it#! After all, it was the original proposal of the ICFY before the war, see: D88, p. 7 of 25 February 1992:

the President was explaining to the Serb Assembly what had been achieved on the Conference:

people, that we would be extremely harsh. This was followed by bilateral talks in which we were offered a draft document which envisaged “that after /the proclamation of/ independence BH would become an independent federal state made up of three constituent states which would be called ...”.

(called ... whatever we agree).

Second, BH would continue to exist within the present borders and neither the federal (Bosnian) government, nor the governments of the three national republics would encourage or support any territorial claims over any part of BH made by neighbouring states.

Third, members of the three nations: Muslims, Serbs and Croats would exercise their sovereign rights in part at the level of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and partly at the level of the national states making up Bosnia and Herzegovina.

This meant that they would have a certain degree of sovereignty as they had had in Yugoslavia because we exercised our rights in part at the level of the federal Yugoslav state. Therefore, in this respect they projected the Yugoslav model on Bosnia and Herzegovina, which would become federalised in that sense.

Then followed the general principles describing what /rights/ Bosnia would guarantee, freedom, and so on, what the responsibilities of the BH Assembly and Government would be, and what would be the responsibilities of the assemblies and governments of the constituent republics of BH.

This division of powers is rather a question of quantity than of quality. The quality is evident in the very existence of assemblies and governments of national units, or states, and at the same time the existence of some type of federal, in our view more like confederate, republic at the BH level. What remains is merely a question of quantity: how much overlapping there would be and/or where and what /rights/ one would exercise.

#So,

“we were offered a draft document” in which there was a picture of the new look of BiH, and everything the Chamber is putting on the President’s liability was proposed by the international community before the war and without the war#! There is the allegation about “forcing acceptance of the division of BiH, quoted in this paragraph of the Judgment! Why the Chamber is dealing with this question, or if it is dealing with it, why the Chamber doesn’t see that the Serb claims weren’t a source of any “enforcement”, nor of the war and accompanied crimes, but that all of it originated from the Muslim attempts to deny these Serbian (and Croatian) legitimate rights for autonomy, and this denial was pursued by a military means. #The Chamber should have known that there was no any possibility for BiH to become independent without the Serb consent! And the main Serb condition to give this consent was an existence of the Serb state entity within BiH, for which the Muslim side agreed, but later attempted to cheat and deceive! As any other truth, this one is as simple, that the Chamber should have realised it!) The Chamber also finds that the Accused continued to advocate a military solution to achieving the Bosnian Serb objectives and issued orders in this regard towards creating a unified Serbian state. (Wrong finding-inference! The President and the Serbs in Bosnia never needed any military solution to achieve their rights on self determination, but they needed a military protection when the Muslim secret army attacked the Serbs and JNA. The federal state of Yugoslavia and it’s JNA hardly protected themselves, let alone to protect the rights of the Serbs to remain a Yugoslav citizens! There is an enormous amount of evidence that the Muslim side reneged on the Lisbon Agreement which envisaged a democratic transformation of BiH into three constituent states, and that the President wanted to avoid the war “at any cost” as Mr. Vance communicated to Mr. Genscher, see: D1833!)

2854. The Chamber also finds that the Bosnian Serb leadership was conscious of the international attention and were warned by Jovanović that they should be conscious of taking steps which would be construed as “ethnic cleansing” but that they should still persist with ensuring that their territory was as ethnically homogeneous as possible. (A #deliberate darkening of the evidence. The very same words of Mr. Jovanovic: “as ethnically homogeneous as possible” meant only TERRITORIES, NOT POPULATION#! there is a proof that there was no talks about any forceful approach to homogeneity. If he meant to achieve it by force, there wouldn't be "as possible". The Chamber had a sufficient evidence that the homogenisation had nothing to do with population, but only with territories. It comprised a humble approach to the territorial questions by the Serb negotiators, and the President spoke about it in the Assembly many times, advocating modesty in territorial matters. No reasonable chamber could make such an inference on the basis of evidence! On the contrary!) It was also clear from these meetings and speeches that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were not only aware of but also supported the demographic changes and ethnic homogenisation which had occurred in Bosnian Serb claimed territory. The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership in 1994 and 1995 continued to speak about removing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from the state they had created and the continued importance of the unification of all Serbian lands. (Couldn't be more wrong!# A completely false assertion#, without any corroboration even in a circumstantial evidence. When and where the President said a single word in favour of "removing" Muslims and Croats from the Serb territory? Never and nowhere! What the President said was that the Serbs should stop crying for Yugoslavia as a common home of the South Slavs, because the common state was the reason for a long lasting animosities and a fratricidal wars. The #President said it even before the war and during the war, pointing out that the Serbs and Croats hadn't being enemies before 1918, before the foundation of the common state#, see@ ! therefore, there is no a single evidence that the "enemies in our own home" pertained to the Republic of Srpska, because this was the President's attitude far before the war, as his reaction on the Serb, and the only Serb, sentiments about preserving Yugooslavia! The Chamber had the evidence that the President advocated a sort of "Skandinavisiation" of Yugoslavia, and the transformation of BiH after the Switzerlan model!)

2855. In the course of international negotiations into 1993, 1994, and 1995, the Аццусед continued to emphasise the territorial objectives of the Bosnian Serbs and the territories which were still in dispute but were vital to the Bosnian Serb interests. (So what? There were many disputed territories, and certainly the President knew that the Serbs will not get all of the disputed, but also not lose every disputed territories. Is the Chamber of an opinion that the President was not entitled to represent the RS interests?) The Accused also adhered to the basic position that the Bosnian Serbs wanted a separate Serb entity in BiH. (Wrong inference! # It was the last acceptable solution#. The first was to stay in Yugoslavia as a whole Bosnia, second that the Serb parts of Bosnia remain in Yugoslavia, and the third, the list favourable solution was to have the Serb entity in BiH. And this wasn't any crime, the internationals understood, and the UN mediated to find such a solution which resembled the Serb proposal. But, why this court is considering the legitimate political questions? If the Serbs didn't have the right to influence the future Bosnian structure, neither the EC nor UN, nor the greatest countries would support these political programs, and facilitate the conferences to achieve it!) The Chamber also finds that in speeches before the Bosnian Serb Assembly the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership spoke strongly against having "enemies" in their state and also indicated that they would not allow certain areas to be allocated to Bosnian Muslims. (As if the Chamber is deliberately erring, since everyone in the coartroom have learned that it #pertained to Yugoslavia as a common home#, because too many members of this "common home" were against it. This was the Serb standpoint that nobody should be forced to be in this common state, and it never pertained to the Muslim or Croat population in the RS. If the Chamber, and this Court as whole is not capable of understanding the Serbian language and to differentiate the meannings, they should have an expert for semantics. If the Chamber is capable of understanding, it must not make such a mistakes in inferring and concluding, because it is the worst violation of the rights of the Serbs and President persons, and is very poisoning for the future!) The Chamber finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership adhered to a primary objective of partition and separation from Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who would have their own entities in BiH and that the Bosnian Serbs would control territory which was “nearly 100% Serbian”. (#Every ethnic community in BiH tried to leave as less of their members in another constituent unit as possible#. Mr. Izetbegovic asked the President to try to make it possible (in creating the maps) that as less the Muslims stay in the Serb, and as less Serbs in the Muslim state. Ajanovic was jubilating and celebrating a fact that the Muslim community went the best in negotiating the Lisbon Agreement, see D00302, of 18 March,92

Commenting on tonight’s fifth round of the Conference on the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the spokesman of SDA, Irfan Ajanovic, estimated that the Muslim nation in its constituent unit or future ethnic canton would be a majority of 82 percent, while the Serbian nation would comprise 50 percent of the Serbian unit. He said that the approved document that has not yet been signed will allow Bosnia to remain indivisible and unified in its current borders and that after the fifth round of talks it practically became a “state with all of the attributes of a state”. He supported that with a statement saying that at the meeting with Jose Cutilleiro, it was agreed, among other things, that this republic would get its own national currency, a single defense system, unified foreign affairs and court system, and the protection of human rights and freedom.

The possibility that the Serbian Assembly would reject tonight’s agreement with Jose Cutilleiro, Ajanovic commented in his own way by saying that that would be the latest ridiculous act coming out of the Serbian kitchen. “In that case it will become clear as to who is not for peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina and who is cheating the European Community and the Chairman of the Conference on Bosnia,” said Ajanovic.

Therefore, if the Serbs rejected the Agreement, they would be “cheating the EC”, and they wouldn’t be in favor of the peace in BiH. Since the Muslim side (SDA) rejected already agreed arrangement, it didn’t concern them!

2856. Even until 1995 the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats continued to be portrayed as the enemies of the Bosnian Serbs and their state. The evidence also shows the importance that the Bosnian Serb leadership and the President placed on territorial acquisition and control. (Wrong, wrong, wrong inference and assertion. #The entire Yugoslav crisis was about the ethnic territories#. Slovenia and Croatia wanted to secede from Yugoslavia on the strictly ethnic basis, not on any class, or racial, or any other basis. The Muslims wanted to do the same, but didn’t have a precondition to keep the whole Bosnia as their and only their state, because the Serbs and Croats had their constitutional rights on this Republic, equal to those the Muslims had. And if any ethnic community in BiH wanted to change it’s position in relation to Yugoslavia, and to change it’s nature as a state, the two other communities had a decisive vote to approve or deny it. The Serbs had every right to influence it, they could prevent it on a two bases: as a constituent people, and as a people that represented more than one third of voters, both in the Parliament and in population. Does the law and constitutions have any value before the UN Court?).

(E) Strategic Goals

1. Analysis of evidence

2857. The Chamber recalls that during the 16th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 12 May 1992, the President presented the Strategic Goals.⁹³⁵⁴ The Strategic Goals were adopted by the Bosnian Serb Assembly at the same session.⁹³⁵⁵ (Wrong! There was no any voting, not even discussion, since it was an exegesis of the new negotiating position of the Serb delegation before the ongoing ICFY!) These goals were:

- a. separation from the other two national communities and the separation of states; (#Forgery#!It was not “and the separation of states” it was only “the separation of states”!)
- b. creation of a corridor between Semberija and Krajina;
- c. creation of a corridor in the Drina Valley thus eliminating the Drina as a border between Serbian states; (Wrong! #Abuse of translation#! It was said “between the wworlds” meaning the East and West, see P956, p. 9

The third strategic goal is to establish a corridor in the Drina Valley, that is, elimination of the Drina as a border between two worlds. We are on both sides of the If the editors changed this wording, it is not the President’s responsibility, but the Chamber was served with the original#!!

- d. creation of a border on the Una and Neretva Rivers; (This speech was held on 12 May 1992, but several months prior to that the Ambassador Cutileiro on behalf of the EC and Lord Carrington proposed a preliminary ethnic map, with the boundaries between the ethnic communities just on these rivers, see: D91:

- e. division of the city of Sarajevo into Serbian and Muslim parts; and (#Coloquially, but in the essence it had never been meant a physical division, but an administrative re-organisation after the model of the Brussels, see P1478, p.315:

 Sarajevo will not be divided into Serbian and Muslim parts, opt for Brussels, not Beirut (urban regime → administrative division) . . .

:) there are many documents confirming the President’s attitude towards the transformation of BiH and Sarajevo in a manner known to the European Community!#)

⁹³⁵⁵ P955 (SerBiH Assembly Decision on Strategic Goals of Serbian People in BiH, 12 May 1992). Prstojević was evasive as to whether the Bosnian Serb leadership had established a goal of division from Bosnian Muslims and why. In addition his evidence was marked by indicators that he was trying to mislead the Chamber. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence with respect to this issue to be reliable. Nedeljko Prstojević, T. 13244, 13247 (11 March 2011), T. 13619–13620 (17 March 2011), T. 13748, 13850–13851 (21 March 2011).

f. access of the SerBiH to the sea.⁹³⁵⁶ (Why not? BiH had 24 km of the sea coast in Neum, and the Serb state within the BiH was entitled for one third of this coast! Even US President Villson established in his “14 points” that the Serbs will get unimpeded access to the Adriatic Sea! But, it should be achieved by negotiations, and President Tudjman of Croatia had promised this to the President, a swap of a strip between Trebinje and Dubrovnik for an access of the RS to the sea. The Serbs have given this strip, but didn’t get what was a bargain. Anyway, the Serbs in BiH never fought for that goal!)

2858. The Accused stated that the Assembly of BiH had neglected all other tasks and moved towards “gaining independence for Bosnia and Herzegovina as a unitarist state under Muslim domination” and that the Muslim and Croatian national communities with the assistance of opposition parties “decided to enclose us in their own state, to make us wake up in a foreign state”, which forced the Serbian people to exercise their “right to self-determination and set up our own state”.⁹³⁵⁷ (So what? The #Badinter’s Commission for Arbitrage gave the Serbs the support, and on that basis the EC and UN organised the sub-Conference on Bosnia within the already existing ICFY#! Why this Court is questioning a merely political issues that had been agreed before the war? This is untenable, and should have been forbidden, because the Prosecution was dealing with the political matters, agreed among the sides!) The Accused also stated that they would finally “finish the job of the freedom struggle of the Serbian people. That job is not finished. Anything in history that is not properly finished does not die but it returns to the agenda again, each time with many more casualties.”⁹³⁵⁸ (Anything the President said, even such an #academic consideration, is us#ed against him. Naturally, since there is no any substantial evidence for his guilt!) The Accused also cautioned against the “Serbian megalomania of trying to include as many of our enemies in our areas as possible”, and that while their brave people had taken as much as they could, this “could put us in danger of including in our state too many of our enemies, who will again work against that state”.⁹³⁵⁹ (#This is the first class evidence that the President was against the greed for territories where the other communities made majority, and that a humble approach to the territorial question was the only instrument of the homogenisation of territory#! It was a very famous approach of the President, not to fight for the territories with the non-Serb majority, and not to include a settlements in which the inhabitants would rather be in a neighbouring entity! See P1478, how the President stopped a military action towards Gorazde, 14 July 1992: P1478, p.332

Major General MILOVANOVIĆ:

- The situation on the front is stable
- send a group for demining to ŽIVANOVIĆ.
- KARADŽIĆ —> suspend further operations against Goražde. —

No

army would be happy with such a kind of President and Supreme Commander!)

was the “separation of states”.⁹³⁶⁰ In this regard the Accused stated that their enemies had attacked them at every opportunity in the last century and would continue to do so if they lived in the same state.⁹³⁶¹

(#First of all, a “separation of states” clearly indicates that there was no any idea of separation of population, but determines the separation of state organisation and system of authority#. The minority existed in all current republics even before 1918, but was not causing any killings. Only when a community is “locked” in a state against its free will, without consent, this is a scenario for catastrophe. Unlike minorities with their maternal country in neighbour, every ethnic community, particularly of the constituent peoples, are legitimate not to accept an imposed state. There should be their consent to be included in a national state of other nation. Croats and Slovenians asked to be included in Yugoslavia 1918, because they had been defeated in WWI, but later they wanted to secede, but unilaterally and forcefully!)

In a similar fashion the Accused explained the importance of each of the Strategic Goals by reference to the interests of the Serbian people.⁹³⁶² The second Strategic Goal outlined by the President was the importance of a corridor between Semberija and Krajina to allow for an integration of Serbian lands with unimpeded flow from one part of the state to another.⁹³⁶³ With respect to the Strategic Goal of creating a corridor, Krajišnik stated that the “size of the corridor depends on you. Whether it will reach to the Sava river or be five kilometres wide, if it is five kilometres wide we will not be able to defend it, but if it is 30 km we will defend it”.⁹³⁶⁴

(However, the Chamber neglected the fact that before the war the #President and the Serbs in Bosnia accepted that their republic may not have the territorial continuity#, and it wasn’t an imperative for the Serbs if there was no any war. See: The President’s speech before the Serb Assembly on 25 February 1992, i.e. before the war, D88, p.11:

A constituent unit may consist of a number of separate parts. This means that the Republic of Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina may not have continuous territory. It may have several separate territories and, although the map we have drawn up would connect all the parts, the whole of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina, it would leave the Muslims in five to six enclaves, Croats in two to three.

In the event of doubts arising in any area with respect to the delineation of units, assistance would be sought from an Arbitration Commission. Sarajevo would be the capital of BH in addition to being capital for one of the constituent units.

#No unsolvable question, nobody needed a war#. But, after the war broke out, due to the Muslim will, the Serbs wouldn’t dare to live in an enclave surrounded y the hostile Muslims, who wouldn’t be hostile if there was no war. In Switzerland there is no continuity of the French, German or Italian speaking groups, but in Bosni after the war nobody would dare to live such a way!)

2861. With respect to the third Strategic Goal the Accused stated that the belt along the Drina must belong to the SerBiH and that this would not only be strategically useful to them but also damaging to the “interests of our enemy” and would prevent the Muslims from connecting to the “Muslim International”.⁹³⁶⁵ Part of the fear of the Bosnian Serbs was to prevent the creation of the ⁹³⁶⁰ P956 (Transcript of 16th Session of SerBiH Assembly, 12 May 1992), e-court p. 9. The Chamber places no weight on Brown’s opinion that the implementation of the first Strategic Goal would involve the creation of a Serb state and the movement of a significant part of the non-Serb population out of that state. For example, see Patrick Treanor, T. 14019, 14051, 14054, 14067–14068 (1 June 2011), T. 14378 (7 June 2011). The Chamber also does not rely on Bulatović’s understanding that the first Strategic Goal did not involve physical separation of people or his belief that the expulsions did not result from any policy. so called “green transversal”.⁹³⁶⁶ The President also spoke about the “elimination of the Drina as a border between two worlds. We are on both sides of Drina, and our strategic interest and our living space are there”.⁹³⁶⁷ This objective was also reflected at a municipal level, where in Foča for example, Stanić stated the Bosnian Serb position that “the Drina would never become a border but a windpipe between two lungs”.⁹³⁶⁸ (#Making Drina River a border trough the Serbian areas, without the Serb consent and contrary to the Serb constitutional rights is a crime. However, there was a way to reconcile the Serb and Muslim interests, so that Bosnia become independent, and the Serbs to maintain this loose tie to Serbia. The Muslims were offered to have their municipalities along Drina River#. No matter it was going to be a Serb republic. But, the most important mater is: the Chamber doesn’t see any difference between the peace time statements and objectives, and the same subjects after the war broke out due to the Muslim illegal, unrealistic and irrational ambitions to have Bosnia as only their national state!) There is another evidence, which even wasn’t noticed by the Chamber. The President, having a live TV interview together with Krajisnik in early 1993 explained what did it mean “not to have a border on Drina”, see: D1936:

Risto Đogo: A viewer from Salaš Crnogajnski: if we managed to realise the boarders that would separate us from Muslim and Croatian provinces, would those boarders last?

Radovan Karadžić: Well, you see, I think that boarders in Europe will never be that important, even though their existence is necessary. And if there are no wars, those boarders will be administrative, if there are some customs or monetary unions, there won’t be much restriction on those boarders. It all depends on whether the relationship is neighbourly or those boarders are...they can be tightest in the world or semi-restrictive, that is restrictive in the way boarders are in present day Europe. What is important is that we know exactly what is ours, we live there, we have our economy, our culture, our education, our media, and that is what each nation in the world is asking for, and should have, and has a right to, and we’ll see what will that neighbourly life be like. If, to use an old expression, the good forces prevail, if a constructive atmosphere geared towards quick recovery prevails, among Serbs, and Croats, and Muslims, I think that the economists will soon start cooperating and loosen up those boarders.

Yet another President’s prediction (Mastricht before Mastricht) should be punished!?! That was the real meaning of the border on the Drina River# further, the same D1936: Radovan Karadžić: Well I think that the Muslim leadership, when they requested that borders be controlled by the central government, referred to the borders between Herzegovina and Croatia, as those borders don't exist, where there are no restrictions, rather than to the Drina border. We'll never allow, and that is one of the strategic aims we adopted at the Assembly, we'll never allow the border running along Serbian territories to become real, restrictive, although that was the case for a while, because of the situation...economic relationship was such that it had to be imposed, but things will change. Which ever way we deal with it, Serbian areas in the former Bosnia and Herzegovina will enjoy great freedom of economic and other communication with whom ever they choose. That is in accordance with the Lisbon document and other documents, that is, in accordance with the current European trend. The Germans and the French have that freedom, Alsace and Lorraine have that freedom, those rights will have...Serbs living on both sides of the Drina will have to have those rights.

2862. The Accused concluded that the achievement of the Strategic Goals would allow them to finish the freedom struggle of the Serbian people and that they should avoid including too many "enemies" in their state.⁹³⁶⁹ (#How could the Serbs "include too many "enemies" in their state", and how they could have it avoided? #The only mechanism was to be moderate about the territorial issues, not to insist in including the Muslim and Croat settled places in the Republic of Srpska, if they didn't want it, and if they could be added to their entity. All the bordering settlements could have their choice where to belong, and that was the only tool for a homogenisation of the three republics. There is a huge evidence about that, and none about any other way, particularly not by expelling the population!#)

2863. At this session, Mladić advocated a path which would involve fighting and waging war.⁹³⁷⁰ Mladić stressed that there would be victims, but that the other option was one of chaos, passivity and empty talk and would be the "path to our extinction".⁹³⁷¹ (So what? Wouldn't it be the Serb extinction, as it was in Croatia, Kosovo and BH Federation? And what is criminal in an oral consideration of the options of people in it's Assembly?) Mladić also stated that "we cannot cleanse nor can we have a sieve to sift so that only Serbs would stay, or that the Serbs would fall through and the rest leave" and that he did not know how the Accused and Krajišnik would be able to explain this to the world and it would be "genocide".⁹³⁷² (#General Mladic was speaking generally in favour of a common life and a good relations among the ordinary Serbs and Muslims, he praised Colonel Hasotic, a Muslim, who stayed in the VRS, he described Minister Ostojic and his encounter with the Muslims from his native place, where they live peacefully, although surrounded by the Serb settlements. General Mladic didn't refer to anything that had been said, he have spoken generally against any differentiation and discrimination, not in reaction to anything, but agains the general climate of nationalism in Yugoslavia. This can not be used against this President, unless shown that it was Mladic's reaction to something Karadzic or Krajisnik said, but that was not the case! The very same occasion, the President made his very known public speech before 50,000 citizens, stating that the Muslims and Croats will be safe and secure in the RS, and 50,000 people greeted that by applauding!)

2864. Mladić stated that there are ways of neutralising the Muslims which do not mean that they have to be expelled or drowned.⁹³⁷³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! This was in accord with the policy of the RS leadership!) In this regard, Mladić identified a common enemy and described them as Muslim and Croatian “hordes” and that they had to determine whether “to throw both of them out employing political and other moves, or to organise ourselves and throw out one by force of arms, and we will be able to deal somehow with the other”.^{9374 9379} (The #“hordes” meant the armed and organised paramilitaries and terrorists deep in the Serb territory! #Every single country would do that, because it was legal and obligatory! Such a terrorists, who are not declared, structured and marked as an army, but live as a false citizens and kill the soldiers, policemen and their civilian neighbours, do not have any rights that belonged to the POWs, but stil the Serb side treated them that way!) At the same session, Mladić also spoke about the importance of defining their goals and the territory of SerBiH and having the forces to achieve this.⁹³⁷⁵ (So what? To “defend” is a universal right! What Mladic described already existed, didn’t have to be achieved, just to be defended!) He also said that their goal should be to have “a state of our own where we have left our mark, the bones of our fathers, and that is the goal we must fight for”.⁹³⁷⁶ Mladić stated that if “we have taken something in this war that was not ours, we need to keep hold of it so that in political negotiations we can get those things that were ours, and that we cannot get in any other way”.⁹³⁷⁷ (So what? No army would leave any strategically important places before the final settlement!) Mladić advocated that the actions of the Bosnian Serbs should remain secret and recommended that they adopt a common rhetoric towards the public.⁹³⁷⁸ He also stressed the importance of identifying enemies and that on this basis, “we must make our move and eliminate them, either temporarily or permanently”.⁹³⁷⁹ (So what? Should the Serbs nourish their enemies? But, the main issue is: why the Chamber is inferring about the President’s mens rea from the words of other persons, even of a completely different ideological views, which the President was not suppose to confirm or deny? Mladic was loudly meditating, it was his first appearance before the Assembly of a new, non-communist parliament, he didn’t say anything unacceptable, and this is irrelevant for the case against the President!)

2865. Towards the end of the same session on 12 May 1992, Krajišnik acknowledged that “we will surely go to war” and that “it will be possible to solve this thing with Muslims and Croats 2866. Other deputies supported the Strategic Goals and indicated that in order for them to be realised they could be “developed further and presented as variations” and that the borders would be established “when we make them a fact” and that peace could “only be achieved by war”.⁹³⁸¹ They also emphasised the importance of finding a way to “keep in peace what we have won in war” and in areas where they were a minority there would need to be a resettlement of the population.⁹³⁸² (Here is the entire discussion of a guest at the Assembly session, not deputy, but a guest, professor of Economy at University and a well known expert P956, .29 – 30:

Prof. MILOJEVIC: I shall be very brief, and I would like to say first of all that it will be very difficult to speak, take the floor, after hearing the captain’s speech. However, I want to and I am concerned about one issue, our Serbian historical question. I want to put emphasis on this, no matter how it will be understood. Serbs have often won in war and lost in peace. I wish to advise us how we can keep in times of peace what we have won in the war. The war cannot last long. We need to make, right now, a lasting solution. The lasting solution to keep this in times of peace, to make an option for peace. I would just like to outline it briefly. After the war, democracy will start. Voting starts, a majority and minority start. We need to define now how to endure in the areas where we are a minority. Just imagine, we hold enormous areas which now, in the war option, are ours, but which, overnight, may cease to be ours, where we comprise up to 30 %, and then we will start asking ourselves why all these people died and what is happening to us. Just remember, the best minds of our people have been explaining why it is that the Serbs win in war and lose in peace. This time we cannot allow this. We must make an option enabling us to keep in peace what we have won in war.

need them, where lives will obviously be lost for nothing, places we cannot hold, because we only incite anger amongst our own and other peoples, and that is why we believe, if we set the state border as our goal, and we do, this border needs to be reached and this implies resettlement. Shall we give a hint to our Serbs who will remain deep within the enclaves that they simply have to move from there and that a solution must be found for them, and in the institutions of the government we must seek for solutions for the resettlement of population. It seems to me that we are waging a war, establishing a state border, without having defined within the institutions of the government what is going to happen with the people who shall remain in enclaves, who tomorrow may find themselves encircled, slaughtered, killed and so on. We must tell these people in due time that we simply will not able to hold this. The government simply must seek for solutions so that they can get out in time instead of provoking the situation in general. In conclusion, I propose that maybe today we form some kind of a group to come up with the borders very quickly, but for our eyes only, so that we know very soon what the goals are of our army and our political leadership in establishing the Serbian Republic of BH. So, a commission for borders, but for our eyes only and in secrecy. Thank you!

(#Words OF Others#A! lthough neither the President, nor any other official could be responsible for a greeting words of a guest at the Assembly session, there is no a single resemblance to what is “found” in this paragraph of the Judgement#. A “resettlement” had been mentioned only when the guest was expressing his concern about the Serbs that may remain in the Muslim-Croat territories, “in the areas where we are a minority”, suggesting that if they do feel insecure, they must be enabled to resettle to the Serb republic. This was the Chamber who liked this unofficial words, because had the Prosecution pointed out to this piece of evidence, the Defence would ask this guest at the Assembly session, who was the witness who testified, to explain what he meant, although it is clear that a possible “resettlement” pertained only to the Serbs, not a non-Serbs in the Serb areas!)

2867. At this session, Brđanin explained that in areas where Serbs were a majority, “most of them are still asking whether they should injure the Muslims, whether they can hold certain posts, whether loyal Muslims and loyal Croats exist”.⁹³⁸³ (#There is no such a sentence on this address!#) Brđanin was one of the Bosnian Serb leaders who engaged in anti-Muslim rhetoric and this rhetoric created a great deal of animosity, mistrust and hatred towards the Bosnian Muslim population.⁹³⁸⁴ For example, Brđanin said that he did not know why the Muslims were pickling cabbage for the winter because they would not be there to eat it.⁹³⁸⁵ (#A protected lie#! “protected witness statement!”) Brđanin at a meeting for Serb unity in August 1994 attended by Krajišnik said “[t]hose leftist forces which are offering us co-existence again must know that it is the obligation of Serbs over the next hundred years to wipe their feet from the foul non-Christians who have befouled this soil of ours”.⁹³⁸⁶ Krajišnik then took the stand and praised the words and patriotism of those who had spoken before him.⁹³⁸⁷ (#Out of courtesy # #A words of MP-s#! Mr. Krajsnik praised “those who had spoken before him” which meant nothing in relation to what Brđjanin said. However, Brdjanin was a deputi, directly elected, and neither Mr. Krajsnik, nor the President were entitled to “educate” or control, or correct what deputies were talking, until and unles it was going to dominate and be adopted as an official standpoint. The Prime Ministers Djeric and Lukic testified that there always were some extreme opinions, but none of them prevailed. It was very known to the Chamber how the President was critical of the Brdjanin rhetorics and how often he criticised him, but still it charges the President for a free-floating repliques or statements of a deputy?!?)

2868. On 7 May 1992, a week before being presented before the 16th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the Strategic Goals were discussed in the presence of the President, Mladić, and Krajišnik.⁹³⁸⁸ Krajišnik acknowledged that he had taken part in adopting the Strategic Goals and that the first goal was the most important and that the remaining goals were sub-items of this goal.⁹³⁸⁹ Mladić also stated that he had “read, mulled over for a long time and discussed with the most select circle of comrades whom we convened, the strategic goals that are of substance”.⁹³⁹⁰ (#So what?# The Muslims wanted to secede from Yugoslavia, the Serbs didn’t, and the only compromise was to have the three ethnic states within Bosnia. Before the war, the strategic objectives of the Serbs were different. But, all of it was legal, even proposed by the UN – EC mediators, aand no court should question these political issues! independent Bosnia was to look like in its internal structure, i.e. to impose a unitary state with an Islamic regime to the Christian majority!)

2869. At this same session a deputy from Brčko referred to the tasks set by the President, and noted that one of the first priorities “is establishing communication between Semberija and the Bosnian Krajina” and that while military operations had been completed to some extent, there were still Bosnian Muslim forces in Brčko, and that Brčko “remains uncompleted”.⁹³⁹¹ He noted that in order to have “definitive clearing of the area it will be necessary to have many more forces there” and called on the President and Krajišnik to promote general mobilisation of the Serbian people and referred to the “conquests that are currently necessary”.⁹³⁹² (#So what? The Brcko deputy in Parliament pointed out to the Muslim forces, not to the civilians#. And he claimed for an additional mobilisation, which would be senseless if he meant about civilians. Since there was already six weeks of the war, why that what the deputy from Brcko would be illegal? The Chamber is mixing up the temporal plans, the times when something had been said! What had been said before the war and repeated during the war, would have a different meaning. In addition, the Chamber is allocating so many words said by so many peoples to the President, no matter he agreed or not. The President was not a teacher to correct deputies, he could only refuse to sign an Assembly document that wasn’t lawful, and nothing else. He wasn’t even obliged to attend the sessions!)

2870. At this same session, Dragan Kalinić, the health minister, spoke in favour of choosing the “option of war” and that their enemy was perfidious and “cannot be trusted until they are physically, militarily destroyed and crushed, which, of course, implies eliminating and liquidating their key people”.⁹³⁹³ He further noted that “only what has been conquered militarily can be really and truly ours” and that there was no point in making maps until they had “succeeded in defining and marking our territory militarily”.⁹³⁹⁴ (At that moment Dr. #Kalinic was an opposition deputy#, and the Accuse had even less possibility to warn a deputy of the opposition, that would be a grave violation of the parliamentary rules!)

2871. Kalinić also noted that since they were in closed session, he could make it clear that when they called for cease-fires this was only done to demonstrate that they were in favour of negotiations and a peaceful solution but these statements were for “external, public use” and that cease-fires could be used to consolidate their armed forces.⁹³⁹⁵ (That was right, but still, the #President was not a school teacher, to correct everybody#!) Kalinić also spoke in favour of the destruction of radio and television facilities and medical facilities “so that the enemy has nowhere to go for medical help”.⁹³⁹⁶ (It is only an evidence that Dr. Kalinic was very angry with his Muslim colleagues who grabbed all the hospitals in Sarajevo, denying the Serbs to use at least one of them. But, this outburst of anger of Dr. Kalinic was recognized by everyone as a moment, and everyone knew that he didn’t mean it!) Bosnian Serb leaders often proposed cease-fires at times when they already controlled a large percentage of the territory in BiH.⁹³⁹⁷ (#The Chamber didn’t need the Okun’s opinion on this subject, since the Chamber should have known, after more than 500 day of trial, that the Serbs had always controlled this amount of territory, and that the Serbs didn’t took the control by a military actions, although they defended it militarily. What was wrong with the offers of cease-fires? The Serbs had been against the war from the beginning of the crisis!#) 2872. A deputy who spoke in favour of the Strategic Goals noted that in Bosanska Krupa, “there are no more Muslims in the Serbian Municipality of Bosanska Krupa” and that they had been “evacuated” and that it was unlikely that they would have a place to return to given that the President told them “the happy news that the right bank of the Una is the border”.⁹³⁹⁸ (Although the Defence pointed out in the Defence Final Brief that the #Prosecution have “castrated” this sentence#, the Chamber didn’t pay any attention to this undoubted fact. First, Bosanska Krupa about which the witness had been spoken, was only one third of the Bosanska Krupa Municipality, i.e. #only the Serb part of it#. Second, the rest two third of Municipality was the Muslim Municipality of Bosanska Krupa, without a single Serb. But, the most important is the fact that the Serb authorities of the Serbian Krupa evacuated the Muslims within their municipality, from an embattled village or area, to a peaceful area, or, in one case, they evacuated the Muslim civilians to another municipality, but in the same entity, in Sanski Most. But, the most important is the most drastic manipulation with the witness’s crippled sentence. Let us see the critical part: P956, p.20:

Muslims. As our president has said, we in the Serbian Municipality of Bosanska Krupa did not want the war, but there was nothing else we could do. One could not live any longer in the Serbian Municipality of Bosanska Krupa with all the insolence, military exercises, and many other things, with forcible take-overs of firms with guns in hands, with every single Serb thrown out of his job in the municipality of Bosanska Krupa, with not one Serbian teacher wanting to sign an oath of loyalty, as a matter of fact, not one Serb in the municipality of Bosanska Krupa. That is why we were forced #Th

Thank God, we did get to our borders, because that was how we had envisaged them and drawn them, and you, people’s deputies, know well that we had said that the right bank of the Una river would be our border, and that the right bank of the Una river must be the border. After all, the natural border of the Serbian Republic of BH runs from Bihać via Bosanska Krupa to Bosanski Novi. That was what we always said and that was why we did get to the right bank of the Una river. This was where we stopped and we dug in. We have mined the right bank, we have

That the Una River was a natural boundary of the Serb parts of BiH, it was known to the European Community, and Ambassador Cutileiro realised that and marked it in his preliminary map, which was to be discussed further. Now, the critical sentence, p.20

What are our adversaries doing? At the moment, they are all in Cazin Krajina. On the right bank of the Una river there are no more Muslims in the Serbian Municipality of Bosanska Krupa, all the enclaves that were there, Rapuša, Veliki Vrbovik, Ostrožnica, Babić, Muslim Jasenica and Zavir, we have evacuated them, so that there will be none there for the duration of war operations. 2873. These Strategic Goals were also communicated to and discussed during Crisis Staff meetings at a municipal level.⁹³⁹⁹ On 18 May 1992, the SDS Municipal Board in Prijedor was informed about developments at the Bosnian Serb Assembly and informed about the main guidelines for future activities which related to the Strategic Goals.⁹⁴⁰⁰ (So what? #There was the war declared against the Serb community# in BiH by the others, and all the legal measures were at the disposal of the attacked side!)

2874. The Strategic Goals were more than mere theoretical objectives and they were concretely discussed at meetings. For instance, at a meeting of 1st Krajina Corps commanders and Banja Luka leaders on 2 June 1992, the implementation of the second goal, i.e. creating a corridor between Semberija and Krajina,⁹⁴⁰¹ was discussed.⁹⁴⁰² At the same meeting which was attended by the President and Mladić, Brđanin stated that “everything in the ARK is done at the [Crisis Staff] level”.⁹⁴⁰³ The Accused also referred to the Strategic Goals at a meeting with Bosnian Serb representatives on 10 June 1992 at which he said that “[w]e have full control of many of our territories”#, (...#we have full control of many of our territories, controlled by the Serbs, so what? Not anyone's else, but their own territories!#Why it was wrong? Does the Chamber know what is a civil war?) that Bosnian Serbs had strong support from the Serbian DB, and that they had formed their own army.⁹⁴⁰⁴ (Nobody formed the Army of the Serbs in Bosnis, but they themselves! There is no a single evidence of that! #Here is the reference to which the Chamber refers: P1478, p.133

- We have not set up a military organisation for 2 reasons:

- 1.- The army asked us not to,
- 2.- We had strong support from the State Security.-

(It is not enough just to say that this kind of deliberation must not ever been exercised, through a wrong translations, or through a #crippling the sentences to the absurdity#! The two reasons why the Serbs in Bosnia didn't create their own military organisation are as follows: 1. “The Army asked us not to”, which meant the JNA wanted the Serbs in Bosnia not to make any party or ethnic army, and 2. “The State Security was severely watching us.” That meant: “the Bosnian State Security, while secretly forming their secret ethnic and party army The Patriotic League, wacted the Serbs to prevent their response to the Muslim secret moves”. How possibly this was translated so that a severe surveillance was presented as a “strong support of the Serbian DB”? Is this kind of manipulation allowed in the countries of the origin of the Judges? Or the Judges had an unlimited confidence in their Balkans assistants, who fought against the Serbs even this way? If the Chamber evaluated the entire entry in the Mladic's diary, it would have seen that the Serbs in Bosnia from the beginning decided for a defensive strategy. The Strategic goals werent any secret document, that was a new negotiating platform, immediately communicated to the EC negotiators and made public, see D428 of 9 June 1992, a decision of the Presidency, which clearly indicated that the Strategic

2875. At another meeting in June 1992 of the Bosnian Serb military and political leadership, the Accused noted that the Bosnian Serb Assembly had defined the strategic aims and further reiterated the importance of those objectives and that the Bosnian Serbs had to protect their territories militarily.⁹⁴⁰⁵ (#Because these territories had been attacked militarily, how else to protect it#? How this is criminal, and is not criminal to attack the Serb territories? So what!?! This was a paraphrase of an old saying that neither a child nor a state could be brn without blood. But, anyway, this was rather sad meditation that this rule had been confirmed in this case too, a completely neutral meditation and description of the development! Is everything the President said a crim? Or the Chamber produces as much quantity of nothing, to reach an illusion of quality?) and that according to the map they had 66% of the territory in BiH.⁹⁴⁰⁶ (#That was not a result of the war, nor the Serbs intended to claim for the entire amount of it#!) At this same meeting, Ostojić reported that there were no Muslims in Bratunac.⁹⁴⁰⁷ (Mr. Ostojic reported to the military commander about the military, not the civilian, situation in Bratunac, and Gen. Mladic made a very short notes, incomplete, and as any unfinished sentence, could be red differently. Anyway, the Serbs controlled only 20% of the territory of Bratunac, and from this part of municipality the Muslim civilians demanded to be escorted to Tuzla, and this happened! The combatants had been captured and transferred to Pale and further to Visoko. No killings! See the testimony of a protected witness KW12.)

2876. On 17 June 1992, Mladić issued an order raising the combat readiness of the Birač Brigade and emphasising that the order was to allow for full control over Birač, to secure the corridor between Romanija and Semberija, and maintain a link with Serbia.⁹⁴⁰⁸ (What is wrong with that? If the Chamber allowed the Defence to present the #conduct of the Muslim side, cutting any traffic and killing drivers of the Boxite mines and civilians#, it would be clear that it was a military necessity. Even if there was no such a huge criminal activity, since the Muslim side declared and started the war against the Serbs in Bosnia, the militaries were entitled to secure it's own communications!) In November 1992, Mladić issued Directive 4 to “cleanse the free territory of RS of the remaining enemy groups and paramilitary formations”.⁹⁴⁰⁹ One of the tasks of Directive 4 was addressed to the Drina Corps which was instructed “to inflict the heaviest possible losses” on the “enemy” and force them to leave certain areas such as Birač, Žepa, and Goražde with the Bosnian Muslim population.⁹⁴¹⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! #The civilians were not the target of the VRS#! The Defence pointed out the linguistic problem with this Directive: if the civilian “population was to leave certain areas with the military” that would mean that the military would take the civilians with them. But, if the militaries were to leave with the population, that meant that the population was taking military with themselves. It is necessary to connect this order with the previous one, two weeks prior to it, when the Muslim combatants from Vecici, Kotor Varos municipality, demanded that the VRS let their civilians leave the area, while the armed units would stay and continue to fight. Gen. Mladic agreed that the civilians may leave, but that they had to take the combatants with them too. There was a very cnown confusion, because the President approved the first demand, which probably was wrong, but the civilian rights were prioritised. This time Gen. Mladis demanded that the civilians, who anyway wanted to leave once their army was losing, take te military with them. See: D3914

President Nedeljko ĐEKANOVIĆ made an introductory statement about the problem of the evacuation of civilians from Večići with a view to reaching agreement on this issue, as well as about the problems arisen as a consequence of the Corps Command’s prohibition against allowing civilians out of Večići before all had laid down their arms. He informed the War Presidency about KARADŽIĆ’ s position that civilians should be allowed to move out from Večići as well as that conditions should be provided for that. He also informed the Presidency of a written document which he had signed at the Corps Command at the request of General TALIĆ, in which TALIĆ distanced himself from /the issue of/ releasing civilians from Večići. He urged that it was upon the War Presidency to decide whether it would allow the evacuation of civilians while assuming all responsibility for any subsequent consequences despite General TALIĆ’s reservation, or abandon such a course of action with respect to the question of Večići altogether.

So, a #permutation of these two wards drastically changes the meaning#! Two weeks after that Gen. Mladic issued Dir. No. 4, which certainly wa influenced by the Vecici events, because the combatanst “didn’t leave with the civilians, and there was a severe fighting and loses on both sides!)

2877. On 8 November 1992 at a meeting of Corps Commanders attended by the President and Mladić, Krajišnik expressed his admiration for the military successes and noted that they had a “disproportionate engagement of the army in relation to the strategic objectives”.⁹⁴¹¹ (So what? A politician was flattering to the Army. Anyway, here is what Gen. Mladic put down from what Mr. Krajisnik said, P1481, p.146:

11.- * KRAJIŠNIK:

- I admire the military successes. –
- It is very dangerous to seize their territories.-
- The /River/ Drina and the Neretva...
- We have a disproportionate engagement of the army in relation to the strategic

So,

Krajišnik pleaded for a restrain from “seizing their territories! He also said that the Army was more engaged than the results showed) Krajišnik also reminded the attendees of the progress made in relation to the Strategic Goals and noted that the most important objective had been assigned to Milenko Živanović, namely to mop up the Drina and repeated that the most important task was the “separation from the Muslims” and that the “Muslims must not stay with us”.⁹⁴¹² (As a matter of fact, Mr. Krajisnik didn’t say that the Muslim civilians shouldn’t stay with the Serbs, but shouldn’t stay with their state, not even autonomy, see, P1481, p. 147:

⁹⁴¹¹ P1481 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 5 October–27 December 1992), pp. 141, 146–147.

⁹⁴¹² P1481 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 5 October–27 December 1992), p. 147. Živanović acknowledged that separation from the Bosnian Muslims was discussed but testified that his task was not to engage in “ethnic cleansing” and there was no mention of killing. Milenko Živanović, T. 42585–42590 (30 October 2013).

- We must bring the war to an end
- The most pressing thing is to mop up Orašje, and then to solve the problem of the Podrinje area and the Neretva river valley as soon as possible. –
- The Muslims must not stay with us and they should not be given any kind of autonomy.-
- The most important objective is the task assigned to ŽIVANOVIĆ – the mopping up of the Drina.-
- * The most important task is separation from the Muslims. -

Mopping up Orasje was only meant removing the military, not even the Muslim, but Croat, the same is with Drina, always meaning the enemy armed groups! There are at least two reasons why the Chamber shouldn't do that with such an evidence: it is not clear what Mr. Krajisnik really said and how accurate is Mladic's note, and why the President would be liable for anyone's words except for his own? #This is nothing but a patchwork#!)

2878. At a session of the Bosnian Serb Government on 20 March 1993, a debate on the draft law on the territorial organisation of municipalities was held, during which the criteria for the establishment of municipalities was decided.⁹⁴¹³ (#So what? Was it a crime, that the Government established an administrative conditions for exercising the authority, given through the democratic elections#?)

At a meeting of 19 June 1993 in Pale with members of the Supreme Command with, inter alios, Krajišnik, Koljević, Lukić, Mladić, and Milovanović in attendance, the President gave an update as to developments in relation to the Strategic Goals and the territorial situation in BiH.⁹⁴¹⁴ (So what? Here is what the President said:

1. * KARADŽIĆ:

- In our assessment and the assessment of the rest of the world, we have won, and we will be given a state.
- Both the Croats and we should do something, so that the Muslims get some territory in Central Bosnia; first there was talk about 38, then 34 municipalities, and now we are talking about the treasures of Bosnia in 30 municipalities. –
- America must find someone to blame (in Germany) to change policy.

The President reports his own knowledge about the course of events in the world in connection with the BiH crisis, and advocates three states, so that all the three communities be satisfied! What is wrong with this description of the local and world situation??? “The Serbs blinked with their eyes”! In June 1993, Mladić issued Directive 5 and noted that given the developments, a unified BiH was no longer an option.⁹⁴¹⁵ (Mladić only conveyed the political position to the soldiers!) Directive 6 was issued by the President in November 1993 and included specific instructions with respect to the strategic goals of the VRS.⁹⁴¹⁶ Directive 6 referred to the goals of (i) liberating Sarajevo; (ii) defining the borders of RS on the Neretva River and gaining access to the sea; (iii) defining the borders of RS in the Una River basin; and (iv) expanding the borders of RS in the north-east and establishing firmer ties with Serbia.⁹⁴¹⁷ (So what? Since the war didn't end, for the rest of the war the President was obliged to outline a prospective to the military. However, the Tribunal presumes that the President would do the best if submitted his own population to defeat and slavery!)

2880. Bosnian Serb leaders, including the President, discussed the Strategic Goals openly with international representatives who were told that RS would be ethnically “pure”⁹⁴¹⁸ and that their aim was to redistribute the population in BiH to allow Bosnian Serb control of a “single continuous block of territory” which also included “traditionally Serb-inhabited areas”.⁹⁴¹⁹ (This is #below any taste and even decency to rely on these two witnesses and their free interpretations of the President's political standpoints# . Neither these two witnesses had ever been solely in contact with the President, nor had ever been the principal negotiators, to be privy of the President'd opinions, unlike their superiors, Lord Carrington, Ambassador Cutileiro, Secretary Vance, Lord Owen, Ambassador Akashi, Mr. Stoltenberg, and many other interlocutors. These distinguished persons had never reported or testified anything similar to what these two favourite witnesses of the Prosecution. To be honest to Okun, he was number two or three in the delegations that met the President, but he himself admitted that his notes weren't a verbatim minutes, but rather an amalgam of what was said, and what he thought about it, see Okun's testimony, T.1819-1820 A. That's correct, yes. And your point -- the earlier point you make, that the readers of the note-books could draw different conclusions from them, is also correct. #So, how the UN could back this kind of manipulations aimed to sentence an innocent man and denigrate the entire nation and region#?)

While Harland also stated that this required the removal of very large numbers of Bosnian Muslims as they were a majority in certain areas, this appears to be his own assessment and not to be what the Bosnian Serb leadership said. The Chamber therefore does not place any weight on this aspect of his evidence. See also P4203 (Witness statement of Pyers Tucker dated 12 May 2010), para. 33.

2881. The Chamber also recalls that during the negotiation process at the ICFY, Bosnian Serbs pushed for an agenda consistent with the Strategic Goals and identified the areas of BiH they wanted to be under Bosnian Serb control while the Bosnian Muslims maintained their position for the creation of a unitary state with centralised powers.⁹⁴²⁰ (Why the Serb position would be wrong, so more since there was #no any need for a force to achieve# it, while the Muslim position needed a war to be achieved? And the Muslim (SDA) side waged three wars for this “strategic goal”, against the Serbs, the Croats and against the Abdic Muslims. Beside that, the Muslim attitude towards the inner structure of BiH was in a sharp contrast to the commitment of Mr. Izetbegovic made on the ICFY in the Hague in 1991, when he committed and accepted that the Serbs and Croats in BiH will have a high degree of autonomy!) The position of the Bosnian Croats was to take BiH out of the FRY, to declare independence, and to establish their own state called the Community of Herceg-Bosna with territorial contiguity with Croatia.⁹⁴²¹

2882. In January 1993, the President reported to the Bosnian Serb Assembly on disputes the Bosnian Serb leadership had at international negotiations with respect to disputed territories in municipalities including Prijedor, Sanski Most, Ključ, Rogatica, and Srebrenica.⁹⁴²² The President also noted that in municipalities including Zvornik, Vlasenica, and Rogatica the municipal authorities agreed to the legitimate division of those municipalities before the war with the effect that “there are areas that are [i]ndisputably Serb, Croat or Muslim”.⁹⁴²³ (#EXCULPATORY#! Had this process been continued, there wouldn’t be any war, any crimes, any movement of population. Every ethnic community would have it’s own administration and a mutual respect of the basic rights!)

2883. At a meeting held at the Presidency of Serbia on 8 November 1993, with inter alios Slobodan Milošević, the President, Krajišnik, Martić, Mladić, and Perišić in attendance, the following common objectives were discussed: (i) unconditionally strengthen the integrity of Serbia, (ii) set up the RS as a completely independent state; and (iii) ensure Serbs have complete power in the Krajina.⁹⁴²⁴ Emphasis was placed on reinforcing co-operation between the armies and unity in the Krajina.⁹⁴²⁵ (#All legal and legitimate goals, for which there was no any need for an offensive approach! At the same meeting President Milosevic presented his analysis about the German strategy of exhaustion of the Serbs and their engagement the USA to lead the process which was not in the US interest. Because of this “exhaustion strategy” Pres. Milosevic meditated about endig the war as soon as possible, with the results acceptable to the Serbs in BiH and Croatia. It should be noticed that it was a period of the Owen-Stoltemberg Peace Plan at the Conference. #Let us see what else had been said and advised: P1483, p. 20.

Why a selectiveness in prosecuting and deciding is the main characteristics of this Court?#) At the end of the meeting, conclusions were presented, one of which was to “work out offensive moves to correct frontlines in the RS, but go quietly and without noise as soon as possible”.⁹⁴²⁶ (#Commendable#!

2884. On 1 October 1993, the Accused held a meeting with VRS generals, during which he declared: “Our fundamental ideology is Serbdom and the Serbian state”.⁹⁴²⁷ Mladić asked that further goals of the war and tasks of the army be defined at the level of the state and the Supreme Command.⁹⁴²⁸ (What was wrong with the President’s attitude? The Chamber had already known that the main Serb problem was an ideological rift in the line #with communism – royalism, a so called “partisan-cetnik” rift#. At that time there was a communist agitation in the VRS by some old-fashioned officers, as the President said at the meeting on 8 November, P1483, p. 24

- There is a very unfair agitation in our Army, people are saying that the SDS /Serbian Democratic Party/ is pro-Chetnik ...

Nothing illegal in this attitude of the President! As opposed to the Serbdom there were a communist-internationalist, even pro-yugoslav looking ideas, and each and every of them caused a catastrophic consequences for the Serb people. The President wanted to prevent any division in the VRS!)

2885. In December 1993, Krajišnik noted that at the beginning of the war the Strategic Goals were “one of the most important documents” and that the Bosnian Serb Assembly endorsed these objectives and “organised the people to implement them”.⁹⁴²⁹ He also noted that the first and most important objective had been achieved and that the RS now existed with its own state organisation and territory.⁹⁴³⁰ (#This the very basic objective was not contested by the EC – UN mediators, but contrary, it was proposed by the leaders of the ICFY Lord Carrington and Ambassador Cutileiro.# It should have been achieved without any war, by sticking to the Lisbon Agreement! That was a political strategic objective, and it became a war objective because the war was imposed to the Serbs!) Krajišnik noted that in the first months of the war, efforts were directed towards “establishing full unity throughout the territory of [RS]” and that they had created the organisational and personnel conditions to allow the state to function normally and to allow “a more stable defence and the liberation of Serbian ethnic spaces”.⁹⁴³¹ (So what? Was it an illegal endeavour? It is clear that Mr. Krajisnik spoke with the full conviction that the objective was just and correct to the other communities in BiH) Krajišnik noted that in defining the borders of the RS in accordance with their strategic objectives they “did not violate the like rights of the Muslim and Croat communities” and what remained was to struggle for “just borders of our Republic, to be internationally recognised”.⁹⁴³²

2886. At a meeting in Belgrade on 13 December 1993 with the Bosnian Serb and Serbian leadership in attendance,⁹⁴³³ the President stated that the end of the conflict was close and that the Bosnian Serbs were holding 75% of the territory, some of which he noted would have to be returned as the international community would not allow it.⁹⁴³⁴ The President then listed the 2887. At the 37th Bosnian Serb Assembly Session on 10 January 1994, the President stated: “We can consider ourselves as winners after occupying this land, since the land is 100% Serbian now. Therefore, even if we come down to around 50%, we should be more than happy and satisfied, it is Dušan’s empire.”⁹⁴³⁶ (#First, the term “occupying” was not used, but rather “secured” or “pressed”. How the Serbs could have occupied their own territory. See P1385, p. 80 in Serbian: побједника, ми можемо сматрати да смо побједници када смо притиснули оволико земље рачунајући да је та земља сада 100% српска макар и да спаднемо на 50 и који проценат ми треба да будемо пресрећни и презадовољни то је Душаново царство, не будемо ли били задовољни због

In the same sentence the President said that the Serbs should be satisfied even if they fell down to 50% of it. However, this is a regular practice that those who assisted the Chamber in assembling this Judgement #pull some sentences out of context and depict it as an independent position#. This Assembly session went in the attempt of the President to gain a support of the deputies for an acceptance of the proposed proportions 1%, 33% and 49% and to end the war. In defending his own peaceful attitude the President underlined that the Serbs should have been satisfied and accept the international proposal. Let us see the discussion of deputies prior to this sentence of the President: P1385, p.102

Mr VJEŠTICA:

I will be brief, I am against this ratio 33,3%: 17%:49%, we all know that. At the beginning of this session, when we included this item as the last one, I said that if we continued with the negotiations, we would come down to 20%, and not 40%. It is obvious, because the more co-operative we are, whatever that means, the worse the things get for us, that is obvious. An ultimatum after an ultimatum is issued against us, and we must end this agony. Although I would rather be wrong, I know that Geneva will not change anything, the negotiations are useless, we will not solve the

This sort of a deep dissatisfaction with the “double-criteria” policy of the internationals was total and shared by all the Serbs, and unfortunaly they were right. Many other deputies said similar criticism to the Predisend and negotiating team, and in response to this criticism the President said that the territory must not be the main issue, but the peace and formation of the three republics. : In this speech the Accused also stated that their first Strategic Goal was separation and not the occupation of 60% of the land and they had also achieved their second objective, which was to have a contiguous territory connected by a corridor.⁹⁴³⁷ The Accused later that month delivered a speech in which he stressed that they had not lost any vital territories and had “kept everything that was important for the Serbian people”.⁹⁴³⁸ During a meeting with VRS leaders, the Accused recalled the substance of the six Strategic Goals and declared that “they have been defined with the highest level possible of brazenness”.⁹⁴³⁹ (Every single political speech of the President was used as a plan or intention! This was his effort to persuade the deputies and military to accept the peace plan, because as he sai in the same session of the Assembly, in the same context, a local wars do not end with the entire victory of one of the sides, see:P1385, p.

Brđanin testified that the second Strategic Goal was absolutely necessary, otherwise, those in the ARK would not have survived; the separation was an unavoidable consequence and the Accused insisted that the Bosnian Serbs should only defend the regions where they were the majority; and that the Accused never wanted to take any territory that did not belong to Bosnian Serbs. 107.

I beg you, I know what I am talking about, I know what actions are ongoing and I know how difficult their execution is. Do not count on finishing the enemy off, it rarely happens in local wars. You saw Palestine and Israel, you saw Iraq and Iran, there is no winner there. Local wars are long and exhausting and there is no winner.

Even #the most commendable moves of the President are used against him!!! So, the President was begging the representatives to get used to a moderate outcome of the war, and to a situation without winner, to a win-win result, and that the Strategic Goals had been envisaged with the highest level of brazenness, a maximalist, so that the Assembly deputies should get used to a possibility that some of it wouldn't be achieved! But, the Chamber didn't recognise the #EXCULPATORY# elements in this speech!)

2888. At a meeting with VRS commanders held on 29 January 1994, the President stated that the "plan" was, inter alia, the following: (i) do everything to maintain the Croat/Muslim schism; (ii) separate from the Croats and the Muslims; (iii) let the boundaries of the territory of the Muslims be clearly "detained" if they do not want to stay in Yugoslavia;⁹⁴⁴⁰ and (iv) be in conflict everywhere with the Muslims and the Croats.⁹⁴⁴¹ (What is wrong with this considerations about enemies?)

The following day, at a meeting of the Supreme Command, the President reiterated that their task was to defeat the Muslims and that they should be careful that the Muslims do not end up in the Bosnian Serb state.⁹⁴⁴² (#To "end up" in the Serb state, means to be caught in it without their will#. Again, it was within the context of dissuasion of the military from capturing more territories, because there wouldn't be the three republics, and if the Serbs defeated the Muslims, that would again be a unitary state and nobody would be satisfied. A common states of the antagonised ethnicities in the Balkans appear to be the main problem of this region! However, the Chamber, or it's assistants have carefully avoided the "whole truth" the sentence about where the Muslims may be situated pertained only to their state unit, not their population. See what President Karadzic said, caring about the Muslims and Croats to be satisfied: P1485, p.88-89:

1. *KARADŽIĆ:

- Your thoughts, assessments and estimates are correct.
We cannot respond to the way of thinking that the M/uslims/ and C/roats/ remain in tatters and enclaves rather than becoming state-building nations._
The question is what the world and Europe will support, whether a M/uslim/ state should be created, or that they should stay with the Serbs or Croats.
- * In all variants we must be cautious so that the M/uslims/ don't wind up in our state. _
- * The fact that Serbs account for only 65% of Serbia makes it unstable. _

Therefore, President Karadzic is for the Muslim-Croat rights to be respected, while the West may decide to prevent existence of a Muslim state and add the Muslim unit to the Serbs or Croats. And this is EXCULPATORY, because the President mentioned Serbia which may be ⁹⁴⁴⁰ The Chamber notes the reference to a policy of "immigration" with a question mark in the English version of exhibit P1485. Having gone back to the original version, the Chamber cannot be satisfied that this is indeed the term referred to since this part of the original document is not sufficiently legible.

unstable because of to many minorities included in the state. #Another word, Karadzic was advocating a modest approach to the territorial issues!#

2889. At a conference in Vlasenica on 29 January 1994, the Accused delivered a speech in which he spoke about conquering the entire territory in which there is probably about a million or a million and two hundred thousand Muslims, if there are still so many out there. Here I mean not only those who were killed but also those who fled; in order that we achieve and realize it. It is very hard to imagine. [...] We must defeat them everywhere we can and keep the territory. If possible, we should try to expand the territory; [...] and we should force them to agree to a kind of political and military capitulation [...] the starting point will be the actual situation on the ground.⁹⁴⁴³

(So what? But, let us first see who assembled this document, what the provenance if it is? Can not be established. Also, this was not a transcript of a recorded speech, nor was it a shorthand-stenographie, but a notes as much as cought. Finnaly, that was some “councelling” with the VRS commanders. Now, let us see what this speech, mainly political one, contains: P5581, p.1

improve the situation. It is a big dilemma to know how to end this kind of a war.

These are local wars. There are not a part of a global war in which there are winning and loosing forces; when you are only trying to be on the winning side. Just as /sic/. For us to conquer the entire territory in which there is probably about a million or a million and a two hundred thousand Muslims, if there are still so many out there /as written/. Here I mean not only those who were killed but also those who fled; in order that we achieve and realize it /as written/. It is very hard to imagine. And, it is hard to imagine such a complete defeat of Muslim forces; that they will not stay in some corner and pretend to be a state or a government as well as to have independence and legitimacy in a sense that they continue to infuriate us till the end

All of this hypothetical possibilities were presented by the President within the framework of dissuading the military people from taking to much of territories, depicting that in such a situation the Muslims may have pretended that they accepted the unity with the Serb state, but that it would be a life full of infuriation. See further:

/sic/. What can we do? We must defeat them everywhere we can and keep the territory. If possible, we should try to expand the territory; although this presents a great problem, and we should force them to agree to a kind of a political and military capitulation in order that they end up accepting an agreement. In a moment, when the international community sees that it cannot help them it would decide to end the war.

”To defeat them”... while “keeping the territory”... is also a #dissuasion from any offensive strategy#. A member of the VRS Main Staff, testifying in this case ...@ said that the President sometimes objected the military commanders for being “too militant” and that the commanders responded that an army must be militant particularly in a war, see:@

The President also said that “if possible, we should try to expand territory, although this presents a great problem...” Why would that be a “great problem” because of the fact that the Serbs couldn’t keep all the territory, but since the Muslim side doesn’t want to talk, it must be defeated in order to negotiate a solution. All of it had been handwritten down by an unknown author, imprecise and with insufficient sentences, and therefore should not be used in a criminal case. Therefore, President Karadzic presented to the military his political assessment that the war was managed by the “international community”, and that the IC may give up the political and military aid to the Muslims when it become evident that the Muslims can not achieve more militarily. To “force them to a kind of political and military capitulation” clearly meant that the objective was to secure that the Muslims wouldn’t be diluted within a Serb or Croat state, or to dominate over the Serbs and Croats, but to accept an agreement about getting what they were entitled to: their sovereignty on their own territories. And that was what happened in reality: The “International Community” supported ABiH to achieve what it could, for instance to try to win the Serbs around Sarajevo in June 1995, and other fronts, and then the UN-NATO forced a formidable bombardment of the Serb positions and approached the end of the war. A particularly important question is: whether this kind of a make-up of evidence, and avoidance of the “whole truth” is allowed in any judicial system? Will the United Nations through its courts establish a new standards, according to which all and everything is allowed to the prosecutors and chambers?)

2890. The Accused further stated “[f]rom the very beginning, I accepted entirely the view of all the commanders and [G]eneral Mladić. We must change the rhetoric. We must speak on TV, we must participate in live TV shows; we must motivate people for chivalry and prepare them for victories; and, of course, we must nurture their anger toward the enemy”.⁹⁴⁴⁴ With respect to the Bosnian Muslims, the Accused also said:

We prepared ourselves better during the time of peace than they. We knew what they are doing but they did not know what we are doing. They were astonished by the way we organized #defense of the municipalities#. We were organized; [G]eneral Kovačević knows that, because we were supported by [G]eneral Adžić. He worked on distribution of ammunition, he knew about. General Subotić also knew about it.⁹⁴⁴⁵

(This is #wrong translation#. There had been said” ...Kovacevic knows... he worked on dispersion of ammunition”. Not distribution, but “dispersion” out of the barrack that could have been surrounded. There are several orders, including some of the 2nd Military District, to disperse the military materials on a secure areas, see:D3679:

1. Raise the combat readiness of commands, units and institutions of the 2nd VO to the highest level.
2. Be ready to defend military facilities.
3. Pull part of units out of garrisons so they can participate in breaking blockades of military facilities and carry out other tasks.
4. Stimulate retired military personnel and GLs to be ready to defend residential buildings.
5. Nobody may issue TO weapons without a special order and signature by the 2nd VO commander, and bear in mind warnings about the seizing of weapons from military depots, and to this end take all measures to prevent such activities in the most vigorous manner.

⁹⁴⁴⁵ P5581 (Radovan Karadžić's speech at a conference in Vlasenica, 29 January 1994), p. 4.

1. – The situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina is catastrophic. Absolute lawlessness reigns, with chaos and terror against the members of the JNA and the Serbian nation. The Muslim-Croat collusion at the top of the Republic and lower down is responsible for the situation. The members of the army are well aware of all this.

2. – On the basis of an assessment made three months ago, stating that the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina would take a negative turn, we took a host of measures, so as to avoid or reduce to the smallest possible measure any possibility of an attack on the army. We relocated numerous units, lethal and other MTS /materiel and technical equipment/ to secure areas and locations. We also took a host of other defence measures against attacks from the violent fascist soldatesque in BH.

3. – With greater or lesser intensity, barracks and other military installations were constantly blocked, the men provoked and shot at.

4. – Unit commanders have done everything possible through the government, party leaders and otherwise to ensure correct treatment of members of the JNA, although aware that the government itself was behind the fascist attacks against us.

... and further:

a) Based on experience gained in Slovenia, Croatia and Macedonia, at the level of the district command it was promptly assessed that difficult days lay ahead for the members of the army and that evacuation to secure areas must commence.

Furthermore:

- For months now, we have been relocating depots of weapons, ammunition, MES /mines and explosives/ and other assets to secure areas where prospects for the army are good.

- Numerous depots, barracks and garrisons (Kiseljak, Visoko, depots in Stojkovići and Čelebić, etc.) have already been abandoned, since their survival was absolutely no longer feasible.

- More than a month ago, a part of the district command moved to an IKM /relocated command post/ outside Sarajevo. Major parts of the 4th and 17th Corps were also pulled out of the garrison to new command posts.

- By 1 May 1992, a significant number of regiment and brigade commands and their units were relocated to new areas.

There was no any “distribution” of ammunition or any war material to the Serbs in BiH, but only to the JNA, which didn’t interfere in the ethnic conflict for a long period, see: D4636 of 22 April 1992:

Armed clashes continue unabated in Sarajevo, Bosanski Brod, Bosanska Krupa and Derventa. The situation is worst in Sarajevo where there is fierce fighting between the Serbian and the Muslim side, especially in the southern parts of the city and the Ilidža area. All the analyses show that the issue at stake is the demarcation of territory.

The Army was not used in any of the crisis areas today either. We have sent several armed vehicles to the area of Ilidža, where fighting is fiercest, in order to separate the warring parties and create a buffer zone between them.

The present Bosnia-Herzegovina authorities are doing nothing to pacify the warring parties. On the contrary, tonight’s statement by Alija IZETBEGOVIĆ in which he called on the citizens to hold out because aid from abroad would soon arrive was actually an open call to arms. In response, the media today launched a relentless anti-army and anti-Serbian campaign. They have begun employing new strategies by broadcasting statements by so-called “free Serbian intellectuals” who fit into their concept of an anti-Serbian campaign very well. Both the Army and the Serbian side are being accused of all the evils this Republic presently has to endure.

Starvation and a general lack of everyday basics is ever more present in the organs of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

For human casualties and property destruction people blame Šešelj’s Chemiks, who do not even exist here, and of course the JNA /Yugoslav People’s Army/, that has supposedly taken the side of the Serbian people, which is completely out of place. There is not a word of criticism about operations by other paramilitary formations, even though it is known for a fact that part of BH territory in no way belongs to the Republic, but to Croatia. During the day the relevant Mostar officials admitted this fact.

How come this #genuine, contemporaneous and strictly confidential internal army document weren’t of any value to the Chamber, not even as any street gossip, which the Chamber accepts if against the Serbs#?) The Accused also stated that he was certain that no territory except in Sarajevo would have to be returned.⁹⁴⁴⁶ (Why would the President confuse his commanders that some territories shouldn’t be defended, because it will be returned? #The Chamber equalised the jokes from intercepted telephone conversations, a statements of some unofficial persons, all the political speeches, and valued it more than contemporaneous document of the sides and even of the UN! This way it was possible to create a completely false picture of this conflict#! But, was it a fair trial???)

2891. At a meeting of Bosnian Serb and Serbian officials in Belgrade on 27 February 1994, the President initially declared that the Bosnian Serbs might agree for the Muslims to have 33.3% of the territory, the Croats 14 or 15%, and the Bosnian Serbs 52 or 53%; he then stated that the Bosnian Serbs could be satisfied with 49% of the territory.⁹⁴⁴⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#! A flexibility was another Serb concession, after all the previous one!)

2892. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in March 1994, Ostojić identified four areas which he described as extremely sensitive in terms of establishing “geographic continuity of the Serbian population” in the RS.⁹⁴⁴⁸ (So what? Describing the #sensitive areas was not a crime!# This is a #patchworking of irrelevant sentences# because the Indictment didn’t obtain a relevant evidence, and the Chamber is criminalising everything in the Serb legitimate political life, as well as a necessary military responses!) The areas included Rogatica, Vlasenica, Bratunac, Prijedor, Ključ, and Sanski Most.⁹⁴⁴⁹ The Accused at this session again emphasised the importance of the actual physical control of territory and that there would be a division of BiH into three based on ethnicity and that he had been discussing before the war and making plans about which areas would form part of their state.⁹⁴⁵⁰ (The President didn’t invent it, that was an international proposal for BiH in order to secure it’s independence! A mere reporting to the Assembly is qualified as a crime? If not, why it is in the Judgement? As if it was in the list of crimes how the Serbs were doing many things that others do too, like “The Serbs blinked by their eyes”!)

2893. At a meeting on 8 May 1994 with members of the Supreme Command, including Krajišnik, Koljević, Mićo Stanišić, and Mladić, Plavšić stressed the importance of Posavina—that the percentage is less important but that it could not “exist in two parts”.⁹⁴⁵¹ Mićo Stanišić responded: “49–51%, there is importance, especially if an association is to be entered in with them”.⁹⁴⁵² The strategic goals referred to in Directive 6, including the operations to reach the Neretva River and gaining access to the sea, as well as reaching the right bank of the Una River, were also discussed at this meeting.⁹⁴⁵³ (#Nothing of it was criminal or forbidden#! This was a legal and legitimate reconsideration of the military situation and the prospectives for the final solution. The territorial continuity became an imperative because of the war, while before the war there was a possibility that the entities would be without continuity! Here, the Serbs were coughing loudly, which is forbidden!”)

2894. Even into 1995 the President continued to emphasise the Strategic Goals and stated that the “Drina should be clean” and that the “corridor must be wide”.⁹⁴⁵⁴ (To be clear, #“clean” in Serbian meant that it was not disputed#. In no way it pertained to any kind of purity, and it was very easy to establish, since it had been said within the context of the Conference on the territorial issues. See: P988, p.67

I would personally recommend to this Assembly and the people, less is better, but a defined status finally, and not a temporary one because the Serbs are moving out, leaving their homes in a temporary status. No Sarajevo in a temporary status, no temporary territory. Let's see what we can break off. A fox bites off its leg when it's caught in a trap, bites off its leg and goes. We'll have to bite off something, but let's

The President recommended to the Assembly to accept less of the territory, for the sake of a definitive solution! No discussion of population, only of territorial issues from the standpoint what is generally accepted, and what is contested. Further:p. 68 will accept what I arrange and not reject it. However, if we form a joint, not a single but a joint delegation where MILOŠEVIĆ will, of course, formally or informally, be the head, and he was also the head each time in Geneva, it's clear that he was the head. So even now when these people are coming to see him, we can have some of us go, if me and MLADIĆ cannot go for a start, KRAJIŠNIK, KOLJEVIĆ and BUHA can or if we include someone else in the delegation, so we can influence what might be accepted and what might not be. We know exactly what our priorities are. Getting Kupres back might not be a priority, if it's outside of our percentages that we can get, but the Una, Krupa and Sanski Most are priorities, the Sava and the corridor are priorities, Doboje and part of Ozren, Drvar and Petrovac, the meat of our territory is a priority. We cannot let someone /?put worms/ in our territory, to drill it with some channels and something. Part of Sarajevo must stay. We've drawn some maps into which a part of the Neretva Valley could be integrated, and, of course, access to the sea. The Drina should be clean. These are all priorities, the corridor must be wide. If we form a joint delegation, we must be breathing down MILOŠEVIĆ's neck all the time, looking over his shoulder to see what he is negotiating so we can influence it.

As the Chamber recognised in the next sentence, Krajisnik was talking about #“a clear Drina”, which only meant – undisputed, and not “ethnically clear”#!

Krajisnik also shared this objective about a clear Drina.⁹⁴⁵⁵ In another interview in May 1995, the Accused maintained that they had not given up and would never give up on the Strategic Goals and that they would “seek to achieve them either through political or military means”.⁹⁴⁵⁶

(The entire Assembly session on 28 August 1995 was a #preparation of the RS delegation for the Dayton meeting#. How these discussions about what would be requested in the Conference be criminalised? Could the Serbs do anything, except surrender, that wouldn't be charged against them and against the President? This must not happen any time and anywhere, this is contrary to the very same idea of justice!)

1. Conclusion

2895. The Chamber finds that the Accused played a central role in formulating, promoting, and disseminating the Strategic Goals. (Every single political entity has own strategic goals. The Serbs in Bosnia had the prioritized objectives, all in accordance with the Constitution and laws, i.e. to preserve an intact Yugoslavia and Bosnia in it, but since the others violated the Constitution and went to an illegal and unilateral secession, the Serbs in Bosnia adjusted their strategic objectives, always making concessions to the other side. The international community supported these objectives and made the Lisbon Agreement, which was in accord with a just solution, acceptable for all and accepted by all the three sides. When the Muslims reneged on it, there the war broke out, and the Muslim strategic objective was to conquer the entire BiH, while the Serbs and Croats didn't accept it. So, the Serb Strategic Goals altered in accordance with the war realities, but it was rather a negotiating platform, communicated to the European Community and its mediators. What is wrong with it? Are the Serbs forbidden to protect their own basic interests? Does the UN support this approach of it's Court?) In promoting the Strategic Goals, the Accused continued to emphasise not only the #interests of the Serbs to self-determination but also the threat they faced from the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who he continued to identify as their historic enemies#. Through these speeches, the Accused continued to disseminate propaganda against the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats which allowed him to promote the measures envisaged by the Strategic Goals. The Accused's rhetoric was also picked up by other deputies in the Bosnian Serb Assembly who similarly spoke about the danger posed by their enemies and used this to advocate taking military measures to protect their interests. (#This is an irrational and insane construction#. #First, to say that it was a propaganda, would be the same as if the Jews protested for a Hitler allies won an election in Germany! Tsih is insulting!# As if the Serbs in Bosnia were trained a flock of sheep, knowing nothing about their recent history, and the President succeeded to inflame them and persuade them that somebody was their enemy, while it was not so!!! There is no a single Serb family in BiH that hadn't lost some of the civilian members of family in WWII. There was the most horrifying camp for civilians in Jasenovac, where more than 700,000 Serb civilian had been killed, among them several tens of thousands of children. Together with the Serbs there had been killed more than 20,000 Jews and 70,000 Romas (Gipsies) Even a German representative in Zagreb, Croatia Von Horstenau reported to Hitler that the Croatian state is exercising unimaginable bestialities against the Serb, Jews and Gipsies. Let us see what the two Prosecution witnesses testified: General Petar Skrbic, T.26014: Q.

You said today that you also followed new political developments. Do you agree that there were new parties that appeared, especially in Croatia, and these parties had rhetoric that was frightening for the Serbs? They also had symbols from the Second World War, flags, coats of arms, and a particular kind of rhetoric that they would use which the Serbs found frightening?

A. There were symbols and a certain type of rhetoric in speeches, and this showed everyone that the Serbs were in danger in that territory. The survival of the Serbs was under threat. And these things could be noticed amongst members of the HDZ, the Croatian Democratic Party, which was established, I think, in 1991. Q.

Thank you. General, did you in Bosnia-Herzegovina know -- in the Federal Secretariat for All People's Defence, did you know that there were new parties that were being established and were you familiar with their programmes and rhetoric that they used, as well as the way in which they conducted themselves? A. Yes, we followed such events as well.

“The survival of the Serbs was under threat!” further, p. 26017 ¹ Q. I'll cut it short, General. Did you in the Federal Ministry of National Defence have concerns about the conduct or media reporting in Bosnia-Herzegovina and its impact on inter-ethnic relations and the stability of the country?

A. Yes, Mr. Karadzic. We were gravely concerned following the events in Bosnia-Herzegovina. We proposed our conclusions to the General, stating that should that situation continue, a result would be a bloody war. We presented it to him by way of a model, and we reminded him of the war in Lebanon which had a similar civil war. Q. Thank you. Were your concerns raised because you seemed to have viewed Bosnia and Herzegovina as a potential powder keg? A.

Precisely, Mr. Karadzic. I believe we even used that very phrase in a number of documents. Q. Thank you. General, since I was not of any interest to you, do you agree that no Radovan Karadzic could manipulate or incite the Serb people given the fact that those people had fresh memories of the genocide of 1941? Were you able to observe that -- whether my conduct was aimed at manipulating and inciting? A. Mr. Karadzic, I can only address your thesis of genocide. As for the rest of your question, I'd rather not comment. No person, including Karadzic or Raskovic or anyone, needed to tell the people of the dangers of genocide. The Serb people were well aware of it.

This witness was the Prosecutor's choice, in an ideological sense very far from the President, and he was surprised when asked this question! There is no living Serb, Jew or Gipsy who would need any additional information on this subject, but only the Prosecution and chambers of the UN Court do not know, and do not want to know it!) :

2896. The Chamber further finds that the Accused promoted the implementation of the Strategic Goals as a means of creating a Bosnian Serb state and warned against including “too many of our enemies” in the state which they would create. (Not to “include” exactly meant it, # not to be greedy about territories of the others#, who wouldn’t like to be in the Serb entity. EXCULPATORY! This had nothing to do with any crime, or expelling of population. What has to be done to have a proper understanding of the terms in Serbian before this Court? Or maybe there shouldn’t be any processes before such a courts, where a very basis of language, culture and habits of these who are processed are so unknown and strange?) In doing so the Accused emphasised the first Strategic Goal and the importance of separation from the other two ethnic communities in BiH. (This kind of subtle alteration of facts doesn’t help the image of this Court, nor the UN. On the contrary: it was always matter of – #separation of their states, not population#!) The Accused was adamant that this ethnic separation was necessary and acknowledged that the “freedom struggle” of the Serbs had not been finished and would result in many casualties and again made reference to the historic crimes committed against the Serbs. (It had been made “necessary” by the illegal and anti-constitutional secession of BiH, and the “historic crimes committed against the Serbs are a facts! So far only the communist regime implied an anaesthesia of the Serbs, to forget the horrors they underwent, and now a UN Court is adopting this communist strategi, and thus its deliberations look rather as a communist flosculas, than a legal conclusions!)

2897. The Chamber finds that the first Strategic Goal and the separation of the national communities was the most important to the Bosnian Serb leadership and their objectives. (Why the Muslim-Croat “national separation” from the rest of Yugoslavia is favourable in this court? However, the international community represented in the Conference on Yugoslavia (ICFY) established a principle of an administrative separation of ethnics wherever they had been located, see “Treaty Provisions for a Convention (“Carrington Plan”) from The Hague Conference” of November 4, 1991, pp.3 -4”

Those persons of the same national or ethnic group living distant from others of the same origin, for example, in isolated villages, shall be granted self-administration, to the extent that it is practicable.

The above principles shall also apply in areas where members of the main national or ethnic group of a Republic are numerically inferior to one or more other national or ethnic groups in that area.

Further : p.4

c) Special status

In addition, areas in which persons belonging to a national or ethnic group form a majority, shall enjoy a special status of autonomy.

Such a status will provide for:

- a. the right to have and show the national emblems of that area;
- b. (deleted)
- c. an educational system which respects the values and needs of that group;
- d. i. a legislative body
 - ii. an administrative structure, including a regional police force
 - iii. and a judiciary
- responsible for matters concerning the area, which reflects the composition of the population of the area;
- e. provisions for appropriate international monitoring.

#All that the President and the Serbs in Bosnia and Herzegovina had claimed for, and had done, was already envisaged by the ICFY prior to the time the Serbs claimed for it or conveyed it to practice#. How it is possible that the Prosecution was not aware of it, and how come the Chamber didn't task so many experts to take a look of these documents, nor accepted more that 230 Defence witnesses?)

2898. The President, in promoting the Strategic Goals, and more specifically the third Strategic Goal, emphasised the importance of eliminating the Drina as a border between Serbian states. (Why this subtle "shifting" of the meaning of the original words is needed? #In some paragraphs the Chamber correctly quoted: not to be a border between the worlds, which was a famous saying for centuries#! The Drina River was said tro be a border between two or three worlds, Orthodox, Catholic and Islamic!) The Chamber finds that this Strategic Goal was a practical elucidation of the ideology of Serbian unity and the non-separation of Serbs which was repeatedly promoted by the Accused. (So what? #This unity had been achieved in 1918, and destroyed in 1941 and in 1991#, by the same elements, who where not ready to live in the same state with the Serbs. In both of these destructions of the "common home" of the Yugoslav ethnicities the Serbs had been exterminated, and this could have been stopped only by a democratic and peacefull separation, as it happened in Scandinavia in 1905, which the President used as an example to be followed! Will this UN Court keen to "find out" that the President didn't say the truth in this respect, i.e. that the Serbs (the Jews and Roma) people hadn't been systematically destroyed and exterminated in the 20th Century, as President Karadzic suggested? Is it now a turn for denial of the Holocaust by another ad hoc Court of the United Nations?)

2899. The speeches of other Bosnian Serb deputies and Bosnian Serb leaders demonstrate that they supported the Strategic Goals and the approach advocated by the President. It is also clear that war, the military conquest of territory, and the movement and resettlement of the population were envisaged by the Bosnian Serb leadership in the implementation of the Strategic Goals. The President promoted and shared the objective of creating a Bosnian Serb state which was ethnically pure and creating contiguous Serb areas which would require a redistribution of the population. (This is the most vicious, malicious and unfounded assertion of this Judgement. The Chamber neglected all the evidence about the original Serb objectives, to stay in Yugoslavia, as a whole and undivided Bosnia, or to transform Bosnia peacefully, which was proposed by the European Community and the United Nations envoys, and accepted by the President and the Serb community in BiH. It was absolutely impossible to skip such a formidable evidence, and embrace such an unfounded conclusion coined by the Prosecution and the Muslim propaganda! This manipulation with the truth must be fought always and forever, because it is also a manipulation with the destiny of the Serbian people! But, any "redistribution of population was acompletely excluded by all the documents of the United Nations and the European Community, which the President ssupported, accepted and even proposed! How possibly to this Chamber there were of a more importance some gossips than these original documents of the UN and European Community, which regulated the existence and rights of the minorities?)

2898. The Chamber also finds that the Strategic Goals not only reflected the objectives of the Accused and Bosnian Serb leadership but were also viewed as instructions to be followed at a municipal level in order to achieve those objectives. In this regard, the Strategic Goals were communicated to and discussed by municipal bodies and also formed the basis for military operations by the VRS. The President, in meetings with Bosnian Serb military and political leaders, continued to emphasise the importance of their Strategic Goals and that the creation of their Serb state required war and the military protection of territories. (It is difficult to believe that the Chamber is aware of what had been written here on behalf of them: #since when a military protection of own territories and freedom against a military jeopardy of the same is a crime#? Comment as the above. Hadn't the Serbs been attacked, there wouldn't be any war in achieving their legitimate goals, after the illegal secession and the violation of the Constitution! Such a denial of rights to defence of an attacken nation is unique in history, and certainly in the practice of the United Nations. Even Mr. Izetbegovic himself admitted that he could have avoided the war, but he needed it to achieve the unilateral secession, and if (ne) was responsible, then Karadzic is not!)

2899. The Chamber also finds that there was a clear difference between what the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership were willing to say about the Strategic Goals in closed or confidential settings versus what they generally said to international representatives. The President in private meetings was far more candid about their willingness to pursue their territorial objectives even at the cost of lives and the displacement of thousands of people. The President went so far as to say that they had to motivate their people and “nurture their anger toward the enemy”. (It is rather unacceptable to have such a serious allegations without any reference. The Chamber pretended to be naïve, without knowing that in the private sessions the President couldn't have behave as an indecisive and conciliatory, particularly about the objectives. And undecisviness could have result in a leaving frontlines, desertion and crisis wi9th a grave consequences. But, the Chamber had so many examples that the President was readi to express his readiness to give back more territory in the private sessions than in the official ones. All of it is irrelevant, since it was a political discours, while the only relevant were documents singed by the President and the Internationals!)

2901. The Chamber also finds that the Accused received and also gave updates about developments and progress made towards the achievement of their Strategic Goals, including territorial control and the separation of people. (#This is a criminal and unacceptable forgery and insult!# Where are the references? When and how President Karadzic was interested in “the separation of people”?) He welcomed these territorial gains and spoke about the victory of the Bosnian Serbs in achieving their objectives and how they had retained control of all vital territories and continued to emphasise that they did not want Bosnian Muslims in their state. (#All fake and distorted#! There was a war, and why the President would be indifferent to a victory-defeat matters? Who jeopardised the Serb “vital territories”, and why it shouldn't be a crime to protect it? A “Bosnian Muslims in the Serb state meant “a Bosnian Muslim state, or a significant settled places, within the Serb state against the Muslim free will was something President Karadzic didn't want, as many documents confirmed!)

2902. The Chamber therefore finds that the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership not only formulated and promoted the Strategic Goals, they also took steps to ensure they were implemented through military operations and that organisational structures were created to allow for the creation of a Serb state. (#All fake and distorted!# This form of the Strategic Goals had been modified after the war had been imposed on the Serbs, and could have been achieved before the war and without the war, because the Goals were more modest before the war, and were legitimate, as codified in all the international proposals of agreements, just to the Dayton Agreement, confirmed by the UN! No any international institution denied the Serb state rights as it did this UN Court!)

2903. The Chamber finds that the Strategic Goals continued to be the central element with respect to the Bosnian Serb objectives for the duration of the conflict in BiH and the President continued to emphasise their importance into 1995. (It is so even now, and would be forever, because an alternative to it would be a slavery of the Serb people, and it's eradication in BiH, as they had been eradicated in other areas of the former “common home” of Yugoslavia! And this didn't depend on any individual!)

ii. Bosnian Serb political and governmental structures

2904. The Prosecution alleges that the Bosnian Serb political and governmental organs played a crucial role in the implementation of the alleged common criminal purpose of the Overarching JCE, that the President had a pivotal role in establishing and maintaining these organs, and exercised authority and control over them.⁹⁴⁵⁷ In this regard, the Prosecution argues that the President as the leader of the Bosnian Serbs exercised ultimate authority over these organs.⁹⁴⁵⁸ In this section the Chamber will consider the creation of the political and governmental organs and the extent of the President's involvement in this process as well as the manner in which those organs were used towards achieving the objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership.

(A) Authority over political and governmental structures

1. Analysis of evidence

a. SDS

2905. The SDS party had a hierarchical structure and, from 1990 to 1995, the Accused was at the head of this structure as the ex officio president of the SDS Main Board.⁹⁴⁵⁹ The Accused implemented his policies and the policies of the Bosnian Serb leadership through, inter alia, the structures of the SDS.⁹⁴⁶⁰ The SDS policies were communicated to the SDS Municipal Boards through members of the Main Board.⁹⁴⁶¹ SDS Municipal Boards were obligated to implement the instructions issued by the Main Board or Executive Board.⁹⁴⁶² While municipal organs had some independence with respect to local issues they were obliged and expected to obey and implement the policies and decisions of the SDS at the higher level and the Accused insisted on respect for his own personal authority.⁹⁴⁶³ (#Wrong and fak#! The President insisted that the decisions of the Party bodies had to be made democratically, but implemented without distortions or arbitrarily. Since there was a multi-party system, whoever wanted another policy, could form another party! Here is one of the documents which the Chamber accepted as a proof for this assertion of the OTP, P2572, p. 2

KARADŽIĆ Radovan:	What do you mean, bribing people? What with?
STANČIĆ Miroslav:	Food and drink you know, sweet, salty and everything else.
KARADŽIĆ Radovan:	Tell them that I will dismiss the Board and appoint other people. You tell them that. I will, it wouldn't be the first or the last time. I will dismiss the idiots who are idiots/?/ and who are not implementing the SDS policy. Let them for SPO, I don't mind, but they won't do that in my party.

The President said: “let them form SPO, I don't mind. The President of the Party was in charge of a verbatim implementation of a democratically adopted decisions and policy, no crime!) It was difficult for other Bosnian Serb officials, particularly at a municipal level to openly contradict the President who had “undisputed authority”.⁹⁴⁶⁴ For example, the President said that he would “dismiss the idiots [...] who are not implementing the SDS policy”.⁹⁴⁶⁵ (This is already commented above, but once again: this kind of distortion doesn't make a good service to the UN and this court of the UN. The President supported a municipal president of the SDS for opposing a smuggling of the ideology of another party, close to the “Chetniks” stating that nobody could exercise program of another party under the SDS umbrella, see P2572, p.

KARADŽIĆ Radovan:	Are they introducing Chetnik ideas?
STANČIĆ Miroslav:	No. SPO and such ideas.
KARADŽIĆ Radovan:	SPO can't mix with SDS.

The Accused issued express instructions to the SDS Municipal Boards including a mandatory directive with respect to the structure and activities of all SDS Municipal Boards.⁹⁴⁶⁶ (This is a part of implementing the decisions and realising the party policy, and the President of the SDS, as in any other party, was responsible for a respect of the democratically adopted decisions, which couldn't be modified either by the President, or by someone on the terrain. This kind of misunderstanding of the rules of party-functionings could only be an ideological bad will! In doc. P2529 there is nothing alleged in this paragraph, but here is the entire D4658, also designated as a basis for this findings:

In view of information of which we have become aware and which concerns the planning of commando actions in order to incapacitate the roads in Bosnia and Herzegovina, please make sure to provide round-the-clock guards at all bridges located in your area.

The bridges on transit roads to Serbia and Montenegro should be particularly well guarded, as well as those which connect the Bosnian Krajina with Central Bosnia.

This task of utmost importance must be considered a priority matter and carried out in full and unconditionally. It should be implemented in cooperation with organs of the authorities, in such a manner that you improve the safety of travel and do not create chaos by setting up road blocks or intercepting traffic.

Maximum discipline and coordination with the police and military authorities is essential.

So, in the wake of war in neighbouring Croatia, President of the SDS demands from the SDS to get included in the “All-peoples Defebece” and Social self-protection, which was a legal obligation. In doing so, the SDS had to work together with the common BiH police and other common institutions. There was nothing “Serbian” in it. Other parties had also been obliged to do the same, and there was an agreement among the ruling parties (SDA, SDS, HDZ) to coordinate and help the state organs in preserving the peace and control of terrain.)

Krajišnik*), T. 16625–16626, 16689–16690; P2557 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Goran Babić, 24 June 1991), pp. 3-5; P2559 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Radoslav Brđanin, 18 October 1991), pp. 2–3.

2906. Top and local levels in the SDS communicated in both directions, and municipal leaders, members of Executive and Municipal Boards of the SDS would frequently visit, write to or phone the President to speak about municipal matters.⁹⁴⁶⁷ For example, the Chamber found that there was a very close relationship between the Bijeljina branch of the SDS and the SDS party in Pale, and that the SDS leadership, including the President and Krajišnik, often visited Bijeljina.⁹⁴⁶⁸ Similarly, the Chamber found that a line of communication existed between the Municipal Board of the Bratunac SDS and the SDS leadership, including the President.⁹⁴⁶⁹ Another example can be found in Sanski Most where the SDS was extremely well-structured and disciplined, so that orders came from the top and were implemented without any objections.⁹⁴⁷⁰ When there were problems in Banja Luka for example, the President told Krajišnik that they, along with Koljević, needed to visit to “establish some order there, separate the soldiers from the people, and appoint some sort of command for these soldiers and some sort of board for the people”.⁹⁴⁷¹ (Another example how anything could have been used against this Accused and against the Serbs generally, no matter it was a crime, or not. Here is P5798, of 15 December 1991, which was the basis for this conclusion, P5798, p. 1:

R: Congratulations! Listen, we should make a quick trip to Banja Luka.
M: What for?
R: There’s complete chaos there. We must help establish some order there, separate the soldiers from the people, and appoint some sort of command for these soldiers and some sort of board for the people.
M: Yes.
R: The board, well...
M: What is it?
R: Well, a huge number of refugees are fleeing from above, you know, and I thought, well, I didn’t want us to go because I didn’t see our role. But now I see a role. This CVIJAN will come too. The prime minister from Western Slavonia will also come, or one of their members, so that we can open an office for them in Banja Luka and help them achieve something, you know.

Therefore, nothing in connection with the SDS, nor with the authority of President Karadžić. It was a matter of humanitarian endeavour of helping a huge number of civilian refugees from Croatia, West Slavonia, and a significant number of soldiers of the Serb Army of Krajina. So, these wandering soldiers needed some command, and the civilians some representatives who would communicate with the Banja Luka authorities. What is criminal in that?)

2907. The Accused also emphasised the importance of local SDS boards⁹⁴⁷² (Here is a part, p.3-4, of the P3431 exhibit:

- Our stand on the present state of affairs in the country;

- Above - Yugoslavia
- Below - Sovereignty

In both versions, support is given to JNA regardless of its difficulties.

AD2 - What stand on BH has SDS taken?

- A three-state confederation with separate government institutions for each nation and a common confederate government;
- The Serbian Republic will consist of cantons which will be very independent, yet function within the jurisdiction of the Republic's government.
- Problem: the relation of Bosanska Krajina to the Knin Krajina in Northern Bosnia;
- The stand KARADŽIĆ and KRAJIŠNIK have taken;

and there was #nothing illegal or criminal# in it! As a matter of fact, neither Karadzic nor Krajisnik were present, but somebody interpreted their standpoints, but even if they were there, what does it have to do with this case? "The Serbe were sneezing!" and in an interview, he indicated that the political life of Serbs in BiH "had been fully revived and established, which was the main purpose of setting up the party", and that in all places where Serbs lived they had set up municipal organisations with municipal and local boards.⁹⁴⁷³ (Why it was of any interest of this Court, as the OTP as the Chamber? What is wrong with doing it or talking about it? This kind of attitude towards the Serb rights had only the communist dictatorship!) The President also took an active role in determining the organisational structure of the SDS at a municipal level and the appointment of personnel.⁹⁴⁷⁴ On 31 October 1991, the President emphasised the importance of strong SDS leaders who would implement directions from the leadership, stating that whoever is "not able to be the boss in the municipality, to carry out the mobilisation and even to the full if necessary, should resign immediately".⁹⁴⁷⁵ (So what? A leaders had to be capable, or not to be leaders, in such a case they may do something else. Is it different in any democratic country? Or it was not applicable to the Serbs? The Chamber should have known that the SDS had been composed of the people opposed to the previous communist regime, that many of them feared because of their engagement, and that it was not so easy to replace the regime, and in addition to that, to change the entire system of society and the state authority!)?

2908. The Chamber recalls that as early as February 1991, the SDS had considered specific actions to be taken should BiH move towards independence.⁹⁴⁷⁶ The SDS envisaged that in such a case municipal authorities were to ensure that only Yugoslav (federal) law would apply, suspending the implementation of republican regulations.⁹⁴⁷⁷ This policy was adopted by the SDS Deputies' Club and was made public in a document dated 10 June 1991.⁹⁴⁷⁸ (All legal and legitimate, and public. The BiH Muslim-Croat coalition betrayed the coalition agreement with the SDS and opted for a secession, violating the Constitution, and the SDS publicly opposed this actions. What is illegal in it? However, yhe very same day, 10 June 1991, the SDA had formed the Supreme Command of the future secret Army, the Patriotic League, and Mr. Izetbegovic had been elected President of this political body for "defence of the Muslim people, although he was ec officio President of the Board fo Defence of the entire BiH and all the three ethnic communities. Nobody from the international community saw anything irregular and significant in that?)

meeting of the SDS Municipal Board on 12 April 1991, it was agreed that instructions would be requested from the SDS headquarters “regarding the referendum, our behaviour and functioning” and that the regional redrawing of municipal borders, which was occurring in Banja Luka, was “fully supported, and those questions should be posed in our areas as well”.⁹⁴⁸⁰ It was also noted that the Presidency of Bratunac should meet with the President urgently with respect to the questions raised.⁹⁴⁸¹ The President and Krajišnik took a leading role in using the SDS structures to call on all Serbs in BiH to boycott the referendum on the independence of BiH as it was against their interests.⁹⁴⁸² (So what? #Why this court should back the Muslim illegal and anti-constitutional political moves#? How to avoid an assumption that this court is merely political instrument?)

Wasn’t it?) At this meeting, the following items were also discussed: (i) the aim of creating a Greater Serbia; (ii) the activation of parallel government bodies such as a Serb Assembly; (iii) the intensification of the process of regionalisation; and (iv) the military organisation at a local level.⁹⁴⁸⁷ (What was “discussed”, wasn’t adopted as a decision, or conclusion or any other act. Todor DUTINA: /underlined by hand:/ This evening we must shed the illusion that a form of coexistence with the Muslims and the Croats can be found. Therefore I suggest the following:

1. Issue a proclamation addressed to the Party of Democratic Action and the Croatian Democratic Union (the leadership) asking them to withdraw, within seven days, the decision they have adopted, otherwise the Serbian Democratic Party will instruct its members to leave the existing government institutions and begin creating parallel ones.

2. Within seven days, organise a rally to demand equality, thus exerting pressure through the media.

Also emphasise that unless this decision of the Assembly is withdrawn, the regions will stop paying their obligations to the Republic.

At that time Mr. Dutina, a known poet, was in the leadership of the Reformist Party, in all other matters except this one in opposition to the SDS. None of his proposals had been adopted! See further, what the President said, D294, p. 2:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: Yesterday, the constitutional and legal order in Yugoslavia and Bosnia and Herzegovina was toppled, and the Serbian people were deprived of their status. We must not shift to the opposition until the constitutional and legal order is re-established, because we should ensure the sovereignty of the Serbian people. Our people must follow us in all the bodies.

nothing false or illegal! See further, D294, p.2

ČANGAR: Today the President of the Constitutional Court stated that the decision adopted by the Assembly did not have any legal effect.

Radovan NEŠKOVIĆ:

1. /underlined by hand:/ Since they will not revoke their decisions, I suggest that a parliamentary crisis be provoked.

2. Demand new elections /underlined by hand:/ because in this way we would gain time, which suits us.

3. As regards ethnic-party outvoting, we were the first to use it at the local level, and they at the republican level.

4. /underlined by hand:/ Go for a change of policy with the aim of creating a Greater Serbia. Harmonise the change of policy with Belgrade, but not in the Assembly, because returning to the Assembly would mean recognising their decision.

So, Mr. Cancar reported of the standpoint of the President of Constitutional Court, and Mr. Neskovic proposed “a change of policy” and turn to creation of a Greater Serbia. So far, it was not the policy, but he proposed to change this policy! Neither of his proposal were even commented, let alone adopted! #What is relevance of a free meditations of the members of the Political Council of the SDS, particularly those that hadn’t been adopted#? Among the members of the Council there were several members of the Academy of Sciences and Arts of BiH, as well as two elected members of the BiH Presidency. How come every manifestation of the Serb political life is under the charges?)

2911. With respect to the referendum the President said in an intercepted conversation that not only was this an illegal decision but through this action, the Bosnian Muslims “set everything up for us just perfectly; it’s all fallen right in place”.⁹⁴⁸⁸ In this regard the President said they would be strong and establish their own state and that BiH would consist of three sovereign nations.⁹⁴⁸⁹ (So what? The international community didn’t support the unity of Yugoslavia, supported the unlawfull conduct of the Muslim side, and finally had to accept the Serb compromise, to have BiH transformed into three states!)

2912. On 16 October 1991, the SDS issued its “Announcement to the Serbian people” in which it stated that the SDA and HDZ had breached the constitutional order and reiterated its support for federal institutions, including the JNA.⁹⁴⁹⁰ (What was wrong with this President's calling for the legalities in conduct of the state policy?) In an intercepted telephone conversation that day, the President assured SDS officials in Banja Luka: "We've worked out a scenario. We won't make a single move today. If necessary, we'll do it tomorrow, [...] it would be very useful. Everything's been worked out. You don't need to worry. [...] They can only start fighting us, killing us, but everyone knows what's gonna happen then!"⁹⁴⁹¹ (So what? If the Serbs in Banja Luka had been upset with the events in the Assembly, the #President tried to calm them down#. Also, the Serbs in Srpska Krajina were upset, and desperate, and Milan Babic tried to proclaim a unification of the two Krajinas, and the President estimated that it would be illegal and damaging of the Serb interests. What is wrong with that? It rather should be commended, because the President fought for legality and for a peaceful means in achieving political goals, see DP2555, p. 1

Andelko	Well, you see, last night, I met up with Milan here; he had been away, so we talked about certain things a bit and we wanted to consult you a bit. Milan suggested this, he's going to the Hague on Friday, for another meeting, not the one of the presidents of the republics, I think, and he suggests that he should represent our interests too on the basis of the declaration we have adopted in Grahovo...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Whose interests?!	p.3
Andelko	...to defend ourselves from their invasion.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Which invasion?
Andelko	Well, the thing that's happening now.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Well, what can they do?! They've embarrassed themselves in front of the world, man. KRAJIŠNIK, KOLJEVIĆ and I have asked to be received by Lord CARRINGTON and we will be. We'll explain what the matter is, if that will be, er, well, I, every day /unclear/. Yesterday I spoke to a Frenchman here who told me exactly what the secret and public plans of France are; I can't talk about them over the phone...
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	You see, VUKIĆ, I have to, I've just, I have to reveal many things and /words omitted/ over the phone. I've spoken to the Frenchman. He told me about their secret and public plans and he will help us a lot, I think, not to worry, both France and England are behind us, no doubt.
VUKIĆ	All right, all right...that you know.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	But the other thing, there's no way we're gonna leave Bosnia and Herzegovina, because then there is another criterion for separation which would be terribly damaging to us.	p.4
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Well, I know, but you should come to Sarajevo too, you should...no you're not isolated there, you are scared. What are you scared of? Can they establish Bosnian rule there? Like fuck they can!
VUKIĆ	They can't.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	So what are you afraid of then?! This is worthless. I'm grateful to them for having done that stupid thing. They've been co-operative, man. IZETBEGOVIĆ cannot appear in Europe anymore.
VUKIĆ	All right.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	He's embarrassed himself so much. We're going to a press conference in the International Press Centre tomorrow ...
VUKIĆ	Uh-huh, uh-huh.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	And that was sent from all around Europe, to all embassies, to VEJNANS !?!, CARRINGTON, VAN DER BROEK. Imagine when he appears up there on Friday and then they tear him into pieces; and MILOŠEVIĆ in particular points out Kosovo Assembly. That's Kosovo Assembly which held a session in front of the door, in an illegal way.	p.

Boro SENDIĆ	I was asking for it out of desperation. The wounded are dying over there, remember when we were encircled, the army /JNA/ didn't intervene, remember.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Yes, yes. What's the situation now?
Boro SENDIĆ	Very difficult. People don't see the point in building houses. The enclave, I mean Okučani, I mean the villages around all the way down to Lipik, there's a war going on there, constant attacks, and err, they are in expectation /suspense/. But the worst still is this feeling of hopelessness, because the people feel that the enclave err, they are asking themselves can it resist the attacks at all. Unbelievable, I don't want to calculate.

#"out of desperation" people asked what to do, and the President reassured them that nothing should be done, particularly nothing sudden. How this was wrong? The same page:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	It is most important not to lose hope, because the dawn will come. It's important...what we don't finish tonight we'll finish tomorrow. Perseverance of the Serb people is of the essence. The Serb people must not be volatile.

#Contrary to the reality in which the President had to encourage people to endure instead of being volatile#, the Chamber is inferring that the population was calm and felt secure, but the President upset them by his stories###. Meanwhile, the very same days, the Serbs in the neighbouring Croatia were suffering as none of the peoples of Europe did! And there was nothing that showed that the same will not slip to Bosnia, as it did happen!)

2913. The SDS Deputies' Club met again on 18 October 1991, and the Accused rejected the decision of the BiH Assembly because the Bosnian Serb deputies had not participated.⁹⁴⁹² (#Legal, obligatory#! Not true! Not only that. The two other sides couldn't vote for anything if the group of deputies directed the issue to the Council for the National Equality, as was written in the Constitution, nor the BiH Assembly could vote to change the Yugoslav federal Constitution, nor they could vote to alter the BiH constitution without two third + 1 of the deputies, and finally, they were not entitled to reconvene the Assembly session without the authorisation of it's president, i.e. violating the Rules of procedure of the Assembly. All of it was violated! #A lawless country#! Why would the Serbs accept it? What decent people would?) The Accused noted that a "team made up of the leading men of the party, the Government and the Political Council has been working day and night" and that he had decided to impose a state of emergency in the SDS.⁹⁴⁹³ (So what? It was a "cristal night" of Bosnia, and the ONO and DSZ (All-Peoples Defence, and Social Self-Protection) as a part of the Yugoslav legal and defence system obliged all the institutions and organisations to respond to that kind of violation of stability! The next that could be expected would be a physical violence, because after the constitutional there a physical violence of the security and life of the people!) This state of emergency, which was declared by the Accused, was binding on all its members, bodies and officials.⁹⁴⁹⁴ The Accused emphasised that there needed to be maximum discipline that they had to listen to their leaders and there was no room for a "single wrong step".⁹⁴⁹⁵ As part of this state of emergency, the Accused ordered that there should be daily meetings of the municipal boards and that they would receive daily instructions on the measures to be taken.⁹⁴⁹⁶ Following the Accused's order, an emergency meeting of the SDS Municipal Board of Bratunac was held where Miroslav Deronjić informed those present about the SDS Main Board

2914. The Accused was the undisputed authority within the SDS for the duration of the war.⁹⁴⁹⁹ Some people who resisted the President were expelled from the Main Board.⁹⁵⁰⁰ On 24 June 1991, the Accused told a Bosnian Serb leader in Prijedor that if the party could not organise themselves, he will do it for them by introducing new people into the Prijedor SDS party leadership.⁹⁵⁰¹

(#REBUTTED #Irrelevant for such a case#! It is understandable why the Prosecution was desperate about the lack of evidence, but the Chamber was? Let us see the reference to an alleged evidence about the President as an autocrat, P2568, a testimony of Neskovic, who testified in this case too, but the Chamber didn't check this issue there, but rather exploited what Neskovic said in another case, in which nobody was interested in contesting or rebutting his testimony pertaining to this President. P2568, T16625 – 26 – 27:

25 JUDGE ORIE: Would that mean that on the republican level of the SDS but also the municipal and the local level, wherever there were clear feelings or clear instructions, that it was difficult to resist him?

THE WITNESS: [Interpretation] At the local level it was very difficult to resist him because there were no high-level political figures that -- no strong personalities, with the exception of a number of individuals whom I could mention. But at the republican level, in the Main Board it was a little different because Karadzic presided over the Main Board, but there were 45 of us there, after all, and the people there were slightly more prominent and capable, and at the Main Board there was resistance. Different opinions were expressed. So it was not that easy to implement the policies -- to get the policies through at the Main Board. At the Main Board, Radovan mostly tried to persuade everyone, and he went to great lengths to do so. Within the Main Board, it was a lot easier to put up resistance, a lot easier than it was at the local level.

JUDGE ORIE: Yes. But even in one of your earlier answers you said, "It was very difficult, and a great deal of diplomatic skill was called for in terms of either refusing to do something or to do something or doing something in a slightly different way." Was that limited to public debate? Because you say it was very -- "rather difficult to contradict him openly and publicly." That sounds a bit as if it was not that easy, even when you were in direct contact with him, such as at the republican level.

THE WITNESS: [Interpretation] At the republican level, when the Main Board was in session, various discussions would be held. There was nothing that you would have to do. You would just have to discuss matters, and you could express different opinions. But if you had a particular task assigned to you by Karadzic or the executive or Main Board, if your task was to go into the field and do something in particular there, then it was very difficult to put up resistance if you had a particular task. In order to avoid any misunderstandings, I wanted to know exactly what I had to do, what sort of authority I had, where I had to do it, and when, so that I could be held responsible for what I did, so that I could do what I had to do in a responsible manner. He did not treat me in a rough way. I had a certain amount of freedom to carry out tasks in an independent way. I didn't have the same problems that Srdjo and others had. I don't know whether it was because he had allowed me to act in this manner or whether he had managed to obtain such privileges. But in any event, if someone wanted to resist him, it was necessary to have a lot of courage, and this also meant losing one's position in the Main Board.

I'll provide you with the example of Milakovic, who publicly opposed him, resisted him, and he was expelled from the Main Board. And Sladimir Srebrov also resisted him in public before that, and he was also expelled from the Main Board. So you are quite right: It was very difficult to directly oppose him, and usually one would suffer the consequences, and you would be driven away. You would be expelled from that body.

So, even this witness confirmed that during the decision-making process, “there was nothing that you had to do...” and that “you could have expressed.... “it was easier to resist... the President “mostly tried to persuade everyone”... and so on. But, what was difficult to do, Neskovic explained: “But if you had a particular task assigned to you by Karadzic or the Executive or Main Board, ... it was very difficult to put up resistance...” it was clear that even this witness described that the decision making process was democratic, but when it came to the execution of the tasks on the terrain, there could be no resistance. There could be resistance that would not be legal, because it wouldn't be a resistance to the President, but to the bodies of the Party that made decisions democratically. This is ridiculous to charge the President for being meticulous in executing the decisions. Further the Witness mentioned Srdjo Srdic, who was a president of the municipal Board of Red Cross, and the SDS at the same time, and the deputy in the assembly. He was a dentist, and very old man, and it was a conflict of interests, and his colleagues from Prijedor made him to chose only one local post, and he had chosen Red Cross office. Milakovic was a criminal, deviant in many directions, and finally he founded an illegal brothel, and nobody wanted him to lead the SDS in Prijedor. V. Srebrov was also a deviant man, and he wasn't a member of the Main Board, and the President didn't remove him, but the main Board unanimously expelled him from the party, an if he was a member of the main Board, only Assembly of the Party could remove him. There was no any example like that. And the President sustained a sharp criticism for being “too democratic”, which is very easy to check!)

In September 1991, the President intervened to replace the local SDS President in Prijedor, Srdo Srdić, with Simo Mišković, who promised to follow the policies of the SDS Main Board.⁹⁵⁰² (This document quoted as a basis for this paragraph, we paste here, because it is the strongest proof how the Judgement is wrong: P2571: p.2 - NEŠKOVIĆ: And now they want, in a way, to create a party for their own taste. That they have more seniority, and the party would... serve them, approve everything they say, what do I know?

Radovan Well, that is totally unacceptable.

KARADŽIĆ:

NEŠKOVIĆ: So, there are great problems here. Then they go to the field and declare that they will bring Srda down, and so on. They have created a very unpleasant atmosphere, they have created two camps.

NEŠKOVIĆ: Because they do not recognise any authority here, especially if you mention Sarajevo.

Radovan Let them fuck their mothers, let them make their own party, let them

KARADŽIĆ: resign. Whoever refuses to obey Sarajevo should resign. Write papers for them tomorrow and say: this is a party which has its top and its bottom, and nobody will fuck about under our name.

NEŠKOVIĆ: Yes.

NEŠKOVIĆ: Tell me, what should we do tomorrow? They called it at five o'clock, a lot of people will come. They have invited various managers, everyone who is someone in Prijedor, and so on.

Radovan I sent a telegram... a fax this evening. I don't know if it arrived, if it was received. Was it?

NEŠKOVIĆ: Well, I haven't seen it. Maybe Srda's got it, or...

Radovan It was sent to the party this evening, I only don't know if it was to KARADŽIĆ: the party's fax. Yes...

NEŠKOVIĆ: ... here at Srda's, I take a look.

NEŠKOVIĆ: Let me tell you: here is an idea of mine for a solution. I have never Radovan Then who called the meeting for tomorrow?

KARADŽIĆ:

NEŠKOVIĆ: It was called by the group of assemblymen, and they stamped the fax they sent us with the seal of the municipality, not of the party.

Radovan Well, they can't, the assemblymen club can't call a party meeting...

 MIŠKOVIĆ Yes.
 Radovan They don't have that prerogative, the mutherfuckers ...
 KARADŽIĆ: Yes. Probably the main board, they know... I am not a member of the Main Board. The Main Board probably gave them carte blanche...
 Radovan They cannot give them carte blanche. They are implementing the policies of the party, not the other way around.

All the questions of the Party Statute, Neskovic and the others ask the President for advises and interpretations of the rules, because a small group of deputies in the Municipal Assembly made an usurpation of the prerogatives of the Party. The entire document is an example how the President tolerated the inexperience and confusion on the terrains, giving full support to the locals to resolve the problem, but in accord with the rules. In no way this document should be used against the President. So many irrelevant elements, findings and inferences, it is impossible to any Defence to respond to all of it. During the trial the Chamber rightfully didn't test so many small elements, and the Defence also didn't insist on it, but now we found all of them in the Judgement, although the Chamber didn't give any chance to the Defence to rebut it.) : The Accused spoke with an SDS member in Banja Luka on 11 January 1992. When the President was faced with the suggestion that there were some individuals in the Krajina who wanted to act independently on certain issues, he insisted on party discipline and stated "they cannot. We have all of that in the plans. We have all moves in the envelopes. They must not do it before we do it in the whole of Bosnia. Why are they playing smart? They're explaining my policy to me".⁹⁵⁰³ (Not to copy-paste to many evidence, this is ridiculous, insignificant and irrelevant for this case. The President made a great deal of efforts to calm the Krajina inexperienced officials not to unite with the Serb Krajina, because tah would be a casus belli with both Croatia and BiH. In all of these examples, the President was decisive that under the SDS program there can not be smuggled a program of another party. Who wanted another program, should found another party. There is nothing more normal and natural, and the President of the SDS was responsible for the executions of all the decisions without any alterations resembling program of the other parties! See P2556, p. 3:

RK: Well, it is a directive, of course it is a directive, a respected and distinguished deputy and the president of the Political Council of the Serbian Democratic Party came. They are not some foreigners. I will send them all to hell, I will suspend the Party in Krajina and make a new Party with new people, what do they think.
 NS: Let me tell you, there are more serious people and they mentioned some problems now....
 RK: No problem. When you are to create a State there are no problems, there must not be problems about it. The policy of the Serbian Democratic Party is the unified Serbianhood in Bosnia and Hercegovina and there is no problem- if someone wants to create other Party, he may do that and go to elections with that Party.

NS: You know what has happened? It happened that there is one group of deputies who referred to you and did you a great disservice in that way, and then there was a discussion on all possible irrelevant things, while nobody spoke about the global /ones/, well one could not have stayed either aside or wherever in any way. Because, I say, we have a problem with the boards, which, it is very difficult to explain the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina to them, therefore you should go to Banja Luka as soon as possible, because this would not turn out good.

RK: However we are doing everything else, we will have a council of ministers today, there is, we have done everything today, we have plans for everything, they just keep running ahead, like oxen after sal... , after salt, let them stop for a while and let them, let them in, in, synchronise their work with the party.

NS: Allow me to say something, doctor, whoever and particularly these ten people at the Assembly today who, let me tell you, they have no respect, they are not people with weight, and they were hiding behind some opinion approved by Radovan KARADŽIĆ, a good work would not be done here with the people like that.

It is more than clear that it was a political fight between the true SDS members and the local oligarchy of autonomists, who didn't have any influence in population, but wanted to abuse the SDS reputation to form their small principalities, they called every now and then for some senseless plebiscites, ruining the stability, and, as NS said, abusing the President's name during these games! No party all over the world would allow a rogue element to smuggle another program and ruin the policy of the existing party. What does it prove? Only that the President was a responsible official!

The Accused also insisted that he would expel and discipline those who did not follow the SDS policies or acted without his approval or the approval of the Bosnian Serb Assembly.⁹⁵⁰⁴ The President also spoke about having a council of ministers, and said “we have plans for everything” and that in the Krajina they had to “synchronise their work with the party”.⁹⁵⁰⁵ He also spoke about the importance of pursuing the Serbian policy in a synchronised fashion otherwise “the Serbs would not have a state”.⁹⁵⁰⁶

a. Bosnian Serb Assembly and governmental structures

2914. The Chamber found that on 24 October 1991, the Bosnian Serb deputies of the SRBiH Assembly met and decided to establish a separate assembly, which was constituted the same day.⁹⁵⁰⁷ Krajišnik explained that the Bosnian Serb deputies in the SRBiH Assembly were prompted to form the Bosnian Serb Assembly due to what they saw as a violation of the sovereignty of the Bosnian Serbs and a threat to their existence in BiH “where they had lived from time immemorial”.⁹⁵⁰⁸ Krajišnik also expressed the right of the Serbs to self-determination and remaining in their “historical and ethnic territories”.⁹⁵⁰⁹

2915. Krajišnik was elected as the first president of the Bosnian Serb Assembly.⁹⁵¹⁰ On the same day the Bosnian Serb Assembly decided that the Bosnian Serbs would remain in the joint state of Yugoslavia and called for the conduct of a plebiscite to confirm this decision.⁹⁵¹¹ In November 1991, Brđanin was quoted in a newspaper article as having stated that all directors and managers in the ARK who did not participate in the plebiscite should be urgently dismissed from their positions.⁹⁵¹² Following the publication of this article, the President said that Brđanin was “out of order” in his statement about the dismissals of directors, but that he “wanted to get [him] off the hook” for the statement and ultimately told Brđanin that “it has to be done, but you mustn’t say that” out loud.⁹⁵¹³

2916. The Accused was also involved in organising steps to be taken to carry out the plebiscite.⁹⁵¹⁴ (What a horrible crime!?) After the decision of the Constitutional Court of BiH and the Bosnian Serb Presidency declaring the plebiscite of Serb people unconstitutional and illegal, the plebiscite was launched and the President stated that the Serbs no longer had any duties towards the BiH Constitution, that they had obligations towards the Constitution of Yugoslavia which guaranteed their right to self-determination and the right for the people to organise themselves.⁹⁵¹⁵ (The #Federal Constitutional Court declared all the secessionist moves illegal#, but no republic respected it. The BH Constitution didn’t exist after the famous Assembly session on 15 October 1991. All of a sudden, the Chamber is interested in a constitutional matters, while even didn’t notice all the previous violations of all and every rule, law and constitution on the Serb account!)

2917. The Chamber recalls that on 9 and 10 November 1991, a plebiscite was held to determine whether Serbs in BiH wished to remain in a joint state of Yugoslavia with the overwhelming majority of Serbs voting in favour of remaining in Yugoslavia.⁹⁵¹⁶ On 21 November 1991, the Bosnian Serb Assembly proclaimed as part of the territory of federal Yugoslavia all those municipalities, communes, and settlements where a majority of registered Serb citizens had voted in favour of remaining in Yugoslavia.⁹⁵¹⁷ In an intercepted conversation on 23 December 1991, the Accused said: “A political principle is being introduced. In principle, everywhere where Serbs live and where they have voted against secession, or to remain in Yugoslavia, no one can break away there. [...] However, we don’t want to stop the Croatian and Muslim peoples from reorganising themselves, meaning that their links to Yugoslavia would be weaker than ours.”⁹⁵¹⁸

(Those are a pure political matters, and the Court had prevented the Defence in this case, and in other cases to deal with the political matters as an essence of the crisis and a cause of the war and consequently of the crimes. Now, the main issue against this President are the political questions that led to the war, although the President’s political actions were purely reactive, a responses to a political violence of other sides. Although all the President’s actions had been a chain of concessions, aimed to avoid a war, every single manifestation of the Serb political life is criminalised and depicted as a cause of war and crimes. But, an impartial court would adopt the Defence's most frequent comments: "So what? #Exculpatory#! Irrelevant! #Political in nature! Legal! Legitimate! Not criminal#!" or, at least, would demand a clarification of the Decence's position to this regard!

2918. The Bosnian Serb Assembly functioned as the central body representing Bosnian Serbs and was the mechanism through which other institutions and political structures were set up.⁹⁵¹⁹ (This is a ridiculous characterisation of an Assembly, as if it was a criminal group, although it was a democratically elected body, with the main task to "give the democratic respons to the challenges posed before the Serb community", as the President described the reasons for the foundation of SDS 12 July 1990!) This included a Council of Ministers, which was established on 21 December 1991 and replaced by the Bosnian Serb Government on 24 March 1992.⁹⁵²⁰ In January 1992 the Accused spoke about how their republic had already started functioning, had its own authorities, structures organs and a Council of Ministers and that all Yugoslav institutions including the JNA "will back us up [...] Nobody can do anything about that. They cannot do anything, because that is 60% of the territory they would not be able to control as an independent state".⁹⁵²¹ (So what? #All the Serbs had done in BiH was already envisaged during 1991 in the Conference in the Hague led by Lord Carrington (ICFY) with a special commitment of Mr. Izetbegovic that the ethnic constituent communities in BiH would have a high degree of autonomy.# The same was envisage at the sub-Conference on BiH led by Ambassador Cutileiro, and finally codified in Dayton and codified in the UN SC Resolution#!)

2919. In addition, the National Security Council ("SNB") was established on 27 March 1992.⁹⁵²² The President described the SNB as an advisory body to the Bosnian Serb Assembly which would be composed of "all the important organs and institutions" of the Serbian people.⁹⁵²³ The SNB was responsible for military matters during the war and matters relating to security.⁹⁵²⁴ The SNB served, until the creation of the Presidency in May 1992, as the de facto Presidency of the SerBiH. The President was the ex officio president of the SNB,⁹⁵²⁵ and the decisions of the SNB were made under the control of the Accused.⁹⁵²⁶ (A democratically established and maintained body couldn't be "controlled" by anyone, and it was not controlled by the President. However, this is one of many examples of the crucial manipulation in depicting only one side's conduct, removing all the events that caused the responses. The SNB was established on 27 March, after the Croatian forces, from Croatia proper, entered BiH in Bosanski Brod on 25 March, killing a father and son at a gasselin station, without anyone's reaction. Then, the same forces proceeded to a Serb village Sijekovac and killed entire several Serb families, again without any defence. It was possible only because the Minister for Interior in BiH was a Muslim, without whose order there could not be any mobilisation of the reserve police, although a forces from another country were freely killing the BiH citizens! The Serb cadres in the common MUP didn't have any authorisation to protect their citizens, and other DIDN'T WANT TO DO IT! The establishment of the SNB as an advisory body to the Assembly was a legal, legitimate, and a move of the ultimate defence!)

2920. At a meeting held in the Presidency of the SFRY in Belgrade on 9 December 1991, the Accused stated that Europe “does not accept legality but the factual status. Therefore we have to be wise enough and prepare both legality and the factual status”.⁹⁵²⁷ (Here is what, and why, had been said by the President, P2554, p. 78:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Yes, the Constitution is being violated. And now, therefore, it is accepted because the Krajinas have existed for so long and have become a reality. You can see the behaviour of Europe: when it is suitable, Europe accepts legality, when it is not – it does not accept legality but the factual status. Therefore, we have to be wise enough and prepare both legality and the factual status. We always have to act from the standpoint of legality and of factual status. We have to be that way because that’s the way Europe is – inconsistent, that is, consistent in following its own interests.

(Therefore, #Europe is inconsistent, and when it fits their interests, the Europeans say that the Serbs are legally right, but there are new factual states, and when it fits their interests, they rely on legality. President Karadžić warned on this duplicity and had every right to respond in a same manner!) The Accused declared: “We have made a list of moves. Ten moves in the direction we want, so that there are results. [...] But we don’t do anything until Alija messes something up.”⁹⁵²⁸ Here is this exhibit, P2554 what the President said. It should be noticed what was skipped in the brackets: “...so that there are results: Bosnia remains in Yugoslavia, either as a whole or our areas.” Why this short part of this sentence had been skipped? Because it was aimed to be understood that the results were some crimes of the Serbs and the President. The brackets [...] served to replace a mitigating or exculpatory elements, and those who assisted the Chamber, made a bad service to the Court!

made a list of moves. Ten moves in the direction we want, so that there are results. Bosnia remains in Yugoslavia, either as a whole or our areas. But we won’t do anything until Alija messes something up. When Alija messes something up, we make move number 5. And then, we wait. When Alija messes something else up – we make move number 6. For example, we held the plebiscite now. Had we held it when our “hawks” suggested, not more than 60-70% Serbs would have voted. But since we waited for Alija and that illegally adopted Memorandum and then announced the plebiscite, even people on their deathbeds got up to vote. So, we must all play the same string.

2921. On 11 December 1991, the Bosnian Serb Assembly adopted a recommendation that SDS deputies in municipal assemblies in BiH in which the SDS did not have a majority establish “municipal assemblies of the Serbian people”.⁹⁵²⁹ The recommendation stated that the assemblies would be composed of SDS deputies and “other deputies of Serb nationality who make a statement on joining the Assembly”.⁹⁵³⁰ Attached to the recommendation was a model decision on the establishment of “municipal assemblies of the Serbian people” to be adopted by individual municipalities.⁹⁵³¹ These decisions were to be verified by the Bosnian Serb Assembly.⁹⁵³² (So what? 2922. Municipal level leaders reported to the municipal bodies on developments at a republican level including the formation of the Bosnian Serb Assembly and noted that the assembly had been created as a means of resisting attempts to divide the Serbian people.⁹⁵³³ The SDS Municipal Board in Prijedor, for example, was informed on 28 October 1991, that Serb assemblies had to be formed in all the municipalities, that they were establishing their own state with their own forces and preparations had to be made for the plebiscite of the Serb people and military organisation.⁹⁵³⁴ The SDS Municipal Board in Prijedor also referred to the position of the President that given the secession of BiH arranged by the SDA, they were forced “to form ethnic communities in our ethnic territories”.⁹⁵³⁵ They also discussed the importance of establishing control over their territories.⁹⁵³⁶ (Those who assisted the Chamber in the assembling this Judgement missed to point out that the two other ethnic communities had been offered the same opportunity, to form their own ethnic municipalities in the Serb territories, which would serve their social and security needs!#Two municipalities – peace#!)

2923. The Chamber found that on 20 December 1991 the SRBiH Presidency, Koljević and Plavšić dissenting, voted to apply to the Badinter Commission for the recognition of SRBiH as an independent state.⁹⁵³⁷ Members of the Bosnian Serb Assembly met on 21 December 1991, expressed their strong opposition to the Badinter Commission process, and approved preparations for the formation of a Serb Republic.⁹⁵³⁸ On 5 January 1992, the Badinter Commission recommended that SRBiH be required to hold a referendum to determine the will of its people regarding independence and the SRBiH Assembly voted to hold such a referendum on 29 February and 1 March 1992.⁹⁵³⁹ (Such a distinguished Court and it’s chambers should be precise, #not to skip a crucial elements. 2924. On 9 January 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly proclaimed the SerBiH.⁹⁵⁴⁰ This proclamation noted that the territory of the SerBiH was composed of the SAOs and “additional territories, not precisely identified but to include areas where the Serbs had been in a majority before the genocide of World War II”.⁹⁵⁴¹ (This was rather a #form of strengthening the negotiating position! Anyway, this fact didn’t have any negative consequence, it was before the war, and in context of the Conference – ICFY#!) The area which would comprise the territory of the SerBiH would include all areas where a majority of Bosnian Serbs had voted in the plebiscite to remain in Yugoslavia.⁹⁵⁴² On 13 January 1992, the Council of Ministers identified the priorities emerging from the declaration of the promulgation of the SerBiH of 9 January 1992, which included defining the ethnic territory and the establishment of government organs in the territory.⁹⁵⁴³ The Accused and Krajišnik participated in the discussion on the execution of these tasks.⁹⁵⁴⁴

2925. In an intercepted conversation on 13 January 1992, the Accused informed Kuprešanin, President of the ARK Assembly, that “[w]e have a complete concept of a polycentric development. Therefore, centres must exist, and the centres will be developed more powerfully” and that “not a single move should be made which will not be a hundred percent agreed on”.⁹⁵⁴⁵ (So what? The Chamber already knew that the President fought against the localisms and merging of the two Krajinas, which would be only an empty declaration, but would justify and legitimise a military coalition of President Tudjman and Izetbegovic against the Serbs. The Chamber never takes into account a time-frame in assessing an event. This conversation happened in January 1992, when it was meant that there was not going to be a war, and that a transformation of BiH would be political and calm, for which a hundred percent agreement was needed!) In another conversation, the President also spoke of the territorial claims of the Bosnian Serbs and in particular that regionalisation should not disrupt the authority of the Bosnian Serb state, namely that “I want Serbs to organise themselves in those Krajinas [...] but that the unified Serbian [BiH] still exist”.⁹⁵⁴⁶ (So what? An #irrelevant political issue!)

2926. On 17 January 1992, at a session of the Council of Ministers, a draft programme of its work was presented.⁹⁵⁴⁷ It called for the adoption of the Constitution and for the organisation of the territory in such a way so as to “enlarge the territory of the regions and encompass a larger number of inhabitants wherever possible in order to consolidate the regions both ethnically and economically.”⁹⁵⁴⁸ (So what? That was a Serb precondition to accept the BiH secession!) At that same session it was decided that draft legislation to enable the SerBiH to start functioning would be prepared by 15 February 1992.⁹⁵⁴⁹ The Bosnian Serb Assembly also authorised the Council of Ministers and other Bosnian Serb representatives, including Krajišnik, to prepare a Constitution and “other relevant documents in order to regulate further state organisation of the Serbian people” in BiH.⁹⁵⁵⁰ Krajišnik was elected to the commission appointed to prepare a Constitution.⁹⁵⁵¹ The President and Krajišnik discussed the timing of the announcement of the Bosnian Serb Constitution.⁹⁵⁵² (It is another #political issue, irrelevant for any criminal responsibility#, unless the Prosecution is “smuggling in” the crime against peace, which is not subject of this Tribunal. It is well known that when a complex sovereignty falls apart, the part of it are entitled and obliged to self-organize and secure a rule of law. Beside that, all the Serbs had done had been agreed in the Hague in 1991, within the ICFY. If the other side in BiH meant to deceive the Serbs by speaking one thing in the Hague, and another in BiH, the Serbs didn’t agree to be deceived)

2927. On 26 January 1992, during an extraordinary session convened to discuss how to respond to the moves towards the independence of BiH,⁹⁵⁵³ the Bosnian Serb Assembly adopted a series of conclusions. This included a conclusion that the decision to hold the referendum on the independence of BiH was brought about illegally and that it was therefore not mandatory for the Serb people.⁹⁵⁵⁴ The Chamber recalls that the referendum on the question of independence was held on 29 February and 1 March 1992. It was largely boycotted by the Bosnian Serbs and yielded an overwhelming majority of votes in favour of independence.⁹⁵⁵⁵ (No a reasonable and decent chamber would accept that the referendum was legal and legitimate. Since Mr. Badinter posted the only condition to get a peoples opinion at a referendu, without prescribing any specitic criteria, the referendum had to be held in accordance to the domestic laws and Constitution. That meant the following chain of steps! #why referendum was illegal#?:

- 1. A two third votes in the Assembly for appointing a eferendum pertaining to a constitutional issues; This wasn't done!
- 2. A consent of the Council for the ethnic equality after the appellation of 20 deputies. This hadn't been obtained;
- 3. To have a two third of all the voters, all the electoral body voting in favour of the required question. This never happened. Not even two third of the voters voted, let alone voted in favour of independence! So, an "overwhelming majority" was not sufficient for any constitutional matters, but only for some communal matters, line a water pipelines, or depodition of garbage;
- 4. After obtaining all of these preconditions, to return to the Assembly and obtain a two third plus one deputies voting in confirmation of the results of referendum! None of these unavoidable and inevitable preconditions and moves hadn't been obtained, and therefore, none of the actions towards the independence were legal and legitimate! A UN court should not sanction such an illegal conduct with so detrimental consequences. If it was not as the Defence is claiming, the Prosecution-Chamber would be obliged to rebut it legally, not politically!

Beside that, 26 January 92 comes after 25 January 92, after an unsuccessful session of the common BiH Assembly, at which the Muslims proposed, and then had withdrawn a compromise agreement: to postpone the referendum until the regionalisation be accomplished, which the Serbs accepted. After this, one of the series of deceptions, the Serb side didn't have any illusion any longer, and went it's own way. Why would this Court support such a flagrant violations of the internal and international legal norms of the Muslim side?)

2928. One of the Bosnian Serb deputies spoke about the immense duties they had "because we are setting up our own state" and called on the Bosnian Serb Assembly to set deadlines for the completion of this plan.⁹⁵⁵⁶ The Accused was also asked to "give us an order [...] that the #Serbs should occupy their territories so that no other forces could enter them".⁹⁵⁵⁷ #(To #occupy their own territories so that no other forces could enter them" was a legal obligation due to the existing legislation on the All-people's Defence and Social self-Protection#, but moreover, that was a pure defensive measure, particularly since the forces from Croatia shelled the Serb settlements in the RS, and theatenned to enter BiH and kill the Serbs, as it really happened! Is thi Court of an opinion that every nation, all peoples, all living beings are entitled to self-defence, except the Serbs! If the Court is dealing with the politics contrary to it's mandate, then the UN should see what kind of politics this UN Court is preferring and backing!)

2929. In February 1992, before the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the President spoke about the Bosnian Serb strategic aims beginning to materialise and the importance of establishing internal borders “as wide as possible”, and that if those internal borders are wider than the external borders of BiH they would be able to say “[w]ho cares about external borders”.⁹⁵⁵⁸ (This is wrong for several reasons. First, the translation is wrong, it was not said for the internal borders to be “as wide as possible” but to be “as thick as possible, se D88, in Serbian:

Mi prihvatamo i kažem BiH mora ostati u ovim granicama. Odlično. Hajde sada da radimo na unutrašnjim. Pa kada se to uradi, da budu deblje od vanjskih, onda je to baš naša briga što imaš vanske. Važno je da one koje su unutar B i H budu deblje. Što kaže narodno poslovice: "Ako te

Let us see how it was translated and presented in the Judgement! It is reasonable to assume that an ordinary reader of this Judgement can not open all the documents to check whether they are translated accurately and used properly. So an ordinary reader should have a confidence that the Chamber did it for all the people and for all the times. Let us see how this Chamber did it, D88, p. 20:

This task is comparable to the task Pašić /Serbian politician, died 1926/ faced. Are we as smart as Pašić was? Not as individuals. I do not think that I am nearly as clever as Pašić was, but our combined efforts may produce an intelligence comparable to Pašić's. If our platform and decisions spring “from the minds of the entire nation” then we shall achieve Pašić's intelligence.

Do not be fooled if a deputy, any deputy, or a party leader who does not follow his party (he should be expelled from the party right away) presumes that he is smarter than Pašić only because he wears a beard. I will not name him. For heaven's sake, folks. We do not have Pašić. But the people is – Pašić.

Our strategic goals are beginning to materialise. The opposition in Serbia is not right, our people here in BH are also not right.

We accept, and I say BH must remain within these borders. Great. Now let us turn to internal /borders/. And once that is done, once they are wider than the external borders, then we can say, “Who cares about external borders”. What matters is that the ones within BH become as wide as possible. As the popular saying goes, “If kicked out the door go back through the window”. You will still be in the same place.

We must decide at this session today our minimal demands below which we will not go.

We think that we still have to agree about the bank, the Army, to build a platform which will accomplish in two years what the 1974 Constitution accomplished in twenty. In other words, to establish complete freedom, constitutional freedom for the Serbian people in BH.

Thank you. I am prepared to answer any questions you may have.

The discussion was within a preparation for the Conference on BiH, and the #President was persuading the deputies to accept that BiH would remain within the existing borders#, if the Serbs secure a high degree of autonomy#, i.e. that the internal borders would be thick enough, so that no one could dominate over the Serbs. There are mentioned other elements to be negotiated. Why the Chamber extracted this discussion out of the context, and presented it as a criminal planning?) : In March 1992, the President called for frequent sittings of the Bosnian Serb Assembly to “accelerate our preparations for the events that will follow”⁹⁵⁵⁹ and “because we are now entering the final stage of a process”.⁹⁵⁶⁰ (#All in accord with the ongoing Conference under the Carrington – Cutileiro auspice#! Without the time-frame and context, the interpretation of such a “findings” sounds like a crime!!!# What the Chamber is suggesting was this process? Any outsider would presume that it had something to do with an illegal accomplishment, or a war, or crimests... But in March still there was a Lisbon plan which secured a peaceful transformation of BiH, and that was “the final stage of a process!” It was only 25 March whenm the Muslim side (SDA) reneged on the Lisbon Agreement for a peaceful transformation of BiH, but still the Serb side remained faithful to this Agreement! The Chamber is equally using an exculpatory, as well as a commendable, or a neutral and political sentences of the President in a foggy and obscure context, so that any reader would conclude that it was something that corroborated the Indictment and justified the Judgement. But it is either neutral, or a highly exculpatory! And this sentences and approach of the President are highly EXCULPATORY, because President Karadzic was persuading the representatives that there could be a safe life within Bosnia’s external borders, since there would be an internal borders between the ethnic autonomies!)

2930. The Bosnian Serb Assembly also concluded that the “[p]lace of the Republic of the Serbian People in [BiH] is in the common state of all Serbian people. Democratic transformation of Yugoslavia must be [a] parallel process with the state organisation of the Serbian people into the Serbian federation or alliance of the Serbian states.”⁹⁵⁶¹ (So what? That was the standpoint of the Assembly, a sort of declaration of a political wishes, legal and legitimate in the middle of illegal and illegitimate unilateral secessions of the Yugoslav republics!) On 15 February 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly discussed a draft constitution, according to which the SerBiH would become part of federal Yugoslavia, and not BiH.⁹⁵⁶² (So what? That was an interim “draft”, prior to the Lisbon Agreement, after which the Serb side corrected this “draft”. At that time the entire Bosnia was within Yugoslavia.) On 28 February 1992, the SDS Deputies’ Club recommended that the Bosnian Serb Assembly pass the constitution that day as “a form of protection against the referendum”; the Bosnian Serb Assembly then unanimously adopted the Bosnian Serb Constitution.⁹⁵⁶³ The Constitution provided for equal rights and freedoms before the law for all citizens of the republic regardless of, inter alia, their race, ethnicity and beliefs.⁹⁵⁶⁴ (Commendable and # EXCULPATORY!#!)

2931. On 24 March 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly elected Branko Đerić as the Prime Minister, Aleksa Buha as Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Mićo Stanišić as Minister of Internal Affairs in the Bosnian Serb Government.⁹⁵⁶⁵ As recalled earlier, while the Bosnian Serb Constitution provided that the prime minister propose candidates for ministerial positions to the Assembly, in fact it was the SDS and the SDS President that chose the nominees.⁹⁵⁶⁶ For instance, the Accused, as president of the SDS, asked that Đerić nominate Mićo Stanišić and Buha.⁹⁵⁶⁷ (So what? Djeric himself was nominated by the SDS, to implement the policy of the Assembly which had more that two third of the SDS deputies. All this about the Government was in accord with the Lisbon Agreement that was reneged by the SDA only a few hours after this session of the Serb Assembly!)

2932. With regard to Ministers Mićo Stanišić and Mandić, Đerić testified that they kept visiting the Accused and failed to attend government's sessions as they felt that "the government could be pushed aside" and "thought themselves as belonging to the top leadership".⁹⁵⁶⁸ (This falls within a #psychological crap of a rivalry,# but in a war situation these two Ministries are particularly closely tied to the President, who was supposed to know what was happening on the terrain, so to be ready for the negotiations! #What importance and relevance this has for the Judgem#ent?) As described by Đerić, the SerBiH was a "party state" where the President as the president of the SDS held all the power, took control of all functions of the SDS and was practically the government too.⁹⁵⁶⁹ (A worthless to comment matter. The other four Prime Ministers didn't have this opinion! #Not relevant for this case!) Đerić added that "the government was there just as a kind of technical attachment, not a body that should create policies" and that it was a state in which the government did not have any opposition.⁹⁵⁷⁰ The President himself said: "But, believe me, the Government is mine. I am responsible for its functioning. I appoint and propose".⁹⁵⁷¹ (#Irrelevant, since no a crime appeared because of such an experience of the first and unsuccessful Prime Minister, who was a professor without any experience in managing or in any executive branch! But, anyway, the Government didn't create the policy, it was the Assembly, while the Government proposed, and implemented the adopted policy! Let us see what was the context of this President's standpoint, P1379, p.254-255:

First, let me say something about the party. We have benumbed the party. It was suggested by the then Government. The Government suggested it, and the suggestion was wrong. The then Government was composed of lovely people, loyal people, but they were all theoreticians. I have been trying for 5 months to have things in the Government changed. The Government found itself in a tight corner. It did not do a single efficient thing. They created laws, regulations. Most of it was copied from elsewhere. But something had to be changed. As per the party, the party is responsible. These people are in fear. All of them have been declared as war criminals by Alija Izetbegović. There are 45 people in the Main Board; they were legitimised by the party assembly which consisted of 240 representatives. I can state that these people are loyal and honest. Some of them are skilful when it comes to politics, some of them are not. But, rest assured that so far they have not exerted any pressure. Now, they have come out with some fears and certain trepidation. My position was that the Government was not to be changed but rather reconstructed, because we should not interrupt continuity.

And now something as per what I do. The only thing which I have been doing and which does not belong to me, is the work of Aleksa Buha. But be convinced that I am doing it only because they do not tolerate that the head of a delegation should be absent. If I did not come, they would simply say - this one is sabotaging things. We would be under pressure, etc. Even today, I told the American Ambassador: I do not want to show up any longer, I want to dedicate my self to internal matters only. He requested that the talks be opened and continued. He wanted to know if the Serb delegation would come. I told him: The Serb delegation will come with the authority to sign. I trampled on him a little bit. They want the parcel to open. I gave him other messages as well, about partition in two parts, etc. Everything else that I do is my job.

Skoko stated that he never noticed that the Accused attempted to influence on the work of the Government and the decision-making that was within his power. D3321 (Witness statement of Milorad Skoko dated 1 April 2013), para. 30. However, the Chamber does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard given that his testimony was marked by multiple contradictions and indicators of partiality and bias. Krajišnik testified that it was inaccurate to say that the Bosnian Serb Government and the Ministerial Council were subordinated to him or the Accused and that these structures were answerable to the Bosnian Serb Assembly. Momčilo Krajišnik, T. 43358–43359 (13 November 2013). While the Chamber accepts that these structures may not have been formally subordinated to the Accused, the evidence demonstrates that he did play a significant and influential role in the way in which they operated. (It is hard to believe that the Chamber uses this "instrument" – that a reputation and influence of President Karadžić (or Krajišnik) equal to a formal and substantial ingerence and authorisation which comprises a criminal liability?!? According to the Constitution of the RS, the political system was a half-presidential, because president was to be directly elected. As same was hard to believe an understand how the Chamber rejected more than 230 testimonies of the Defence witnesses, under a foggy explanation that they had contained "a multiple contradictions, and indicators of partiality and bias." The Chamber never even attempted to explicate these "impressions" of their, nor to corroborate it by any evidence, or justification!)

tragedy. I rarely occupy myself with tactical matters. My role is about the strategic usage of the army, but only in situations when things go wrong, when it comes to minor interventions, warnings etc., and when it comes to possible cease-fire orders which mean survival for us. I usually do not do other things, except for representing the Republic and watching over the internal politics. But, believe me, the Government is mine. I am responsible for its functioning. I appoint and propose the Government mandator. I have a brilliant relationship with Vlado Lukić; we are often together; he often comes to my cabinet. But I do not see the Government. I attended Government sessions twice; I am even entitled to be in the lead of the Government, to schedule sessions. This is how I became aware of the opinion of the Main Board, as well as the people in the field, and the representatives as well. According to this opinion, we are not getting any better off, we are getting worse. And I am not afraid about how the situation looks today, but about how it will be the day after tomorrow. I fear November more than I fear October. To be honest, even in Germany things are

That as the President's standpoint. According to the law and Constitution, President Karadzic was authorized to appoint the Government sessions, to preside it and to produce the Governmental decisions, but he rarely did that. Djeric was a good professor, but inexperienced in executing power, and obviously didn't know the President's authorisations regarding the Government!)

2933. On 28 February 1992, Koljević proposed that the Assembly be convened immediately after the referendum and “divide up the Television” and steps be taken to establish a Bosnian Serb newspaper.⁹⁵⁷² (#Legal#! So what? In Serbia other ethnicities did have their own TV programs and their own newspapers, magazines and cultural institutions since 1918, and refreshed in 1945. It pertained to the Albanians and Hungarians as the most numerous ethnicities, but also Romanians, Slovaks, and others. Only the Serbs in BiH didn't have any of it until 1992. Meanwhile, the “common” media terrorised the Serbs with such a propaganda and lies that no nation experienced!) These proposals were accepted by the SDS Deputies' Club.⁹⁵⁷³ Similar measures had already been taken to establish a separate structure for Bosnian Serb propaganda and the media. For example in September 1991 the SDS Executive Board adopted the decision on the appointment of the Commission for Information and Propaganda.⁹⁵⁷⁴ On 27 September 1991, in an intercepted phone conversation, the President issued an instruction to replace the Bosnian Muslim director of Radio Banja Luka, stating “replace him immediately. Appoint a man of yours. These are war times.”⁹⁵⁷⁵ In October 1991, the President advocated the creation of their own radio television network which would unite Serbian information as well as their own news agency.⁹⁵⁷⁶ (So what? #Legal, defense reasons#! #Would the Great Britain, or the USA during a war keep a Hitler's follower in the BBC or the Voice of America as a general manager#?)

2934. On 7 April 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly declared the independence of the SerBiH and Plavšić and Koljević resigned from their positions in the Presidency of BiH.⁹⁵⁷⁷ The Ministry of Defence was set up around April 1992.⁹⁵⁷⁸

of Prisoners, due to problems including “private arrangements and smuggling in the exchange of prisoners”.⁹⁵⁸⁰ The Bosnian Serb Government decided to form a new Commission for the Exchange and Release of Prisoners of War and Civilians which would answer directly to the government and would be more systematic and organised and would co-operate with other relevant government bodies in order to address the accommodation of exchanged prisoners in the RS.⁹⁵⁸¹

2936. A three-member Presidency was established on 12 May 1992, composed of Plavšić, Koljević, and the President, with the President elected the President of the Presidency. On or around 2 June 1992, the Presidency was enlarged to five members to include the Prime Minister, Đerić, and the President of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, Krajišnik. On 6 July 1992 the members of the Presidency allocated tasks among themselves and the President was charged with military issues.⁹⁵⁸² On 17 December 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly replaced the structure of the Presidency by establishing a single president structure. The President was elected to the position of President of the SerBiH. Plavšić and Koljević were elected as Vice-Presidents.⁹⁵⁸³ During its operations in 1992, the President exercised the most authority in the Presidency.⁹⁵⁸⁴ When international observers met with the top level of the Bosnian Serb leadership, including Krajišnik, Koljević and Plavšić, they all deferred to the President, and he was seen as “undoubtedly and indisputably the leader of the Bosnian Serbs”.⁹⁵⁸⁵ (Many imprecise data, such as “enlarged” Presidency, but not relevant. The Presidency seated in a different settings and participants, but for an “enlarged” Presidency there must have been a state of war in the entire country. Whenever it was of the interest of subject, there had been summoned different ministers. However, the President had been respected, but not all-mighty, nor he could do whatever he wanted. He was criticised oftenly, and questioned many times to explain his moves, particularly pertaining to the orders to the VRS to refrain, and to his territorial flexibility and concessions in the negotiations!)

2937. The Accused attended and addressed almost every session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly.⁹⁵⁸⁶ The Accused’s speeches were often met with explicit approval and praise by Bosnian Serb representatives.⁹⁵⁸⁷ For example, at a session on 25 February 1992, Kuprešanin said that the Accused “as the President of the SDS, is truly the leading figure among the Serbian people. And five of his sentences are enough to change the entire course of the session”.⁹⁵⁸⁸ On another occasion, after the Accused spoke about the need to centralise the authority, a deputy said “things that are ordered by [the Accused], the Assembly, the Presidency, the Minister of Defence and the Army General, must be carried out to the last man”.⁹⁵⁸⁹ Mladić also spoke after the President and stated: "I support everything he said [...] I am much more optimistic now than I was ever before".⁹⁵⁹⁰ (So what? #The 83 a very highly educated deputies commended# the President, but behind this praise there was only the President's tolerance in discussions, responsibility and readiness to listen to a different opinions and proposals, so that the Assembly decisions be a "product of the mind of the entire people", - as the greatest Serb poet Njegos wrote. The President criticised and was criticised, it could be seen from the shorthands of all the Assembly sessions, but both, he and his interlocutors knew that it was nothing personal, but only for the sake of the people. If this is accepted by the Chamber, then no an allegation that he was an autocrat could survive!)

2938. While the Bosnian Serb Assembly operated in a democratic fashion, the President was described as "the greatest authority", who had "the best ideas and the best solutions for all issues crucial to the Serbian people in BiH."⁹⁵⁹¹ The President emphasised the supremacy of the Bosnian Serb Assembly but at the same time stated that he would not allow a few people to "jeopardise the entire project" and that once the SDS had adopted a policy, anything outside of that policy would be treason and that maximum discipline was needed.⁹⁵⁹² (Exactly! That is how it is in any democratic institution. While a decision-making process must be free, the execution of such a democratically adopted decisions must not be improvised and altered by any individual, including the President!)

2939. Defence witnesses testified that (i) the Accused was a weak president with very little power; (ii) the President did not have "unquestionable power"; (iii) the President was a democrat who did not dominate the state or the SDS; and (iv) the local SDS leadership was completely autonomous.⁹⁵⁹³ However, the Chamber notes that the evidence of Zametica, Kondić and Sojić in this regard is expressed in general terms and is based on their own feeling, impression, opinion, and in some cases incomplete information. The Chamber does not therefore find their evidence to be of much weight in this regard. In addition the evidence of Šojić, Poplašen, and Tadić was marked by contradictions, evasiveness or indicators of partisanship and bias. The Chamber therefore does not find their evidence to be reliable in this regard. (# Now, to the Chamber it was not relevant what was the "opinion, feeling, impression" of the people who used to meet President Karadzic on a daily basis during four years of the war, while the Chamber accepted the same "private feelings, impressions and in all the cases incomplete information of the foreign witnesses who were present at the terrain every now and then, and were summoned to testify about facts they knew!# Why would these people, Defense witnesses, be biased and evasive? None of them was a suspect for anything, they are a free persons, successful in their professions, independent, and the President neither could help them, nor damage their interests. The Chamber inferred that the said witnesses commended the President because of being partisans, but the more probable inference would be that they had been partisan because they respected the President for his characteristics that they described. And some of them came from a Muslim families!) In addition the Chamber finds that this evidence is outweighed by the volume of reliable evidence discussed above which on the contrary demonstrates the power and control of the Accused. (It is an unbelievable partisanship, much more impressive than any of the Defence witnesses. It was sufficient just to read the transcripts of the sessions of different bodies, to conclude that the President was rather a humbe public servant of his people than a “powerful and controllable” leader, in which case the Serbs wouldn’t respect him whatsoever!)

1. Conclusion

2940. Having considered the evidence above, the Chamber finds that the President, as the president of the SDS Main Board, had de jure and de facto authority over the SDS party and its members. From 1990 to 1995 the President was at the head of the SDS and he exerted great control and authority over its institutions and direction. In addition, as the President of the SNB, President of the Presidency and subsequently President of the RS, the President was the highest civil servant within the SerBiH and later the RS. The President had great authority over the Presidency, the Government and its key members and, as a result of his position and gravitas, had great influence at the Bosnian Serb Assembly. The SDS operated with strict respect for the hierarchical structures which ran from the Main Board and Executive Board to the Municipal Board structures. The Chamber also finds that the President enforced discipline within the party and was the most powerful and influential authority within the party. These SDS party structures facilitated communication between the higher level leaders including the President and the municipal SDS leaders. (#Wrong to the unbearable degree#. The President was a patien servant, capable of facilitating the best decisions out of the “mind of all the people” and the entire his influence had to be proven again and again in every session, and always as an influence of the rules, Constitution and laws. The President had a good reputation, but all of it was checked and challenged on a daily basis, and he couldn be private or non-principal, biased, incorrect, even if he wanted, because it wouldn’t fly!)

2941. The Chamber further concludes that from 1991 the Accused, the SDS, and the Bosnian Serb leadership planned for and developed measures to be taken should BiH move toward independence. (The #BiH couldn’t “move toward independence without the Serb consent# - because the Serbs in BiH made this BiH too, and were an inevitable and unavoidable element of this BiH, and without their consent, BiH couldn’t make any important decision that would affect the destiny of the Serbs too. How come this Court of the UN is negligiant about the respect of the laws and constitutions? Without respect for the most important legal documents, every community is lost, and then a “rule of force” prevailes over “rule of law”, and then the only question is: Who is stronger?) When the SRBiH Assembly passed a declaration of sovereignty on 15 October 1991 in the absence of the Serb delegates, these plans were further developed and ultimately put into practice. (The SRBiH #didn’t pass a declaration of sovereign#nty, it was an# invalide move#, a private meeting of the two deputy clubs, and this truth will never be dismissed! Even the Badinter’s Arbitrage Commision confirmed it in it’s “4th opinion” according to which this Declaration was insufficient! The UN is deeply compromised by such an attitude of dishonor for a national legal system!)

2942. The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership responded vehemently to what they viewed as an illegal and unconstitutional move towards independence. (That didn’t depend on anyone’s “view”, that was written in the #Constitution of Yugoslavia and the Constitution of BiH#. #The countries and institutions supporting such an illegal development are fully responsible for the tragedy#. Yet, the Serbs in BiH verbally and politically responded vehemently, but were very careful not to initiate any unrest and not to violate any law and constitutional provision. Whenthe other side violated every constitution and law, and a decency in the inter-ethnic communications, the Serbs declared that they are using their rights to selforganisation and self-defence!) The Chamber finds that the Accused and SDS structures played a crucial role in this period in developing a response to further the objectives and interests of the Bosnian Serbs. When confronted with the possibility of BiH independence, the SDS discussed the objective of Serb unity, activating parallel government structures, intensifying the process of regionalisation, and furthering military organisation at a local level. (The #Serbs hadn't been "confronted with the possibility of BiH independence" but with the violations of their rights# so drastic that there was no any chance to survive! Nevertheless, the Serbs offered a way out through the transformation and decentralisation of BiH, which was a commitment that Mr. Izetbegovic gave in the Hague at the ICFY in September, October and November 1991. The entire international community was watching the SDA manoeuvres to cheat both the international mediators and the Serbs!)

2944. The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were also instrumental in the formation of the Bosnian Serb Assembly. The establishment of the Bosnian Serb Assembly was one of the first steps towards creating parallel structures, which formed the basis for the formation of a separate Serb state in BiH. (#The Serb moves had been in accord with the ICFY results#! #Until 24 October 1991 there already had been a great deal of the future inner structure of BiH agreed in the ICFY in the Hague#. All of it was a legal and legitimate activity, but if the Chamber judges about that issue, this is out of the realm of Statute, because this way the Court is considering the causes of the war by judging a political moves of only one side. This must not be done, after the Defence had been prevented to depict the contexts and the conduct of the other side!) The Chamber finds that from the date of its creation on 24 October 1991 throughout the duration of the conflict in BiH, this body played a central role in organising the Bosnian Serb people and forming a separate state. The Chamber finds that the Bosnian Serb Assembly was the formal means through which the ideology and objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership were officially sanctioned and disseminated. (This is also a #deeply distorted meaning of a democratic parliament#. These deputies had been legally elected at the elections in 1990, and with a pretty different "strategic goals", complementary with the goals of the two other ethnic communities, particularly with the Muslims. Throughout it's existence, the Serb Assembly was te only body for a creation of the policy of the Serbs in BiH, and it was clearly said many times. Had the Assembly adopted another "ideology and objectives" neither the President, nor anybody else would be able to change it. So, the President was a public servant of this parliament, not vice versa! This kind of distortion is unacceptable even from the Prosecutor, let alone from the Chamber!) It was also one of the bodies used to communicate instructions down to the municipal representatives regarding these objectives. (#Senseless! How else should it be, particularly in a crisis? The deputies communicated the two way, from the terrain to the Assembly, demanding some changes, fighting for the interests of their constituencies, and the adopted decisions were communicated back.#)

2945. For example, the Bosnian Serb Assembly passed decisions which reflected the position of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership that the Serb people would remain in the joint state of Yugoslavia. (#“Remaining in the joint state of Yugoslavia” wasn’t anything new, revolutionary, illegal or violent, but to the contrary, it was a conservative, preservation something that already existed, a “status quo”, and didn’t need any violence! This is a very insolent forgery! That was not the President’s position, that was the position of the population, and the population had many parties offering programs that differed widely from those of the SDS, but the SDS won more than 90% of the Serb votes. Taking into account the fact that the Serb deputies from these other parties finally disagreed with these parties and joined the Serb Assembly, which makes more that 98% of the Serb electoral in BiH. This kind of legitimacy didn’t have any other party in Europe, and the SDS had to follow the pre-electional program, and to ask the population about any crucial change, for which reason there were several plebiscites. Depicting the Serbs as a flock of sheep and the SDS as a rigid shepard is deeply insulting.) It also organised a plebiscite of the Bosnian Serb people to confirm that decision and then endorsed the result of that plebiscite and declared that areas where Serbs had voted to remain in Yugoslavia would remain part of the territory of Yugoslavia. When Brđanin threatened dismissal of directors and managers who did not participate in the plebiscite, the President cautioned him against making such statements publicly but did not condemn the substance of the statements themselves. The Chamber finds that this evidence demonstrates that the President worked towards full participation in the plebiscite as a means of showing public support for the policies of the Bosnian Serb leadership. (First of all, the President had a very dynamic conflicts with Brđjanin, and the President never supported any discrimination, but if some managers did a sabotage, they should be replaced, but not because of their ethnicity. But, to object the President’s “full participation in the plebiscite” which was an obligation, meant a denial of the democratic rights. The aim of the several plebiscites wasn’t “a mean of showing public support for the policy”, but the most democratic mean to get a genuine decision of the population that was suffering of the war events, shortages and finally of the casualties of their dearest young members of families. Is it a position of this UN Court that these 1,500,000 Serbs were stupid, or masochistic, ready to suffer and to sacrifice more that 30,000 young men for a sake of the leadership??? This is a shameless allegation, and a pathetic and insufficient surrogate for a comprehensive understanding of the Yugoslav crisis. Such a “findings” are securing a long lasting antagonisms in the region! The responsibility of the UN for such a “findings” of this Court is enormous and exclusive!)

2946. The Chamber finds that when it became apparent that the objective of remaining in a joint state with Yugoslavia was no longer possible, the Bosnian Serb Assembly approved preparations for the formation of a separate Serb Republic. (To remain in a joint state of Yugoslavia, not “with” Yugoslavia, became impossible because the #European countries backed the unilateral secessions#, and this surprising move of their explained that the Serbs and Yugoslavs were right, but there are a “new realities”#. And that was a pretext for the Serb assertion about a “new realities”.) In this regard, the Chamber also finds that from late 1991 through until mid-1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly played a central role in forming other parallel Bosnian Serb institutions and structures, such as the Council of Ministers and the SNB. It also worked towards the drafting of a constitution for the Serb State they wanted to create. The Chamber finds that the creation of parallel structures at a municipal level was also propagated by the Bosnian Serb Assembly, which called for example the establishment of “municipal assemblies of the Serbian people”. The Chamber finds that the President led the discussions during the Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions where these decisions were made. The President directly promoted the measures which corresponded with his objectives. (All of it are a senseless assertions! Who else would do a legislation if not a parliament? By #incriminating the political life of the Serbs and their democratic responses to the multiple violations of the Constitution and laws, the Chamber is searching for the causes of the war, although it was not provided by the Statute of the Tribunal, and although the Chamber prevented the Defence to deal with the same issue during the trial#! Precisely, the Chamber prevented the Defence to present the contexts, circumstances and motives for the Serb conduct. This is unimaginable in any other criminal case, because any chamber is obliged to find out whether an President had to act as acted, whether he had another way to avoid a consequent acts, what was a contribution of a damaged side to a criminal event, and so on. This is only one of a mass of the elements of unfairness of this trial[s]! What is that what the UN supports? For a complete deprivation of entire nations and communities? Then, it should be said publicly, and to facilitate a foundation of another UN, which would respect the genuine principles of the UN. The UN Court does not see that fare before the Sebrs in Bosnia made any move, the Bosnian (Muslim-Croat) authorities have established a “parallel” non-Yugoslav bodies of authorit, thus violating many laws as well as the SFRY aand BH Constitutions! By which UN document it had been approved?)

2947. The Chamber finds that the Accused was at the forefront in explaining and promoting the policies which led to the conclusions taken by the Bosnian Serb Assembly and other Bosnian Serb political structures. He also promoted the importance of the Bosnian Serb Assembly itself and explained that it needed to sit often in order to accelerate their preparations for the creation of a Bosnian Serb state. The Chamber also finds that the President took on a very active role in the creation of the structures which would support the existence of a separate Bosnian Serb state. For example, the President and the SDS played the central role in the selection of ministers in the SerBiH. In addition the Chamber finds that the evidence demonstrates that the President exercised a high degree of control over the Bosnian Serb Government and its key members. (As senseless as many other “findings”, and it looks rather as a praising the President for the functioning of the party in power. All of it is done by any ruling party. As it was known to the Chamber, the SDS had another strategic objectives before the SDA-HDZ went on the way of a unilateral and unlawful secession. In a new circumstances imposed by these illegal acts of the partners in authority, the SDS and the President were obliged to inform their constituency that the cours of the political life had drastically been altered, and to obtain a new political position of the people they represented, which was obtained through the several plebictites. And the only “control over the Bosnian Serb Government and its key members” that President Karadzic was obliged to exercise was the control of the regularities in functioning of the state organs. The Prosecution never obtained, nor the Chamber established any President’s violation of the Constitution!)

2948. The Chamber also finds that the President took the leading role in terms of identifying the measures which had to be taken in order to take control of territory and forming the Serb municipalities in BiH with their own structures of power. For instance, he spoke about the importance of taking over power at a municipal level. He was also pivotal in emphasising the level of contact and co-ordination there needed to be and entrusted Bosnian Serb Assembly deputies to be in permanent contact with municipal leaders to create the structures necessary in order to assume control at a municipal level in accordance with the plans which he had prepared. The Bosnian Serb Assembly was also one of the means through which the policies of the Bosnian Serb leadership were communicated to a municipal level. (All of it was #legal, legitimate and obligatory due to the domestic laws#. That was what all the people’s deputies do in any country! But, these flosculus about “taking control of territory” and “forming the Serb municipalities” and “taking over power at the municipal level” which the Prosecution smuggled and swindled, and the Chamber accepted contrary to a huge evidence was a grave mistake. The Serbs in BiH never and nowhere “took a power over which they didn’t get in the 1990 elections. Also, in the ethnically mixed municipalities, where the Serbs did have a legitimate power, they consolidated this power only on their own territories, and formed their municipalities, recommending to the two other communities to do the same in the Serb majority municipalities where they did have conditions. That happened only after it was clear that the constitutional violence was going to be followed by a physical one. How possibly the Chamber could have accepted this lie and base the entire sentencing Judgement on it? The Defence will search for these answers as far as the human kind exists. Hear is not at a stake a destiny of only one person, neither of a whole people, there is much more at the stake. This must not be done ever!)

2949. The proclamation of the SerBiH in January 1992 by the Bosnian Serb Assembly was confirmation of the territorial objectives and ideology of the Bosnian Serb leadership which sought the creation of a separate Serb state. (Only in a new circumstances, imposed by the secessionist parties, with the aim to creat a new, separate Muslim state, which would comprise the Serb territories. That was a legal respons to a massive violations of everything that could be violated. Beside that, by the January 1992 there already had been drafted a #new internal structure of BiH, accepted by Mr. Izetbegovic in 1991 within the ICFY# in the Hague. #How it is possible to skip the cause and condemn the legal response as a consequence?#) This proclamation also made reference to historic crimes committed against the Bosnian Serbs which has been discussed above. The Chamber finds that the territorial delimitation of Bosnian Serb claimed territories was also intimately linked to this discourse on these historic crimes, given the view that the Bosnian Serbs had only become a minority in certain areas because of the crimes committed against them in World War II. (Was it true? A superficial glance on the censuses of population would respod immediately! This way the Tribunal intends to sanction and legalize the consequences of the horrifying crimes from WWII, because the issue of majority-minority became crucial in separating from Yugoslavia, and the Serbs were again to be the victims of this silenced genocide!)

2950. From late 1991, it was clear that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership had prepared “moves” which they would implement in order to achieve their objectives and had clearly calculated when they would take action. The Accused made it clear that there needed to be agreement and uniformity in the timing of these moves. He also emphasised the importance of SDS structures at a local level, including SDS municipal and local boards. (#All of those moves had an alternative: to have the SDA – HDZ returned to the legality and constitutional norms#. The very Assembly of the Serbian people in BiH was formed only after nine days of a period given to the SDA-HDZ coalition to annul their illegal decisions. These alternatives were always at the disposal, and the Serbs were eager to achieve any political compromise, while the other side, encouraged by the internationals, persisted in it’s illegal conduct! What has to be done to see this duplicity in the actions of Tribunal? #The European Community and United Nations agreed that BiH can not be independent unless an agreement on the inner structure of BiH The Badinter arbitrage commission set up this condition (Opinion No. 4)#, and then some middle and low ranking officials of foreign ministries of several countries started to support a chain of deceptions made by the SDA, being well aware that this will lead to a war, as all the relevant politicians of the time said publicly, as it will be depicted further in these comments!)

2951. The Accused was also the leading figure and authority in the Bosnian Serb Assembly and insisted on the greatest discipline in following the policies of the SDS in order to achieve their objectives. The evidence demonstrates that the deputies in the Bosnian Serb Assembly showed a high level of respect and adherence to the policies and measures which were promulgated by the President and that the Accused also exercised considerable influence over the Bosnian Serb governmental organs. (It was publicly said many times, that #the deputies had coined the Serb policy, not the SDS, and that the President only facilitated the opportunity for a free discussion and free decisions, after which he was responsible for a precise implementation. That is what every responsible leader is supposed to do!)

i. Regionalisation and creation of SAOs

(#THE TRIBUNAL CONTESTED THE SERB POLITICAL LIFE!# The entire chapter of “Regionalisation and creation of SAOs” is a #pure political consideration and reconsideration of the legal and constitutional rights of the people#, and the realisation of it in a period of crisis. Since the regionalisation was a legal process, particularly after throwing the one-party communist system, even the BiH Assembly didn’t ban it, but only “recommended” a postponement, it is senseless to criminalise a legal political conduct, so more since there was no crimes caused by this manifestation of the political rights. All that had been done in this field – had been provided by the constitutions and laws! #Only an attempt of denial of these rights by a military means was a crime by itself#, and caused many crimes and sufferings!)

Analysis of evidence

2952. The Chamber recalls its discussion on the process of regionalisation which began with the establishment of communities of municipalities organised by the SDS in early 1991.⁹⁵⁹⁴ (#Wrong! The “communities of municipalities” existed already quite a long time, and did have the right to change#. How the Chamber envisages the changes of the regime and system, approved through the election, if nothing is to be changed In January 1991, SDS presidents of municipal assemblies in Bosnian Krajina began preparations for the formation of the ZOBK which was approved by the SDS regional board in April 1991.⁹⁵⁹⁵ On 11 April 1991, the SRBiH Assembly recommended municipal assemblies to stop issuing decisions in connection with regionalisation.⁹⁵⁹⁶ (This #recommendation was not obligatory! But, these are a purely political questions, without any connection with a crimes. Why the Chamber is exploring this matter? Or, if the Chamber does it, then the Defense should be enabled to present the conduct of the other side, and the Chamber itself was obliged to see “the whole truth.”) However, municipalities with large Serb majorities voted to affiliate with the ZOBK, which held its founding assembly on 25 April 1991.⁹⁵⁹⁷ At the constitutive session of the ZOBK, it was said that this community had been established “regardless of ethnic affiliation” and that unity of Yugoslavia was affirmed as one of their objectives in creating this community of municipalities.⁹⁵⁹⁸ (The community of municipalities existed already for a several decades and had been provided by the Constitution. It was enabled to shange it’s composition and number of municipalities, none of municipalities had to join it, but if

2953. In May 1991 two other communities of municipalities were created in Romanija and in Eastern and Old Herzegovina.⁹⁵⁹⁹ In September 1991, these communities of municipalities were renamed SAOs.⁹⁶⁰⁰

⁹⁵⁹⁹ See para. 42.

⁹⁶⁰⁰ See paras. 42, 75. The Chamber does not place any weight on the assessment of Treanor and Donia as to the motives and objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership with respect to this process of regionalisation. Patrick Treanor, T. 14011, 14015–14016, 14027, 14035–14036, 14069–14070 (1 June 2011), T. 14381 (7 June 2011); Robert Donia, T. 3407–3410 (7 June 2010).

The Chamber recalls that the SAOs Semberija-Majeвица, Northern Bosnia, and Birač were formed between September and November 1991.⁹⁶⁰¹ On 21 November 1991, the Bosnian Serb Assembly certified the proclamation of the SAOs in BiH.⁹⁶⁰² (In the essence, the SAOs were the communities of municipalities, and they had been entitled to chose the name they wanted! Also, the Serb side accepted, within the Serb-Muslim Historic Agreement from July 1991. Accepted to abandon this kind of regionalisation, since this Agreement provided thatBiH was to remain in Yugoslavia!)

2954. On 30 September 1991 the SDS Deputies' Club held a session which was attended by Krajišnik and the President.⁹⁶⁰³ At this meeting the President declared that he wanted to ask the representatives from the Krajina to inform their municipalities that all those who could report to the army do so and that the Serbs were preparing for regionalisation.⁹⁶⁰⁴ (These two matters were in no way associated. The regionalisation had nothing to do with mobilisation, which was necessary to the JNA because of the war in Croatia. Supporting the mobilisation was a legal obligation, anything else would be a sabotage punishable by the law! A merging these two matters is not correct, and is aimed to connect the regionalisation with a military questions. It is the last matter to be expected from a such distinguished court!) On 7 October 1991, the President referred to the SAOs as assisting "so that there is no tension, and that each is the master of his own, and that there is peaceful co-existence among the peoples here".⁹⁶⁰⁵ (#EXCULPATORY!#) The President had discussed the issue of regionalisation with Izetbegović, but Izetbegović's position was that regionalisation could not be carried out because the population in BiH was intermixed.⁹⁶⁰⁶ (That was a legitimate private opinion of Mr. Izetbegovic, but as seen in the constitutions, any obstacle to this process would be anti-constitutional. On the other hand, all what Mr. Izetbegovic pursued regarding the independence was illegal and anti-constitutional! For the formation of Communities of municipalities there was not required any consensus of the parties, while for the secession it was inevitable and crucial precondition. But, the Chamber doesn't see the forest because of woods!) The Chamber recalls that while the SDA opposed these moves towards regionalisation in BiH, the President and SDS leaders spoke in favour of it for economic reasons, by reference to their view that there was a concentration of power in Sarajevo.⁹⁶⁰⁷ The Chamber took judicial notice that despite these justifications, among the functions the SDS assigned to the ZOBK was the organisation of its defence in times of war or imminent threat of war.⁹⁶⁰⁸ (This was a mere sum of the municipal competences in the field of defence. What is wrong with that? Who authorised this court to neglect the entire legal and constitutional order of the country in question? The defence was an obligation of all and every municipality, and transferring their competences to the Community was their right. How the Prosecution dared to indict so many people without knowing the domestic legal system?)

The UN should protect it, not undermine it!

12 October 1991, in a conversation with Mišković in Prijedor, the President instructed that the party should be in “full mobile state” and that units should be on duty 24 hours a day.⁹⁶¹⁰ (Here is this part of the President’s conversation with Miskovic in Prijedor, P5845, p.1:

MIŠKOVIĆ:	Are you all right?
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Well, I am OK but worried, there is some shooting here...
MIŠKOVIĆ:	(...?) well, that’s why I am calling, to see...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Yes.
MIŠKOVIĆ:	...how things are and some strategic positions, lines and things like that.
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Well, now we have to preserve peace and that is of utmost importance, but the party should be in full mobile state and there should be somebody on duty there 24 hours a day because they will make an attempt to attack both legally and illegally. At this very moment there is some shooting around a warehouse in the vicinity of Sarajevo so... I have to do something about that, and, well...

So, as early as in October 91 there was some shooting in Sarajevo, three days before the famous Assembly session whet the system had fallen apart! P. 2:

KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	I am just asking you to increase your mobility to maximum and watch out for them
MIŠKOVIĆ:	not to attack your barracks because they are attacking a warehouse. well, yes, yes... So that I (...?) to see, well, just to hear you... because we were mobile last night, I called everyone and I could hardly reach him...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Do you know how many forces you have in Prijedor?
MIŠKOVIĆ:	Well, we have one unit up there at, well... here at our airport...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	OK.
MIŠKOVIĆ:	...well, we have a territorial defense on alert, well, we have, well, police on standby...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Good.
MIŠKOVIĆ:	I mean, they are armed...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	Is ethnic composition all right?
MIŠKOVIĆ:	Well, there is ...
KARADŽIĆ, Radovan:	All right...

So, the President had this shooting in Sarajevo, and a threats of an attack on the barracks in Prijedor, he pleaded for preservation of peace and asked Miskovic to keep the SDS mobile and in alert, and asked about the JNA and TO units there, including whether the units had a proper ethnic composition. This all could only be commendable and #EXCULPATORY!#):

2956. (#In accord with the ICFY!#) The Chamber found that in late 1991, the SDS started implementing a policy of “regionalisation”, which involved taking steps towards the creation of “regions” in which Serbs were the relative majority.⁹⁶¹¹ (So what?) In September 1991, in a conversation with Slobodan Milošević, the President expressed that the goal of the Bosnian Serb leadership was regionalisation, or cantonisation, and that their aim was to take half of Sarajevo and to have strong links with Yugoslavia.⁹⁶¹² (So what? Not even a Muslim fundamentalists in Sarajevo would object that as the Chamber did, because #everything about regionalisation was lawful!#) On 16 September 1991, the SDS Executive Board approved the appointment of a Regionalisation Staff.⁹⁶¹³ This body was tasked with monitoring the implementation of the decision on the proclamation of autonomous regions and this decision was distributed to the municipal boards of the SDS.⁹⁶¹⁴ For example on 25 September 1991, the Sejmenović testified that in his assessment the SDS pursued regionalisation in order to create ethnically Serb regions in BiH and that the position taken at a Republic level by the SDS with respect to ethnic separation were also mirrored at a municipal level. However, the Chamber considers this to be his own opinion and therefore does not consider this evidence to be of much weight. Mevludin Sejmenović, T. 20457, 20464 (27 October 2011).

While Treanor testified about the territorial objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership and the reasons for the steps taken towards regionalisation, the Chamber considers these conclusions and opinions to fall outside the scope of his expertise and will thus not rely on it in this regard. Patrick Treanor, T. 14015–14016 (1 June 2011).

Sarajevo SDS Main Board decided to implement the decision and conclusions of the republican levels SDS organs with respect to regional organisation and appointed individuals who would co-ordinate the implementation of the decision.⁹⁶¹⁵

(But, only four days earlier Mr. Izetbegovic in the Hague at the Conference committed himself to the rights of the Serbs to a high autonomy, see the documents of the ICFY: see the report of the ICFY of 20 September 1991;

Bosnia-Hercegovina.

Bosnia-Hercegovina suggested that the Conference should devote itself to the principle of self-determination of republics and not self-determination of peoples or nations. Bosnia-Hercegovina was nevertheless ready to give a large autonomy to components of its population. Bosnia-Hercegovina proposes a five-year arrangement which could be reconsidered after this period. If there is no agreement on a minimum of common functions, Bosnia-Hercegovina will hold another referendum.

#So, IN ACCORD WITH THE I C F Y#!) This included the promulgation of autonomous regions as part of Yugoslavia and the separation of settlements in some municipalities and their integration into another municipality.⁹⁶¹⁶ The Accused also convened a plenary of Bosnian Serb officials in September 1991 to discuss these issues.⁹⁶¹⁷

2957. At a meeting of the SDS Executive Board in November 1991, attended by the Accused, there was discussion of a report on “regionalisation” and that conditions should be created which would allow every region to “include and incorporate the national and territorial treasures” with the aim of creating a Serb BiH within Yugoslavia.⁹⁶¹⁸ The pursuit of regionalisation, according to Krajišnik, was used by the SDS in response to the attempts of the HDZ and SDA to discuss independence of BiH.⁹⁶¹⁹ Regionalisation was leverage, in his view, to suggest to the SDS’s coalition partners that the three parties should reach an overall agreement on the whole of BiH: its status within Yugoslavia as well as its internal organisation.⁹⁶²⁰

2958. (Lawful – unlawful#!) The Chamber recalls that on 16 September 1991, the ZOBK was transformed into the ARK.⁹⁶²¹ The ARK was vested with both executive and legislative powers within its area of jurisdiction and acted as an intermediate level of authority between the SerBiH and the municipalities.⁹⁶²² (So what? All of it was legal, legitimate, and envisaged by the ICFY!) As the ARK was a voluntary association, the ARK Statute made provision for other municipalities to join, and typically these decisions were taken only by Bosnian Serb delegates at a municipal level.⁹⁶²³ (Now, the Chamber noticed that at the municipal level only the Serb delegated voted for an organisational measure that didn’t require a two third votes of delegates, didn’t alter the Constitution and didn’t violate any law, while the same Chamber didn’t notice that the only Muslim and Croat deputies voted for such a drastic change of the Constitution by adopting a Declaration on independence on an illegally appointed “session” of the Assembly!?!) In addition while the ARK was established as a multi-ethnic institution, in practice the ARK Assembly was a Serb body.⁹⁶²⁴ (Don’t tell me that!?! And what was with a much more important bodies, such as the Presidency, the Government...Why that didn't bother the Chamber?) Brđanin was chosen by the President to lead the ARK and held this position until the ARK was abolished.⁹⁶²⁵ (The Accused never imposed any of his opinion about personal matters, and only if asked for a suggestion, he used to meet this kind of requests!) The President was in regular contact with Brđanin and instructed him that he should not call him about "every trivial matter" but that he could call about issues which he could not resolve.⁹⁶²⁶ (So what? #Why it was important to the Chamber?# In a shortage of a real and relevant evidence against the President, the Chamber continued to patchwork a peaces of sentences from here and there, to make an illusion of a plethora of evidence. Why?) The President instructed Brđanin "You have power in your hands, and you have presidents of municipalities through whom you can exercise this power, until we achieve autonomy [...] You should execute power vigorously and to the fullest. Not a single bird should be allowed to fly over Krajina [...] You must establish all that. I've seen what was written and sent. All of that must be implemented. Take care of that. Call each and every municipality president and keep checking if it has been implemented and accomplished".⁹⁶²⁷ (This is another "obscuration" and manipulation with the evidence. Not too many readers are able to open the quoted document and check what is in it. Therefore, the responsibility of a chamber for an accuracy is even more important. Let us see what had been said in P2549, and in what circumstances, 31 October 1991 in the middle of the fierce firghting between the Croatian paramilitaries and the JNA: P2549, p.1

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: What happened?

Radoslav BRĐANIN: I interrupted it last night /as written/, there are eleven coffins in the morgue, and the Gema Dancing Club was giving a performance at the JNA /Yugoslav People's Army/ Social Centre.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: Why didn't RADIĆ ban it?

Radoslav BRĐANIN: Well, it's the JNA Social Centre, and UZELAC should have banned it. I was the first to learn about it because my daughter was supposed to dance, and she told me, and I called our men. They wanted to kick out the parents who were protesting there. Moreover, buses headed for Dubrovnik are being inspected at the moment. It's my duty to inform you...stopped...one hundred buses coming from Croatia, allegedly with Croatian citizens aboard. They are all members of the MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ headed for Dubrovnik.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: Stop them, you must not let them through. No way, send them all back.

So, the Serb coffins come to the morgue, from the battlefield in Croatia, while the Croatian irregulars of the enlarged MUP-ZNG are using the Serb areas to reach Dubrovnik and attack the JNA from behind. See further, p.3

⁹⁶²⁷ P2549 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Radoslav Brđanin, 31 October 1991), p. 5.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: All right, Brdo. Now, see here, Brdo. You have to be politically-minded and wise. Try to find ways in which things can be done, and not the ways in which they cannot be done. If it was not possible, if the Army Social Centre didn't do it, then RADIĆ should have proclaimed a day of mourning and prohibited everything else. That's how it should be done. Don't do things that will bring about confrontations and...It seems as if you virtually yearn to fail.

Radoslav BRĐANIN: Who?

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: Why, you, the Krajina men, all of you.

Radoslav BRĐANIN: What do we need the army for when 28 of our boys were killed yesterday, and this very same army is running a dancing school.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: I know, Brdo, but you have to bring it to their attention carefully and wisely, and if that does not work, then you... declare a day of mourning. Fuck it, you keep calling me about every trivial matter, and I have five thousand things on my mind. If you are capable of governing Krajina, then do it properly, damn it...Don't make me /take care/ of everything...Besides, the civilian government is in your hands, RADIĆ should declare a day of mourning, and there are no performances. It's as simple as that. But if you are at odds with the army, then you are at odds with this one and that one. Don't be at odds with anyone.

Radoslav BRĐANIN: Well, as far as I'm concerned, I don't have to be /at odds/ with anyone...

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: There is a war going on, Brdo, and people get killed. The only question is why and how, and whether they follow orders. Most of those who died got killed because they did not follow orders.

So, the main objection of the President was on a possible undisciplined conduct of the soldiers that died, and on the incapability of Brđjanin to execute the power that was in his hand, and callen the President for so many trivial matters. P. 4:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: No, no, it is not that it can't...Call me about something that you cannot resolve. You have all the power in Krajina. Why don't you exercise this power?

How this could be a crime? The President appealed on Brđjanin to exercise the power that was vested on him by the Krajina Assembly, and to be as polite as possible!) p. 5

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: Come on, man, do your job. Don't call me about every minor problem, I am not your nanny. You have power in your hands, and you have presidents of municipalities through whom you can exercise this power, until we achieve autonomy. So, you cannot, you cannot call me about every detail. You should execute power vigorously and to the fullest. Not a single bird should be allowed to fly over Krajina, and there must not be a shortage of men from Krajina for the army. You must establish all that. I've seen what was written and sent. All of that must be implemented. Take care of that. Call each and every municipality president and keep checking if it has been implemented and accomplished. I cannot do it, man. I am dead on my feet. Five thousand...

Radoslav BRĐANIN: I understand, I do...

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: I have contacts with foreigners and IZETBEGOVIĆ. I have policies to pursue relative to them, and now I must go around and solve little things. Well, you solve them yourselves. Don't give proof of your incompetence. Be able and energetic, reach an agreement and find solutions, and get the job done.

And the Chamber was of an opinion that Brđjanin was supposed to let the paramilitaries from Croatia freely pass through the Serb areas in BiH, although the local authorities were responsible for everything that was going on in their respective areas?) :

2959. On 18 October 1991, three days after the SRBiH Assembly session at which the SDA and HDZ adopted a declaration of sovereignty of BiH, the President informed the leaders of the Krajina municipalities, including Grahovac and Brđanin, to come urgently as very important decisions were going to be made.⁹⁶²⁸ On 21 October 1991, Grahovac, as President of the ARK Executive Council, initiated a meeting with the President, Krajišnik, Koljević, and Babić in Banja Luka to discuss the situation following the 15 October 1991 SRBiH Assembly session.⁹⁶²⁹ Following the plebiscite of the Serbian people on 9 and 10 November 1991, the Bosnian Serb Assembly issued a decision which verified the declared SAOs as part of BiH, a federal entity in Yugoslavia.⁹⁶³⁰ (So what? The Chamber presumed that the #SDA and HDZ were entitled to violate all and every law and constitution#, and the Serbs were supposed to keep quite and obey everything, abandoning their own basic rights!!!)

2960. The Chamber recalls that the Bosnian Serb Assembly approved on 21 December 1991 the appointment of Jovan Čizmović as the co-ordinator of activities of the executive bodies of the SAOs.⁹⁶³¹ In addition on 24 February 1992, the SDS Executive Board assigned "coordinators" for the SAOs.⁹⁶³² The SAOs had their own governmental, institutional, and political structures.⁹⁶³³ (So what? All public and legal!)

2961. At a meeting on 5 February 1992, attended by municipal leaders from the Bosanska Krajina, Semberija and Northern Bosnia SAOs, there was discussion about the SDS position with respect to regionalisation, the establishment and definition of Serb territories in BiH, and Serbia's objective of preserving Yugoslavia and ensuring Serbs live in a single state.⁹⁶³⁴ In February 1992, at a meeting with Mladić, Adžić discussed the preparations that needed to be carried out in the Krajina but stressed that these plans were to be kept "strictly secret" and that "trustworthy people" were to be used to implement them.⁹⁶³⁵ (#During the JNA#! #What does it have to do with the President#!? The JNA still was a legitimate and the only legal armed force on the entire Yugoslav territory, what the President had to do with some talks of the JNA high officers with the Portuguese Ambassador about the Serb Krajina in Croatia? 2962. By early 1992, there was increasing tension between the leadership in Pale and the ARK authorities.⁹⁶³⁶ The ARK authorities were moving towards independence and wished to establish the Krajina as a state within a state, or a "constituent entity" of Yugoslavia; the President strongly opposed this position, maintaining that Yugoslavia should be preserved and that the Krajinas should not advocate for changes to the borders.⁹⁶³⁷ (#Commendable and EXCULPATORY#!) On 23 February 1992, the President told Kuprešanin to remind the representatives of the Krajina who wanted an independent state "of their loyalty to the initial Assembly".⁹⁶³⁸ Kuprešanin also opposed the independence of the ARK and urged the President to attend an ARK Assembly session to resolve the issue.⁹⁶³⁹ The President agreed and attended an ARK Assembly session on 29 February 1992, during which he stated that "it would be a crime against the Krajina if it were declared a republic. Kuprešanin stated that individuals in Krajina did not respect the Accused or the SDS, before or during the course of the war. D4011 (Witness statement of Vojislav Kuprešanin dated 11 November 2013), para. 29. While the Chamber finds that there were certainly tensions between the Accused and Krajina leaders, the Chamber does not find Kuprešanin's evidence to be reliable in this regard. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber noted that his testimony was marked by multiple contradictions, evasiveness, indicators that he was trying to mislead the Chamber and lacked sincerity. His demeanour and testimony also indicated partiality and bias through his attempts to protect the Accused and distance him from any responsibility.

The President advocated a very close cooperation with the other Krajina, the Serb Krajina in Croatia, and to equalise the educational, legal and informative systems, but not to integrate the Krajinas, because it would present a changes of the two states, Croatia and BiH, which could result in a war of those two countries against the Serbs. Beside that, the Serb Krajina had accepter the Vance peace plan, and it would be violated too.)

2963. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in September 1992, a deputy stated: “Since we are at war, we must adopt a system which will best defend ourselves and create our own state. At a time when we had to destroy a unitary Bosnia, the SAO regions and districts were politically and territorially the best solution”.⁹⁶⁴³ The Accused also spoke about the creation of SAOs as one of the ten measures which were taken before the war which they had “brainstormed” together and which were carried out #after “Alija made a mistake”.⁹⁶⁴⁴ # The Accused spoke on multiple occasions about his responsibility for developing the process of regionalisation.⁹⁶⁴⁵ At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session, Kuprešanin stated that the reason for the creation of regions was to “destroy Alija’s state”.⁹⁶⁴⁶ In an interview in January 1995, the President confirmed that the SDS played the greatest role in “introducing Serbian awareness and discarding the inferior position of a dignified nation with its own sovereignty and state”.⁹⁶⁴⁷ He went on to state that “[w]e had a list of the actions and steps to take, but we always waited for the Muslims to make a mistake and after they made one, we created a union of municipalities and the Serbian autonomous areas next, followed by the regions and eventually our assembly, and finally Republic”.⁹⁶⁴⁸ (So what? #It is senseless to comment such a finding of the public statements of the Serb dignitaries who described what had happened previously, and what had been proposed and accepted by the international community, the EC, the USA and the United Nations”#. What the Chamber was after? What it was hunting? Anything the Serbs said or did, regardless of whether it was legal and legitimate or not? It seems that it was sufficient that some Serb existed, to construct something around him!)

1. Conclusion

2964. The Accused argues that the concept of regionalisation and division of municipalities was something envisaged and provided for by the constitution.⁹⁶⁴⁹ Having considered the evidence above, the Chamber finds that the process of regionalisation was a precursor towards creating and identifying Bosnian Serb claimed territory in BiH, whether or not this was provided for by a constitutional provision. (So what? If BiH remained in Yugoslavia, as the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement envisaged, the Serbs would give up the idea of regionalisation, because the federal state would protect their rights and security. Since the SDA-HDZ coalition continued to violate all the norms, the Serbs were free to self-organise, and even the EC and UN recognised it. Why this UN Court does not recognise it? Why the Defence hadn't been notified that this was going to be a political trial and that the Serb political life would be the main charge, although there is no any evidence that this political life caused any crime? Was it a trial to establish a crime against peace? That would be out of the realm of the Statute of Tribunal. This way, all those invectives against the Serbs and the President not only sound senseless, but insulting and humiliating, but to the highest degree as a malicious lies!) This process of regional organisation along ethnic lines was a means of responding to and opposing the proposed independence of BiH. (So what? #All of it, the regionalisation, claiming for the ethnic territories, autonomy, decentralisation, all of it was a legal and legitimate endeavour, nobody in the ICFY or anywhere contested it, on the contrary, accepted it as legal, and organised a conference on BiH to achieve the Serb demands#. The Serbs would in return accept that BiH remain in the existing boundaries and secede from Yugoslavia. All the chaos of the political unrest and the chaos of the civil war had been caused by the Muslim denial of these legitimate Serb (and Croat) conditions and a democratic transformation of BiH into a "Southern Switzerland". Nothing wrong came out from the Serb legal demands, everything wrong came from the political, and finally military denial of these basic intentions of the Christian majority in BiH!) Regionalisation, and specifically the delineation of the SAOs, was a means of identifying which Bosnian Serb territories and settlements in BiH could be separated and remain a part of Yugoslavia in the event of BiH independence. This process of regionalisation was also an early means of identifying strategically significant territorial areas. Structures were also created in order to have co-ordination between the SAOs and the higher authorities within the SDS.

2965. The Chamber finds that the President and the SDS played a leading role in this process. The President himself spoke about the creation of SAOs as one of the measures which the Bosnian Serb leadership had "brainstormed" and implemented before the war to respond to moves towards independence by BiH. He emphasised that regionalisation and the creation of SAOs were the first steps which eventually led to the creation of the Bosnian Serb Assembly and the RS. The Chamber also finds that the President opposed the independence of the ARK and was successful in ensuring that the authorities in the ARK adhered to the SDS policies and supported the creation of the RS and the unity of the Bosnian Serbs. (Had the Muslims followed the MBO and other pro-European Muslim parties which supported the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement, there would be very easy to abandon all that was achieved in regionalisation. And that was not the "SDS policies" but the all Serb political parties represented in the Assembly. This policy was approved through the several plebiscites by the people who was paying the highest cost in lives of their dearests. How come the Chamber neglected all of this elements and supported a completely illegal conduct of the Muslim side?)

ii. Split in the MUP and creation of a Bosnian Serb MUP

1. Analysis of evidence

2966. In July 1991, at a meeting of SDS Deputies' Club attended by the President, Mićo Stanišić and Mandić took the floor and focused on the Serbs being thrown out of the MUP; they complained that some people in charge were not doing their jobs as required.⁹⁶⁵⁰ After these speeches the President reacted forcefully, and said it was necessary for there to be a balance in the personnel of the MUP and that developments at the MUP should not be permitted without his knowledge.⁹⁶⁵¹ In 1991, there were also #problems with Bosnian Muslim personnel clandestinely being sent to Croatia for training# without the knowledge of the official MUP.⁹⁶⁵²

(Wasn't it sufficient for an alarm among the Serbs? #Why the Serbs would accept this kind of deception and domination in the eve of the break up of Yugoslavia? Why the Serbs would tolerate that a common state institutions become a party institutions of the SDA, abused in the preparations of a secret army and a war against the Serbs, citizens of the same Republic?)

2967. In July 1991, the Accused had also warned Izetbegović that if the Bosnian Serb demands were not met, they would establish a parallel state which would include a parallel police.⁹⁶⁵³

(Exactly! Mr. Izetbegovic had been warned to correct this unacceptable conduct of his party! After refusing it, the Serbs were free to self-organise and prepare all the security mechanisms!#And, all of it HAD ALREADY BEEN PROVIDED BY THE I C F Y in the Hague in 1991.#!))

2968. The President was in regular contact with Mandić and other Bosnian Serb leaders and discussed personnel issues at the MUP and in September 1991, the President told Mandić that they had to be in touch almost daily.⁹⁶⁵⁴ The President insisted that all nominations had to come from the party level and took an active role in identifying those SDS members who should be nominated.⁹⁶⁵⁵ The President was also informed about personnel problems and warned that this could lead to conflict.⁹⁶⁵⁶

(That was the President's duty, to secure that the elections victory at the elections would be implemented in accordance with the laws, Constitutions and the results. This is the very essence of the multiparty system, a mutual control of the processes! Why the Serbs wouldn't be equal to others, and secure that their election results be respected and implemented?)

2969. At the municipal level, a division of the police structures based on personnel disagreements was already envisaged by Bosnian Serb leaders as early as September 1991.⁹⁶⁵⁷

(What does mean this senseless conclusion? #The Muslims cheated, the Serbs protested and demanded that the distribution of power be in accordance with the law and Constitution, and with the inter-party agreements. All the time the Serb people saw what the Muslims did in arming and forming a units of the most extreme Muslims, preparing to start a war, and abusing the common resources of a common state#!) On or around 6 September 1991, the President informed Brđanin that there would be a meeting the following day where important decisions would be made and that he or someone from the Krajina should attend.⁹⁶⁵⁸ (So what? Unbelievable! #What is criminal in it#? The only criminal are these illegal and unlawful interceptions of the telephone conversations, which hadn't been approved by the court!) On 17 September 1991, the President instructed Simović to relay an important message to Žepinić regarding the separation of the MUP, stating that “as of tomorrow, we are withdrawing all our ministers and all our officials in [the MUP]”; further the President stated that he was going to confront Izetbegović that evening and said “we are going to [...] break apart and then we are going to establish our own [SUP] [...] and we'll make the government separately, we'll make everything separately”.⁹⁶⁵⁹ (So what? Mr. Izetbegovic was warned about what his Party was doing, and that this was contrary to all the laws and Constitution, and that a common institutions wouldn't be possible any longer. The Chamber wasn't interested in finding out whether it was so, or not. No population in a free world would be supposed to stand that kind of preparations for an eradication of the same population.)

2970. Around 21 September 1991, the President wrote a letter to all Municipal Boards of the SDS informing them that there were rumours about the mobilisation of Bosnian Muslim police, which would result in a Bosnian Muslim police force and would create conditions for a civil war.⁹⁶⁶⁰ The Municipal Boards were instructed by the President to follow developments closely in this regard.⁹⁶⁶¹ (So what? The Serbs are guilty for noticing such an unlawful preparations for a war, and the Court is denying the most essential and basic rights to the Serbs and the President as their representative! Is the UN supporting this kind of justice?)

2971. In an intercepted conversation on 8 October 1991 the President was informed about problems in Višegrad.⁹⁶⁶² The President spoke about the option of establishing “our public security station” and that in negotiations “[w]e will say, here you are, if you can solve it within that deadline, if you cannot we have our own in our area”.⁹⁶⁶³ (How come the Chamber was not interested in the Visegrad affair that caused these words of the President? Why wasn't it important? If the Chamber wanted the “whole truth” it would learn that the Muslim extremists in Visegrad had terrorised the Serb population, the Orthodox priests, the pilgrims, and humiliated them on a bestial way. A Serb invited two Muslims he knew to participate in his celebration of “slava” – a Serbian habit of celebration of a patron saint, which is under the UNESCO's protection. After being served and esteemed, one of them shot the host by a gun between his eyes, and all of it with an impunity. Here are excerpts from the P2558, intercepted conversation of the President and Brane, the Serb leader in Visegrad. To be noticed: the interlocutors had been mixed up, so some repliques of the President are allocated to Brane and vice versa:

So that these guys . . . this brother of his came out, they brought the vice-president and the other one came out and with a group with pistols and he was armed with a submachine gun in the middle of town, there was shooting all over the place.
Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Yes.

Brane:

They fired on the police station, riddled their cars, the tires on the car and God knows what else. Up there in the Varda factory people left their jobs at 1800 hours. Alarms /as printed/ . . . they entered the factory, set off those sirens so that . . . they cut off the electricity up there, there was firing all night.

These people of ours in SUP /Federal Secretariat of the Interior/ who . . . I was with in contact with Stanko just now. Yesterday we visited him. He's over there in Goražde. They really cannot work, I don't know what we should do. Ideas are being bandied about that we should go again to speak up there towards the MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ and that after the expiry of that deadline, that we should establish our public security station, our police here.

/?Radovan KARADŽIĆ/:

We will say, here you are, if you can solve it within that deadline, if you cannot we have our own in our area and that's it. Yes. That's the best thing . . . and are the towns separated?

Brane:

Well they're not quite separated although I think the suburbs are, to a fair extent.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Oh yes. All right Brane, there's nothing else, send that to IZETBEGOVIĆ and everyone else.

Brane:

Yes, here I am writing something and we shall fax it to let them know . . .

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Yes, let them know.

Brane:

We will give them a reasonable deadline of ten days to . . .

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

How long?

Brane:

Well, around ten days for this to end.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Give them seven days.

Brane:

All right.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

Ten days is a lot for them, they have nothing to . . . seven days to bring things to an end and punish the culprits.

Brane:

All right.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

And to remove from social life those who are poisoning it . . .

Brane:

Yes.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

If not, we shall proceed to organise parallel organs of power . . .

Brane:

Yes.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

With a view to protecting the Serbian people.

Brane:

Yes.

Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

They should be told that openly and that's it. That's it.

So, the President had been informed that a famous Muslim extremist Murat Sabanovic, who a preveous days occupied a dam on the Drina River and threatened to blou it up, which would result in a thousands of casualties of innocent people and destruction of a several settlements, couldn't be arrested by the Federal police. He continued to terrorise the town of Visegrad, nobody stopped him, no a Muslim policeman even tried to arrest him, and the President said that if the Muslim side doesn't settle down such a dangerous conduct within seven days, the Serbs must develop their own security organs to protect their people! #And that was their right of the first class#!). The Accused also gave an instruction to give "seven days to bring things to an end and punish the culprits" and "[i]f not, we shall proceed to organise parallel organs of power...[w]ith a view to protecting the Serbian people".⁹⁶⁶⁴ The Accused also inquired whether the towns were separated and whether the mixed town centre could not be separated.⁹⁶⁶⁵ In December 1991, Mandić and the Accused discussed the preparations for the creation of a separate Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁶⁶ (So what? #It already had been accepted within the ICFY# that the constituent states within BiH will have a separate police and other legislative and executive organs! Why the Chamber was blind for the contexts?)

2972. The Chamber recalls that from early January 1992, employees of the SJB in Zvornik were instructed by the SDS to gather support and prepare for the formation of a Serb SJB.⁹⁶⁶⁷ (So what?)

2973. On 11 February 1992, at a meeting in Banja Luka, Mićo Stanišić, Mandić, and other Bosnian Serb leaders were informed that the Bosnian Serb Assembly had decided to form a separate Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁶⁸ This was a means of ensuring that Bosnian Serb authority was felt in territories which they claimed.⁹⁶⁶⁹ (Again, #the main point missed: in February 1992 there had already been fully known and established that the constituent units will have a separate police#. The issue has a continuity from the Treaty Provisions for a Convention (Lord Carrington Plan, adopted in the Hague on 4 NOVEMBER 1991, through all and every Plan for BiH, to the final Dayton Agreement#!) Stanišić at this meeting spoke about the need to work towards organising a Serb MUP starting at the municipal and regional levels and moving towards a Serb ministry.⁹⁶⁷⁰ At this meeting there were also discussions about the problems in the MUP of the SRBiH.⁹⁶⁷¹ Župljanin indicated that with respect to the Banja Luka CSB not a single new Muslim or Croat employee would be hired until the status of Serb police who had fled from Croatia had been resolved.⁹⁶⁷² Mićo Stanišić claimed that the MUP was being divided by the Muslims, through the actions of the SDA, and not the Serbs.⁹⁶⁷³ (#Exactly, and that was the reason why the EC and Lord Carrington envisaged a separate police forces!#)

2974. At this meeting a resolution was passed to create a steering committee, a “Serbian advisory board” within the MUP under the direction of Mandić “to carry out all preparations necessary for the functioning of the Serbian MUP” following the adoption of the Bosnian Serb constitution.⁹⁶⁷⁴ Part of the preparation for separation included the arming of Serb police officers and Serb police stations.⁹⁶⁷⁵ (So what? The Muslim part of MUP, although accepted the reorganisation of the MUP into two, didn’t want to share the equipment and armament with their Serb colleagues!) The CSBs and SJBs reassigned stockpiled weapons belonging to the reserve police force to the new Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁷⁶ A separate Serb MUP would be organised at state, regional, and municipal levels.⁹⁶⁷⁷

2975. Following this meeting, Mandić wrote to the CSBs and SJBs and asked them to act in accordance with the conclusions reached at the meeting in Banja Luka and to set up and have a meeting of senior MUP executives in their areas.⁹⁶⁷⁸ After this order, each centre distributed the stockpile of weapons for the reserve police force to members of the Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁷⁹ In Bijeljina for example, following the 11 February 1992 meeting, the SJB in Bijeljina was instructed by Mandić to begin preparations for the purpose of creating a Bosnian Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁸⁰ (#All in an accord with the Cutileiro's Conference!#)

2976. This was the second of two meetings on this topic, the first having taken place in Sarajevo.⁹⁶⁸¹ The meeting was not held secretly and Mandić personally informed Delimustafić about it.⁹⁶⁸² The minutes and conclusions of the meeting were forwarded to Delimustafić.⁹⁶⁸³ (#Nothing was secret, because nothing was illegal! Mr. Delimustafic was a Muslim and the Minister for Interior, i.e. the chief of the common MUP!)

2977. By March 1992, there were further problems given the failure to carry out the 1990 coalition agreement regarding personnel issues in the MUP which resulted in proposals for its re-organisation.⁹⁶⁸⁴ The President on 6 March 1992 emphasised the Bosnian Serb demands with respect to the re-organisation of the MUP and protested about appointments where the legal procedure had not been followed.⁹⁶⁸⁵ There were also complaints received from a municipal level about the divisions in the SJB which were blamed on the SDA.⁹⁶⁸⁶ The President wanted the Serb collegium in the MUP to reach agreement on its own personnel.⁹⁶⁸⁷ In March 1992, the President spoke about announcing their withdrawal from the MUP and that they had already obtained the badges.⁹⁶⁸⁸

2978. On 24 March 1992, the President spoke at the Bosnian Assembly about following forthcoming instructions so that the sovereign authority of the “Serbian Assembly and Serbian people be established on the ground as soon as possible”.⁹⁶⁸⁹ In this regard the President spoke about having their own separate MUP and that the then newly established municipalities should set up police stations and their organs as soon as possible.⁹⁶⁹⁰ (#All in accord wiyh the ICFY#! police structures.⁹⁶⁹¹ He also reported on steps taken to establish “police stations in our parts” to Đerić.⁹⁶⁹² 2979. The law on the establishment of the Serbian MUP was passed on 27 March 1992.⁹⁶⁹³ The Law on Internal Affairs provided for the structure and duties of the organs of the MUP.⁹⁶⁹⁴ The Chamber recalls that at the end of March 1992, a decision was adopted by the Bosnian Serb Assembly, calling on the Bosnian Serb police to separate by 1 April 1992.⁹⁶⁹⁵ On 30 March 1992, Mićo Stanišić addressed the members of the police unit of the SAO Romanija stating that as of that day, the SerBiH had their own police force.⁹⁶⁹⁶ (The speech of Minister Stanisic is a very short one, and should be quoted in it's entirety. See, D4271: The Minister of the Interior of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, Mićo STANIŠIĆ, will address the members of the police unit of the Serbian Autonomous Region of Romanija.

As of today the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina has its own police force. The legality of our existence is provided by the Constitution of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Law on Internal Affairs recently adopted by the Assembly at its session. Moreover, the legality of our existence is based on the result of negotiations of the three ethnic communities under the auspices of the European Community. As of today we will act as the police of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina which will carry out its tasks and assignments professionally, and not politically, as the MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ of the old Bosnia and Herzegovina has done so far, in order to protect property, life, body and other securities of all citizens in the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina equally. Members of the police, we are not involved in politics. We must carry out our tasks professionally. For these reasons, long speeches do not belong to us, but as of today, good luck, get to work, in the interest of all who live in the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Thank you.

Why this short speech of the Minister Stanisic wasn't worthwhile to be quoted accurately? Because Minister Stanisic #numbered the legal basis for the formation and existence of the Serb MUP#, and these bases were: #The Constitution of the RS, #The Law on Internal Affairs, and, moreover, #the results of the negotiations of the three ethnic communities under the auspices of the European Community. At the end Minister Stanisic repeated the distance of the police from the politics and committed the Ministry to the service to “all citizens in the SerBiH equally.” On 31 March 1992, Mandić sent a dispatch to all SJBs and CSBs indicating that the Bosnian Serb Assembly had promulgated the Law on Internal Affairs.⁹⁶⁹⁷

2980. Mandić's dispatch indicated that when this law came into force on 1 April 1992, all CSBs and SJBs on the territory of the SerBiH would be abolished and their functions taken over by organisational units of the Bosnian Serb MUP.⁹⁶⁹⁸ Mandić in a later intercepted conversation said “when I sent that dispatch and fucked the MUP to pieces” and “[y]ou have your state, we have ours. The Muslims should work on their own, fuck them”.⁹⁶⁹⁹ (#Jokes of the others, words of the others#! Mandić spoke to his Croat colleague B. Kvesic, with a lot of jokes and mutual teasings! But, this court likes such a conversations more than the UN or EC documents!) Mandić sent this dispatch following the instructions of the Bosnian Serb political leadership.⁹⁷⁰⁰ (So what? Almost every paragraph with the accurate data could be commented with this “so what”. The rest of paragraphs deserves comment “wrong”)

2981. On 31 March 1992, Delimustafić, in response to Mandić’s dispatch of 31 March 1992,⁹⁷⁰¹ wrote a letter to the MUP administrations of all SDBs, CSBs, and SJBs stating that the dispatch reflected problems in the leadership and appealed to all MUP workers to continue to work responsibly and noted that the greatest number of MUP workers wish to remain in a united MUP.⁹⁷⁰² Žepinić was also opposed to the split in the MUP given his view that the split would “inevitably lead to an armed conflict” in BiH.⁹⁷⁰³ Žepinić at a meeting attended by the Bosnian Serb leadership was criticised by Mićo Stanišić for “destroying” their idea of dividing the MUP and Žepinić said that the division could not be done peacefully.⁹⁷⁰⁴ (This is all rubbish, because the Muslim part of MUP participated in all the talks, but at the last moment, as in all other agreements, they retreated. If it couldn’t done peacefully, the UN – EC mediators would never propose such an arrangement, which was #agreed in the ICFY at least as of 4 November 1991#. nor all of the international proposals would have the same attitude!)

2982. The BiH MUP was then divided and allowed for the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP. Employees of the abolished CSBs and SJBs who wished to work in the Bosnian Serb MUP were obliged to swear an oath of allegiance before taking up employment.⁹⁷⁰⁵ (What would oblige the employees to conduct the laws and regulations of the Republic of Srpska if they hadn’t been sworn? There was a new republic in formation with the accord of all the mediators, and that was a regular procedure!) After the dispatch of 31 March 1992, Mandić issued a further explanation on how the new MUP would be organised across the territory of the BiH.⁹⁷⁰⁶

2983. On 1 April 1992, it was reported that Mandić had invited all Serb police officers to put themselves at the disposal of a “MUP of Serbian Republic” pursuant to the Constitution of the SerBiH.⁹⁷⁰⁷ On 1 April 1992, the SRBiH MUP collegium issued a dispatch that in order to prevent a further deterioration of the security situation that the existing MUP “should be transformed peacefully and without any excesses” and that equipment of the SJB and SDB

Mandić later testified that the political leadership was not aware of his dispatch and he was simply following the decisions of the Assembly, the Law on Internal Affairs, and the Cutileiro Plan. Momčilo Mandić, T. 4474 (1 July 2010) The Chamber does not find this evidence to be reliable and notes that this is directly contradicted by his prior testimony that this dispatch was sent following instructions from the political leadership. The Chamber noted that Mandić in his testimony in this case was evasive and was marked by indicators of bias. Similarly the Chamber does not rely on Mandić’s evidence about the effect or motivation for the division of the MUP given that this evidence was marked by efforts by Mandić to distance himself from responsibility for the events in BiH. should not be seized by any nation unilaterally and that employees should not be dismissed because of their national or political affiliations.⁹⁷⁰⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#) On 3 April 1992, Župljanin sent a dispatch indicating that the reorganisation of the MUP organs and their security services had begun in line with the dispatch from the Bosnian Serb MUP Collegium dated 2 April 1992.⁹⁷⁰⁹

2984. On 5 April 1992, Mandić sent a dispatch to Zvornik, noting that the MUP was being divided into Serb and Muslim components and ordered the movement of the Bosnian Serb institutions to Karakaj.⁹⁷¹⁰ Following this instruction, the police stations in the municipality, were divided into Serb and Muslim parts.⁹⁷¹¹ With respect to the division of the police, the President stated that the “[p]olicemen simply do not work together any more” and that this situation had been “forced upon us”.⁹⁷¹² The Chamber also found that in Bratunac at the beginning of April 1992, in a meeting between SDS and SDA representatives, Deronjić reiterated that the police should be divided and that separate Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Serb police units should be formed.⁹⁷¹³ When the SDA representatives opposed the idea as it would lead to greater tensions, Deronjić threatened that if they did not comply “Muslims would disappear”.⁹⁷¹⁴ (Based only on a #testimonies of the Muslim extremists#, who didn’t report this incident, since at that time it couldn’t have happened, and the division of municipality and its organs, such as police, had already been agreed and achieved on April 1 1992! 2986. In a decision issued on 25 April 1992, Mićo Stanisić ordered that CSB heads were allowed to take over the employees from the former MUP and assign jobs within the CSBs and SJBs, however, they had to inform the Minister of the Interior of all such decisions. Furthermore, all heads of CSB had to obtain prior approval from the MUP before assigning posts at the higher levels, such as the head of the SJBs.^{9729 (9734)} (#Legal! Only insuch a distant municipalities as Prijedor was, the Crisis Staff appointed the chief of police, because there was no a communications. But, the Indictment as well as the Judgment treat all the Serb political actions the same, as if anything that the Serbs did was forbidden!!!)

2987. In May 1992, there was a meeting between the Accused, RS MUP officials and the Chiefs of the CBSs at which the existing situation, the problems on the ground, and the work of the MUP were discussed.⁹⁷³⁰ The Chiefs of the CSBs were informed that a MUP had been formed and of the applicable procedure, and the President used this opportunity to inform those present about the general situation and issues, emphasising that the MUP had to function according to the legal provisions.⁹⁷³¹ A bulletin of daily events was compiled on the work between April and December 1992 in order to provide the Accused and the RS Prime Minister with information on the security situation. In addition, the Accused received 80 reports on security issues.⁹⁷³² (So what? How was it connected to the alleged crimes?)

2988. The President, as President, also had the power to issue orders for the deployment of the police during the war.⁹⁷³³

2. Conclusion

2989. The President's argues that there were multiple factors which contributed to the ultimate division of the MUP, particularly personnel disagreements with the SDA.⁹⁷³⁴ He also argues that the Cutileiro Plan envisaged all constituent entities having their own police forces.⁹⁷³⁵ (Not only the Cutileiro Plan, but prior to this Plan there was a course of the ICFY where Mr. Izetbegovic committed himself to secure a high autonomy to the Serbs and Croats. This issue was codified in the Treaty Provisions for the Convention, Carrington Plan of 4 November 1991.)

2990. Having considered the evidence above, the Chamber finds that prior to the conflict in BiH there were already disputes, personnel issues and divisions between the Bosnian Serb and Bosnian Muslim personnel in the MUP.⁹⁷³⁶ (This is not enough from a distinguished and serious Chamber. There were no a personal disputes, but a legal disputes because of a massive abuses of the state institutions by the SDA, on the account of the Serb rights and security!) The Chamber finds that the President himself had warned that if the Bosnian Serb demands were not met, a parallel police structure could be created. The Chamber finds that the ⁹⁷³⁶ While the Chamber finds that these disputes did play a role in the decision to ultimately divide the MUP, the Chamber does not find Mandić's evidence that it was the SDA and these personnel issues which contributed most to the division of the MUP to be reliable: Momčilo Mandić, T. 4917 (8 July 2010); Momčilo Mandić, C2 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajišnik), T. 9406. See also P1115 (Video footage of interview with Momčilo Mandić, July–August 1994, with transcript). In reaching that conclusion the Chamber found that Mandić's evidence was marked by evasiveness, inconsistencies and indicators of bias. In addition it was clear that he had an interest in downplaying his own role and the real reason for the division of the MUP.

Accused closely monitored developments in the MUP. The Chamber concludes however that, even if such a division was also influenced by personnel disagreements or was provided for by the Cutileiro Plan, the ultimate split in the MUP structures was precipitated by a decision of the Bosnian Serb leadership and formed a core part of their objective to create a separate Bosnian Serb state with parallel structures. The Chamber finds that Mandić took a leading role in ensuring that this division was carried out at a municipal level and in detailing how this new Bosnian Serb MUP was to be structured. It also finds that the creation of a separate Bosnian Serb MUP was a means of undermining the proposed independence of BiH. The Chamber finds that the directives with respect to the division of the MUP structures and the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP were communicated to and implemented at a municipal level. (#This kind of deliberation is a grave violation of the Serb and the President rights#. Nobody is entitled to criminalise the political life and political struggle, after the Tribunal decided not to criminalise the crime against peace, i.e. the liability for the war! Had it been notified in advance, the Defence would have something to tell and to submit to that aspect, because the Serbs didn't initiate any change, but only defended the existing status! This way, the Chamber is criminalising the entire Serb people for it's intentions to mitigate the consequences of the forced independence through a democratic transformation of BiH, which was supported by the EC – UN mediation! This way, the Tribunal of the United Nations is justifying all the violent, unilateral and unlawful moves of the other side, and presumes that the Serbs would be right only if were unconditionally obedient! This is in a sharp contrast with the international covenants and the basic documents of the UN, and therefore the UN institutions must not act that way!)

2991. The Chamber further finds that the separation of the BiH MUP and creation of a Bosnian Serb MUP was also a crucial step in the take-over of municipalities as it created a separate police structure which would allow Bosnian Serb authority to be maintained in those municipalities. The Chamber also finds that the President spoke in favour and promoted the creation of this separate police structure as a means of achieving their objective of sovereignty of the Serb people in the territories which they claimed. Following the division of the BiH MUP, the President was informed about developments and the functioning of the Bosnian Serb MUP. The Chamber recalls its finding that the separate Bosnian Serb MUP, as a component of the Serb Forces, were involved in the violent take-over of Municipalities and in crimes committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats upon which the Chamber has entered findings above. (This is another of many shameless #“myths” created by the Prosecution, and accepted by the Chamber, and is called “a forceful, or violent take-over of municipalities” #Which of the municipalities had been violently taken-over, or taken-over anyway? In all and every of the municipalities with the Serb majority there had been the same authorities as established after the elections in 1990, lasting throughout the entire war to the next elections in 1996. The only what was changed now and then was a change of personnel, mainly in the police, and on the initiative of the internationals. In the municipalities where the others (Muslims or Croats) had a significant minority, the Serb authorities were limited on the Serb areas only, through the formation of the Serb municipalities composed of the Serb settled places only. That was a legal and constitutional possibility, and the Serbs used it legally, because the SDA extremists continued to abuse all the common state institutions for their purposes, violating all the constitutional and legal provisions, as well as a common sense and good habit of such a mixed society. The main purpose of theirs was to subjugate the Serbs (and Croats) to their political dictate, and finally to expel the Christian majority out of BiH and to establish their Islamic Republic. The valuable evidence on these facts nobody ever rebutted properly!)

(D) Variant A/B Instructions and take-over of power

(#Legal, obligatory#! All and everything about these instructions was legal and provided by the domestic legislature, based on the All-People's Defence, and on the Social Self Protection laws. That was corroborated by the witness Dragan Kapetina, a long term official of the Ministry for Defence in BiH and later in the Republic of Srpska. There was no a single institution, territorial unit and social organisation that was without such an instructions for a possible war or an imminent threat of war! Many institutions had such an instruction created much earlier, and many years had been deposited in a safes, to be opened in any imergency situation. Not worthy to comment, the Tribunal chambers were completely ignorant of the domestic laws and regulations, and from that position the chambers decide about the most legal and sometimes obligatory measures of the sides. The Instructions weren't any political or party document, this kind of documents, which are to be opened only in a case of threats were a professional instructions, not discussed and not voted about by any political body! None of these measures envisaged in the Instructions were envisaged to initiate any situation, but only to react to a jeopardies!)

(1)Analysis of evidencea. Distribution and contents of the Instructions

2992. Above, the Chamber found that the Variant A/B Instructions were issued by the SDS Main Board on 19 December 1991.⁹⁷³⁷ They were distributed by the President at a meeting on or around 20 December 1991.⁹⁷³⁸ This meeting was held in Sarajevo and attended by hundreds of high ranking Bosnian Serbs, including Krajišnik, Plavšić, Koljević, members of the Main Board and Executive Board, deputies, municipal representatives, and members of the government.⁹⁷³⁹

2993. This document was adopted without any discussion, vote, or amendment and was presented as a set of measures which were to be practically implemented.⁹⁷⁴⁰ The stated purpose of these instructions was to “carry out the results of the plebiscite at which the Serbian people in Bosnia and Herzegovina decide to live in a single state” and to “increase mobility and readiness for the defence of the interests of the Serbian people”.⁹⁷⁴¹ The Chamber further recalls that Serb-majority municipalities were designated Variant A, while Serb-minority municipalities were designated Variant B.⁹⁷⁴² The instructions were a means of creating Serb

KDZ192 agreed with the Accused's suggestion that the Variant A/B Instructions were not binding but then distanced himself from his answer when questioned by the Chamber. The Chamber notes that KDZ192's evidence was marked by contradictions and indicators of bias and partiality and does not rely on his evidence in this regard.

⁹⁷⁴² See paras. 49, 132. See also Dorothea Hanson, T. 14504 (9 June 2011). The Chamber does not rely on Hanson's opinion that in practice, the instructions essentially mapped out the take-over of power.

authority in both Variant A and Variant B municipalities.⁹⁷⁴³ According to the instructions, the tasks laid out therein were to be implemented over the entire territory of the SRBiH or in every municipality where Serbs lived, in their entirety in Variant A municipalities and partially in Variant B municipalities.⁹⁷⁴⁴

2994. Before the President distributed the document, he spoke about the position of the Bosnian Serbs, the threat posed by Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, the secession and the disintegration of Yugoslavia, but did not actually go into the details of the document.⁹⁷⁴⁵ The fear of Bosnian Muslim and Croat dominance “was a key element that contributed to the emotional atmosphere” which prevailed during the meeting and nobody wanted to be seen as a traitor by questioning the instructions.⁹⁷⁴⁶ The President called out individuals on a list and distributed copies of the instructions and approximately 100 people were given these instructions to read and return.⁹⁷⁴⁷ The instructions were numbered as they knew which Bosnian Serb municipal leaders were supposed to be given copies of the document.⁹⁷⁴⁸ The President also discussed these instructions at a meeting of the SDS Deputies’ Club, which was attended by municipal representatives.⁹⁷⁴⁹ On 18 December 1991, the day before the Variant A/B Instructions were distributed, the President told Krajišnik in an intercepted phone conversation that he was “working on something”, “some measures and so on”.⁹⁷⁵⁰

2995. The Variant A/B Instructions required SDS municipal boards in the first level to “establish immediately Crisis Staffs of the Serbian People in the municipality”.⁹⁷⁵¹ The instructions also specified that the composition of these Crisis Staffs should include all members of the SDS municipal board secretariat, SDS candidates in certain municipal organs (for Variant A municipalities) or SDS candidates in every municipal organ (for Variant B municipalities), deputies of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, and members of the SDS Main Board from the municipality.⁹⁷⁵² The Chamber recalls that instructions also provided that the Commander of the Crisis Staff was, in Variant A municipalities, the president of the municipal assembly or the chairman of the municipal executive board and, in Variant B municipalities, the president of the SDS municipal board.⁹⁷⁵³

2996. The Variant A/B Instructions also called for, in the first level, convening and proclaiming an assembly of the Serbian people to be composed of Serbian representatives in the municipal assembly and presidents of SDS local boards.⁹⁷⁵⁴ In this phase, preparations were to be undertaken for the establishment of municipal government organs such as an executive committee, administration organs, a misdemeanour court and an SJB and for the preparation of a list of nominees to take on duties in these organs.⁹⁷⁵⁵ This first level also required

The Chamber places no weight on Čavoški’s opinion in this regard given that it falls outside the scope of his expertise. In addition the Chamber also found his testimony was marked by contradictions, evasiveness and clear indicators of partiality and bias which undermined his evidence as an expert and does not find his evidence in this regard to be reliable.

preparations for the take-over of “staff, buildings and equipment of security services centres and their integration” into newly established organs.⁹⁷⁵⁶

2997. The first level of the instructions also required an estimate of the number of active and reserve police, TO units, and civilian protection units and to bring these units “to full manpower” and take necessary action for their engagement depending on developments.⁹⁷⁵⁷ The instructions also provided that these units would be activated by order of the municipal Crisis Staffs and also called for a replenishment of wartime units.⁹⁷⁵⁸ The instructions also required preparations to be taken to allow for the protection and evacuation of children, pregnant women, the elderly and sick.⁹⁷⁵⁹
2998. The Variant A/B Instructions also contained provisions to establish “constant communication and cooperation” between the SDS municipal boards and local boards and to provide for daily meetings of the SDS municipal board to constantly monitor the situation on the ground.⁹⁷⁶⁰
3000. For Variant B municipalities there was a further provision which required that members of the “other nations” who had expressed loyalty to Yugoslavia be “proportionately represented in government organs”.⁹⁷⁶⁴ Also in Variant B municipalities there was an additional instruction for predominantly Serb local communes and settlements to establish “secret warehouses and depots” to store food, raw materials and manufacturing components.⁹⁷⁶⁵
3001. The second level of the Variant A/B Instructions was to be activated pursuant to an order of the President “in accordance with a specifically defined secret procedure”.⁹⁷⁶⁶

b. Implementation of the Instructions at the municipal level

3002. The Variant A/B Instructions were communicated from SDS leaders to municipal leaders and SDS municipal boards which discussed and implemented the variant which was applicable to their respective municipality.⁹⁷⁶⁷ The Chamber also recalls its finding that the implementation of these instructions were viewed by the recipients as mandatory.⁹⁷⁶⁸ Those who received the document had to decide the best way to implement the instructions at a municipal level.⁹⁷⁶⁹ There are also municipal decisions on the record which specifically reference the Variant A/B Instructions.⁹⁷⁷⁰ The Chamber recalls that after the Variant A/B Instructions were distributed by the President they were conveyed, discussed and implemented through SDS structures at a municipal level in municipalities including Bratunac,⁹⁷⁷¹ Brčko,⁹⁷⁷² Rogatica,⁹⁷⁷³ Vlasenica,⁹⁷⁷⁴ Zvornik,⁹⁷⁷⁵ Bosanski Novi,⁹⁷⁷⁶ Ključ,⁹⁷⁷⁷ Prijedor,⁹⁷⁷⁸ Ilidža,⁹⁷⁷⁹ and Novo Sarajevo.⁹⁷⁸⁰

3003. The Chamber further recalls that the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions resulted in the formation of municipal Crisis Staffs and Serb municipal assemblies, and the declaration of Serbian municipalities.⁹⁷⁸¹ For example, the Chamber recalls that the decision to form the Serbian Municipality of Zvornik directly cited to the Variant A/B Instructions.⁹⁷⁸² From late 1991, municipalities established Crisis Staffs and some were re-established or re-formed in around April or May 1992.⁹⁷⁸³ These Crisis Staffs were formed and in existence between 1991 and 1993 in the Municipalities.⁹⁷⁸⁴

⁹⁷⁶⁸ See para. 2245. KW317 testified that the Variant A/B Instructions were not orders and that nobody had to report on whether they were implemented or not. KW317, T. 39333–39334, 39337–39338 (5 June 2013), T. 39412 (6 June 2013). However, the Chamber notes that when KW317 was confronted with a prior interview where he confirmed that he did attend a meeting where they were instructed to implement the second phase of the Variant A/B Instructions. In light of this qualification the Chamber does not find KW317's evidence in this regard to be of much weight.

c. Monitoring of developments and implementation of Instructions

3005. The Accused also followed up on the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions. For example in an intercepted conversation on 21 December 1991, the President asked Krajišnik “who will implement what we issued last night?” and Krajišnik replied that it would be the Council of Ministers.⁹⁷⁹⁴ When the President observed that the Council of Ministers would not be able to “run from municipality to municipality and say do this, do that”, Krajišnik replied: “He won’t run either” and the President countered with “[B]ut he must run.”⁹⁷⁹⁵ From the context of the conversation the Chamber finds that the President and Krajišnik were speaking about Jovan Čizmović. His role is discussed in further detail below.

3006. On 26 December 1991, Krajišnik informed the President that he had been to a Novi Grad Municipal Assembly session in which voting had been blocked.⁹⁷⁹⁶ In an intercepted conversation on 27 December 1991, the President was asked by Bjelica whether he would come to Sokolac and was informed: “We’re doing the job here, everything is normal” and the President asked whether Tupajić was doing a good job in the municipality.⁹⁷⁹⁷

3007. In January 1992, in an intercepted conversation, the President asked Miroslav Stanić, the president of the SDS in Foča, about the situation there.⁹⁷⁹⁸ The President specifically asked Stanić “[c]an they introduce independence in Foča”, to which Stanić replied that they would not and they had told journalists who visited them that “we’ll never allow that”.⁹⁷⁹⁹ Stanić proceeded to tell the President that they had formed a “Serb municipality and you have that information” and that if “things should go differently on the fifteenth, we’ll have a public promotion”.⁹⁸⁰⁰ The President expressed his agreement and said: “Yes, yes, and take complete control over your affairs”; to which Stanić agreed and said that “everything [is] as it is in the instructions”.⁹⁸⁰¹ The President expressed his satisfaction and said: “Good, good. That’s very important [...] never again in history will they [...] if we give in now, we’ll never have a chance and if, if we succeed, we will have succeeded for all times”.⁹⁸⁰²

3008. The President was kept informed of the implementation of the instructions. As such, in an intercepted conversation on 10 February 1992 between the President and Vitomir Žepinić, the plan to divide the Bratunac municipality and establish a separate Serb municipality was discussed and encouraged by the President.⁹⁸⁰³ Similarly, the previous day, Krajišnik informed the President of a meeting he had recently attended in Novi Grad, and the discussions he had about forming the Rajlovac municipality.⁹⁸⁰⁴

KDZ605 stated that he heard that Deronjić went to Pale, met with the Accused to “discuss and organise the takeover of Bratunac”. However, the Chamber is not satisfied that it can rely on this uncorroborated second hand-hear say to establish that this meeting did take place or what was discussed at this meeting.

⁹⁸⁰⁴ P5753 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Momčilo Krajišnik, February 1992), p. 1. Also, sometime in February 1992, Krajišnik informed Koljević about a meeting he was going to attend in Rajlovac “in connection with this one municipality.” P5758 (Intercept of conversation between Momčilo Krajišnik and Nikola Koljević, February 1992), p. 1. On 11 May 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly adopted a law according to which the 3009. There was direct communication between the municipal Boards and their representatives and the Accused with respect to the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions and people came from the field to see the President.⁹⁸⁰⁵ Municipal leaders would frequently visit the President or would communicate in writing or by phone with respect to municipal issues.⁹⁸⁰⁶ The President also had regular contact with Bosnian Serb municipal leaders and made frequent visits to municipalities.⁹⁸⁰⁷

3010. The Accused invited representatives of Crisis Staffs to report on their work.⁹⁸⁰⁸ He was in contact with municipal leaders and questioned them on how the local authorities and structures were functioning.⁹⁸⁰⁹ The President was regularly informed about, and gave instructions with respect to, specific developments at a municipal and regional level.⁹⁸¹⁰ When there were problems in a specific municipality, Nešković or other Bosnian Serb officials would be sent by the President or by the Main Board. Nešković would then provide a brief verbal report on the work he had done even though the President had already been informed from municipal sources about these developments.⁹⁸¹¹
3011. The Accused sometimes intervened personally to resolve problems which arose at a municipal level.⁹⁸¹² For example, in around February 1992, the President and Krajišnik were involved in resolving an internal conflict in Novo Sarajevo.⁹⁸¹³ The President and Krajišnik attended at least one meeting of the Novo Sarajevo SDS Municipal Board.⁹⁸¹⁴ In June 1992, in a letter from Novo Sarajevo Crisis Staff, the President was informed about developments in the Serbian Municipality of Novo Sarajevo, including the mobilisation of the population, the formation of a Crisis Staff, Executive Board and Municipal Assembly, and was requested to provide further instructions with respect to the formation of war presidencies.⁹⁸¹⁵

3012. The Accused sent commissioners to various locations when the municipal authorities were not functioning.⁹⁸¹⁶ Jovan Čizmović, who was a member of the Council of Ministers, was appointed as republic level co-ordinator of the activities of the SAOs and the ARK and had the duty of monitoring the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions.⁹⁸¹⁷ In an intercepted conversation on 21 December 1991 the President gave Čizmović the “full authorisation to visit all our municipalities” and indicated that the municipalities would identify the problems they were facing and that it would be good to hear advice from Čizmović.⁹⁸¹⁸
3013. In another intercepted conversation on 16 January 1992, Čizmović reported to the President that he had spoken to Bijeljina and that they were “prepared for full-cooperation” and that he had prepared a questionnaire for Northern Bosnia to allow them to identify what they had managed to do and how far they had come and to what extent they were prepared to “implement the first level of the instruction” and any problems they were facing or needed help with.⁹⁸¹⁹ Čizmović indicated that he was prepared to form a team with the help of the President to provide professional help with any problems the municipalities faced.⁹⁸²⁰
3014. In another intercepted conversation on 22 January 1992 between the President and Čizmović, there was discussion on sending experts and teams to assist municipalities to deal with problems and Čizmović said: “It’s the same situation with Bijeljina [...] I’ve finished with them, too”.⁹⁸²¹ Čizmović reported about measures taken in Doboj and Bijeljina and indicated that he still had to “see about Birač, Romanija and Herzegovina. [...] But I’ll see to it that that should be finished within this short time, too”.⁹⁸²²
3015. In another phone conversation, Čizmović indicated, and the President, agreed that “movements which are taking place here shouldn’t be seen as some sort of secession” but as an alternative “to a situation, if there should be a need for a reaction, that everything should be on a hair-trigger”.⁹⁸²³ The President said that it would allow them to react within two hours.⁹⁸²⁴ The President responded positively to Čizmović’s reports that: “Tonight we also established the Crisis Staff, which will act when nobody can get together, when they can assemble more quickly [...] So, that’s working. Because the objective must be carried out, instructions must be carried out”.⁹⁸²⁵ At the 6th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 26 January 1992, Čizmović spoke and called for the urgent operationalisation and declaration on the establishment of the SerBiH and stated that the “[t]asks set out in the instructions of 19 December 1991 should be carried out”.⁹⁸²⁶ 3016. In February 1992, the President addressed the Bosnian Assembly and stressed the importance of co-operation with regional structures and leaders and the development of their strategic objectives.⁹⁸²⁷ This included creating a questionnaire to be used to check the progress of municipalities with respect to “preparations”.⁹⁸²⁸ The President spoke about Ćizmović visiting municipalities, including Bijeljina and Banja Luka, with a questionnaire to check on preparations at the municipality level and to check on their loyalty.⁹⁸²⁹

3017. In March 1992, the President wrote to all the presidents of the municipalities to inform them that a Republic Operations Centre had been established and that the task of the municipalities was to urgently connect their own information centres with district centres, to provide personnel and ensure that other requirements were met so as to monitor the situation on the ground.⁹⁸³⁰ The President noted that the district centres were already connected by telephone and radio communication with the republic centres and it was also necessary to co-operate with the SJBs continuously to allow for the transmission and receipt of information 24 hours a day.⁹⁸³¹ The President stated that consultative meetings would soon be held to go over technical and organisational issues related to the work of municipal and district centres.⁹⁸³²
3018. Municipal leaders also requested assistance from the higher level Bosnian Serb institutions. For example, in July 1992, the President of the Executive Committee in Foča informed Đerić that the political and security situation in Foča remained critical and requested assistance to find the best solution.⁹⁸³³ Similarly, in September 1992 the Command of the 2nd Romanija Motorised Brigade reported to the President about disputes and difficulties in co-operation with the civilian authorities in Sokolac.⁹⁸³⁴ The President was also informed of the situation with regard to the institutions in Bratunac and, for example, in a speech to the Bosnian Serb Assembly in September 1992 he spoke about the need to ensure the functioning of authorities.⁹⁸³⁵
3019. The Chamber received evidence that described disruptions of road systems at different locations or breakdown of telecommunications between the RS institutions and the local levels, from March until December 1992.⁹⁸³⁶ clearly demonstrate that notwithstanding disruptions in telecommunications from March until December 1992, it was still possible for the leadership of the SDS, including the President, and RS institutions to communicate with lower levels and that generally obstacles were overcome.⁹⁸³⁸ More specifically, with respect to the RS MUP, CSBs, and SJBs, there were always communication channels with most communication by fax and telephone and daily communication between the CSB and SJBs. If there were limited interruptions, for example if the telephone lines were down, there would be communication by courier.⁹⁸³⁹

d. Activation of second level of the Instructions

3021. In January 1992, in an intercepted conversation, the President spoke about “level two” of “that paper of ours” and the importance of quickly taking over “real functions”.⁹⁸⁴⁰

3022. The Chamber recalls that on 14 February 1992, the President at an extended session of the SDS Main Board and Executive Board activated the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions.⁹⁸⁴¹ The presidents of SDS municipal boards, presidents and members of regional boards, presidents of assemblies, and executive boards of municipalities were invited to this meeting.⁹⁸⁴² This discussion and instruction to implement level two were conveyed to SDS structures at a municipal level.⁹⁸⁴³

The Chamber notes that Mladenović testified that communications with Pale were non-existent, however, it does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard. In reaching this conclusion the Chamber notes multiple contradictions and extreme evasiveness in Mladenović’s evidence. More specifically Mladenović testified that while communication was non-existent they did receive some communication including orders and warnings from the Accused to adhere to the Geneva Conventions. Radojica Mladenović, T. 36612 (4 April 2013).

Vučurević stated that he does not remember any reference made by the Accused to the Variant A/B Instructions. 3023. The Accused called for the “second level” to be introduced and to “intensify the functioning of the government at any cost and on every single millimetre of our territory”.⁹⁸⁴⁴ (#“to intensify the functioning of the government...” not to take-it-over from somebody else!#) At this meeting, the President said that they needed to be wise and united “in order to take the last drop of the power into our hands, in a humane way of course, carry it out in a humane way, a just way towards both Muslims and Croats who live there, that is particularly important, that there would be no fleeing from our areas”.⁹⁸⁴⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! The prevention of fleeing from the Serb territories, an order given during the confidential meeting, before the war, when it was believed that there wouldn’t be any war because of advancement of the Conference and preparation of the Agreement is a REBUTTAL of all the allegations about “ethnic cleansing” or a homogeneous Serb republic, or any aspect of the Joint Criminal Enterprise! That was February 14, 1992, and five weeks later the Lisbon Agreement had been reached. Again, other measures had been designed not to “take-over”, but to exercise, intensify the functioning of the governmental organs!) The Accused in this regard noted that “our image with foreign monitors” had to change and if Bosnian Serbs defended themselves too aggressively they would “lose an awful lot of points”.⁹⁸⁴⁶ (#This kind of a merging and associating two or more different sentences, in order to create a new meaning is not permissible in any legal system. The two elements, a) a humane treatment of the population and prevention of fleeing – has nothing to do with the b) international monitors and the Serb international image. That pertained to c) an armed skirmishes, a way of defense, in terms not to have it “too aggressive”#! #This Judgment rather looks like a very bad indictment, than a judgment#!) The President said that “stage number two should also be converted, the one we’ve talked about, the one you have [...] in order to have authorities in the field functioning, that a bird cannot fly over really.”⁹⁸⁴⁷ (In the situation of the war in neighbouring Croatia, and an imminent war and emergency state in BiH, this was a #law obligation to control what was going on in the territory#. The President appeal to have the authorities function properly and thoroughly can not be taken against him, but only as an exculpatory element!)

3024. At this session, the Accused spoke about the Bosnian Serb strategic objectives.⁹⁸⁴⁸ (“This session” was held on 14 February 1992, therefore exactly three months prior to the 16th Assembly session in Banja Luka, when the new “Six strategic objectives” had been presented to the Assembly. How come the Chamber didn’t differentiate these strategic objectives aimed for a peace times, from those formulated after the war had been waged against the Serb people? When a war appears, many strategic objectives must be altered, and in a negotiations there are needed higher guarantees. But this Cour didnte understand, and didn’t take into account the objective situation of a war, nor had any respect, not even a knowledge, for a military provisions, and the local judicial system!) It was also noted the importance of international opinion and sympathy and that they should not be the aggressors, and stated that they “seek nothing that belongs to somebody else” (#EXCULPATORY#, and a paraphrase of the 10th Comendment of God, and the President kept advocating the modesty in the territorial claims throughout the crisis!) and that they should defend what was theirs but not “in an aggressive way, in a combat way” but defend it with firm conviction that their rights had been repeatedly violated and that they would be dominated in a unitary BiH.⁹⁸⁴⁹ (#All EXCULPATORY#! minimal use of force, only to the extent necessary to defend!) In contrast the aCCUSED also stated that he and the Serbs wanted to “let everything go to fucking hell and that we take the express way” but that they needed to find a balance between power and tactfulness in order to achieve their goal.⁹⁸⁵⁰ (#The two has nothing to do in common. The “hell” had been mentioned in another talks and context, and was a resignatory reaction of the President because of failure of the talks, while the “balance” was mentioned on 14 February 1992, as an endeavour of the President to pursue a moderate way of the political fight, since all of it was before the war!#) For example he noted that for international political reasons they could not organise their assembly “without a major provocation” and that they knew exactly where they were heading.⁹⁸⁵¹

3025. The Accused emphasised that he, Koljević and Krajišnik were of the opinion that “it would be more important to gain the real situation, the factual situation on the ground” for the purposes of international negotiations.⁹⁸⁵² The Accused also emphasised that they would have a right to “introduce the stage number two in functioning of your areas and, relying on your own forces, to absolutely defend yourselves from the independent BiH”.⁹⁸⁵³ He also explained that according to their “scheme” there would be a municipal board and a local board structure so that not “a single Serbian house should be left without contacts with the party”.⁹⁸⁵⁴ The Accused explained that they had their “moves ready”, that the deputies knew about it and that whenever the Bosnian Muslims did something foolish they would “disclose our next move, which is ten times more powerful than theirs”.⁹⁸⁵⁵ (#MIXING UP TIME FRAMES AND CONTEXTS#! #Now it is clear how damaging for the Defence is the practice of mixing up the time frames: what happens when this speech from 14 February 1992, before the war, and in a situation looking like a peaceful outcome is presented as a speech from the war times. This very same day there was on schedule a new round of talks with Lord Carrington and AMbassador Cutileiro, Secretary Vance and others, with the aim to finalise the Agreement, which was reached a month later. Therefore, no objectives, or plans, or factual situations pertained to a war events and outcomes, but strictly to a political ones. And #this fact changes all of the meanings suggested in this paragraph of the Judgme#nt. There was nothing criminal or forbidden in this words, because all of it belong to a legitimate defensive conduct and caution achieved by a recommendable political means!)

3026. Mladenović at this meeting spoke on behalf of the Bosnian Serb Executive Committee of Foča and reported that “we did everything that the centre had requested us to do, and considering the instructions we received in this field when setting up the Serbian Assembly and Executive Committee”.⁹⁸⁵⁶ Mladenović continued by saying that “we wish to finally round up the Serbian territory of Foča Municipality” within the SAO of Herzegovina and that he found it necessary to “establish Serbian municipalities regardless of the borders of existing municipalities”.⁹⁸⁵⁷ (#TWO MUNICIPALITIES – PEACE#! Is there any more markant proof that the Serb side didn’t have any plan that would be damaging for the legitimate Muslim or Croat interests? Foundation of the new municipalities, or merging the existing ones, or other changes of statuses of the settled places – was regulated and guaranteed by the Constitution and laws. This wasn’t opposed even by this court. To form your own municipalities composed of the settlements inhabited by the same community is an isolationist and #defensive policy, rather than an expansionistic strategy that pretended to take other's territories or jeopardise other's rights. That was a reaction which had a meaning: # we do not want to participate in your new (Islamic) political and judicial system, but you are free to do whatever you wanted."# Is the Muslim side opted for an Islamic fundamentalism and this kind of system, and the Croats wanted to leave Yugoslavia under any cost, the Serbs were entitled to stay in Yugoslavia as Northern Ireland stayed in GB, or West Virginia in the US Union, or at least to get their own high autonomy in BiH, WHICH HAD BEEN ENVISAGED AT THE ICFY# and accepted by Mr. Izetbegovic in 1991!. No criminal plan was needed for these objectives. It was the most rationale solution, although not the best for the Serbs!)

3027. Following the activation by the Accused of the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions, the Chamber recalls that, for example, on 24 February 1992 the SDS Municipal Board in Bratunac discussed the implementation of this second level.⁹⁸⁵⁸ On 2 March 1992, the SDS Municipal Board of Foča sent a letter addressed to the office of the President of the SDS Crisis Staff in Sarajevo indicating that they were facing pressure in Foča but they were "ready to carry out any order".⁹⁸⁵⁹ The Chamber also recalls that the Serbian Municipality of Zvornik was proclaimed on 15 March 1992 and decided to join the SAO Majeвица-Semberija.⁹⁸⁶⁰ On 13 March 1992, the President of the Executive Board of the SDS required all SDS Municipal Board to assess the possibility of establishing Serbian municipalities and the projected territory that would become part of these Serbian municipalities.⁹⁸⁶¹

e. (ALL LEGAL AND OBLIGATORY#!) Activation of Crisis Staffs and other structures

(The entire section of the activities and regulation of the political life in municipalities is senseless, because the laws and constitutions of the SFRY and BiH hadn't been even consulted, let alone analysed. Let us see what is said in the BH Constitution, D1262, p.90:

Article 273.

In time of war or in the case of an immediate threat of war a presidency of the municipal assembly shall be formed, which shall decide questions within the competence of the assembly if it is impossible for the assembly to meet. The composition of the presidency shall be established by law.

The presidency is obligated, as soon as the assembly is able to meet, to present for confirmation by the assembly those decisions which it has adopted and which are within the competence of the municipal assembly.

let see other competences of municipalities, particularly in the domain of defence, D1262, p.89

Article 269.

Within the assembly of a municipality, a council for national defense shall be formed, whose composition and competence shall be regulated by law.

Therefore, many defence matters had been within the municipal competences, the president of municipality was ex officio president of such a council and the supreme commander of the municipal Territorial Defence units! See further, D1262, p. 91

⁹⁸⁶¹ D1187 (Letter from SDS Executive Board to all SDS Municipal Boards, 13 March 1992).

Article 277.

In a city which has more than one municipality, the municipalities must associate to form an urban unit, which is a special socio-political unit to which the municipalities, in their common interest, entrust certain rights and duties. Certain tasks from the competence of the Republic may be transferred to this unit.

Article 278.

A regional or urban unit shall have statutes which are adopted by the assembly of the unit with the prior agreement of the assembly of the combined municipalities.

The statutes of a regional or urban unit shall establish the rights and duties of the unit, the manner in which these rights and duties are fulfilled, the way in which funds for financing them are associated, the organization of the unit's bodies, and other issues of importance for fulfilling the rights and duties of the unit.

The plans for defence were also #obligatory, specified in the Law of Defence,# and obligatory for all municipalities, local communes, companies and even political and cultural organisations, a political parties at the first place!

3028. On 4 April 1992, the Accused, as President of the SNB, issued an announcement that the Crisis Staffs should be activated.⁹⁸⁶² (Why it was not sufficient to the Chamber, which recognised the reasons bellow – to dismiss the charges for this segment? Was it an unprovoked, unnecessary, senseless move, or there was a reason? It was well know that Mr. Izetbegovic and the Muslim-Croat part of the BH Presidency unauthorised by the Serb members of the Presidency proclaimed the general mobilisation of the Police, reserve police and Territorial Defence. The only target of such a mobilisation was the Serb people in BiH, to which there was declared a war. When a Crisis Staffs, or the War Presidencies of municipalities should be activated if not then? That was a legal obligation, and the only way to maintain at least a minimum of law and order!) The Accused, made an announcement that the “rump” presidency of BiH, operating without any Serbs, issued highly irresponsible and illegal instructions to raise the TO, civilian protection, and reserve police and that by doing so, the “rump” Presidency acknowledged the collapse of the constitutional and legal order and instigated chaos, violence, and civil war.⁹⁸⁶³ He called upon the population to disregard these moves by the BiH Presidency and ordered that Crisis Staffs and Serb TO be activated in response to Bosnian Muslim mobilisation in specified areas with the purpose of maintaining peace, order, and safety of civilians of all nationalities.⁹⁸⁶⁴ (Exactly as that!!! A #“highly irresponsible and illegal instructions”# while expecting an international recognition. How possibly the international community recognised such a country that entered such a chaos and a state of war?)

See para. 141. Šojić testified that Crisis Staffs were only established following the example of the SDA and HDZ and not pursuant to any instructions and that they were formed spontaneously at the initiative of local authorities and they were not controlled at the republican level. Dragan Šojić, T. 31752-31754 (19 December 2012). However, the Chamber notes that the evidence of Šojić was marked by evasiveness, contradictions, and indicators that he was trying to mislead the Chamber. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard.

Subotić stated that TO units were also “self-organised” and nobody had an overview of how many local TO units had been formed and they were not under anyone’s command until the VRS was formed. Subotić also stated that the Accused did not have effective command and control over the TO in the period from 1 April to 12 May 1992. D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), paras. 52–54, 57–59, 68, 118; Bogdan Subotić, T. 40125–40126 (20 June 2013). However, the Chamber notes that the evidence of Subotić was marked by evasiveness, contradictions, and indicators of partisanship and bias. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard. For further discussion on the Accused’s involvement with mobilisation of the TO, see Section IV.A.3.iii: Authority over military and police forces acting in BiH.

3029. On 26 April 1992, Đerić on behalf of the Bosnian Serb Government issued instructions for the work of Crisis Staffs in the SerBiH.⁹⁸⁶⁵ (So what? It was the #Governmental duty#!) These instructions provided that in wartime conditions the Crisis Staffs would take over “all the prerogatives and functions of the municipal assemblies” when they were not in a position to meet.⁹⁸⁶⁶ (See the provisions in the Constitution of BiH, articles 269 and 273: Article 269.

Within the assembly of a municipality, a council for national defense shall be formed, whose composition and competence shall be regulated by law.

Therefore, all the municipalities had their own competences in the defence too! That is why the Defence saw the war as a series of the municipal wars, which broke out in a different times and on a different incentives and incidents! If the Serb side had any of the alleged criminal enterprises, why would they wait sometimes two months from the beginning of the war in Sarajevo to start the war in more than a half of the country?! The Chamber recalls that the 26 April 1992 instructions provided that the Crisis Staffs “shall coordinate governmental functions for the purpose of the defence of territory, safety of the population and its property, establishment of authority and organisation of all other aspects of life and work”.⁹⁸⁶⁷ (Not a single illegal instruction, and all of them strictly defensive!) They also provided that the Crisis Staff was to create conditions to allow the municipal executive board to exercise power.⁹⁸⁶⁸ The Crisis Staffs were also required to work in accordance with the Constitution, law and decisions of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the Bosnian Serb Government and the Presidency.⁹⁸⁶⁹ (All of it was #provided for by the Constitution of BiH and SFRY, see:

Article 301.

The obligation of the municipality to establish certain bodies for supervising the enforcement of laws and other ordinances, or administrative bodies for the performance of other tasks of general interest to the Republic which have been transferred to the competence of municipal bodies, may be prescribed by law.

Article 302.

Republic-level bodies which carry out tasks of administrative supervision or inspection may, in accordance with the law, carry out these tasks within the entire territory of the Republic in order to monitor the enforcement of laws, preservation of legality and protection of the rights of working people, organizations of associated labor, self-management communities of interest and other self-management organizations and units.

⁹⁸⁶⁷ See para. 143. P2717 (SerBiH Government instructions for Crisis Staffs, 26 April 1992), para. 3. In these instructions, the Bosnian Serb Government mandated that all Crisis Staffs include the commander of the TO Staff. P2717 (SerBiH Government instructions for Crisis Staffs, 26 April 1992), para. 2. The instructions also stated that the Crisis Staffs were to “create all the conditions for the life and work of members of the JNA”. P2717 (SerBiH Government instructions for Crisis Staffs, 26 April 1992), para. 8.

3031. The Accused gave explicit instructions on how the Crisis Staffs and the TO would be structured, including who would be the highest ranking officials in these structures namely the presidents of municipalities and executive boards.⁹⁸⁷² (The President only interpreted the law, according to which the president of municipality is ex officio a president of the Committee for Defence, and a Supreme Commander of the municipal forces, while the commanders of units were to be a professional officers, while a president of the Executive Board was ex officio a commander of the Civil Protection in municipality!) For example at a meeting of the SNB on 27 April 1992, it was concluded that “comprehensive instructions for crisis staffs should be drafted in which the manner of political work on the ground and organisation of the functioning authorities will be presented”.⁹⁸⁷³ The SNB also concluded that material and equipment would be provided for the defence of the SerBiH and that the Crisis Staffs needed to inform the government about developments.⁹⁸⁷⁴ (Just see the Constitution and laws!) The President emphasised that these steps were for defensive purposes and that peace was in their interests and would benefit them politically.⁹⁸⁷⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#!) He also stressed that the Bosnian Muslims did not have the forces required to take-over the extensive territory held by Bosnian Serbs and these “Serbian areas” would never be incorporated in their state.⁹⁸⁷⁶ (#A LEGAL AND LEGITIMATE ATTITUDE#! The changes of the common state they that the Muslims envisaged didn’t have the Serb consent, and that didn’t depend on any leader, but on the entire Serb people! Had the Serbian people wanted to accept this new regime founded on Islam, no Serb leader would be able to prevent it, or to make the people to oppose it!)

3032. Crisis Staffs operated to some extent independently in each municipality, but ultimately they had direct contact with the Presidency and followed the SDS party line.⁹⁸⁷⁷ For example in Hadžići, the Crisis Staff President, Ratko Radić had a very good relationship with the President—he often visited Pale and got instructions from the President.⁹⁸⁷⁸ The Chamber also recalls that all important decisions of the SDS Main Board that needed to be implemented in Sokolac were sent to the SDS Municipal Board of Sokolac and the Crisis Staff was informed of these decisions.⁹⁸⁷⁹ The Chamber also recalls that the Rogatica Crisis Staff for example had direct, oral and written contact with the Presidency and ministries of the SerBiH, the Government, the army, and the police.⁹⁸⁸⁰ (The #SDS political Party ceased it’s regular functions in April 1992#, since the Government wanted it. That state of the frozen activity remained on power until February 1993. But, since the SDS won the elections in 1990, all the authorities remained in offices until the 1996 elections, and therefore there couldn’t be any “take over” in municipalities during the war. The SDS proposed that all the three ethnic communities form their municipalities, and the SDS exercised control over only the Serb municipalities, but after the Muslim side rejected the peaceful solution and started the war in different municipalities at different times, and then there was inevitable to control entire municipalities!)

⁹⁸⁷³ D406 (Minutes of meeting of SNB and SerBiH Government, 27 April 1992), p. 2. See para. 142. Subotić stated that Crisis Staffs were operating independently and that this decision related to the provision of instructions relating to respect for international humanitarian law and the laws and customs of war. D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), para. 270. The Chamber does not find Subotić’s characterisation of this conclusion to be reliable. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber refers to its credibility assessment in fn. 9869.

The Chamber notes however, that Radić sometimes would push ideas by exaggerating the extent to which the Accused had agreed to them. Tihomir Glavaš, T. 11796 (14 February 2011), T. 11949 (16 February 2011). The Chamber places no weight on Glavaš’s impression that the Accused left the municipalities of Ilidža and Hadžići to care for themselves.

⁹⁸⁸⁰ See para. 957.

3033. Similarly in Sanski Most, policy formulated by the SDS leadership at the republican level would come down to the municipal Crisis Staff to implement.⁹⁸⁸¹ The Sanski Most Crisis Staff was directly subordinated to the ARK Crisis Staff, which was subordinated to the Bosnian Serb leadership, including the Accused.⁹⁸⁸² (#A “protected lies”#! Wrong as majority of the testimonies of the protected witnesses. The executive branch of authorities, to which belong the Government and Presidency, controlled the execution of the legal acts made by the Assembly, or the Government and the Presidency from their competences! All legal and regulated! The only matter that was not regulated was testimonies of the protected witnesses, because there was no any obstacle to their enormous lies! A worse was only more that a hundred “testimonies” without witness and any cross examination!) The Chamber notes that Vlado Vrkeš, the deputy president of the Crisis Staff, was in charge of implementing policies from the Republic level⁹⁸⁸³ and was close to the President.⁹⁸⁸⁴ In April 1992, Kuprešanin said in an intercepted conversation to General Kukanjac that they were waiting for the Accused to return from Europe to tell them what to do next and “when [the President] comes whatever he tells us we will do. He is now for us the supreme commander and we have no other commander”.⁹⁸⁸⁵

(That happened within the numerous disputes between the SDS and the JNA, which wanted to transport so many equipment back to Yugoslavia. It was payed by the common Serb-Croat-Muslim money, but the Muslims and Croats didn't allowe the JNA to take anything from their areas, and the Serbs did the same! While the President was away for the political talks, the JNA was not protecting the Serbs ssufficiently, and Kupresanin objected that the JNA should protect all the peoples equally. General Kukanjac wanted to remove a rocket brigade from Banjaluka region, and Kupresanin reminded him that now there is a separate Yugoslavia, and used the President's absence for keeping the rocket brigade back! See: P987:

Milutin KUKANJAC:	What's up with you there, what are you scared about?
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	We are not scared, we are just taking preventive measures. We want, we want to co-operate with the army just in case and exchange opinions so we'd know what we will do together. Such moves don't exist I think, on the relation party president – Serb Republic of BH. We here in the Krajina are trying to get in touch with them but we are not managing I don't know why... and now we will ...
Milutin KUKANJAC:	You must, you must get in touch with them and they with you.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	Well, we must and now we are waiting for KARADŽIĆ to return from Europe and tell us what we are to do next. I personally think, general, that I won't do anything until he returns, when he comes whatever he tells us we will do. He is now for us the supreme commander and we have no other commander. The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia on the one side and the Serb people in the situation they are in, on the other. We have our commander, it is that man, we must obey him, you understand us, we understand you.
Milutin KUKANJAC:	Don't tell me, that brigade has to go to the territory of Bijeljina-Tuzla. Tuzla-(Budva?), the problem is with ... with this Ustasha near Brod up to Brčko they are attacking from all sides.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	Well, no, if that brigade gets going it will be captured from Dobojo to Tuzla. It will disappear.
Milutin KUKANJAC:	It can't be captured, how?
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	Nobody can guarantee that.

Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	OK, that's one thing. General, we have left most of the equipment, let me say something from my heart because we never talked about this ...
Milutin KUKANJAC:	Well you have much there, man.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	We have nothing here and in comparison with our enemies, how many enemies we have. Grahovo has been attacked, Kupres has been attacked, then ... Glamoč has been attacked, Krupa has been attacked, Sanski Most, Prijedor is to be attacked tonight, Drvar has been attacked, not Drvar but Derventa, Šamac has been attacked, he approached us, Modriča has been attacked...
Milutin KUKANJAC:	Well I know, I'm fighting with them everywhere.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	The hell you are fighting with them. I've tried to contact Sava JANKOVIĆ to create some sort of an operative body on corps level but we never managed.
Milutin KUKANJAC:	We are working for the same cause, but I'm afraid that, that someone might strip someone else of their rights.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	We won't strip you of your rights if you are working for the general well-being of all peoples.
Milutin KUKANJAC:	Well that's true as well. I don't know why you are complicating this now.
Vojislav KUPREŠANIN:	Only out of fear, we simply have no information. We speak to ADŽIĆ and we cannot get a reply, he speaks about everything indirectly, up in the clouds and refuses to get down to the earth. When we go to the Presidency it's the same. We simply do not exist as a region, as a territory, as a people.

(#Before the VRS, during JNA#! Therefore, in April 1992 the #JNA was equally concerned about the security of all the three communities, which Kupresanin didn't deny, but supported#. However, the JNA didn't take it's armament and equipment from the Muslim-Croat areas, because it was prevented by the party armies, but only from the Serb ones, which jeopardised the Serb population. Also it had been visible that the Minister for Defence of the Republic of Srpska still didn't have any authority, nor he could make an ordinary agreement, or a responsible answer, because of the supremacy of the JNA, which was respected only in the Serb areas! Such a partial and selective presentation of some sentences pulled out of context doesn't fell within a fair trial. "Only out of fear," said Kupresanin. What is not understandable here?)

3034. As found above, by early April 1992 the SNB was issuing instructions to, and receiving reports from, municipal Crisis Staffs and TOs.⁹⁸⁸⁶ On 28 April 1992, Branko Đerić and the Accused attended a meeting of the SNB where the reports on the work of Crisis Staffs and municipal organs of government were adopted. At this same meeting there was also discussion of the need to keep the Crisis Staffs more fully informed about developments and for the Crisis Staffs to also inform the Bosnian Serb Government about developments.⁹⁸⁸⁷ (So what? A regular duties of the Prime Minister and the President, no matter they were both the Serbs!)

3035. In this regard the Chamber found that the Bijeljina Crisis Staff kept the SDS Main Board informed of its activities.⁹⁸⁸⁸ (How many times the Defence has to point out that the SDS (Party) Crisis Staffs were different from the municipal Crisis Staffs? The former didn't have any prerogatives of authorities, while the later had all the municipal power in its hands until the municipal assemblies could gather again! By mixing up these two kinds of bodies there is an enormous misunderstanding of the documents that originate from one or the other body, all used against the Defence without any justification!) In addition the ⁹⁸⁸⁷ P2627 (Minutes of meeting SNB and SerBiH Government, 28 April 1992), p. 1. See also Dorothea Hanson, T. 14558 (9 June 2011). The Chamber notes that Hanson testified about the involvement and role of Crisis Staffs in take-overs and the arming of the population, connections between the Crisis Staffs and the military and police and detention of non-Serbs: However, the Chamber considers that these conclusions fall outside the scope of her expertise and will not rely on her evidence in this regard. Dorothea Hanson, T. 14563–14564, 14566–14567, 14577–14579, 14582 (9 June 2011).

⁹⁸⁸⁸ See para. 606. For example, see P2626 (Report of Bijeljina Crisis Staff, 1 April 1992) (in which the Bijeljina Crisis Staff reported to the SDS Main Board on the situation in the municipality).

Chief of the Bijeljina SJB reported to Mićo Stanišić on the situation in the municipality,⁹⁸⁸⁹ and an almost daily report system was operating between the Bijeljina CSB and the Bosnian Serb MUP.⁹⁸⁹⁰ Similarly the Chamber found that the Rogatica Crisis Staff had direct, oral, and written contact with the Presidency and ministries of the SerBiH, the Government, the army, and the police.⁹⁸⁹¹ For example, during negotiations in April and May 1992 between the Rogatica Crisis Staff and the Bosnian Muslim leadership regarding the demarcation of territory and division of power within the municipality, the SDS representatives said they would report to the Main Board of the SDS in Pale.⁹⁸⁹² The Chamber also found that in Sokolac, all important decisions of the SDS Main Board that needed to be implemented in Sokolac were sent to the SDS Municipal Board of Sokolac and the Crisis Staff was informed of these decisions.⁹⁸⁹³ (What does it mean? This is a regular communication between the different branches of authorities! Does it mean #that anything the Serbs did was a crim#e?)

3036. In addition Crisis Staffs were also established in SAOs, including the SAO Semberija and Majevisa, ARK, and SAO Birač.⁹⁸⁹⁴ The Chamber recalls that the ARK Crisis Staff was formally established on 5 May 1992 by a decision of the ARK Executive Council; however, it had been functioning since January 1992.⁹⁸⁹⁵ On 9 July 1992, the ARK Crisis Staff was renamed the ARK War Presidency.⁹⁸⁹⁶ (#All normal, legal and irrelevant for the case#!)

3037. The Chamber recalls its finding that the ARK Crisis Staff acted as an intermediary regional body between the republican-level authorities and the ARK Municipalities by coordinating the implementation of instructions sent by the republic-level authorities in the ARK Municipalities.⁹⁸⁹⁷ In addition, municipal Crisis Staff presidents in the ARK regularly gave reports to the ARK Crisis Staff with respect to events within their area of responsibility and received directives from the ARK Crisis Staff.⁹⁸⁹⁸ The Chamber also found that decisions and conclusions of the ARK Crisis Staff were binding on the ARK Municipalities and were implemented by the municipal Crisis Staffs.⁹⁸⁹⁹ (What is wrong with that? It is sufficient to take a superficial look at the Constitutions to find out that all of that numbered in this section was #provided for by the Constitution of BiH and Yugoslavia:#)

3038. On 11 June 1992, the ARK Crisis Staff issued a statement setting forth the composition of municipal Crisis Staffs/War Presidencies in the ARK and placing responsibility on these structures for leading the defence and establishing co-operation with organs in other municipalities and the command of armed units.⁹⁹⁰⁰ (Is there #anything wrong with “leading

The Chamber notes the evidence of Kezunović that, considering power cuts and continuous interruption in communication, he did not know whether the CSB from locations such as Bijeljina were able to deliver daily reports to the ministry. Dragan Kezunović, T. 15067–15069 (21 June 2011). However, considering the evidence presented and Kezunović's unsubstantiated speculation, the Chamber gives little weight to his evidence in this regard. Cvijetin Simić testified that because of the conflicts the whole area of Bijeljina did not have telephones working for several months and that it was cut off from the outside world until May 1992. Cvijetin Simić T. 35713 (20 March 2013). The Chamber finds that it stands in contradiction with accepted evidence that demonstrates that communication existed. Further, the Chamber found that Simić's evidence was marked by indicators which led to the conclusion that he withheld information from the Chamber, was evasive, and lacked sincerity. The Chamber shall therefore no rely on this portion of this evidence.

Article 252.

The right and duty of the peoples and national minorities and the working people and citizens of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina to protect and defend the liberty, independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and constitutionally established social order of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina are inviolable and inalienable.

So, “rights and duty” to participate in the defence...territorial integrity of SFR Yugoslavia” and these right and duty are inviolable and inalienable!

Article 256.

The municipality shall regulate and organize territorial defense and civil defense, organize and carry out preparations of the populace, economy, public agencies and government bodies, direct the preparations of organizations of associated labor, local authorities and other self-management organizations and units, ensure the accomplishment of other tasks of national defense as established by law, and in time of war lead general popular resistance on its territory. The municipality shall fulfill its rights and duties in the area of national defense in accordance with the constitution, laws, system of national defense and the defense plans of the federation and the Republic.

All the #municipal structures were obliged to prepare and lead general popular resistance on its territory#!#! The #Constitutions and laws equilised the civilians and soldiers, both were supposed to be combatants#. The municipalities had a great deal of autonomy in the matter of defence. It is a great responsibility of the Prosecution under the UN auspice, for not taking a minimal knowledge of the domestic judiciary pertaining to a national defence. The UN share this responsibility, and should annul and forbid this practice in future, not only for an international, but for an internal conflicts and civil wars such as this one. Either one of this conflicts are under the domestic judiciary. Also, it should have never been repeated that such a courts, dealing with the armed conflicts, judge and decide without a professional judges and prosecutors knowledgeable in military law.)

Article 257.

Within local authorities, working people and citizens shall organize themselves immediately and prepare to take part in resisting the aggressor and offering protection and rescue from military action, and to carry out other tasks of defending the country, in accordance with the constitution, laws and municipal statutes.

”...citizens shall organize themselves immediately and prepare to take part in resisting...”

Article 259.

Socio-political organizations and other social organizations shall participate in drawing up and coordinating plans and preparatory measures for defense, shall carry out preparations for their own functioning in wartime, shall initiate and direct the activities of their members and other working people and citizens in defending the country.

Professional and other associations of citizens shall participate in the preparations for general national defense and shall equip their members to carry out tasks in defense of the country.

How the #“Variant A/B looks like now#? As an obligation of the SDS, although this paper was not a political, but rather professional document pertaining to defence, created by a people knowledgeable of the defence regulations. D. Kapetina confirmed it in his testimony! Particularly the para 260 is important:

Article 260.

Territorial defense in the Republic shall be the broadest form of armed, organized, general popular resistance, and an integral part of the unified armed forces of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Territorial defense shall be organized in the Republic and municipalities as a unified system. and para 253, which provides for a punishable activities in disturbing or preventing participation in defence:

Article 253.

No one has the right to recognize or sign any capitulation, or to accept or recognize the occupation of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina or any part of it. No one has the right to prevent the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina from fighting against an enemy who has attacked the country. Such acts are unconstitutional and shall be punished as treason.

Treason is the most serious crime against the people and shall be punished as a serious criminal act.

As envisaged in para 252 of the Law of Defence above, a defence of Yugoslavia was #obligatory due to both Yugoslav and BiH Constitutions and laws#!

In addition members of the ARK Crisis Staff were regularly briefed about military developments.⁹⁹⁰¹ The ARK Crisis Staff was also involved in organising contact with Pale to discuss defining territory.⁹⁹⁰² The Chamber also recalls its findings with respect to the involvement of the ARK Crisis Staff in the dismissal and movement of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from ARK municipalities and the implementation of ARK Crisis Staff policy at a municipal level.⁹⁹⁰³ For example, the ARK Crisis Staff issued a decision that all leading positions, involving access to information, protection of public property and other positions of importance for the functioning of the economy could be occupied exclusively by persons of Serb nationality.⁹⁹⁰⁴

3039. On 29 May 1992, the ARK Crisis Staff concluded that all Muslims and Croats would be able to move out of the ARK on the condition that Serbs living outside the SAOs be allowed to move into SerBiH and the ARK.⁹⁹⁰⁵ This would help carry out the exchange of population or resettlement of people in an organised manner.⁹⁹⁰⁶ The ARK Crisis Staff also decided to oppose the forceful movement of population and to prevent any such attempts.⁹⁹⁰⁷ However, the Chamber finds that the wording of this conclusion was completely at odds with the forcible nature of the movement of the non-Serb population from municipalities in the ARK.⁹⁹⁰⁸ (This was rather a precondition and limitation of the right and possibility to leave the ARK, conditioned by a reciprocal approval of the Serb movement into ARK. The wording was not “at odds” with anything, because there is an overwhelming evidence that these #obstacles for leaving# the ARK were numerous, such as many receipts and confirmation about payments of all financial obligations, such as the electricity bills, housing bills, taxes, and other costs, plus the spenditure for tharnsport... whoever wanted to stay in ARK could have not obtain some of these papers, or the for tickets, and wouldn't be allowed to leave! There is many, many evidences of that. And by that, all stories about an "ethnic cleansing" as a policy of the Republic of Srpska are excluded and senseless!).

Kovačević stated that the leadership in Pale had no influence on decisions of the ARK. The Chamber found that Kovačević's evidence was marked by contradictions, evasiveness and indicators of insincerity which undermined the reliability of his evidence in this regard.

3040. After receiving the Bosnian Serb government instructions on the work of the Crisis Staffs, the Bosanski Novi Crisis Staff re-organised itself on 20 May 1992 to "take over the prerogatives and functions" of the Municipal Assembly.⁹⁹⁰⁹ (Due to the Constitution and laws!) Similarly on 5 June 1992, the Novo Sarajevo Crisis Staff wrote to the President of the SerBiH Presidency and stated: "The Crisis Staff has performed the function of Municipal Assembly in war conditions."⁹⁹¹⁰ (Legally obligatory and mandatory!) The letter also indicated that the Crisis Staff co-ordinated and organised a variety of municipal services, including accommodation for "all refugees from the occupied territory and people who were left homeless", mobilisation, and accommodation of fighters from other areas.⁹⁹¹¹ (Everything that a municipal assembly was supposed to do, now was an obligation of a crisis staffs or war presidencies! Why it was numbered here as if it was a crime and corroborated a findigns of a criminal conduct of the President and the Serb authorities?)

3041. From 1993 onwards, when municipal authorities acted autonomously and failed to follow regulations, these issues were discussed and addressed by the Bosnian Serb Government.⁹⁹¹² The Bosnian Serb Government was also conscious of controlling the parallel organs of government at a municipal level to ensure that the Bosnian Serb Government was the only authorised executive organ in RS.⁹⁹¹³ (What does it mean? Who else would be "the only authorised executive organ in RS?")

3042. In 1994, the President reminded the Bosnian Serb Assembly about the Variant A/B Instructions, and said "remember how we used to work before the war. Not everything was as clear as day in the municipalities where we were majority and in those where we were minority. Do you remember the Instruction A and instruction B? We had Crisis Staffs, and it was clear that they were the authority".⁹⁹¹⁴ In 1995, the President recalled that pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions in areas where the Bosnian Serbs were a majority they controlled everything at a municipal level and that when they were in a minority they "set up secret government, municipal boards, municipal assemblies, presidents of executive boards" and also established military units.⁹⁹¹⁵ The President recalled that the JNA had been involved in the distribution of weapons to Serbian areas and that the SDS had "organised the people and created the army" and that with the help of the police "liberated and created the space", sometimes with the help of the JNA.⁹⁹¹⁶ (Any Chamber that would take a look of the Constitution, particularly para 259)

f. War Presidencies / War Commissions

3043. At a joint session of the SNB and the Bosnian Serb Government, on 22 April 1992, it was concluded that the Government was to appoint a war presidency and war executive boards in all municipalities where executive boards “are not functioning”.⁹⁹¹⁷ (#Exactly as provided for in the Constitution#. These temporary bodies were to be composed by the most prominent and most responsible officials of the existing authorities ex officio, and could be expanded permanently or from time to time, according to the needs of the population on the given territories. Immediately after the conditions for a regular meetings is established, the temporary emergency bodies had to submit all the decisions made during the period of emergency to the assembly to be considered and passed, or denied!) On 23 May 1992, the Bosnian Serb Government decided to abolish the Crisis Staffs.⁹⁹¹⁸ The Chamber recalls that the Bosnian Serb Government concluded that “the conditions for functioning of the regular governing organs should be created as soon as possible” and War Presidencies established in municipalities.⁹⁹¹⁹ After the Crisis Staffs were disbanded, they were transformed into War Presidencies or War Commissions.⁹⁹²⁰ (#All in an accord of the laws and Constitution of BiH#, D1262, see para. 269:

Article 269.

Within the assembly of a municipality, a council for national defense shall be formed, whose composition and competence shall be regulated by law.

3044. On 31 May 1992, the Presidency issued a decision constituting War Presidencies and provided for the structure of these bodies including who would be members, including a republican commissioner.⁹⁹²¹ (#All legal and commendable#!) The Chamber further recalls that the republican commissioner, who would be a member of the War Presidencies, was to be appointed by the SerBiH Presidency and have the “right and duty [...] to ensure permanent coordination and implementation of the policies and measures that are established and adopted by the republican state organs and the Main Staff of the [VRS]”.⁹⁹²²

3045. This decision also stated that the War Presidency “shall organise, coordinate and adjust activities for the defence of the Serbian people and the establishment of legal organs of authority in the municipality”; “shall perform all the functions of the assembly and the executive organ until there is a possibility for these organs to convene and work”; and “shall create and secure conditions for the work of military organs and units on the defence of the own and their actions were purely defensive). The Chamber refers to its credibility assessment in fn. 9869 in concluding that it does not find Subotić’s evidence to be reliable in this regard.

3047. The Chamber recalls that on 10 June 1992, the Presidency issued a decision establishing War Commissions in SerBiH municipalities “which are either affected by war or are facing imminent threat of war”.⁹⁹²⁷ These War Commissions were to supersede Crisis Staffs and War Presidencies.⁹⁹²⁸ The War Commissions were tasked with maintaining very close co-operation with the legal authorities, to convey directives issued by the War Presidency of the Republic, to convey information about problems and the work of the municipal bodies and to co-operate with the authorities to create military organs and units.⁹⁹²⁹ The Chamber notes for example that War Presidencies existed at least in Bijeljina, Vogošća, Brčko, Ključ, Zvornik, Sanski Most, Ilidža, Hadžići, and Prijedor.⁹⁹³⁰ War Commissions existed at least in Foča, Pale, Zvornik, Vlasenica, Bratunac, Novo Sarajevo, Vogošća, and Ilidža.⁹⁹³¹ (All the comments for the findings in this section are the same: #those who assisted the Chamber in assembling this Judgement made a very bad service to the Chamber, to the Tribunal and to the United Nations, because they criminalised the most regular activities of the organs, institutions and their officials#! 3049. On 17 December 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly declared that the decision on forming War Commissions ceased to be valid.⁹⁹⁴⁰

3050. In November 1994, the President spoke about introducing a state of war, and stressed that this did not mean that military rule would be introduced; rather, civilian powers would be concentrated and implemented through operational bodies in the municipalities, thereby “ensuring more effective functioning of the state”.⁹⁹⁴¹ (#A legal and commendable approach!#)

g. Take-over of power in the Municipalities THE NEW COMMENTS TO THIS PAGE, GIVEN TO PETER!

3051. (#Before the war, within the Conference#, #Time-frame and context#!) As mentioned above, in March 1992 the Accused advocated that Bosnian Serbs take power into their own hands in Bosnian Serb claimed territories and that the structure of BiH would depend on the conditions they could establish on the ground.⁹⁹⁴² (That was said in the Serb Assembly session on 18 March 1992, just after the negotiating team led by the President returned from the Carrington-Cutileiro talks, at which the #Lisbon Agreement had been appointed and agreed#, except the maps. So, after this Agreement, there was an obligation of the legal Serb authorities to establish an efficient authorities in the Serb territories, so that there doesn't appear any disorder! If it stayed as it is presented, out of the context, it could be seen as if the President advised something illegal and violent. However, that was a necessary measure, because it had already been published that the Constitutional Principles for a future BiH had been agreed, and that there was going to be three republics within Bosnia. At a previous meeting, on 14 February 1992, after the first accord on the transformation of BiH in the three states, the President advised the responsible official to return to their municipalities, and to take care that “there will not be any fleeing from the Serb areas”, see P12, p.1:

RD: ... I would like to greet you and apologize for falling behind the schedule; as you know the Party President was busy today with these talks, so that is why we are being a bit late. Apart from the members of the Main Board and the So, R[ajko] D[ukic] the President of the Executive boards of the SDS explained why the meeteng was late, because of the talks (wirh Amb. Cutileiro) the same exhibit and page: would talk today about particular topical issues. First of all, the Party President would inform you on the current political situation, and as a part of it, on these talks in relation to the conference, then, we would make agreements related to the Assembly, to specific activities related to the realization of the Assembly decision ... government and about establishing of the Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina, finally. We shall also say something Mr. Dukic announced that there will be “established the Serbian Bosnia and Hercegovina, finally” since the SerBiH had been proclaimed on 9 January, it has to be explained why the same Republic was going to be “established, finally”. Because the mere proclamation didn’t mean that SerBiH was established and enacted, but only declared. Just after the Agreement reached on 18 March, the establishment started, by preparing the state organs. This was the context for everything that had been said. Further:, P12, p. 5: the factual situation on the ground. We went that far, in our last conversation, we said to them that we were not making anything up, like we were not proposing anything new at all. That the situation is as it is, that the same is happening in Bosnia and Herzegovina what was happening in Yugoslavia. That the main ..., the main attitude towards Yugoslavia during this entire interfering of the European Community was that the Serbs were right, but the factual situation was so and so. Now we are in the position to say – yes, maybe the Muslims are right, but the factual situation is so and so, although they are not right. The factual situation is so and so, now it is so, now it’s up Here is an President’s report to the Serb Assembly #about what was agreed at the Conference, and here is a proof of the provenance of the President’s sentence pertaining to a “Factual State”#. That was what the European Community used to say to the Serbs, while destroying Yugoslavia: The Serbs are right taking into account the law and Constitution, and international agreements, especially the Helsinki agreement on respect of the state borders. But in spite of being right, the Serbs have to understand that here are some new factual situatiin. Se, the Serb repeating this sentence was a sort of “tith for thet” to the EC. Se further: to us. It’s up to each individual to do his part of the job. We shall also talk about that today, but I have to say that we must be wise, unified, dedicated in order to take the last drop of the power into our hands, in a humane way of course, carry it out in a humane way, a just way towards both Muslims and Croats who live there, that is particularly important, that there would be no fleeing from our areas. But also, that a bird cannot come in without your, : The President emphasised that their right to self-determination “will happen according to the actual conditions which are up to you to create”.⁹⁹⁴³ (Certainly, on the basis of the just reached Lisbon Agreement. A context is crucial for an accurate understanding and judging the facts!) In this regard the Accused spoke about when to “reveal our next move” and that it “will all be happening in a flash and the set up of the de facto situation based on our documents”.⁹⁹⁴⁴ He explained that there would be “no signing before we have achieved what we want, and you all know our strategic plans. [...] The ultimate strategic goal must still remain a secret”.⁹⁹⁴⁵ (That was #before the war#, and assuming that there was not going to be a war, but the Serbs had their “strategic plans”, as any other community did!) The President said they did not “plan to attack anybody but our plan is to defend ourselves and the army is at our disposal for that purpose”; they had the “right to use the army for the final countdown and for the final establishment of authority” and that if a border was established unjustly they would “establish a just border”.⁹⁹⁴⁶ (According to the Constitution, the Army was obliged to protect the “territorial integrity” of Yugoslavia once it became jeopardized, without waiting for any order. The Constitution was an order! To defend oneself was and still is an undisputable right!)

3052. The President also warned against the perception that Bosnian Serbs were taking “other people’s land through war” and that they should not mention war, but establish their authority and defend that and state that they did not plan to attack anybody.⁹⁹⁴⁷ The President spoke about “[p]eace at any cost, wherever it is possible”.⁹⁹⁴⁸ (Entirely #EXCULPATORY#!!!) The President stated that they did not need war, and they could accomplish what they wanted by political means but once they had achieved their goals if they were attacked they would defend themselves, including against genocide, and had “the right to use the army for the final countdown and for the final establishment of authority”.⁹⁹⁴⁹ (All of it is #the eternal right of people!#)

3053. On 15 April 1992, the President attended a meeting of the SNB in which it was proposed that a state of imminent threat of war be declared.⁹⁹⁵⁰ (The #Muslim-Croat side had already been fighting the Serbs since 25 March#, with the well known massacre in Sijekovac village on 26 March, with the attacks in Kupres and Bijeljina on 31 March through 2 April. The President and the Serb leadership didn’t want to exaggerate by declaring a state of war, but only a threat of war.) The imminent threat of war was declared on 15 April 1992.⁹⁹⁵¹ On 24 April 1992, the SNB met with the Bosnian Serb Government and adopted a decision to form a TO Staff composed of current municipal TO commanders with the President responsible for its realisation.⁹⁹⁵² (Until 6 April 1992 there was a common TO, as a part of the unique Armed Forces of the SFRY, but on 6 April the Muslim-Croat part of Presidency fired Gen. Vukosavljevic (a Serb) and re-formed a new TO without Serbs. Two weeks later the Serb leadership re-organised the Territorial Defence, which existed due to the Constitution(s) of SFRY and of BiH, and could not be dissolved, see the Constitution of BiH D1262, para 260)

Territorial defense shall be organized in the Republic and municipalities as a unified system.

violated the Constitution.) In addition, it was decided to compile instructions on the use of national symbols and to procure uniforms and insignia for the TO.⁹⁹⁵³ At this meeting it was concluded that a group of lawyers would be tasked with preparing the basic laws in order to set up a legal system for the SerBiH.⁹⁹⁵⁴ On 17 April 1992, the President issued a decision that all Serb employees who had been appointed from an SDS list be withdrawn from their positions in bodies and organisations of the “former Republic of BiH” and the City of Sarajevo.⁹⁹⁵⁵ This decision also provided that all these employees be appointed to bodies and organisations in the SerBiH.⁹⁹⁵⁶

3054. While the President called on leaders at the Bosnian Serb Assembly to “do whatever is necessary on the ground to establish the de facto situation” he also stated that there should be “full respect for citizens of other nationalities” and that “no one must be harmed, regardless of their religion, nation”.⁹⁹⁵⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The President also acknowledged that there would probably be resettlement but that “none of it should occur under pressure”.⁹⁹⁵⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!) When the SerBiH was proclaimed, this proclamation provided that the constitution of this entity would “guarantee the full equality of peoples and citizens before the law and their full protection against any form of discrimination”.⁹⁹⁵⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) Krajišnik had also spoken previously about creating a state which would be the home for the entire Serbian people and #“for all others who so wish”.⁹⁹⁶⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3055. Bogdan Subotić also made an announcement that Bosnian Muslims who wished to remain in RS would have the same rights, and those who did not wish to should go to their own people of their own free will.⁹⁹⁶¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) He spoke in favour of clear borders between ethnic communities.⁹⁹⁶² Đerić testified that the Bosnian Serb leadership took into account that a certain percentage of Serbs, Croats and Muslims would live in each constituent unit in BiH and worked towards “preserving the equality of people who remained in their original places of residence” on a reciprocal basis and that the President in his speeches did not question the rights or freedoms of other ethnic communities to live in RS.⁹⁹⁶³ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The President also spoke about ensuring that Muslims and Croats have equal rights and privileges in the state they were building on the “condition that they are not hostile and that they leave the weapons”.⁹⁹⁶⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#! And that was in practice, as shown in the Edward Vulliamy report, P. and in the UN Report D2424@ and other evidence about many villages and municipalities which didn’t have any troubles throughout the war!) The Accused continued to emphasise that Muslims and Croats living in the RS would always have their rights protected as a minority group.⁹⁹⁶⁵

(#EXCULPATORY#!!!) He also emphasised the enormous responsibility of the SDS to defend the “Serbian Republic” and that their state should “rest on rule of rights and humanity”.⁹⁹⁶⁶ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) The Accused called on the SDS members to “constantly monitor our behaviour, so that the glory of our just battle would not be tarnished by inhumane actions” with special attention to “just behaviour towards civilians of other nationalities”.⁹⁹⁶⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) In practice these words were not carried out or followed.⁹⁹⁶⁸ (Incorrect! These words had been carried out in the majority of municipalities. It is significant and worthwhile to notice that these words had been carried out the most thoroughly in the municipalities in which the presidents of it were at the same time the memberst of the Main Board of the SDS, such as: Trebinje, Gacko, Bosanski Samac, Gradiska, Prnjavor, Srbac, Mrkonjic Grad, Banja Luka, Bosanska Dubica, Celinac, Laktasi, and others. Out of 61 municipalities in the Republic of Srpska, the Indictment treated only one third of it!)

3056. The Chamber notes that Krajišnik stated at one of the sessions: “I have discussed this [the creation of a unified Serb state] openly, even though this is being recorded and even though the journalists might write it down”.⁹⁹⁶⁹ Similarly when the Accused invited Mladić to brief the Bosnian Assembly on the military situation and their intentions, he qualified that by asking that he present “what can be said at a place like this”.⁹⁹⁷⁰ This is indicative that what was said at these sessions was often for public consumption and included rhetoric which the Chamber has approached with caution and weighed in light of the other evidence received. (This is ridiculous! Every state has some “state secrecies” although the Serbs hadn’t been very successful in it, and that was well known through the times! Does the Chamber have any document that differen from what had been said et these meetings? Beside that, there always had been spies of the adversaries, and of many other sides, and only idiots wouldn’t have it in mind, not to disclose the next moves, or a maneuvers of the Army! The political intentions hadn’t been a secret matter to the international interlocutors, since it had been followed by commitments and obligations! Finally, it is written in the Law of Defence, P2602 p.13

Secret defence information shall not be disclosed to the public by the media.

So, if the President said that Gen. Mladic should say “what can be said at a place like this” clearly tertained to the military secrets which couldn’t be said in a public meeting! What was criminal in that?)

There were a significant minority of the Muslims, as any extremists are a minority, in these municipalities that had the troubles, while the vast majority didn’t have any! It is very easy to count: out of around 50,000 Muslims in Prijedor,(or 65,000 non-Serbs) only around 3,000 had been brought in and questioned after a massive attack on Prijedor, and only 1,400 had been detained and conveyed to the Manjaca POW prison. This is less than 3%, (about 2,5%!) What was with others? How come that there was so many Muslims in Prijedor in 1994, when the UN and others mediated and intervened with the Accused to let them go to the European countries?)

3058. The President also visited Rogatica in March 1992 and met with municipal level leaders.⁹⁹⁷⁴ On 25 March 1992, the President was informed that Rajko Kušić had threatened to attack Rogatica unless the municipality and SJB were unconditionally divided into Serb and Muslim parts within two hours.⁹⁹⁷⁵ This letter further indicated that in accordance with the President’s instructions, “the factual division on the ground should be and is already there, however the official division must be accompanied by laws issued by relevant Serbian Ministries, as well as party agreements at the highest level”.⁹⁹⁷⁶ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) The President was informed that it would be dangerous to “be the originator of the war situation when the Serbian people are not sufficiently prepared”.⁹⁹⁷⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! These resignations hadn’t been accepted, but the interference of the Army in the state policy was limited, and the Party (SDS) ceased to act for an entire year, in order to prevent it to interfere in the activities of the civil authorities!)

3059. On 24 March 1992 the Bosnian Serb Assembly adopted a decision which verified the decisions of municipal assemblies which had proclaimed newly established Serbian Municipalities.⁹⁹⁷⁸ These municipalities included Vogošća, Srebrenica, Bratunac, Prijedor, Višegrad, Foča, Brčko, and Zvornik.⁹⁹⁷⁹ The SAOs were also required to report on the establishment of Serbian Municipalities.⁹⁹⁸⁰ At the same session the Accused said:

at a desired moment, and this will be very soon, we can form whatever we want. There are reasons why this could happen in two or three days. Such are the forecasts but I cannot tell you the reasons now. At that moment, all the Serbian municipalities, both the old ones and the newly established ones, would literally assume control of the entire territory of the municipality concerned. The Zvornik municipality takes control of everything that constitutes the Serbian Municipality of Zvornik. Then at a given moment, in the next three or four days, there will be a single method used and you will be able to apply it in the municipalities you represent, including both things that must be done as well as how to do them. How to separate the police force, take the resources that belong to the Serbian people and take command. The police must be under the control of the civilian authority, it must obey it, there is no discussion about that – that’s the way it must be.⁹⁹⁸¹

(#EXCULPATORY!!! “Control of everything that constitutes the Serbian Municipality...” #therefore, only the Serb settlements and areas!!!# In all municipalities that had a “Serb municipality” there were envisaged the Muslim or Croat, or both, municipalities, with the same competences as the Serb municipalities. The police, that is, our organs must be positioned at the border.”⁹⁹⁸² At this session, the Bosnian Serb Assembly instructed the Government to prepare and submit to the Assembly for adoption an operational plan “of assuming power and rendering operational the authorities in the territory of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina”.⁹⁹⁸³ (#EXCULPATORY!!! 3063. There was a break in the Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions and the 16th session was held on 12 May 1992 and was described by Krajišnik as the “first war session”.⁹⁹⁹⁰ The President spoke about how the Bosnian Serbs had tried to avoid war, that they had no need to organise themselves militarily because their policies were being realised politically.⁹⁹⁹¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) He explained that the political maneuvering of the Bosnian Muslims and the recognition of BiH resulted in war, and that Serbs had been attacked in Sarajevo, Zvornik and Bijeljina.⁹⁹⁹² (True and #EXCULPATORY#!!!) He went further and stated that the Bosnian Serbs in “areas bordering other national communities, it has to fight for its survival against genocide”.⁹⁹⁹³ The President also claimed that Serbs had been “very cautious not to take what is not ours, not to fight more than is necessary”, (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) that they would mark their borders and “defend them until they are recognised” and that the “factual situation will be decisive”.⁹⁹⁹⁴ In addition, at a session in September 1992, he emphasised that without publicly saying so, their internal borders between Muslims and Croats “are to be thicker” than their borders with Serbia and Serbian Krajina.⁹⁹⁹⁵

3064. The Chamber recalls that on 18 May 1992, the Rogatica Serb Municipal Assembly abrogated the original agreement on the division of the municipality alleging that the Bosnian Muslim side had avoided attempts to implement that agreement.⁹⁹⁹⁶ (True!) This was one day after the President, Mladić, and Krajišnik held a meeting with representatives of municipalities, including Rogatica, and discussed the creation of a Bosnian Serb state in BiH, stating that the time had come for the demarcation of areas between the national groups.⁹⁹⁹⁷

3066. The President in September 1992 acknowledged the responsibility of municipal authorities in defining borders and the importance of the government and the Presidency visiting municipalities in order to restore order.¹⁰⁰⁰⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!!! There should be mentioned that in September 1992 the war was going on for more than five months, and that still there was no order restored. All unlawful that happened during this period was not accessible to the authorities, and therefore the authorities, including the President, could have not been responsible, nor the misdeeds committed then were in any way planned or influenced by the authorities!) Krajišnik acknowledged the presence of presidents of executive boards and presidents of local SDS branches who attended Bosnian Assembly sessions as it was the “best way to keep our people aware of what is going on. We have seen that the people were leaving Assembly sessions with a clear vision of what they are supposed to do.”¹⁰⁰⁰¹

3067. On 20 December 1992, at a meeting of the Supreme Command attended by the Accused, Koljević, Krajišnik, Mladić, and Stanišić, Koljević addressed the issue of the truce, claiming that they should refrain from offensive operations to earn the world’s trust, to which the President responded that nothing is over yet, that they must strengthen the army, reinforce and reorganise their borders, and prove that the Muslims do not want peace to be established.¹⁰⁰⁰² (Both, the opinion of the Vice President Koljevic and one of the President were in accord. To strengthen the army reinforce and reorganise their borders...” all of it was within the framework of the truce, was of a defensive nature, and nothing offensive was in it! Here is what the President said, P1469, p.1.

The Supreme Commander Dr Radovan KARADŽIĆ informed those present that this was the first meeting since the decision to establish the Supreme Command of the Army of Republika Srpska. He pointed out that at this time our principal task was to keep the things as they were and /to hold/ the frontiers, that is all points held by our members of the armed forces.

So, the President pleaded only for a #status quo#, to maintain the borders. Not a single offensive plan or intention, just a defensive measures! Further, first Koljevic, then the President:

subversion is a separate issue. As regards the decision on the truce, we need to refrain from offensive operations to earn the world’s trust. I have heard from intelligence men that we had such a service that we could not be taken by surprise.

Dr KARADŽIĆ: Nothing is over yet because we must strengthen the army, that is reorganise it and reinforce our borders. We need to prove that the Muslims do not want that the peace be established.

It should be kept in mind that it was a meeting of the Supreme Command, as a civilian advisory body, explaining to the military leaders what was the view of the politics. Nothing to object, on the contrary, all was commendable!)

3068. In April 1993, the Accused stated that as a result of the war they had created new entities which would have to be recognised and noted for example that nobody could now “return the 50,000 Serbs from Zvornik to Zenica, or to central Bosnia”.¹⁰⁰⁰³ (Let us see what the President really said, P1367, p.109 – 110:

what they give you, but if you lose then tough luck. However, local wars are hard to end with a defeat of one side, very hard. That is a terrible war, you see that for yourselves. All the wars are chronic Lebanon. On Cyprus they appeased, they made green lines between the warring parties. Nagorno Karabach, India and so on, local wars are a great misfortune. A local war should be brought to an end. If the Muslim leadership had any common sense they could have obtained what they got without shedding any blood. Had it been before the war, we would have sacrificed more of our territories than we are prepared to sacrifice now, if there had been no war, if we had agreed, if we had made some kind of a division line between us. Now what happened, happened, and the international community will have to recognise the new entities. This war created new entities. There is no one who could return the 50 000 Serbs from Zvornik to Zenica, or to Central Bosnia. The map of CUTILLERO, acknowledged more than half of Zvornik, the northern part together with the town and Karakaj and all of that as ours. So all of that is very reactive, the new entities are a very powerful argument. The only question is, are we going to turn our backs on that conference, or are we going to be angry with each other; you can have a third and a fourth conference. It is important that we safeguard our people with our army. Those are the prerequisites for the war to end, to have a conference. If there is no conference, then our enemy doesn't have the chance to end the war and to have an excuse at the same time. Since the enemy also has to have an honourable way out, has to say to its people "sorry I could not do better". So, conferences are necessary. Of course I agree that biased people had led the conferences, that the international community is bias, and that it is against the Serbs and that it had been always against the Serbs, but nevertheless we struggled; what harm did we have from the conference. We struggled with CUTILLERO, we struggled now with these. We had accepted that what wasn't harmful, and we had never accepted that what was harmful. We could have given in at... conference but we didn't, nor shall we give in at this one. Only the question of diplomatic means arises, so I beg you let us think about the light and the heavy cavalry.

It is evident that the President was persuading the deputies to accept the continuation of the Conference and to abandon an idea of ending of the war by military means, explaining that a local wars do not end this way, but rather become a chronic wars. The President "begged" the deputies to support the Conference, since that would be a just and acceptable solution, and the enemies also need an honourable way out. He also said that the Serbs would have been in a situation to give up some Serbian territories if there was no a war, and that the Muslims would do better and get more if there was no the war, but both the Serbs and Muslims, as well as the international community, have to accept the "new realities" as a result of the war. The President said that the Serbs had been recognised "the more than half of Zvornik municipality" before the war and without the war, but a new reality is that the Serbs expelled from Zenica may not accept to return there. What is wrong with this speech of the President? The entire speech is full of a very important and relevant data which explained the situation, and a very honest, peaceful and conciliatory attitude of the President, but these who assisted the Chamber in assembling the Judgement noticed only this sentence, but used it against the President in an unacceptable and ununderstandable manner!): The Accused continued to speak about the RS as something they had "created by our own strength, own weapons, own politics".¹⁰⁰⁰⁴ (This is like fighting against a windmill, or against millions of mosquitos! So many dostortions, so many crippled sentences, all with the aim to paint the President as black as possible. It should be assumed that the Judges wouldn't do that, and that their assisstants made them a bad service. Let us see what the President really said: P1379, p.9:

probably 30 of them were held in during war. We have discussed the same issues in this very same hall, the issue of destiny of our people, their right to survival and self-preservation, the issue of destiny of our Republic which we have created by our own strength, own weapons, own politics and in interaction with the international community that has not been always inclined towards us. More precisely, our friends from the international community were either powerless or silent and our opponents were very load and powerful.

#Crippled sentence#! As it can be seen, the full stop in the quoted sentence in the Judgement, "...own weapons, own politics"... is not at the right place. There is a very #important part of the sentence missing, and this is "... our own strength, own weapons, own politics and in interaction with the international community that has not been always inclined toward us. #Why this part of the sentence had been skipped? Is it permissible in a serious court and a serious case? Even if the Prosecution did this forgery, in a serious countries which support this court – it wouldn't be permissible, let alone if it is done by a neutral and unbiased chamber!); In January 1994, the President acknowledged the contribution of the SDS party as the "main political force", the army, police, TO, SDS members, municipal level structures and leadership to the preservation of the RS.¹⁰⁰⁰⁵ (What is the meaning of this assertion? The SDS was the main political force, because it won over 90% of the Serb ballots, the army, police TO and municipal structures were obliged to preserve their country, i.e. RS, due to the Constitution and laws. Who else would preserve the Serbs and their areas, and settlements, while attacked by their own state? How possibly could it be of any interest of the Court, since it was a perfectly normal and natural? Was it interesting because the President said that, i.e. who said that, or what was said, because it was so, that these structures preserved the RS? This way, gathering so many neutral, or irrelevant, or crippled sentences of the President and other Serb officials, or even non-officials whose words meant nothing for this case, the Court is assembling this Judgement of many, many nothing, to create an impression about guilt of the President!)

3069. In November 1994, the Accused continued to speak about this reality on the ground which had to be retained.¹⁰⁰⁰⁶ This sentiment was also reflected in statements made by Mladić that they would "impose by the force of arms the final settlement of the war on the enemy" which would then mean the international community had to recognise the actual situation on the ground.¹⁰⁰⁰⁷ (The most official "international community", i.e. the European Community and the United Nations wanted the BiH to be independent, and in order to achieve it, the very same "international community" proposed the plan that the Serbs embraced and defended. They wouldn't defend it, if they hadn't been attacked by the Muslims, who tried to deny the Serb rights to their sovereignty and freedom. All of the Serb minimal rights had been agreed, and all of a sudden denied by a Muslim secret army! Of course, the international community had to recognise it, after backing the Muslim illegal attempts to reject already agreed plan, and to expel all the Serbs from Bosnia!) The President stated that their strategic goal was to separate themselves and not to take the whole of BiH but insisted that they should be prepared to resist attempts to take back as much Serb territory as possible and to establish new borders.¹⁰⁰⁰⁸ (As many other assertions,# irrelevant for the case. No crime, no forbidden or illegal intentions or attitudes, only a defensive reactions#!)

3070. The Accused continued to speak about their right to claim territories on the basis that “[w]e have created new realities”. He then cited to the example of Zvornik, where there had previously been a Bosnian Muslim majority, but he noted that Serbs from other locations had arrived and occupied the municipality while the Bosnian Muslims had left “for Europe and I do not know where else”.¹⁰⁰⁰⁹ (#Distortion#! The Serbs didn’t “arrive” from other localities, they escaped under a horrible conditions, without property, money, even food. Also, the Serbs didn’t “occupy” the municipality, but only inhabited in the Serb part of the Serb municipality of Zvornik#! While the Serb side facilitated the population that wanted to leave the combat areas to have an escorted transport, the other side did nothing what had been agreed with the ICRC and UNHCR!) He noted that in this scenario they would claim Zvornik “based on the right which comes out of a new reality” which had been created through the war and that if they wanted “to give Zvornik to the Muslims then you have to wage a new war in order to expel these Serbs back to Zenica. We request Zvornik according to this right. We use the same right to ask for our state. And we will get it.”¹⁰⁰¹⁰ (#This had nothing to do with the Muslim possibility or rights to live in Zvornik, but it pertained to the allocation of Zvornik as a whole to the Muslim side#. The Chamber already knew that even before the war, and without any war, the EC envoys Carrington and Cutileiro allocated almost 50% of the Zvornik municipality to the Serbs. Throughout the war the Muslim side possessed and controlled close to 50% of the Zvornik municipality, since the Serbs didn’t want to control their settlements unless necessary for the military reasons! Yes, the Serbs “got it”, i.e. their parts of Zvornik, but they have lost many municipalities almost 100% Serb municipalities, such as: Ilijas, Serb Vogosca, Serb Iidza, Serb Hadzici, Glamoc, Grahovo, Drvar, all above 85% Serb areas!)

3071. The President also observed that the SDS “endured the armed struggle in a superior manner. [...] With such, well organised defence, the majority of our people has been saved. [...] We should always remember that the people themselves and the SDS fought and set up the frontlines in 45 days, from 5 April to 20 May”.¹⁰⁰¹¹ (#Before the VRS, during the JNA#! That meant, until the VRS was established! The JNA was most of the time neutral, or reluctant to protect the Serbs, but when attacked at the same time, the JNA defence was helpful for the attacked Serbs! But, let us see what the President said in an interview in the occasion of the anniversary of the Republic, P953, p. 3-4:

for us. It was a very successful period of political struggle and the Serbian Democratic Party and its representatives to the former assembly came through as the moral winners. We had a list of the actions and steps to take, but we always waited for the Muslims to make a mistake and after they made one, we created a union of municipalities and the Serbian autonomous areas next, followed by the regions and eventually our assembly, and finally Republic. Every time that the Muslim or Croatian representatives told us that we were breaking up former Bosnia and Herzegovina, we replied that our actions were only in response to their mistakes and their aggression against our political rights. The Serbian Democratic Party also endured the armed struggle in a superior manner. It was the first time that the people knew what was in store for them. With such, well organised defence, the majority of our people has been saved, and lines toward the enemy were established. We should always remember that the people themselves and the SDS fought and set up the frontlines in 45 days, from 5 April to 20 May, while our army was still being established. Eventually, of course, this army became non-partisan, but we didn't want to appoint any SDS commissioners to it, because we relied on the patriotism of each of our officers and soldiers. As far as the political circumstances are concerned, the Serbian Democratic Party has played that part quite well, too. We governed the country in a very liberal manner, guaranteeing full freedom to our citizens, freedom that we are proud of. It is the first time that the Serbian people are not afraid of their own police or state security police. None of it would have happened without the active and creative participation of the SDS.

(#CRUCIAL PARTS SKIPPED#! Again, the crucial parts of this paragraph of the President interview had been skipped and replaced by three points (...”and the lines toward the enemies were established”#!) although it has a relevance! A mere defensive approach confirmed!)

3. Conclusion

3072. The Prosecution argues that the Variant A/B Instructions established the bodies which were the primary instruments through which the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership were able to assert control over territories and remove non-Serbs.¹⁰⁰¹² It also alleges that the President supervised the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions and issued specific guidelines in that regard.¹⁰⁰¹³ With respect to the Variant A/B Instructions, the President contends that there was “absolutely nothing wrong with this document” and that it only envisaged defensive measures in response to moves towards the independence of BiH.¹⁰⁰¹⁴ (#A free and creative interpretation#! There was no “envisaging defensive measures in response to moves towards the independence of BiH,” but in response to a possible Muslim attempts to militarily attack the Serbs in their sovereign areas and force them to accept the independence under their conditions, i.e. to become a national minority and lose many rights, as the Serbs in Krajina in Croatia did! The Court was not interested in any of the causes of the events, only in a consequences for which the Serbs would be “found guilty”!)

3073. Having considered the evidence above, the Chamber finds that the Variant A/B Instructions was a core document in terms of furthering the objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership from December 1991 onwards. The instructions reduced to writing the practical measures and steps which had to be taken at a municipal level in order to achieve those objectives. The Chamber finds that the Variant A/B Instructions reflected the ideology and objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership which have been discussed above.

¹⁰⁰¹² Prosecution Final Brief, para. 122.

¹⁰⁰¹³ Prosecution Final Brief, paras. 123, 129.

¹⁰⁰¹⁴ Defence Final Brief, paras.75–78. The Accused also makes a suggestion that there are inconsistencies “that may bring into question its authenticity or origin, and dispute its conspiratorial nature”. Defence Final Brief, para. 75.

(#LEGAL AND OBLIGATORY#! This is a completely wrong “finding”. Namely, the #Variant A/B was a professional, not political document#, that was obligatory for every single entity, from republic, to areas and communities of municipalities, to municipalities, local communes, companies, and “socio-political organisations” such as sport associations, parties, taxi drivers, every single “subject of the all-national defence. That is written not only in laws, but in the constitutions, as can be seen above. So, nothing in this paper contained any political platform, ideology or objectives, which were formulated and presented by political bodies and in political talks, aimed to be accomplished by the talks, on the basis of the Serb constitutional rights. Once it was rejected by the Muslims, and the political means replaced by an armed attack against the Serbs, this paper served as a mere defensive concept, which would be the same regardless of an enemy, no matter was it Eastern or Western military block, or an internal enemy of the country! Finally, it was created by a retired officers as a non-political persons!)

3074. The Chamber finds that the President played the leading role in the distribution and promotion of the Variant A/B Instructions. In doing so the President re-emphasised the interests of the Bosnian Serbs and also repeated the threats which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and the independence of BiH posed to those interests. (Not entirely correct: #it was not a mere independence that jeopardized the Serbs, it was a unitary independent Bosnia under the fundamentalistic regime based on the Islamic Declaration written by Mr. Alija Izetbegovic#, who was offered by the President to denounce this book as a political program, and he refused it. The main proof that it was so was the fact that the Serbs accepted that BiH may be independent provided the Serbs, and two other ethnic communities if wanted it, get a high autonomy as Izetbegovic accepted in the Hague ICFY in 1991! What was wrong with the high autonomy, with a de-centralised Bosnia, while a decentralisation is achieved in many European countries?) The manner in which the Variant A/B Instructions were distributed demonstrates a high level of organisation, planning, and coordination to ensure that all key Bosnian Serb leaders at a municipal level received those instructions. (So what? The Chamber is #charging the Serb leadership and the President for being good in forecasting the development of events, for being cautious not to be deceived by the adversaries, and for a capability to organize their ethnic community and its organs!#)

3075. The Chamber also finds that accepted evidence demonstrates that not only were the Variant A/B Instructions distributed, they were subsequently discussed and implemented at a municipal level and were considered mandatory. The instructions formed the basis on which Bosnian Serb Crisis Staffs, Bosnian Serb municipal assemblies, and other parallel municipal structures were established in the Municipalities. These instructions provided the basis for the declaration of Serb municipalities and not only called for the creation of Crisis Staffs, it also specified their structure, composition, and functions. (So what? How this could be a crime? What the Prosecution is charging the President for, and the Chamber is trying and sentencing for?)

3076. The Chamber notes that in Variant B municipalities, the instructions did make provision for the proportional representation of “other nations” in government organs, but this included a proviso that this only applied to those who expressed loyalty to Yugoslavia. The Chamber finds that this is a reflection of the position taken at the time by the Bosnian Serb leadership and that such statements promising protection of the rights of other ethnicities were highly conditional on them accepting and following the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership. (Wrong: this document had been created by a retired army officers as professionals, and was a professional, not political paper. It was created while Yugoslavia still existed, and Bosnia was still in Yugoslavia. Look how this matter was regulated by the REGULATIONS, issued by the Federal Ministry for Defence on 1 January 1990, P4477, p. 5:

3. Coordination and cooperation of the command with other JNA /Yugoslav People's Army/ commands, organs of socio-political communities, socio-political organizations, territorial defence staffs and other ONO /All-People's Defence/ factors in the preparation of forces, resources and territories for armed combat and other issues of mutual interest in line with laws, regulations and other documents.

The "socio-political communities" pertained to the regular organs of authority, while "socio-political organizations" meant all the organizations from the political parties through the "mount-climbing society, to sport organizations! So, what this paragraph in the Judgement is something very commendable due to this Regulations, as well as the laws and constitutions. In a case of an ethnic group takes the armament and fight against Yugoslavia, it would mean losing all of their rights except the rights of a Prisoners of war if captured!)

3077. The Chamber also finds that in addition to forming the basis for the creation of parallel political structures, the Variant A/B Instructions also included provisions directed towards the military organisation of the Bosnian Serb population at a municipal level. This involved taking steps to ensure that police, reserve, and TO structures were prepared and ready to be engaged depending on developments. The Crisis Staff was tasked with taking a central role in making these military preparations. (So what? This was an #obligation according to the laws of defence and to the Constitution of SFRY, Constitution of BiH and Constitution of the Republic of Srpska!# All of those forces already existed, and, as provided in the Regulations, P4477, the authorities at all levels were obliged to facilitate the functioning of all of these organs, organizations and units!)

3078. The Chamber also finds that the content of the Variant A/B Instructions included preparations for the physical take-over and maintenance of power in Bosnian Serb claimed territory, which ultimately took place. (Incorrect! #The "take-over" of the power in Bosnian Serb claimed territories happened at the elections in 1990, and these authorities didn't change until the next elections in 1996. There was no a single municipal authority that didn't last since 1990!) The Chamber refers to its factual findings with respect to the pattern of take-overs in the Municipalities. It recalls the involvement of the structures created pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions in preparing for and carrying out these take-overs. (#None of "structures" had been created pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions, since all of these structures already existed.# The Instructions only reminded the local authorities to be cautious and ready for the defence. The Crisis Staffs weren't a new structure either, because it was not a new structure, as the Presidencies of municipalities weren't a new structures. Both were composed of the same officials, ex officio, and not nominated by the President. If anyone cares for the facts and the truth, that is how it was, and that had been corroborated by the Defence, and it is still very easy to check!) It also recalls the central role that these structures played in maintaining power and regulating the functioning of the municipalities after the take-overs were completed. (That was the #mandatory obligation of the local authorities, what is wrong with that? Only in a case the Serbs came from another planet without any rights on the earth and in Bosnia, but it doesn't seem to be the fact!#)

3079. The Chamber finds that while municipalities had some autonomy in terms of the precise manner in which they implemented the Variant A/B Instructions, they were considered to be mandatory. (Certainly! #Mandatory due to the Law of the All-People Defence (ONO) and the Constitution, not due to the Instructions. Had it been due to the Instructions, it would be titled as an "Order"#!) The Accused took an active role in monitoring the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions and also following developments which occurred at a municipal level and difficulties municipal authorities faced. In this regard the Accused not only was in direct contact with municipal leaders he also specifically tasked Bosnian Serb officials with monitoring developments and problems at a municipal level in general and the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions in particular. (All of that was a # legal obligation of the President and all other officials, in accordance with the Republic of Srpska Law on Defence, which was derived from the existing laws on defence of the SRFY and BiH, see P2602 p. 14.

He

co-ordinated efforts to ensure the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions and sent Bosnian Serb officials to provide assistance to municipalities in this regard. The evidence also demonstrates that this system of monitoring was also a means of ensuring discipline and checking loyalty to the party leadership and programme of action which they had developed.

(What loyalty to the party leadership, while the SDS had frozen it's activities completely? There was an obligation of the organs of local authorities to the central organs of authorities, established immediately after the WWII and the communist Revolution! #The monitoring was prescribed by every single document, including the Law on Defence#, P2602, p. 14:

Article 71

In accordance with special regulations, the Government shall decide on the following: prohibited areas, in which freedom of movement, sojourn or residence may be restricted; facilities of special importance for the defence of the Republic where viewing, photography or access is prohibited; areas around facilities of special importance for the defence of the Republic where construction of other facilities is prohibited without the approval of the Ministry of Defence; areas in which land survey and research (geodesic, geophysical, geological, hydrological, etc.) are to be carried out only by organs, organisations and associations which have obtained the approval of the Ministry of Defence.

While guarding the facility, /underlined by hand/ security personnel in facilities of special importance for the defence of the Republic shall have the power to check persons' identity, to detain and report citizens who endanger the facilities to the police so that they can be placed under arrest, and shall be authorised to use firearms if there is no other way to protect the facility or their lives.

Personnel described in paragraph 2 of this Article may use firearms in accordance with the law regulating internal affairs from Article 74:

Enterprises, organisations and services equipped and trained for protection and rescue, and enterprises and organisations with special duties in the sphere of surveillance, reporting and other duties stipulated by the present Law and other regulations of the competent organs of the Republic, shall, in addition to measures described in paragraph 1 of this Article, draft special plans to ensure that their duties are carried out in case of war, the imminent danger of war or natural and other major disasters during the time of peace.

Article 55

The surveillance and reporting system in the Republic shall consist of the Republic Surveillance and Reporting Service in the Ministry of Defence, which shall in turn consist of reporting centres, surveillance stations and alert units (hereinafter: "Surveillance and Reporting Service"), enterprises and other organisations and other organs which, in the scope of their activities, conduct surveillance and record certain phenomena in the fields of hydrometeorology, firefighting, seismology, health care, radioactivity protection, agriculture, water management, electric power supply industry, transport and other fields.

The surveillance and reporting system in the Republic shall facilitate monitoring and detection of all kinds of risks, including natural, industrial and environmental disasters, and destruction caused by war which could endanger the population, the armed forces, enterprises and other organisations, State organs, and property and other assets, in order to report them and to call alerts in peace- or wartime so that adequate protection and rescue measures may be taken.

and the Regulations, P4477, p. 5.

3. Coordination and cooperation of the command with other JNA /Yugoslav People's Army/ commands, organs of socio-political communities, socio-political organizations, territorial defence staffs and other ONO /All-People's Defence/ factors in the preparation of forces, resources and territories for armed combat and other issues of mutual interest in line with laws, regulations and other documents.

4. Monitoring and studying the forces of the potential aggressor and coordinating plans for the use of the corps' forces.

5. Organization, realization and control: of ethical, political, logistic, intelligence, security and material and financial support and self-protection for the corps' commands, units and institutions, as well as for units outside of the Corps' generic composition located in the zone of responsibility and placed under the jurisdiction of the corps command.

6. Securing state borders in the zone of responsibility and combat readiness of border units.

How it was possible to have the President charged, indicted, #tried and sentenced in the first degree – for the perfectly legal and law binding activities#? The last two documents had been tendered by the Prosecution and the Indictment couldn't be, and mustn't be issued without a glance of these basic documents!)

3080. The Chamber also finds that a direct and regular line of communication existed between the Bosnian Serb authorities at a municipal level and the Bosnian Serb leadership or RS authorities, including the President. This line of communication allowed the Bosnian Serb leadership and the President to monitor developments at a municipal level and to issue precise directions with respect to the establishment and maintenance of Bosnian Serb authority. (This is not sufficiently specific: if it was pertaining to the pre-war period, that would be correct, but if this finding pertains to the war situation, particularly the first year of the war (1992) the finding would be completely incorrect!)

3081. The evidence above also demonstrates that the Accused took very seriously the precise implementation of these instructions at a municipal level. The evidence, including intercepted conversations, also shows that municipal level leaders were in contact with the President and reported on progress in developments in the municipalities and how they were following the Variant A/B Instructions. The President emphasised the importance of these instructions in achieving the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership, namely the creation of a separate Bosnian Serb state. (#This is all mixed up and incorrect! The instructions didn't have anything to do with the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership to create a separate Bosnian Serb state! This state had been created by the political means, proclaimed on 9 January 1992, verified by the international mediators on 18 March 1992, and put into the function by the end of March, beginning of April 1992.# The A/B Instructions was a document of defence of the people and territories that constituted this state. The monitoring and following the Instructions was a part of the legal obligation of all and every official of the existing authorities of SerBiH, which could have been seen in the laws and Constitution, had the Prosecution prepared their case properly!)

3082. The Chamber also finds that the SDS structures were the core mechanism through which the SDS policies which had to be implemented were communicated from the SDS Main Board to the SDS Municipal Boards. The President played a leading role in insisting on party discipline and the imperative to implement SDS policy and the importance of following the timing of the measures which had to be taken. (Before the war broke out the SDS was obliged to secure that the SDS cadres in power were pursuing the state policy in accordance with the will of their voters. Once the war broke out, the SDS ceased to work, in order to facilitate the state organs to function unhindered. Even before the war the President warned the SDS officials that the SDS is not authority, but a service to the authorities that won the elections, see P12, p.10 have it. A representative is the supreme power in their place. He is a member of the largest authority and a member of the Serbian Assembly, he is a member of the Assembly of the joint Bosnia and Herzegovina. Neither they have respect for presidents of executive committees, that is municipal boards, nor our municipal boards know how to organize themselves in order to be helpful towards presidents of municipalities, they also do not have meetings of municipal representatives clubs. Clubs meetings of municipal representatives must be held regularly. Our entire policy was tailored in two parts. Not in the Main Board, in the Executive Board, but in the political council and in the Club of Representatives. That is why our policy has no cracks, that is why you can let any of our people to talk and he will not make a mistake in the basic issues of our policy, perhaps MEDIĆ will, this one the

: The Chamber finds that these moves were designed and implemented to ensure that Bosnian Serb structures were created and these structures could be quickly activated when necessary in order to take-over power in the municipalities. (Once again, #wrong! The power in the municipalities already existed since November 1990, and the structures had been created to establish a responsible authorities, in accordance with the Constitution, the laws and the Lisbon Agreement! But when it was clear that the Muslim side reneged on the Lisbon Agreement and intend to initiate the war, (on 25 March) this "structures" i.e. the state institutions, were supposed to save the people and secure the territories and properties! The evidence that corroborate this facts is very numerous, while there was no any evidence to the contrary. The most obvious is the following fact:

1. #The authotiries in the Serb majority municipalities had been established in 1990;

2. The formation of the Serb republic in BiH, as #the last concession of the Serb side to agree to the BiH independence#, had already been decided and proclaimed on 9 January 1992, after being understood by the international mediators as a compromise which resolves the BiH crisis;
3. The very same concept of the three republics within BiH continued to be discussed, and finally agreed on 18 March 1992;
4. The majority of the “findings” and quotations of the President and the Serb leadership speeches and words quoted in this Judgement are from the times before 24 - 25 March 1992, while there was a #strong belief that there will be no war#. Only after the Muslim side reneged on the Lisbon Agreement on 25 March, it was more probable that there may be a war;
5. Having that in mind, all the assertions that the President words communicated before 25 March meant the evidence of a criminal plan is #materially and legally wrong#! These words can not be interpreted as a sign, or plan, or premeditation of a “taking over” of the municipalities, or any other illegal action! Why to take over municipalities, when the Conference concluded the Agreement according to which the Serbs were entitled to organize their Republic, which certainly was going to be smaller than the Serb majority territory? There would be no any war if the Muslim side didn’t abandon the Agreement and went to the war, advised by some foreign “friends” as Ambassador Cutileiro wrote, see: D2980) 3083. The Chamber finds that when the Accused activated the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions this was the signal that the structures which had been created pursuant to the first level had to be activated in order to take-over power. (#“To take-over power” – from whom#? A simple answer to this question would unveil the entire wrongfulness of this absurdity in the very foundation of the Bosnian crisis and these accusations and trials! The Serb side maintained the same authorities since 1990 till 1996. When the war broke out, in the municipalities with a substantial Muslim or Croat minorities, and in other with a significant Serb population as minority on a substantial amount of territory, the Serb authorities formed their ethnic municipalities and facilitated the other ethnicities to do the same. In these newly formed municipalities the Serb side maintained the same authorities. It had never been said “to take-over power”, it had always been said “to take power”, which is completely different. To “take-over” in Serbian would be “preuzeti” i.e. take something from somebody, and to “take” meant to exercise a power completely, thoroughly, as it had to be in a war or an imminent treath of war! It is so easy to check the semantics, that there is no any justification for this negligence and the abuse of a linguistic problems of such a trials!) The evidence demonstrates that the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions was intrinsically linked to the physical control of territory and the activation of the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions was also communicated to and acted upon at a municipal level. (A perfectly# legal and obligatory conduct#, according to the explicate provisions of the law of ONO (All-Peoples Defence) derived from the Constitution, see already quoted laws and constitutions, as well as D4282, the Strategy of All-Peoples Defence issued by the SFRY Presidency in 1987, p.9:

In the event of armed aggression, Yugoslavia shall oppose every aggressor by waging an all-people’s defence war and by engaging all available forces and resources to a maximum. Every possible form of struggle and all-people’s resistance shall be applied in an all-people’s defence war. They are conditional upon each other and connected for the purpose of achieving the same goal. Armed struggle, which must be conducted in an organised way, is the decisive form of opposing the aggressor as the exponent of armed aggression. Armed forces are responsible for armed struggle, but all other subjects in society are also engaged indirectly or directly in its preparation and implementation.’ ” – 30

3084. While the Chamber notes that the Accused spoke in terms of taking power in a “humane way” with respect to the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, it is clear that he said this in the context of trying to “change [the Bosnian Serbs’] image with foreign monitors”.¹⁰⁰¹⁵ (It is entirely unfair and #unacceptable to manipulate with the sentences of the President# that way. See the comment of the same issue in para 3023: This kind of #merging and associating two or more diferent sentences, in order to create a new meaning is not permissible in any legal system#. The two elements, a) a humane treatment of the population and prevention of fleeing – has nothing to do with the b) international monitors and the Serb international image. That pertained to c) an armed skirmishes, a way of defense, in terms not to have it “too aggressive”!#) In addition instructions which were given to Crisis Staffs also required the humane treatment of civilians and respect for POWs. Despite these statements and orders, the President also clearly stated that he was prepared to “let everything go to fucking hell and that we take the express way”.¹⁰⁰¹⁶ (Another #bastardous and monster-merge of sentences#, which do not have anything in common. To let everything “to go to fucking hell” meant a resignation reaction on the failure of his peaceful endeavours, and “to let something go somewhere” always meant to give up one’s attempt to prevent a “fucking hell”. but he spoke about taking a tactful approach in order to achieve their goals given the importance of international opinion and not being seen as the aggressors. The Chamber finds that this is indicative of the approach taken by the President that while he envisaged the use force and violence to take-over power he was cautious about the way in which this would be portrayed at an international level. (This sentence is unbelievable! #All the words that had been the basis for this “synthesis” had been said before the war, (14 February 1992)# and with an assumption that there will be no war#, and in the closest connection with the achievement of the Carrington-Cutileiro Conference on Yugoslavia and BiH. Again, there is a famous “take-over” of power, although it had never been said or meant, nor there was any need for that, since the Conference was doing well. The most critical and a tremendous misunderstanding and misconceiving of the President words were of his speeches on 14 February 1992, i.e. after the first accord about decentralisation of BiH into three states, and on 18 March 1992, after the sides accepted the Lisbon Agreement. Although all of his speeches had been a political discourse aimed to persuade the MPs to accept some solutions, the essence was accurate, and commendable in all the cases. Taken out of these contexts, the President words are easy to manipulate and create a completely different picture. This must not happen in any system or case!) The international image and ensuring political points were not lost were very important to the President, but the Chamber does not find that there was a genuine concern about the manner in which power was taken. (How about the President concerns about the conduct of the Serb side #before the war#, when there was no any idea of “taking-over the power, and majority of the Chambers dis-believes are concerning with these speeches? And how about the President’s “strictly confidential” orders towards the same, humane and lawful conduct of the Serb authorities and forces. And how about his permanent advocacy of the moderate manner in fights, territorial clames, and in particular the treatment of civilians of all ethnicities – communicated to the military ant the civil authorities on a closed sessions and meetings, intercepts and other occasions so remote from any public?)

3085. On the contrary, the Chamber refers to its factual findings in section IV.A.1, which demonstrates that the manner in which Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs took over power in the Municipalities and the way in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were treated during and after the take-overs was anything but humane. (The section IV.A.1. is commented there. The Chamber didn’t establish anything that is “found” in this section, nor this what had been established, or even alleged could justify this conclusion. Let us reconsider the several simplest questions, answers to which would clarify all the errors of this findings:

¹⁰⁰¹⁵ See para. 3023.

1. There was no any “take-over” and the Chamber have taken it from the Prosecution without any consideration of the Defence arguments;
2. If it was a systemic or systematic misconduct, why the same crimes hadn’t been committed in all and every municipality under the Serb control, but only in one third of them;
3. Why the events characterised as a systematic crimes didn’t appear at the same time, or close to it, in all the Serb municipalities;
4. Why only several percent of the non-Serb population had a problems with detention and investigation, while the vast majority, always over 90% of the non-Serb population didn’t have any problem with the authorities;
5. What was a decisive factor for the outburst of violence, did any “systematic” crime appear as a solitary incident, or there was an armed skirmish, and what and who caused the clashes;
6. Without clarification of the contribution of the other side to the concret incidents and to the sufferings of this percent of civilians – there could not be a really assessment of the events. No a reasonable chamber would miss to establish all of it and to obtain the answers to these questions! The Chamber recalls its legal finding that Serb Forces were involved in a widespread and systematic attack directed against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH which was characterised by a widespread and systematic campaign of violence, including through acts of murder, persecution, and forcible displacement. While the President was making these public statements about the protection of minorities, Bosnian Muslims continued to be forced out of municipalities in BiH where Bosnian Serbs had taken-over the territory. The Chamber also finds a disjuncture between the Accused’s public statements and his private discourse in this regard. (For this last sentence the Chamber didn’t have any corroborative evidence. However, neither the “Serb Forces” had been properly identified, nor the President was responsible for all the elements of the alleged “Serb Forces” – the JNA was in no way under his influence let alone control, and the paramilitary part of the “Serb Forces” couldn’t in any way be a part of the official Serb Forces, since the President banned their existence and disowned all of them as early as 13 June 1992. Even for the real and official Serb Forces and their combat conduct the President couldn’t be kept responsible, since he handed his competences of a use of the army, i.e. operational and tactical competences – to the Main Staff of the VRS. Further, the Prosecution and the Chamber didn’t prove that the “Serb Forces” for which the President was strategically responsible, really attacked the civilian population in any of incidents. This is a grave omission and error of the Chamber that it didn’t establish who was initiating attacks, and who did abuse the civilians to attack from their vicinity, and there is a sufficient evidence that it had been the Muslim side doing it in continuo throughout the war!)

3086. The Chamber also finds that by April 1992, the work and function of Crisis Staffs were further elaborated by instructions which provided for them to take on the central role in wartime conditions at a municipal level, particularly with respect to defence. (Who else would do that? The JNA was obliged to defend the entire territory of Yugoslavia, but the Armed Forces of the SFRY comprised the municipal forces, TO and police too. Apart of this, the Constitution and the law on Defence strictly defined the competences and obligations of the Municipal authorities, under the treath of punishment for a high treason! Fo these arguments see:@ the Crisis Staffs were only another name of the official municipal authorities, as were the War Presidencies, composed of the high municipal officials ex officio!) It was also clear that the Crisis Staffs were to work in accordance with decisions of the higher level authorities, including the Presidency, the Bosnian Serb Assembly and Bosnian Serb Government and were also a crucial structure in ensuring that the higher level authorities were informed about developments on the ground. (Senseless! How could be otherwise?)

3087. The Chamber finds that the President played a central role in instructing how the Crisis Staffs would function and be structured and this demonstrates one of the ways in which the President exercised his authority over the Crisis Staffs. (Taking into account the fact that the new authorities established after the first democratic elections had been composed of the persons that were so many decades far from any administration or rule, there was an obligation to instruct them how to act in accordance with the laws and Constitution. This was not a crime, and there was no a single example that the President, or other high officials or institutions directed any unlawful instruction. The “finding” that the President of the Republic of Srpska “played a central role” is ridiculous, but is not entirely correct, since the scope of competences and structures of the local authorities had been regulated by the laws and constitutions, not by the President’s instructions!) The Chamber does not find that isolated and limited acts of insubordination at the municipal level negated the President’s overall clear authority over Crisis Staffs. In this regard, the Chamber notes that, in September 1992, the President acknowledged that “some municipal officials behaved unlawfully” and that the Bosnian Serb Assembly needed to point out these incidents and to take measures to arrest and punish them.¹⁰⁰¹⁷ (Only this quotation is sufficient to rebut the previous “finding” that the President had “overall clear authority over Crisis Staffs. There was an Assembly session at which the President asked the Assembly to authorise the Presidency or the Government to be able to dismiss a municipal leaders that didn’t follow the rule of law, see:D456, p. 15:

be overlooked. They must completely be put in the function of the front and the defining of borders. I must say that it often happened that some municipal officials behaved unlawfully, up to the point of necessitating their arrest and punishment. This is something which we, as the Assembly, must point out and perhaps even punish and find a way for the Presidency to take a stand in such matters between two sessions of the Assembly. Namely, we should consider ourselves lucky that there have not been any executions so far, but in future there will have to be arrests and punishment. This Assembly, as the legislative body and the body whose duty it is to protect the legality, will have to note this and give us authorisation, even if we do not declare a state of war in order to straighten things out in certain municipalities which are of vital importance, to use vigorous measures. Namely, in view of the enemy’s numbers and

So, the President asked the Assembly to authorise the Presidency and Government to be able to act and intervene in a municipalities where there was an #improper conduct#!):

The President added “we must visit municipalities and restore order even at the risk of introducing extraordinary measures, making replacement, arrests, appointments and naming others who, with the help of deputies, will be able to pull the municipality out of a crisis”¹⁰⁰¹⁸.

The Chamber finds this shows that on the limited occasions where municipal officials failed to follow directions, the President had the authority and the means to rectify such situations. (As it can be seen, this inference of the Chamber was not correct, since at the same session (see the pasted part above) the President asked for such an authorisation to be able to rectify a misconducts inbetween two sessions of the Assembly. If the last sentence was correct, why the President would ask for an authorisation, and why nobody warned him that he already has the authorisation? Those who assisted the Chamber in writing the Judgement, made a bad service to it, and to the Defence by making so obvious mistakes!)

3088. From May 1992, War Presidencies and War Commissions took over the functions of the Crisis Staffs and the leading role at a municipal level and were the link to the higher level authorities. (As with the Crisis Staffs, the war presidencies hadn’t been any new organ of the authority, but the same people that won the elections in 1990. All of it was regulated by the Laws and Constitution, see: @ : The Accused himself in 1994 and 1995 recalled the central role which the Variant A/B Instructions and the Crisis Staffs played during the conflict in order to create parallel Serb structures and military units, which ultimately took control of territory and power at a municipal level. (This is a unique example that the Defence had to prove that the# basic legal documents, such as Constitution and the Law on Defence is violated by the Prosecution and the Chamber#. When indicting the President, the Prosecution was obliged to point out what a legal provisions he violated, taking into account the domestic mandatory provisions. Let us see what is defined in the BiH Constitution, P1262, article 260:

Article 260.

Territorial defense in the Republic shall be the broadest form of armed, organized, general popular resistance, and an integral part of the unified armed forces of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Territorial defense shall be organized in the Republic and municipalities as a unified system.

or the same P1262, Article 269:

Article 269.

Within the assembly of a municipality, a council for national defense shall be formed, whose composition and competence shall be regulated by law.

or the same document P1262

Article 256.

The municipality shall regulate and organize territorial defense and civil defense, organize and carry out preparations of the populace, economy, public agencies and government bodies, direct the preparations of organizations of associated labor, local authorities and other self-management organizations and units, ensure the accomplishment of other tasks of national defense as established by law, and in time of war lead general popular resistance on its territory. The municipality shall fulfill its rights and duties in the area of national defense in accordance with the constitution, laws, system of national defense and the defense plans of the federation and the Republic.

which is a very broad competence and obligation, not introduced in the practice by the President; or the same document, Article 273.:

Article 273.

In time of war or in the case of an immediate threat of war a presidency of the municipal assembly shall be formed, which shall decide questions within the competence of the assembly if it is impossible for the assembly to meet. The composition of the presidency shall be established by law.

The presidency is obligated, as soon as the assembly is able to meet, to present for confirmation by the assembly those decisions which it has adopted and which are within the competence of the municipal assembly.

The question is: how was it possible that the #Prosecution didn't know even its own document# of the basic and inevitable relevance for the Indictment, so deluding the Chamber to draw so many incorrect inferences?):

3089. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that the Variant A/B Instructions were formulated, distributed, and ultimately followed at a municipal level. The President was intimately involved in this process through his distribution of the instructions and his subsequent involvement in monitoring the implementation of those instructions. The Chamber further finds that the Variant A/B Instructions were used to create parallel Bosnian Serb structures and bodies at a municipal level. The instructions also provided for the military organisation of the Bosnian Serbs at a municipal level. (It is pretty senseless to comment such a senseless assertions and “findings” while both the Prosecution and the Chamber had at their disposal all the basic legislature that regulated these issues. See: D1262, the BiH Constitution: and the Constitution of the SFRY, Article 239:

The rights and duties of the Federation and its agencies in national defence are regulated by the present Constitution.

It shall be the right and duty of the Communes, Autonomous Provinces and the Republics and other socio-political communities, in line with the system of national defence, each on its own territory, to regulate and organize national defence and to direct territorial defence, civil defence and other preparations for the defence of the country, and, in the event of an attack upon the country, to organize and direct total national resistance.

Organizations of associated labour and other self-managing organizations and communities shall exercise their right and duty to defend the country in conformity with statute and the plans and decisions of the socio-political communities, ensure resources for national defence, and carry out other duties concerning national defence. These organizations and communities shall be responsible for the execution of these duties.

The “Communes” is another term for “municipalities” and in Serbian original it was written municipalities. So, every single subject in municipalities, including companies, associations and municipal bodies were responsible for the defence, and the President didn’t invent a single innovation or invention of his own!) : The Variant A/B Instructions were a crucial initial step towards establishing Bosnian Serb authority in Bosnian Serb claimed territory. As discussed in Section IV.A.1 of this Judgement, following the creation of these parallel structures, Serb Forces were able to take-over power in the Municipalities. Following these take-overs, the parallel structures including the Crisis Staffs and Bosnian Serb municipal assemblies were able to maintain power in the Municipalities. (First of all, there was no any need for a “parallel structures”, since the elected authorities had their own rights, duties and obligations in all aspects of the life and management in municipalities. See what was provided by the Constitution of BiH in the domain of defence, D1262, Article 263, points 14 and 15:

15. national defense shall be regulated and organized;

16. the protection of civil order and social control shall be organized and ensured;

And there are many other competences, so that municipality was a “state within a state”. But, who established that these institutions were “parallel institutions”? Parallel to what? #The Serbs and several parties that represented the Serb ethnic community in BiH were a legal and legitimate part of the political system and the system of the state authorities in BiH. The #“parallel institutions” were not parallel to anyone and anybody#, but were the only institutions legally established and it’s public servants legitimately elected#. If the Muslims accepted to form their own ethnic municipalities in the Republic of Srpska, which was offered to them by the Serb side even after the war broke out, even in this case no a Serb or a Muslim institutions would be “parallel” but the only in a certain territory, as the Brussels municipalities are not “parallel” to each other, but are the only in their respective areas. These trials and this Judgement are such a precedent, hopefully only because of a tremendous misunderstanding, that it may serve as an example how the international justice is not possible!)

3090. The Chamber finds that one of the first steps in the Bosnian Serb objective of creating a separate state was the expansion and delineation of territory. The parallel municipal structures which were created pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions, played a pivotal role in this process of territorial expansion and delineation of territory. (These misunderstandings and misinterpretations are endless, because the very fundamental premises had been wrong. #There was no any “parallel municipal structures”, but there was a new municipalities, completely legally and legitimately formed, in accordance with the law and Constitution#, see: the BiH Constitution, D1292,

Article 265.

A municipality shall be formed for any area which constitutes an economic and urban whole in which working people and citizens are bound by common interests and in which the conditions exist for satisfying their common needs, the implementation of self-management and the exercise of authority, provided the area is inhabited by a number of citizens to be stipulated by law.

The formation and dissolution of municipalities, and the establishment of their territory, shall be regulated by law.

The formation and dissolution of municipalities may be carried out in accordance with the opinion of working people and citizens, previously obtained, and with the consent of the assemblies of the municipalities concerned.

As could be seen, both – establishment of a new and dissolution of existing municipalities, as well as their aggregation in the “communities of municipalities” or a regions, was regulated by the Constitution as a sovereign right of the people living in the areas, and the territories of the municipalities was in a competence of municipalities to be determined. All that the Prosecution charged the President, and the Chamber accepted had been completely out of any illegal activity, legal, legitimate and a law binding, while the President was in charge to secure the institutions function properly, particularly in an immediate treath of war, or in a war, the President was supposed and obliged to monitor the functioning of authorities more thoroughly! What was the crime in it?) :

3091. The Chamber finds that the aCCUSED played a central role in promoting this territorial delineation and the steps that needed to be taken in order to establish the borders of the SerBiH in accordance with their territorial and strategic aspirations. (And #in accordance with the international mediators, Lord Carrington and Ambassador Cutileiro#. The delineation was one of the #tasks of all the three sides, to bring their maps of territorial delineation of the three constituent units. Had it been finished on 18 March, to be adopted together with the political arrangement, maybe there wouldn't be any war! How the President could be charged for such a regular and agreed activities?) The President actively encouraged and supported the division of municipalities on ethnic lines. (That was true, but that fact is completely rebutting the main allegation of the Prosecution, the main construction of the Joint Criminal Enterprise comprised of a criminal attempt to expel all the Muslims and Croats out of the Serb claimed territories. #On the contrary, offering to the Muslim and Croat sides to form their own municipalities even in the Republic of Srpska, and run their affairs unhindered, makes the alleged “permanent removal” and other crimes completely impossible and unnecessary#. Impossible, because the non-Serbs would have the same as the Serbs did have, the police, administration, territorial defence, and nobody would dominate over them, and vice versa. There can not be “i jare, i pare”, i.e. to eat cake and to have it, and that is what this court wanted to have, as this paragraph depicts!) He also emphasised the importance of taking control and power of territory in establishing the de facto situation which would form the basis for the creation of their state. (Wrong! To take control was a legal obligation for a responsible authorities, and this task was issued before the war, and had nothing to do with the armed conflicts. In a state of imminent treath of war, the municipal authorities must be in control of all processes and events, as it is provided in the Constitution and the Law on Defence, and other documents, like D4282, pp.5-6.

historical conditions. Common social bases, common goals, common subjects and forces of defence and protection determine the defence and protection function as a common and indivisible system of ONO and DSZ, regardless of the fact that special forces, above all intended for defence or protection, are developed in all-people's defence and social self-protection. Starting from the need for a maximum efficiency and continuous functioning in peacetime, in emergency situations and in wartime, all-people's defence and social self-protection as a whole and all their elements must be well organised and trained to carry out their special tasks successfully.

Social self-protection is one of the broadest self-managing rights and duties and one of the lasting functions of Yugoslav socialist self-managing society and all its subjects. It implies self-organisation and continuous engagement of working people and citizens and all other subjects of our socio-political system in opposing, in an organised way, all activities of internal and external enemy in the struggle against all practices threatening the socio-political system laid down by the SFRY Constitution, So, the population is both entitled and obliged to self-organise and engage in a defence against all internal and external enemies, without waiting for anyone to order this defence! Further, D4282, p. 8:

Preparations for defence and protection are carried out by all subjects in society in accordance with their rights and obligations, location, role and tasks in peacetime, emergency situations and wartime. Preparations include activities which ensure the functioning of the socio-political and socio-economic systems, economy and public services and successful armed struggle and all other forms of struggle and all-people's resistance in all conditions throughout the SFRY territory and for the duration of the all-people's defence war.

These provisions give all the answers to the Prosecution allegations/ the Chamber findings, rebutting all of them! See the same exhibit, p. 8-9 on the rights and obligations of the local authorities:

Local communes, depending on their size, number of inhabitants, degree of development and other conditions, shall organise and conduct preparations in the area of all people's defence and social self-protection; organise and prepare Territorial Defence units and staffs and conduct preparations for armed struggle and all people's resistance; organise and conduct preparations for protection and rescue of citizens and property from devastation caused by war, natural disasters and other dangers; may organise a monitoring and information service; take measures to ensure the basic communication, medical and other needs of the citizens in the event of war and other threats to the country; draw up a defence plan and an emergency plan.

In local communes working people and citizens shall organise and prepare all people's resistance and self-protection in peacetime, and they shall implement it in wartime and carry out their obligations and tasks in production, the monitoring and information service and civilian protection, and participate in armed struggle.

): The Chamber also finds that the President played a leading role in the separation of municipal structures and the establishment of parallel Serb structures which would allow this objective to be achieved. (#TIME SHIFTING#! This senseless finding is commented in the para 3051. Just to remind the readers: the Assembly session at which it had been said had been held on 18 March 1992, the very #same day when the Lisbon Agreement had been agreed#. The President made his speech aimed to make the municipal authorities aware that the entire responsibility for their areas and municipalities from that moment on was on them, the authorities in municipalities. At that moment there was a firm conviction that the crisis will be resolved politically and that there will not be any war. But, if depicted as if it was said in another time and occasion, for instance far before the agreement was reached, or after the war broke out, the meaning should have to be determined in accordance to a moment and circumstances!) The steps taken with respect to the creation of the SerBiH were also informed by the objectives of the unity and non-separation of the Serb people which has been previously discussed.

3092. The Chamber finds that what the Accused said at the Bosnian Serb Assembly on 18 March 1992 is particularly instructive as it underscores that he and the Bosnian Serb leadership had clearly made plans which would allow for the rapid seizing of power at a municipal level when the time was right.¹⁰⁰¹⁹ This speech also demonstrates that the President was adamant that the Bosnian Serbs would achieve what they wanted, that they clearly had strategic objectives which had to remain secret but which would be realised. The Chamber finds that this objective was the seizure and control of Bosnian Serb claimed territory in a manner which would allow for the creation of an ethnically homogeneous state. (# All wrong, as follows: a) the power in the Serb municipalities had been seized after the elections in 1990, and nobody contested it. b) There was a task to execute this authority thoroughly and completely. That became particularly important from 18 March on, for the Agreement had to be implemented. c) none of the plans were ever secret, because it was posted by the Serb side as a precondition for the independence of BiH: either the entire BiH remains in Yugoslavia, or the Serb areas remain in Yugoslavia, such as the Northern Ireland remained in the United Kingdom, because of the majority of unionists and protestants, - or, the least and the most painful Serb concession: to reorganise the future independent BiH, and the Serbs stay in BiH, provided they are recognised their “high autonomy” within BiH, as Mr. Izetbegovic proposed in the Hague in 1991, at the ICFY. The ethnic homogeneity was meditated before the war, to be achieved by political means, by being moderate in claiming the other’s territories, as noticed by the Chamber in para@. After this compromising proposal, immediately recognised by the UN and EC, there was no any chance that the Serbs would accept a unitary BiH, no matter who was their leader!@

3093. The Chamber also finds that while the President expressed caution and emphasised that the steps they would take were defensive for the purposes of international opinion, (#MANIPULATION WITH WORDS#! This is a mere manipulation with the President words. The defensive strategy was not for the “international opinion”, but because the Serbs didn’t want to take anything that already wasn’t their. For the international opinion was a political speech to moderate the goals, and to chose the minimal, only necessary means in defence, both in rhetoric and in a battlefield if there would be any!) he clearly envisaged that if their objectives could not be achieved politically they would use military means and if there was war he would issue plans about how to proceed. (#Further manipulation#: the Serbs didn’t need any military means to achieve their right objectives, which had been achieved by a political means. A military means were needed by those who wanted to prevent the Serbs from achieving their political objectives, and the Serbs needed a military means only to defend themselves from the adversary’s military means. For what the Serbs would need the military means? They did have in their possession more territories than they could keep in their republic in a new structure of Bosnia. In this territory the Serbs had their legitimate authorities. The international community recognised the Serb rights in a case Bosnia wanted to be independent, starting from the ICFY in 1991, through the Badinter’s Commission, to the Carrington-Cutileiro conference and through all other conferences: Vance-Owen, Owen-Stoltenberg, the Contact Group, to the final, Dayton Agreement!) The Chamber notes that when war did break out the President repeated his emphasis on the need to protect the Bosnian Serbs from genocide and characterised their fight as one which was defensive in order to achieve their objectives. (#Not to achieve, to defend their objectives, already achieved#. What was the alternative? To be obedient and accept an inferior status in a hostile fundamentalist regime?)

3094. The Chamber notes textual provisions, including the Bosnian Serb Constitution, included protections for the rights of all people. The President also spoke about the full respect for the rights of other nationalities and that the probable resettlement of people should not occur under pressure. Other Bosnian Serb leaders also spoke about respecting the rights of non-Serbs who decided to remain in the SerBiH. However, the Chamber finds that there was a clear disjuncture between what was written on paper, what the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership said in public, and the way in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were treated in practice following the formation of the SerBiH. In this regard the Chamber refers to its extensive factual findings with respect to the crimes which were committed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities and which resulted in the creation of a largely ethnically homogeneous state. (Not even close to be true! First, there were #two third of the Serb municipalities without mentioned crimes; second, in the municipalities where there was over 90% of the “non-Serbs” who didn’t have any troubles, see D2424, P3788, see a numerous evidence about the Muslim requests to be facilitated to go elsewhere, see how many Muslims and Croats remained in the Serb areas to the end of the war. Nobody can say that it was a systemic attitude towards the “non-Serbs” because for instance in Sanski Most municipality out of 27 Muslim and 9 Croat villages there was a war between the Serb and Muslim forces only in three villages and one suburb in the town! In the very same families one of members had a troubles with the law, while others didn’t, see the first witness Zulic!) This kind of establishing truth is not seen in the judicial practice!

3095. The Chamber finds that these public announcements, speeches, and decisions were often for the consumption of international public opinion and to show that the Bosnian Serb state which was being created was one which respected the law and the rights of all people. The Chamber does not find that either the statements of the President or the Bosnian Serb leadership in this regard were genuine; in fact, they were completely disingenuous, having regard to the reality of what was happening on the ground in the Municipalities. (There was so many genuine orders marked and issued as a “strictly confidential” or communicated to the military or political officials at a closed meetings, that make this finding and assertion of the Chamber fake and senseless. On the other hand, the# international representatives requested that the President make his intentions and his attitudes public#, so that his followers know what they are expected to follow, see P941, p. 3:

that the population of Bihac was not to be threatened or menaced in any way. Lord Carrington suggested that he should make this public. Secretary Vance said the situation in Former Yugoslavia
The same was repeated, many times, with the ICRC and UNHCR, who wanted the President to make public his support to their activities, so that they have as smooth passage as possible, and the President did it many times. The UNPROFOR also asked in several occasions that the President state something publicly in their favour, and he did, as well as to make public his position towards the humanitarian convoys and flights, and he did, and it gave a very good results!) The Chamber also refers to its findings below with respect to the Accused’s knowledge of crimes which were being committed in BiH. The Chamber notes for example its finding above, that while the Accused made these public statements about the protection of minorities, Bosnian Muslims continued to be forced out of municipalities in BiH. (There was# no a single evidence on a single case that the authorities “forced out” the Muslim population#. On the contrary, the authorities made #many obstacles to their attempts to leave#, demanding up to fifteen papers to be submitted. Also, the Muslims made many efforts to be put on the waiting lists for convoys. If there was any harassment, it had never been tolerated, let alone carried out by the authorities. The civil war among so antagonised communities made more Serb refugees than Muslim and Croat together, and some of these refugees may have had a negative attitude to the Muslims, but not the authorities! This kind of “findings” and assertions rather look like a propaganda built in the Indictment, and picked up from the media propaganda by the Prosecution!)

In addition, the Chamber finds the evidence above demonstrates that the Bosnian Serbs were aware that some of their speeches were being recorded and could be reported on by journalists and in that context were cautious in terms of what was said. (On the contrary, the Serbs are known as a “talkative” people, and both before and in the war the President quarrelled with some representatives about their radicalism. The military people found useful to be a tough in their statements, in order to keep the moral of their several times smaller army and soldiers, but the President realised that they never did what they said.)

3096. The President and the Bosnian Serb leadership continued to emphasise that they wanted to create a reality on the ground, which then in negotiations could be used to claim territory which they viewed as belonging to them. (To “create a reality on the ground” was a “tithe-for-that” for the Europe, which accepted that the Serbs were right in their opposing to the dissolution of Yugoslavia, but, there are “a new realities on the ground”, see: P12, p. 5, the factual situation on the ground. We went that far, in our last conversation, we said to them that we were not making anything up, like we were not proposing anything new at all. That the situation is as it is, that the same is happening in Bosnia and Herzegovina what was happening in Yugoslavia. That the main ..., the main attitude towards Yugoslavia during this entire interfering of the European Community was that the Serbs were right, but the factual situation was so and so. Now we are in the position to say – yes, maybe the Muslims are right, but the factual situation is so and so, although they are not right. The factual situation is so and so, now it is so, now it’s up That was said by the President on 14 February, #before the war#, and not in any connection with the war, but as a political attitude. The President used this factual control of territory and the creation of a “new reality” as a means of securing international recognition for the RS. (Since it had been said in the context of the Conference and before the war, and when it was thought that there wouldn’t be any war, this assertion of the Chamber is wrong! But, anyway, how possibly only one out of the three constituent communities could have imposed their solution to the others, even if there was no control of territory??? Would the international community support this manner?) It was also clear that the President acknowledged the military manner in which this “reality” was created and gave credit to the Serb Forces for their role in achieving this objective of territorial control. (On 14 February 1992 there was no any war, and the political means gave a good results, so a “military manner” was not needed, nor the President at that moment had any military to threat with!)

- b. Authority over military and police forces acting in BiH
- i. VRS

3097. The Chamber noted above that the Army of SerBiH was established on 12 May 1992 and was renamed the VRS on 12 August 1992.¹⁰⁰²⁰ It was formed from parts of the JNA, TO, and volunteer units.¹⁰⁰²¹ It inherited both officers and soldiers from the JNA, many of whom were of Bosnian Serb origin, as well as a substantial amount of weaponry and equipment.¹⁰⁰²² (The Muslim and Croat armies were formed of the former JNA officers and soldiers, i.e. reservists as the VRS, and a huge amount of the JNA armament was inherited by these armies too, but these armies were clandestinely formed at the beginning of 1991 and clandestinely armed by their international friends!)

1. Supreme commander

3098. As noted above, whether in the three-member or the five-member Presidency, the President was in charge of military affairs.¹⁰⁰²³ As the RS President the President was the Supreme Commander of the VRS,¹⁰⁰²⁴ a position that he held until July 1996.¹⁰⁰²⁵ (It was until mid-May 1996, when the President handed the office over to Ms. Plavsic!) The President's position as the Supreme Commander of the VRS was clearly recognised by the civilian and military Bosnian Serb leadership.¹⁰⁰²⁶ (That didn't depend on anyone's will, that was provided by the Constitution and Law on Defense, and Law on military!) During the time period relevant to the Indictment, the President was the highest authority in the VRS chain of command.¹⁰⁰²⁷ (As of 15 June 1992 the President was only in the strategic level of command, while he himself handed the operational and tactical command to the Main Staff of the VRS, see p. 3035, PARA 4! This was within the attitude that a war is waged by a state, but armed combats are carried out by a military people!)

3099. In an interview on 6 January 1995, the Accused stated that "all speculations about the army not obeying the civilian authority are out of place. As the supreme commander, I get all the respect from the officers and soldiers. [...] I want them to 'argue' with me about various solutions because it helps me to make the right decision, but when I make a decision, they carry it out brilliantly".¹⁰⁰²⁸ The Accused cited the example of an order he gave to "cut the territories taken by the Muslims on the Bihać battlefield, and to pursue and destroy them, I was absolutely sure that our army would comply. [...] Whatever the Supreme Command decides gets fully done”¹⁰⁰²⁹ (Why the President was asked such a kind of question? Because there were rumors that it was not so. It was well known that the President #stopped the VRS many times, just on the edge of a victory#, and the military people had every right to be disappointed and unsatisfied by that. Also, there was many disputes about limiting the VRS only to the Serb areas, which gave a tremendous advantage to their adversaries, who were in a position to choose when and where to attack the VRS, and the President was wrong to that aspect. The Prosecution witness said in his testimony that the President frequently objected to VRS for being too militant, which was a contradiction in adjecto, because it was the very essence of any army! But, the President didn't interfere in carrying out the battles, since it was handed over to the Main Staff, except when the President was asked by the internationals to intervene in stopping his own Army, or during the military riots in September 93 in Banja Luka!)

2. Command and control system

3100. The Chamber notes that, on 15 June 1992, in his capacity as the President of the Presidency, the President established a system of command and control in the VRS, which included a Main Staff—directly subordinated to him—that had command and control over the operative groups.¹⁰⁰³⁰ (That meant the operative and tactical level of command handed over to the Main Staff!)

3101. During the first months of the conflict, the President, Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić did not deal with issues that related to military affairs and warfare and Mladić enjoyed freedom in devising and executing military operations while claiming that he was fully subordinate to the Bosnian Serb political leadership.¹⁰⁰³¹ However, this restraint on the part of the Bosnian Serb political leadership waned starting in June 1992 when they began to gradually limit Mladić and eventually the “political power was on top”.¹⁰⁰³²

3102. On 30 November 1992, the President established the Supreme Command for the purpose of co-ordinating and improving the efficiency of the command system of the VRS.¹⁰⁰³³

3103. In a report, prepared by the Main Staff, analysing the combat readiness of the VRS in 1992, it is noted that the VRS had evolved into the “highest strategic organisational formation of the Serbian people in the former [BiH], capable of realising the strategic and other tasks assigned to it by the Supreme Command.”¹⁰⁰³⁴ It further stated that the VRS has been under a single control and command structure, despite the fact that initially we had a large number of different armies and paramilitary formations. This unity has been attained by following

In 1992, the Main Staff was subordinated to the Presidency. The Chamber recalls that on 17 December 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly replaced the structures of the Presidency by establishing a single President and two vice-Presidents; from then on the VRS Main Staff was subordinated to the President of the RS. See para. 98. The Chamber also notes the evidence that while the formal conditions for establishing the army were created on 19 May 1992, it took a while to pass the bylaws and implement regulations on the ground. See Momčilo Mandić, T. 5202 (15 July 2010). However, the Chamber notes that already on 14 May 1992 the Accused was involved in discussions as to the establishment of the command and control system. P3079 (Minutes of joint session of the National Security Council and the SerBiH Government, 14 May 1992), p. 2. See also D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), para. 276. well-known principles, such as: unity, continuity, flexibility, efficiency, operationability [sic] and security, with subordination and a single command having a crucial bearing on relations in the control and command process.¹⁰⁰³⁵

3104. The strategic level of command was within the remit of the Supreme Command and the Main Staff whereas the operative level of command was at the corps level.¹⁰⁰³⁶ However, as shown below, the President's involvement went beyond planning strategy and in several cases he was involved in the operational level as well. (Except the case of the military riots in September 1993 in Banja Luka, all other cases it was on a #direct request of the internationals, and always in terms of limiting an advancement and success of the VRS#!)

3105. The military chain of command went from the President to the Commander of the Main Staff and then down to the corps commands and brigades.¹⁰⁰³⁷ The Main Staff would prepare proposals for operations for the Accused; he would then consider them and issue instructions.¹⁰⁰³⁸ In the context of the SRK, Stanislav Galić testified that he could receive orders from both the President, as the Supreme Commander, and Mladić, as commander of the Main Staff.¹⁰⁰³⁹ Similarly, in a meeting between Milovanović and Bogdan Subotić, the former confirmed to the latter that the President, as the Supreme Commander, had the ultimate say and that in a situation where there is a standing order by Mladić the military subordinates had to obey it unless and until they received an order from the Accused.¹⁰⁰⁴⁰

3106. The Accused stated in 5 April 1993 that:

The Main Staff of the Army of Republika Srpska has performed the functions of the Staff of the Supreme Command and at the same time that of the superior command for operational and some joint tactical formations, which presupposed the agreement of the Supreme Command in respect of all tasks and objectives of the armed struggle. This relationship between the command structures and the organs of the government and the Supreme Command made it impossible for the Main Staff to make decisions absolutely on its own, rather every operational battle was politically endorsed on the basis of interests of the Serbian people, and approved by the highest authorities of Republika Srpska.¹⁰⁰⁴¹

3107. The military reporting chain in the VRS followed a hierarchical structure with the information originating from the lower military units being reported, up the chain of command, to the Accused.¹⁰⁰⁴² The Chamber recalls its finding that while there were disruptions in Subotić also stated that this chain of command was only formed after 12 May 1992 and that before this date the Accused had no formal control of the military. See also Petar Škrbic, T. 25971–25972 (7 March 2012); P1029, (Witness statement of John Wilson 4 November 2008), para. 127. The Chamber notes that according to Kuprešanin there was no co-ordination or subordination between the civilian authorities and the military authorities, as they each operated independently with their own chains of command, whereas, according to KDZ490 the SDS party in Sanski Most had enormous influence over the VRS, especially after October 1992, since the VRS Light Brigades were directly financed by the municipality budgets, except for former JNA officers who were still paid by the JNA. Vojislav Kuprešanin, T. 43518–43520 (14 November 2013); P3634 (Witness statement of KDZ490, undated), pp. 13, 38 (under seal) (testifying, inter alia, that when the SDS wanted to remove Colonel Basara, Commander of the 6th Sana Brigade, because he was “too soft for the SDS”, the SDS in Sanski Most exercised pressure on General Talić to remove him). See also P6510 (Excerpt of Vojislav Kuprešanin's interview with OTP), e-court p. 7. However, the Chamber notes that the Main Staff of the VRS, when it found it necessary, reminded the commanders of corps and brigades that they could receive assignments and orders only from the Main Staff of the VRS and the Accused, as the Supreme Commander. P3041 (VRS Main Staff Report, 31 March 1994), p. 5. See also Manojlo Milovanović, T. 25632 (1 March 2012); P4494 (Eastern Bosnia Corps Order, 1 April 1994), pp. 5–6.

telecommunications in 1992, the RS authorities were still able to communicate,¹⁰⁰⁴³ and notes that the VRS had at its disposal a superior communication system.¹⁰⁰⁴⁴ In its report analysing the combat readiness of the VRS in 1992, the Main Staff concluded with “a high degree of certainty” that the existing communication system met the needs of command co-ordination and reporting at all levels, from the Supreme Command, the Supreme Commander, the Main Staff to lower levels.¹⁰⁰⁴⁵ The Chamber also observes that Mladić and other members of the Main Staff had direct telephone contact with the President,¹⁰⁰⁴⁶ and that Mladić also visited the President frequently.¹⁰⁰⁴⁷ 3108. The Accused received regular reports from the army¹⁰⁰⁴⁸ and even during 1992, while the communication was more limited he received reports based on the modes of communication which were available.¹⁰⁰⁴⁹ [REDACTED] testified that the President “was exceptionally well informed about the complete situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina” and the army sent him regular written or oral reports.¹⁰⁰⁵⁰ (Since all of these reports had been available to the Prosecutor, was there any of alarming data, which would have to warn the President to act? The Chamber notes that the testimony of Milinić was marked by contradictions, bias, and indicators that he lacked candour. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard. Rather, the Chamber finds that this request is indicative of the extent to which the Accused was kept informed by the VRS about developments.

any of a potentially alarming reports? Have he tolerated any illegal activity of which he was informed?)

3110. The level of knowledge of the President regarding military issues was also apparent when he informed Bosnian Serb institutions about military developments in RS.¹⁰⁰⁵⁵

3111. Occasionally, the President visited VRS units in the field.¹⁰⁰⁵⁶ For example, the President was in the SRK command post at the time of the operation to take over Dobrinja in June 1992, given the importance of the operation, and, as consequence, the President was aware of developments in this operation.¹⁰⁰⁵⁷ (So what? #Nothing illegal# in the attempt to control Dobrinja, or in a conduct of the combatants!)

3112. Considering the above, the Chamber rejects the President's arguments that there was no communication with VRS units in the field and finds that such communications did exist.¹⁰⁰⁵⁸ As will be discussed in further detail below, the Chamber also rejects the President's argument that Mladić did not report to him.¹⁰⁰⁵⁹ With regard to the argument that there was a phenomenon of false reporting in the VRS,¹⁰⁰⁶⁰ the Chamber notes a few instances, in late 1994 and 1995, in which the issue was raised,¹⁰⁰⁶¹ but is not satisfied that the evidence demonstrates a phenomenon of false reporting within the VRS, nor that such alleged false reports could affect the Chamber's finding regarding the authority of the President over the VRS. (This is also #misunderstood and misinterprete#d: it was well known to the Chamber that the President had many other duties to do as the president, and that the reports directed to the President's office were red out by his advisors for the military questions (Gen. Subotic) and for the state security (Mr. Gordan Milinic) and that the President dedicated his attention only to these reports that were marked by his advisors. Both of them testified and confirmed this, as well as that there was no any alarming report to which the President didn't react properly. Also, the Chamber had heard that the reports from the units in the field had never reached the President unchanged or directly. All of the company reports had been integrated in a brigade report, and a brigade reports into a Corps reports, and all so reduced and integrated were sent to the Main Staff of VRS, where it was further selected and integrated into a unique report to the President. As of early 1995 there was a known rift between the President and Mladic, and in that period the President didn't know Mladis'c whereabouts, and that pertained to this period. Of course, the lowest and midd commands kept silent about some of their failures, but nothing crucial was hidden!)

The Chamber notes, for example, the Accused's reference in fn. 1123 to D325 (VRS Main Staff analysis of combat readiness and army activities in 1992, April 1993), p. 39, concerning the problem of understaffing in respect of officers and critical specialities in communications which affected the communication system and the battle readiness. However, the Chamber also notes that it was stated afterwards in the analysis that “[d]espite its being undermanned the signals corps has on the whole efficiently performed its tasks of providing good quality and uninterrupted communications links, whereby it has contributed to more successful control and command in all our units and commands.”

In the Chamber's view, the Accused's statement to Zametica that “[t]hey just send me lies”, following reading an intelligence report from Tolimir, was to indicate the Accused's dissatisfaction with the quality of the report. Zametica recalled in this context that the Accused said that in his view Tolimir was using only newspapers articles for his intelligence report. John Zametica, T. 42443–42444 (29 October 2013).

3. Relationship between the Accused and Mladić

3113. The Prosecution argues that the President had firm control over Mladić by virtue of his de jure powers as President and Supreme Commander.¹⁰⁰⁶² While the Prosecution admits tensions existed between Mladić and the President, it asserts that their disagreement did not concern the common purpose of the Overarching JCE but emerged from Mladić's complaints about the President undercutting the chain of command.¹⁰⁰⁶³ The Prosecution ultimately argues that the heated discussions and arguments between the President and Mladić were not a sign of an existing rift, but were rather healthy and constructive conversations within a superior-subordinate relationship.¹⁰⁰⁶⁴ (Since there was no any Overarching Joint Criminal Enterprise, there was no disputes between the two about the real Serb objectives, to protect the population and property, and to wait for a political solution. However, there were a frequent disputes about the convoys and restraint of the VRS units, and in these disputes the President was not always right in limiting the VRS and preventing his troops to enter Bihac, Gorazde, Srebrenica (1993) Sarajevo and several other sensitive points. If the VRS remained on Igman and Bjelasnica in August 1993, the war would end in a few weeks. The VRS had a lot of good reasons to be angry with the President, but the Chamber and the international law didn't!)

3114. In response, the President argues that he had no control over the VRS, and that there were de facto two commanders throughout the war: Mladić, who retained operative command of the military authorities as the commander of the VRS, and himself, who retained political and strategic command of the civilian authorities as the Supreme Commander.¹⁰⁰⁶⁵ The President further argues that from the beginning, there was a lack of co-operation, mistrust, and a chasm between Mladić and him and as a result, the President had little to no control over VRS operations.¹⁰⁰⁶⁶ (Neither he should have it, because he himself delegated his competence of the operational command to the Main Staff of the VRS. Why would a President run an operational command? No president all over the world do that, and that is why there are General Headquarters and commands! In spite of the evident rifts between the civilian authorities which were of a non-communist, if not of an anti-communist orientation, on one side, and the command cadre of the Army, educated and nourished in the communist system, there was no any criminal action of the Army as it.some members of the VRS may have committed, ad did commit, crimes, but it never happened as an army proper activity, with the knowledge of the competent commands. Always these perpetrators had hidden their misdeeds from the very immediate commanders!)

3115. As discussed earlier, on 12 May 1992, the VRS was established pursuant to a decision adopted unanimously at the 16th Session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly; Mladić who had assumed command of the JNA 2nd Military District two days earlier, was appointed as its Commander.¹⁰⁰⁶⁷ The President himself explained in April 1995 how he had sought out Mladić and supported his appointment:

I asked for Mladić. General Ninković, then a colonel, and General Perišić had visited me before that, and I had noticed Mladić's blunt statements in the newspapers. He was already in Knin then. I took an interest in him, and together with Mr. Krajišnik, I went to General Kukanjac's office and listened to him issuing orders and commanding around Kupres and Knin. We spent countless nights in the office of General Kukanjac at that time. President Krajišnik was already President of the Assembly, and I was just the president of the Party, I did not have any state function. We asked for Mladić and said that they should set up the headquarters as they saw fit, we wouldn't interfere.¹⁰⁰⁶⁸

3116. From the outset of their relationship, the President had authority to control the VRS, including over Mladić as its commander.¹⁰⁰⁶⁹ During the same 12 May 1992 Bosnian Serb Assembly session at which he was appointed Commander of the Main Staff, Mladić affirmed that “the President of the [SerBiH] should have command and control over the army”.¹⁰⁰⁷⁰ Mladić himself referred to the President as the “Supreme Commander”.¹⁰⁰⁷¹
3117. International observers noted that while Mladić did what the President or the Bosnian Serb Assembly directed him to do with respect to the VRS, there were occasions where Mladić did not necessarily do what he was ordered to do.¹⁰⁰⁷² While Mladić sometimes expressed different opinions in the context of international meetings, the President often took the lead and Mladić allowed himself to be persuaded by the President or deferred to him in the context of these meetings and indicated that he would do what the President said.¹⁰⁰⁷³ International observers noted that there was a “moderately healthy” relationship between the President and Mladić.¹⁰⁰⁷⁴
3118. According to Harland and Rupert Smith, the President and Mladić, as well as other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership, acted like a collective leadership; despite the existence of some tension between the political and military leadership, this tension was not destructive and they were “joined at the hip” and conducted themselves in a single direction.¹⁰⁰⁷⁵
3119. Michael Rose, who spent much of his time in Sarajevo meeting with the President and Mladić, testified that “it was clear” that they were at the peak of the pyramid of control of the Bosnian Serb forces.¹⁰⁰⁷⁶ He also testified that the relationship between the President and Mladić “was, as one would expect in a confused and brutal situation, of varying intensity” but that “generally speaking, the military were in support of the civil power, and they did not replace it”.¹⁰⁰⁷⁷ Throughout his time in BiH, he observed nothing to suggest there was disunity between the military and political arms of the Bosnian Serb leadership; thus, according to Rose, the hierarchy was functioning adequately.¹⁰⁰⁷⁸
3120. Wilson also testified that there seemed to be a very comfortable relationship between the Bosnian Serb civilian leadership and Mladić.¹⁰⁰⁷⁹ While Mladić was a strong personality, and capable of independent action, he would repeatedly say that he was a soldier with no political ambitions and ultimately he did “what his political masters told him to do”.¹⁰⁰⁸⁰
3121. At the end of 1992, Mladić also stressed that he and the President had a “natural relationship” and there were no differences between them; they were united and struggling for the same objectives.¹⁰⁰⁸¹ Whenever it was considered necessary, the Presidency would call on Mladić or his deputy to brief them on developments.¹⁰⁰⁸² Mladić visited the President frequently.¹⁰⁰⁸³ He and other members of the Main Staff had direct telephone contact with the President.¹⁰⁰⁸⁴ 3122. However, during the same period, international observers noted that Mladić was increasingly powerful and they speculated that the President might “be on the way out”.¹⁰⁰⁸⁵ At this time, the Accused had informed international observers that he wanted to move Mladić but this was unlikely to succeed.¹⁰⁰⁸⁶

3123. Mladić also gave the impression to international observers that nothing of military significance could or would happen in Bosnian Serb-controlled BiH without his specific approval.¹⁰⁰⁸⁷ At a meeting with Mladić on 4 May 1993, General Panić and Bulatović suggested that Mladić take the floor after the Accused at the Bosnian Serb Assembly session the following day where the Vance-Owen Plan was scheduled to be discussed and put to a vote, as “Mladić has the greatest influence on the Serbian people”, greater even than the President.¹⁰⁰⁸⁸

3124. In 1993 and 1994, the Accused and Mladić denied any rift between them. In August 1993, Mladić emphasised that he had never taken a decision by himself and that “all claims about some rift in military and political leadership are untrue”.¹⁰⁰⁸⁹ In June 1993, Plavšić attempted to “inflict damage” on the President by referring to a conflict between him and Mladić in public, however, according to Milovanović, there were never any open conflicts between the President and Mladić, “not even then or after that”.¹⁰⁰⁹⁰ They may have had “harsh exchanges of opinion” when discussing major joint tasks, but for him, this was a normal aspect of the relationship between the military and political leadership.¹⁰⁰⁹¹ Further, the President wrote to Mladić in April 1994 and emphasised the importance of the VRS respecting his authority and the decisions of the political leadership.¹⁰⁰⁹² At a 4 August 1994 briefing by commanders of the VRS, the President was recorded as saying: “Everyone is looking to find a rift among individuals in the leadership, especially between me and Mladić. They will fail at that, because Mladić and I talk about things as brothers [...] and our aim is to move together towards the same goal.”¹⁰⁰⁹³

3126. The President suggested that Milovanović replace Mladić as commander of the Main Staff on a number of occasions.¹⁰⁰⁹⁷ On 6 August 1993, the President presented Milovanović with a “fait accompli” in front of a large group of journalists, stating that he would hand over the army to Milovanović as commander of the Main Staff in place of Mladić; however, Milovanović said he would deny it without an Assembly decision to that effect.¹⁰⁰⁹⁸ In December 1993, the President was openly critical of Mladić to Milovanović because he was upset that he never knew Mladić’s whereabouts; he asked Milovanović to meet with him in Pale and stated again that it would be better if Milovanović were in command of the VRS.¹⁰⁰⁹⁹

Milovanović refused and stood by Mladić, who remained as commander of the Main Staff until the end of the war.¹⁰¹⁰⁰

3127. In September 1993, there were clear tensions between the President and Mladić, including during their exchanges in Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions in relation to a number of issues.¹⁰¹⁰¹ The President's authority remained clear, however, and the President himself emphasised the authority he held, stating: "I have issued an order to the general who is under my command, that is not testing, that is an order", "I am the Commander-in-Chief and I am ordering necessary measures to be taken".¹⁰¹⁰² The President also stated that of the civilian authorities, only he had the possibility of controlling the army and the army had to get "used to the fact that they are under the command and control of the civilian authority".¹⁰¹⁰³ The President further stressed at this meeting that if he did not continue to trust Mladić, he could and would have dismissed him, describing him as "the glorious fighter from Krajina".¹⁰¹⁰⁴

3128. In November 1993, UNPROFOR reported that the Serbs seemed to be "directionless", noting that the President is "blocked by Serbia and by the international community at large" and Mladić is "frustrated and is becoming increasingly bellicose".¹⁰¹⁰⁵ They observed that Mladić was more dangerous as he was feeling ineffective as a military commander and marginalised as an individual.¹⁰¹⁰⁶ (#UNPROFOR thus was spying#, and reporting a very sensitive information. There is a delicate question whether any other country in crisis should admit the UN forces, since they are privy to many secrete and vital information, which they share with another warring side, informing their country of origin and their superiors. During the mandate, they are very biased in favour of one side, and afterwards they use to testify at courts. The President was very humble and reluctant to disclose a huge material evidence about this issue, as well as the evidence of a detrimental effects of acting and presence of some fake humanitarians, compromising the highest international institutions, and some false journalists, whose conduct jeopardised lives of a genuine journalists reporting from the local wars!)

3129. There were similar disagreements and tension between the President and Mladić during meetings in 1994.¹⁰¹⁰⁷ On 26 April 1994, Milovanović spoke with Gvero over the phone in relation to an agreement with UNPROFOR whereby heavy weapons were to be withdrawn, or put under the control of UNPROFOR, and the President had ordered the weapons to be withdrawn; Milovanović told Gvero, "[f]uck it, pardon my French, you put my balls in a vice. [...] Well, because [the President] has ordered weapons to be withdrawn, Mladić doesn't allow it".¹⁰¹⁰⁸ Milovanović further stressed that "here's what's important, it's important that [the President] is making me pull out heavy weapons 20 km".¹⁰¹⁰⁹ In May 1994, Mladić proposed to the SDC that some generals who he believed to support the President be pensioned off.¹⁰¹¹⁰ In September 1994, Gvero complained about not having enough “real contacts with the state leadership”,¹⁰¹¹¹ and that the President was taking decisions without the approval of the Main Staff.¹⁰¹¹² (That was how Gen. Gvero understood the relation between the two, President and the Main Staff, as in the Soviet era. But he was wrong!) In October 1994, Mladić was informed that the President did not know what to do with him.¹⁰¹¹³ (None of these conflicts were about anyone’s crime, but always because of the international community intentions to influence the battlefield and mitigate the Serb superiority. Every single military all over the world would say that the President was wrong in slowing and stopping his own Army, preventing it to win the enemy!)

3130. The Chamber notes that although the President and Mladić may have had their differences, in the spring of 1995, they maintained their superior and subordinate relationship within the chain of command.¹⁰¹¹⁴ At a session of the Supreme Command on 31 March 1995, Mladić stated that he and the President had the greatest responsibility for the army, with the President “as the Supreme Command” and Mladić as “[his] right hand in the army.”¹⁰¹¹⁵ While Mladić also complained that the President had stripped him of his authority to make unilateral promotions of lower-ranking officers,¹⁰¹¹⁶ Mladić affirmed that the President, as the Supreme Commander, had the right to give orders.¹⁰¹¹⁷

3131. Furthermore, in a speech at the 50th Bosnian Serb Assembly session on 15 and 16 April 1995, the President reassured the attendees that despite rumours of a split between he and Mladić: “How can there be a split between the Supreme Commander and his subordinate commander? There is no split”, but further stated “[i]f there is a split, it is clear who will have to go”.¹⁰¹¹⁸ The President further stated he had not resorted to firing Mladić or any of his assistants, and that on the whole, he had a good personal relationship with Mladić (If there was any “personal” in these disputes, the President would be a very incapable and irresponsible leader. All the disputes had a doctrinary matters in it’s foundation, and not a single personal matter!) and that “he and his Main Staff members [...] respect and recognise me”.¹⁰¹¹⁹ Mladić responded later that despite the President’s public statements about replacing Mladić “at the stroke of a pen”, Mladić had made a commitment when he was sworn in and he requested that the Assembly and the deputies “take a vote of confidence in me and the Main Staff” and reassured them that “we’ll work together”.¹⁰¹²⁰

3132. However, further tensions between the VRS and the Bosnian Serb leadership were apparent during meetings in the spring of 1995.¹⁰¹²¹ On 29 April 1995, the President addressed a letter to the VRS Main Staff accusing them of preparing a coup d'état, and summoned them to a meeting in Pale.¹⁰¹²² On 1 May 1995, the President met with the officers of the Main Staff and Corps commanders in Pale and complained about the actions and Mladić's recent behaviour and the tension between the military and political leadership.¹⁰¹²³

3133. In the summer of 1995, the President communicated directly with Milovanović on a few occasions and forwarded him reports he received and decisions he made; this caused suspicion among the other generals.¹⁰¹²⁴ Milovanović reported this to Mladić, and cautioned the President that the "system of command was being duplicated"; however, Milovanović never refused any of the President's orders and merely forwarded them to Mladić.¹⁰¹²⁵ If no response was received, then Milovanović would act on the President's order.¹⁰¹²⁶ By August 1995, Mladić was more vocal and arrogant in his interactions with the President, and Mladić claimed that he was in charge.¹⁰¹²⁷ The President complained about the army, the difficulties in influencing the Main Staff and stated that the army, as a state organ, needed to be under the command of the state and not Mladić.¹⁰¹²⁸ There were also fears of a military coup but the President continued to speak in the capacity of the Supreme Commander of the VRS and in the interests of Serb unity.¹⁰¹²⁹

3134. During a meeting with journalist Robert Đurđević on 14 July 1995, the President told him that he had heard in April 1995 that Mladić was planning a coup d'état in compliance with instructions from Slobodan Milošević, so the President had to act to prevent it.¹⁰¹³⁰ The President told Đurđević that he had called a meeting of all senior officers, including Mladić, and had confronted them with the plan; afterwards the President had a one-on-one conversation with Mladić where, according to the President, the two of them had patched up their differences, at least so as to be civil and respectful of each other.¹⁰¹³¹ The President told Đurđević that Mladić had promised to work together with the President and other RS political leaders.¹⁰¹³² However, according to Đurđević, the President still did not seem to be "speaking very warm terms about Mladić" and he told Đurđević that he would have to pension Mladić off.¹⁰¹³³ The next day, on 15 July, in a meeting with Slobodan Milošević and Mladić, Akashi remembered Mladić being "under very tense pressure".¹⁰¹³⁴ Akashi recalled that the absence of the President at this meeting gave rise to some speculation about the relationship between the President and Mladić, but Akashi had no actual knowledge of what was taking place.¹⁰¹³⁵ (All of those meetings that were unauthorised by the President were a violation of the rules and good habits, but probably Mladic was not responsible for that!)

3135. On 2 August 1995, pursuant to a decision issued by the President, in his capacity as President and Supreme Commander, the Main Staff was renamed as the VRS General Staff and would be called the Supreme Command Staff in “times of war”.¹⁰¹³⁶ According to this decision, on 4 August 1995, Mladić was appointed as Special Advisor to the Supreme Commander, and removed as VRS commander.¹⁰¹³⁷ In response, on 5 August 1995, Mladić sent a notice to the corps commands, stating that the President’s decision to rename the Main Staff and to take over the authority of direct leadership and command of the VRS was unconstitutional and highly dangerous and could bring into question the results they had already achieved; he further stressed that such a decision could lead to the collapse of the VRS.¹⁰¹³⁸

3136. On 5 or 6 August 1995, Milovanović authored a petition that was sent to the Bosnian Serb Assembly and the President in his capacity as RS President on behalf of 18 generals.¹⁰¹³⁹ The petition stated the generals’ unanimous refusal to implement the Supreme Command’s order to reorganise the Main Staff.¹⁰¹⁴⁰

3137. However, even following Mladić’s removal as Main Staff commander, both the President and Mladić re-affirmed their subordinate-superior relationship. In an interview on 16 August 1995, the President stated that “[t]here is no conflict, the competence is very clear”; he was the President and Commander-in-Chief of the army and that Mladić was the second in the hierarchy, despite mutual criticism and disagreements.¹⁰¹⁴¹ Furthermore, at an SDC session on 23 August 1995 with the FRY leadership, during which Slobodan Milošević attempted to pressure Mladić to support peace and issue a statement which was contrary to the President’s position at the time, Mladić refused and instead stated that he would leave this to the politicians as he was “only a soldier of the people” and “not an elected representative”.¹⁰¹⁴²

3138. On 27 August 1995, the President abrogated his decision of 2 August 1995 to re-organise the Main Staff, including the decree appointing Mladić as Special Advisor to the Supreme Commander.¹⁰¹⁴³ Following the annulment of his decision, the President sent a letter to the

See also para. 174. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session held on 22 August 1995, the Accused reported on the conflict between the military and RS state organs, stating that if it was not resolved, it may have a “huge negative impact on the safeguarding of the [RS] territory and state”. P3146 (Minutes of 28th session of RS Government, 22 August 1995), p. 9. See also D3364 (Witness statement of Dušan Kozić dated 7 April 2013), para. 27.

VRS Main Staff generals, requesting that they “trust the state leadership” and the importance “finally for us to respect each other” and establish a relationship based on mutual respect.¹⁰¹⁴⁴

3139. However, on 5 September 1995, Akashi reported further miscommunication and discord between the President and Mladić, stating that “the pronouncements of the ‘RS’ civilian leadership and the [VRS] military leadership are clearly at odds” and that there had been a noticeable rupture in the RS power structure.¹⁰¹⁴⁵

3140. The Chamber received evidence from Defence witnesses that the relationship between the President and Mladić was always one of intolerance and that the President had de jure control over Mladić, but that he did not have control over him in fact.¹⁰¹⁴⁶ Furthermore, Defence witnesses testified that within the VRS structure, there was always a duality of command between Mladić and the President, starting with Mladić’s appointment as commander of the Main Staff and throughout the conflict.¹⁰¹⁴⁷ According to Mandić, there was a lack of trust and co-operation between the President and Mladić from the beginning and that Mladić did not respect orders issued by the President or other members of the Presidency.¹⁰¹⁴⁸

3141. However, the Chamber notes that the evidence of these witnesses, namely of Kuprešaniin, Zametica, Kozić, Kovač, and Ninković, in this regard is expressed in general terms and is often based on their own impression or opinion. (To be noticed: only the Defence witnesses weren’t entitled to their “impressions” or “opinions” while so many Prosecution witnesses testified only about their impressions, opinions or (hear-say)”!) The Chamber does not therefore find their evidence to be of much weight in this regard. In addition the Chamber finds that this evidence is outweighed by the volume of reliable evidence discussed above. Therefore, in light of all the evidence, the Chamber finds that while there may have been a lack of trust and periods of discord between the President and Mladić, the President and Mladić acted as a collective leadership and conducted themselves in a single direction. (A “single direction” was determined by the Assembly and was binding for all and everyone in the official structures! But, the ways of carrying out the tasks suffered from a doctrinary differences between an old-fashioned army officers and the new democratic and multiparty system!) The Chamber therefore finds that the President maintained his role as Mladić’s superior, had de jure control over him, and exercised such control in fact throughout the conflict.

See Prvoslav Davinić, T. 45529–45531 (16 January 2014) (testifying about a conversation between the Accused and Mladić on 4 September 1995, in which Mladić stated: “I cannot but act in keeping with your decisions, your directives, and in line with my legal authority”, and that Mladić’s statement did not indicate subservience to the Accused because Mladić had a “great deal of freedom to act” within the scope of his “legal authority”).

3142. The Accused, as the President, had the power to organise and implement plans for defence, order mobilisation, and command and control the army.¹⁰¹⁴⁹ (All of this had been taken as the President vices and crimes, objected by the Chamber in the following paragraphs of the Judgement: @) In addition, as the Supreme Commander, the President had the power to issue regulations, to define the organisation of the VRS, to appoint, promote, and dismiss officers of the VRS, to establish a system of command, and to monitor the implementation of orders.¹⁰¹⁵⁰ The President had also the power to issue decrees, instructions, orders, and requests related to the general planning for the preparation of the army, the mobilisation of the army, and its deployment.¹⁰¹⁵¹

3143. In application of these powers, the President, for example, issued instructions to different units in the VRS and occasionally sent direct orders to corps and brigade commanders to answer directly to him.¹⁰¹⁵² (This was #always in connection with the specific requests of the internationals engaged in Bosnia, to influence the course of war#! The President was in a position to guarantee some moves to the mediators, and thus he wanted to be secure in fulfilling the commitments!)

3144. The President's personal involvement at the operational level can also be seen in his order to the Main Staff, on 5 December 1992, to provide reinforcements for the Drina Corps; to "disarm the opponent in the local communities of Cerska and Konjević Polje and take control of the Milići-Drinjača-Zvornik and Konjević Polje- Bratunac road"; and to inform him personally on the realisation of this order.¹⁰¹⁵³ Also demonstrative of his level of involvement are his instructions at a meeting of the Supreme Command, on 7 May 1993, to be directly in charge of approving operations; that all offensive operations be halted; and that any action should be approved by the Supreme Command personally.¹⁰¹⁵⁴ (The "approving operations" is still a strategic command, and it was always in connection with the relation between the Serb side and international representatives!)

3145. The President also exercised his power to order the VRS to carry out mobilisation.¹⁰¹⁵⁵ For example, already on 20 May 1992, the President issued a decision on the general mobilisation of all military conscripts and the requisition of material for the needs of the VRS and noted that this decision would be delivered to the "competent organs of all municipalities"

¹⁰¹⁵⁰ See para. 167; P2603 (SerBiH Law on the Army, 1 June 1992), art. 174 (stating, inter alia, that the RS President is the Commander-in-Chief of the VRS).

See also P1493 (Letter from Ratko Adžić to Radovan Karadžić, 12 June 1992) (by which the Accused was informed of the progress of battles around Sarajevo and was asked to use "his influence" for additional weaponry to be provided).

¹⁰¹⁵⁴ P1483 (Ratko Mladić's notebook, 2 April–24 October 1993), pp. 89–90. The Chamber notes John Zametica's evidence that he did not think that the Accused was "particularly involved" in "day-to-day operative and tactical level", that the Accused was "largely uninterested" in the operation and tactical conduct of warfare, but notes that at the same time Zametica testified that he "never asserted that [the Accused] had not been involved" whatsoever. John Zametica, T. 42457–42458, 42522 (29 October 2013). The Chamber does not find that Zametica's qualified observation regarding the involvement of the Accused in operative and tactical level affects the Chamber's conclusion in this regard.

of the SerBiH.¹⁰¹⁵⁶ This decision was delivered and acted upon at the municipal level.¹⁰¹⁵⁷ (All in accordance with the Constitution, laws and other binding documents!)

3146. The President exercised his power to promote VRS officers¹⁰¹⁵⁸ and to reassign VRS officers.¹⁰¹⁵⁹ As mentioned above with regard to his relationship with Mladić, the power to dismiss officers was acknowledged by the President himself when he stated at the Bosnian Serb Assembly that if he did not trust Mladić he would have dismissed him and added: “I have the authority to do that.”¹⁰¹⁶⁰

3147. The President also assisted the VRS in his capacity as RS President. In April 1994, following a letter from the Main Staff informing that there were volunteers from the SRS who had been operating in two municipalities without the knowledge or consent of the VRS,¹⁰¹⁶¹ the President reminded the municipal authorities that this interfered with the system of single command and control. The President also required to be informed about developments so he could take measures.¹⁰¹⁶²

3148. The Chamber observes that Mladić took note in 1994 that while subordination was good at the Main Staff and corps level, insubordination was found at the lower levels,¹⁰¹⁶³ and it also observes that in 1995 lack of co-operation and certain acrimony existed between the civilian and military authorities.¹⁰¹⁶⁴

3149. The Chamber notes that according to Božidar Vučurević officers of the VRS turned to Belgrade rather than to the RS.¹⁰¹⁶⁵ The Chamber finds that Vučurević was not forthright in this regard and does not accept his evidence. The Chamber also notes that Momir Bulatović testified that the President told Milošević that “he did not understand why the VRS took Jajce, a Muslim town that they would never be able to preserve” and that Bulatović “believe[d]” that the Accused’s statement to Milošević referred to the lack of the Accused’s control over military operations.¹⁰¹⁶⁶ The Chamber does not find that Bulatović’s interpretation of the President’s statement has any weight as Bulatović was not present when it was made. (This kind of dismissal of so neutral testimonies of a distinguished persons that testified on the Defence’s summon is pretty #compromising the neutrality of the Court#, and a fairness of the trial. This is particularly true since the Chamber acceptem a numerous and convincing evidence that “Belgrade” didn’t communicate with the President since August

The Chamber notes that, while the Accused’s decree is dated 14 July 1995, according to a memorandum of the Drina Corps “the handover of duties of the Drina Corps Commander was carried out on 13 July 1995”. However, it finds that this minor inconsistency with regard to the date does not affect the substance of the document of the Drina Corps, according to which reassignments were made “[p]ursuant to the Decree of the President of Republika Srpska”. 1, 1994 and the end of August 1995, while never interrupting its connections with the Main Staff of the VRS. Also, President Bulatovic testified about the President resistance to taking Jajce, and the Chamber had a numerous and genuine evidence that the President always claimed for a modesty in territorial issues, and against taking places and territories that couldn't be included in the Serb entity, in accordance with the President Platform of 22 April 1992, D1587, stating that there wouldn't be a fait accompli i.e. that a forcefully taken territories wouldn't be recognized!)

3150. Finally, Colm Doyle testified that he informed the President, via one of the President's officials, of a planned attack against a TV station in Sarajevo and that the President replied that the attack will not take place. However, the TV station was bombed, and Doyle relayed information to the President that he "was going to hold him personally responsible" for the attack.¹⁰¹⁶⁷ When the President met with Doyle later that day he said to Doyle that he had not ordered the attack, that he had condemned it, and that he "didn't control all of the military all of the time."¹⁰¹⁶⁸ The Chamber finds the President's statement to Doyle regarding his lack of continuous control over the military to be of minimal weight. The President had a clear interest in distancing himself from, and minimising his involvement in, the attack after Doyle told the President that he would be held personally responsible for it and that he was going to condemn this attack on television. (However, the very same Colm Doyle left a very convincing evidence that he knew the truth, and his words that had been written down confirmed the President position, see P941: p. 2

4. Secretary Vance asked what Dr Karadzic was prepared to do in order to stop the fighting. Lord Carrington said world opinion was firmly against the Serbs, particularly after the recent escalation of fighting around Sarajevo. Dr Karadzic said that the Muslims were responsible for the escalation. The Serbian forces had permission to fight back only in order to defend themselves. The Muslims regularly shelled their own people. They could have been responsible for the heavy shelling of Sarajevo on 24-25 August. Commandant Doyle said that the Serbian paramilitaries, backed by the JNA, had started the fighting by shelling the old town of Sarajevo in April. The Muslims might be responsible for some provocations. But the Serbs had...

Therefore, #in April 1992 the President was not in a position to command to anyone#, as many witnesses confirmed, see Gen. Subotic testimony commented in Para of this Judgement: 3105, foot note 10042). Subotic also stated that this chain of command was only formed after 12 May 1992 and that before this date the Accused had no formal control of the military. There is also another UN document stating that after withdrawing from Bosnia, the JNA left up 50,000 armed people without any political control, see: S23900) 3151. In addition, the Chamber finds that the limited evidence regarding the Accused's lack of control over the VRS¹⁰¹⁶⁹ is not only of minimal weight in and of itself, but that, in any event, it is inconsistent with the overwhelming evidence to the contrary, described above. (This is #completely irrelevant without any evidence that the VRS committed any crime as an army#, with all the prerequisites needed for an army to act, with the knowledge of ¹⁰¹⁶⁷ Colm Doyle, T. 2678–2679 (21 May 2010); Colm Doyle, P918 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. S. Milošević), T. 25278–25281.

¹⁰¹⁶⁹ The Chamber also notes evidence of a rift in August 1994 between the RS leadership and the FRY concerning negotiations, which included a message from the FRY leadership to the VRS to refuse obedience to, and not to be manipulated by, the RS leadership. P1486 (Ratko Mladić's notebook, 31 March–3 September 1994), pp. 277–279. However, the Chamber notes that this message was not accepted by the VRS officers and did not affect the hierarchical control of the RS leadership over the VRS. P1486 (Ratko Mladić's notebook, 31 March–3 September 1994), pp. 283, 286 (according to which Milovanović qualified this rift as "not ideological conflicts, but conflicts in the struggle for power" and Miletić stated that "[d]emanding that the officers turn against the Serbian leadership is against the people, and that is the biggest crime").

commands, orders and tasking of units. Further, even if this happened, there is a direct connection to the President required in order to charge him for that, but the Prosecution didn't establish any!

5. The issuance of military directives in pursuance of the Strategic Goals

3152. Above, the Chamber found that the Strategic Goals, which embodied the fundamental objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership were communicated to the VRS and formed a core element of its military strategy.¹⁰¹⁷⁰ They were the basis for the military operations that were formulated in the seven main VRS military directives issued between June 1992 and March 1995.¹⁰¹⁷¹

3153. These directives constituted “the highest level of political-military direction” for the conduct of the war.¹⁰¹⁷² They were “act[s] of command used by the highest echelons of command” that delegated long-term tasks and assignments.¹⁰¹⁷³ They regulated the actions of the military forces by setting tasks in the form of guidelines governing the division of responsibilities between the army, police, and civilian protection.¹⁰¹⁷⁴ They identified objectives, forces and resources that should be used in achieving the objectives, and contained basic guidelines.¹⁰¹⁷⁵

3154. There were three methods of drafting directives: the “complete” method, the “shortened” method, and the method that did no include any consultation with the organs and commands.¹⁰¹⁷⁶ The complete method entailed that the Commander of the Main Staff first opened the discussion, the corps commanders then gave a briefing, and the chiefs of sectors of the Main Staff—such as security, logistics, training, and morale—in turn also provided input.¹⁰¹⁷⁷ During this analysis, conclusions would be made related to the level of accomplishment of the tasks defined for the previous year, before moving on to define the tasks for the following year.¹⁰¹⁷⁸

3155. On this basis, the Commander of the Main Staff, Mladić, would formulate the basic principles and the command organs would submit proposals to him.¹⁰¹⁷⁹ He would then adopt the proposals, and the operative organ would integrate the adopted proposals into a unified text;¹⁰¹⁸⁰ this text would then be forwarded to the President, as Supreme Commander.¹⁰¹⁸¹ The President would provide guidelines and revisions would be made pursuant to his instructions.¹⁰¹⁸² Directives were either signed by the President as Supreme Commander or by

However, he then stated that he was not privy to or aware of the editing process within the cabinet of the Supreme Commander. Ljubomir Obradović, P4444 (Transcript from *Prosecutor v. Mladić as the Commander of the Main Staff but in any event, the President examined and approved all of the seven directives mentioned above.¹⁰¹⁸³ (#The Chamber didn't establish thus assertion to be true#. First of all, the President did have his Military Cabinet and the military advisor, General Bogdan Subotic. He regularly red all the documents that the President was supposed to sign and advised him. Such a checked document was signed and recorded in the protocol, sealed by the Presidential Seal and marked by the number of the Protocole, and deposited a copy of it. The #Directive 7 didn't have any of these prerequisites: neither Gen. Subotic red it, nor it was drafted in the Presidential office, nor was it sealed by the Presidential seal, nor marked with the protocole number, nor the copy had been saved#. It was obvious that the document had been drafted in the Main Headquarter, by a known officer, it was sealed by the Seal of the Main Staff of VRS, it had a protocole number of the Main Staff of the VRS. The Chamber had all of it in the file, and the Subotic's testimony, what all together confirmed that neither the Directive 7 was drafted and signed in the Presidential office, nor the sealed, nor red, and that it was signed while the President was in a short visit to the Main Staff of the VRS. Once signed, the directive was finalised and could not be altered or amended by others who might receive it.¹⁰¹⁸⁴ Once finalised, the directive would be forwarded to the assistant commanders and the chiefs of sectors would receive copies.¹⁰¹⁸⁵ (If it was written, signed and analysed by the President, how come the Directive 7/1 had been altered and purified from the critical sentences without the President's approval#?)

3156. Thereafter, Mladić would produce a further executive order or directive effectively operationalising the directive.¹⁰¹⁸⁶ The Main Staff was then responsible for disseminating the directive to subordinate units in accordance with the directive.¹⁰¹⁸⁷

6. Conclusion

3157. The Chamber concludes that from May 1992 the President had continuous de jure authority and control over the VRS, which he exercised in fact, while serving as the President of the SNB, President of the Presidency, and later President of the RS and Supreme Commander. The President was regularly informed of the developments in the VRS and in the field. The President was involved at the strategic level and, when he desired, at the operational level as well. (In consequence to this "Conclusion" all the charges pertaining to the incidents and armed conflicts before 20 May 1992 should be dismissed and the President acquitted!)

ii. Bosnian Serb MUP

3158. The Minister of the MUP was the head of the MUP.¹⁰¹⁸⁸ The Chamber recalls that Mićo Stanišić was Minister of the MUP from 24 March 1992 until the end of 1992 and again from

January 1994 until July 1994 and that Tomislav Kovač was acting Minister from September 1993 until January 1994.¹⁰¹⁸⁹

3159. The Chamber recalls that the Law on Internal Affairs, issued on 23 March 1992, established a network of CSBs to carry out the work of the Bosnian Serb MUP.¹⁰¹⁹⁰ The CSBs were located in Banja Luka (for the ARK), Trebinje (for the SAO Herzegovina), Doboj (for the SAO of Northern BiH), Sarajevo (for the SAO of Romanija-Birač), and Bijeljina (for the SAO of Semberija) and co-ordinated the functions of the SJBs.¹⁰¹⁹¹ The SJBs, which were established within the territory of each municipality, were tasked with dealing with all public security matters.¹⁰¹⁹² The Chamber further recalls that the SBP, commanded by Goran Sarić, functioned as a combat unit and was divided into five detachments located in Banja Luka, Trebinje, Doboj, Sarajevo, and Bijeljina.¹⁰¹⁹³ PJP, which participated in combat activities, were organised by the CSBs at the regional level and their detachments were located at each of the five CSBs.¹⁰¹⁹⁴

1. President's powers

3160. As Supreme Commander of the VRS, the President had the authority to issue orders for the deployment of the police and define the basis for the organisation and size of the police force during times of war in order to protect the rights and duties of the RS and its citizens.¹⁰¹⁹⁵ The Presidency declared an “imminent threat of war” on 15 April 1992.¹⁰¹⁹⁶ In addition, the Chamber recalls that on 15 May 1992, Mićo Stanišić issued an order formalising the co-operation of the Bosnian Serb MUP and VRS, such that the MUP personnel would be organised into “war units” and be re-subordinated to the VRS during their participation in combat activities.¹⁰¹⁹⁷ Therefore, the Chamber finds that the President had de jure authority over the MUP.

3161. Branko Đerić testified that Mićo Stanišić took his orders directly from the President and that the President was in charge of the “use of the police”.¹⁰¹⁹⁸ He explained that as Minister of the MUP, Stanišić should have implemented government decisions; instead he ignored the government and failed to attend government sessions.¹⁰¹⁹⁹ (This certainly was a very wrong conception of the Government and MUP, remembered from the previous system. #The MUP doesn't implement any government decisions, but implement only the law and it's own decisions#. Prime Minister Djeric was a very good professor, but he had a trouble to understand functioning of the ministries, particularly of those connected with the security! During the war there are additional duties of President, particularly if in a daily contact with foreigners who asked for many explanations that only police knew!) The Prosecution points to one example of Stanišić receiving instructions from the President in an intercepted conversation from 18 April 1992.¹⁰²⁰⁰ (Here is another drastic misunderstanding of document and misuse of it, P5606, a conversation between the President and Minister

Stanisic on 18 April 1992. To have in mind, at that time the President didn't have any state post, nor a command competence:

Karadžić: Well, eh, a patrol got lost, one, one team of European observers.
Radovan:

So, somebody from the ECMM contacted the President to ask what happened with their team:

Karadžić: They were on Pale yesterday and they said it was very successful and Radovan: constructive and so on.

Stanišić: Ok.
Mićo:

Karadžić: Today they went to meet with those people from Pale and then proceed Radovan: for Višegrad.

Stanišić: Ok.
Mićo:

Karadžić: Do you know, do you have your connection, can you find out what Radovan: happened to them?

Stanišić: We'll see now. They had guarantees on our territory. They asked for it Mićo: this morning and were secured the passage to Brusac. I know that and I don't know, if they started towards Višegrad downwards to Ustiprača.

Obviously, the situation was dramatic, because the ECMM team didn't appear in Višegrad Stanišić: The situation is very bad in Ustikolina.

Mićo:

Karadžić: Is it?
Radovan:

Stanišić: Yes, by God, they are gathering up in Ustikolina. We have right
Mićo: information about that one.

Karadžić: Eh, and do our crazy people from Foča know that?
Radovan:

Stanišić: They do, they do, they have been told.
Mićo:

Karadžić: Where will they strike?
Radovan:

Stanišić: They are moving towards Sarajevo, it seems so, by God.
Mićo:

Stanisic was talking about Ustikolina, which was the Muslim part of Foca. He had spoken about a gathering of the Muslim combatants, but the Chamber didn't find out who was gathering there! But, this was a crucial element for understanding the conversation! The Muslims were expected to strike somewhere!

Karadžić: Where can they go, across Pale, right?
Radovan:

Stanišić: Yes, down to Renovica.
Mićo:

Karadžić: Aha. Well, we're not going to let them on Pale, are we?
Radovan:

Stanišić: Well, they will have no success, but they have to go. They are deserting Mićo: that place and retreating. They get their weapons from Konjic, down to Igman, Trnovo, Delijaš and then it gets to Ustikolina.

Karadžić: To Ustikolina, is it?
Radovan:

Stanišić: And, and good weapons too.
Mićo:

Karadžić: How would they then, then they won't withdraw. They will try Radovan: something on Pale or are they going to Sarajevo?

Stanišić: Yes, they will start this way.
Mićo:

Karadžić: With those weapons?
Radovan:

Stanišić Mićo:	So that they are moving through their own territory.
Karadžić Radovan:	Aha.
Stanišić Mićo:	These guys up there know very well. I informed them, so they'll take certain steps.
Karadžić Radovan:	OK. That chain should be interrupted.
Stanišić Mićo:	Yes, there is a truck of mortars in Visoko for Švrakino village.
Karadžić Radovan:	Aha...
Stanišić Mićo:	But it cannot get through and we... from the town of Ilijaš only up there...
Karadžić Radovan:	To shell... Hadžići as well, tell them not go across, towards Kiseljak.

The entire conversation, apart from the concerns about the ECMM team, was about the Muslim gatherings, their armament, not the Serb, and their intention to attack Pale, the seat of the RS Government and Presidency! Not a single order, only a discussion how to prevent the Muslims to deliver armament to Visoko and Svrakino village, both the Muslim areas close to the Serb areas! In this intercepted conversation, the President and Stanišić discussed the whereabouts of a team of European observers and then moved on to discuss the arming of a group of people preparing for an attack on Foča.¹⁰²⁰¹ The President told Stanišić to stop the chain of weapon delivery and inform Hadžići and Iliđža not to cross over to Kiseljak.¹⁰²⁰²

3162. In addition, the President issued an order with respect to the deployment of police forces into combat. On 20 May 1992, the President ordered that manpower in SRK units was to be replenished by agreement with the MUP and SJBs in, inter alia, Iliđža, Vogošća, Novo Sarajevo, Rajlovac, Sokolac, and Pale.¹⁰²⁰³ (So what? #That was his duty#, and according to the law, the Army couldn't subordinate the police unit without an approval of President! No crime, no violation of any rule, irrelevant for this case!) On 2 June 1992, he ordered two PJP platoons to be redeployed to Nedžarići and put under the military command of the SRK via, inter alia, Iliđža where they were to report to Tomislav Kovač regarding the continuation of their journey.¹⁰²⁰⁴

3163. Municipal Crisis Staffs and War Presidencies issued orders to MUP units. For example, the Crisis Staff in Sanski Most issued orders to the SJB.¹⁰²⁰⁵ (Crisis Staff meant municipal authorities, renamed because of the crisis, hoping that the "crisis" wouldn't become a war. When it was obvious that it would be a war, then the War Presidencies had been established, but again composed of the ex officio officials! Their decisions were equal to those made by the municipal assemblies. The Municipalities did have their competences on the use of MUP units, particularly in a war, and it was regulated by the Law and Constitution, as quoted above!) The Banja Luka CSB instructed its subordinate SJBs to implement decisions of the ARK War Presidency.¹⁰²⁰⁶ The Chamber further notes that the Bratunac Crisis Staff issued the decision that the Bratunac TO and SJB would take over the defence of the Serbian municipality of Bratunac and issued decisions authorising the SJB to disarm citizens, and that members of the SJB assist other Serb Forces with actions against Bosnian Muslims during the take over of Bratunac.¹⁰²⁰⁷ (A #very mean alterations in Once made error in some paragraphs, the error is repeated in other paras throughout the Judgement#!) In Foča, the SJB acted alongside the TO during the take-over.¹⁰²⁰⁸ The Rogatica Crisis Staff ordered the implementation of the division of the Rogatica SJB.¹⁰²⁰⁹ In Vlasenica, the Crisis Staff was involved in the co-ordination of the take-over of the town, which was carried out with police acting alongside other Serb Forces, and its aftermath, which involved the police confiscating weapons from non-Serbs and arresting those who refused to surrender their weapons.¹⁰²¹⁰ The Vlasenica Crisis Staff also commanded a Special Police Platoon,¹⁰²¹¹ and was able to issue orders to the Chief of the SJB in Vlasenica.¹⁰²¹² In Hadžići, the police implemented a decision of the Crisis Staff to arrest and detain all Bosnian Muslim men of military age.¹⁰²¹³ The Vogošća Crisis Staff also had the authority to provide instructions to the Vogošća SJB.¹⁰²¹⁴ Finally, the Chamber notes that in many municipalities, the head of the police was also a member of the Crisis Staff.¹⁰²¹⁵ (Senseless to comment, since all of that was a #first class legal and constitutional obligation of the municipal authorities#. How possibly this trials could have been conveyed #without any knowledge of the domestic legal system#?)

2. Communication and Bosnian Serb MUP reporting system

3164. The Chamber recalls that the system of reporting within the MUP consisted of daily reports and other reports about more significant security information.¹⁰²¹⁶ Information was collected from the municipal level by the SJB, then sent to the regional level of the CSB, and finally sent to the Bosnian Serb MUP.¹⁰²¹⁷ The information was also sent from the MUP to the Bosnian Serb Government, including to the Presidency.¹⁰²¹⁸

3165. The Chamber received evidence that there were some difficulties in communication during the first year of the conflict in 1992.¹⁰²¹⁹ However, there were always communication channels between the Bosnian Serb MUP, CSBs and SJBs.¹⁰²²⁰ Communication between the CSB and the ministerial level was on a daily basis, with communication several times a day if there was a problem or every couple of days if there were no real developments.¹⁰²²¹ Mandić testified that the police, in the absence of a special problem, were not bound to report regular activities to the President but reported to the Prime Minister.¹⁰²²² In addition, the Chief of the Bijeljina SJB reported to Mićo Stanišić on the situation in the municipality.¹⁰²²³

3166. Until the end of 1992, the SDB did not send any reports to the RS President; this was done through the MUP. Only from 1993, were SDB reports sent to the state leadership of the RS (President, President of the Assembly, Prime Minister, and other government bodies as required).¹⁰²²⁴ The President received the information verbally and via written reports multiple times per month.¹⁰²²⁵ (There was a necessity to have the members of Presidency informed, not as much because of any need for their action, but because of their contacts with the international representatives who seeked confirmations of their knowledge about terrain!)

3. Conclusion

3167. The Chamber finds that the President had de jure authority over the Bosnian Serb MUP from at least 15 April 1992, which he exercised in fact, in his position as President of the Presidency, and later President of the RS, and Supreme Commander of the VRS. (#Before VRS, during JNA#! Before 12 May 1992 the President didn't have any de jure authority over the Police, and before 20 May over the Army, as already established. He had some influence and respect, but not de jure authority!) Although the evidence of his involvement in the day to day operations of the MUP is limited, the evidence establishes that he had the ability to re-deploy police officers and give instructions to Mićo Stanišić and lower level MUP officials. In addition, the evidence establishes that while the communication system was sometimes interrupted, the President frequently received reports from the MUP. (Was anything criminal, or unlawful in the President action pertaining to the MUP, or it was sufficient to establish tha the President existed, the MUP existed, and they had a contacts?)

3168. The Chamber further finds that Crisis Staffs and War Presidencies played a role in commanding or co-ordinating the tasks of MUP units in the Municipalities. In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the President exercised authority over such institutions and played a central role in instructing how they would function.¹⁰²²⁶ In light of the co-operation between MUP units and Bosnian Serb authorities, the TO, and the VRS, the Chamber finds that the President supported the use of MUP units during combat activities throughout the Municipalities. (#All regulated by the Constitution and laws#, as depicted in the comments above. Only the Accuse from his position was authorised to submit the police units to the Army command, otherwise there would be misunderstanding and skirmishes as in any other country. What is wrong with all of that?)

iii. Territorial Defence

3169. In the second half of 1991, in the context of the conflict in Croatia, the President issued instructions to the SDS and to municipalities in which SDS was in power, to mobilise all citizens into the TO and to subordinate them to the command of the JNA.¹⁰²²⁷ The President monitored this mobilisation effort.¹⁰²²⁸ (A #Constitutional and law obligation#, it couldn't be otherwise! See the laws and Constitution!)

3170. As long as the JNA officially operated in BiH territory, the President supported the mobilisation of armed forces that operated under the JNA's command.¹⁰²²⁹ (#Obligatory, mandatory. All other conduct was a violation of several laws, as Mr. Izetbegovic said: "yes we maybe violated some laws, but there are laws and laws#!) With regard to the mobilisation and the arming of Serbs who were not subordinated to the JNA, the Accused's position at that time was that the SDS would not arm the Serbs but would not prevent them from acquiring weapons in other ways.¹⁰²³⁰ However, the Chamber also recalls that the SDS in Bijeljina, Bratunac, Rogatica, Vlasenica, Ključ, and Hadžići provided Serbs with weapons while the JNA still operated in BiH.¹⁰²³¹ (All of it under the surveillance of the JNA, since all of them had been JNA reservists! But, even if it was not so, since the other two sides formed a secret and very numerous armies, the Serbs were entitled to take a precautionary measures! The Tribunal made on of the gravest error when #prevented defences to depict the conduct of other sides and contexts#!)

3171. On 27 March 1992, before the Bosnian Serb Assembly, the President gave instructions to the newly-formed Serb municipalities to "organise the people so that they can defend themselves" as a TO and place them under the command of the JNA present at that time.¹⁰²³² (#All of it ordered by the Constitution and laws#!)

3173. The SNB decided that the President, as the President of the SNB, would co-ordinate the command of the TO forces.¹⁰²³⁷ The SNB adopted decisions on the appointment of the acting commander of the TO and the chief of staff of the TO,¹⁰²³⁸ the procurement of uniforms and insignia for the TO with instructions on markings,¹⁰²³⁹ and the securing of salaries for members of the TO.¹⁰²⁴⁰ On 24 April 1992, it was decided to charge the President with the responsibility of establishing a Town TO Staff.¹⁰²⁴¹ Subotić asked, on 27 April 1992, for assistance from the Military Command in filling “most vital personnel” posts in the TO and also for the provision of uniforms.¹⁰²⁴²

3174. In a report of 5 June 1992 from the Novo Sarajevo Crisis Staff to the President, it was stated that the Crisis Staff had mobilised about 900 people over the previous two months, including about 700 in the Lukavica and Tilava areas and about 200 in Grbavica.¹⁰²⁴³ In addition, as found above, on 16 April 1992, following an order by the Presidency of the SerBiH, the Bratunac Crisis Staff issued an order for general mobilisation and also required military conscripts assigned to Bratunac TO units to immediately respond to the mobilisation.¹⁰²⁴⁴ Similarly, the SAO Birač Crisis Staff ordered, on 29 April 1992, mobilisation in the entire SAO of Birač.¹⁰²⁴⁵ (All of it happened before the President took the post in Presidency, but nothing of it was wrong or illegal!)

3175. The VRS reported that during the period before 20 May 1992 “the municipal authorities and party leaderships, primarily of the [SDS], mobilised the Serbian TO as a self-organised defence form of the Serbian people.”¹⁰²⁴⁶ It also reported that in 1992 infantry units “grew on a massive scale out of the territorial defence and other units” and that they were only used at the beginning of the war “according to the decisions of crisis staffs and similar administrative bodies”.¹⁰²⁴⁷ (So what? Is it the Tribunal’s position that the Serbs shouldn’t do anything to protect themselves, #not even a measures obligatory due to the laws#?)

3176. On 12 May 1992, after the formal establishment of the VRS, the SerBiH TO was directly integrated into the VRS. The President, as the President, was to determine the organisation of the integrated SerBiH TO units and staff.¹⁰²⁴⁸ The President participated in the creation of the VRS by organising the manpower at the local level and facilitating the transfer of personnel and supply from the JNA.¹⁰²⁴⁹

The Chamber notes the evidence of Subotić that the attempts of the “central authorities” to procure military uniforms for TO members were only aimed at “providing logistical support for the TO units” and not commanding them. D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), para. 272. However, the Chamber finds that this evidence is not consistent with evidence regarding the creation of a hierarchical command structure nor with Subotić’s own statement with regard to P5565 (Request of the Ministry of Defence for Personnel, 27 April 1992) in relation to which he testified that this was part of “our efforts to organize an efficient command and control over the TO units up until the formation of the VRS.” D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), para. 271.

3177. Based on the above the Chamber finds that the President was instrumental in the creation of the SerBiH TO and local TO units in mid-April 1992 and that he had de jure authority over the TO. In addition, given the President's authority over Crisis Staffs,¹⁰²⁵⁰ the Chamber finds that the President also had de facto authority over the TO. (What is illegal there?)

iv. Paramilitary units 14.12.

1. President's initial attitude towards paramilitary units

3178. As stated above, while the JNA was operating in BiH, the President's position was that the SDS would not arm the Serbs but would not prevent them from acquiring weapons in other ways.¹⁰²⁵¹ (#How possibly a political party prevent people to take care about their security#? This is a job for the Army and Police. And what would happen if the Patriotic league was the only side well armed, and buchered many Serbs, who were prevented by their party to secure themselves? Besside that, the law prescribed that any prevention of population to defend would constitute a high treason, see P4743, the #SFRY Constitution:

Article 237

It shall be the inviolable and inalienable right and duty of the nations and nationalities of Yugoslavia, working people and citizens to protect and defend the independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and the social system of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia established by the S.F.R.Y. Constitution.

Article 238

No one shall have the right to acknowledge or sign an act of capitulation, nor to accept or recognize the occupation of the Federal Socialist Republic of Yugoslavia or of any of its individual parts. No one shall have the right to prevent citizens of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia from fighting against an enemy who has attacked the country. Such acts shall be unconstitutional and punishable as high treason. High treason is the gravest crime against the people and shall be punished as a serious criminal offence.

:Let us see again what is envisaged in the #BiH Constitution, D1262:

Article 253.

No one has the right to recognize or sign any capitulation, or to accept or recognize the occupation of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina or any part of it. No one has the right to prevent the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina from fighting against an enemy who has attacked the country. Such acts are unconstitutional and shall be punished as treason.

Treason is the most serious crime against the people and shall be punished as a serious criminal act.

Not to have any dilemma, the BiH defense system was an unalienated part of the SFRY system, according to both, the SFRY and BiH Constitution, see the BiH Constitution, D1262:

¹⁰²⁵⁰ See paras. 3072–3096.

¹⁰²⁵¹ See paras. 3169–3170.

Article 260.

Territorial defense in the Republic shall be the broadest form of armed, organized, general popular resistance, and an integral part of the unified armed forces of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Territorial defense shall be organized in the Republic and municipalities as a unified system.

However, the Chamber notes that already at the end of 1991 the SOS, commanded by Duško Šaović, was formed and received orders from the SDS in Sanski Most.¹⁰²⁵² (First let us see how it was #regulated in the Federal and BiH Constitutions: D1262,;

Article 256.

The municipality shall regulate and organize territorial defense and civil defense, organize and carry out preparations of the populace, economy, public agencies and government bodies, direct the preparations of organizations of associated labor, local authorities and other self-management organizations and units, ensure the accomplishment of other tasks of national defense as established by law, and in time of war lead general popular resistance on its territory. The municipality shall fulfill its rights and duties in the area of national defense in accordance with the constitution, laws, system of national defense and the defense plans of the federation and the Republic.

Article 257.

Within local authorities, working people and citizens shall organize themselves immediately and prepare to take part in resisting the aggressor and offering protection and rescue from military action, and to carry out other tasks of defending the country, in accordance with the constitution, laws and municipal statutes.

This was a quite satisfactory #legal basis for a self-organisation of the citizens in Sanski Most or elsewhere#, and a municipal authorities were expected to facilitate the self-defence and self-protection of the population. It is quite known that 1991 there was a state of BiH, and a local TO-s and reservists existed in coordination with the JNA, and an immediate command of the president of municipality. What does it have to do with the President? When the entire Sanski Most TO came under the control and command of the 6th Sana Brigade, the SOS didn't satisfy the command of the Brigade concerning the discipline, and they had been expelled from the Brigade. ALL OF IT, THE EXISTENCE, ORGANISATION, FORMATION OF THE LOCAL UNITS WAS LEGAL AND LEGITIMATE. IF THERE WAS A CRIMES, IT USUALLY WAS COMMITTED BY A PARTS OF THE UNIT, OR EVEN THE WHOLE UNIT. BUT, THE CRIME OCCURE ONLY WHEN IT WAS COMMITTED, NOT WHEN A UNIT WAS FORMED, BECAUSE IT WAS LEGAL, LEGITIMATE AND OBLIGATORY. See how the SFRY Presidency regulated this issue, D4282:

Municipalities shall direct and coordinate preparations for all-people's defence and social self-protection of local communes, organisations of associated labour and self-managing communities of interest in its territory. Municipalities shall establish, financially support and prepare Territorial Defence units, civilian defence and an observation and reporting service. In order to conduct this work professionally they shall establish Territorial Defence staffs and civilian protection staffs and national defence secretariats (departments) and secretariats of the interior. In war, the municipalities shall exercise control of the all-people's resistance in their territory, in accordance with the situation and specific conditions.

See para. 1925. The Chamber recalls that in April 1992, the Crisis Staff decided to integrate the SOS as a special unit of the TO that was the obligation of the Crisis Staff, the TO, the Army, Police, to subjugate any armed force, or disown them and arrest them if and when possible and notes that the order was never executed because the SOS refused to be placed under the TO's command. See para. 1928; KW540, D4449 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Stanišić & Župljanin), T. 3325 (under seal). The Chamber finds, therefore, that the SOS in Sanski Most remained a paramilitary formation. It did remain a paramilitary formation, but not under the control of the SDS, particularly not by the central organs of SDS.

These provisions are rebutting many charges, such as the President appeal that municipalities “control everything on their territory” and other actions, derived from these and other provisions. #The Prosecution should have all of it known and not pose a fake and false charges#!)

3179. Mandić testified that in March and April 1992 the municipalities controlled and co-ordinated the activities of the paramilitary formations active in their respective territories.¹⁰²⁵³ At around the same time, the President stated before the Bosnian Serb Assembly that “[w]e know that our people have armed themselves. We don’t know the various ways and means by which this was done, but we do know that the people have enough weapons”.¹⁰²⁵⁴ He added, however, that they did not have paramilitary units and called for the urgent creation of Crisis Staffs and for the organisation of TOs to be placed under the command of the JNA or reserve officers.¹⁰²⁵⁵ (This was #completely legal and legitimate, and the only right move, therefore #EXCULPATORY#!!)

3180. In mid-April 1992, following a question by Vance about the presence of Arkan and Serb irregulars in BiH, the Accused and Koljević claimed to have never seen Arkan and that “somebody” invited Arkan to Bijeljina after a problem was caused by a Serb in a café, following which “Muslims even sent a cable thanking Arkan”.¹⁰²⁵⁶ (#Hiding the crucial document by the late disclosure, otherwise the last sentence of this paragraph wouldn’t be possible, as the entire Bijeljina case#! This is again a mess, because this wasn’t the incident caused by a Serb, but by the Muslims. The incident caused by a Serb happened several days prior to that, and the perpetrator was arrested and handed over to Tuzla, where the police, majority of the Muslim ethnicity, processed him. But the Defence is prevented to submit the proves that the Muslims started the skirmishes, and #Arkan came about 15 hours later#. Had the ECMM document been disclosed timely, everithing would be clear, because the ECMM interviewd many Muslims in Bijeljina about Arkan and his conduct, and all of them commended Arkan for his action and theatment of civilians. It was also clear from the document of the HVO inteligenca, concerning Hasan Tiric and his task to occupy Bijeljina given to him by the Muslim secret army, to be done on 31 March 1992! There is a criminal report and indictment against the same Tiric and 161 of his associates, see:D3142)

3181. During an interview that was published on 23 April 1992, the Accused was asked how he justified that “Arkan Serbian militia are still seizing control of large sections of Bosnian territory”, to which he responded that “[t]hose militias are paramilitary groups. They arrived in Bosnia to respond to the infiltration by units of regular Croatian army in Her[z]egovina”.¹⁰²⁵⁷ When he was asked whether he agreed to disband the paramilitary forces he answered that the Bosnian Serbs did not have an armed force and that “[w]e have always asked the Serbs not to mobilize, unlike the Muslims”.¹⁰²⁵⁸ (#Before VRS, during JNA#! It is again confused. The Serbs asked the Serbian people #not to mobilize in any ethnic army#, but instead to respond to the JNA mobilization calls. There is a mistake in translation. In English it said: “The notion of territory is entirely relative”, while in the Serbian it was translated as “relevant” instead of relative, or irrelevant, and this is a mistake. The President said: “relative” and added “irrelevant”. However, in this very document, in April 92 the President said that all refugees will have the right to return, it was just signed. But the entire Judgement is based on hearsay and on no relevant document. Also the President denied any division of Sarajevo, and spoke about administrative reorganisation!)

3182. The Chamber recalls that the Bijeljina Crisis Staff invited Arkan to the municipality and that the take-over of Bijeljina on 1 and 2 April 1992 was carried out, inter alios, by the local TO, the police, the JNA, and Arkan's men who operated under the supervision of the Bijeljina Crisis Staff.¹⁰²⁵⁹ (#Before the VRS, before the war#! The Trial Chamber is abusing its conspirative capacity, but it can not be tolerated: the Bijeljina Crisis Staff didn't exist, and everything based on this false assertion is false itself. There existed only the Party Crisis Staff, and the Crisis Staff of SAO Semberija and Majejica. #BUT ALL OF THAT HAD HAPPEN DURING THE SR BIH, A COMMON Government and common Presidency, and had nothing to do with the SDS or its structures. What is necessary to do to prove a pure undoubted fact? No a reasonable chamber or any court could afford itself such an arbitrary, comfortable and irresponsible conclusions!) Davidović stated that although Mićo Stanišić knew what Arkan and his staff were doing in Bijeljina, Stanišić dared not interfere because of Arkan's links with the Serbian MUP.¹⁰²⁶⁰ In April 1992, Mandić was also aware of Arkan's involvement in Bijeljina and that Arkan had "introduced order".¹⁰²⁶¹ (It had to be the common police which was supposed to establish the order, but it didn't function neither in Bijeljina, nor in Bosanski Brod on 25 and 26 March, three days earlier, when the Croatian forces (from Croatia proper) entered BiH and in two days killed many Serb civilians. The BH organs didn't want, and the Serbian component of these organs couldn't do protect people without the Minister's approval, to stop killing the Serbian helpless civilians. But, the Minister was a Muslim, and he didn't protect the Serb citizens of BiH!)

3183. Starting in early April 1992, Arkan's men also operated in Zvornik municipality, in conjunction with the police, the Zvornik TO, and the JNA.¹⁰²⁶² (At that time, the President didn't have any political or a state role, and the JNA was a legitimate state Army, and all others such as TO, volunteers, all of them were under the JNA competence!) In Bratunac, in mid-April, Arkan's men operated together with the Serb Forces that consisted of JNA troops, TO members, and local reservists.¹⁰²⁶³ The same as the above! In Iliđza, they co-operated with the local forces in April 1992.¹⁰²⁶⁴ And how the Arkan's men went in Iliđza? Let us see who invited Arkan's men to Iliđza D01248, p.12

13 Legija: Well, to start with, you know that DRAGIŠIĆ who..

18 Legija: Who called us and all. Now, who is Dragišić? Nobody. He has nothing to do with the officials at Iliđza, living in Belgrade which can be seen from the next sentence: (D01248, p. 20

25 Legija: And now I'll have to see, I'll have to find a solution.

26 And as for Dragiša, give him what he fucking deserves.

Obviously, Legija is in Iliđza, and Arkan and Dragiša are in Belgrade. There are documents that even more drastically illustrate the negative attitude of the RS officials and the Arkan's men, See: P5675, pp. 3-4.

¹⁰²⁶⁰ P2848 (Witness statement of Milorad Davidović dated 22 June 2011), para. 125. Davidović also testified that Arkan's men were controlled and subordinated to the Serbian MUP and that he had a training camp at Erdut for which he had received the consent of the Serbian MUP. See para. 232. Davidović himself was borrowed from FRY to help, but it was when there was no common state.

¹⁰²⁶² See paras. 1245–1246, 1252, 1255, 1319, 1361. The Chamber noted that the local authorities in Zvornik faced difficulties in controlling the actions of the paramilitaries but that, in some cases the paramilitary formations carried out their illegal activities with the knowledge and consent of members of the Bosnian Serb authorities. See paras. 1286, 1288.

¹⁰²⁶⁴ See para. 2142.

Ražnatović Željko:	Why, what was with Mladić.
“Captain Legija”:	Well, we stopped 7.200 refugees...
“Captain Legija”:	And I suggested to Mladić to exchange them for the barracks there.
“Captain Legija”:	You know, we are humane people, that kind of bullshit and Mladić told me after they said that to check it out with my men.
Ražnatović Željko:	What did he say to you?
“Captain Legija”:	That I should check it out with my men.
“Captain Legija”:	They just don’t want to accept us for who and what we are.
Ražnatović Željko:	Yes, yes.
“Captain Legija”:	I don’t think I can argue with them anymore. These people from up there are rather going to arrest me.
“Captain Legija”:	Or this Karadžić guy up there. They are holding hands with the Muslims up there.
“Captain Legija”:	All what they do is arguing over who will be in charge, and nobody wants to talk about how to organise the attack this offensive to take Sarajevo.
Ražnatović Željko:	Exactly.
“Captain Legija”:	I talked with Šulc and Bojke and I don’t know I think the best would be to go back there.
Ražnatović Željko:	That would be the best. Go and check whether there is any chance that you take the helicopter from there?

And that is how went and how #ended the Arkan’s men presence in Iidza#! They came on an invitation of some guy named Dragisic, who lived in Belgrade, they hadn’t been welcome, they met a rejection from General Mladic, and they couldn’t even contact Karadzic, whom they characterised to be in good terms with the Muslims, (in Serbian: “on se ljubaka sa Muslimanima” meaning, he is in a sort of love with the Muslims!) How possibly after those genuine evidences anybody can allege any connection between the President and any paramilitaries!) At the beginning of May 1992, Arkan’s men participated in the attack on Brčko in conjunction with Serb units of the JNA, active and reserve police officers, soldiers, military reserves, and a TO battalion.¹⁰²⁶⁵ (#Absurdity!!!# “Serb units of the JNA!!!# The JNA was not a “Serb units” but the only legal federal army, and President Karad`i} didn’t have any competence over it! There the Federal Presidency should be asked about that, not the President, who have heard about that much later, and sent the special police unit, enforced by the Davidovic’s unit from Belgrade, to settle the situation down. While present in BiH, the JNA had it’s own troubles with all but with the Serbs, particularly around bridges on rivers, or an important crossroads, but it had nothing to do with the President, or his associates, or the local authorities!) Similarly, after Rogatica was attacked on or about 22 May 1992, Arkan’s men were posted in Borike ready to start operations as soon as Kušić, who commanded the Rogatica Brigade, so ordered.¹⁰²⁶⁶ (Why this Judgement skipped to mention who attacked Rogatica? It was well known that the #Muslim extremists attacked Serbs in Rogatic#a with the aim to take the entire municipality, instead to share it with the Serbs, and to form their own municipality! Those who read this Judgement would be unclear who did attack Rogatica, and by an inertia many would conclude that the Serbs attacked themselves!)

3184. The Chamber notes the evidence that Arkan was not subordinated to the RS authorities. Milan Martić testified that Arkan was close to the federal SDB and that “he was practically there in that capacity”.¹⁰²⁶⁷ Martin Bell testified that “Arkan took orders from nobody”;¹⁰²⁶⁸ however, he noted that Arkan “couldn’t have got across the border through the roadblocks without some collusion somewhere and somebody letting his men across”.¹⁰²⁶⁹ (And who that would be who would dare and would be capable of stopping such a mighty unit?) John Wilson stated that Arkan’s men “enjoyed cooperation with Mladić by the fact that they were able to move about freely in an otherwise relatively tightly controlled area.”¹⁰²⁷⁰ (#This is a guessing, not a testimony on facts!#)

3185. With regard to the events in Zvornik in early April 1992,¹⁰²⁷¹ KW317 testified that while there was an attempt of the SDS to negotiate with the Muslims in Zvornik, Arkan and his group arrived and took control over the situation. Arkan rejected the idea of negotiating and he launched an attack without the authorisation of the local authorities in Zvornik. KW317 added that they had no means of contacting the President and he was not aware of anything that would suggest that the President knew of Arkan’s attack on Zvornik, let alone approved it.¹⁰²⁷² Similarly, Šešelj testified that the President had no role to play in the events in Zvornik in early April 1992 and did not have any power to exert any influence.¹⁰²⁷³ (Right! In mid April a secretary in the MUP named Radmila called somebody in Belgrade to ask who was in control of Zvornik. Therefore not even the police knew who was in control of Zvornik, see...)

3186. However, as depicted above, Arkan’s men were in contact and co-operated with RS authorities. What authorities? A local in Zvornik were slapped and threatened by Arkan, while there is no evidence that the central authorities in Pale had even knowledge, let alone any leverage. We have heard what Mr. Legija reported to Arkan about the local Ilidza authorities, as well as the central authorities towards them. See: D01248, see . In addition, Kuprešanin testified that when he and other deputies from ARK called an extraordinary session of the ARK Assembly to receive explanations from the President about recent events involving Croatian and Muslim forces in the ARK Municipalities, Arkan interrupted the session while the President was not present and stated that he had come with 300 volunteers; he demanded that the republican authorities authorise him to defend the municipalities given that the VRS was not doing so.¹⁰²⁷⁴ (Obviously, it was in 1995, when the RS was attacked by Croatia itself, the FBiH and NATO. At that moment Arkan asked to be allowed to participate as a volunteers, which was regulated by the law, and then they had been subjugated to the MUP, and didn't make any crime. At the beginning of the war nobody needed any authorisation, because the #JNA had a priority over the local TO-#s.

3187. The Chamber recalls that when Davidović reported to Mićo Stanišić that some of Arkan's men had taken over the SUP in Bijeljina, Stanišić commented that he knew, that nothing else could be done, and that's "how it ha[d] to be".¹⁰²⁷⁵ Stanišić also told Davidović that Arkan's men were in Bijeljina and Zvornik "helping to liberate territory that they believed should become part of the [RS]".¹⁰²⁷⁶ The evidence also shows that at the same period, after Arkan had entered Bijeljina, Davidović was at a meeting in Belgrade where further activities of the Serbian MUP were discussed.¹⁰²⁷⁷ Arkan arrived at this meeting, which was also attended by the Accused, Momčilo Krajišnik, and Mićo Stanišić.¹⁰²⁷⁸ (It was a very dramatic period in Sarajevo, and that is out of question that the entire leadership of the Serbs in Bosnia had been in Belgrade! Particularly the leadership wouldn't attend any meeting of the Serbian MUP! Had it been so, there would be many media reports about that, and they certainly wouldn't spend their time with these persons, but rather with the Serbia and international high officials! #This witness corrected himself several times during the cross examination, because he admitted that he didn't know many crucial data when testified or gave his statements, see his testimony in this case!)

3188. Davidović also testified that during a meeting with the President and Mladić around May 1992 at the Lukavica barracks, some of Arkan's men arrived. According to Davidović, Mladić was angry and the President stated, "[i]t's all right, we asked them to come. They should help with the liberation of Sarajevo. And, if they can do it, let them do it. Let them take whatever they can take."¹⁰²⁷⁹ (#That never happened#, and it is illogical anyway. First, had it been said, #Mladic would have it in his diaries. Second, there was no any Serb plan to "liberate Sarajevo" ever! Nobody could hear such a sentence, because the President and the Serb side as a whole had never meant to take anything in Sarajevo which already wasn't the Serb settlement! Finally, from the telephone conversation of the "Arkan's man" Legija it was absolutely impossible that this happened, or that the Arkan's men could get close to the President of the Republic of Srpska!)

3189. However, in an interview in November 1993, the Accused claimed that not a "single soldier from Serbia was fighting at the beginning of the war, only Arkan was in Bijeljina, but only briefly, however, and not at our invitation".¹⁰²⁸⁰ Certainly, at that time Serbia didn't have its own Army, except for TO. The JNA was a Federal Army. When asked whether Arkan was also in Ilidža, the President replied in the negative stating "[w]e have Šešelj's and Arkan's followers but they are our boys, however, who are only wearing their symbols."¹⁰²⁸¹ #Everyone could have proclaimed himself as an Arkan's or Seselj's man#. As it is evident from the intercept, Legija reported to Arkan that he couldn't get in touch with Karadzic, and that they are not welcome in the RS. See: P5675 above!

Davidović commented that in light of this meeting Arkan probably did "what he was authorised to do" and he believed that given that there was discussion of tasks and activities that the Accused knew about Arkan's activities. So, Mr. Davidovic "believed" something what "probably" was happening!!! The meeting wasn't on the territory of the RS at all, why the President would interfere in what the Serbian MUP was discussing. There was nothing to corroborate this "memories" of Davidovic. How come nobody else mentioned such a meeting?)

3190. In addition to Arkan's men the Chamber noted that Mauzer's Panthers, whose commander was also the commander of the SAO Semberija TO, operated in Bijeljina with the support of the Presidency of the Bijeljina Municipal Assembly and under the supervision of the Bijeljina Crisis Staff. (The BN Crisis Staff didn't exist!!! For other, that was right, but Mauzer wasn't "also the commander of the SAO Semberija TO, but his Panthers was a legal unit of the Semberija TO. In addition, as same as Arkan, Mauzer had a bad reputation, but just after the war Mauzer passed tests of the SFOR and OSCE, and became a high official of the MUP RS. Nobody ever reported him for any crime, but only for a rude behaviour, and nobody indicted or sued him whatsoever!) During the take-over in April 1992, Mauzer's Panthers operated in conjunction with the local TO, the police, and the JNA.¹⁰²⁸² (There was no any take-over, and Panthers itself was a TO unit. It was a defence of the Bijeljina municipality from the Muslim extremists, and it was carried out by the official forces, the Police, the TO and JNA. That was the first class obligation due to the legislature, see the excerpts from the SFRY – P4743, and BiH D1262 - Constitutions, pasted above!) In April 1992 Mauzer's unit also operated in Zvornik,¹⁰²⁸³ and at the beginning of May 1992 participated in the attack on Brčko, in co-operation with Serb units of the JNA, active and reserve police officers, soldiers, military reserves and a TO battalion.¹⁰²⁸⁴ (The Chamber treathed the Serb military actions as if the Serbs came from some other state. This was the Serb country too, and the Muslim community, their leaders and extremists tried to take it for themselves, while the Serbs defended agains such a campaign! Everywhere where the JNA participated, all others were a parts of the operation, because the JNA was superior to other armed forces. When the JNA withdrew, the TO participated in all needed battles, mainly under the VRS command!)

3191. With regard to Šešelj's men, the Chamber noted that in April 1992 they operated in conjunction with the Serb Forces in Bratunac.¹⁰²⁸⁵ Šešelj's men also operated in Zvornik,¹⁰²⁸⁶ in Hadžići in co-operation with the TO,¹⁰²⁸⁷ in Novo Sarajevo with the VRS and the police,¹⁰²⁸⁸ and took part in combat activities in Vogošća alongside the Bosnian Serb authorities.¹⁰²⁸⁹ (Inaccurate! None of these combatants were from Serbia. They had been a members of the Serb Radical Party of Mr. Seselj, which was not opposed to the SDS and they had the right to participate in the combats as any other Bosnian Serb!)

3192. In addition, on or about 22 May 1992,¹⁰²⁹⁰ Šešelj's men were involved in the attack on Rogatica.¹⁰²⁹¹ The Chamber notes Šešelj's testimony that all members of the SRS who went to BiH as volunteers joined the VRS or the TO and that the SRS party never sponsored or supported paramilitaries,¹⁰²⁹² but finds his testimony in this regard to be unreliable.¹⁰²⁹³ The ¹⁰²⁸² See paras. 608, 611–612, 672. The core of Mauzer's Panthers were SDS members close to the leadership of the Crisis Staff in Bijeljina. See para. 233. The Chamber also found that it was only after paramilitaries started undermining the authority of the local institutions by forming their own parallel authorities and also attacking Bosnian Serbs that the municipal authorities sought to exercise some real control over paramilitary units, and that there were difficulties in controlling Mauzer and his unit which opposed the attempts by Davidović and Andan to restore order in the municipality. However, following demands by Mauzer for his expulsion and the arrest of one of Arkan's men by Davidović's unit, Davidović's authority was obstructed by the Bijeljina Crisis Staff and his unit was ordered to leave for Belgrade. ¹⁰²⁹³ The Chamber does not find this evidence to be reliable given the interest of Šešelj in minimising his own involvement in this regard. In addition, the Chamber notes that in a later interview Šešelj said that he was a true friend of the Accused "as long as [the Accused] pursues this kind of politics" and that Chamber also recalls that Šešelj met with the Accused a few times each year during the war.¹⁰²⁹⁴ (#Apple and oranges#. It doesn't make any sense. As if "the President" was a famous commander of paramilitaries, so a meeting with the President means that Seselj supported paramilitaries! Both of them lived in Sarajevo at the same time, both of them were a public persons before the politics, both of them belonged to the corps of dissidents from the previous regime, and had spent some time in a different prisons, at a different times. They used to meet before the war too. So, this fact that they met doesn't help this finding of the Chamber!)

3193. The White Eagles also operated in conjunction with the Serb Forces in Bratunac in April 1992.¹⁰²⁹⁵ (#Before VRS, before Karadžić had any command#) In addition, they operated in Rogatica in March 1992 with the JNA and TO;¹⁰²⁹⁶ in Zvornik in April 1992 with the Zvornik TO and the JNA;¹⁰²⁹⁷ and in Ilidža with the co-operation of the local forces.¹⁰²⁹⁸ The Chamber found that the White Eagles took part in the main attack on the town of Foča that commenced on the morning of 8 April 1992, in conjunction with soldiers from Serbia and Montenegro and the Foča Tactical Group.¹⁰²⁹⁹ The White Eagles also participated at the beginning of May 1992 in the attack on Brčko in conjunction with Serb units of the JNA, active and reserve police officers, soldiers, military reserves and a TO battalion.¹⁰³⁰⁰ (#Absurdity#! A "Serb units of the JNA" didn't exist, this is an invention of the Tribunal, and this indicates the #Tribunal as primarily an anti-Serb institution#. But, who were the White Eagles? What was the BS leaders relation with them? The "BS leadership never heard any name of the commanders, but it was mentioned that it was a party formation of SPO (The Serb renewal movement, Vuk Draskovic, melted in the JNA!)

3194. The Chamber found that members of the Yellow Wasps would regularly report to the Zvornik Crisis Staff, had close co-operation with, and were issued arms by the TO and were subsequently under the command of the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁰³⁰¹ (#Not even a bit of honesty#. The Yellow Wasps cooperated with the local authorities while they had been the the #JNA volunteers#, but after they reneged and became paramilitaries, then the authorities turned against them, and vice versa: the Yellow Wasps attacked, had beaten and humiliated the local officials. They would never do that if the authorities didn't turn against their conduct!)

3195. Plavšić acknowledged during a session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, in November 1992, in the presence of the Accused,¹⁰³⁰² that following the call of the "president of the Republic" for volunteers, she sent letters in order to gather anyone who wanted to fight for the Serb cause in RS, and that she sent letters, inter alios, to Šešelj and Arkan.¹⁰³⁰³ (Here is what Ms. Plavsic really said, P1105, p. 20:

Minister STANIŠIĆ, it is the truth, not rumour, Minister, that after the statement by the President of the Republic, i.e. his call to volunteers in all Serbian lands and all other Orthodox countries, I sent letters to all addresses. My intention was to gather anyone willing to fight for the Serbian cause and bring them together, so letters were sent out. You talk about paramilitary and non-paramilitary formations, you will have to excuse me, that has nothing to do with me. I was looking for the people who are willing to fight for the Serbian cause, who are willing to fight in the territory of Republika Srpska. The letters were sent to the Soviet Union, to ŠEŠELJ, Arkan and Ms. Plavsic denied any idea that she was connected to any paramilitary, see line 5! Also, she mentioned that the President invited a volunteers to come to join the RS struggle. The issue of volunteering was a legal and legally regulated by the Presidency of SFRY, and volunteers had been equalised with all other soldiers, with the rights and obligations prescribed by the law. #So, neither the President, nor Ms. Plavsic meant that a volunteers should come to become paramilitaries#, but to participate in the defence according to the law, and there was nothing illegal in it. many volunteers remained in the VRS until the end of the war as a very disciplined soldiers. Some of these groups soon turned to a paramilitaries, since there was no the JNA any longer, and the VRS wasn't in a position to discipline them yet, while the municipal authorities could only continue to pay them as at the beginning, and to fear that the "volunteere" may arrest or kill them! The Chamber had a sufficient evidence to this regard, and shouldn't twist them meanings of words! After the state organs and the VRS consolidated their power, the paramilitaries had been banned, disbanded and if didn't follow this, had been arrested!) Mandić testified that Plavsic "was an advocate of having all paramilitary units from territories where Serbs lived outside BiH coming to the assistance of their brethren [...] in the religious war being waged there",¹⁰³⁰⁴ and was the "bridge" between Bosnian Serbs and the people who came from other states to the conflict.¹⁰³⁰⁵ (The existence of volunteers, as well as a call for them were legal and legitimate. Once registered, the volunteers were equated with other members of the regular armed forces! Here is P6171, a regulation of the engagement of the volunteers, issued by the Presidency of SFRY in 1991, P6171:

1. Pursuant to regulations in article 119 of the Law on All People's Defence, during the immediate danger of war, ~~the Yugoslav People's Army and Territorial Defence~~ are reinforced, among others, with volunteers, who are, from the moment ~~they join units and institutions of the Armed Forces of the SFRY, equal in all things with soldiers or military conscripts.~~

3. A volunteer can be assigned to an appropriate duty and task in a unit or institution of the Armed Forces of the SFRY, according to the reinforcement requirements and service requirements of the Armed Forces of the SFRY.

¹⁰³⁰⁵ Momčilo Mandić, T. 4660–4661 (6 July 2010). According to Mandić, while Đerić supported Plavsic, he and Mićo Stanišić opposed Plavsic's approach to paramilitaries. Momčilo Mandić, T. 4625–4626 (5 July 2010). The Chamber notes that Davidović testified that he heard from many sources that the Accused invited those who wanted to fight for RS to report as volunteers in BiH and join units of the army. See Milorad Davidović, T. 15473–15474 (28 June 2011). The Chamber rejects this portion of Davidović's evidence as it is based on unattributed hearsay. The Chamber also notes Redžić's assessment that the paramilitaries were formed by leaders of the SDS. Izet Redžić, P3189 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajišnik), T. 5070–5071. The Chamber notes that Redžić was the president of the Executive Board of Vlasenica, but, as he could not elaborate the basis for his assessment, the Chamber does not place any weight on his assessment.

7. Volunteer formations currently engaged outside the Armed Forces of the SFRY on the carrying out of certain military assignments and volunteers currently in the units and institutions of the Armed Forces of the SFRY must bring their position in the Armed Forces of the SFRY into accord with the regulations in this order within 30 days of the day this order takes effect.

Th
paragraph No. 7 was a basis for the President's order of 13 June 1992, P3057

The Presidency of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina at its session held on June 13, 1992, on the basis of its authority, brought on putting a ban on formation and operations of armed groups and individuals on the territory of the Republic which are not under the unique control of the Army or the Militia.

1. Formation and operations of all self-organized armed groups and individuals are banned on the territory of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The existing groups and individuals are obliged to put themselves under the unique command of either the Army of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina or the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, within three days.

2. The Presidency of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina disowns the groups which would continue with their operations independently and will order the strictest sanctions provided by law for their existence and operations.

3. Their placing under the unique command of the Army or the Militia implies strict respect for the provision of the International Military Law.

This order of the #President clearly differentiated the legal volunteers from all the paramilitary# and other independent groups and individuals, disowning the later, and therefore no the RS official could be liable for their deeds after this Order!)

3196. Milorad Dodik testified in broad terms that paramilitary groups which operated in BiH were not under the control of the RS authorities.¹⁰³⁰⁶ Similarly, Momir Bulatović testified that the expulsions that were suffered by “all ethnic groups” was the result of the “collective mentality of the population” and that it was impossible for any political leader to “control the population”.¹⁰³⁰⁷ The Chamber, however, does not find that these broad statements have any weight.¹⁰³⁰⁸

(#Unbelievable! The two presidents of the republics are not trusted#! Apart from that, there was more evidence, like from Radinovic and others, that it was a deeply rooted tradition that a population leaves territories that their army lost. This is one of the things that no reasonable chamber would decide that way!)

¹⁰³⁰⁶ See Milorad Dodik, T. 36919 (9 April 2013). See also Milorad Dodik, T. 36852 (9 April 2013).

¹⁰³⁰⁷ See D3051 (Witness statement of Momir Bulatović dated 25 February 2013), para. 20.

3197. The Chamber finds, to the contrary, that the fact that paramilitary formations, such as Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, Mauzer's Panthers, and White Eagles were able to move freely in "an otherwise relatively tightly controlled area"¹⁰³⁰⁹ and to operate in concert with local forces and authorities, in several of the Municipalities throughout BiH, supports the conclusion that such co-operation was approved by the Bosnian Serb leadership. (First, it was not established that these numbered formations had committed crimes, particularly since everyone could put a red beret on his head and pretend to be whoever wanted! This Chamber's inference is far from a possibility to be the only possible or reasonable inference? How about that all of them had the same uniforms as the former JNA, and how about that some, if not all of them had at least at the beginning been members of the JNA or TO, or VRS as the regular formations, and at one moment reneged? And who could differentiate the renegades from the regular forces? And what power did have the civilian population to stop them even if they recognized them as renegades? And how it was a "relatively tightly controlled area," when then the small army had about 2.000 km of frontline? See: MUP, rep. on attacks on MUP@

3198. With regard to Arkan's men and Šešelj's men specifically, the Chamber concludes that the President knew that they were operating in BiH during the spring of 1992 and that they were invited by the RS Presidency to operate in conjunction with local authorities and forces.¹⁰³¹⁰ The Chamber also notes the President's direct interaction with Arkan and Šešelj and, moreover, that in May 1992 the President invited, without Mladić's knowledge, Arkan's men to participate in operations in the Sarajevo area.¹⁰³¹¹ (This is noly if the Chamber believed the Davidovic testimony, which was not corroborated by anything, nor by the Mladic diaries, nor by any other document, and definitely rebuted by the evidence, i.e. intercepted conversations between Arkan and his officer Legija, see P5675, and D1248! Pasted above!)

2. Disbandment of paramilitary forces

3200. On 2 June 1992, at a meeting of commanders of the 1st Krajina Corps and Banja Luka political leaders, which the President attended, there was agreement that paramilitary formations should be dissolved.¹⁰³¹³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!! A ten days after that the President made it formal and strict, issuing the Order pasted above, P3057, which had been followed by the state organs. In the following months there were a several very numerous and mighty paramilitaries arrested by the legal Serb Forces, some of them with an assistance of the police specials from Yugoslavia (Davidovic) in Brcko, Bijeljina and Zvornik!)

3201. On 3 June 1992, the Eastern Bosnia Corp Command issued an order, pursuant to the decision on the formation of the VRS, that certain volunteer units, including Mauzer's Panthers, be transformed into units of the VRS and that Mauzer be appointed Assistant Chief of Staff.¹⁰³¹⁴ Similarly, as found above, on 13 June 1992, the Accused banned the formation and operation of armed groups and individuals which were not under the control of the VRS on the territory of the RS.¹⁰³¹⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The President also stated that he was "disowning" groups that continued to operate independently and that those groups would suffer the strictest sanctions for their operations.¹⁰³¹⁶ (#EXCULPATORY#! And they did suffer the strictest sanctions, as the evidence confirmed!)

3202. As a result Arkan's men left BiH, though they returned from time to time.¹⁰³¹⁷ The #original Arkan's men never returned the RS except in fall 1995, at the request of the attacked municipalities of Krajina, and their commitment to obey the MUP regulations and orders! If some groups presented themselves as being "Arkan's men", that would be pretending and false presentation, in order to gain a respect! In addition, Mauzer's Panthers were formally incorporated in the VRS as a "Special Brigade"¹⁰³¹⁸ that functioned as a separate unit under Mauzer's authority.¹⁰³¹⁹ The President was aware that Mauzer's Panthers were incorporated in the VRS as a "Special Brigade".¹⁰³²⁰ (Except for being rude and impolite, and had a quarrels with the Radical Party, the President had never been informed about any crime of this unit, and if there was any illegal action, that would be in competence of the Military Police of the Eastern Bosnian Corps of VRS, not of the President!)

3203. As described earlier, in June 1992, the Accused and Mladić visited Zvornik after the Zvornik Government and Crisis Staff building was encircled by paramilitary formations and a member of Captain Dragan's unit threatened the President of the Municipality.¹⁰³²¹ (This fact shouldn't be forgotten, and there shouldn't be a #mix-up of causes and consequences#, as the Prosecution does: #the paramilitaries turned against the local Serb authorities because these authorities didn't tolerate their illegal activities#!) On 30 June 1992, Grujić reported to the Accused and Mladić that in addition to "major accomplishments" there were also many problems from paramilitary formations which broke free after Arkan's withdrawal and called for their removal.¹⁰³²² Marko Pavlović reported that the "[v]olunteer formations enjoyed exceptional success" and were led by Arkan and Šešelj, and that "Arkan's withdrew orderly, but some that stayed broke free of his control".¹⁰³²³ At this meeting, the President stated that it would be a shame to abolish Captain Dragan's training centre at Diviči and that it would be easiest to "put the incident behind us".¹⁰³²⁴ (So what? 3204. The Chamber notes the President's efforts to disband certain (Not only a "certain", but every single about which he was informed!) paramilitary groups, including through the assistance of the Federal SUP. After the President complained at an international peace conference about being unable to control paramilitaries in BiH who had come from Serbia, it was proposed that a group of Federal SUP officers go and assist the Bosnian Serb MUP to deal with problems with paramilitaries and Milorad Davidović was tasked to lead the investigative team.¹⁰³²⁵ According to Davidović, the President had called on him to assist in preventing crime.¹⁰³²⁶ Davidović was instructed by Pavle Bulatović to arrest and prosecute paramilitaries who were found to engage in looting and robbing and was also requested by Mladić to take all measures envisaged by law against these persons.¹⁰³²⁷ Davidović acknowledged that he was given complete autonomy by the President in planning operations and arresting individuals.¹⁰³²⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3205. Similarly, the Chamber found that in the summer of 1992, following increasing security problems related to paramilitaries in north-east BiH, including in Brčko, the President requested that a special unit be sent to Brčko, and the Bosnian Serb MUP requested support from the Federal SUP and Davidović to stabilise the security situation.¹⁰³²⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3206. However, the Chamber notes that according to Davidović, while some members of armed groups were arrested, the continued support for armed groups by local authorities, Crisis Staffs, and "high-ranking functionaries" made investigative measures difficult.¹⁰³³⁰ He also testified that while Mladić was always against paramilitary formations, he was unable to confront them because "they were protected by those whose existence suited them."¹⁰³³¹ In Davidović's view, it was only when paramilitaries turned against the Bosnian Serb authorities and stopped sharing their "booty" that the local authorities wanted to have them removed.¹⁰³³² (#Views and opinions# of the witnesses on facts#! Why the Chamber accepted a #"Davidovic's view" since it was a blatant guessing without any corroboration#! It was very known that the most responsible local authorities had been detained by the paramilitaries. Not to #mix up the causes and consequences# mentioned above!).

3207. For example, Davidović testified that measures were taken in Bijeljina only after paramilitaries established parallel authorities which posed a threat to the local Bosnian Serb authorities.¹⁰³³³ (Why would the paramilitaries need a parallel authorities, if the legal paramilitaries were good for them?) The Chamber notes in this regard that the President issued on 30 August 1992 a decision addressed to the War Presidency of the Bijeljina municipality, indicating that all decisions of the municipality of Bijeljina pertaining to military matters would be suspended. He also ordered the civilian authorities to "investigate personal responsibility of officials who issued the illegal decisions in times of war", with a report to be sent to the Presidency on what had been done.¹⁰³³⁴ (#ALL EXCULPATORY#! paramilitaries “formed” their parallel authorities? Because the regular authorities opposed to their conduct, and for that reason the paramilitaries suspended the legal authorities, without forming any other. In the cases the legal authorities couldn’t oppose demands of the paramilitaries and issued some illegal decisions, these decisions had been withdrawn and the president of the Municipality of Bijeljina, otherwise a good official, was discharged, forced to resign!)

3208. The Chamber found that Davidović planned the operation to arrest paramilitary groups in Zvornik in co-operation with Andan and special units of the MUP and that, on 29 July 1992, Žučo, the commander of the Yellow Wasps, was arrested and brought to Bijeljina.¹⁰³³⁵ During this operation, other leaders and members of the Yellow Wasps were arrested, as were municipal leaders who had links with or collaborated with the Yellow Wasps, including Pavlović.¹⁰³³⁶ However, when the 30 day remand period expired,¹⁰³³⁷ Davidović was told that pressure was exerted on the authorities by the President and Krajišnik who ordered that the Yellow Wasps be released.¹⁰³³⁸ (#Hear-say,and a lie#!!! all incorrect and not corroborated by any evidence. The YW hadn’t been released, but handed over to the Serbia judiciary, where they had been tried and sentenced. And during his testimony Davidovic praised the President for his orders unknown to Davidovic prior to his testimony and deposition of statement!)

3209. In contrast, Mandić testified that following this operation the leader of the Yellow Wasps, Vucković, was tried and sentenced for a war crime.¹⁰³³⁹ Mandić added that at the initiative of the President and the Prime Minister, the police and army arrested and handed over to competent organs a dozen men belonging to paramilitary units who had “committed crimes in the Podrinje area between Zvornik and Bratunac and Bijeljina”.¹⁰³⁴⁰ Mandić confirmed that Brano Grujić testified in Belgrade that the President asked Mićo Stanišić and Karišik to send a special unit to arrest the Yellow Wasps because the local forces could not arrest them.¹⁰³⁴¹ (#Exculpatory#! Therefore, all the Davidovic actions were facilitated by the President! Also, a Davidovic’s opinion, feelings and hear-say, originating from his lack of knowledge as he admitted, couldn’t be corroborated by any evidence, while the Mandic and Grujic testimonies could easily be checked in the state and court records! What of those two kind of evidence are more convincing?)

3210. However, as found above, in July 1992, even though the Yellow Wasps did not place themselves under the joint military command of the VRS, members of the Yellow Wasps went to Pale and received weapons from the Pale SJB after which Žučo, their commander, met with Plavšić.¹⁰³⁴² Žučo also spoke to the Minister of Defence about the status of his group and Bogdan Subotić confirmed that all those who received orders from VRS officers were part of the VRS whether they were reservists, volunteers, or paramilitaries.¹⁰³⁴³ Subotić alerted these ¹⁰³³⁷ The Chamber recalls that when a person was arrested by the military police and a criminal report was given to the Prosecutor’s Office, the person could be initially detained by the military police for three days. Ms. Plavsic was a member of the Presidency and couldn't know details about military matters, but the Minister for Defence correctly warned the visitors on their duties and obligations pertaining to the law. Also, the Pale SJB chief couldn't know anything about the Yellow Wasps conduct in Zvornik that would warn him not to cooperate! But, the main issue is why the Yellow Wasps came to Pale? The only reasonable inference would be that they felt that an arrest of them is coming soon, and wanted to assess what was a sentiment towards them, and probably to get some support or excuse, so to avoid the arrest!)

3211. 3212. The Chamber notes that at the 17th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly dated 24 and 26 July 1992, the President emphasised to the Assembly the importance of the effective elimination of paramilitary and “para-state” factions.¹⁰³⁴⁶ He also stated that at that stage, the priority was to introduce order, by virtue of, inter alia, placing all special police units which were being misused by some, under the single command of the Bosnian Serb MUP, rather than under the command of “local lords”.¹⁰³⁴⁷ Mandić confirmed that at that session the President highlighted the problem of paramilitary formations and explained that paramilitaries were an armed force not under the control of any state organ or the army.¹⁰³⁴⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#! Having in mind a huge scope of the presidential duties and obligations, particularly at the permanent the Peace Conference, it should be concluded that the President dedicated quite a time to the rule of law and to establishment of order and legality!)

3213. On 27 July 1992, in talks with Mladić and Mićo Stanišić, Tolimir stated that crime was a problem and that persons prone to crime must be removed from the military police but reiterated that paramilitaries were “[t]he biggest problem”.¹⁰³⁴⁹ The following day, Mladić ordered that paramilitary formations must join the regular VRS units, that individuals and groups who had been involved in criminal acts were not to be included into units, and that all paramilitary groups should be disarmed by 15 August 1992.¹⁰³⁵⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! All of it was based on the laws and the President's order of 13 June 1992, P3057!) The order, which was relayed to the President,¹⁰³⁵¹ also stated that paramilitary organisations rarely entered the area of combat activities, but usually followed VRS units when liberating parts of the territory and were mainly motivated by looting.¹⁰³⁵²

3214. On 6 August 1992, the President issued an announcement that the Presidency's order to subordinate all groups to the single command of the army and police has been implemented "apart from a few renegade groups".¹⁰³⁵³ He conveyed the information that the MUP had arrested "groups and individuals who defied the law and looted and committed arson" and praised those units that had subordinated themselves to the single command of the VRS and were "fighting courageously for the freedom of their Serbian BiH".¹⁰³⁵⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3215. At a "military-political consultation meeting" held on 2 September 1992 in Bijeljina, the President was informed that paramilitaries and parallel authorities were still an issue.¹⁰³⁵⁵ He reminded all those present that there should be maximum military discipline and training and stated that municipal authorities should not take too many things in their own hands.¹⁰³⁵⁶ On 8 November 1992, representatives from the Bijeljina civilian and military authorities alerted Mladić that paramilitaries had to be dealt with.¹⁰³⁵⁷ (All #EXCULPATORY#!)

3216. In September 1992, following an update from Manojlo Milovanović that a high-ranking official of the SDS, Rajko Dukić,¹⁰³⁵⁸ formed a paramilitary unit in Milići, the Accused ordered Milovanović to "route" Dukić's unit.¹⁰³⁵⁹ However, the Chamber notes that in 1994 the Accused awarded him the "Order of Nemanjić".¹⁰³⁶⁰ (What DOES IT MEAN??? Is Milovanovic a criminal? Or Dukic? #Rajko Dukic' was perfectly entitled to form a unit of the Territorial defense, both on behalf of the Municipality of Milici, and the Boxite Company Milici#. Even without a need for a context, it is worthwhile to mention it. On 27 September 1992 the Muslim paramilitaries attacked the Boxite workers, and made a carnage, killing almost 30 people, workers, civilians and soldiers who were guarding the Boxite mine. The mass funeral happened by the end of September, and this President was present, and made a speech, heading to London for the conference (See: D00056, photo, see: P03859) after this carnage both the Boxite mine and municipality of Milici rectified their ommission not having already established a strong unit. But, the main remark, "a high ranking official of SDS" didn't form the unit in his capacity of "a high ranking official of SDS" but as the general manager of the huge company The Boxite Mine, Milici. And this unit was a part of the VRS! However, the Chamber didn't obtain any additional evidence or data about Rajko Dukic, but it rushed to conclude that Dukic was a criminal and shouldn't be decorated in any case. Dukic was a very famous businessman far before the SDS was formed, he participated in the formation of the Party, and was it's president of the Executive Board. He already was decorated several times before the ellections. Let us see whether Dukic was entitled to form a unit of Teritorial Defence, see: the SFRY Constitution, Article 239, D1260:

Article 258.

Organizations of associated labor, self-management communities of interest and other self-management organizations and units have the right and duty to participate actively in the defense of the country and in that connection to organize and carry out preparations, secure resources and carry out other tasks in the interest of national defense, in accordance with the constitution, laws and the plans and decisions of socio-political units. These organizations and units are responsible for carrying out these tasks.

See Strategy of All-Peoples-Defence, issued by the SFRY Presidency, D4282:

The Territorial Defence is organised in basic and other organisations of associated labour, local communes, municipalities, socialist autonomous provinces and socialist republics and other socio-political communities throughout the territory and coastal waters of Yugoslavia. It consists of staffs, units and institutions.

Dukic not only was entitled, but obliged to form the TO unit! See the same D4282, p. 13

Units of the Territorial Defence can vary in organisational structure and size – from a group of soldiers and squads to brigades. Depending on the purpose, the Territorial Defence units may be territorially-based or manoeuvre units.

Territorially-based units of the Territorial Defence are organized on a territorial principle. They are mostly linked to the home territory, but can be active in a broader area according to the needs or situation. They are established in local communes, organisations of associated labour and municipalities.

During a Bosnian Serb Assembly session on May 1993, attended by the President, Vladimir Lukić stated that they had naively “raised paramilitaries” and called them “brotherly assistance” but “they were slowly less and less engaged in fighting and more and more in looting”.¹⁰³⁶⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) Similarly, a Bosnian Serb leader from Sarajevo noted that in certain municipalities “chaos, disturbances, looting and stealing was the greatest where [paramilitaries] were stationed”.¹⁰³⁶⁶ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!) Complaints were also raised that while certain individuals were arrested, they were released.¹⁰³⁶⁷ During the session, Mladić criticised the audience about how they asked him to let Mauzer “do as he likes” and stated that “you found your patron in Arkan, who brought you together to tell you how you should vote”.¹⁰³⁶⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!)

3221. On 28 August 1993, in an order focused on the organisation of the VRS, the President instructed the Main Staff and MUP to create a plan to seize uniforms from people who were not members of the army or police and who were committing crimes and other illegal activity in uniforms.¹⁰³⁶⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!)

3222. The Chamber notes that in 1994 the Accused awarded Mauzer’s Panthers and personally promoted Vojkan Đurković, a member of Arkan’s men.¹⁰³⁷⁰ (This kind of error shouldn’t happen to any serious chamber. It is well known that the #Panthers were a proper and courageous unit#, and that they didn’t commit any crime, nor there was any criminal report let alone indictment! And that was the reason why the VRS or M(inistry) O(f) D(efence) proposed to the President to decorate the unit. The President always acted after such a proposals come from the relevant institutions. However, this is an #unacceptable error to “find” that the President promoted Vojkan Djurkovic, since there was a convincing evidence that the President, even if wanted, couldn’t promote or demote Djurkovic, because he never was a VRS member#.)

3223. Davidović testified that while some paramilitaries were arrested the measures were not successful because the paramilitaries continued to have the support of the local authorities, Crisis Staffs and “high-ranking functionaries” and as a result they were released and continued with their actions.¹⁰³⁷¹ (This was an #arbitrary guessing# of the witness, without any corroboration, and with many convincing evidence to the opposite! Even this Judgement is full of evidence that #no local authorities were happy with paramilitaries#. Davidovic was in Belgrade and couldn’t have known what he asserted, he was a communist and he didn’t like the new system, and didn’t like the fact he was not a favourite of the new multiparty order, although he wasn’t demoted, but sent to the Federal MUP!) He also testified that Mladić was always against paramilitary formations; could not confront them; and said that “they were protected by those whose existence suited them.”¹⁰³⁷² (This was his “opinion” and no a serious chamber would pay any attention to a witness on facts giving his general and non-specified opinion! Who were these suspected by him? The only inference that could be drawn from this kind of assertions would be that Davidovic didn’t like the authorities in the Republic of Srpska!)

3224. In April 1994, following a letter from the Main Staff reporting that there were volunteers from the SRS who had been operating in two municipalities without the knowledge or consent of the VRS, the President reminded the municipal authorities that this interfered with the system of single command and control and that it was necessary to inform him about developments so he could take measures.¹⁰³⁷³ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!)

3225. The President informed Mladić in April 1994 that he had ordered the MUP and other municipal authorities to assist the VRS in preventing the organisation of paramilitary units and that the strictest measures would be taken.¹⁰³⁷⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!!!)

3226. In the summer of 1995, Manojlo Milovanović asked the President for a meeting to be organised with Arkan to discuss the latter’s presence in the combat zone under the Milovanović’s responsibility.¹⁰³⁷⁵ (As a matter of fact, Milovanovic had a command competences over the MUP units present there only through their commander, but not over a separate units. He could exert his command easily through the number one in the MUP chain of command!) During the meeting, following Milovanović’s question concerning Arkan’s presence, Arkan replied that his presence was in accordance with the order issued by the Supreme Command, but he did not present such order.¹⁰³⁷⁶ Milovanović then asked the President whether he had issued Arkan with such an order, but the Accused did not reply— “[h]e didn’t say yes and he didn’t say no.”¹⁰³⁷⁷ (It was a quite clear and known that the President approved a presence of the Arkan’s unit in the fall 1995, after being assured by the MUP that Arkan would be under their command and control, and as far as this precondition was met, he could engage on the front! Beside that, Arkan was never even criminally reported, let alone indicted, not even by Croatia, which captured him in 1991. Also, the Prosecution didn’t disclose a document of the ECMM proving that the Muslims in Bijeljina, interviewd in safety and privately, confirmed only the best about Arkan and his conduct in April 1992! #There should have been something more that a bad reputation required for a criminal case#!)

3227. In September 1995, in a letter from Mladić to the President, the former asked that Arkan and his paramilitary units be expelled from the RS and that the Accused “revoke his decision that gave Željko Ražnjatović the power to make arrests, mistreat, disarm and take away VRS members and civilians with his paramilitary units including /his authority/ to use firearms on persons who oppose or resist him.”¹⁰³⁷⁸ (However, all of it was a rivalry between the MUP and VRS, and in the context of tensions between the President and General Mladic. Mladic obviously was misinformed – there was no any crime in Sanski Most in 1995, committed by

Arkan or any other unit, let alone such a drastic as described by Mladic. Further, Arkan presented himself as a member of the MUP of RS, see: P3056, Mladic's telex:

2. Organs of the MUP should take measures within their jurisdiction against RAŽNJATOVIĆ and his formations for the crimes they committed against VRS members and civilians, because he has identified himself as member of the MUP of Serbia and RS.

As visible from evidence, Arkan was under the control of the RS MUP. The acting Minister for Interior Mr. Kovac gave to Arkan an authorisation to arrest and return a possible deserters of the members of MUP. Since Arkan misused or abused the authorisation, Mr. Kovac withdrew this authorisation the very next day#!)

3228. In the autumn of 1995, the Accused attended an event in Bijeljina where he inspected the ranks of Arkan's men under the escort of Arkan, and said: "I am deeply thankful and I congratulate you, and I hope that we will meet again in peace and you will always have a place in the heart of those who you have defended".¹⁰³⁷⁹ Arkan responded on behalf of his unit by saying that "we are ready if you call us and that we will be back to defend our ancient homeland, to defend our women and children, to defend the Serbian territory and our Orthodox religion".¹⁰³⁸⁰ According to Mihaljović this event was a product of Arkan's manipulation that surprised the Accused and that Arkan used this event to legitimise his presence in RS given the stance taken by the Main Staff and the VRS with respect to units not under the VRS command.¹⁰³⁸¹ However, considering the evidence and the behaviour of the Accused, who gave documents to Arkan at this event, the Chamber is not convinced by the argument that the Accused was manipulated or taken by surprise. (There was a proposal that the #President decorate the unit, not Arkan himself#, who even was not expected to be there. However, his unit had a great respect and reputation, and no any criminal record, and the unit deserved a decoration as a whole! Instead of blaming the President for decorating the unit, there should be an obligation that the Prosecution proves any crime, not a criminal reputation, but a crime committed by the unit!)

3229. The Chamber notes the general statement of Nikola Poplašen that the President "argued for all Serbian forces to be placed under single command" and that "[i]ndividual incidents did occur, but this was not [...] with the approval or knowledge of the Serbian authorities",¹⁰³⁸² but finds this statement to be in contradiction with the clear evidence that at least some paramilitary formations operated in RS with the consent of the authorities.¹⁰³⁸³ (#Under the JNA#! #Before VRS#! This is wrong deliberation: many of the volunteers at the beginning were connected only with the JNA, Because there was no the VRS, as well as many paramilitary forces which didn't have any contact with the JNA, but neither they committed any crime, particularly those domestic self-organized groups. #To be a paramilitary or a self-organized armed group was a legal and legitimate issue, provided in the Constitution and Law on Defence, but no group or individual was entitled to do a crimes#. Once the VRS was formed, there was an order issued by the President, by other officials and by General Mladic, and after these orders there was no any possibility to be independent and legal at the same time. composition! Similarly, the Chamber notes the evidence of Bulatović that when he spoke to the Accused, the Accused was not in favour of the presence of paramilitaries in BiH but did not have the ability to remove them.¹⁰³⁸⁴ (#That was why the President asked the FRY Prime Minister Panic for a help# (Davidovic) however, President Bulatovic could have spoken about the SFRY war and Croatia. Still, if the paramilitaries didn't have any bigger formation to be integrated, a mere existence of these groups was not a crime. A crimes had it's own substance in a judicial terms. Only a tolerance of independent groups while there is an alternative wasn't acceptable, because of what could happen!) However, the Chamber notes in this regard that at a Supreme Defence Council session in August 1992, Bulatović said “[l]et’s be honest, we needed those paramilitary formations for a while. They are now a great burden and a problem.”¹⁰³⁸⁵ This is also corroborated by evidence that in BiH, given a poor response to mobilisation, the military forces were reinforced by volunteers and paramilitaries.¹⁰³⁸⁶

3. Conclusion

3230. In light of the above, the Chamber finds that, in mid-1992, following the creation of the VRS, the President sought to have paramilitary groups integrated in and subordinated to the regular army or otherwise be disarmed and dissolved.¹⁰³⁸⁷ (In addition to already quoted legal and constitutional provisions about subordination of the paramilitaries to the JNA, here is another orde issued by the Federal Ministry of Defence on 10 December 1991, P2601:

6. In all zones of combat operations place under the command of the most senior JNA officers all units of the JNA and TO, as well as volunteer units which agree to be subordinate to that command and wear JNA and TO insignia. Consider all other armed formations paramilitaries, disarm them, and remove them from the b/d zone.

However, his attitude towards these groups shifted depending on the group and according to the Bosnian Serb interests. (#This is an ordinary lie, without any corroboration#, and no a serious chamber! And even if so, it must be proven that the President accepted a crimes to be committed. Where is reference to that? If it was about Arkan's presence in 95, Arkan wasn't independent, he offered participation in the defence of Krajina within the RS MUP, and the MUP undertook to komand him!)

3231. With regard to Arkan’s men, for instance, the Chamber finds that the Accused knew that they were invited by the RS Presidency to operate in conjunction with local authorities and forces and that in the spring of 1992 they were indeed operating in BiH.¹⁰³⁸⁸ (The local authorities had their own duties and responsibilities in running the defence, and all the volunteers, particularly #before the VRS# was established, had to check to the local authorities, which were obliged to deploy them in the local TO units and put them on the pay rol list. All of it is provided as a mandatory activity in the Constitution and Law on Defence, as seen above, see P4743, D1260, D1262, D4282... At the time Arkan was in Bijeljina, the President didn't have any operative duty, nor a state position, and therefore no liability. The Accused had direct contact with Arkan in 1992 and 1995,¹⁰³⁸⁹ and in May ¹⁰³⁸⁷ The Chamber also notes that evidence that the co-operation between Bosnian Serb authorities and paramilitary formations existed as long as the paramilitaries’ objectives were aligned with those of the Bosnian Serb leadership. See paras. 3208, 3220, 3223.

1992 he invited, without Mladić's knowledge, Arkan's men to participate in operations in the Sarajevo area.¹⁰³⁹⁰ Here is this para 3188, let us see how it is used against the President: *On 3 June 1992, the Eastern Bosnia Corp Command issued an order, pursuant to the decision on the formation of the VRS, that certain volunteer units, including Mauzer's Panthers, be transformed into units of the VRS and that Mauzer be appointed Assistant Chief of Staff.*¹⁰³⁹¹ *Similarly, as found above, on 13 June 1992, the President banned the formation and operation of armed groups and individuals which were not under the control of the VRS on the territory of the RS.*¹⁰³⁹² The President also stated that he was "disowning" groups that continued to operate independently and that those groups would suffer the strictest sanctions for their operations. #Therefore, there is no a single mentioning of the Arkan's men, while Mauzer was a legal TO commander of the SAO Semberija and Majevisa. Also, the Davidovic's assertion that he was present at a meeting with the President and Mladic is fake, because there was no such a meeting, nor he could participate in it, nor Gen. Mladic recorded it in his diaries#. Finally, the intercepted telephone conversations between Legija and Arkan, see: P5675, and D1248, pasted in para 3183 of the Judgement, which absolutely exclude any possibility that any of the Arkan's men, including Arkan, could get in touch with the President, for whom Legija said that is in a good (loving) terms with Muslims! While Arkan's men left BiH in mid-1992, the Accused supported their presence and activities in BiH in 1995.¹⁰³⁹³ The Chamber also notes that it was important to Arkan that his actions in BiH would be approved by the Bosnian Serb authorities.¹⁰³⁹⁴ (Certainly, Arkan wouldn't dare to be present in the RS without approval of the authorities, while in April 92 there was a common authority in BiH! No crime on the President's side, or Arkan's unit side in 1995. He was regularly subordinated to the MUP, and having in mind who was attacking the RS, it was the Serb right to accept any volunteer.

3232. Similarly, the President knew that Šešelj's men were invited by the RS Presidency to operate in conjunction with local authorities and forces in the spring of 1992,¹⁰³⁹⁵ and he met with Šešelj a few times each year during the war.¹⁰³⁹⁶ (#The Seselj's men never had any independent unit#, they were always a part of the JNA. Later on, the followers of the Seselj in the RS were a regular soldiers, without particular unit or command. As far as Mr. Seselj is concerned with, he lived in Sarajevo at the same time as the President, both of them were a very known public persons, Mr. Seselj as the author of prominent law and political works, and was imprisoned by the communist regime for a theoretic article, while the President was a known writer that published books as of 1968. Why the two of them wouldn't know each other without any crime? Anyway, the Chamber adopted the Prosecution's approach according to which so many persons that had any contact with the President – had been the most notorious criminals, while none of them had ever sentenced, and some of the hadn't even been indicted: Mr. Seselj was acquitted in this Tribunal; Momcilo Mandic had been acquitted in the court of BiH in which the Serbs are rarely acquitted, Arkan had never been indicted for a deeds in the war, not even by Croatia where he was a prisoner of war; Vojkan Djurkovic had been criminally reported, but was never indicted; Mauzer was a favourite police official of Ms. Plavsic when she reneged on the SDS, and passed all the checkings of the international police. Although the President had never been close and in a friendly private relations, but only in an official, not always pleasant, they weren't criminals. They did have a bad reputation, but we all know how a reputation can be created!)

¹⁰³⁹³ Considering the Accused's silence when asked by Milovanović whether he authorised Arkan's men presence in the combat zone; Mladić's request from the Accused to have Arkan's men expelled and that the Accused revoke his decision granting Arkan the powers to act in BiH; and the Accused's behaviour while inspecting Arkan's men and his gratitude for their service, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable conclusion is that the Accused supported Arkan's men presence and activities in BiH in 1995. See paras. 3226–3228. (There is no a basic precondition for that conclusion: there was no Milovanovic's question, or the President didn't here it, which is another reasonable inference, and Arkan's men including him and his son, were under the MUP competence, and the autorisation to return the deserters of the MUP. Wher Arkan started to return the deserters of the VRS, T. Kovac withdrew this autorisation the very next day, see : @)

3233. In addition, the President was aware that Mauzer's Panthers was incorporated in 1992 in the VRS as a "Special Brigade" and, in 1994, he awarded Mauzer's Panthers.¹⁰³⁹⁷ Will somebody show what crimes he had committed, what except a bad reputation he had? He was a part of the legal TO, and later of the VRS. Did the President authorise anyone to act illegally, or to commit crimes? Once, in 1992 Mauzer was demoted, and the president of the Municipality Zlatko Jokovic was forced to resign. After that, Mauzer was no longer under the civilian authorities, but in the VRS, as demoted to a private. After the war he passed the test of the international community, as clean and suitable for the public service. 15/16 12. 17

3234. The Chamber therefore finds that during the spring of 1992, following the withdrawal of the JNA from BiH, the President supported the operational co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, and Mauzer's Panthers. These paramilitary groups were able to operate in several municipalities, in an otherwise relatively tightly controlled area,¹⁰³⁹⁸ in concert with the military forces and the local authorities.¹⁰³⁹⁹ (So what? Nobody authorized them to make any crime, or to behave independently. Many units in the JNA and VRS had a different names, but it didn't make them independent! Particularly as of 13 June no armed unit, group or individual was allowed to exist and be active! However, there were many armed groups without so markant names, that remained after the JNA withdrew without any political control, as the UN documents indicate, see P941, see: @ in the following couple of months the regular "Serb Forces" ended their existence!)

3235. The President's shifting approach to paramilitaries is further demonstrated by his approach to Captain Dragan's training centre,¹⁰⁴⁰⁰ (There is no any reasonable possibility to compare Captain Dragan's training centre and the Yellow Wasps, or any other paramilitary. Captain Dragan didn't take part in combat activities, and didn't have any manpower of his own, except several instructors ready to train the domestic people who hadn't serve their compulsory Army term, but Gen. Mladic didn't agree, and the President adopted his opinion!) and his order to have the Yellow Wasps released after they were arrested by Davidović.¹⁰⁴⁰¹ The Yellow Wasps were arrested by the Special police of the RS, and Davidovic only helper with his less than two dosen of policemen.

3236. Based on all of the above, the Chamber concludes that the President supported the co-operation of Arkan's men, Šešelj's men and Mauzer's Panthers with Serb Forces during the take-overs in the Municipalities—during the course of which crimes were committed. (Neither a "take-overs" had been proven, nor were proven a crimes allegedly committed during the "take-overs" that didn't happen. All what the Prosecution was doing was taking summarily some alleged events and allocate it to the Serb side, and this is real crime against the whole people. Surprisingly, the Chamber admitted it uncritically and without any checking of the documents, even of the UN provenance! All of the units that are mentioned and “incriminated” by the Muslim propaganda full of hatred, were (with some exceptions) parts of the regular forces which comprised: the Police, the VRS and the Territorial defense. And all of this criminal conclusion is possible because the defense couldn’t present what really happened!) The Chamber also concludes that from mid-1992 onwards, following the completion of the take-overs and considering the creation of the VRS, the President endeavored to disband paramilitary groups in general. However, the President still tolerated and even supported the activities of certain paramilitary groups, namely, Akran's men, Yellow Wasps and Mauzer's Panthers. (#For the first two it is a horrible lie (except for Arkan 95, but it was regulated according to the law) and Mauzer was in the Army#! How possibly the President could have endeavor to disband paramilitary groups before he became a member of Presidency on 12 May, and before the VRS was enacted, 20 May 1992??? And where is any evidence that the President “supported the activities of certain paramilitary groups? The Yellow Wasps, about whom the President heard from the local authorities and immediately ordered their arrest, had been arrested in a huge and well organized operation. #Arkan withdrew before the President became the member of Presidency#, and the Arkan’s 16 men, invited to Ilidza by some Dragisic, had been ignored#, not welcome by the locals, and they withdrew, see para 3183! The Panters were an integral part of the VRS, and a very good, proper and celebrated unit, and the Mauzer’s rude conduct couldn’t damage the huge reputation of this unit!)

c. Knowledge and acts of named alleged JCE members

3237. The Prosecution alleges that the President worked together with other Serb military and political leaders to achieve the objective of the alleged Overarching JCE to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory in BiH from at least October 1991 to 30 November 1995, in concert with Momčilo Krajišnik, Ratko Mladić,¹⁰⁴⁰² Slobodan Milošević, Biljana Plavšić, Nikola Koljević, Mićo Stanišić, Momčilo Mandić, Jovica Stanišić, Franko Simatović, Željko Ražnatović (Arkan), and Vojislav Šešelj.¹⁰⁴⁰³ According to the Prosecution, while the membership in the JCE fluctuated over time, each member made a significant contribution to achieving the common criminal purpose.¹⁰⁴⁰⁴ (“According to the Prosecution”, the Serbs didn’t have any rights, guaranteed to every nation by the international Covenants and domestic laws, and guaranteed to any animal or vegetal sort!

3238. In response, the Accused argues that there was no criminal plan or design in the first place and second, that at no point in time did any of the alleged JCE members have, let alone share, any common mental state to carry out an agreed criminal plan or design.¹⁰⁴⁰⁵

3239. The Chamber has considered the involvement of the named alleged JCE members in earlier sections of this Judgement in the context of the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership and the creation of and authority over the Bosnian Serb political and governmental structures and military and

Other alleged members of the Overarching JCE are listed in paragraph 12 of the Indictment and include, among others, members of SDS and Bosnian Serb government bodies at the republic, regional, municipal, and local levels, including Crisis Staffs, War Presidencies, and War Commissions, and commanders and senior officers of JNA, VJ, VRS, TO, and MUP units.

police structures.¹⁰⁴⁰⁶ In this section, the Chamber will consider their further knowledge and acts in relation to the common purpose of the alleged Overarching JCE. As a part of this analysis, the Chamber will examine the relationship between the President and alleged JCE members where necessary.

i. Momčilo Krajišnik

3240. As discussed above, Momčilo Krajišnik was a member of the SDS Main Board from July 1991 and was in the core leadership of the party.¹⁰⁴⁰⁷ (A crime?) The Chamber recalls that Krajišnik was also elected as the first president of the Bosnian Serb Assembly in October 1991¹⁰⁴⁰⁸ (Prior to that, Mr. Krajsnik was elected president of the Assembly of BiH, i.e. common Assembly and presided this parliament until the end of March 1992, why it was not of any interest of the Prosecution-Chamber structure?) and by virtue of his position, he was also a member of the SNB which was established on 27 March 1992.¹⁰⁴⁰⁹ The Chamber further recalls that the original three-member Presidency, comprised of the President, Plavšić, and Koljević, was enlarged to five members to include Krajišnik and Branko Đerić, and on 6 July 1992, Krajišnik was assigned to deal with issues related to commissioners and the economy.¹⁰⁴¹⁰ (Just for the accuracy: Mr. Krajsnik was doing this task for the Presidency, but this didn't make him a member of the Presidency, nor any other official, unles a state of war was proclaimed on the entire territory of the RS! The Chamber knew it, but nothing the Defence offered was accepted!)

3241. Krajišnik was described as the Accused's "closest associate" and they had a close relationship before the SDS was even formed; this relationship continued throughout the conflict.¹⁰⁴¹¹ For instance, the Accused personally insisted on Krajišnik's appointment as president of the Bosnian Serb Assembly.¹⁰⁴¹² (There was no any opposition to this proposal, since Krajsnik was a very known and successful president of the common Assembly of BiH! A dilemma was only whether he could be on both of this positions!)

3242. Koljević, Plavšić, Krajišnik, and the President were considered to be the four most powerful leaders in the RS, with Krajišnik and the President at the top.¹⁰⁴¹³ (That was due to the Constitution, not due to an arbitrary decision of anyone. In a case of a sudden death of the President, the president of the Assembly would deputise him until the new elections!) There was very little divergence of views between the President and Krajišnik¹⁰⁴¹⁴ and these two were characterised as the "Alpha and Omega" of the Bosnian Serb government.¹⁰⁴¹⁵ (Why a differences of the two high officials should be public, if it existed only during a decision-making process? It was a matter of a personal and political maturity, but if they knew that it could be used against the President, they should make a differences public and shake the country in the middle of the war!)

3244. The Accused, Koljević, and Krajišnik led political negotiations on behalf of the Bosnian Serbs and had the support of the SDS Executive Board.¹⁰⁴²⁰ The President would often seek the advice of Krajišnik during negotiations.¹⁰⁴²¹ Krajišnik emphasised that there was no difference between the President, Koljević, and himself who worked as a team in negotiations; Krajišnik tended to repeat “the established, party line” in negotiations.¹⁰⁴²²

3245. Furthermore, Krajišnik had “great authority” among the Bosnian Serb municipal leaders and influenced how power should be exercised at the municipal level.¹⁰⁴²³ (The president of the Assembly as a legislative body was supposed to communicate with the municipal assemblies as a legislative bodies, while the Prime Minister was supposed to communicate with the Executive Boards of municipalities, as an executive bodies. Is everything in the Serb existence, except a slavery, wrong?) As the President of the Bosnian Serb Assembly, Krajišnik was noted as a “skillful leader” of the local deputies.¹⁰⁴²⁴ The President described Krajišnik to Slobodan Milošević as a “great Bosnian patriot” and told him that Krajišnik “would not give one foot of Bosnian land” and wanted all of BiH to remain in Yugoslavia.¹⁰⁴²⁵ The Chamber recalls that the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership, including Krajišnik, formulated and promoted the Strategic Goals; for Krajišnik, the goal of separating from the Bosnian Muslims was the most important task.¹⁰⁴²⁶ (#A separating of states, not population!)

¹⁰⁴²³ Momčilo Mandić, C2 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajišnik), T. 8628. However, as President of the Banja Luka Municipal Assembly and Banja Luka Crisis Staff, Radić testified that he did not receive any instructions from Krajišnik in his municipality, other than Bosnian Serb Assembly decisions signed by him. Between the beginning of the war and the end of 1992, Radić only saw Krajišnik in Banja Luka a few times when he came for the RS Assembly sessions held there. Predrag Radić, P1 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krajišnik), T. 7524–7526, 7571–7574. However, the Chamber does not find Radić’s testimony in this regard, in particular regarding his presence in Banja Luka, to be determinative regarding Krajišnik’s authority among all Bosnian Serb municipal leaders.

¹⁰⁴²⁶ See paras. 2865, 2868, 2877, 2885, 2895–2903. According to Kecmanović, however, Krajišnik stressed respect for “other ethnicities, religions and customs”. D3645 (Witness statement of Nenad Kecmanović dated 27 May 2013), paras. 32–33. The Chamber however recalls its earlier finding that Kecmanović’s evidence was marked by evasiveness, contradictions, partisanship and indicators that his testimony lacked sincerity and candour. His testimony was also marked by indicators that he was seeking to protect the Accused. The Chamber therefore does not consider that it can rely on his evidence in this regard.

3246. Between April and May 1992 the President, Krajišnik, Koljević, Plavšić, Đerić, and Bogdan Subotić met often to discuss a number of issues pertaining to the conditions in municipalities and decisions were issued as a result of these meetings.¹⁰⁴²⁷ Krajišnik was also informed about events and operations in the Municipalities.¹⁰⁴²⁸ For instance, the Chamber notes that Krajišnik visited Bijeljina, often with the Accused, and that there was a close relationship between the Bijeljina branch of the SDS and the SDS in Pale.¹⁰⁴²⁹ Krajišnik and the Accused also visited Sanski Most on the occasion of the formation of the SDS there.¹⁰⁴³⁰ (In 1990, far before the war! What is wrong with that? What is the Prosecution-Chamber after? These facts are irrelevant for any alleged crimes, and “gathering” so many irrelevant data should have created a picture of a complicity, because there was no any evidence that the President, or any other high official, was involved, or otherwise connected with any crime! An inference on a basis of another inference, on another inference, endlessly!)

3247. In May 1992, the President, Mladić, and Krajišnik held a meeting with representatives of municipalities, including Rogatica, and discussed the creation of a Bosnian Serb state in BiH.¹⁰⁴³¹ Krajišnik also had close connections with Kušić, commander of the Rogatica Brigade, who was involved in the take-over of Rogatica and in the mistreatment and crimes against Bosnian Muslim civilians there.¹⁰⁴³²

3249. During a January 1994 RS Assembly session, Krajišnik and the President were exalted by a member of the Assembly for “standing on top of the Serbian liberation movement and war” and described as their “highest leaders”.¹⁰⁴³⁵

i. Nikola Koljević

3250. The Chamber recalls that Koljević was a member of the SNB, one of the interim bodies that served as the de facto Presidency of the SerBiH in 1992, and functioned as one of the acting presidents of the SerBiH.¹⁰⁴³⁶ Koljević was subsequently elected by the Bosnian Serb Assembly to the three-member RS Presidency on 12 May 1992.¹⁰⁴³⁷ As stated above, the Presidency was enlarged to five members and on 6 July 1992, Koljević was allocated the task of international relations as well as information and propaganda-related issues.¹⁰⁴³⁸ On 17 December 1992, the

In April 1992, Koljević had already been tasked with communicating with the international public on the situation in SerBiH. P3050 (Minutes of joint meeting of SNB and SerBiH Government, 15 April 1992), p. 2. See also KDZ240, T. 16116 (5 July 2011) (closed session); P1029 (Witness statement of John Wilson dated 4 November 2008), para. 139 (stating that Koljević tended to be more on the periphery of the Bosnian Serb leadership). However, given this is a personal opinion from Wilson, the Chamber placed no weight on that aspect of his evidence.

Bosnian Serb Assembly replaced the structures of the Presidency by establishing a single president and two vice-presidents of the Republic, electing the President to the position of President of the RS and Koljević as one of the Vice-Presidents.¹⁰⁴³⁹

3251. As early as October 1990, in a meeting before Serb representatives in Banja Luka, Koljević identified the purpose of establishing the SDS in furtherance of the unity of the Serb people and the promotion of Serb interests.¹⁰⁴⁴⁰ (So what?)

3252. The Chamber recalls Koljević's acknowledgement that the process of re-organising municipalities was with the aim of creating "homogeneity of certain areas" and that he repeatedly called for the expulsion of Bosnian Muslims and the homogeneity of territories, claiming it was impossible for Serbs to live with anyone else.¹⁰⁴⁴¹ (A horrifyin lies! Professor Koljevic was a humanist and a very tolerant man, and nobody ever heard him saying anything aggressive to others!) Koljević was particularly extreme in his views and continued to repeat at important meetings that it was impossible for Bosnian Serbs, Muslims, and Croats to live together.¹⁰⁴⁴² Koljević also made a statement at the 34th session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly in 1993 about the aim being the "spiritual and moral revitalisation of Serbhood".¹⁰⁴⁴³ (So what?) Koljević also discussed his views with the President and other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership in private conversations.¹⁰⁴⁴⁴ (So what?)

3253. Koljević was closely involved in negotiations with international representatives.¹⁰⁴⁴⁵ In January 1992, Koljević warned of the danger of an Islamic republic being created.¹⁰⁴⁴⁶ (So what?)

3254. In this regard, Koljević met with Tuđman and noted that they had a common interest of separating people, that an independent BiH did not suit them as it would separate them from their "mother lands", and that they advocated a sovereign Muslim, Serb, and Croat BiH.¹⁰⁴⁴⁷ At the same meeting, Koljević also suggested that an agency be established to regulate the exchange of property.¹⁰⁴⁴⁸ During another meeting related to the ICFY in September 1992, the President and Koljević reiterated that the Bosnian Serbs and the Bosnian Croats would not accept a unitary BiH state; a state based on one-man, one-vote.¹⁰⁴⁴⁹ (So what?)

3255. In April 1992, Koljević proposed that Bogdan Subotić set up a separate Ministry of Defence, which he accepted and thereafter, Subotić started organising and preparing drafts of the Law on Defence and Law on the Army.¹⁰⁴⁵⁰ (So what?)

3256. In May 1992, Koljević spoke to Bosnian Muslims in Pale and when they asked for guarantees that they could stay in their homes, he replied that "Serbs don't want to continue living with you here."¹⁰⁴⁵¹ (A shameless lies by an instructed witness, whose wife died in another

I mean, how good the objective we have chosen is" and Koljević and Plavšić further agreed on the idea of separation and the treatment of Bosnian Muslims "with indifference").

¹⁰⁴⁴⁵ See paras. 2694, 2699–2700, 2703. Koljević and the Accused also discussed such meetings and negotiations with international representatives in private conversations. See, e.g., P5878 (Intercept of conversation between Radovan Karadžić and Nikola Koljević, 27 August 1991), pp. 5–9.

3257. Finally, on 14 March 1995, the President issued a decision to form a State Committee for Co-operation with the UN and International Humanitarian Organs, appointing Koljević as its President.¹⁰⁴⁵³

i. Biljana Plavšić

3258. Plavšić was also a member of the SNB, one of the interim bodies that served as the de facto Presidency of the SerBiH in 1992, and functioned as the other acting president of the SerBiH, along with Koljević.¹⁰⁴⁵⁴ Plavšić was subsequently elected by the Bosnian Serb Assembly to the three-member RS Presidency on 12 May 1992.¹⁰⁴⁵⁵ When the Presidency was enlarged to five members on 6 July 1992, Plavšić was allocated the task of, inter alia, dealing with contacts with UNPROFOR, except for military issues, and questions related to refugees and humanitarian aid.¹⁰⁴⁵⁶ Plavšić was in charge of issues related to detention centres, including co-ordinating with the ICRC and other international organisations on this issue.¹⁰⁴⁵⁷ On 17 December 1992, the Bosnian Serb Assembly replaced the structures of the Presidency by establishing a single president and two vice-presidents of the Republic, electing the President to the position of President of the RS and Plavšić as one of the Vice-Presidents.¹⁰⁴⁵⁸

3259. The Chamber recalls that Plavšić attended the first session of the Council of Ministers on 11 January 1992, during which the declaration on the promulgation of the SerBiH was discussed, including the priorities of defining the ethnic territory, establishing government organs in the territory, and the economic disempowerment of the current authorities.¹⁰⁴⁵⁹ In another meeting, Plavšić emphasised the unity of the Serb people and their right to self-determination and thereafter continued to make similar speeches emphasising this right.¹⁰⁴⁶⁰

3260. Plavšić and the President communicated about preserving the common state of Yugoslavia and necessary steps to take to further Serb interests.¹⁰⁴⁶¹ The Chamber recalls that in May 1992, Plavšić spoke of the entitlement of the Serbs to 70% of the territory and that Bosnian Serbs “were used to living in wide spaces” while Muslims typically lived in cities.¹⁰⁴⁶² Plavšić further stated that “if it takes the lives of 3 million people to solve this crisis, lets get it done and move on”.¹⁰⁴⁶³

was filmed kissing and hugging Arkan.¹⁰⁴⁶⁵ When, in the course of the visit, Plavšić asked Arkan to hand over control of Bijeljina to the JNA, he replied that he had not yet finished his “business” there.¹⁰⁴⁶⁶ On 23 April 1992, Plavšić was in contact with Arkan’s men and left a message for him asking whether it was possible for her to visit.¹⁰⁴⁶⁷ Plavšić also asked whether they could “possibly bring the merchandise” and the member of Arkan’s men she spoke with responded “understood, understood”.¹⁰⁴⁶⁸

3262. Plavšić openly supported paramilitary units, or “weekend warriors” as she called them, and during a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in November 1992, she openly invited them—including Arkan’s men and the White Eagles—to “send their volunteers to help the defence of the Serbian people in [RS]”.¹⁰⁴⁶⁹ As stated above, Plavšić was an advocate of having all paramilitary units from territories where Serbs lived outside BiH come to assist them and was the “bridge” between Bosnian Serbs and the people who came from other states to assist in the conflict.¹⁰⁴⁷⁰ Mićo Stanišić and Plavšić clashed over this issue.¹⁰⁴⁷¹ According to Mandić, Mićo Stanišić arrested paramilitary units and Plavšić would intercede on their behalf and have them released.¹⁰⁴⁷²

3263. The Chamber also recalls that in mid-April 1992, Plavšić visited the Alhos factory in Zvornik and met with Bosnian Serb local leaders, including members of the Zvornik Crisis Staff.¹⁰⁴⁷³

3264. In meetings attended by the President in May or June 1992, as well as in a television interview in July 1992, Plavšić acknowledged that there were detention facilities run by Bosnian Serbs in BiH, including in Pale, Ilidža, Banja Luka, and Prijedor; however she qualified that those in detention were only able-bodied men of military age who actively participated in “rebellions”, assisted such rebellions, or financed the purchase of weapons.¹⁰⁴⁷⁴

3265. On 7 July 1992, Plavšić was informed in writing that there had been “forced and wilful” efforts to move Bosnian Muslims out of Pale, resulting in a large number of criminal acts.¹⁰⁴⁷⁵ Plavšić was informed by the UN that on 30 September 1992, approximately 300 Bosnian Muslim civilians were expelled by Serbs from the area of Grbavica in Novo Sarajevo; when questioned about the situation, Plavšić deferred any response.¹⁰⁴⁷⁶

¹⁰⁴⁶⁵ See para. 626.

¹⁰⁴⁶⁶ See para. 626. The Chamber further recalls that at a dinner with UNPROFOR representative, Cedric Thornberry, on 20 April 1992, Plavšić described Bijeljina as a “liberated” town. See para. 626.

3266. In meetings with international representatives, Plavšić openly stated that it was impossible for Bosnian Serbs to co-exist with the other communities, particularly the Bosnian Muslims, and that it was better to separate the communities; she also emphasised the importance of partitioning the territory so that the Serbs would be left in control of a single continuous block of territory.¹⁰⁴⁷⁷ At a meeting with a delegation from Greece in March 1994, in the presence of Mladić, Plavšić expressed her disapproval of the President’s appeasement and “diplomatic juggling” displayed at international negotiations.¹⁰⁴⁷⁸

ii. Ratko Mladić

3267. The Chamber recalls that Ratko Mladić was appointed Commander of the VRS Main Staff on 12 May 1992, after being selected by the President.¹⁰⁴⁷⁹ The Main Staff was the highest operative body of the VRS.¹⁰⁴⁸⁰

3268. As the Commander of the VRS Main Staff, Mladić commanded the VRS in compliance with the authority that the President delegated to him; he issued regulations, orders, and instructions relating to the implementation of orders that the President had issued.¹⁰⁴⁸¹ The President selected Mladić for this role and promoted him to the rank of Colonel-General on 28 June 1994.¹⁰⁴⁸² Mladić remained in this position throughout the conflict until 8 November 1996.¹⁰⁴⁸³

3240. Mladić was in contact with and received instructions from the President and Krajišnik.¹⁰⁴⁸⁴ In one conversation in May 1992, Mladić told Krajišnik that he would “stop by to get new instructions [...] So we’ll arrange for what we should do next”.¹⁰⁴⁸⁵ (So what?)

3269. Mladić was informed of military developments and take-overs throughout the Municipalities, as well as crimes which occurred there, during his time as Commander of the Main Staff. For example, the take-over of Rogatica beginning on or about 22 May 1992 was planned and executed by the SRK and Mladić was informed of it.¹⁰⁴⁸⁶ In May 1992, Mladić was informed that “Foča has been finished” and later in September 1992, that the percentage of Serbs in Foča was 99%.¹⁰⁴⁸⁷ Furthermore, Batković camp was established in Bijeljina following an order from Mladić to set up a camp for “war prisoners” in June 1992.¹⁰⁴⁸⁸ (So what?) On 6 June 1992,

Mladić issued an urgent directive to secure communications from Sarajevo to Zvornik and mop up or cleanse the zone of “remaining enemy groups”, also stating that the maltreatment of the unarmed civilian population was prohibited.¹⁰⁴⁸⁹ Mladić was also kept informed of events during the take-over in Vlasenica and was consulted during the armed conflict in Ilidža.¹⁰⁴⁹⁰

3270. On 1 July 1992, Mladić paid tribute to all members of the VRS for having successfully organised and implemented the co-ordinated “operation for breakthrough, expansion and cleansing of [the] corridor in Bosanska Posavina, between Eastern and Western Bosnia”.¹⁰⁴⁹¹ Mladić specifically congratulated the units of the Eastern Bosnia Corps and the 1st Krajina Corps for their unified efforts to support the position of the VRS Main Staff to realise its military and political goals for the “preservation of Serbianhood” in BiH.¹⁰⁴⁹²

3271. On 3 August 1992, Mladić ordered that inter alia Omarska, Trnopolje, and Manjača be prepared for upcoming visits from foreign journalists and members of the ICRC.¹⁰⁴⁹³ Furthermore, in a meeting with Jovi Banjac in September 1992, Mladić was informed that only 5,000 Bosnian Muslims remained in Ključ, and that another 1,500 were leaving on that same day.¹⁰⁴⁹⁴

3272. The Chamber also recalls that in meetings with international representatives, Mladić spoke about the genocide committed against Serbs in World War II in areas including Srebrenica and Sarajevo.¹⁰⁴⁹⁵ (So what?) Furthermore, the Chamber recalls that Mladić agreed with the President when he said in January 1993 that they could not live together with Bosnian Muslims anymore and that therefore Bosnian Muslims would be transferred out of Bosnian Serb territory.¹⁰⁴⁹⁶ Mladić continued to make statements into 1994 about the necessity to fight against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to the end that they vanish completely or disappear.¹⁰⁴⁹⁷ Finally, the Chamber recalls the notice Mladić issued to the Main Staff in August 1995 in which, inter alia, he praised the VRS for thwarting “a planned and prepared genocide of the Serbian people, protecting the greater part of Serbian territories, and achieving victory after victory in the liberation of occupied historically and ethnically Serbian areas”.¹⁰⁴⁹⁸

3273. The Chamber also recalls that Mladić was involved in defining, adopting, and carrying out the Strategic Goals.¹⁰⁴⁹⁹ Mladić advocated that the actions of the Bosnian Serbs should remain secret and recommended the adoption of a common rhetoric towards the public.¹⁰⁵⁰⁰ He also stressed the importance of identifying a common enemy and that on this basis, “we must make our move and eliminate them, either temporarily or permanently”.¹⁰⁵⁰¹ In relation to carrying out the Strategic Goals, the Chamber recalls that Mladić issued important military directives, such as Directive 4 in November 1992 and Directive 5 in June 1993.¹⁰⁵⁰²

iii. Slobodan Milošević

3274. Slobodan Milošević was the President of the Republic of Serbia.¹⁰⁵⁰³ Milan Babić described Milošević as “the president of all Serbs, not only those in Serbia”¹⁰⁵⁰⁴ and was referred to by Jovica Stanišić as the “main boss”.¹⁰⁵⁰⁵ He had control over the JNA.¹⁰⁵⁰⁶

3275. Beginning in November 1990, Milošević and the President had a close association and the President would visit him frequently in Belgrade.¹⁰⁵⁰⁷ Other Bosnian Serb leaders such as Krajišnik also met with Milošević but their meetings were less frequent.¹⁰⁵⁰⁸ Prior to the start of the conflict and into 1992, Slobodan Milošević and the President were in constant communication with each other to discuss and co-ordinate both political and military tactics in relation to developments in BiH and Croatia.¹⁰⁵⁰⁹ There was a close connection between the authorities in Pale and Belgrade, and the Bosnian Serb leadership consulted with Belgrade on developments in BiH.¹⁰⁵¹⁰ Points of discussion included (i) their opposition to the secession of BiH and the desire to remain part of Yugoslavia;¹⁰⁵¹¹ (ii) opposition to the creation of an Islamic State;¹⁰⁵¹² (iii)

3276. The Chamber recalls that from 1990 and into mid-1991, the political objective of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership was to preserve Yugoslavia and to prevent the separation or independence of BiH, which would result in a separation of Bosnian Serbs from Serbia; the Chamber notes that Slobodan Milošević endorsed this objective and spoke against the independence of BiH.¹⁰⁵¹⁹

3277. The Chamber found that based on a conversation between the President and Milošević on 24 October 1991, it was also clear that Slobodan Milošević was attempting to take a more cautious approach while the President was adamant that the goal of the Bosnian Serb leadership was to ensure that they would establish full authority in their territories and that they would announce their own Bosnian Serb Assembly.¹⁰⁵²⁰ The Chamber also found that while Milošević expressed reservations about excluding Bosnian Muslims, the President was adamant that there were not even 10% of Bosnian Muslims who supported Yugoslavia and that they could not take such a risk.¹⁰⁵²¹

3278. The Chamber recalls that in December 1991, Milošević told the President that he should not give in to Izetbegović and that they had to stick to their line and that “if they want to fight, we’ll fight” given that the Serbs were stronger.¹⁰⁵²² They also spoke about the unconstitutional nature of the decision changing the status of BiH.¹⁰⁵²³

3279. On 26 December 1991, the Accused and Krajišnik spoke about their political strategies and the issues of sovereignty in BiH, regionalisation, and their mutual disappointment with Slobodan Milošević.¹⁰⁵²⁴ The Accused in this regard stated that they would have to pursue their own policy even if it meant “splitting with Milošević”.¹⁰⁵²⁵ In January 1992, Milošević told the Accused in an intercepted phone conversation that he would not describe the Accused as one of his “satellites”.¹⁰⁵²⁶ (Certainly, why would he! The President and President Milosevic were an #ideological opponents#, and President Milosevic opposed many of the President’s political moves that had been aimed to save the Serbs in Bosnia rather than to preserve Yugoslavia, which couldn’t be saved only by the Serbs in Bosnia! As the Chamber could have seen, President Milosevic made a formidable efforts to displace the President from the office, and also made many meetings with the President’s commanders and representatives without any knowledge of the President!)

3280. In March 1992, in a meeting with international representatives, Slobodan Milošević described the situation in BiH as similar to “dynamite”, and if anyone favoured one of the parties, there would be hell but he had called the President and told him to “cool it”.¹⁰⁵²⁷ Milošević also said that Yugoslavia hoped for intensive links with BiH.¹⁰⁵²⁸ Later in the war, in meetings with international representatives, Milošević also made assurances that he would speak to the Bosnian Serbs, that he continued to condemn “ethnic cleansing” but that the world was “satanizing” the Serbs without condemning actions by the other parties.¹⁰⁵²⁹

3281. Beginning in 1992, Slobodan Milošević was informed by international representatives about the expulsion of Muslims in BiH; he responded that everything that would happen in BiH would be horrendous and the responsibility for these acts remained with those who decided to separate BiH and that he had no authority as far as the Bosnian Serbs were concerned.¹⁰⁵³⁰ (In that respect President Milosevic was right!) In September 1992, in meetings with international representatives, leaders of the FRY expressed the view that the international representatives were justified in asking them to pressure the President.¹⁰⁵³¹

3282. The President in September 1992 acknowledged the support given by “leading figures both in Serbia and in Yugoslavia” who strongly supported the Bosnian Serbs in achieving their goal, even if it was temporarily within BiH, but on the condition that the Bosnian Serbs defined “the borders towards the Muslims and Croats”.¹⁰⁵³² By January 1993, deputies in the Bosnian

Serb Assembly called on Slobodan Milošević and the Serbian people to do more to help their brothers in the RS.¹⁰⁵³³ (So what?)

3283. In May 1993, Slobodan Milošević addressed the Bosnian Serb Assembly and confirmed the solidarity of Serbia with the Bosnian Serbs but stressed that the assembly should accept the Vance-Owen Plan to avoid the disastrous consequences of the war continuing.¹⁰⁵³⁴ He acknowledged that the war had been imposed on the Serbs who simply defended themselves.¹⁰⁵³⁵ On this point, the President disagreed and stated that he felt deceived by Milošević and explained that the Vance-Owen Plan was catastrophic for the Serbs, that they would live in enclaves and areas like Zvornik would be “Turkish”, and that there was a danger that they would be bombed whether or not they signed.¹⁰⁵³⁶ (The President Milosevic supported all the peace plans, in spite of the Serbs in BiH disagreement! He couldn't be in any JCE with the President, who respected him, but didn't obeyed him or other advisors from Belgrade or the then Moscow!)

3285. In October 1993, Perišić discussed personnel issues related to officers from the FRY who had been engaged in the VRS and there was discussion of whether the FRY should pull out their personnel from the RS.¹⁰⁵⁴⁰ At this meeting, Slobodan Milošević said that “Mladić needs to come here so that we can hear what he has to say”.¹⁰⁵⁴¹

3286. The Chamber recalls that Slobodan Milošević attended a meeting held at the Presidency of Serbia on 8 November 1993, with among others, the President, Krajišnik, Martić, Mladić, and Perišić, where the following common objectives were discussed: (i) unconditionally strengthen the integrity of Serbia, (ii) set up the RS as a completely independent state; and (iii) ensure Serbs have complete power in the Krajina.¹⁰⁵⁴²

3287. At a meeting in December 1993, with Slobodan Milošević, Jovica Stanišić and others, the President stated that the end of the conflict was close and that the Bosnian Serbs were holding 75% of the territory; he acknowledged that some of this territory would have to be returned as the international community would not allow it.¹⁰⁵⁴³ The President listed the Strategic Goals at this meeting.¹⁰⁵⁴⁴ This meeting was convened to improve the “operational and tactical position” of the Bosnian Serbs and to discuss help from Serbia.¹⁰⁵⁴⁵ (Not at all! The meeting was convened with the aim to try to establish a leverage of the Yugoslav leadership on the President, after the

Owen-Stoltenberg peace plan had been rejected by the Muslims, and a new Contact Group Peace plan had been announced. President Milosevic was indicted for a many matters and deeds that he exerted in order to meet the Western expectations! The Western countries requested that President Milosevic maintain a close relationship with the leadership of the Serbs in Bosnia!

Milošević agreed with a proposal from Mladić and suggested that “the operation” should be planned and the forces prepared but only following negotiations in Brussels.¹⁰⁵⁴⁶ He also promised to provide fuel supplies from the state reserves for the operations.¹⁰⁵⁴⁷ Milošević offered further assistance, stating that Perišić will “give everything that does not jeopardise combat readiness of units” in Serbia.¹⁰⁵⁴⁸ Perišić further stated that they would help with weapons while Jovica Stanišić spoke about a special combat group which could be deployed;¹⁰⁵⁴⁹ these units included the Red Berets and Arkan’s men.¹⁰⁵⁵⁰ The following day, continuing the meeting, Stanišić and Perišić confirmed that that they would provide manpower of a few hundred men.¹⁰⁵⁵¹

3288. At a meeting in Belgrade on 15 March 1994 attended by Jovića Stanišić, Martić, Mladić, and the President, Slobodan Milošević stated that “[a]ll members of other nations and ethnicities must be protected” and that “[t]he national interest of the Serbs is not discrimination”.¹⁰⁵⁵²

3289. International observers noted that Milošević had a dominant influence over the Bosnian Serb leadership and played a role in convincing them to accept certain proposals during international negotiations.¹⁰⁵⁵³ However, by July 1994, there were rifts in the relationship between the RS and Serbia, and Slobodan Milošević complained about criticisms directed against Serbia.¹⁰⁵⁵⁴ In private meetings, Milošević was extremely angry at the Bosnian Serb leadership for rejecting the Vance-Owen Plan and he cursed the President.¹⁰⁵⁵⁵

3290. The Chamber notes that while originally Milošević had similar interests to those as the Bosnian Serbs, when their interests diverged, his influence over the Bosnian Serb leaders also reduced.¹⁰⁵⁵⁶ Milošević also questioned whether the world would accept that the Bosnian Serbs who represented only one third of the population of BiH would get more than 50% of the territory and he encouraged a political agreement.¹⁰⁵⁵⁷ He stated that the Serbs had won the war, and that there were “hardly any” Bosnian Muslims in RS.¹⁰⁵⁵⁸ By August 1994, leaders in Serbia criticised

Bosnian Serb leaders of committing “crimes against humanity” and continuing “ethnic cleansing” and the war for their own purposes.¹⁰⁵⁵⁹

3291. At a meeting held on 22 August 1994 between Slobodan Milošević and Akashi, it was clear to Akashi that Milošević’s break with the President was “serious” and stemmed from differences that arose over a long period of time.¹⁰⁵⁶⁰ Milošević gave the impression that he was “a politician who is more in command of the overall situation” while the President was “a local leader wrapped up in the emotions of an ongoing civil war”.¹⁰⁵⁶¹ At the meeting, Milošević made it clear that there was a difference of views emerging in the Bosnian Serb leadership on the execution of the war.¹⁰⁵⁶² Specifically, Milošević stated that Krajina Serbs were well aware that a solution based on negotiations was the only way out and this is why they had not accepted the President’s suggestion to merge with the RS.¹⁰⁵⁶³

3292. Given the difference of opinion between the Bosnian Serb and the Serbian leaderships, in 1993 and 1994, the FRY reduced its support for the RS and encouraged the Bosnian Serbs to accept peace proposals.¹⁰⁵⁶⁴ In this regard the FRY leadership was on notice about some of the extreme views held by the Bosnian Serb leadership and they could not support those views, including with respect to ethnic cleansing.¹⁰⁵⁶⁵

3293. During a meeting held on 20 September 1994 with Mladić, Perišić, and others, Milošević stressed that there had been a break between Pale and Serbia and reminded them that Serbian policy was defined in Belgrade, not Pale.¹⁰⁵⁶⁶ He declared that the war must end and that the Bosnian Serbs’ biggest mistake was to want a complete defeat of the Bosnian Muslims.¹⁰⁵⁶⁷ During the course of this meeting, Milošević further expressed his disapproval of the Bosnian Serb leadership’s disunity from the Bosnian Serbs in Krajina, stating that “the crazy doctor may think that Serbia must toady up to him—it’s not going to happen”.¹⁰⁵⁶⁸

3294. By November 1994, Perišić noted that the Bosnian Serbs accounted for 20% of the population but held more than 70% of the territory which, in his view, was unsustainable; however, according to Perišić, the Bosnian Serbs wanted “to preserve this at all cost”, but loss of territory was inevitable.¹⁰⁵⁶⁹ Slobodan Milošević referred to the President’s belief that they could “wage an infinite war and they won’t give up on anything”.¹⁰⁵⁷⁰ Milošević noted however that “our biggest advantage is that the territories, which are to be allocated to Serbs by the peace plan, are already in the Serbian hands so that nobody has to be removed from them”.¹⁰⁵⁷¹ He also explained that when they tried to convince the President and Krajišnik that they would be forced to do certain things, they replied that it was better to be forced than to accept.¹⁰⁵⁷² Milošević noted that the Bosnian Serb political leadership would “sacrifice many lives in order to preserve their vanity and to prove that they are not the ones who accepted the peace plan because a half of BiH is too little for them”.¹⁰⁵⁷³ He spoke about the Bosnian Serbs wanting to take even more territory by force even while they already controlled half of BiH and described this as “complete madness”.¹⁰⁵⁷⁴

3295. Milošević tried to reason with the Bosnian Serbs saying that he understood their concerns, but that it was most important to end the war and that they would achieve any objectives denied them by the plan when peace talks resumed.¹⁰⁵⁷⁵ When the RS did not accept this plan, Milošević imposed a blockade on the Drina River and suspended political and economic relations with the Bosnian Serb leadership; Milošević even wanted to remove the leaders from Pale and have them replaced by exerting influence on the deputies and the Bosnian Assembly.¹⁰⁵⁷⁶

3296. By May 1995, it appeared to international representatives that the split between Slobodan Milošević and the President was complete.¹⁰⁵⁷⁷ At a 3 May 1995 meeting with Milošević, Milinović, Akashi, Banbury, and Kirudja, among others, Milošević stated: “I have good personal relations with Mladić. However, as long as Karadžić and Krajišnik are there, they will not accept a peaceful solution.”¹⁰⁵⁷⁸ Kirudja observed that Slobodan Milošević still exerted influence over officials in the RS and RSK, including Mladić.¹⁰⁵⁷⁹ This influence appeared to vary over time, but Kirudja was under the impression that Milošević considered Mladić to be loyal to him even after the relations between Belgrade and Pale deteriorated.¹⁰⁵⁸⁰ Milošević also criticised Martić, and Kirudja noted that the President and Martić were aligned at the time.¹⁰⁵⁸¹ According to Kirudja, Milošević seemed to be “playing his usual game of switching his support for RSK leaders as the situation best suited his aims at the moment” and that Milošević’s control over RSK or RS officials seemed to vary with time, depending on events in the region.¹⁰⁵⁸² When Martić aligned himself with the President, both Martić and the President fell out of favour with Milošević.¹⁰⁵⁸³

3297. In November 1995, Slobodan Milošević addressed the Supreme Defence Council of the FRY, spoke about the leadership in Pale being the biggest obstacle to solving the problems in BiH, and criticised them for rejecting plans for the territorial division of BiH.¹⁰⁵⁸⁴ Milošević told the Bosnian Serb leadership that they were not entitled to have more than half the territory in BiH, stating that there is no way that more than that could belong to us! Because, we represent one third of the population. This was not a subject of dispute, but the fact that President Milosevic kept the Bosnian Serb delegation far from any negotiations, and gave a precious parts of Sarajevo, almost 100% Serbian, to the Muslims! iv. Mićo Stanišić

3298. Mićo Stanišić was a member of the Preparatory Committee that established the SDS.¹⁰⁵⁸⁶ He was also a member of the Council of Ministers and the SNB.¹⁰⁵⁸⁷ On 24 March 1992, Mićo Stanišić was appointed Minister of the MUP.¹⁰⁵⁸⁸ Stanišić served in this position until the end of December 1992 when he was relieved of his duties by the Bosnian Serb leadership, specifically at the request of Plavšić and Koljević.¹⁰⁵⁸⁹ Stanišić went to Belgrade until he was appointed by the President again as Minister of the Bosnian Serb MUP during an interim six month period between January and July 1994.¹⁰⁵⁹⁰ (The President had no power to appointe a minister if the Assembly met regularly. However, the President appointed a commission, and investigating team to explore the objections and allegation of Ms. Plavsic on Stanisic and Mandic. The team was led by Koljevic, and after they honestly recognized that all the allegations were fake, and that Ms. Plavsic was misinformed, the President agreed with the new Prime Minister to call Stanisic back, because he was fully dedicated to the eradication of crimes!)

3299. Mićo Stanišić was considered to be in the top leadership of the RS and had a very close relationship with the President, as well as his support.¹⁰⁵⁹¹ According to Branko Đerić, Mićo Stanišić and Mandić were the “President’s men” and Stanišić took orders directly from the President.¹⁰⁵⁹² Stanišić also reported to the President.¹⁰⁵⁹³ (Thi was all a Djeric's misconception, since he thought that the ministries were supposed to obey Prime Minister, as it was in the Soviet model, while ministers had to act in accordance with the law, and be responsible to the Assembly. President had to know and accurately respond to all what he could be asked by the internationals!

3300. The Chamber refers to Section IV.A.3.a.ii.C regarding the split in the MUP and the creation of a Bosnian Serb MUP and Mićo Stanišić's involvement therein.¹⁰⁵⁹⁴ It recalls that the ultimate split in the MUP structures was precipitated by a decision by the Bosnian Serb leadership which formed part of their decision to create a separate Bosnian Serb state with parallel structures. Mićo Stanišić was involved in the decision making and promulgation of this idea from as early as February 1992, where he spoke of the need to work towards organising a Bosnian Serb MUP starting at the municipal and regional levels and moving towards a Serb ministry.¹⁰⁵⁹⁵ The Chamber also found that the creation of a separate Bosnian Serb MUP was a means of undermining the proposed independence of BiH. Finally, the Chamber found that the directives with respect to the division of the MUP structures and the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP were communicated to and implemented at a municipal level and were a crucial step in the take-over of the Municipalities, as it created a structure which would allow Bosnian Serb authority to be maintained through a separate police structure.¹⁰⁵⁹⁶ (This is all as wrong as could be! The Minister Stanisić explained everything in his speech on 30 March 1992, a his first inaugural speech to the members of the Serb MUP, see:D4271:

The Minister of the Interior of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, Mićo STANIŠIĆ, will address the members of the police unit of the Serbian Autonomous Region of Romanija.

As of today the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina has its own police force. The legality of our existence is provided by the Constitution of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Law on Internal Affairs recently adopted by the Assembly at its session. Moreover, the legality of our existence is based on the result of negotiations of the three ethnic communities under the auspices of the European Community. As of today we will act as the police of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina which will carry out its tasks and assignments professionally, and not politically, as the MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ of the old Bosnia and Herzegovina has done so far, in order to protect property, life, body and other securities of all citizens in the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina equally. Members of the police, we are not involved in politics. We must carry out our tasks professionally. For these reasons, long speeches do not belong to us, but as of today, good luck, get to work, in the interest of all who live in the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Thank you.

The #“result of negotiations of the three ethnic communities under the auspice of the European Community” was quoted as the very fundament for creation of the Serb separate MUP, because all the proposed plans always envisaged that the entites would have their own separate and independente police#. If the Muslim side didn't renege on the Lisbon Agreement there wouldn't be any war or aany “take-overs”, and therefore the establishment of the separate Serb MUP had nothing to do with this wha is asserted in this paragraph!)

3301. Furthermore, the Chamber recalls that Mićo Stanisić also ordered that CSB heads were allowed to take-over the employees from the former MUP and assign jobs within the CSBs and ¹⁰⁵⁹⁴ For example, as early as September 1991, Mićo Stanišić was informed that the Bosnian Serbs wanted to split the police structures in Vogošća given the disputes they were facing, but Stanišić said that “it needs some more time. One should act with his head cool”. P2219 (Intercept of conversation between Jovan Tintor and Mićo Stanišić, 12 September 1991), pp. 2–5.

SJBs, however, they had to inform the Minister of the Interior of all such decisions.¹⁰⁵⁹⁷ (So what? That was a ministerial duty!) Furthermore, all heads of CSB were required to obtain prior approval from the MUP before assigning posts at the higher levels, such as the head of the SJBs.¹⁰⁵⁹⁸ In addition, on 15 May 1992, Stanišić issued an order formalising the co-operation of the Bosnian Serb MUP and VRS, such that MUP personnel would be organised into war units and re-subordinated to the VRS during their participation in combat activities.¹⁰⁵⁹⁹ (So what? Not even the Muslim-Croat side would object that, since it was in accord with the Law on Interior)

3302. In April 1992, Davidović was sent with others from Belgrade to help set up the Bosnian Serb MUP and to establish a special purpose unit under the direction of Mićo Stanišić.¹⁰⁶⁰⁰ Those who went to assist the Bosnian Serb MUP were to act with Bosnian Serb MUP IDs in order to conceal their identity and the fact that the FRY was assisting in the war.¹⁰⁶⁰¹ (#Wrong, and misunderstood! Mr. Davidovis and many others had been delegated to the federal MUP on behalf of the MUP in BiH, and since they originated from the towns in the Republic of Srpska, they had been a Serb MUP employees on a temporary detached duty#. The federal institutions had been functioning as a confederal since the 1974 Constitution!) On arrival in Pale, Davidović reported to and then met with Mićo Stanišić and Mandić.¹⁰⁶⁰² Also, surplus weapons from the Federal SUP were sent to the Bosnian Serb MUP and were controlled by Mićo Stanišić and Momčilo Mandić.¹⁰⁶⁰³ These weapons were transported from Belgrade to Pale in JNA helicopters in around April 1992 and consisted of uniforms, flak jackets, and automatic weapons.¹⁰⁶⁰⁴ (The Federal MUP was in an obligation to do much more, since there had been jeopardized the federal state, particularly before the BiH had been admitted in the UN!)

3303. In Bijeljina, the Chief of the Bijeljina SJB reported to Mićo Stanišić on the situation in the municipality, and an almost daily reporting system was operating between the Bijeljina CSB and the Bosnian Serb MUP.¹⁰⁶⁰⁵ The Chamber recalls that Mićo Stanišić informed Milorad Davidović that Arkan's forces were in Zvornik and Bijeljina and "helping to liberate territory [that] they believed should become part of [the RS]".¹⁰⁶⁰⁶ In addition, Mićo Stanišić was informed that Arkan's men had taken over the Bijeljina SUP, and Stanišić commented that he knew, that nothing else could be done, and that's "how it ha[d] to be".¹⁰⁶⁰⁷ In April or May 1992, after Arkan entered Bijeljina, the President met with Krajišnik, Mićo Stanišić, Frenki Simatović, Arkan, Pero Mihajlović, and Davidović in Belgrade to discuss "further activities" of the SDB.¹⁰⁶⁰⁸ (Fake and false! The Chamber recalls that Davidović was later tasked to lead a special unit of the Federal SUP to address problems with paramilitaries in northeastern BiH and arrived in Bijeljina on 27 June 1992; while Davidović's unit came from the Federal SUP in Belgrade it was re-subordinated to the command of the Bosnian Serb MUP. But see D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), paras. 18, 67. The Chamber notes that Subotić's evidence was marked by evasiveness and bias which undermined his credibility. The Chamber therefore does not rely on his evidence that no arms came from outside to arm the Bosnian Serbs and that he was not aware of any organised arming in the first year of the war. The Chamber does find, however, that the Accused proposed that Subotić be promoted for his organisation of the arming and training of Bosnian Serbs in RS for their "defence and survival" particularly in relation to attacks from Croatia. possibility that the President met with this composition, since if the President was meeting anybody in Belgrade, that would be the President or Prime Minister, not this group! Every single arrival of the President in Belgrade had been reported in media, why only this onewas not?)

3304. At the end of May 1992, Bosnian Serb leaders from Zvornik informed Mićo Stanišić and Mandić about the situation in the municipality, including the actions of the paramilitaries.¹⁰⁶⁰⁹ Mićo Stanišić was also informed in May 1992 about the situation in Ilidža, and in particular, that they had received reinforcements which included “Arkanovci and Šešeljevci” to which Stanišić responded: “Good”.¹⁰⁶¹⁰ (Let us see how the Chamber and Prosecution understand the

Serbian language! See P2229 and this “Good”:

ŽUGIĆ, Nedjeljko	Today we’ve been through, well...a lot of trouble.
---------------------	--

STANIŠIĆ, Mićo	Good. And where are you now?
-------------------	------------------------------

What there could be “good” in a “lot of trouble”? this “good” in Serbian would be adequate to a “understood”, or “I read you” in English. Now, the last sentence in the document, but not last in the conversation:

STANIŠIĆ, Mićo	Tell me what the situation is like over there.
-------------------	--

ŽUGIĆ, Nedjeljko	Well, we got reinforcements from GAGOVIĆ, some Arkanovci and Šešeljevci came, I don’t know...
---------------------	---

STANIŠIĆ, Mićo	Good.

Gagovic was the Commander of the 4th Corps of JNA in LUKAVICA, later known as a SRK. If Gagovic sent somebody, there would be a reason to comment it with a “good”, but obviously Stanisic only confirmed that he heard the interlocutor. Obviously, it was not the end of this conversation, and we only can guess what Stanisic said after stopped listening to Zugic, but for some reason this part is cut off. #This is an invalid document, the most probably deliberately crippled. A serious chamber would reject to value such a document, so more since there is no an audio of the conversation! In addition, the Chamber had the insight in the other at least two conversations between the Arkan’s men, Arkan himself and his colonel Legija, P5675, and D1248, pasted above in para 3183 of this Judgement, which exclude any finding like this one in this paragraph!)

In June 1992, the President received a report on the combat situation in Ilidža from Mićo Stanišić and the President instructed him “don’t hurry, just proceed according to your plan”.¹⁰⁶¹¹ (So what? How these two facts are connected? Only because both are depicted in the same paragraph of the Judgement. But it is a too much of creativity on the Chamber’s side, and no a serious chamber would do it, or allow the juniors assisting in assembling this Judgement to smuggle such a connection! This kind of game could be done only in a deep despair and an absence of a real evidence!)

3305. In an interview in October 1992, Mićo Stanišić stressed that the Bosnian Serb MUP assisted the VRS in combat operations, yet at the beginning of the conflict, the “burden of defence was borne by the police” and due to its organisation and dedication, “we established most of our borders, exactly like what they look like today”.¹⁰⁶¹² (So what? Since the JNA was hesitant to interfere in the conflict unless attacked directly, the police and the Territorial Defence were the only “Serb Force” to oppose to a many times more numerous sector armies of the Muslims and Croats. What they did was their right, and their legal and constitutional obligation, and they should be commended for their exercise of these duties!) Finally, during an Assembly meeting in November 1992, Stanišić affirmed his allegiance to the President and the SDS stating that he had always followed the policies of the SDS Presidency and he would not allow himself to be separated from them.¹⁰⁶¹³ (So what? The SDS was a winner party, and was a ruling party. According to the Constitution and the Law on Defence, the party in power is obliged to obtain a responsible cadres, and to participate in the daily life and particularly in the preparations for defence. A ministers were supposed to be a political persons too, while others within the MUP were mainly professionals without any parti affiliation! Why the Chamber presumed that a mere association with the SDS, or a personal acquaintance with the President was a proof of crime?)

¹⁰⁶⁰⁹ See para. 1284. By the end of July 1992, pursuant to instructions by Stanišić, Davidović planned an operation to arrest the paramilitary groups in Zvornik and Foča in co-operation with Andan and special units of the MUP. See paras. 866, 1290–1291.

v. Momčilo Mandić (It would be senseless to comment anything about Momcilo Mandic, since he was #acquitted before the Bosnian court#, which is particularly mean and politically posed against the Serb officials.)

3306. Momčilo Mandić was the Deputy Minister of the Bosnian Serb MUP between 1991 and May 1992, and was then appointed the first RS Minister of Justice from May to November 1992.¹⁰⁶¹⁴ Mandić left his position and went to Belgrade in November 1992 due to a conflict with Plavšić and Koljević.¹⁰⁶¹⁵

3307. All decisions relating to staffing policies at the Bosnian Serb MUP required Mandić's approval and he consulted with the President and regional leaders in selecting candidates.¹⁰⁶¹⁶ Mandić worked with the support and approval of the President.¹⁰⁶¹⁷

3308. The Chamber refers to Section IV.A.3.a.ii.C regarding the split in the MUP and creation of a Bosnian Serb MUP and Mandić's involvement therein.¹⁰⁶¹⁸ The Chamber found that Mandić took a leading role in ensuring that this division was carried out at a municipal level and in detailing how the new Bosnian Serb MUP was to be structured.¹⁰⁶¹⁹

3309. Through the Ministry of Justice, Mandić was given the responsibility for the exchange of detainees through the Central Commission for the Exchange of Prisoners of War and Arrested Persons established by the Bosnian Serb Government on 8 May 1992.¹⁰⁶²⁰ Mandić was directly involved in organising the exchange of detainees.¹⁰⁶²¹

3310. Mandić was advised about Bosnian Muslims being driven out of Ilidža in May 1992 and he further informed Prstojević that he was aware that Prstojević was issuing ultimatums to Bosnian Muslims and evicting them from settlements.¹⁰⁶²² In a conversation with Prstojević in June 1992, Mandić said:

It has come to our attention and that of the Government that you are issuing ultimatums to some Turks; evicting people from certain settlements and people respond badly to it [...] Well please do not do anything like it, consult with Đerić first and those people up there, because this is very bad publicity for us [...] You have to be a little bit more flexible there and not touch those Muslims who are willing to listen and who are loyal. We cannot ethnically cleanse Ilidža or any other place. At least that is the attitude of the Government and political leadership and all.¹⁰⁶²³

Mandić continues and says that they should “place two or three Muslims somewhere” so that they could say that they were employing everyone who was loyal to the Serb state, regardless of nationality.¹⁰⁶²⁴ The Chamber finds that it is clear from this conversation that what was important to the Bosnian Serb authorities was maintaining a certain appearance regarding what was said in public, rather than the protection of the non-Serbs.

3311. Mandić was also aware that the Crisis Staffs used detainees for forced labour, including digging trenches and fortifying barracks on the frontlines.¹⁰⁶²⁵ He was involved in providing detainees from Kula Prison and Planjo’s House to perform forced labour in Ilidža and Vogošća.¹⁰⁶²⁶

vi. Jovica Stanišić

3312. Jovica Stanišić was the head of the SDB, which was part of the Serbian MUP.¹⁰⁶²⁷

3313. Stanišić and the President were in regular contact and discussed and co-ordinated a number of issues including political and military developments in BiH and Croatia.¹⁰⁶²⁸ There was also co-ordination pertaining to the involvement of the JNA¹⁰⁶²⁹ and recruiting volunteers.¹⁰⁶³⁰

Stanišić also liaised between the President and Slobodan Milošević.¹⁰⁶³¹ (What was criminal in all of these activities? Mr. Stanisic was the Chief of the State Security of Serbia, and his job was to collect as many information as possible. The President had his own Party in the ruling coalition and the two Serb representatives in the BiH Presidency. Both of them had their legitimate interests to know what the other knows and other information!)

3314. In May 1991, the President met with Jovica Stanišić and others including Franko Simatović at the President's apartment in Sarajevo, where among other issues they discussed maps of BiH.¹⁰⁶³² (The witness in this foot note was not really a reliable ones. He pleaded guilt for a smaller fine. But, it is out of question that the BiH maps were any subject of any meeting in 1991, but rather the situation in the Serb Krajina in Croatia. Irrelevant, but there is already too many lies so to admit another!) The President and Jovica Stanišić were also involved in creating an account which could be used for “fictitious payments” relating to weapons and ammunition which had been procured in FRY for the RS and which evaded the embargo.¹⁰⁶³³ (An idiotic assertion. Why would the President deal with this issue, since there was so many financial and economy experts? Beside that, it was well known that after the New Year 1992 the President and the witness didn't have any contact, since the President supported the Vance Plan for Krajina, which caused the witness's resignation, or replacement in the office in Krajina. So he couldn't have known anything about the period after the RA had been established! A “guilt plea” witnesses are a huge weakness of this Tribunal, and the issue is on the border of a morally acceptable conduct!) Stanišić told the President in November 1991 that he hoped to have a chance to work with him.¹⁰⁶³⁴ (This is the best proof that all these testimonies about any cooperation and coordination of the President and Stanisic were fake. The entire conversation was about the President's attempts to get in touch with President Milosevic, and some Mira (a secretary) gave to Stanisic the note about that attempt. If Mr. Stanisic in November 1991 said that he hoped to have an opportunity to work with the President, it meant that till that moment they didn't work together!) On 4 December 1991, Jovica Stanišić asked the President when he should send “men”, to which the President responded, “[a]s soon as possible”.¹⁰⁶³⁵ (So what? The entire conversation was dedicated to the Serb Golgota in the Western Slavonija, but the Chamber remembered only that some “men” will come to the President soon, nobody knew why. What is criminal in it? It may only be an evidence that both the men existed, that from time to time have spoken on telephone or met each other. A horrible crimes!)

3315. Jovica Stanišić invited Arkan to visit the Serbian MUP and Arkan called Stanišić directly occasionally.¹⁰⁶³⁶ Jovica Stanišić attended meetings with the President, Slobodan Milošević, and others throughout the conflict to discuss providing assistance from Serbia to the Bosnian Serbs, including in the form of personnel, such as units of the Red Berets and Arkan's men.¹⁰⁶³⁷ According to Davidović, the Pale authorities, which included the President, Krajišnik, Mićo Stanišić, and Mladić, consulted the authorities in Belgrade—Slobodan Milošević, Jovica Stanišić, and later Perišić—“about everything”; this was “common knowledge as they did not have enough 3316. Stanišić spoke about the possibility of an all-out war and that they would “exterminate them completely”¹⁰⁶³⁹ (Let us see how this is misused: D301, p.6.

KARADŽIĆ:

But if it is finished quickly... I mean, this conversation was interesting and very useful and we believe that a lot can be done there. I then said to a man who’s very close to TUĐMAN that the Serbs and the Croats might resolve all their contentious issues in a month or two. With elasticity and goodwill they could settle their disagreement. Otherwise, they are in for thirty years of torture. With the Blue Helmets, with disagreements, with all sorts of things...

STANIŠIĆ:

Yes, yes.

No. We’ll then have to push them to go to Belgrade, you know!

Or we’ll exterminate them completely so let’s see where we’ll end up.

So, Stanisic was talking about admitting somebody to Belgrade, a Serb Capitol, and as an alternative there would be an endless fighting to “their extermination”. Nothing is clear who, what, when and how, but a simple sentence is used for a heavy conclusion. Not to forget, the conversation was in January 1992, and entirely pertained to the Serbs in Srpska Krajina, not a word pertained to the situation in BiH, since there stil was no a war, and it was hoped that there will be no a war whatsoever! In 1994, Stanišić told RSK MUP officials that he supported the objective to “fight to achieve the common goals of all the Serbian lands”¹⁰⁶⁴⁰

3317. The authorities in Serbia were also involved in establishing multiple training camps for Bosnian Serbs including special police units of the RS and a camp run by Captain Dragan.¹⁰⁶⁴¹ The President supported the work of these training camps.¹⁰⁶⁴²

vii. Franko Simatović men were directly subordinated to the Serbian MUP and to Franko Simatović.¹⁰⁶⁴⁴ (This Defence is not interested in this issue, but for the sake of truth, Arkan was a man of the Federal MUP, which was in a bad relations with the MUP of Serbia, and particularly with Mr. Stanisić! 3319. In a conversation on 28 January 1992 with the Accused regarding plans to meet, Simatović told the Accused: "You're the main man there doctor, and that's how it stays".¹⁰⁶⁴⁵ (So what? Simatovic didn't elect the President. This sentence is irrelevant and senseless!) As stated above, Simatović also attended the meeting in April or May 1992 with the President, Mićo Stanišić, Arkan, and others to discuss "further activities" of the SDB.¹⁰⁶⁴⁶ (Unreliable witness, and no corroboration whatsoever!)

3320. Simatović was also responsible for monitoring the training of Serb Forces, including units trained in camps run by Captain Dragan.¹⁰⁶⁴⁷ (What was criminal in Simatovic's conduct? And how Mr. Simatovic could have been a member of any JCE in BiH?)

many Serbs had died during these fights? The Chamber is not interested in knowing what kind of fight was it, who initiated it, who was responsible for it, particularly for Bijeljina, which happened while the BiH still existed!

3323. The Chamber recalls that after successfully taking over Bijeljina on 4 April 1992, Arkan was welcomed there and “treated like a god”; (By whom he was celebrated? This was the #old BiH#, which ceased to exist on 6 April, when the Serbs withdrew from the common institutions and declared the Republic of Srpska as a sovereign state! But, if the Prosecution fulfilled its own duty and disclosed the exculpatory evidence, there wouldn’t be Arkan in Bijeljina at all. This is a document of the ECMM. They wrote a report how they wanted to interview Arkan, but prior to this they interviewed a group of Muslims in Bijeljina, who got in touch with Arkan. They were surprised to learn that these Muslims said had only the kindest words for Arkan and his unit present there in April 1992.) some of his men were given official positions and based themselves in the local SDS building.¹⁰⁶⁵² (Wrong and false!) The Chamber recalls that Plavšić was in communication with Arkan beginning in April 1992.¹⁰⁶⁵³ She congratulated Arkan for saving the Bosnian Serbs in Bijeljina and was filmed kissing and hugging him.¹⁰⁶⁵⁴ (So what? Ms. Plavšić did it on behalf of the BiH Presidency, because she visited Bijeljina on behalf of the BiH Presidency, together with Fikret Abdić, another member of Presidency, and Jerko Doko, a Defence Minister of BiH. All nothing to do with the SDS or the President!)

3324. Arkan’s men were also involved in killings of Bosnian Muslim civilians in Bijeljina and Zvornik in April 1992.¹⁰⁶⁵⁵ (#It had never been established that a “civilians had been killed in Bijeljine#! Among those “civilians there were two dozen of Albanian mercenaries, and others had been terrorists under command of cpt. Hasan Tiric. This is the most favourite #distortion# of the Chamber, to depict the combat casualties as a “civilians killed by the Serbs#!) Arkan’s men and Mauzer’s Panthers were also involved in mistreating Bosnian Muslims in Bijeljina, Bratunac, Rogatica, Vlasenica, Zvornik, and Hadžići, including in detention centres; these units also looted property of Bosnian Muslims and were involved in expelling Bosnian Muslims from Bijeljina and Zvornik after the take-overs in those municipalities.¹⁰⁶⁵⁶ (If it was true for Bijeljina, then the Muslims wouldn’t celebrate him. All other allegations were not proven, because every group of men could present and identify themselves as a “Seselj’s” or “Arkan’s” men! This court afforded itself to pay more weight to a reputation than to a documents, or the judgements of the domestic courts, which are even more hostile than any other! Anyway, it had nothing to do with the President!)

3325. Arkan attended meetings and had direct contact with the Accused.¹⁰⁶⁵⁷ (The Defence rejected that with indignation, because there was #no a simple corroboration# to this testimony of the witness who didn’t know much, and admitted in his testimony that he didn’t know anything of the President obvious efforts to fight all crimes!) As noted above, Arkan wrote to the Accused in 1994 to inform him that his men supported the Accused’s “heroic resistance” against NATO and that “[a]s always we, with all our available forces, stand to protect Serbian people” and that they were expecting the Accused’s call to join the VRS to “protect Serbian nationality and Orthodoxy”.¹⁰⁶⁵⁸ (#Such a peculiar evidence! and seal, no number of protocol, no evidence that this “letter” reached the President, nothing that would qualify this “letter” to be a credible evidence in such a serious case#! This kind of evidence could be produced thousands and thousands, and several of such a documents had been admitted in the file. Just one question: why Arkan allegedly wrote and allegedly sent this letter to somebody who, according to the Prosecution-Chamber was a member of the Joint Criminal Enterprise? Why it wouldn’t be expected that they had been in a daily contact and oral communication? Did the President respond, and did he invited Arkan in April 1994? Really, no a serious chamber would pay any attention to such a fake document, but even if it wasn’t fake, it is obvious that neither the President was close to Arkan, nor Arkan was invited in April 1994#!) In the autumn of 1995, at an event in Bijeljina, Arkan repeated his commitment to the President to return to defend the “Serbian territory and our Orthodox religion” if called by the President.¹⁰⁶⁵⁹ On this occasion, the President awarded Arkan a certificate to congratulate him and thank him and his unit for their efforts in defending the Bosnian Serbs.¹⁰⁶⁶⁰ (#A reasonable and serious chamber would establish what exactly the President did#. Then it would be clear that the President didn’t “award Arkan a certificate” but praised this two units for their courage and patriotism. Even if he decorated Arkan, it would be as with his unit proposed from the terrains, and there was no any formal obstacle to do that. Arkan never was indicted by any court, let alone sentenced, and only his rude nature and conduct made him a bad reputation. Anyway, the President was too bussy and to far from socialising with a commanders of a small units!)

ix. Vojislav Šešelj

3326. Šešelj was the leader of the SRS and of the “Serbian Chetnik Movement”.¹⁰⁶⁶¹ In May 1991, Šešelj praised the President as “the true leader of the Serbian people” in BiH, stating further that he enjoyed their “undivided trust” and that the SRS supported the policies of the SDS.¹⁰⁶⁶² (So what? Although Mr. Seselj friendly objected the President’s personal closeness with the Democrat Party, the relations between the two leaders remained firm and with a mutual respect. #Why would that be a crime#? Mr. Seselj spent 12 years in the UN Detention Unit and went a trial, although during the period of Indictment he was an opposition politician. #Nothing criminal is proven in knowing Mr. Seselj or in respecting him#! Not even in Hitler’s and Stalin’s times would be!#) Šešelj stated that BiH was fundamentally Serbian and that either Muslim fundamentalists should leave or the Muslims should accept this and become loyal citizens of Serbia.¹⁰⁶⁶³ Also in May 1991, the President in an interview spoke of Šešelj and his “political force” but said that they differed in terms of the choice of method.¹⁰⁶⁶⁴ (That didn’t mean that the SDS and SRS were a unique party, there were differences, but in a civilised manner, it didn’t damage their mutual respect! Anyway, it is a bit senseless to comment this part, since Mr. Seselj was acquitted before this Court, and this comments are just to show the methods of this Court!)

3327. Šešelj met with the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership on several occasions during the war in BiH.¹⁰⁶⁶⁵ In May 1992, Šešelj spoke about contacting the President with respect to the withdrawal and deployment of his men.¹⁰⁶⁶⁶ Šešelj sent large groups of SRS volunteer fighters from Serbia to assist in Serb operations in Croatia and BiH.¹⁰⁶⁶⁷ Šešelj acknowledged that his men were in BiH and were in all areas for the “protection of the Serbian people” and the defence of their borders.¹⁰⁶⁶⁸ Slobodan Milošević approved of the SRS’s action in sending volunteers.¹⁰⁶⁶⁹ (The Radical volunteers had never acted independently. The vast majority of them were the Seselj followers from Bosnia, and fought either within the JNA or VRS#!)

3328. Šešelj’s men were involved in operations in Bratunac, Zvornik, Hadžići, Novo Sarajevo Vogošća, Brčko, and Rogatica in April and May 1992.¹⁰⁶⁷⁰ Furthermore, Šešelj made public statements about the participation of SRS volunteers in the take-over of Bijeljina and specifically the significant contribution of Mirko Blagojević as the commander of the SRS units to the “liberation” of Bijeljina.¹⁰⁶⁷¹ In May 1993, Šešelj proclaimed Mirko Blagojević a “Vojvoda” in recognition of his participation in operations in municipalities including Bijeljina.¹⁰⁶⁷²

3329. The SRS and Šešelj advocated the idea of a homogeneous Greater Serbia which involved the unification of all Serb lands and the removal of the non-Serb population.¹⁰⁶⁷³ (This can not be more wrong! Everyone knew that Mr. Seselj considered that in such a meditated “Greater Serbia” all the population was Serbian with different religions. That may be proven in the coming times by the genetic explorations, but the President was neutral and indifferent about these ideas. On the contrary, the President always advised not to grab territories in which population doesn’t want to belong tho the state or entity with the other’s majority, but it didn’t mean that his respect for Mr. Seselj, and many other leaders that didn’t think like him decreased!) In March 1992, Šešelj spoke about the prospect of great bloodshed in BiH and called upon the Bosnian Serbs to preserve all their ethnic areas.¹⁰⁶⁷⁴ In a speech, Šešelj said that the “Muslims and Croats do not represent a threat for us for a long time already. Only, brothers and sisters Serbs, there should not be hesitating, waiting [...] the next time they strike, we should finish them off, so they never strike back”.¹⁰⁶⁷⁵ Šešelj also spoke about BiH being undoubtedly Serbian, and that if “any Muslim fundamentalists do not like that, they will have to pack their suitcases and leave”.¹⁰⁶⁷⁶

In May 1992, Šešelj spoke about the “traditional enemies” of the Serbs and the need for them to be united to prevent a “new genocide against the Serbian people” and of the revenge Serbs would take against Muslims if they repeated history again.¹⁰⁶⁷⁷ Šešelj, on behalf of the SRS, also expressed his support for the formation of the SerBiH and his view that the Bosnian Serb authorities should demarcate Serb territory, proclaim its own TO and police in territories under its control, and simultaneously “liberate” those areas which were not under Serb control.¹⁰⁶⁷⁸

b. Accused’s knowledge of crimes and measures he took to prevent and punish them

i. Knowledge of crimes committed throughout the Municipalities

3331. The Prosecution argues that from the beginning of the conflict in 1992, the President was notified of crimes committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities by Serb Forces.¹⁰⁶⁷⁹ The President acknowledges that he received information from the VRS, the MUP, and municipal bodies but argues that the information rarely referred to illegal activities at the local level, and when it did, the Bosnian Serb leadership reacted immediately.¹⁰⁶⁸⁰

3332. At the outset, the Chamber notes that the President received information about occurrences in the Municipalities from a number of sources. As President of the RS, he received reports and attended Bosnian Serb Assembly sessions where representatives would report on the situation in their municipalities.¹⁰⁶⁸¹ (But this is not, and was not their job. The Assembly as any other parliament served for the political talks over the legislature, and the main and the only function of the Assembly was to produce the fundamental documents from it’s jurisdiction, all that doesn’t fall in the scope of the Government’s competences. Anyway, there was no useful information obtained by the MPs, pertaining to any of the presidential duties, as it can be seen from the transcripts of the Assembly sessions!) He also met regularly with municipal representatives and obtained reports in this manner.¹⁰⁶⁸² (All of the encounters of the President with a local officials were mainly about their problems in obtaining necessities for a daily needs. If the Chamber alludes that the President could have received any information on crimes, it is wrong, because this was not a way. The crime was within the scope of the MUP and judicial system, not within scope of a political persons or individuals) His close associates also regularly visited the field and communicated with municipal leaders.¹⁰⁶⁸³ (So what? If there was something criminal on the side of the official authorities, they certainly wouldn’t “report” themselves to the superiors. Had there been crimes of a non-officials, they wouldn’t report it to the political persons, because there were a proper institutions, and it would be an empty chat to talk to the President, who was supposed to intervene only if the investigating agencies didn’t do their job. On the other side, the Prosecution-Chamber alliance charge-sentence the President exactly for the opposite, for the many investigations that had been conducted, so that more than a half of detained people had been released! The Republic of Srpska was not a “road gang” in which everybody could do whatever he wanted. The President was watched carefully by many deputies and oposit parties, so he couldn’t violate any rule even if he wanted!) Furthermore, the Bosnian Serb leadership followed international coverage of the events in BiH during the conflict.¹⁰⁶⁸⁴ (Even far before the conflict the #international media had shown their extreme bias and an anti-Serb propaganda#, with an enormous production of lies. The fake media and false journalists are maybe the greatest shame and compromitation of the Western part of the international community! The face journalists jeopardized a true journalist lives making them suspects of a propaganda and spying!) Finally, the Chamber notes that from the beginning of the conflict in 1992, the President was informed by international representatives, such as Okun, Mazowiecki, and UNPROFOR officials of the forcible displacement of non-Serb civilians¹⁰⁶⁸⁵ and that the issue of “ethnic cleansing” was also often raised with the President in media interviews.¹⁰⁶⁸⁶ The Chamber will assess below the evidence pertaining to the information that the President received about specific municipalities. (#Why the international officials would be trusted after the Serbs identified their ignorance about what was going on in reality#? There should be a special Tribunal to investigate and try the fake and irresponsible international representatives, journalists and some humanitarians, who were an ordinary spies?)

3333. In relation to Bijeljina, when at least 45 non-Serb civilians were killed by Serb Forces on 1 and 2 April 1992 the Accused was informed of the event.¹⁰⁶⁸⁷ (This is below every decency: the Chamber had already known the structure of the Bijeljina casualties, among whom there were at least 9 Serbs, some of the Albanian Mercenaries and 27 Muslim extremists, commanded by H. Tiric, as proven in the file by the document of the Croatian (HVO) provenance!#) On 4 April 1992, members of the BiH presidency and high ranking army officials assessed the situation in Bijeljina municipality,¹⁰⁶⁸⁸ and the President made a public announcement referring to the “regrettable” incidents in Bijeljina but blamed the BiH Presidency for instigating chaos by calling for mobilisation.¹⁰⁶⁸⁹ (#Before being in Presidency#! What was the official position of the President on 31 March to 2 April? Was he in charge of anything? How could the Bijeljina incident be associated with the President at all? Bosnia still existed, and Captain Hasan Tiric was officially sent by the Muslim secret army under the Izetbegovic’s control to take-over Bijeljina from the Serb majority. The Presidency delegation had nothing to do with the President and the SDS! Ignoring such a blatant evidence disqualifies the Court as a whole!

3334. At a meeting of the Bosnian Serb Presidency on 23 June 1992, the President expressed his view that Mauzer and Blagojević’s paramilitary units, which were active in Bijeljina, were very extreme, and that all units should be placed under a single command of the army or the police.¹⁰⁶⁹⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!) Meanwhile, at a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in late June 1992, the President said that the Bosnian Muslims who continued to live in Bijeljina, forming 20% of the population, were not considered “second class citizens” and that the government officials were actually trying to persuade them that they had nothing to fear.¹⁰⁶⁹¹ (#EXCULPATORY#! Making his opinions known to all the Serb officials was aimed to facilitate for the non-Serbs as secure as possible environment. Had anyone had known that the President played a game of duplicity, nobody would forgive him, and that would be said loudly!) The Chamber recalls that in fact during the summer of 1992, Serb Forces instilled fear in the Bosnian Muslims who remained in Bijeljina and that Bosnian Muslims were forcibly expelled from Bijeljina by members of the Bijeljina Crisis Staff, SDS, Mauzer's unit, special police units, and Vojkan Đurković, while others were sent to Batković camp.¹⁰⁶⁹²

(First of all, #there was no a "Serb Forces" in Bijeljina#. Why would they be in Bijeljina instead on the front lines? In Bijeljina for a while there were a false "volunteers" who were renegades, and which had been arrested and expelled out of the RS. This sounds like a shameless gossip and a slander! Nothing of it was ever proven. Nobody was detained in Batkovic for an ethnic reasons. Mauzer didn't take part in any "expulsion" – which made him suitable for the high position in the post-war MUP, certified by the international police. Why this fact, a document of the same international community that is running this court, is neglected and the President forced to defend from something that has nothing to do with him? Arkan and Blagojevic quarrelled more among themselves than with somebody else. Blagojevic and Radicals had been a very known for protecting the Muslims, not for mistreating them? None of those named in such a paragraphs had ever been indicted and sentenced, but the OTP and Chamber use their names against this President as if they were proven criminals. A bad reputation of them is not sufficient to sue even them, let alone a completely distant third person!)

3335. The Accused was later informed by the Bijeljina SJB on 29 July 1992 about the criminal behaviour of paramilitary groups during and after the take-over of Bijeljina, which resulted in rapes, thefts, robberies, killings, and the displacement of Bosnian Muslim and Serb civilians.¹⁰⁶⁹³

What does it mean? That was the MUP's job to arrest them, not the President's. the entire quoted document is a highly #EXCULPATORY#, because it depicts that the criminals present in Bijeljina were not a "Serb Forces" and that they terrorised everyone, without an ethnic prejudice, see P2900,

p. 2 - terrorising of the population – both Muslim and Serbian - numerous rapes, thefts of property and foreign currency, unauthorised invasion of houses and removal of appliances, gold, artworks, etc.

- more than ten people of various ethnic origins were killed without apparent motive, and all these cases remained unsolved, not a single criminal report was submitted regarding these murders,

- the departure from the Bijeljina area of both Muslim and Serbian citizenry as a result of pressure and terrorisation by paramilitary groups,

- utilisation of the nearly introduced curfew for the commission of the above criminal actions, although there were also cases of theft, rape, robbery and murder during the day on the part of masked members of these groups.

The promoted after a successful arrest of the Yellow Wasps, Mr. Dragan Andan continued to introduce the law and order in Bijeljina. By this document he informed the President of the Republic of Srpska that the situation is coming under control, because all, the Government, the Ministry of Interior and local regular "Serb Forces" are endeavouring to quit with any crime! P. 3!

Since the above incidents affected the entire security situation in the Bijeljina area, causing lasting discontent and indignation in citizens of all ethnic origins, and because there was a potential threat of disintegration, chaos, and breakdown of the legally established authorities of the Serbian Republic of BH in the region, the Ministry of the Interior of the Serbian Republic of BH proposed, and the government of the Serbian Republic of BH decided on, the sending of an expert team of inspectors to the Bijeljina Security Services Centre with part of a special MUP unit. The purpose of bringing in the team of experts is to create the necessary security conditions for the legal and lawful functioning of the authorities in Bijeljina.

¹⁰⁶⁹³ P2900 (Letter from Bijeljina CSB to Radovan Karadžić, 29 July 1992), p. 2. See also paras. 610–638.

p.4:

This approach to, and organisation of, operational activities, and the great dedication of almost the entire staff of the organ, have produced – in less than a month – evident results in the improvement of the security situation and the legality of work in all the segments of social life. For example, from 27 June to 27 July 1992, that is from the arrival of the expert team of the Ministry of the Interior of the Serbian Republic of BH:

1. There was no murder committed on the national basis, and two cases of murder with other motives were solved and the perpetrators were taken to a court.
2. By extensive operative interventions all necessary conditions were created for safe life of citizens and full protection of property and other material goods belonging to society and citizens. Therefore, in above-mentioned period of time, there were no armed robberies, breaking into private houses or shops, thefts of car etc.
3. Through preventive operative activities a few groups dealing with organised criminal were discovered, arrested and put under investigation or expelled from the area of the Public Security Centre Bijeljina.⁴
4. Public law and order in the town has been raised to enviable level and there was no serious incident which would disturb the citizens. Individual minor violations of public law and order (shooting, movements at the time of the curfew, arguments, threats) were efficiently solved and the perpetrators were taken immediately to the Magistrate.

That this was not a “piece of cake” see the next para from p.5.

Finally, to complete the picture, we must stress that the expert team of the MUP of the Serbian Republic of BH did encounter severe opposition and resistance during its engagement in Bijeljina, not only verbal but also armed. For example, some members of the expert team were threatened with liquidation, various misinformation was put into circulation, and lies spread about the alleged on-site activities and the rule of terror of the expert team, protest rallies against the “newcomers” were organised, and the CSB building itself was three times unsuccessfully attacked with heavy weapons in order to seize the building and banish the expert team of the MUP of the Serbian Republic of BH /as printed/.

Zivan Filipovic described it in his way, but it had to be done. So, it was only to inform the President that the state security institutions are doing their job, and the President could only be satisfied with such a course of development, which he expressed by his encouragement of this course, writing a remark, p.6.

The entire document is #sufficient to acquit the President not only for the Bijeljina events, but for all such the allegations throughout the municipalities!# Živan Filipović, former chief of the Bijeljina Municipal TO Staff, testified that the President and Mladić attempted to “shake off these paramilitary formations which only caused damage, both to the people and the army and the political sphere”.¹⁰⁶⁹⁴ (Is it taken as the President’s felony? It can only indicate how difficult was it to quit the feature!) After the Accused complained to the Prime Minister of the FRY that Serbian paramilitaries were out of control, Davidović was sent to Bijeljina in early July 1992 to investigate the situation.¹⁰⁶⁹⁵ (#Not correct! Karad’i} asked for a special unit to help in arresting paramilitaries#! Moreover, on 2 September 1992 the Accused was among the attendees who participated in a meeting with military and political officials in Bijeljina.¹⁰⁶⁹⁶ The Accused acknowledged that the chief of the party, the MUP and the president of the municipality had been involved in crime “here and there”.¹⁰⁶⁹⁷ Again, an #abuse of the unfinished sentences of Mladić’s diary#. (#EXCULPATORY#! And, #how it could have been used against him#, as a proof of his backing crimes? But, anyway, in Bijeljina the President forced the municipal President to resign, and General Mladic demoted Mauzer to a private! And a bit further in the same document, the President said that a municipal authorities should not take too much in their hands:

* The municipal authorities must not

3336. In relation to Zvornik, Colm Doyle passed on information to the Accused that he received from Martin Bell of the BBC that on 10 April 1992, 25,000 people were leaving the municipality.¹⁰⁶⁹⁸ (#Before VRS, before any command responsibility#! Just to look in the UN documents, to see that at that time the President didn’t have any armed force to command, didn’t have any capacity and official role, and there was no sufficient information, but even if there was a sufficient information, who was able to act and what way? The two ethnic communities clashed after the general mobilisation proclaimed by Izetbegovic. The Muslims took over at a first moment, then the Serbs consolidated and had re-taken the control. No man or institution all over the world would be entitled to order to one side not to defend. And no man would be obeyed, because everyone has a right to defend his own life and lives of his family!) The Accused “seemed to be a little bit alarmed” and then advised Doyle that he did not trust or believe the BBC.¹⁰⁶⁹⁹ At a mid-April 1992 meeting with international humanitarian organisations and members of the SDS and JNA, the Accused placed the blame for events in Zvornik on irregular paramilitaries who he claimed were not under the control of the SDS.¹⁰⁷⁰⁰ (#Paramilitaries of all ethnicities#! There were not only the Serb paramilitaries, but the Muslim also, and some of the HOS (Croatian) irregulars! But there was no a single armed group that was under the control of the SDS, because the President and all the relevant SDS officials agreed not to have a party armed formations, and that was well known, and could be seen from many documents!) At a meeting held on 30 June 1992 between representatives of the Zvornik municipality, the President, Mladić and other officials,¹⁰⁷⁰¹ Branko Grujić, a representative of the Interim Government of Zvornik, stated that “[w]e have successfully implemented the President's decision to settle Divič and Kozluk with our children."¹⁰⁷⁰² This is misinterpretation of what Mladic put down in a short remarks. Prior to what Grujic said, another participant, Milenko Stanic, (p.249) said:

1. – The Government is to take a decision on confiscating property because of the large number of people who have fled. _
- 2.- Problem implementing authority at levels below municipal, it has to be financed, given a name, and authority must be enforced. _

And the abandoned property was a great problem, since it was exposed to looting and destruction. The official position of the state organs (and the President personally) was that the #temporarily abandoned property must be given for a temporary use to the refugees, not to the domestic populations#, which didn't need it, and wouldn't keep it safe. It has become common for local people to move into empty flats instead of refugees, and they sometimes even retain some kind of "right" to several flats.

The occurrence of abandoned flats is a war issue, and so are the refugees. This means that both occurrences are temporary.

Please strictly observe the following

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Temporarily abandoned flats can be given for temporary use to refugees only, not to local people.
2. Accurate records are to be kept on both the temporarily abandoned flats and the refugees. The temporarily abandoned flats can be given for use by a commission only, which issues the decision on the temporary use.
3. Any abuse, nepotism and failure to observe /these instructions/ entails not only political responsibility, but also criminal prosecution/.
4. In addition to legal obligations regarding conduct, you must display political awareness and tact when dealing with refugees, their accommodation and employment, as is required of you by the programme of the Party that has brought you to office.

PRESIDENT OF THE PRESIDENCY

There is more than a sufficient evidence on what was it all about.

Marko Pavlović said that they were active in moving out Muslims, and had also moved people for the sake of their "heroes" who had fled from Kovačevići.¹⁰⁷⁰³ Although B. Grujić testified that his words hadn't been recorded accurately, and although there is a great deal of cynicism in the Pavlović's words, it is still used against the President. See what had been said just before the "critical" words:

* Morale is not of the quality required. _

* We were most active in evicting the Muslims, we had brought peace to Šepak, Divič and Kozluk. Some of them wanted to move out, while we demanded it.

- We had to evict some of the people also for the sake of our "heroes" who fled from Kovačevići. _

Branko Grujić testified that the note in Mladić's notebook is incorrect as he never uttered the words attributed to him and he insisted that it was a local decision to remove the Bosnian Muslims and the Accused did not allow forcible transfer. Branko Grujić, T. 40418–40420 (25 June 2013). The Chamber recalls that that Grujić's evidence was marked by multiple contradictions, evasiveness, and bias. See paras. 4237, 4239, 4255, 4270, 4279, 4283, 4308, 4357, 4441, 4572. In light of this, the Chamber does not believe his denial as to the content of Mladić's notes. The Chamber further notes that Grujić testified that the BCS word "iseljavanje" in Exhibit P1478 was incorrectly translated as "evicting" when it means "moving out at their request". Branko Grujić, T. 40421 (25 June 2013), Branko Grujić, T. 40458 (26 June 2013). The Chamber accepts the clarification made by Grujić but considers that in the context of the notes of the meeting, the meaning is effectively the same as "evicting". #And that is not fair!!! On one hand are the Mladić's unfinished notes, on the other is a live testimonies, and the Chamber finds "a hair in egg".

“Evicting” some domestic people from an illegally occupied apartments for the sake of the refugees “heroically” escaped from Kovacevici, was not illegal, but was a bitter and cynical remark! The same Pavlovic, in the same document said that “we have to get rid ourselves from Zuca, capt. Dragan and other paramilitaries. All what had been said was a sort of criticism of the reality, which was not satisfactory. This can not be used against the President!)

The Chamber recalls that in fact, most of the inhabitants of Divič and Kozluk were Bosnian Muslims and that after they were relocated, Bosnian Serbs who had fled their homes in other areas settled there.¹⁰⁷⁰⁴ (#All in accordance with the regulations, and all on the temporary basis, see the documents above, pertaining the hendling of the abandoned property!#)

3337. On 5 July 1992, the President stated that he had ordered an immediate investigation into the displacement of Bosnian Muslim civilians from Zvornik and had been told that the Bosnian Muslim inhabitants of Kozluk had requested approval to move to third-countries because they felt like hostages.¹⁰⁷⁰⁵ He further advised that the Zvornik authorities possessed written evidence that they left of their own free will and added that they could return anytime they wanted.¹⁰⁷⁰⁶ (As said, as it happened, almost everyone returned to Kozluk) The Chamber considers that the implication that the President learned that Bosnian Muslims were removed from Zvornik with the assistance of the Interim Government of Zvornik in order to settle Bosnian Serbs who had fled from elsewhere indicates that the Accused was aware of the forcible nature of the movement. (There should be an #evidence, not an indication#. There was no any force in it. There was a previous attempt of the population of Kozluk to leave, but the Serb authorities of Zvornik dissuaded them, with the help of the Christian Orthodox Bishop and the Muslim mufti, guaranting them security, but when the local authorities couldn guarantee it’s own safety. They had to inform the population in Kozluk. If the Chamber rejects or denies these facts, it should have it said so!) This is corroborated by the fact that the Accused was informed that the Bosnian Muslims who fled Kozluk had felt like hostages. (And this is exactly how the Chamber should not make inferences without knowing the case in detail. The population in Kozluk didn’t feel like hostages because of any other reason, but for the reason that #they were not allowed to leave#. And this directs us to another, the only logical inference: the population “forced” the authorities to facilitate them the departure!) The President was later made aware of further efforts to remove Bosnian-Muslim civilians held in the collection centre in Divič in September 1992.¹⁰⁷⁰⁷ Not a single “inference” is OK. Let us see this document from the fn. 10712, P05402

In co-operation with the authorities of Zvornik Serb Municipality and deputy Jovo MIJATOVIĆ (member of the Republic War Commission), an appeal was sent to the Muslims in the region of Birač to pull out children and unarmed people. President KARADŽIĆ agreed with this and the Muslims agreed to have negotiations on 14.09.1992. The negotiations will be attended by deputy /name missing/, the security organ of the brigade command. We would like you to inform the president /name missing/ of the Serb Republic, Mr KARADŽIĆ in Bijeljina.

cleansing! Unbelievable! Let us see P05403:

At the request of representatives of Zvornik Serb municipality and the SJB and with the aim of resolving the issue of the collection centre in Divič and releasing the civilian population of Muslim nationality that are at the collection centre to the territory of Kalesija and Kladanj, they are asking to be authorized the possibility of transferring these people to the above territories through the light infantry brigade.

The wording is clear: #“releasing the civilian population”#. Releasing, not expelling, and all of it after five months of a fierce fightings in the area.

On 21 January 1993, the President commented that the number of inhabitants in Zvornik remained the same but it changed from being 50% non-Serb to completely Serb, with more than 24,000 Serbs from Zenica and Central Bosnia having arrived.¹⁰⁷⁰⁸ On 10 April 1993, the President attended a celebration marking “the day of the liberation of Zvornik”.¹⁰⁷⁰⁹

(So what? The Defence never contested that the President was alive at the time, that he was in the region and exercised his presidential duties to the possible degree! As far as it is concerned with the population, the Muslims controlled about 50% of the municipal territory, the ethnicities didn’t succeed in formatting the two municipalities, they fought instead and separated chaotically. The Serb part of Zvornik admitted as many refugees from Zenica. Those are processes within a civil war, what does it have to do with the President, who wanted to avoid this war at any cost!).

3338. The Chamber also received evidence that the Accused knew that Neđeljko Prstojević, President of the Ilidža Crisis Staff, was involved in “ethnic cleansing” in Ilidža. In June 1992, after being relieved of his military command responsibilities due to his involvement in expelling Bosnian Muslims from Ilidža, Prstojević managed to return to Ilidža and continue this practice after he met with the President in Pale.¹⁰⁷¹⁰ (This alludes as if this meeting was connected with an alleged “ethnic cleansing” committed, allegedly, by Mr. Prstojevic! #Prstojevic testified and denied that the Muslim civilians from Ilidza had ever been “expelled” but the Muslim combatants had#!) Furthermore, on 2 July 1992, in an intercepted telephone conversation, Mandić confronted Prstojević about his involvement in forcing Bosnian Muslims out of Ilidža and advised him that the information about this had “already reached the top”.¹⁰⁷¹¹ In addition, at a

Momčilo MANDIĆ:	Well, please do not do anything like it, consult with ĐERIĆ first and those people up there, because this is very bad publicity for us and for everyone. They have the civil option, and they are killing and expelling us. You have to be a little bit more flexible there and not touch those Muslims who are willing to listen and who are loyal. We cannot ethnically cleanse Ilidža or any other place. At least that is the attitude of the Government and political leadership and all. It has already reached the top how in some settlement you gave them 24 hours to move out and they... Not the se..., no, not the safety..., what was it; what did you say? You are not..., you are not responsible for their safety or something like that.

Neđeljko PRSTOJEVIĆ:	I know, but we did not say that, not in public. That’s not our politics.

July 1992 Bosnian Serb Assembly session, in the President's presence, Prstojević boasted about Ilidža's achievements in extending Bosnian Serb territory and driving Bosnian Muslims out of "territories where they had actually been [a] majority".¹⁰⁷¹² (#No a normal person would brag about such a kind of felony#. There was no any settlement with the Muslims that the Muslim extremists didn't have an armed unit, let alone a settlement with the Muslim majority. This certainly pertained to an "extending of the territory under the Serb control, and that was entirely #military wording and logics#, and it appeared that it never happened, and nobody could name this kind of settlements. Also, the Chamber didn't establish that the President was in the hall at that moment. The President was not obliged to attend the Assambly sessions unless invited to give a speech and respond, although he was present at almost all of the session, but not all the times. But it was never that he was in the hall all the time, and there is evidence on that. Such a weak evidence hadn't been seen since the Inquisition. Even Hitler and Stalin courts required something more than the inferences from inferences, from inferences,... endlessly!)

3339. On 6 June 1992, the Bosnian Serb leadership, including the President, attended a briefing about Bratunac in which it was indicated that there were no Bosnian Muslims remaining in Bratunac and that it was a "fully liberated town".¹⁰⁷¹³ (only town itself, but the rest of 80% of the municipality was in the Muslim hands!) On 30 June 1992, the President was further informed by Ljubislav Simić, President of Bratunac, that from a situation where the Bosnian Muslims were the majority before the conflict, only two remained in the municipality.¹⁰⁷¹⁴ Simić also reported on looting by the army.¹⁰⁷¹⁵ (So what? He was complaining, and if the President was in favour of looting, Simic wouldn't report it to him. This is #exculpatory#! Pertaining to the Muslims from Bratunac, it was well documented that after they didn't succede to fight the JNA and to expel the Serbs, they #ultimately demanded to be approved that their civilians leave towards Tuzla.# it is proven and confirmen by the Muslim testimonies!)

3340. On 23 June 1992, the President was informed of events in Bosanski Novi regarding the 9,000 Bosnian Muslims who left after being subjected to intimidation and a policy of harassment and discrimination at the hands of the Bosnian Serbs.¹⁰⁷¹⁶ What does it mean – was informed? So what? This was a local development of a civil war, and the President was not in a position to know many things, particularly in this period, because there was no communication. But, even if he knew, what was it that he could have done? Why it happened only in June 92, while the rest of the BiH was inflamed in the war at the beginning of April? #Nothing happened before the Muslim extremists initiated fights against the Serbs#. And B. Novi is an example how the facts are distorted. The Serb authorities, after the failure of it's attempts to pacify the area, proposed the population to temporarily move to Banjaluka, which is within the RS, or to Doboј, also in the Republic of Srpska, which the representatives of this population initially accepted, but refused to stay in Doboј in a poor conditions. So, the offers of the authorities were a temporary movement within the same regiona and entity. No crime was commited. Then, the population demanded to be facilitated to cross to Croatia, and further to the European countries. There was no crime in the conduct of the authorities, and even if there was, what it has to do with the President?

3341. The Accused, in July 1992, acknowledged that there had been a number of “traitors” who had committed inhumane acts and that they would be tried and punished by law, but suggested that the most severe acts were rare and that there were more frequent examples of unlawful acquisition of property.¹⁰⁷¹⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#! So what? It is everywhere in the world that the most severe crimes are less frequent. But, the Chamber didn’t notice that the President distanced himself and the authorities from those “traitors”, because the criminals were betraying the Serb people at the first place. At the same time a #Muslim high official Silajdzic was spreading the fairy-tales About 300,000 killed Muslims and 80,000 raped Muslim women#, and the President didn’t exclude that some severe acts had been committed, but that the majority of crimes pertained to an acquisition of property!) The President characterised this as a consequence of the “inter-ethnic and religious war” and that some individuals were involved in taking the property of both Muslims and Serbs.¹⁰⁷¹⁸ The President stated that these crimes occurred without the knowledge of regular soldiers and affected their morale.¹⁰⁷¹⁹ (Did the Prosecution submit any evidence to the contrary? There was many evidence that the very next level rectified a misdeeds of their subordinates, which proved that the state was against any crime?)

3342. On 17 July 1992, the Bosnian Serb MUP wrote a report to the President and the Prime Minister.¹⁰⁷²⁰ It stated that almost all paramilitaries lacked a unified command and engaged in looting, which posed a major threat to public peace and order.¹⁰⁷²¹ (That means that the Serbian MUP was doing it’s job properly. How this could be used against the President? Good deeds are to be punished! Those days and a few days later there were the arrests of paramilitaries. The MUP only informed the President and Prime Minister, not requiring any action of them, but just informing that they were aware of the problem and that they will act! #ENTIRELY EXCULPATORY#!) The report also stated that the army, Crisis Staffs, and War Presidencies had requested that the army round up as many Bosnian Muslim civilians as possible.¹⁰⁷²² (The Serbian MUP was critical of such a requests and rejected it, and informed the President that it had been a mistake of the local officials. The fact that it had been required doesn’t mean that it was accepted and carried out. On the contrary! Since the entire domain was within the MUP’s competence, they only informed the President, which didn’t mean that there was required any of his action. #EXCULPATORY#!) The Accused had already received information in May and June 1992 that Serb Forces were engaged in looting and that there were problems with robberies “of even Serbian people”.¹⁰⁷²³ (So what? #The President was informed by those who fought against the crimes, in accord with his orders#!The MUP was exercising it’s duties, and informed the instances that should be aware of the problem, but all of those paramilitaries had been put out of law as of 13 June 92, by the President’s order, and prior to that, by the Mladic and Djeric orders. Serb Republic Bosnia Herzegovina Ministry of Interior Police Detachment, together with the Serb Republic Bosnia Herzegovina Army members, took over control of the territory of Zvornik municipality, on 29 July 1992 they disarmed paramilitary formations, which complicated the security situation in this area for a while, by looting, disturbing public order and peace, disabling functioning of the authority system.

During the course of this operation, 30 persons were arrested, including three of their commanders, and substantial quantities of artillery and infantry weapons were confiscated, as well as mine-explosive materials. Our side didn't suffer any losses, but two members of the paramilitary formations were wounded.

See: D98 of 6 August 92

The Presidency of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina hereby announces that it issued an order a few weeks ago for all groups and individuals to subordinate themselves to the single command of the army and police. This idea has been implemented on the whole, apart from a few renegade groups in Podrinje and Ključ. The Ministry of the Interior of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina arrested the groups and individuals who defied the law and looted and committed arson. This, therefore, does not concern the arrest of politically organised units, or ones with other names, that have subordinated themselves to the single command and are fighting courageously for the freedom of their Serbian Bosnia and Herzegovina and who deserve every praise.

On 19 July 1992, the President wrote, inter alia, to the Novo Sarajevo, Pale, Ilidža, Hadžići, Rajlovac, and Sokolac municipalities, requesting that they, in co-operation with the SJBs, make an inventory of all housing facilities which were left vacant following the "voluntary departure" of the Bosnian Muslim population and that pursuant to a Presidency decision those facilities would be given for the temporary use of Bosnian Serbs from Sarajevo.¹⁰⁷²⁴ Completely #EXCULPATORY#! What is wrong with this instructions?)

3344. The Accused was informed on 28 July 1992 that paramilitary groups frequently followed VRS units into inhabited areas in order to loot after combat was completed in those areas.¹⁰⁷²⁵

This is document P1500, let us see what it said:

The analysis of paramilitary organisation in the territory of the SR BiH established that paramilitary formations exist in areas of responsibility of all the corps and are mainly located behind the lines of combat activities, in the rear and in inhabited areas. They rarely enter /the area of combat activities/ and then usually follow SR BiH Army units when liberating parts of the territory and inhabited areas, and are mainly motivated by looting. The exception are small groups active at the front, which place themselves temporarily and formally under the command of regular SR BiH Army or Police units, which is also contrary to the SR BiH Law on the Army.

Let us see whether it is #“accusatory” or “exculpatory” exhibit#: the Commander of the VRS reports to the Presidency and other institutions what he had undertaken against the paramilitaries. This was 28 July, after 13 June and the President’s Order of the same kind, and some arrests had been done, or were underway, such as in Zvornik (The Yellow Wasps arrest action was just underway) it is exclusively #EXCULPATORY#, and wouldn’t be exculpatory only if the President opposed this order, which didn’t happen, since the order was in accord with his own orders D93, D434 and all other orders.

A large number of paramilitary formations proclaim themselves units for special activities, selecting assignments on which they are engaged for a day or two, after which they remove themselves from the front line of their own accord, resulting in the weakening of the morale of soldiers and units fighting in the first combat lines from the beginning of the war.

The Commander of the Main Staff of VRS identified those groups as a “self-proclaimed” special units, appearing at the beginning as a legal volunteers, and after being under the command “for a day or two”, becoming a paramilitary. During the entire process the Defence kept this position: their coming in the battlefield was legal, in accordance with the decision of the Federal Presidency, were registered in the municipal TO for salaries as a regular soldiers, #but later reneged#, and the authorities tried to arrest or expel them, which they couldn’t achieve without a help of the central MUP and the VRS. #EXCULPATORY#!

Most of the paramilitary units were established around a core and individuals from the FRY /Federal Republic of Yugoslavia/, which mainly act from the standpoint and under the banners of Serbian opposition political parties (SPO /Serbian Renewal Movement/, SNO /Serbian National Renewal/, SRS /Serbian Radical Party/ and others). The exception are a few paramilitary units comprised of conscripts from the SR BiH area, which is the result of the violation of legal provisions on recruitment and conscription. These unlawful formations act under the banner of opposition parties, declaring themselves to be Chetniks or guard units with the intention of evading the front lines or organised armed combat under SR BH Army command.

Here, the Mains Staff identified those groups as #affiliated to the opposition parties in Serbia and suggested also in the RS, and some of these parties had always been opposed to the SDS#

A special feature are the plundering paramilitary formations from the FRY, which act independently in the areas of responsibility of the Herzegovina Corps and the Eastern Bosnia Corps with the basic goal of extracting material, technical and other types of goods from the SR BiH. These gangs of looters parade around in the rear of the front, in inhabited areas and municipal centres together with local war profiteers and individuals from the authorities who provide them with legitimacy and shelter, with the basic goal of covertly using them to plunder national assets and in their struggle for power and internal conflicts among the Serbs.

From this document the #President could only see that the VRS and it’s commands are doing their job, in accordance with his own orders and the provisions of the SR BiH low on the Army#. Gen Mladic repeated in the strongest manner that all the independent groups and individuals were to be submitted to the unique command, except those who already committed crimes:

2. Individuals and groups that have committed atrocities, looting and other types of criminal acts are not to be included into units. They are to be disarmed, arrested and criminal proceedings are to be initiated against them in SR BiH Army courts, regardless of their citizenship.

The document is completely #EXCULPATORY#!

3345. On 16 August 1992, Doyle mentioned to the President that he was familiar with the practice of non-Serbs being forced to leave their homes and that some of these people were forced to pay money for permission to leave. The President agreed that this was not legal and should not happen.¹⁰⁷²⁶ As any naïve or stupid man, #the President was extremely trustful of the international representatives#. Many Muslims payed a bribe to be put higher on a waiting list for leaving, and had to pay a fee for transportation, all other payments was not known. But, “paying money for permission to leave” is in a sharp contrast to the allegations about “expelling” or other ways of an “ethnic cleansing” because these two are excluding each other. Since Doyle informed the President in London, the Acused couldn’t deny before researching, but immediately after he returned from London, the President issued an order banning everything what Doyle was talking about, see D00101

To: MAIN STAFF OF THE ARMY OF THE SERBIAN REPUBLIC MINISTRY OF THE INTERIOR
ALL SECURITY SERVICES CENTRES

Pursuant to our document of 13 June 1992 concerning the observation of international standards in war, I hereby re-issue the following

ORDER:

1. All protagonists should fulfil their obligation to observe international humanitarian law, especially the Third and Fourth Geneva Conventions;
2. All soldiers and employees of the Ministry of the Interior should be instructed to respect captured persons, civilians, medical institutions, private and public places, the Red Cross symbol and UN personnel and equipment;

There is no any ambiguity, all was ordered. See further:

3. Forcible resettlement and other illegal measures against the civilian population should be prevented, and any certificates of sale of property or statements that refugees will not return shall be considered as legally invalid and are declared null and void;

An executive order of the Commander in chief, even before he checked whether Doyle was right, or not.

4. Measures to improve conditions in all prisons in the Serbian Republic should be taken immediately, in accordance with recommendations made by the Red Cross during visits to those places. Pursuant to the previous Decision, all prisoners of war in poor health, who will not soon be rejoining enemy armies, should simply be released;
5. The International Red Cross should be informed immediately of all prisons in the Serbian Republic and accurate lists of persons detained in those prisons forwarded to them;

So, the President indorsed the IRC, whose recommendations had to be followed by the state organs of the RS.

6. All members of the army and police of the Serbian Republic shall provide assistance to members of the International Red Cross, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and other humanitarian organisations. These persons must be provided with total security and access to all prisons where prisoners of war are held.

An #exemplary care for the international norms#. The order never was denounced, nobody objected, nobody had a negative comments.

General position:

In case of any suspicion or sign that international humanitarian rights have been violated, all organs of the Army and Police shall conduct energetic investigation in the zone of responsibility.

PRESIDENT OF THE SERBIAN REPUBLIC
/signed and stamped/

. So, the President was informed about some criminal features, and immediately took measures with a remedies. #EXCULPATORY#! Apart from it, there is a contradiction in Doyle's words: if the #non-Serbs had to pay for "permission to leave", it doesn't look like a forceful leaving#. Now we know that the population was forcing the local authorities to facilitate them leaving the area, for which they had to submit up to 15 papers, plus to pay for the transportation costs. See: many documents showing that the population wanting to leave demanded it. During his testimony, Mr. Doyle praised the President for this document, because he didn't know if it was issued on the basis of his information!)

me. He told me that my mission was to establish whether the army had a role in it and to see what they had done about it by that time, and to convey to them that he was demanding the heaviest sentences, the heaviest possible sentences for the perpetrators of that crime. He was literally yelling because he had received calls from representatives various international organisations and he simply couldn't believe that something like that had indeed happened.²⁵⁷

The Accused was angry because he had already received calls from international organisations about the killings and "he simply couldn't believe that something like that had indeed happened".¹⁰⁷²⁸ (So what? Would he be surprised had he ordered such a crime? How this could serve for the conviction of this President? #EXCULPATORY#! Another Chamber rightfully acquitted Minister Stani{i} of charge for this event, how the President who was more distant to the perpetrators could have been found responsible?)

3347. On 25 August 1992, the Accused acknowledged his awareness of the "so called practice of ethnic cleansing" and that "the majority of those displaced are undoubtedly Bosnian Muslims".¹⁰⁷²⁹ He wrote a letter explaining that he had issued an order that the forced transfer of the civilian population must be prevented and any written statements by refugees that they would not return were considered legally invalid.¹⁰⁷³⁰ However, he stated that the civilian population must be allowed to move freely out of a war zone if that was their desire under the Geneva Conventions, blaming the failure on the part of the international community to understand the deep-rooted antagonism and hatred between the three ethnicities in BiH, which caused people to leave their communities in droves.¹⁰⁷³¹ Let us see the entire document D4720, whether it could be used against the President:

LONDON PEACE CONFERENCE - BOSNIA & HERCEGOVINA

With the London Peace Conference beginning tomorrow under Britain's Presidency I wanted to take this opportunity of writing to you directly in order to help clarify some important issues.

Firstly, and understandably, there has been a great deal of concern over what has become known as "ethnic cleansing". The majority of those displaced are undoubtedly Bosnian-Muslims, with a sizable number of Bosnian-Serbs also been forced to flee fighting, torture and intimidation.

The so called practice of ethnic cleansing has been an issue of prime concern to me and on 19 August 1992 I issued an order (No. 01-530/92) in which I declared:

"The forced transfer of people and other illegal measures against the civilian population must be prevented; certificates on property or written statements by refugees that they will not return, if any, are not legally valid and are out of force."

I have given a clear undertaking, and I repeat it, that all and any refugee must be allowed to return to his home or the territory from which he was displaced whenever he wishes.

The document quoted in this para was this of 19 August 92, as D101, cited above. It was still a time when the President didn't have a complete picture of events on the terrain, and he trusted the internationals over any reasonable measure. See further:

Under the terms of the Geneva Convention the civilian population must be allowed to move freely out of a war zone if that is their desire. There has been a failure to understand the antagonism and hatred, rooted in history, that now exists between the three communities of Bosnia & Hercegovina. This has encouraged people to leave their communities in droves.

I anticipate that many, if not most of those who have left will return once the situation in Bosnia & Hercegovina has calmed down. It is for that reason I support, and will do everything to help, the establishment of safe havens within Bosnia & Hercegovina.

Look how naïve was he!

By keeping the population within the Country we will ensure that the lure of western prosperity (it to the west that almost all the refugees are fleeing) is not a factor in deciding the future place of residence.

There could have not been any possibility of a "permanent removal" of anybody, since the most responsible official of the RS made commitment that everyone will be able to return, and to have achieved it totally, he proposed not to have the population leaving towards the western prosperity, but to be taken care in the region.

The EC can help, and Britain can use its Presidency to effect, however, it is important to understand that the mandate the EC has is that which it was granted by the republics of the former Yugoslavia. We invited the EC to mediate, not to judge.

Conciliatory and #EXCULPATORY#!

Stage managed atrocities by Bosnian-Muslims, such as the sniper assault on the school bus, the subsequent funeral offensive, the grenade attack on Douglas Hurd and the notorious bread queue shelling must end. The UN have confirmed that all these incidents were carried out by Muslim forces in the hope of provoking international outrage against the Bosnian-Serbs [The Independent 22 August 1992].

The rest of the document is equally convincing, honest and conciliatory, and can not be used against either this President or any other Serb individual or institution. All #EXCULPATORY#!

- 3348. At an international press conference in September 1992, the President again acknowledged that there was “ethnic cleansing” in BiH and stated that this was not part of a policy, emphasising that people were leaving the territory out of fear and that if there were examples of expulsion by force this was to be condemned.¹⁰⁷³² What is wrong with that? #EXCUPATORY#! At this same press conference when confronted with allegations and reports of atrocities being committed by Bosnian Serbs, the President claimed the reports were not honest and did not report on what the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were doing. He also questioned whether these acts were part of a policy and stated that in an “inter-ethnic and inter-religious war”, there was no need for a command to kill, given that the three ethnic communities had “been antagonised during centuries”.¹⁰⁷³³ Here is this para from P00908:

Karadžić:

Is a... probably made on all of sides, but the question is, is it better it was part of policy or not, is it inter-ethnic and inter-religious war. So this kind of war does not require command start to shoot or stop to shoot, start to kill or stop to kill. We have been warning European Community that it will happen because three ethnic and three national communities have been antagonised during centuries. And this report I have seen, this report was not honest, this report didn't see what Muslims and Croats do. And we know that they do.

This is not properly transcribed, it should be: “So this kind of war does not require command “start to shoot” but rather “stop shooting”, no “start killing, but “stop killing”. Whenever the President accepted any possibility that the Serb side committed crimes or atrocities, because he couldn't deny before a research, it was accepted as if he admitted the atrocities committed by his authorities. And this is not hones, and this is rather #EXCULPATORY#! That was how his honesty payed him back!)

- 3349. At a meeting attended by the Accused and Koljević on 30 September 1992, Lord Owen indicated that there was outrage with respect to a story in the New York Times regarding killings in Brčko in May and June 1992.¹⁰⁷³⁴ The Accused refuted allegations that his forces had massacred 3,000 Muslims at a camp near Brčko and called on the U.S.A. to provide evidence of these accusations.¹⁰⁷³⁵ While the number of persons killed as reported in the New York Times appears exaggerated, the Chamber has found that a large number of non-Serb men were indeed executed by Serb Forces at the Luka Camp in Brčko between at least 9 May and 16 May 1992.¹⁰⁷³⁶

(However, the President was right in both senses: #neither it was right that there were 3,000 Muslis killed#, nor any of those killings had been committed #“by his forces”#. As we know after the eight years of the Trial (or rather five) these weren't “his forces” but renegades for whose arrest there was no sufficienf “his forces” and for that reason he asked the Prime Minister of FRY to send him a help of a dozen of specially trained policemen (Davidovic) to help in #arresting the renegades#. We also know that the same renegades have blocked, disabled, arrested the legal municipal authorities, for opposing their conduct! So, #the perpetrator was not a “Serb Force”, but the police which arrested him WAS A “SERB FORCE!#)

3350. At a meeting of the Serbian leadership on 8 September 1992 with the President and Mladić in attendance, General Simonović stated that “ethnic cleansing” had been done more by paramilitary formations than by the VRS.¹⁰⁷³⁷ (Exactly. And #EXCULPATORY#!)

3351. On 19 October 1992, in reporting to members of the RS Presidency and VRS commanders on the Geneva peace talks, according to Mladić, the Accused stated that there had been a lot of discussion on “ethnic cleansing” and reminded the members that RS authorities must not participate in it.¹⁰⁷³⁸ He then said: “We find it important to make a distinction between what is done by irresponsible individuals and what is done by the authorities.”¹⁰⁷³⁹ (Exactly! And #EXCULPATORY#! The Chamber has a funny sense of humour!)

3352. In November 1992, Milojević, an Assembly official, complained at a Bosnian Serb Assembly session attended by the President, that a proposed citizenship law could be interpreted to allow “all the Muslims and Croats we expelled” to be citizens of the RS.¹⁰⁷⁴⁰ (So what? He may not like it, but it was in the prepared law, and this is also #EXCULPATORY#!)

3353. On 26 November 1992, Owen and Vance wrote to the President, advising him that they had received credible reports about “renewed ethnic cleansing” by Bosnian Serb Forces in the Banja Luka area.¹⁰⁷⁴¹ (Which appeared to be a Muslim propaganda, since the Muslim extremists in Banjaluka (M. Krzic and others) had been preparing an armed uprising in BL, and were prevented! Anyway, the President invited the Co-Chairmen to visit BL with him, and they did!)

3355. Throughout the ICFY negotiations in Geneva from December 1992 to September 1993, the Bosnian Serbs were confronted with reports of ethnic cleansing committed by the Serbs in BiH.¹⁰⁷⁴³ During these negotiations, Lord Owen made very clear allegations about detention centres, military operations conducted against civilian populations, and the physical process of “ethnic cleansing” of areas.¹⁰⁷⁴⁴ Lawrence Eagleburger, former U.S. Secretary of State, around January 1993, spoke in direct terms to all the parties about the nature of their activities and said that they would be held accountable.¹⁰⁷⁴⁵ (What the Excellencies said doesn’t mean that it was a responsibility of the President or his authorities. And also doesn't mean it was as they alleged. Since they hadn't been there, they spoke on the basis of media coverage, or a reports of the internationals present there, bud in a reduced extent! What the Chamber is assuming: that the President was supposed to accept uncritically everything the internationals said? The Accuse was a highest official, but not the only official, and the institutions such as the VRS, the State Security, the MUP, informed him too, very often contrary to what was alleged by the internationals, no matted who they were! #THEIR ALLEGATIONS ARE NOT EVIDENCE#! This is an imperial relict!)

3356. On 2 April 1993, the President was present at the Bosnian Serb Assembly when it was reported that Foča was completely under Bosnian Serb control.¹⁰⁷⁴⁶ (And this was an argumentation of the parliamentaries over the #Vance-Owen maps# as a very unjust towards the Serb people. See: P01367, p. 25

Fellow delegates, how can I explain this to myself, and especially convince Serbs in Foča that Foča can be in green, when the whole territory of Foča municipality, the area of 1272 km /as written, probably km²/, the biggest municipality in the former Bosnia and Herzegovina, and every part of it is in the hands of Serbs. Answer to this question was given by more than 26 thousand Serbs, together with refugees and 330 soldiers who were killed, who have something to come before Miloš

So, the delegate from Foca, a prominent lawyer, explained what happened in the past year of the war. It wasn't entirely accurate, since the Muslim side kept a big portion of the municipality, Ustikolina at first, which was, and still is a seat of the Muslim municipality of Foca. The war had been imposed by the Muslims in Foce. They rejected a Serb proposal to form a two municipalities peacefully, but the Muslims attacked the Serbs and thus have chosen the war. Who in this world was supposed to stop the attacked Serbs to defend? That was a local situation, without any influence of the central organs, but even if there was a communication, nobody could prevent the Serbs to defend. But, this kind of inference is possible only when a defence is prevented to depict the whole picture. Reporting the war situation and the cours of events in the war didn't mean anything but a report about a combat success. Also, it is not established that the President was at that moment in the hall. Even if he was, he couldn't discipline no one, particularly not an elected deputy!) At the same session, he acknowledged that "we could not swear that there are no crimes" and that Serbs who committed crimes should be tried. However, the President claimed that he had only heard of 18 allegations of rape, but the propaganda had turned this into 18,000 cases of rape.¹⁰⁷⁴⁷ Let us see the para related here, P01367, p. 107-108, what the President said:

As sovereign people we can not allow anyone to prosecute the Serbs who live in our parts, even if they eventually have committed crimes in our parts and, we could not swear that there are no crimes. We've heard of 18 instances of rape, in total. We haven't checked all those instances, but we shall do so /since/ no one has the right to commit rape, 18 not 18 000 but 18. Propaganda has turned that into 18 000. We should try the Serbs who commit crimes. We won't allow anyone else to try them. We are sovereign people and we want to do that, and with that we bind the others to do that if they want to. If they don't want to, let them make farces, as TUDMAN did, by putting on trial and then releasing. Nevertheless, during this war we had never depended on criminals. Our commanders are respectable officers and if they are not officers then they are one of us, our people, the ones who are not officers by training. And when that is known, it is clear that our army never committed any crime, that is, the army never committed any crime and only an individual could have done that. But I doubt if someone from our army could do so, only an individual who is not in the army could have committed a crime. It is our duty as a state /and/ we will verify ourselves as a state, when we sanction that. That is the essence /and/ we don't know who else... Let the United Nations give evidence that someone committed a crime, and after that we shall investigate and try the person who committed it. Every father beats his own child when a child does something wrong and doesn't give the child to the neighbour to do that. That is for us very important. I can't understand how could

¹⁰⁷⁴⁶ P1367 (Transcript of 26th session of RS Assembly, 2 April 1993), p. 25.

What is wrong it the President's position reflected in this speech? It is completely #EXCULPATORY#. He didn't deny that there may have been crimes committed by the Serbs, and he wouldn't be considered serious had he denied something unchecked. But from the entire paragraph it is evident that the President and the officials are strongly against any crime, be it 18 or 18,000 rapes. However, there is another #mistake in translation#. The President said: "Nevertheless, during this war we had never relied on criminals, not "depended" see, in Serbian:

да то раде ако хоће, ако неће нека праве фарсе као Туђман што је судио па ослобађао, али ми се нисмо у овом рату никада ослонили на криминалце, наши команданти су угледни официри, ако нису официри онда

The Serb word "oslonili" should be translated as "relied".

On 10 January 1994, the President commented that Bosnian Muslims had planned to build a big Islamic centre in Foča but by then it belonged 100% to the Bosnian Serbs, and that "it will never be theirs again."¹⁰⁷⁴⁸

3357. During a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in May 1993, at which the President was present, Vladimir Lukić stated that they had naively "raised paramilitaries" and called them "brotherly assistance" but "they were slowly less and less engaged in fighting and more and more in looting".¹⁰⁷⁴⁹ So what? The same said Gen. Mladic, and all other Serb officials, advocating to get rid of them. What Lukic said was what everyone said: the volunteers came in accordance with the law, but lately reneged. Other deputies spoke about the problems they faced in municipalities with respect to disturbances, looting, and stealing where there were paramilitaries.¹⁰⁷⁵⁰ So what? Only to conclude that, in addition to all other officials, the deputies also were opposed to the presence of the paramilitaries. #EXCULPATORY#!

3358. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session held in late summer 1993, at which the Accused was present, Mladić said, "we cannot allow leaving the mosques with two minarets there".¹⁰⁷⁵¹ (#Words of others#! But, still has to be understood properly: what Gen. Mladic was saying in his discussion on the peace plan was his opinion about the new extremism of the domestic Muslims, which, the extremism, appears to be not of a domestic nature, but of an imported nature. Understandable, the Chamber may have not been aware of this, but the members of the Assembly were, that the “mosques with two minarets” was something completely strange for the Islam in BiH, and meant an #Islam imported from Saudi Arabia#, together with “vahabism” and other extreme forms of Islam. See what Mladic said:

and we will do it if there would be a chance for it, even if it is theirs. But we cannot allow leaving the mosques with two minarets there. I have never seen such cultivated land. That speaks about their roughness and persistence. And we have to sort it out, because of our children who have perished, to teach them never to encroach our daughters, sisters, brothers and mothers. I am telling that as a soldier. I am not going to take the decision for that. I have

It is clear that Gen. Mladic doesn't propose anything, but warned that this kind of a #“new Islam”# will not be an Islam we knew, and that such an extreme Islamists will “encroach our daughters, sisters, brothers and mothers.” What does it have to do with the President. Mladic was free to express his thoughts, particularly since he didn't propose anything, nor his thoughts were to be adopted in a document. Similarly another deputy complained to the President that if a proposed peace agreement went through and Bosnian Muslims were granted a right to return to their territory they would have to compensate them for everything that they destroyed and burned, including the 17 mosques which they had “flattened”.¹⁰⁷⁵² Again, an #MP's verbal fight against acceptance of a peace plan is used against the President, as if he spoke on behalf of the President. Let us see what had been said, and in what context, (P01379, p. 24-25:

I would ask our President not to say again, not to say now if he comes out to speak again that it is only a big mountain. For us who were born on the mountain it is not just a big mountain. For us it is a gentle hill. For us Grmeč means life. If you take Grmeč away from us, you took everything. And it is obvious, now I have to be locally orientated. At Krupa na Uni, right behind the town, we went across Vučijak, Vranjska, Veliki Gradić, Mali Gradić, to Stevin Vrh, through the middle of Grmeč to Bjelaj. Serbian villages at the bottom of Grmeč were given, where never a single Turk lived nor will ever live. All Serbian villages at the bottom of Grmeč were separated. Grmeč, too. And, gentlemen, since it is written in this agreement that everyone will be able to go back to their own territory, that means that his people will be going back to Veliki Babić and we will have to compensate everything we destroyed and burned and 17 mosques that we flattened. That means that with Babić they will get Radić too, they will get everything. That is why I do not want to vote for that and I can not vote for that.

And the President took floor immediately after this last words of the MP, and said:

Dr Radovan KARADŽIĆ:

I have to start right away. It is not a reply; I just do not want this discussion to go the wrong way. I do not want to say I am disappointed, and I was always charmed by the deputy VJEŠTICA. He is really an exceptional person and he showed there exceptional fighting spirit, courage and ability and he showed everything very well. But nothing is true of what he just said. Gentlemen, if I can not defend the Neretva valley, I can defend the constitutional agreement. Nothing is like he said. The constitutional agreement is perfect. It is perfect because it gives us full freedom to agree if we want and not to agree if do not want. One of the biggest faults presented by VJEŠTICA is that the functions of federal bodies are not defined. That is what it is all about. The Federal bodies will do what we agree. Please, the main difference

What an MP said in fighting against a peace plan, being dissatisfied for his village and the entire area wasn't included where he wanted it, wasn't relevant. He never said who was the one who flattened the mosques, he was speaking generally, and he was entitled to say whatever he wanted without any restrictions. #Neither his words prevailed, nor were adopted and built in a document, nor he spoke on behalf of the President. But, what the President said were his own words, and he said that this MP said something, and nothing what he said was true. Does it matter? Why in a process against the President a #words of another person were more significant than a words of the very same President#, and a words of opposition to what another person said?)

3359. In April 1994, Akashi requested the Accused to allow the ICRC to evacuate Bosnian Muslims from Prijedor.¹⁰⁷⁵³ Here are excerpts from D705, which is the basis for this assertion: D705:

1. General de Lapresle and myself yesterday held meetings with Dr Karadzic in Pale and President Izetbegovic in Sarajevo. Present at the meeting with Dr Karadzic were Vice President Koljevic and General Mladic while Prime Minister Silajdzic and General Delic attended the meeting at the Presidency. Both meetings were held in a congenial and constructive atmosphere.

A constructive atmosphere! In response to Akashi's request, the Accused stated that the situation in Prijedor was an unfortunate development for the Serbs. While he accepted that the situation could have been predicted—he noted that civilians in the town had, at the beginning of the war, slaughtered each other—he maintained that the present situation had been prompted by a Muslim massacre of six Serb policemen from the town.¹⁰⁷⁵⁴ The President agreed to the evacuation as suggested.¹⁰⁷⁵⁵ There are several #inaccurate matters#: first, the President agreed that the ICRC could evacuate several persons that felt insecure, but when hi was informed that there is a request to evacuate many citizens in up to 80 trucks a day, the President opposed, and suggested another pace, which would enable that many make up their mind and decide to stay: D705, p. 3 from the town. Currently, additional forces had been sent to the town to stabilize the situation and he had initially agreed to the ICRC request to evacuate individuals who feared for their lives, based on the belief that the numbers concerned were minimum. However, the ICRC had then indicated they intended to evacuate 80 truck loads of people at one go and this was unacceptable. He had no objection to them evacuating up to five trucks of people a day (approximately 100 people), as this would allow those left behind to reconsider their situation in light of the stabilized conditions in the town. In addition, while the Serb leadership accepted that the ICRC did not accept linkages, the population could not understand why there was no move to evacuate endangered Serbs from towns such as Tuzla, Zenica, Tarcin and Travnik.

The Chamber should have noticed that #in April 94 there was so many Muslims in Prijedor, after exactly two years of war in BiH, and hadn't been "expelled" or "ethnically cleansed"#, which Mr. Akashi confirmed during his testimony. How come? Something is wrong, either there was no so many Muslims in Prijedor, or there was no "ethnic cleansing". Further, the Chamber neglected the President's attempt to give a sufficient time to some of those who wanted to leave to make up their mind and to decide to stay, which is in a strong opposition to a perceived President's intention to "expel" the Muslims from the Serb areas. Finally, if we count in all those who had been hiding or escaped as a combatants, and those who left Prijedor through Trnopolje, and those who wilfully left through other organisations, and those who left on this request in 1994, and those who were there after the war ended, (See: D04002, see D... @ how many had been “expelled” and what way? #THERE WAS NO ANY TO BE FORCEFULLY EXPELLED#!)

3360. The Accused continued to receive information about crimes—predominantly mass expulsions, as well as mistreatment, including beatings, rapes, robberies, killing and forced labour—being committed against non-Serbs in Bijeljina and other municipalities from 1994.¹⁰⁷⁵⁶

D704 is one of the documents under this fn. See this para:

e) Human rights situation in Banja Luka/Bijeljina:- Dr Karadzic said that he shared our concerns over the abuse of human rights, and that authorities were trying to control extremists in these areas. In Bijeljina, the authorities intended to soon replace the Chief of Police as the level of security he was providing to the population was unsatisfactory. He said that Bijeljina was the "Hongkong" of the Serb republic with a thriving black market, a large refugee population, a lack of infrastructure, and the resultant characteristics of a big city in terms of crime. In some cases, some residents had voluntarily asked to leave for Tuzla and, on arriving in Tuzla, had claimed that they had been expelled.

The troubles in the cities during the civil war weren't produced by the state, but the state tried to improve the situation. What does it mean “the President received information”? He wasn't all-mighty God to act alone. The #RS institutions were doing what they could to secure the peace and rule of law. All of those efforts had been reported to the President and to the other state institutions, but the Chamber like the Prosecution, treats this exculpatory documents as aggravating evidence#!)

3361. Even into 1995, the Accused was aware of, and involved in, arrangements made with respect to regulating the movement of non-Serbs out of Bosnian Serb territory which was described as being in accordance with the right to freedom of movement.¹⁰⁷⁵⁷ (#Not only “the right to freedom of movement”, but in accordance with many agreements that the sides signed with the ICRC, UNHCR and other agencies#! The Agency is carrying out this activity in cooperation with the UNHCR office in Banja Luka which guarantees the transport of these persons from Banja Luka, through Gradiška and Okučani, to a holding base of the Nepalese Battalion in Novska. Please inform us in writing whether you permit making it possible for these persons to move away to third countries, in accordance with the Protocol on the Freedom of Movement of the Civilian Population which the warring parties signed on 23 January 1995 and which envisages a free choice of place of residence for the citizens. Upon receiving your permission, /handwritten: we/ would give approval to this Agency and the UNHCR office to transport 166 persons across RS border crossings to third countries, as there are no persons on the list who are obliged to do military service.

Let us see what was in D04839 of 23 January 1995:

In order to improve freedom of movement during the period covered by the Agreement on Cessation of Hostilities, the parties agree to ensure that the following humanitarian organisations can also cross through the airport: Merhamet, Dobrotvor, La Benevolencija, Caritas and Adra, under special procedures and conditions that will be agreed directly between the parties by 1 February 1995.

Here are humanitarian organisations that are recognized as authorised to require movement of population. See p.2

2. Free choice of place of residence – Item 5 (Carter Agreement)

Each citizen in each place under the control of any of the parties has the right, during implementation of the Agreement on Cessation of Hostilities of 31 December 1994, to change their place of residence with their safety guaranteed. Both parties guarantee that they will not force citizens to change their place of residence. UNPROFOR will assist in changes of place of residence with transport, logistics and security. Citizens themselves will submit a written request for changing their place of residence, and the responsible authorities will approve the request. Each side individually will prescribe procedures for approving places of residence. Each side has the right to request, and the other side is obliged to approve, changes of place of residence for those citizens who state in writing that such a request was not granted under the regular procedure. For citizens who change their place of residence pursuant to this agreement and then, for any reason, request to return to their previous place of residence (change of decision), approval to return will be given under the same procedure.

Here, in continuity with the Carter's Agreement on cessation of hostilities, the procedures are prescribed for carrying out the movement, and the UNPROFOR is included in it.

The parties will meet regularly with the international consultative committee, comprising representatives of UNPROFOR (Civilian Affairs), UNHCR and the UN Centre for Human Rights, in order to present those cases in which the parties were unable to reach any decision. The consultative committee will review these cases and offer its opinion. The parties may decide to include the ICRC, within its mandate, in the work of the consultative committee as well.

This protocol is closely tied to implementation of the Agreement on Total Cessation of Hostilities of 31 December 1994, and further refines the Agreement on Freedom of Movement of 17 March 1994.

properly signed by the Muslim, Serb sides and the UN.

And this document was a basis for the P05213, the Main Staff letter, asking an approval to approve a request submitted by the Agency, which could only be achieved with the UNHCR, as responded to the Main Staff of the VRS, in doc. P05214, Krajisnik's response:

Reference: Your memo no. 12/44-17/2 of 6 April 1995 in which you ask for permission for the moving away of persons of non-Serbian ethnicity, pursuant to item 2 of the Protocol on the Freedom of Movement of 23 January 1995. We hereby inform you as follows:

Permission pursuant to this Protocol is not within my range of responsibilities, but a responsibility of the State Committee for Relations with UNPROFOR, which is headed by Dr Nikola KOLJEVIĆ.

We also remind you that at the latest meeting of the Supreme Command we reached an agreement to freeze the issuing of permissions to non-Serbian citizens fit for military service until an agreement is reached to allow reciprocity in terms of freedom of movement for the Serbs.

The State Committee for Relations with UNPROFOR is obliged to send a copy of the permission to you, so that you could give instructions to members of the Army of Republika Srpska to implement the Committee's decision.

In order to avoid earlier misunderstandings, it is very important to keep in mind that only the State Committee is responsible for issuing permissions.

If in future agencies which organise the citizens' departure from the territory of Republika Srpska should directly address you, refer them to the address of the State Committee.

No one exercised any criminal conduct, and the President was not even mentioned, let alone involved in it. Not to approve these kind of requests would be a violation of all this agreements, as well as the international provisions on freedom of movement of civilians.

3362. In an interview in July 1995, the President stated that Muslims in places like Bijeljina were completely safe but that there "is some intimidation by terrorist elements, by extreme Serbs who have lost everything in central Bosnia. But the authorities protect our citizens, regardless of whether they are Muslims or Croats. Therefore, what is happening is not ethnic cleansing, but ethnic displacement, people who want to leave."¹⁰⁷⁵⁸ (So what? If somebody is guaranteed the right to return whenever wanted, there is no any ethnic cleansing, nor any "permanent removal" of population!)

3363. Based on the evidence set forth above, the Chamber finds that the President was promptly and well informed of the forced displacement of non-Serb civilians from the Municipalities by Serb Forces from as early as April 1992. What evidence? Have the legal authorities committed any crime? Did the population demand to be facilitated to leave a zone felt as a hostile? No reasonable chamber would conclude that the events inherent to a civil war were pursued by the authorities without a thorough investigation. On one side, the Chamber didn't have any objective evidence that the transfers of the civilian population was forceful, except some biased and empty claims and beliefs. On the other side, there are many documents confirming that population wanted to leave, that the authorities created many obstacles in terms of papers, receipts of settled taxations and other legal documents. Further the population had to pay their transport costs, and if they didn't appear at the appointed bus, money had to be returned to them, see D01299

On the basis of the information reported, president ĐEKANOVIĆ pointed out matters and problems to be solved, to the effect that the pressure and provocation by certain members of the Special Forces unit directed against Muslim and Croat families in order to compel them to leave should be stopped; that the question of what to do with several families from Gornji Čepak who cannot stay there but are still in Čepak should be dealt with; and that the killing of the ORŠULIĆ couple should be investigated.

Under this item of the Agenda, the case of Mirso Alen AVDIĆ and the recommendation that he be issued documents to travel abroad and visit his father was examined. Problems were discussed and security arranged for a convoy of people wishing to leave the area scheduled for next Sunday.

Some individuals, even from some "special units" did pressure some families, but the authorities decided to stop it. Those "special units soon after had been dismantled in the entire RS. Or see another K. Varos document: P02742 of 26 July 92:

Information about activities in the course of yesterday was presented by Lieutenant Colonel PEULIĆ. He said that yesterday there had been intensive activities in the area of Vrbanjci. Yesterday there was a clash in the Ugar valley, but all the attacks were repulsed successfully.

He provided the Crisis Staff with detailed information about yesterday and said some members of the CSB /Security Services Centre/ special unit and other individuals had behaved in an unauthorised manner.

He said that yesterday there had been a turning point in the approach to armed activities by the coalition forces and that they had now adopted guerrilla-type warfare under the Jihad oath.

Savo TEPIĆ informed the Crisis Staff of recent developments in the Public Security Station and said it was his impression that many members of the special unit were acting without authorisation, but no one dared to criticise them because of the threats they make. Mane said there had been no provocations in the course of the night at the positions held by his units and the situation was stable, except that it was observed that six or seven Serbian houses had been set on fire in Kotor.

prevented. He also said that all these questions had to be cleared up and information provided on the behaviour of the members of the special unit at the meeting with S. ŽUPLJANIN, the chief of the CSB, scheduled for tomorrow. Žarko MIKIĆ said the Crisis Staff had discussed the behaviour of the members of the special unit on several occasions and shown itself unable to influence them and he asked Lieutenant Colonel PEULIĆ to help solve this problem. He also said that this kind of behaviour could endanger the whole operation, and especially make life more difficult afterwards.

At the end of this item, the President said that what had been done yesterday must not happen again and that this kind of behaviour by members of the special unit and individuals on our side must be dealt with and they must be put under control.

On a daily basis the local Serb authorities took care of the lawful life and fought against any irregularity.) He continued to learn of such displacements throughout the conflict. In addition, he learned of other types of criminal activity committed against the non-Serb population by Serb Forces, including killings, rapes, and property related offences, from the beginning of April 1992 onwards.¹⁰⁷⁵⁹

(B) Knowledge of inadequate conditions and mistreatment of non-Serbs in detention centres

3364. During the conflict, information about occurrences in many detention facilities was forwarded to the Accused, prime minister, and the relevant ministers, namely the Ministers of Defence, Interior, and Justice.¹⁰⁷⁶⁰ (So what? The state organs and agencies informed about difficulties with so many POWs and arrested people, which happened all of a sudden, unexpectedly, without any preparations. The same organs informed about difficulties in obtaining food to population, particularly due to the overall sanctions against FRY, and the Serbs in BiH. This was well known to the Chamber. There was no a single evidence that anything had been denied to anyone due to the will of the authorities, but exclusively due to shortage of everything. Usually, those reports had been a cry for help in materials that are at a minimum. #EXCULPATORY#!)

3365. The President was present at a 24 April 1992 joint session of the SNB and Bosnian Serb Government, where it was decided that the Ministry of Justice would be responsible for the exchange of detainees.¹⁰⁷⁶¹ (Here is the P01087 and the conclusion on exchange of prisoners, not simply “detainees”:

¹⁰⁷⁵⁹ The Chamber notes that Davidović stated that the Accused must have known that crime was “rife and widespread” and that there was much collusion between those committing the crimes and those in high positions. Milorad Davidović, T. 15735 (30 June 2011). The Chamber considers this evidence to be speculative and will not rely on Davidović’s evidence in this regard. Then, why the paragraph containing this assertion survived? This kind of speculation was present in many testimonies of the foreigners and people that didn’t know what was where.

- Adopted the decision that the Ministry of Justice shall take over the exchange of prisoners once the organs of the interior have completed their work.

As it is evident, the Ministry of Justice was to manage exchange of prisoners once the organs of the interior have completed their work.” This is #completely legal and obligatory#, since there are an obligatory investigation of a possible crimes committed by prisoners. The Defence was asked why a prisoners of war that didn’t commit a crime were detained, the answer is the only one: a prisoners of war are to be detained, and those who committed crimes weren’t to be exchanged, but to be tried, while others were to be exchanged. What is wrong with the President’a presence?) On 8 May 1992, the Government decided to form the “Central Commission for the Exchange of Prisoners-of-War, Arrested Persons and the Bodies of those Killed”.¹⁰⁷⁶² (Killed in combats, in Serbian it is “poginuly” while criminali killed would be in English “murdered”, and any murdered was to be investigated, none of them to be exchanged!) According to Mandić, the impetus for establishing the Commission was to provide “rule of law and legal security” for people detained, many of whom were civilians from conflict areas.¹⁰⁷⁶³ (So what? #Should those civilians, found themselves in a combat zone, be kept further in detention#? The Army units couldn’t differentiate who was combarant and who wasn’t, or among combatants, who committed crimes, who didn’t. It was up to the investigation institutions to decide. The Army units also had to move civilians out of the combat zones!) The Chamber considers that this evidence demonstrates that the President knew early on in the conflict in BiH that civilians were being detained by Serb Forces.

(#”Demonstrates” is not an evidence – since in the moment of somebody’s apprehension in a combat zone – nobody is confirmed to be civilian! Only after investigations would be known!# The Chamber should base it’s own considerations on evidence, not on “demonstration” of evidence. The evidence may show that the President have heard about arrests, or detention of different people, but what does it mean? In a combat zone there are many lawful occasions for detaining somebody, and in a civil war a number of such an occasions is endless, and what it proves that the President knew that somebody was detained? The Army and Police were obliged, both by the laws and by the President’s orders, to act strictly in accordance with the domestic laws and the International Law of War, the Geneva Conventions and other norms, and they did so. Detaining people was not illegal by itself. Illegal could have been keeping detained people who were proven not to be involved in combats and didn’t commit crimes. In a civil war, civilians litteraly fought against each other, and against legal armed forces, sometimes intermingled with the militaries, sometimes being a logistics for their combatants. So, a general assertions about detention of somebody is useless, and means a #violation of the Defence rights for the presumption of innocence#!)

3366. Allegations of large-scale detention of civilians were reported in the international press in May and June 1992 and John Wilson raised these allegations with Plavšić in the presence of the President.¹⁰⁷⁶⁴ (#International media are not a reliable source#, and the President and the RS state organs weren’t obliged to pay any attention, as well as the international; representatives indoctrinated by the Muslim or their national propaganda.) Plavšić acknowledged the existence of camps but said that they were only for military aged persons who were detained so they would not fight the Serbs and made counter-claims that the Bosnian Presidency was holding prisoners.¹⁰⁷⁶⁵ (Ms. Plavsic was right, there was no any detention motivated by anything else but by a possible involvement in hostilities, in combats, either as a combatants, or as logistics, financing, or active political support. #THE CHAMBER DOES NOT HAVE ANY EVIDENCE CONTRARY TO THIS POSITION OF THE DEFENCE, ONLY HEAR-SAY AND PROPAGANDA.#)

3367. In June and July 1992, the Bosnian Serb leadership requested several reports on detention camps and prisoners.¹⁰⁷⁶⁶ (And this is an #exculpatory# evidence. Since there was many allegations about it, the Presidency, the Government and Ministries undertook steps to check which of those allegations were accurate and which were false. In this case the leadership and institutions reacted on allegations, is it a felony?) On 17 July 1992, the Bosnian Serb MUP wrote a report to the President and the Prime Minister, indicating, inter alia, that the conditions in detention centres were poor.¹⁰⁷⁶⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#! The RS institutions did their job, it can not be used either against the President, or against the RS institutions!) On 22 July 1992, it was reported to the government that there had been occurrences of unlawful treatment of detainees.¹⁰⁷⁶⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#! Evidently, this unlawful treatment wasn't a Government's will or a plan. As in any other country, the Government investigated and researched the issue, in order to be informed, because the villains from terrain wouldn't report themselves and their misdeeds. The "next level", i.e. superiors watched and rectified misdeeds or omissions of the superiors!)

3368. On 25 July 1992, the President received a report from the ICRC following a visit to the Manjača camp.¹⁰⁷⁶⁹ The President was informed that: (i) the authorities at the camp refused to notify the ICRC about the identity of the detainees; (ii) the ICRC's visit was terminated prematurely when it was observed that two detainees had been subjected to ill treatment during the visit; (iii) the ICRC observed frequent and widespread traces of severe beatings; (iv) the general living conditions including food, hygiene, clothing and accommodation were "absolutely insufficient"; (v) many detainees showed marked weight loss and signs of anaemia.¹⁰⁷⁷⁰ The President was also informed about the medical conditions and concerns with respect to the detainees and that a list of detainees who allegedly died during detention would be submitted to the "Higher Authorities" with a request to open an investigation.¹⁰⁷⁷¹ (So what? If the President didn't take it into consideration, if he didn't do anything in improving the situation, the Chamber would be right. But, #since the President took every necessary steps from the ICRC recommendations: #1. he sent a letter to the Prime Minister, expecting of the Government a "prompt action" on improvement of the conditions of detention facilities under the civilian authorities;# #2. he sent similar letter to the VRS Main Staff and it's Commander Gen. Ratko Mladic with the same instructions pertaining to the detention facilities run by the VRS#; #3. he informed the President of the ICRC about his steps; and, finally, #4. he undertook a process to close Manjaca, which had happened several months later. WHAT ELSE THE PRESIDENT COULD HAVE DONE? The cooperation with the ICRC was a two way road, and the President respected all the ICRC reccomenadiions. Therefore, this is an #EXCULPATORY# evidence!)

3369. Several news articles criticising the detention centres in BiH were released in a British publication, the Guardian, in late July 1992.¹⁰⁷⁷² Also in late July, the Accused appeared on ITN and responded to allegations and reports about Omarska; during the broadcast, he said to the media: “come and see for yourselves”.¹⁰⁷⁷³ (Was it a felony? That certainly was a stupidity of the President, and his naïvity, because these invited journalists hadn’t been honest, they staged a scene and caused a horrifying consequences to the Serbian people. What Penny Marshal did with forging the “barb wire scene” in Trnopolje is a really crime with more bad consequences than the NATO bombing left!) On 30 July 1992, the Accused responded directly to the Guardian in a letter, stating that it was “completely false” that Bosnian Serbs had organised concentration camps or that they were holding civilian prisoners.¹⁰⁷⁷⁴ (Certainly, the British and other international media criticised the detention centres in BiH, but only those under the Serb control, calling them “concentration camps” – and the Muslim propaganda called them a “death camps” and so on. All of it was a perfidious participation on the Muslim/Croat side. So, the President denied existence of “concentration camps” and camps for civilians, and invited and even gave the ride to the ITN TV crew to see for themselves. No warring country all over the world do that, not even close to that, none of the countries would give any access to a battlefield or to a rear to a friendly, let alone to a hostile media, but the President did it. And made mistake, of course, since the ITN crew abused the opportunity and forged the picture and footage. And this is one of the shameless actions of the internationals involved in our civil war. A ruthless and shameless. Pertaining “civilians”, there was as usually, taking in a civilians, but once they had been identified as civilians, they hadn’t been kept detained. The main evidence, the main proof is the fact that many, many detained people had been released once established that they didn’t participate in a combat activities!)

3370. At the London Conference in August 1992, there was an agreement between the parties on a program of action with respect to humanitarian issues.¹⁰⁷⁷⁵ It included recognition of the “acute problem of the unlawful detention of civilians and the deplorable conditions in which they were held”.¹⁰⁷⁷⁶ (This is a general provision, and for sure at least one side, the Muslim side, kept unlawfully detained civilians, and for that reason it was signed by the President, as well as in a case that some local Serbs do it in future. But, this recommendation and commitment of the sides doesn’t mean that it was established that one side, and which one, had committed this felony., therefore, it is also #EXCULPATORY#, since proves the President’s intention to accept and carry out the recommended program!) This agreement recognised that the primary objective should be to secure the release and return of those detained. If this was not possible the agreement provided for other options including “repatriation to areas under the control of their respective ethnic authorities” or relocation.¹⁰⁷⁷⁷ But, let us see the main points from the document, D01142:

d. It was recognised that in addressing the acute problem of the unlawful detention of civilians and the deplorable conditions in which they were held. The primary objective to secure their release and return to their homes. If not immediately feasible, they identified the following possible options in the light of the wishes of those detained and in keeping with the provisions set out at para 3 below:

- repatriation to areas under the control of their respective ethnic authorities;

- choosing to stay temporarily in the area of detention;
- relocation in areas away from the conflict under international supervision;
- temporary refuge in third countries.

Therefore, #nothing else happened in the RS, but one of those possible and envisaged outcomes#. But, let us see how this Program of action characterised the issues of the unlawful detention and other felonies:

i) all parties to the conflict are bound to comply with their obligations under International Humanitarian Law and in particular the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto, and that persons who commit or order the commission of grave breaches are individually responsible.

Therefore, "...#persons who commit or order the commission of grave breaches are individually responsible."# However, the Chamber is sentencing the President on no real evidence of individual or any other kind of responsibility. Let us see further:

ii) all the parties to the conflict have the responsibility to exercise full authority over undisciplined elements within their areas so as to avoid anarchy, breaches of international humanitarian law and human rights abuse.

It is evident that the London Conference recognised the existence of #“undisciplined elements”#, which implicitly recognised that there was no evidence of the violations committed by the official authorities. See further:

iii) that refugees and displaced persons should be allowed to return voluntarily and safely to their places of origin.

This is only one of many commitments that the refugees will have all rights to return to their own homes and places of living. THIS #ABSOLUTELY EXCLUDED ANY POSSIBILITY OF SO CALLED “PERMANENT REMOVAL”#. See further:

vii) that all such action should be in accordance with the agreement with the parties reached in Geneva on 22 May under auspices of the ICRC.

See how important was the Geneva Agreement of 22 May! It is mentioned in all the subsequent agreements as a basis. All movement of the civilian population in the RS territory was done in accordance with this agreement of 22 May 92., see further:

b. that no party can be expected to give guarantees of security on behalf of the other parties to the conflict.

c. that in granting safe access to the international humanitarian organizations there would be a clear understanding that no party would gain military advantage.

The only side that respected this provisions was the Serb side, while others took all advantages.

3371. The Chamber found that around 9 August 1992, Karadžić visited Kula prison with representatives of the media and the ICRC, and that the food was better that day and only clean rooms were shown.¹⁰⁷⁷⁸ (#If it was really so, that meant that the management wanted to impress the President too#!). He released ten detainees, some of whom were above the age of 60 and others were ill.¹⁰⁷⁷⁹ The President couldn't “release” anyone, he could only abolish them from further prosecution by a Presidential act, and that was what he did.

3372. Doyle encountered the President in the lobby of a hotel in Brussels on 16 August 1992 when the Times had published a photograph of an emaciated detainee in the Omarska camp. The President appeared to be taken aback by the news.¹⁰⁷⁸⁰ (#General shortages#! Although a photograph could easily be manipulated and also there was a #chortage of food for everyone#, the fact that the President “appeared to be taken aback by the news” is #EXCULPATORY#, meaning that it was not known to the President. And how it could have been known to him, since there was no communications. Anyway, no president all over the world would be taken responsible for an omission of his very, very distant subordinates!)

3373. On 17 August 1992, the Report of the Commission for Inspecting Collection Centres and Other Facilities for Captives in the ARK was issued.¹⁰⁷⁸¹ It provided a sanitised version of the conditions in the camps, failing to mention the detention of any civilians and noting that most of the camps, especially Manjača, had inadequate premises with insufficient food, beds, and blankets.¹⁰⁷⁸² (Well, this is really too much: the Chamber is suspecting a #“strictly confidential” document of the Government#, for not notifying something the Chamber expected to be notified, and what would be notified had it existed. So, for a #negative finding,# in the absence of any proof that it really existed, the Chamber somehow knew that the governmental inspection missed to mention civilians in a strictly confidential report from 1992, when there was no any Tribunal, and wasn’t expected that anyone but the Government could see the report? Is that a Justice? How any chamber could be allowed to make such a criminal inferences?) It also alluded to difficulties with security due to poor co-ordination between the army and the police.¹⁰⁷⁸³

3374. As a result of further reports received by the President from international representatives, Mandić tasked Avlijaš with drafting a report on the situation in camps from Sarajevo to Prijedor.¹⁰⁷⁸⁴ The report was issued on 22 October 1992 and was sent, inter alia, to the RS Presidency.¹⁰⁷⁸⁵ It included information on several detention centres in BiH, including in Vlasenica, Zvornik, Prijedor, Sanski Most, and Banja Luka.¹⁰⁷⁸⁶ It also noted that SJBs in Zvornik, Hadžići, and Ilidža were detaining people without any authorisation in law.¹⁰⁷⁸⁷ (#AI of in on the President’s order#! So what? The President received reports from the internationals, and immediately conveyed it to the Minister for Justice, who promptly reacted, tasking a responsible and experienced official to inspect the allegations! He found that there was detained people, since the locals had a right to keep detainees up to three days. The SJB didn’t have the investigators and other services for the criminal investigations, the SJB depended a lot on the Centres for Public Security (CSB) and courts, and it wasn’t possible to anyone to decide whether somebody captured in a combat zone is civilian, or combatant. But, anyway, this #report is complete and honest, because it criticised a several SJBs, and didn’t find civilians in other prisons. First of all, civilians are to be detained if involved in any kind of crime. Second, once it become proven that there is no crime committed by a detained person, and no a military involvement, such a persons were released immediately. AND HOW THE CHAMBER FOUND THAT A REGULAR FUNCTIONING OF THE GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES, in accord with the presidential orders, AND REPORTING ON THIS, COULD BE AN EVIDENCE OF THE PRESIDENT'S LIABILITY#? This is rather #EXCULPATORY#, because that is a regular job of the agencies, which are supposed to carry it out regularly, and to inform the Presidency, Government and Ministries. This is rather a proof that the agencies did their job, and nothing in it is proving any liability of the President.

3375. The Chamber concludes that the Accused became aware of the detention of civilians in April 1992 and inadequate conditions in Bosnian Serb run detention facilities by at least May 1992. (#Wrong in many aspects#! What is a basis for this “conclusion”? What was the official position and authority of the President during April and May 92? Was he either formally, or factually in a position to influence the chaotic events on the terrain? First, until the end of May Karad`i} didn't have any commanding competence over any armed forces, nor there was other armed forces except the JNA, and local TO-s, under the JNA – and municipal command!# Second, the Law on All-Peoples Defence authorised every single municipality and local commune to organize the ndefence the way they find suitable, and if the JNA was not around, to carry out all the defense duties!#) It further finds that the President sanctioned the forcible removal of civilians who were detained in these facilities either within BiH or to third countries. (On what evidence is based this assertion? If there was no a secure option to house a refugees in a place where they come from, than there were other possibilities of a lawful handling of the civilians that are moved from their area which is within combat activities! See D1142:

d. It was recognised that in addressing the acute problem of the unlawful detention of civilians and the deplorable conditions in which they were held. The primary objective to secure their release and return to their homes. If not immediately feasible, they identified the following possible options in the light of the wishes of those detained and in keeping with the provisions set out at para 3 below:

- repatriation to areas under the control of their respective ethnic authorities;
- choosing to stay temporarily in the area of detention;
- relocation in areas away from the conflict under international supervision;
- temporary refuge in third countries.

All of these possibilities had been at disposal to the local authorities and the detained people, who the most frequently have chosen to go to the areas under control of their respective ethnic authorities”, or to a third countries! How the President could be responsible and convicted for a fulfilment of an Argeement reached under the auspice of the UNHCR and the ICFY?)

The Chamber notes the President's argument that during the rare visits by the RS authorities to Vlasenica, they were informed that the civilian population was well-treated, citing evidence that detainees at the Sušica camp told international representatives that they had received fine treatment in the camp.¹⁰⁷⁸⁸ The Chamber also notes that on or about 21 June 1992, Dragan Nikolić and Goran Tešić entered the Sušica camp and took two detainees out for questioning and beat them to death; a false report was subsequently prepared to suggest that the two detainees died of natural causes.¹⁰⁷⁸⁹

(How possibly the President could have known that? The very fact that “a false report was subsequently prepared” is #EXCULPATORY#, because the perpetrators didn't brag before the superiors about their misdeed, but tried to hide it! The #“next level”# wouldn't tolerate it!) The Chamber accepts the President's submission that he and other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership did not learn of every single act of mistreatment of the non-Serb population throughout the Municipalities. However, the evidence establishes that the President was overall promptly and well-informed of crimes committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities as described above. (This is not correct, because except for a several unreliable international sources, the President and the other RS leaders could have learnt about crimes only from their own, i.e. the RS institutions dealing with the crimes. Instead of taking it as an exculpatory evidence, the Chamber turns it to the convicting or aggravating evidence. #The Chamber expected that the RS Presidency and President do a sort of things that no presidency or president does. In was important that the MUP and VRS institutions fought against the crimes#, and the President was only informed, but not requested to do anything. When requested, he did act, but this to was taken against him!)

(C) Misleading statements made by the Accused

3376. The Accused frequently minimised the extent of criminal activity in the Municipalities when speaking to the international media, negotiators, and to the public. Indeed, the President admitted to the Bosnian Serb Assembly that it was necessary to be cunning when faced with questions from the media and when dealing with international negotiators.¹⁰⁷⁹⁰ (This kind of staging and manipulating with sentences moved out of context is out of any decency, and certainly out of anything which is acceptable in a criminal procedure. Here is a part of this speech of the President. He was dealing with the mutiny caused by 1,200 rogue elements in the VRS, pointing out to the VRS and Gen. Mladic that this was their problem, a problem of discipline in the Army. Within this discussion the President said that he was challenged by a several thousand journalists, to which he couldn't say what he said to Mladic and others about the mutiny. Look at this para, P01379, p. 76:

colonel to clean is not our people. Those are rebels and gang. They endangered whole state. I ask you to introduce the most necessary measures in all neighbouring units in order to prevent that. And I ask you to undertake all measures of readiness to crush a plot. I ask, firstly, to order them to withdraw. If they cannot withdraw you have to prepare everything and we will politically prepare and inform the people that we have nothing with that, that we pardon those 1200 soldiers, that we ask leaders to surrender themselves to their command. The mutiny must end today. And let's not talk like the others. Mister MLADIĆ, I have to have a media cabinet, but I do not have it. I have to fight. They spent hundreds of millions on media and I did not spend any dinar. I have to fight and I struggle with 2-3 thousands of journalists, congressmen and this and that. I have to come up in every show. You think that I am glad. The adrenaline raises every time and a pressure when I listen to the idiotic questions and have to find a cunning answer. And I do not have a media cabinet. I should have a personal photographer to record every step of mine, to publish it. I do not have him. I do not have anything. I have two-three advisers, I do not have a Chief of the cabinet like I should do, I do not a cabinet that should help me. I do not have luxury. I lived in a dog-house until four days ago. All that is not necessary and all that did not help to the

The "idiotic questions deserved a "cunning answers". Therefore, no a single clue about misinforming the international negotiators, particularly not on the issue of crimes. Such a huge forgery should immediately result in dismissing the case, not only because it was a political speech, but it is #abused and distorted#, in order to denigrate the President, and to be able to convict him. #Ant the Chamber had a quite sufficient amount of evidence on the irresponsibility, bias, manipulations, indecency and criminal conduct of many fake journalists!#)

The Accused claimed that civilians were leaving of their own free will and had signed voluntary declarations that they wanted to leave.¹⁰⁷⁹¹ Here is this P02937 document:

Your Excellency,

I received your letter and ordered an immediate investigation into the matter. I was told that the Moslem inhabitants of the village of Kozluk, near Zvornik, had demanded from the Bosnian-Serbian authorities to be allowed to move to Hungary and Germany, otherwise they would consider themselves as hostages. The Bosnian-Serbian authorities requested an undersigned paper with the demands the Moslems had made. The authorities of the municipality of Zvornik are in the possession of the written evidence that the departure of the inhabitants was done by their own free will. The evidence contains a list of names, as well as a statement that they were not under any kind of pressure. Each side has a copy of the document, and we believe that one copy went to the Red Cross.

It is quite clear that all of them may return any time they want to.

As for the "war criminals", if they are proved as such, they will be subjected to legal procedures in the way provided by the law.

We see that the President didn't know what it was all about, and made a short research, and got the explanation from the terrain. As it is already known to the Chamber, prior to this demand there was another demand of the Muslims from Kozluk to leave. At the moment, the local authorities were in control of the processes in Zvornik, and they dissuaded the civilians from their intent to leave, helped by the Serb Bishop and the Muslim priest, imam. Later on, under the pressure of the paramilitaries, the authorities weren't in control any longer, and the Kozluk population demanded to be facilitated to leave. After the war almost all of them had returned to Kozluk, as it was promised by the RS authorities! Therefore, a false and fake assertion of the Prosecutor accepted by the Chamber, which wouldn't be by any reasonable chamber!). The Accused made statements to the international media that the Bosnian Serb authorities did not participate in "ethnic cleansing", they were trying to stop this practice, and that acts of "ethnic cleansing" were being perpetrated by groups or individuals who did not originate from the Bosnian Serb authorities.¹⁰⁷⁹²

P5596:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ: The Serbian authorities did not participate in ethnic cleansing. In fact, we are trying to stop it. Such acts are being perpetrated only by groups of Serbs or by individuals, but they certainly do not originate from the Serbian authorities.

In the document P12 from #14 February 92# there is nothing pertaining to the subject, nor there could be, since it happened before the war. In this document, a transcript of the meeting, the President made a positive propaganda for the ECMM and its leader, Mr. Doyle, with the aim to secure a people's respect for them. That was before the war, and when it was hoped that there will not be any war, see P12, p. 8:

important, somebody today, those European monitors were present somewhere in Pale, an Irish guy is their leader and he is an excellent person who had figured out many things, he had an unpleasant experience with our people, some of our people are really arrogant. And I explained to him that it was totally normal what European monitors had done in Europe, that is in Croatia, we had had enough of that and we cannot see them. We know, by chance, that he is unbiased and that his people are unbiased, but what they had done is a disgrace for Europe, and that is what we keep saying. So, he accepted that. And one of your tasks is, please, it can happen that a lot of monitors come to Bosnia and Herzegovina these days. To be kind to the fullest, civilized, to “push” among them as many of our translators and escort who are educated and nice, because that is what the other side is doing. When

(#How this words could be a basis for such an inference#?)

For example, in a 23 April 1992 media interview, when questioned about the fate of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats living in Serb areas, the President said that there were “very few such people” and that in any event they had signed an agreement with the UNHCR to allow the return of people to their homes.¹⁰⁷⁹³

What is wrong with this interview? It was a day after the President issued his Platform for the political solution of the conflict, in which the President said that no fait accompli will be recognised. Let us see what was said in the Peace Platform, D00110:

5. Public commitment by all sides in BH that the policy of an accomplished act, even the one originated from the communist heritage, will not be accepted and territorial advantages gained through the use of force will not be recognized.

This commitment would make any further fights for territories senseless.

#EXCULPATORY#! The same pertained to any “accomplished act,” fait accompli as unacceptable. Also, what was an official capacity of the President on 23 April 1992? #No a public office, no might, no command over anyone#!

However, by that time, the Accused knew that thousands of non-Serb civilians had been expelled from Bosnian Serb controlled territory,¹⁰⁷⁹⁴ and he continued to learn of such expulsions during the conflict.¹⁰⁷⁹⁵

(#This is wrong as a devil#! First of all, neither the international community, nor the United Nations qualified this as “expelled” but quite contrary: people escaped from the combats. See$$@@@ . By 23 April the majority of refugees were the Serbs. Further, by this date there was no a war in many municipalities. The war happened in Sarajevo as of 6 April, but there was no the Muslim refugees, firther in Foca, Zvornik, Vlasenica, Visegrad, a three days skirmish in Bijeljina, and some incidents among the JNA and Croatian Army (HV) around Derventa and Posavina (Bosanski Brod and Brcko) The President knew about even more Serb civilians expelled or escaping from the Muslim/Croat held territories. That was after the two weeks of a bloody war, imposed to the Serbs by the Muslim/Criat coalition. The President at that time never President the Muslim/Croat leaders for an ethnic cleansing, because it was the time of chaos. Everyone knew what would happen if a civil and religious war starts, and this was the reason why the President made every effort to avoid the war, see: D01833, of 8 March 1992:

encouraged that all three communities in Bosnia-Herzegovina were committed to the Cutileiro talks on finding new internal constitutional arrangements among themselves. President Izetbegovic told him that some progress had been made in the Cutileiro talks. Dr. Radovan Karadzic, the leader of the Serbs, was also positively inclined towards these talks. He wanted to avoid a war at all costs in Bosnia-Herzegovina, ¹⁰⁷⁹⁴ See paras. 3332, 3336.

¹⁰⁷⁹⁵ See Section IV.A.3.a.v.A: Knowledge of crimes committed throughout the Municipalities.

This sole document is so #exculpatory#, by excluding any war crimes, which couldn't appear without a war, that the Indictment shouldn't survive the disclosure of this document. No mens rea, no plans, no intentions, at least before 15 June 1992, when the President formed the VRS and defined who will be in the command of it!

3377. The Accused also shifted blame for the crimes away from Bosnian Serbs. For example, he often stated that: (i) his interlocutors had been misinformed; (ii) their sources were biased; (iii) crimes and terrible things had happened historically and were continuing to happen to Bosnian Serbs as well; (iv) everybody was guilty; (v) he had warned that the declaration of BiH independence would provoke a terrible war; and (vi) the international community was responsible.¹⁰⁷⁹⁶ (#ALL OF IT WAS PRESENT IN THE STATEMENTS OF THE MOST RESPONSIBLE WORLD LEADERS!# And what was wrong with these assertions of the President? (i) Were the international interlocutors (mis)informed by their Muslim hosts, their Muslim interpreters, of the interlocutors were present at every crime scene? Of course, they were (mis) informed by their Muslim hosts, and they usually didn't know any fact about events on the terrain!. In Sarajevo itself they didn't know where were the Serb, and where were the Muslim/Croat forces. (ii) Where, or not, their sources biased? What were their sources? The governments of a countries that had been completely hostile to the Serbia, the Republika Srpska and the Serbs generally. Were these sources objective? (iii) Was it true? Or it was the first time in the history that the civilians of the three confessions fought each other? It is insulting to the Serbs when the Chamber alludes and suggests that the Serbs didn't suffer a true genocide at least twice in the 20th Century. (iv) Everybody was guilty, wasn't it? The President even gave an anti-Serb statement, because the Serbs were the least guilty, they never started any fight, but certainly some of them defended more than necessary and thus committed crime. (v) and (vi) IT WAS NOT THAT THE PRESIDENT SAID IT, IT WAS SAID BY THE HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITIES, INCLUDING LORD P. CARRINGTON, AMB. CUTILEIRO, MIN. PINHEIRO, B.B.GHALI AND MANY OTHER AUTHORITIES. Let us see what is said in the P00811 exhibit, Okun's note for the file:

I raised with him the issue of civilians fleeing from Jajce in the direction of Travnik. I said we were receiving reports that these people were being shelled and that their condition was extremely serious. Dr. Karadzic said there had been little or no shelling of Jajce; the town had been captured by infantry alone. He further said that civilians were protected at Jajce and that the town had been taken by a disciplined group of soldiers "who were not irresponsible." He said this was a disinformation campaign directed against the Bosnian Serbs. I responded that we had very different information, that I believed it to be reliable, and that -- in any case -- he should immediately call his commander on the spot and order him to protect all innocent civilians no matter what. I reiterated that the reports we were receiving said that thousands of people were fleeing Jajce. Dr. Karadzic said this was not so, but that residents of Jajce had left earlier. I reiterated in the strongest possible terms that he should call his local commander and order him to cease and desist from any activity directed at innocent civilians. I said this was a matter of the most extreme urgency. Dr. Karadzic said he would call his commander and so instruct him.

So, neither the President called him, nor he was obliged to talk to him what he wanted to say to Mr. Vance, nor Okun could have known more about Jajce than the Serb Colonel over there, nor the President was and should have been expecting that Mr. Okun knew more than his commander on the spot, nor Mr. Okun was entitled to command to the VRS, to which the President didn't command either, and finally, Jajce wasn't a civil area at all, but a completely militarised stronghold, and finally-finally, the Muslim/Croat side declared the war against the Serbs in BiH. Is anyone reasonable to tell us who was a source of the information that Okun received? Was it the Serb side? Or was it the Muslim/Croat side, which initiate fights, and when losing, start to cry to a people like Okun. And if somebody could say that this wasn't a political trial. All what is said in this paragraph is a pure politics. This kind of intervention and a biased conduct disqualify the international presence in the crisis areas, and it is a critical question whether the international mediators should be invited by a hosts, should they be met and spoken to orally, or only through a written correspondence!) But, let us see what is in the letter of the RS Government, D01137:

The purpose of the mission was described as assessment of the situation of the minorities in the region. We have to say that the report is mainly inaccurate and biased, aimed at discrediting the authorities of the Republic of Srpska. UNHCR officials, it seems, do not check the sources of the collected information nor its contents, and uncritically use statements of Bishop, Mufti and Caritas representatives in the field. They request the protection for the minorities, but they do not seem to be interested in a number of criminal charges brought in the region against individuals engaged in criminal activities of damaging the property of Muslims or Croats. The bias of the report is expressed in suggestive statements like: ICRC and UNHCR are unable to help improving the situation and the Serb authorities are not willing to improve it; or, Mrkonjić Grad is the next place to be targeted (no reasons are given); or, Jajce was once beautiful city, now houses are partly damaged or destroyed. However, UNHCR officials could have learnt that Croat children are given Catholic instruction in all primary schools in the region, and that Muslims refused to provide Islamic instruction for their children.

So, it was not only the President who was convinced that the international agencies were biased. And they had been very biased, and if needed for this Appeal, it is going to be presented to the entire world.

combat activities, and that therefore it is completely unjustified. The name Banja Luka is used to cover 29 municipalities where a large number of them have been affected by intense fighting and in the UNHCR report there is no mention of it. The problem of refugees of Serb nationality has been ignored although there are 200,000 of those and more than 400,000 of socially endangered in the region. It is absurd to raise the problem of jobs because the largest number of the population lost them thanks to the care of international community to implement vigorous sanctions against the Serbs.

But the UN agencies didn't pay any attention to the Serb sufferings, nor to the situation on terrain.

Knowing the situation of the Serbs in all the other parts of the former B&H, which is no different than the one in Sarajevo, we want to lodge a strong protest to UNHCR for breach of its mandate that you have defined as "maintaining neutrality and integrity carrying out humanitarian task of ensuring material and protection assistance to those in need". Political involvement of international humanitarian agencies may have unforeseen consequences, and it represents a direct interference in the negotiating process that should bring political solution for the former B&H and Yugoslavia. We expect UNHCR to stop campaigns and to contribute in the efforts to reach a broader assessment of the humanitarian problems within the context of the civil war in the former B&H.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. B. Lukic
Dr. Vladimir Lukic

So, the Prime Minister was rightfully much sharper than the President ever, shame on the President, for trusting the international "humanitarians" while they were lobbying and helping only one side in the war.) In addition, Bosnian Serb leaders when confronted with allegations of rape and expulsion of Bosnian Muslims sometimes would also suggest that these abuses had been committed by Bosnian Muslims who were masquerading as Serb soldiers but did not deny that these crimes were happening.¹⁰⁷⁹⁷ (#CONFRONTED WITH ALLEGATIONS# - BY WHOM? The internationals took some Muslim propaganda and served it as their “allegations”, but rather as an accusations, and expected that the entire Serb state admit or deny it immediately! Instead of respecting the #Serb caution about confirming or denying some crimes#, it is taken as if the Serb officials admitted the crimes. This wouldn’t be decent to deny something before an investigation! Pertaining to a sharade with names and uniforms, this is something what really happened, even in the WWII, when the Croat Ustasas entered the Serb villages calling each other by a Muslim names. This way the Muslims introduced this practice, calling themselves by a Croat or Serb names. But, anyway, the Chamber is not interested in the truth, otherwise it wouldn’t pay so much credit to the Muslim allegations, which was a pure propaganda. To remind the Appeal Chamber, it was less than a year of war when the Muslim side went out public, claiming that there was 350,000 Muslim casualties and up to 80,000 raped women. This was to highest figure, but from the beginning it was in thousands. Why the state organs of the RS would pay any credit to this kind of propaganda? And the international community should have been cautious about the Muslim claims once it learnt about this false claimes.)

3378. Throughout the conflict, the Accused boasted to the Bosnian Serb Assembly about the proper conduct of the Serb Forces, when he knew it was not true. (How the Chamber could have known that? If the Chamber presumed that the President should consider himself well informed because some international representatives told him something, this is more that ridiculous. The President #relied upon the reports of the state agencies, the state security, the MUP, the military intelligence, and lower positioned officials and ordinary people#. The internationals hadn’t been even closely informed as these structures and soucres!) In a television interview on 20 August 1992 regarding the release of detainees from detention centres, the Accused spoke of only releasing prisoners of war who were too ill or weak to go back into battle, after initially offering to close all of the camps.¹⁰⁷⁹⁸ He stated that “we don’t have people in prisons that have been removed from their own homes. Those people have been captured in the battle-field”.¹⁰⁷⁹⁹ (What was inaccurate in this inrerviews? #Why would the Serb side replenish the adversary army with their captured combatants? #Why the Serb side would keep innocent civilian in detention units, while they didn’t have enough food for the population and soldiers#? There is an evidence that a two soldiers shared one small pasteta a day. The riots in Banja Luka in September 93 was motivated by a bed social position of the soldiers abd their families!) The Accused claimed in a speech in December 1992 that “there were no civilians in our prisons”, that no institution which inspected their prisons found any civilians or women, and that they had released a large number of detainees.¹⁰⁸⁰⁰ However, prior to that time, the Accused had been informed by Bosnian Serb government commissioned reports as well as by international representatives and the media that civilians were detained and many detention centres had inadequate or worse conditions.¹⁰⁸⁰¹ (These two are not opposed to each other. The President didn’t say that the detention centres, improvised and adjusted inadequate spaces, were as hotels. He said that the Serb side had released many prisoners of war. Wasn’t it true that the President himself ordered that the Manjaca prison for POWs be dismantled and thousand POWs released, just prior to this interview? There also hadn’t been any civilians or women, although in the ABiH there was about 6% of a female combatants, as their documents confirmed!) On 8 January 1993, the President also stated that “no soldier of ours would be allowed to rape a woman in the presence of another soldier” and described these stories as “terrible lies”.¹⁰⁸⁰² Here is how this part of the President’s speech looks like, P00921, p. 13 of the Serb people. We, the Serbs in BiH, were the most co-operative in humanitarian matters. As you know, we released 6.000 war prisoners, nobody found a civilian in our prisons, not to remind you that nobody ever found a woman. Let me not remind you that no soldier of ours would be allowed to rape a woman in the presence of another soldier, if you know our officers and their strict upbringing in that respect. Those terrible lies are meant only to frighten the Serb people. It is clear, even to those who launch those lies that it is statistically impossible that only 2 or 3 women are ready to talk about it if 100 have been raped. It is clear that there are brothels in which the Serb women are held, but there is not even one brothel in which the Muslim women are held. It is clear to them that the Muslims and Croats bring old people and children to an exchange, while we bring exclusively the able-bodied men that responded to IZETBEOVIC’s mobilisation. It is all clear to them. In spite of that, we were

And this speech of the President wasn’t aimed to a public, let alone to the internationals, but only to the deputies, while 13 of them were opposition representatives, who wouldn’t miss an opportunity to blame the government and the President himself. The Appeal Chamber is maybe not obliged, but it would be a nice and just, to take into account this kind of bias against the Serb people, and to count in how huge experience of injustice it was faced with. Another very peculiar “understanding” of the presidential duties and abilities, due to which the Chamber presumed that if the Government and governmental commissions informed the President how they were doing their job! The President could only have been satisfied and calm, because the Government and governmental institutions are taking care of regularities. The President could only intervene if there was no such a reports and the Government and governmental institutions didn’t do their job. In such a case, the President could only criticise the Government, reinforce his orders and eventually propose to the Assembly to vote against the Government, and nominate another Prime Minister. The President asked the Assembly to change the Government five times in a three and a half years, not because the Government or Prime Ministers made a mistakes, but because they were inexperienced and couldn’t cope with so many problems!)

3379. On 2 April 1993, the Accused stated that the UN could present evidence of war crimes, but that it was for the RS to investigate and prosecute matters itself, and that their army could never have committed crime.¹⁰⁸⁰³ (Certainly! There was so many allegations, but any serious allegation was to be investigated by the military police, and to be processed in a military courts. What is wrong with that? There may have been, and certainly had been, that a members of the VRS or police committed crimes, but not the VRS or Police as a legal formation. All so far known perpetrators of crimes hid their misdeeds from their most immediate commanders and superiors, and that is what the President meant saying what he said about the subject. It is not a news that the President opposed to any idea of such an international justice, he even didn’t recognized this Tribunal, but defended before it, as would defend before a storm or a flood!)

maintained the knightly character and military honour, worthy of it.”¹⁰⁸⁰⁴ (So what? That is true, and there is no any evidence that the VRS as an army did act criminally, apart from its members who had hidden their misdeeds from the very “next level”, i.e. from a most immediate commanders. It is well known how an army acts: with a plan, with a preparatory orders, executive orders, tasking a concrete unit, obtaining ammunition, food, fuel and all other needs, and finally, controlling the execution. None of individual crimes must be considered as a crimes of the Army or police. The same was with the American army in many countries, always differentiated between an individual crimes and a crimes ordered or tolerated by the President and a high commands!)

3381. The Chamber finds that the Accused minimised what he knew about criminal activity committed by Serb Forces and misled international interlocutors and the public with respect to that activity in Bosnian Serb claimed territory in the Municipalities. (This is another #wrong inference, and so general# that shouldn't find any place in a serious Judgement, because it rather looks like a gossip#! The President was known as a person easy to confess that there was crimes committed by the Serbs, and very often it was taken as if he admitted that the “Serb Forces” committed it. There is no any interview where some question didn't pertain to the atrocities, and that the President didn't answer that all the three sides committed horrible crimes, but the President never accused the very leaders of the two other sides, because it wouldn't be in their interest to have such a crimes committed by their forces. #What the President knew was what his Army and Police informed him, and it was a quite different from what the international interlocutors said# to the President. At the beginning, the President trusted the internationals more than his services, which was wrong. The international interlocutors, first of all, didn't make any investigation, but used a media, or propaganda sources, or had been under the control and instructions of their countries and governments, while the Army and Police were in a position to know better. Otherwise, the President wouldn't have any time to do his own duties from investigating 80,000 alleged rapes, or 350,000 Muslim victims in a first year of war. What happened with all this allegations?)

(D) Prevention of criminal activity

3382. The Prosecution argues that the orders issued by the Accused to address crimes committed against non-Serbs were “simply window dressing designed to disguise [his] role in supporting the very crimes he was purporting to address”.¹⁰⁸⁰⁵ (How possibly a “strictly confidential” documents and orders directed to the police, the military police and prosecution offices could be a “window dressing”? Had it been a case, there must had been many complains from the terrain to the President and his orders. Taking into account the Prosecution's construct of the JCE and the number of people involved, there certainly would be many warnings of a possible accomplices against any measure of investigation and punishment of the crimes committed. Out of so many indicted and sentenced Serbs at least some of them would get public with his complains against the President for his alleged “duplicity”! but it never happened. Aside the main question: whi the President would be interested in crimes, unless he was a born criminal?) The President argues that he made legitimate efforts to prevent the commission of crimes and ensure Bosnian Serb Forces adhered to international humanitarian law.¹⁰⁸⁰⁶ (And he succeeded, since the Army as such didn't commit crimes, apart from some individuals or alienated groups!)

1. Unlawful detention and inadequate conditions in detention facilities

3383. In relation to the treatment of detainees, on 8 June 1992, the SRNA broadcasted an appeal by the President to local authorities and prominent Serbs to, inter alia, ensure protection for all wounded and ill individuals irrespective of what side of the conflict they were on and to treat all prisoners humanely.¹⁰⁸⁰⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!) On 13 June 1992, the President issued an order to the VRS and MUP to apply and respect the international law of war and authorised the Minister of Defence to prepare instructions on the treatment of captured prisoners,¹⁰⁸⁰⁸ which the Minister did.¹⁰⁸⁰⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) In addition, the Chamber found that in June and July 1992, the Bosnian Serb leadership requested several reports on detention facilities and detainees.¹⁰⁸¹⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! What is wrong here? The orders were issued and a control was initiated. What is wrong? In which country president do more than that?)

3384. On 1 July 1992, the President asked Mandić to release a Croat who the President believed was detained at Kula prison.¹⁰⁸¹¹ The Chamber finds that this is indicative of the President's ability to secure the release of detainees when he felt like it. The Chamber also received evidence that Krajišnik and Mandić also intervened on behalf of detainees with whom they had personal connections.¹⁰⁸¹² (So what? If a high official of the Republika Srpska guarantees for somebody, it was a his right of discretion to release such a person. But it couldn't pertain to every detained people, otherwise the Serb community would be defeated and expelled from BiH! Does the Chamber mean that the President as the President should order all the enemies captured in the battlefield to be released? The people would arrest and detain him, and would be right!)

3385. The Chamber recalls that around 15 July 1992, a high-ranking delegation of Bosnian Serbs from Banja Luka and Prijedor visited Omarska and were received by Drljača.¹⁰⁸¹³ Following the delegation visit, the President called Kuprešanin to suggest that he influence the municipal authorities in Prijedor to close the "investigation centres" in the municipality.¹⁰⁸¹⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!) Kuprešanin subsequently asked the authorities of Omarska and Keraterm to close the facilities and to improve the living conditions for the detainees until their disbandment.¹⁰⁸¹⁵ (Why it wasn't taken as an exculpatory document for the President?)

3386. Vulliamy visited Omarska on 5 August 1992.¹⁰⁸¹⁶ He was told later by survivors from Omarska that the detainees who appeared to be in “better condition” were brought out to the tarmac area between the hangar and the canteen where the journalists would see them during their visit.¹⁰⁸¹⁷ (And did those detainees had any incentive to lie? Why their words would have a greater value than a words of a Serbian officials? This would be too much that the Chamber grant a credit to such a biased statements.) The Chamber recalls that the authorities at detention facilities such as Omarska, Trnopolje and Manjača transferred the majority of their detainees to other locations during this time period and further cleaned up the facilities.¹⁰⁸¹⁸ (It is not sufficient for a Chamber's inference that this reports of a very known anti-Serb agitators were credible. But, anyway, even if it was such, that still can not be used against the President, because the President did his job, ordered to give a complete access to the ICRC, and even to media. All other wasn't in his hands, and there is no evidence that the President intervened afterwards to annihilate his own orders! There was no any evidence that the President tolerated any illegal and criminal activity, or a violation of the international humanitarian law!) Furthermore, soon after the President agreed to open up the camps to international visitors, Keraterm was closed, with the detainees being moved to Trnopolje or Manjača by 5 August 1992.¹⁰⁸¹⁹ (This is a bad construction. The President never heard of the Keraterm prison, and didn't order any make-up. The President didn't “agree to open up the camps to international visitors” he proposed it while in London, and invited the internationals, including media representatives, and took them in his plain, so that there was no any opportunity to emprove the look off the facilities! However, the President made a grave mistake by believing the internationals, and particularly media!)

3387. On 6 August 1992 at a session of the RS Presidency, attended by the President, the treatment of detainees held in Serb controlled territory was discussed. It was concluded that the MUP would be ordered to examine the behaviour of all civilian authorities and individuals guarding detainees and report back to the MUP and the Presidency.¹⁰⁸²⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! However, that was not the first decision, butone in a serial of orders to take care of the Prisoners of war! The President made such an order several times in 1992, while later, in 1993 to the end of war, there was a much better control of the local authorities! The Chamber had it all in the file!) At this meeting it was stressed that international conventions on the treatment of prisoners of war should be followed to ensure the humane treatment of prisoners of war given that “they are in prisons and not concentration camps”.¹⁰⁸²¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

¹⁰⁸¹⁶ Edward Vulliamy, T. 21079–21080 (9 November 2011).

¹⁰⁸¹⁷ Edward Vulliamy, T. 21088 (9 November 2011). The Chamber recalls that the day after the international journalists visited Omarska, Sejmenović was taken out of Omarska by Kuprešanin. Kuprešanin had been instructed by the Accused to get Sejmenović a suit and allow him time to recuperate, and then he was planning round-table discussions for Sejmenović to speak publicly about the situation in Bosnian Krajina. See para. 1787.

See also para. 1804. See also D4725 (Report from Slobodan Avlijaš to RS Ministry of Legislation and Administration, 31 August 1992). The Chamber notes that Idriz Merdžanić, a Bosnian Muslim doctor who was detained at Trnopolje from 26 May until 30 September 1992, testified that after the Accused promised at the London Conference to allow journalists to visit detention centres, he ordered to have the camps “prepared” for the journalists’ visits and suggested that the killing incident in Room 3 at Keraterm on or about 24 and 25 July 1992 occurred as a result of this. Idriz Merdžanić, T. 21394–21396 (16 November 2011). See Scheduled Incident B.15.1. The Chamber considers Merdžanić’s evidence to be speculative as he was not in a position to know about specific orders issued by the Accused. Therefore, the Chamber will not rely on his evidence in this regard.

Is something wrong in it? Why it wasn't sufficient for an acquittal on this point? What else the Presidency could have done, but to initiate the institutions to do their job?)

On 7 August 1992, the Accused wrote to Branko Đerić about reports they had received regarding detention facilities, including Manjača, and stated the ICRC and Mladić had been informed.¹⁰⁸²⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The Accused also noted his expectation that the government would, on the basis of these reports, “take immediate measures for the improvement of the living conditions in the jails that are operated by civilian authorities on our territory”.¹⁰⁸²⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#! What else any president could have done?) The President wrote to the ICRC with respect to these reports, and gave his re-assurance that the ICRC would be enabled to work without disturbance in RS and that he accepted “the majority of [their] remarks and recommendations for improvement of living conditions on these locations”.¹⁰⁸²⁶ The President also accepted the ICRC suggestion to release all persons older than 60 years of age from detention and stated that they were ready to speed up the exchange of prisoners through a system of exchange commissions.¹⁰⁸²⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3389. On 8 August 1992, at a session of the RS Presidency, it was concluded, inter alia, that: (i) visits by representatives of the ICRC to all prisons must be arranged; (ii) all detainees above the age of 60 or seriously ill or wounded should be released; and (iii) amnesty should be declared for persons who have committed minor offences or were misled into committing such offences.¹⁰⁸²⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3390. On the same day, in a letter to, among others, the President, Tomislav Kovač, then Deputy Minister for Police Affairs and Tasks, identified the problems of detention of non-Serbs and proposed “that the status of these people be legally changed in compliance with international conventions on refugees, prisoners of war”, given the failure to properly categorise civilians, prisoners of war and those who had committed criminal acts.¹⁰⁸²⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) On 9 August 1992, the government responded to the letter immediately and established the Commission for Inspecting Collection Centres and Other Facilities for Captives in the ARK, which released its report on 17 August 1992.¹⁰⁸³⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!) The Commission was tasked with determining the status of persons detained in prisons in the RS “in accordance with international

The Chamber does not find Subotić’s evidence that the only places of detention were under local authority and that he was not informed about the detention of civilians to be reliable. In reaching that conclusion the Chamber refers to its credibility assessment in fn. 9869 and more specifically that his evidence with respect to this issue was marked by evasiveness and contradictions and attempts to distance himself from the detention of civilians. (Why would he “distant himself” from something that he didn’t do anyway? (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3391. According to the minutes of the 30th session of the RS Presidency held on 6 September 1992, the President accepted a proposal from the Military Prosecutor’s Office attached to the command of the 1st Krajina Corp to pardon some detainees held at Manjača camp.¹⁰⁸³³ (#EXCULPATORY#! THE PRESIDENT COULDN’T DO IT WITHOUT A PROPOSAL OF THE MILITARY PROSECUTOR! The Chamber, just like the Prosecution, do not understand what was the position of the President, a constitutional, legal and factual one. It is the same as in any other country – President do his constitutional duties, and nothing else. Everything else was to be done by the institutions, not by President!) The proposal stated that the detainees were suspected of having committed crimes and asked that they be exempted from further prosecution; however the minutes do not indicate the reason for the request.¹⁰⁸³⁴

3392. On 8 September 1992, the President sent a strictly confidential telegram to the presidents of all municipalities in RS instructing them to ensure “respect of international humanitarian law with regard to the treatment of prisoners of war” and that civilians who had not committed crimes should “not be kept in prisons and collection centres against their will” and that they should ensure their safe passage to territory where they seek refuge from the war.¹⁰⁸³⁵ He also indicated that officials must accommodate the ICRC and the High Commissioner for Refugees.¹⁰⁸³⁶
(#EXCULPATORY#! And in accordance with all the agreements signed between the three sides and the UNHCR, ICRC and European Community! WHAT ELSE HE COULD HAVE DONE? IT WAS A “STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL” DOCUMENT, NOT AIMED TO PUBLIC, AND IT WAS AS GENUINE AS IN ANY OTHER COUNTRY!)

3393. In a meeting with international representatives in September 1992, the President agreed to “support any humanitarian issue” and “clean up” detention facilities but also in exchange requested that Bosnian Serbs, who he viewed as “hostages”, be allowed to leave Sarajevo.¹⁰⁸³⁷
(#EXCULPATORY#! And legal, and natural!) On 11 September 1992, the President granted amnesty from criminal prosecution to 69 detainees who were being held at Manjača and Trnopolje.¹⁰⁸³⁸ The President stated, a few days later, at a Bosnian Serb Assembly session that dealing with humanitarian issues would assist the Bosnian Serbs as they would get credit at an international level, and in this regard the disbandment of Trnopolje and Manjača camps would suit them so long as those detained were sent somewhere and did not return to the battlefield.¹⁰⁸³⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#! No president is entitled to jeopardize his army and his community by releasing enemy’s combatants who could appear on the battlefield the very next morning! It happened several times around Sarajevo, Rajlovac, where the Serb Army again captured the same combatants that had been captured in Bratunac, and released to Visoko!)

3394. An agreement between representatives of the President, Izetbegović, Mate Boban, and representatives of the SDA, SDS, and BiH Presidency was reached on 30 September and 1 October 1992.¹⁰⁸⁴⁰ They, inter alia, agreed to release all civilian detainees who were not suspected of having committed crimes.¹⁰⁸⁴¹ The document lists several scheduled detention centres under Bosnian Serb control, including Manjača, Trnopolje, Batković camp, and Kula Prison.¹⁰⁸⁴² (This is not correct and not accurate: there were mentioned the camps under the Croat and Muslim control, not only under the Serb control. Why the Chamber is, in addition to the selective persecution, selective in any aspect, and does also a selection in numbering the prisons in the Muslim/Croat territory?)

3395. The President, in October 1992, informed Mladić, Mićo Stanišić and Mandić that he had received information that some local authorities had ignored his instruction to allow unfettered access for the ICRC to detention facilities. The President demanded that they inform their subordinates to respect his instruction to allow access and that he would order a thorough investigation of all cases of failure to comply.¹⁰⁸⁴³ A completely #EXCULPATORY#! Beside his many genuine tasks and duties, the President payed tribute to the human rights and followed the implementation of his orders.

3396. On 1 October 1992, Kuprešanin wrote to the President and requested a pardon to allow for the release of some Bosnian Muslim detainees who were being held at Manjača who had not participated in “the rebellion” against the RS.¹⁰⁸⁴⁴ On 7 October 1992, pursuant to a decision of the RS Presidency, Kuprešanin authorised ten detainees who had been released and pardoned to be permitted to leave the territory of RS through the ICRC in Banja Luka.¹⁰⁸⁴⁵ On 13 November 1992, the President issued an amnesty from prosecution in respect of numerous detainees who were held at Manjača.¹⁰⁸⁴⁶ The Chamber considers that this further demonstrates the President’s ability to intervene in matters related to detention. (So what? Was it wrong? Every President of a state is authorised to pardon some suspects, if so proposed by the Ministry or the Army. But, that had to be an exception, and couldn’t be massive! Or should he neglect the security of his own Army and population, and dismantle all the prisons for POWs, without any condition? His Army would have all the reasons to eliminate such an irresponsible president. All those pardonings of the POWs were done in accord of many state institutions, including the VRS and judiciary!)

3397. It was not until 27 October 1992, that the Bosnian Serb Government officially decided that the existing illegal camps and assembly centres were to be dissolved as soon as possible and that the existing penal institutions legally formed in large centres in Republika Srpska were to be used, since the conditions there were suitable for legal treatment of prisoners and inmates.¹⁰⁸⁴⁷ (“It was not until 27 October that the BS Government officially decided...” is #not an accurate assessment#. act in accordance with the international law of war, but because of a huge number of the captives it wasn't possible to achieve and execute these orders of the President, Ministers, Prime Minister and the Army commanders, including General Mladic! Only after many had been released it was possible to group the POWs in the existing prisons, with experienced administrations. So, it wasn't for the first time that the Government acted to this respect, but was ordering a transfer into existing prisons!)

3398. On 4 December 1992, the President indicated that he would order the release of all detainees held in Manjača provided that they be transferred to third countries.¹⁰⁸⁵¹ The Chamber found above that this is what indeed happened.¹⁰⁸⁴⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3399. Having considered the evidence recounted above of the President's efforts to end the unlawful detention of non-Serb civilians and to ameliorate the conditions in detention centres, the Chamber notes that while the President was aware of the large-scale detention of civilians as early as April 1992, it was not until June 1992 that he issued orders on the protection of detainees and requested reports.¹⁰⁸⁴⁹ (First of all, who established that there were civilians detained, for instance in Manjaca? In Omarska there were brought in all captured in the zone of attack on Prijedor, since 22 till 31 May 1992, but once the professional investigators found out who was a civilian without participation in the crime of rebellion, these had been released, and there was 59% of such a detainees. Neither in other detention units were civilians, except in some perent, but they also had been released immediately after investigation. If it was about civilians to be detained, why in Prijedor, as the most markant spot, only about 5% of the non-Serb population HAD BEEN BROUGHT IN, AND ONLY 2,5% SENT TO Manjaca?)

Second, the President's official capacity before June 92 didn't allow him to act in that direction! He had been elected to the Presidency only on 12 May 92? He was without any command or other influence on the JNA before the VRS became the official armed force on 20 May 92. Didn't he establish the VRS by his order on 15 June 92, see P3035? What could he have done before this time, and before the late autumn 92? Meanwhile, before the President became thme presiding of Presidency, the Prime Minister Branko Djeric issued several orders to that respect, and General Mladic also, at the first half of May 92.) By that time, many civilians were already unlawfully detained in appalling conditions. (#Unproven, uncorroborated, arbitrary#! The Chamber didn't establish whether some detainees remained in a detention afer it was established that they had been "civilians", i.e. after the first results of investigations!) The Chamber further finds that the President had the authority to order the closure of detention centres and order the release of detainees as evidenced by how quickly his instructions to close Omarska, Keraterm and later Manjača and his instructions to release specific detainees were followed by the relevant authorities. (These were an exceptional discretion authorisation of the President, but it couldn't becom a rule, because it would jeopardize the Serb Army and civilians. However, the President was keen to release all those ordinary combatants under the condition that they wouldn't join their Army, which is a legitimate position!) However, by the time the Bosnian Serb Government officially decided to close all "illegal camps" on 27 October 1992, the make-shift detention facilities used throughout the Municipalities by Serb Forces to detain non-Serbs had already largely served their purpose of facilitating the process of the forcible removal of non-Serbs. (This is not correct, nor the Chamber had any basis for such an assertion. There was a terrain captured by a chaos of the civil war, and many, many fought in their civilian cloathings and were really civilians. And the municipalities and their TOs were (due to the Law) entitled to defend as much as they could, and in a way they were able to do it. No any organ could order them to act differently, if such an organ couldn't protect them. Their own sovereign right was to save themselves, and unfortunately they had to defend against their own state, since the RS was not established in it's structure, neither was prepared, so to protect them!) The Chamber considers that the President could have intervened much sooner if he had had the will to do so. (This is an arbitrary assertion, without knowing the elementary facts and legal positions. Beside that, the President was not obliged, nor authorized to unilaterally release POWs, while the Serbs captured by their adversaries were kept detained, and the international community didn't care about any Serb need or concerns.) However, instead of exercising his authority to close make-shift detention centres, he spent months denying that the conditions in these centres were appalling and that civilians were included among the detainees. (A civilians could have been included only until it was established that they really had been civilians! Until that moment, they had been a suspects!) Furthermore, the Chamber notes that Batković camp, Kula Prison and the Rasadnik detention facility remained in existence during the war and that they continued to unlawfully detain non-Serb civilians.¹⁰⁸⁵⁰ (No chamber could conclude as this without investigation and process. How this Chamber could have known it? Only by an uncritical acceptance of the witnesses that had been adversaries to the Serbs, and are motivated and educated to lie! And why it was always less that 3% or 4% of a non-serb population being detained and investigated, why not more that 50% or all of them? A presumed "systematic" approach of the Serb side towards the non-Serbs would require this percentage to be much, much higher!)

1. Forced removal of non-Serbs and protection of non-Serbs remaining in Serb controlled territory

3400. With respect to forced displacement of non-Serb civilians, in advance of the London Conference, the President issued an instruction to the VRS and MUP, on 19 August 1992 ordering that the forced resettlement of civilians should be prevented and that "any certificates of sale of property or statements that refugees will not return shall be considered as legally invalid and are declared null and void".¹⁰⁸⁵¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) On 21 August 1992, the President pledged to prevent "ethnic cleansing" and punish persons involved in expelling the civilian population.¹⁰⁸⁵² (#EXCULPATORY#!) On 25 August 1992, on the eve of the London Conference, the President stated, in a letter to the international community, that he had issued the 19 August 1992 instruction, but that the civilian population must be allowed to move freely out of a war zone if that was its desire, blaming the failure on the part of the international community to understand the deep-rooted antagonism and hatred between the three ethnicities in BiH, which caused people to leave their communities in droves.¹⁰⁸⁵³ (#EXCULPATORY#! And this was in accordance with all the agreements signed until this time between the warring sides and the international organisations, ICRC, UNHCR, and the Conference itself!) The Chamber considers that the President's comments in the 25 August letter were an attempt to downplay the forced nature of the movement of the population that was occurring, whereas by that time thousands of non-Serbs had already been expelled from Bosnian Serb claimed territory by Serb Forces. (#WRONG INFERENCE, for a several reasons: first, the Chamber is qualifying the chaotic events of the first several months of the war, out of which the first two months the President didn't have any official capacity or authority over any “Serb Forces” – as the Chamber accepted the OTP qualification if it, the JNA, TO and paramilitaries. However, exactly these two months were the worst in terms of chaos and lack of control by all the sides! Second, the Chamber neglected the entirety of picture, namely that already by that time, the end of August 92, there was more Serb refugees than the Muslim and Croat together. By neglecting such a drastic half of the picture, the #Chamber is participating in a demonization of the Serbs#, depicting them as a ruthless power, instead of a twice smaller community, attacked by a Muslim-Croat coalition plus the Army of Croatia itself.

Pertaining to the second assertion, that “by that time thousands of non-Serbs had been expelled by the Serb Forces...” The Chamber #did not have any valid reason to conclude this#. First of all, nobody established that the “Serb Forces” forcefully expelled any of those civilians. The Chamber is conveying a Muslim propaganda and an international media campaign into an evidence, without any objective investigation. What the President was pointing out about the freedom of movement of population out of a combat zones, was something provided in all the agreements, as well as in the domestic and international laws of war. This kind of an irresponsible “inferring” is not acceptable even in a kangaroo courts. This is particularly irresponsible without establishing what of the movement of population falls within this obligation, and what was a crime. For instance, why there was no “forceful expelling” from the areas where there was no combat activities? This suggests that the President’s 19 and 21 August orders were not genuine efforts to stop “ethnic cleansing”, and were rather designed as an attempt to cast a positive light on the actions of the Bosnian Serbs in view of the commencement of the London Conference. (Wrong, and unacceptable speculation, and indecent by a serious chamber, since it rather looks as propaganda gossip. Here is why: if it was so, there must have been a parallel order, secretly conveyed to the same instances to neglect the first order. If not, how the instances on the terrain could have known that it was fake, and that they hadn’t been obliged to carry the order out? No serious Chamber would infer that way, which is lower than an old ladies gossip on a market short encounter. The evidence that it wasn’t fake is in the P02617 exhibit of 8 June 1992, for which period the Chamber concluded that the President didn’t take a necessary measures to protect the minorities: P02617, p. 2, the Decision on return of those who left...:

All citizens who, for reasons of personal safety, temporarily left the territory of the Serbian Republic of BH, which had been engulfed in war, are obliged to return to their places of residence as soon as possible, until 20 May 1992 at the latest, and report to the Crisis Staff if their place of residence is controlled by the authorities of the Serbian Republic of BH.

Men of Serbian nationality aged from 18 to 60, previously residing in areas which are now not under the control of the authorities of the Serbian Republic of BH, are obliged to report to the nearest crisis staff on the territory of the Serbian Republic of BH until 20 May 1992.

(This is an example of a #positive discrimination#, the non-Serbs didn’t have to serve in the Army.)

Persons whose actions were not contrary to the interests of the Serbian Republic of BH have the right to return.

3401. In August 1992, the President issued instructions to the presidents of all municipalities to keep accurate records on the temporary use of abandoned flats by refugees and prevent any abuse in this regard.¹⁰⁸⁵⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#) However, the Chamber recalls that the transfer of abandoned non-Serb housing to Serb refugees had the effect of ensuring that non-Serbs who had fled their homes did not return to Serb held territory.¹⁰⁸⁵⁵ (Wrong! No para of any judgment could serve as a basis for such an inference. No matter who could have said anything, the only relevant was what the RS high officials committed themselves to, i.e. that the right to return and restore all the rights would be completely guaranteed. And that is what is counted, nothing else! And that is what had happened after the war in a full extemnt. And there was no any litigation about a state abuse of anyone's private property!)

3402. Furthermore, the President issued orders for the protection of non-Serbs remaining in Serb controlled territory. On 11 July 1992 at the 38th session of the Bosnian Serb Government, a working group was formed to prepare regulations on the treatment of civilians of all ethnicities in the RS in accordance with constitutional rights and international conventions and obligations.¹⁰⁸⁵⁶ #EXCULPATORY#! On 14 July 1992, the President instructed the presidents of the municipalities in the Goražde area to ensure that all Bosnian Croat and Bosnian Muslim inhabitants in villages who surrendered their weapons and did not intend to fight should enjoy the full protection of the RS state.¹⁰⁸⁵⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#! And this was in response to some hints and indications that the Muslim and Croat citizens didn't feel comfortable!) He issued a similar order on 23 July 1992 that Serb authorities must act in accordance with the law and international humanitarian law and all inhabitants who surrender weapons and agree to live peacefully must be permitted to stay and be protected by the RS.¹⁰⁸⁵⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#!) However, the Chamber notes that during this time period, Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forced to leave Bosnian Serb claimed territory in the Municipalities through threats, coercion, or as a result of physical force. (Wrong! Since many of the Muslim/Croat citizens didn't move anywhere, brings the Chamber to a question: #why only some of the M/C citizens wanted to leave, and other not, or why only some of them had been "expelled"? And the Chamber can not submit a single evidence that it was a forcible transfere, and not a demand of the civilians to leave a combat zones? The Chamber is taking all propaganda claims as an established facts, and this can not be valid even in a Khozak courts! The Chamber had a first class evidence that these orders of the President had been carried out exactly as it was written. There were a several Muslim villages in the Birac region, and on the Romania mount itself, who handed over their weapospn and lived freely as long as they wanted. Already in august 92 a Prosecution witness Edward Vulliamy wrote how the Muslims and Croats in the Prijedor area lived while being loyal to the system, see P3788, p. 6:

But down the road are other Muslim villages intact, peasants calmly bringing in the hay. Every house hangs a white flag - a piece of sheet or pillowcase - from the roof or from a tree: it is a guarantee against Omarska or Trnopolje.

'These are the people who accept the Serbian republic,' explains Major Milovan Milutonic from Army HQ in Banja Luka. 'If they do that, we just leave them alone.'

There are Croatian communities around Banja Luka too, exchanging their docility to the new order for a relatively quiet life.

The witness could be anything, but not a pro-Serb journalist! And this is a first class evidence that the civilians had a choice: to live peacefully, or to engage in combats!)

3403. On 3 April 1994, the Accused issued an order to the Bosnian Serb MUP and VRS authorities to, inter alia, investigate criminal activity committed in the RS with particular attention to Prijedor, which was subsequently distributed to all RBD centres and Drina Corps units.¹⁰⁸⁵⁹ (#EXCULPATORY!#

Had they been “expelled” there would not be a thousands of them in Prijedor still in 1994!#)

On 4 July 1994, the Accused conveyed to the municipal authorities in Prijedor that they should ensure full protection for the non-Serb population.¹⁰⁸⁶⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#! See the above quated P3788, which reflects exactly what the President ordered, as well as another paragraph from the same document, P3788, p. 3

Back in the town of Prijedor, women line the pavement outside police headquarters, waiting for transit papers to leave the area. Some say their menfolk had been in Omarska for four months.

The thousands of the Muslim civilians took refuge in the town of Prijedor, under the Serb control, while their males had been a suspects under the investigations!) There had been incidents in mid-1994 of individuals attacking non-Serbs and their property, causing them to apply to municipal authorities to organise their collective departure abroad.¹⁰⁸⁶¹ (This was a terrorist activity deep within the Serb territory, a daily killings of the Serb civilians and soldiers, by individuals or groups that hid in a digouts throughout the war. One of the incidents was a bucherring of sixt Serb policemen, which scared both the Serb and Muslim civilians. The Muslim civilians related to those perpetrators felt extremely unsecure, and demanded to be allowed to leave. But, it was the sommer 1994, and this proves that they lived in Prijedor two and a half years of war without being “expelled”!) The President instructed the highest authorities of the municipality to publicly condemn such cases of assaults on non-Serbs and to maintain law and order, punish the perpetrators, and take measures to protect all citizens and their property against looting, including the property of individuals who had left or been killed.¹⁰⁸⁶² (#EXCULPATORY#! evidence that the subordinates took it seriously what the President instructed them!) The Chamber considers by this time there were so few non-Serbs remaining in Prijedor after the overwhelming majority had already been expelled during 1992 that his instructions in this regard were rendered otiose. (If so, then why the President was demanded to allow that the Muslim civilians leave Prijedor by up to 80 tracks a day in 1994? Any why a propaganda about ongoing “ethnic cleansing” was intense? As if the Chamber was striving for a reason to undermine the genuine documents in favour of the President! And that can not be a fair trial!)

3404. In response to concerns about the “ethnic cleansing” in Bijeljina in late 1994, the President explained to UNPROFOR that the authorities in Bijeljina intended to replace the Chief of Police given that he was providing unsatisfactory security for the population,¹⁰⁸⁶⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#! The Chief of police wasn’t responsible for any misdoings, but he was not able to secure the safe stay for some of the endangered people!) and later claimed that people leaving Bijeljina were being forced from their homes by criminal elements.¹⁰⁸⁶⁵ Let us see what is in the P02458 report:

5. As has been the case for the past several weeks, large numbers of non-Serbs were expelled from their homes in Bosnian Serb-controlled territory this week. Most of those who crossed the confrontation line were women, children and elderly men; men capable of performing physical labour were reportedly detained, and put in forced labour camps or work brigades. On 03 September, about 500 people crossed from the Banja Luka and Sanski Most areas into Turbe. On the same day about 1,000 crossed from the Bijeljina area into Tuzla; those crossing reported that 96 men were separated from the group before the crossing, and sent to the Lopare labour camp. On 07 September, about 150-200 crossed from Bijeljina into Tuzla; 1,000 more from Bijeljina crossed on 08 September.

#Had it ever been proven that there existed a “labour camps”#? Not at all! But, everything became clear when we see who was the drafter of this report: a famous Anthony Bambury!!! There is no a day on which a thousand civilians crossed the confrontation line between Tuzla and Bijeljina. Another logical question is: #how many troops was needed to “forcefully expel” a thousand people? Which unit did it? Under which command? How many incidents occurred during this “forceful transfer?”# Let us see further, P2458:

6. In a meeting in Pale between Head of Civil Affairs Vieira De Mello and Dr. Karadzic on 08 September, the latter claimed that those people departing the Banja Luka area did so of their own volition, whereas those from Bijeljina were forced from their homes by criminal elements akin to “Hong Kong mafia.” In a press conference after the meeting, Karadzic said that the Bijeljina expulsions were not the policy of the “RS”, were against its interest, and that they had stopped as of 48 hours earlier. Nonetheless, 1,000 more were expelled that day.

The “Hong Kong mafia” that the President referred to was Vojkan Djurkovic on the Serb side, and certain lawyer (Basic or Pasic) in Tuzla, who organised those who wanted to cross over, and payed to the “mafia” for this operation!) While the Chief of Police was replaced in Bijeljina, the UNHCR office continued reporting on the arrival of “large numbers of refugees who had been forced to leave the Bijeljina area” including over 2,000 people between 18 August to 4 September 1994.¹⁰⁸⁶⁶ (Arrival, certainly, because they wanted to move, but in order to have a benefit in Tuzla, they rather kept saying that they had been expelled. There was no a possibility to charge Vojkan Djurkovic, since he had a protection from those Muslims who were allegedly expelled! Similar was with Arkan, as the lately disclosed report of the ECMM confirmed!) On 9 September 1994, Vieira de Mello requested that the Accused allow Akashi and UNPROFOR to verify the humanitarian conditions in these regions and pressed for the arrest of Vojkan and his gang, who the Accused suggested might be acting under Arkan’s instructions in the area.¹⁰⁸⁶⁷ See, Vojkan, commended by the ECMM#! On 15 September 1994, the Accused was told by international negotiators that his response to the crisis in Bijeljina was “insufficient [...] as the cleansing itself was apparently continuing” and that by the time investigations were completed “there would be nobody left to expel”.¹⁰⁸⁶⁸ (This is something that had been said by the “international negotiators” or by a drafter of this report, not a fact#, see P3862:

¹⁰⁸⁶⁶ D3145 (UNPROFOR report, 6 September 1994; UNPROFOR press statement, 5 September 1994), p. 1. See also P799 (Excerpts from David Owen’s book entitled “Balkan Odyssey”), e-court p. 14.

¹⁰⁸⁶⁸ P3862 (UNPROFOR report, 15 September 1994), para. 7. See also D3145 (UNPROFOR report, 6 September 1994; UNPROFOR press statement, 5 September 1994), p. 1. The Chamber recalls that on 23 September 1994, the Security Council passed Resolution 941 in which it noted that UNHCR and the ICRC had reported grave violations of international humanitarian law in Banja Luka, Bijeljina, and other areas of BiH under Bosnian Serb control, which it described as “ethnic cleansing”. See para. 403.

7. The HCA then mentioned the issue of ethnic cleansing in Banja Luka and Bijeljina. Karadžić had stated that he had replaced the Police Chief in Bijeljina for his failure to stop the expulsions and had initiated investigations on the role of Major Vojkan Djurković, allegedly responsible for the cleansing. The HCA stressed that this was an insufficient response as the cleansing itself was apparently continuing. By the time the investigations were over there would be nobody left to expel. SRSB Akashi continued to attempt to

How something that may be said by the internationals could find a place in the Judgement, skipping an important reference to Vojkan Djurkovic and the President's initiation of investigation of his role?!) On 26 September 1994, the Accused said to international negotiators that Serbs in Bijeljina were "fighting for their own land" and that "ethnic cleansing" would be an inevitable outcome of the international community's failure to establish any legal mechanism allowing the population to exchange their homes and move into cantons in which their nationality would be dominant.¹⁰⁸⁶⁹ (This had never happened! This witness (Harland) lied, and there was no any possibility that the President talked to him without presence of his superiors, as Harland confirmed that the President didn't remember him, for he was sitting back and taking notes. However, neither Harland, nor his superiors have ever reported such an President's position, #which would be a sensational news in the Conference on BiH#, in all the inter-Government communications, and in media too.)

The Chamber considers that the President's statements to the international negotiators demonstrate his knowledge that "ethnic cleansing" was directly linked to the Bosnian Serb objective to establish a Bosnian Serb state and that he was not interested in preventing it. (Whatever inference the Chamber draws, it is not valid, because the premise is wrong and false. Harland lied, and this is very easy to prove: he was a note-taker, and he admitted that the President didn't remember him, because he was sitting in the fifth row taking notes. The only relevant evidence to this respect would be a genuine UN or EC document, signed by a head of delegation, or a testimony of such a head of the negotiating delegation, not an arbitrary improvisation of a note-taker!)

(3) Other crimes

3405. With respect to crimes more generally, including looting and property related crimes, when the Bosnian Serb government was informed on 27 February 1993 that public law and order in the Republic was extremely bad, it put the MUP, Ministry of Defence and the Military Security Service in charge of protecting the citizens and their property.¹⁰⁸⁷⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!) In May 1993, the President also issued an order for the security and protection of all places of worship in Banja Luka and called for the immediate execution of this order and a report on measures taken.¹⁰⁸⁷¹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) At a session of the Bosnian Serb Government on 11 July 1993, in which the President participated, the "need for a swift drive against crime", including

¹⁰⁸⁶⁹ P820 (Witness statement of David Harland dated 4 September 2009), para. 140; David Harland, T. 2113–2114 (7 May 2010). The Chamber notes that Gordan Milinić testified that the Accused formed a commission to examine the situation in Bijeljina in October 1994 and that the Bosnian Muslims living in Bijeljina told the Commission that they preferred to leave and the Presidency received letters of gratitude from Bosnian Muslims who emigrated. D3682 (Witness statement of Gordan Milinić dated 8 June 2013), para. 13; Gordan Milinić, T. 39771–39772 (12 June 2013). The Chamber notes that testimony of Milinić was marked by contradictions, bias and indicators that he lacked candour. The Chamber therefore does not find his evidence to be reliable in this regard. (#This is the most comfortable, but the least correct position of any chamber, to dismiss every Defence witness without any reason, or any obligation to prove it's conviction that a witness was lacking candour. And why the #Harland's superiors didn't say what he said in his testimony?# And why it was not written down in his reports?# This is a shameless manipulation with somebody who wasn't suitable to testify about something that only his superiors could have testified.)

killing, robbery, and profiteering was discussed.¹⁰⁸⁷² On 28 August 1993, in an order focused on the organisation of the VRS, the President instructed the Main Staff and MUP to create a plan to seize the uniforms of people who were not members of the army or police and who were committing crimes and other illegal activity in the uniforms.¹⁰⁸⁷³ (#EXCULPATORY#! It proves that many crimes already committed could have been committed not by a soldiewrs or policemen, but by a fake members of these forces. In the former Yugoslav system of the AI-peoples Defence, the reservists, i.e. all the able-bodied males, had their uniforms, gass-masks and other military equipment at their homes!)

3406. Furthermore, Mićo Stanišić made efforts to remove criminals from the MUP. On 17 April 1992, Mićo Stanišić wrote to municipal CSBs and SJBs warning them that there had been reports of MUP members appropriating property and collaborating with persons with a history of organised crime and requesting that measures, including termination of employment and criminal prosecution, be taken against perpetrators.¹⁰⁸⁷⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#, both for the Minister Stanisic and the President!) On 23 and 24 July 1992, Stanišić ordered that members of the MUP who had been criminally prosecuted or against whom criminal proceedings were being conducted should be dismissed from duty and placed at the disposal of the VRS.¹⁰⁸⁷⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#! And that really happened: in accordance with this order, Minister Stanisic and his subordinates #dismissed about 6,176 policemen and relocated them to the VRS#, see P02761

In addition to other measures, pursuant to a request by the organs of authority, the Security Services Centres and police stations placed 6176 police officers, mainly from the reserve force, at the disposal of the Army of Republika Srpska. This was a considerable help in combat activities against the enemy. Although they did not take personal part in combat, it should be stressed that the members of the police helped the Army of Republika Srpska by capturing, pursuant to a request by military authorities, 2484 and bringing in 6985 draft dodgers.

And, by that time there was neither media, nor the international mediator preassueres, it had been done for the genuine attitude of the Minister against crimes, as could be seen from all the records of the Governmental sessions!)

3407. The Chamber notes that the rules on disciplinary responsibility of Bosnian Serb MUP employees during war stipulated that MUP employees who are terminated for disciplinary reasons should be reported to the VRS.¹⁰⁸⁷⁶ (#EXCULPATORY#! A disciplinary responsible employees were not a criminally responsible, because both Gen. Mladic and Min. Stanisic didn't allow a criminally responsible to avoid responsibility, see: P01500, p.1-2, of 28 July 92

In order to prevent paramilitary organisation and to place all armed formations and individuals under the unified command of the SR BiH Army, and in accordance with the Law on the Army and the SR BiH Presidency decision;

As it is evident, the Main Staff of the VRS and Gen. Mladic acted in accordance with the Law on the Army, and the Decision of the Presidency or the Serb Republic.:

2. Individuals and groups that have committed atrocities, looting and other types of criminal acts are not to be included into units. They are to be disarmed, arrested and criminal proceedings are to be initiated against them in SR BiH Army courts, regardless of their citizenship.
3. Paramilitary formations, groups and individuals belonging to them and who refuse to be placed under unified SR BiH Army command, are to be disarmed and arrested in cooperation with the SR BiH MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ and criminal proceedings are to be initiated against them for crimes committed.

Sentencing of the Minister Stanisic, and his subordinates as Zupljanin, is a big stain on this Tribunal and the very attempt to establish an international justice!

However, the Chamber does not consider this an effective means of punishment or prevention of further crimes because such persons would continue to carry arms in proximity to civilian areas.

(#What this Chamber is doing? As it can be seen from P01500, point 2. pasted above, a criminally responsible weren't acceptable either to the MUP or to the VRS. No a reasonable chamber could mix it up so much. None of those who were criminally responsible were admitted in any unit. Minister Stanisic re-directed more than 6,100 policemen to the VRS, which makes two light brigades. It had been done not because of crimes they committed, but because a lack of professional skillfulness and discipline. This is all wrong, and shows an enormous lack of knowledge of those assisting the Chamber about the nature of police and military work. In a police, the individuals were authorized to act independently, and to report about their activities, while in the Army the individuals didn't have such an authorization, and had to act in accordance with an immediate orders of the most immediate superiors.

3408. Furthermore, on 27 July 1992, Stanišić issued an order stating that, in accordance with an order by the President, it was necessary to immediately remove individuals from the MUP who had been held criminally responsible for crimes or were known to have committed crimes during the war in BiH.¹⁰⁸⁷⁷ (#EXCULPATORY#! That was a strictly confidential order of the President issued on 23 July and repeated in the D4273, and therefore not aimed to the public! Also see P2771, a strictly confidential order by Stanisic) On 12 September 1992, Zoran Cvijetić issued a document to all SJBs, advising that despite Stanišić's orders to remove criminals from the ranks of the MUP, a number of SJBs had not taken the problem seriously enough and that it was necessary for them to analyse the involvement of MUP employees in criminal acts and dereliction of duty so that it could be reported to the MUP.¹⁰⁸⁷⁸ (#EXCULPATORY#! A control of execution existed!) In an interview in October 1992, Mićo Stanišić acknowledged that some individual members of the MUP had been expelled from their ranks because of acts which they had committed but he claimed that the number of such cases were rare but were taken seriously.¹⁰⁸⁷⁹ (#EXCULPATORY#!) He also spoke about measures taken to deal with war profiteering and that most of the acts occurred at the beginning of the war when "there was a kind of legislative vacuum".¹⁰⁸⁸⁰ (#EXCULPATORY#!)

3409. In addition, members of the government, VRS, JNA and MUP, including Mićo Stanišić, issued orders to various divisions in the Bosnian Serb MUP or VRS on crime prevention, to ensure compliance with international humanitarian law, prevent the abuse of detainees and mistreatment of civilians, and to report crimes or illegal camps on 24 April 1992,¹⁰⁸⁸¹ (#EXCULPATORY#! 3410. The Chamber considers that while the Accused and his subordinates issued orders during the conflict regarding respect for international humanitarian law, the rampant criminal acts being committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities continued. The Accused continued to learn about the commission of serious crimes committed by Serb Forces against non-Serbs throughout the conflict and yet he continued to issue the same type of generic orders.¹⁰⁸⁹² (#EXCULPATORY#!. Beside that, the President from his position wasn't commanding the VRS in terms of operational and tactical commands, since he handed this part of his ingerences to the Main Headquarted of the Army, and therefore could issue only general orders, pertaining to the obligations of the Army, about informing the Army on the political issues, or to inform the Army about his agreements with the negotiators, which pertained to the Army, particularly concerning ceasefires or withdrawals!) He made no efforts to ensure that these orders were implemented on the ground so as to generate a positive effect on the prevention of crime. (Wrong inference! How possibly the Chamber may have known that the President didn't make efforts to ensure an implementation of his orders? This wasn't up to him to control all of the orders he issued, because it was impossible, and no president all over the world could do that. The institutions had the President's positions on the subject, and the President had witnessed that the institution conveyed his orders in a good fate and in a very vigorous manner, and this was sufficient to him. The President orders end at the first person of an institution, commander or other chief, and institutions from that moment had their own orders (the President's orders became an executive orders of these institutions) and the possibility and obigation to control an implementation. In which country a president is controlling the lowest levels of executive branches! This is insane to expect a president to do everything in a country. And in any country, even without a war, and with a well built up institutions it is impossible to eradicate crimes and disable criminals. The Chamber therefore finds that these orders are not reflective of genuine efforts to prevent such crimes. (This is too easy to dismiss the entire defence, but being too easy doesn't mean too honest and proper. Since the Chamber doesn't have any evidence that the President sabotaged his own orders with a parallel counter-orders, the Chamber doesn't have any reason to doubt in genuinity and sincerity of those orders, as Okun testified that he never doubted in sincerity of the President's orders, regardless of how much it had been successfully implemented. Even so, there were many sucessful arrests and judicial processes of perpetrators of the Serb

i. Investigation and prosecution of crimes committed against non-Serbs

3411. The Prosecution submits that the President supported a policy of non-prosecution of crimes committed against non-Serbs, which resulted in a climate of impunity for crimes committed against non-Serbs.¹⁰⁸⁹³ The President submits that the RS was committed to proper military and civilian prosecutions but that with the chaos of war and difficulties associated with institution building, there were reasonable delays.¹⁰⁸⁹⁴

3412. The Chamber recalls that the Bosnian Serb civilian courts were established on 16 May 1992 in some Bosnian Serb Municipalities and that the military courts began to function in August 1992.¹⁰⁸⁹⁵ (Wrong! A date when it was decided to establish some institutions is not equal as a date when such an institution starts to function! There was needed a long period to put the courts to function, to find a facilities, and the most difficult, to find a professional judges, since many intellectuals had escaped already at the beginning of April!) On one occasion in 1993, the Accused claimed to have the ability to stop criminal proceedings. At a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in the fall of 1993, the President advised that whenever there was an indication that someone had committed a criminal act it should be forwarded to the authorised body but that “if it is the state interest to stop it, we will see that, we will stop it just before the trial, but all of you will know that. All of you will know why something was postponed or why it was stopped for the interest of the state. However, it is not to be stopped without being investigated [...]”¹⁰⁸⁹⁶ Again, this is an abuse of a political speech of the President in the Assembly, while he was fighting a special war of empty hear-say gossips about the white-collar crimes of the state officials, the same as Branko Djeric was testifying. Let us see what the President really said: P1379, p. 410

Government. The Government should achieve the best results on the ground through the law. While acting in accordance with the law and if this law is an obstacle, the Government will present it to this Assembly and propose the changes of the Law. In that case, we will be the state, but there shouldn't be improvisations, there shouldn't be just talking that this person or that person robbed the state. If he has robbed it, then the statesmen, meaning people in politics and those in charge of the state, are not allowed to talk, they must not say this to anybody, because any information they are in disposal of should be given to Ministry of the Interior directly. They have to call for responsibility and to forward it to Prosecution. Ask Englishmen what they do when they learn about criminal act. It has to be investigated and nobody is allowed to stop any previous action, any investigation procedure. If we don't do it this way, we will ask ourselves who is guilty, this person or that person, or Government. done in ice hockey game. Ministry of the Interior, National Security, Prosecutor's Office and Judiciary are to be ready to present information during any hour of the day. They have to be ready to talk about information which are confirmed and to bring them here and say how many criminal acts were committed, what is the destiny of the criminal charges, where they ended up, etc. In that case, there will be no doubts about the information and I think that this special war, which is raising doubts about everything, will be finished. I ask you, if you have any indications that someone, regardless of whether it was I or anybody else, has committed a criminal act, you have to forward it to authorised body. So, if it is the state interest to stop it, we will see that, we will stop it just before the trial, but all of you will know that. All of you will know why something was postponed or why it was stopped for the interest of the state. However, it is not to be stopped without being investigated, otherwise we will be finished having in mind our mentality.

So, the President recommended that he also be investigated had there be any allegations about a white-collar crime, just in order to ascertain the people that nothing is covered up, in order to quit the special war. See further: p. 411:

So, in a case that the perpetrator has a high position, and that a trial would endanger the state security, it may be postponed, but only with the knowledge of all the relevant institutions. THEREFORE, IT HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH THE WAR CRIMES, OR OTHER CRIMES EXCEPT FRAUDS AND ABUSE OF THE STATE PROPERTY. AND SUCH A MANIPULATION SHOULDN'T BE ALLOWED TO ANY CHAMBER! There is no any possibility to defend from such a huge number of distortions, manipulations, crippling sentences and meanings – all with the authority of a chamber, no matter if it was imposed by the Prosecution, or a young assistants didn't have experience!) furthermore, the evidence demonstrates that the President was able to intervene in proceedings as he had a military judge removed from his position in 1994 after the judge refused to follow instructions from the President about how to rule on a case.¹⁰⁸⁹⁷

So, general Subotic in his capacity in the Chief Inspector of the VRS intervened, we will see how and why. First of all, Mr. Latkovic was a Serb, and this reason is fake. :

However, Mr. Todorovic had been the President of the Military Court of the RS already two years. Another question is, why Mr. Latkovic was acquitted, and why some judges hadn't been dismissed for that?

In light of the foregoing, the Chamber finds that the Accused had influence and authority over the courts.¹⁰⁸⁹⁸

This Chamber's finding is based on para 36 of the Novak Todorovic's statement. Let us see what it said:

36. In document 65#57 on page 60, I explained that the Supreme Commander had certain powers over the military judiciary, which remained independent from the Supreme Commander. The Supreme Commander had authority over military judges in the sense that they were part of the VRS, because the judges of military courts were officers, and their supreme commander, as for the entire VRS, was Dr KARADŽIĆ.

So, as towards the other army officers, the Supreme Commander had competences to appoint or dismiss them, but in their work they had been independent from the Supreme Commander. Could it be more clear and unambiguous? It is understood that the President nominated or discharged the officers on somebody's proposal. Let us see para 37 of the same document:

¹⁰⁸⁹⁷ P3773 (Witness statement of KDZ532 dated 31 October 2011), paras. 32–36, 43–44 (under seal).

¹⁰⁸⁹⁸ See also D2986 (Witness statement of Novak Todorović dated 17 February 2013), para. 36.

37. That President KARADŽIĆ did not intend to subordinate the work of military prosecutor's offices and military courts and call the independence of their work into question is best seen in the fact that the President of RS supported my proposal to relocate the VVS and the Supreme Military Prosecutor's Office to Zvornik because accommodation conditions in Zvornik were better, but an important factor was also to create a physical distance between the supreme military judiciary and both the GŠ in Han Pijesak and the civilian authorities in Pale.

All other paras in this statement, an interview led by the Prosecution's official, deny any involvement of the President in the judicial system. Anyway, this affair in the military judicial system didn't have anything to do with a war crimes, but about an alleged crime in economy in a military factory.

3413. In July 1992, the President assured international representatives that "war criminals" would be subjected to legal procedures.¹⁰⁸⁹⁹ This letter pertained to a possible war crimes. Let us see what B. Djeric was talking about. However, Branko Đerić stated that when he advocated that procedures be put in place to prevent and try crimes in 1992, the Accused blocked such efforts and "thought that this could be dealt with later", and the MUP and Ministry of Justice did not implement government decisions that crimes be prosecuted.¹⁰⁹⁰⁰ However, this would be against the Constitution and law, because the ministries don't do that, don't execute the governmental orders, but leave it to be done by the judiciary, prosecutors and courts.

Affairs and Minister of Justice, that simply wasn't going through. Secondly, I asked for a procedure to be put in place [...] To have procedures put in place in relation to possible crimes, to establish what a crime is, and then to deal with such matters, to process these matters. This would then simply come to a stop and I wasn't – I was unable to do anything. [...] The president of the party was the one who did the blocking, first of all, but I didn't really find any understanding with the others either. It all centred on President Karadzic. [...] I simply thought, well, I'm not a lawyer, I don't know what a crime is and what it isn't. So starting from the idea that we needed to act preventively, that certain boundaries had to be crossed and that we needed to have our own position on this matter, these two ministries were key ministries in that sense, and the government on several occasions adopted a conclusion on the responsibility in that sphere of the Ministry of Justice and the Ministry of Internal Affairs, for us to receive information, simply to know what's what. You know, I don't know. All I can do is set out from the idea that the government was there either to prevent something from happening or to process something if it did occur. JUDGE

So far, so confused, he didn't say what kind of crimes he meant, but he confirmed that neither others understood and supported him on the issue. His concept of "governing" ministers was brought from the previous system, and he didn't accept that his Government's ministers could only be dismissed in the Assembly#. It was not up to the Government to decide #“what a crime is”#, because it is not negotiable, it is decided by a law! Also, there was no a way that Ministries could influence the Prosecution offices, or the courts, but Mr. Djeric didn't understand that, see what Min. Stanistic and Min. Mandic told to him in the Assembly, T.28001: [As read] #“Mr. Djeric says that he is in favour of rule of law and the constitution. Several times at government meetings, I made some critical remarks stating that the government cannot take over the powers of the Presidency and the assembly. Several times we adopted governments -- decisions made by the government establishing public institutions. All of that is done by the assembly, and you know that full well. Certain officials were appointed by the government which is supposed to be done by the assembly.

¹⁰⁸⁹⁹ P2937 (Letter from Radovan Karadžić, 5 July 1992) (under seal).

¹⁰⁹⁰⁰ P4982 (Witness Statement of Branko Đerić dated 5 April 2012), paras. 14–15, 17, 22; Branko Đerić, T. 28002–28003 (24 April 2012).

Now, who is interfering in whose work, the government in the assembly's work or the assembly in the government's work? I kept saying that this is not right. Therefore, I was no good and I could not be part of Djeric's government." And Mr. Stanisic, the Minister of Interior said to Djeric and the deputates, T28003-4: So Mr. Stanisic says at this very same assembly session:

[As read] "I would appreciate it if some of the gentlemen here were to say I insisted, first of all, as the minister of the interior ... there is no rule of law without laws on the basis of which the Ministry of the Interior can work. The Ministry of Interior cannot work on the basis of #emotions. We will then turn into a mob committing acts of violence against its own people. I don't want to do that. I reject that. That has nothing to do with the rule of law. The -- when there is rule of law, the police force works and it's role is in the rule of law. Actually, that of the Ministry of the Interior is a preventative one: To report crimes and not to arrest and beat people. It is not for the police to do other work. There are other organs responsible for that when there is rule of law. I am in favour of rule of law and I insist that the police act in such a way or otherwise I will not accept this role." :

Then, the President asked Mr. Djeric, T28004: "Do you remember that that was the position; and do you remember that there was a certain lack of understanding there, that, perhaps, the police was wrong, according to the prime minister, but if they submit reports to the Office of the Prosecutor, #then they have actually carried out their basic function; is that right?

A. Yes.

Therefore, the MUP finishes it's job once it hands a criminal report over to the Prosecution. Also, the Chamber didn't understand correctly what Djeric said about the President's attitude, see: T28047-48 THE PRESIDENT: [Interpretation] P1088 has already been admitted. I don't have time to call that up. Can I please ask that we look at the transcript from Stanisic/Zupljanin. MR. KARADZIC: [Interpretation] Q. This is the subject. Did our authorities make any distinctions as far as criminal prosecution was concerned? Was there any differences in terms of background, ethnic and religious? I'll read it out in English. MR. KARADZIC: Q. I'm going to read it out. "It was pointed out that the priority for both the national service and the crime investigation service, that's the MUP is to detect war crimes, provide documentation and file criminal reports, documents also provided for war crimes committed by Serbs." Line 6, your answer. Q. And this is what you say: "I already mentioned that." [In English] "I already mentioned that. No distinction was drawn. All crimes had to be prosecuted." That's it. That's your answer in line 6. So is that correct; namely, that the authorities did not discriminate in any way as far as the origin of war criminals was concerned? A. The authorities could not have acted otherwise, if we look at the constitution and anything else. So #there were no legal grounds for this, or there was no other reason for people to be treated differently#. Everyone had to be treated in accordance with the law. If there would be violations, that would be a violation. Illegal behaviour, it would have to be punished. That's what I said then, and I spoke about that at length yesterday, and I'm dealing with it today again. And I advocated -- I persistently advocated the following: All of those who went beyond certain boundaries had to be punished. You did see that at a very early stage the government adopted all necessary documents for that, and the government asked for it to be established whether crimes had been committed, whether there had been inhumane behaviour towards the civilian population, towards prisoners. The government wanted that to be established and punished, if that had happened.

...and also see para. 10, "it's not that crimes as such were justified but with regard to the timing of prosecutions, there was some procrastination... But, see in the para 16 of his Amalgamated statement what crimes Djeric had in mind:

16. JUDGE ORIE: What do you mean -- what were you referring to specifically when you said the level of criminalisation? A. There was looting, simply put. Property was being alienated. Companies were being misused. Goods were crossing the border without the relevant documents. Resources were being wasted. Many questions. There was simply illegal action at work here. JUDGE ORIE: Was that crime committed by -- if such a distinction could be made -- crime committed by people of what nationality or ethnicity? A. The term "criminalisation" can also encompass that. All kinds of crimes, you understand, regardless of who committed them, whether it was committed by a member of this nation or that ethnic group or that ethnic group, whoever perpetrates a crime must be punished. We are talking about everything that can be considered a crime in a very broad sense. JUDGE

Evidently, #only the "white collier crimes" could have been procrastinated, and this didn't pertain the war crimes. Let us see further:

taken a stand with regard to these questions. You know the way it is. There is always some kind of whispering, some kind of rumours, and so on and so forth. So I really don't know what is what, you see? JUDGE ORIE: What were these whispers and rumours about? Could you tell us? A. Well, I mean quite simply, I mean, from the very outset, you had conflicts, you see. It is possible that there were some transgressions. I don't know. Well, if things like that happen, then the appropriate

So, #rumors, gossips, whisperings were supposed to govern the ministers#, which was insane. See further, p. 10:

see. In this respect, I encountered certain problems with the very top of the Serb republic, specifically with Karadzic, because he thought that this could be dealt with later. Do you understand that? And I asked for this to be done immediately. This very top -- well, quite simply, it's not that crimes as such were justified but with regard to the timing of prosecutions, there was some procrastination or some tolerance, if I can put it that way, but I wanted to have things dealt with immediately.

Obviously, Mr. Djeric, being a professor all his life, didn't understand even the law on Government. Look, the same Amalgamated statement:

14(a). With regard to the first part of the above, I resigned at the Assembly session in Prijedor in October 1992. The Assembly did not make a comment about my written resignation at that time although they could have accepted my resignation since it was written. For some reason the political leadership did not want to do that. My resignation was accepted at the following session in Zvornik in November. Although

That wasn't "for some reasons of the political leadership" that his resignation wasn't adopted the same session, but due to the Law on Government. A resignation had to be considered and admitted only at a next session. And as he said during his testimony, the crimes he wanted to accelerate the processing were tied to the economy and a "white-collier crimes". Both the ministers who were in dispute with Mr. Djeric, spoke in the Assembly that the Government can not take a role of the judicial institutions, and that even ministries couldn't influence the courts or the prosecutions.

The main issue in the Djeric's testimony pertaining a procrastination of processing of some crimes never pertained a war crimes, but a "white colliers" crimes, as said in para 17 of his Amalgamated statement:

17. Well, this was resolved by the constitution. The position of the government and the position of the president. But we had different ideas primarily as regards the effectiveness of government. Because the president, when these two ministries are concerned, in particular said we'll deal with this later, but I wanted things to be dealt with. I wanted prosecutions to take place in compliance with the government decisions. Q. Well, what prosecutions did you want to take place? A. Well, I wanted everything done in compliance with the conclusions of the government. Because as you see we spoke about the security of persons and property, about crime. Crime was the greatest evil in our society at that time.²⁴

So, the President was for a certain “procrastination” of the Prime Minister’s “count down” with the two ministers, and never about delay of any war crimes! And #“no procesutions should take place in compliance with the conclusions of the government!”!

Mr. Djeric clarified misunderstandings between the different institutions, but established that pertaining the basic rights, there was no differences, see: T. 27988: You said I was against the president, or that I had -- had a difference of opinion. That is true. There was a divergence of opinion between me and Mr. Krajisnik and Karadzic on many things. But when it came to fighting for certain elementary rights of the people there were no differences, as was the case in many other things. It also had to do with their understanding of rights and obligations. They were there people who said, Let's leave it now for the time being. This is not the right time. We'll deal with it tomorrow and so on and so forth. Usually such people do not really have any kind of feeling for legal logic or the thrust of time [as interpreted]. Time is irreversible. Once it's gone, it's gone. There were many people in our authorities that mixed irresponsibility with dilettantism. There weren't just one or two but more. However, such people could not be accorded influence over important matters.

Q. An intervention for the transcript. The witness said "the arrow of time" and not "thrust of time."

A. I was trying to illustrate that the lapsing of time, past, present, future.

But the Chamber didn't notice this, as well as many other positive assertions which rebut many “findings” based on much weaker evidence. Also, Djeric said that the President wasn't justifying crimes, but was cotious to act quckly and to press the prosecution and courts on the issues of crimes in economy) In addition, the Accused, in a meeting with Milorad Davidović and Mladić in the spring of 1992, said that while they should be trying to prevent looting and stealing by the Bosnian Serb MUP, it was more important to avoid conflicts between Serbs, even at the expense of not punishing criminal offences.¹⁰⁹⁰¹ (This meeting didn't happen, and couldn't happen in this composition. No a word about in in Mladic's Diary, nor other documents. “looting and stealing” were not a war crimes, but were a “suitable” for an ideological attacks by the former communists, as Davidopvic himself was!) According to Branko Đerić, Mandić and Mićo Stanišić were the “President's men”, taking orders directly from the President, and Đerić was dissatisfied with their work insofar as it related to security as they ignored government decisions with respect to prevention and prosecution of criminal activity.¹⁰⁹⁰² (It is already commented! Mr. Djeric didn't understand his position towards ministers. Also, the Government couldn't elect the judges, nor could order any prosecution and trial, all of that is explained in the discussions in the Assembly. As far as it is concerned with the “president's” men, this is an old sectarian communist floscula; but, in a war, the two ministries are closely tied to te President, always!)

3414. As discussed in greater detail below, there was a systemic failure to investigate and prosecute crimes committed against non-Serbs and few cases in which Bosnian Serbs committed crimes against non-Serbs reached military courts.¹⁰⁹⁰³ (#After all the obvious elements that it hadn't been question of crimes against non-Serbs, the Chamber continues with such an assertion. A "white-colier" crimes had been done only by the Serbs against the state property!#) The cases prioritised by the military courts in Bijeljina and Banja Luka in August 1992 pertained to failure to respond to mobilisation and desertion by Bosnian Serb Forces and cases involving Serb victims.¹⁰⁹⁰⁴ The 10 July 1992 logbook for the prosecutor's office in Ključ shows that criminal reports were filed against Bosnian Muslims, with only few being filed against Bosnian Serbs.¹⁰⁹⁰⁵ Furthermore, it was reported that most cases under investigation in the Military Court in Sarajevo in November 1993 pertained to crimes against the VRS.¹⁰⁹⁰⁶

(Certainly, these kind of crimes were more frequent than others, and this argument couldn't be used for an inference that the military judicial system persecuten only those crimes. It must be established all the other way around, to depict and prove which crimes hadn't been investigated at all. The way must be to establish a positive facts, not negative one. The Chamber didn't even notice how many cases had been investigated and documented, and had been processed, completely during the war, or initiated and completed after the war. For instance, the Serb judges investigated thirty crimes committed by the Serbs against the non-Serbs in Sanski most. Since the perpetrators hadn't been available, these investigations served for a trials by the Muslim courts after the war, see 1802:

Reports on on-site investigations from 1992, which were put together in the period of the ethnic cleansing of Sanski Most municipality by Serbian armed forces, have been found in this Court.

The reports were compiled by Serbian judges during the occupation of Sanski Most, and relate to the finding of certain Bosniak or Croat victims.

Therefore, no a cover-up, the Serb judges did their job. As well as the police, which discovered and reported these crimes!)

- 3415. In relation to crimes committed by Bosnian Serbs against non-Serbs, authorities either failed to investigate or actively prevented investigations or prosecutions.¹⁰⁹⁰⁷ But, this wasn't true! The truth was that Vojkan had been in the Commision for the exchange of people and reunion of families, but #he was expelled from this commission#, because he used to make a commercial arrangements with his counterparts in Tuzla. There was no a single Muslim who wanted to charge him, because he didn't use any force. Morally it wasn't acceptable, but criminally, nobody could sue him, not even after the war!) In Zvornik, municipal authorities were made aware of the massacre at Drinjača Dom Kulture but nothing was done to investigate nor was there anything done to investigate the crimes committed at Karakaj Technical School.¹⁰⁹⁰⁸ (But, from the beginning it was clear that these crimes had been committed by the paramilitaries, which had been banned, arrested and handed over to the Serbian prosecutors, who prosecuted them and convicted them. What else was to be investigated?) Bratunac municipal authorities and police learned that civilians were brought to the hangar of Vuk Karadžić School and heard rumours some may have been killed but the Bratunac SJB Chief forbade the police from investigating.¹⁰⁹⁰⁹ (It was easily understandable, since the war crimes had fallen within the military law competence, and the police hesitated to do any investigation. At the time, there was no even the VRS, which was established by a decision on 12 May 92, and enacted on 15 June 1992! There was no other army, but only the JNA, which was the only regular army in BiH until 20 May. The Muslims in Bratunac attacked the JNA on 3 May in Hranca, a village in the outskirts of Bratunac, and all the subsequent skirmishes had been a continuation of this conflict. How possibly the local authorities in Bratunac could have taken the competences of the JNA in the presence of the JNA?) The Prijedor Crisis Staff and SJB, as well as the Banja Luka CSB and VRS were aware of the Room 3 massacre at Keraterm, however there was no investigation into the shootings or mention of the incident in reports on Keraterm.¹⁰⁹¹⁰ The Keraterm Room 3 massacre was explained as an attempt of escape, and that is what was an official position. But the President had nothing to do with that, and even didn't know anything about it. In this case there are evidence that there was a riot and an escape attempt, while the Muslim attack on Prijedor was still going on! Sokolac municipal authorities became aware of the killings at Novoseoci on 22 September 1992 the same day but no investigation was carried out.¹⁰⁹¹¹ If it was said, or assumed that the crime had been committed as a war crime, the civilian authorities had no competence to do any investigation. Since the militaries knew about it, that was up to them to conclude whether it was a crime, or a legal action in a skirmish between them and the Muslim extremists! Municipal authorities were aware of the crimes committed in the Luka Camp in Brčko.¹⁰⁹¹² Slobodan Avlijaš visited Brčko and was informed that approximately 226 non-Serb civilians were killed in Brčko and buried in mass graves and subsequently prepared a report which indicated that the victims were killed in combat.¹⁰⁹¹³ However, there was never an investigation because according to Ristanić, it was impossible at the time.¹⁰⁹¹⁴ (Both, Avlijas and Ristanic were the RS officials, and they had been working in a horrible, impossible conditions. #Ristanic was arrested# by the paramilitaries which committed crimes, and if Ristanic was in favour of their criminal conduct, they would never arrest him. The entire civilian authorities in Brcko had been mistreated by the paramilitary criminal elements, until the MUP and the Federal MUP forces arrested them (M. Davidovic) Crimes committed in Vlasenica were widely known and criminal reports were filed but there were no criminal or disciplinary proceedings.¹⁰⁹¹⁵ (All of those crimes appeared to happen at the beginning of the conflict, and there was no either civilian, or military judiciary system. There are many documents confirming that from everywhere there were demands to form the courts, and to delineate the civil/military competences. The Chamber can not think about those areas as about a structured state, which it became after the first year, year and a half of the war! There were a fierce fightings imposed by the Muslim extremists, and they had committed crimes, while there was no crimes committed by the Serbs. Pertaining to a suburb called Drum, that was not a crime, that was a legal action against the Muslim stronghold that fired at the JNA command on a daily basis.) While the police organs and courts were fully organised and constituted in Novo Sarajevo they were not active in prosecuting individuals or protecting individuals.¹⁰⁹¹⁶ (Note entirely correct, see: @@@) Batko was committing crimes over a period of months there and the military police and prosecutor's office had the capacity to arrest and prosecute him but did not do so.¹⁰⁹¹⁷ It was only in Novo Sarajevo that there was a police station, but the entire municipality of Novo Sarajevo was on the confrontation line, and there was nobody who was able to control everything and everyone. And certainly the local authorities hadn't been in favour of Batko or any other criminal, and it wasn't that the municipal authorities (among them Neskovic too) nourished criminals, but weren't capable of quitting with them. Neskovic himself was an official, and he knew that the civilian police couldn't do much, leaving it to the military, and the military police planned his arrest or liquidation. As we have heard from the witness KDZ354, #Batko did all his misdeeds secretly, hiding in the dark and avoiding lightened streets#. See what KDZ354 said in her Amalgamated statement, P02444, para 47:

Batko returns

47. These police left, and almost right away, so soon that we thought one of them might have been coming back, one of the two men who had come to the apartment the day before returned. He asked us for our ID cards. He also asked us who had been there, but he had arrived at the apartment so quickly, it was obvious that he must have seen them. It was also obvious that our apartment had been searched. I told him that it was the police, and that they had taken our ID cards, but that we were supposed to report to them. I said this about reporting just because I had heard it from somebody else, and I had the feeling that this man intended to do something with us. He left.¹⁰⁹¹⁵

Obviously, KDZ354 was aware that #mentioning the police the criminal named Batko would refrain from doing something wrong#. At her testimony, KDZ354 testified that Batko presented himself with a false name, T.13233

Q. But in any case, he had the need to conceal his identity; is that right?

A. Well, in that kind of thing, you know how it was. He said, "You can call me Dragan," even though no one asked him anything.

KDZ354, testimony, T.13221-222 The next day the military police came. I'm saying that because of those white belts, and I had some relatives who belonged to such units, so -- I mean in peacetime, had belonged to these units in peacetime. So I could recognise the military police therefore.

So everybody addressed the commander of that unit as Zenga, Zenga. Zenga. So I have to say that he was very polite at the very outset. He addressed us in a very polite way. He asked for our IDs, and he was saying that we were just sitting there while his people were getting killed.

Q. That's the one who had a Croatian accent; right?

A. Well, that was my impression, yes. I think that that was the case. He sounded like someone who had lived in Croatia a long time. You can hear that kind of accent.

Q. Do you remember that Zenga was the abbreviation used for members of Tudjman's National Guards Corps? Did you know that?

A. Later on I knew about that, yes. : So, the regular military police behaved differently. Further, on T.13240 of the transcript, KDZ354 described how Batko have hidden his misdeeds: He took these two pouches, and before that he had threatened us by saying, "If you are lying to me," he also fired some bullets close to my head, "I am going to kill you in front of your mother." However, as soon as he saw this gold, he took it and said, "If you decide to go out, if you talk to anyone about this, I have my men. I have my snipers. I have my men who are going to kill you." And then he left.:

From whom was he fearing while threatening the ladies if they go out and say what happened? #Certainly, from the Serbian authorities in Grbavica#. No other inference is possible!)

- 3416. Furthermore, local or municipal authorities, SDS members, soldiers, and family members of President persons often pressured authorities to release persons President of committing crimes against non-Serbs.¹⁰⁹¹⁸ The military court in Banja Luka released Bosnian Serbs from custody before their cases had been completed so they could return to combat activities.¹⁰⁹¹⁹ Let u see what the Chamber meant by concluding the last sentence: P03612:

SUBMISSION FROM ACCUSED'S DEFENCE COUNSEL OF AN APPLICATION TO END CUSTODY

Criminal proceedings are underway in the court against the accused Obrenko ŠUGIĆ and Miladin ŠUGIĆ for the crime of murder described under Article 36, paragraph 2 of the BH KZ /Criminal Code/. This case was sent to the jurisdiction of this court by the Banja Luka Lower Court and is being heard under number I-I-6/93.

Criminal proceedings were initiated against the accused Obrenko ŠUGIĆ and Miladin ŠUGIĆ and against their brother Radenko for alleged crimes, but during the proceedings it was established that Radenko ŠUGIĆ did not participate in the commission of the crimes. Proceedings against him were stopped and he was released, while his two brothers were detained in custody, where they have been for a long time.

The investigation in this case that was held before the Banja Luka Lower Court, was fairly lengthy, but during all this time the evidence provided was not enough to conclude that there are reasonable grounds to suspect that the accused committed the crimes of which they stand accused. It will therefore be necessary to interrogate a large number of witnesses during the proceedings. Due to the self-evident state of war, the majority of these witnesses and injured parties have abandoned their place of residence and their addresses are consequently unknown. They are inaccessible to the court, as are the witnesses whom it will be necessary to hear during the trial. Since the lost their own brother in the fighting. Their parents are old and infirm, and they have their own families, whose subsistence has been jeopardised by their already lengthy time in custody. Both of them are ill, and Miladin ŠUGIĆ has lost consciousness on a couple of occasions. It is suspected that he is suffering from epileptic fits.

KZ, custody was not obligatory in this specific case. It is known to be the practice of the court to revoke custody against accused in similar cases in order to replenish manpower at the front. Since both accused are members of the Čelinac LPB /Light Infantry Brigade/, and due to their merit, their brigade intervened to release the accused from custody. Even the execution of the brigade's tasks was brought into question. In addition to this, all the residents of the village of Popovac, both Serbian and Muslim, wrote petitions, and the Čelinac SO /Municipal Assembly/ IO /Executive

So, this is the source and basis for this inference. Could it be that way? A lawyer fighting to release his defendant from a custody because of to lengthy investigation and a lack of prospective that the investigation would be ended soon, mentioned that similar moves happened earlier. But, we do not know whether it really happened or not. Further, we do not know whether it happened in this case. How come the Chamber is promoting a defence submission from another (military) court to an evidence in this case? Even if it was a court's deliberation, it shouldn't be charged to this President, let alone a mere defence submission!)

: For example: (i) Zoran Žigić was released from prison a few days after being arrested due to a request for him to return to active duty even though it was reported to the Prijedor SJB by the Commander of Keraterm that he had beaten and killed prisoners there,¹⁰⁹²⁰ (The Chamber already knows that nobody should and could influence an investigating judge to maintain a custody for some suspect, or not. There were a reasons for either, prescribed by in the law, and it had nothing to do with the presidential duties. What the Chamber would conclude had the President intervened to release or not release a suspect. Once he intervened, asking for the reasons why some suspects had so long trial, meanwhile being out. In our judicial system there wouldn't be possible to keep a man 12 years in custody without judgment, as this court did with Dr. Seselj!) (ii) the perpetrators of the killings of at least 77 men at Velagići School on 1 June 1992 were arrested but returned to their units without being tried with the support of the deputy prime minister of the RS and the chairman of the Ključ Executive Board,¹⁰⁹²¹ Let us see what is the basis for this findings: P03616, a proposal of the military prosecutor, and reasons:

the halting of investigative proceedings against 2nd Lieutenant Goran AMIDŽIĆ, personal details as on the request for an investigation to be carried out, and the other suspects, on reasonable grounds to suspect that they had committed the crime described under Article 142 of the adopted KZ /Criminal Code/ of the former SFRJ /Socialist Federative Republic of Yugoslavia/.

This is due to the fact that the majority of the suspects are inaccessible to the prosecuting organs and therefore cannot be brought in under custody, and because of the situation that arose when the suspects Željko BAJIĆ and Marinko MILJEVIĆ were brought in and placed under custody. It is also because of the stance of the deputy prime minister of Republika Srpska and the chairman of the Ključ Municipality Executive Committee that these proceedings should be halted until further notice.

We would further recommend that Zeljko BAJIC and Marinko MILJEVIC be released from custody.

Evidently, there were some #reasons which led the military prosecutor to propose “halting” and not dropping the case#. But, what it has to do with the President? He wasn't asked, as ever, he didn't participated in any way, the judicial system was independent, and the case was to be proceeded once the conditions are fulfilled.

and (iii) Daniluško Kajtez admitted to killing 12 individuals in Manjača in November 1992 but was released as a result of pressure exerted on the Military Court.¹⁰⁹²² Regardless of admittance, an President had to undergo a trial, but the only witness, Grgo Stojic who testified in this case, was not available until the war ended, when Kajtez had been tried and convicted. The Chamber considers that this evidence suggests a systemic vulnerability of the justice system to external pressure, including by low-level municipal officials. This is correct, but it happened only in several cases and at the beginning of the war. Everyone was armed, the unified command hadn't been established, but no case was covered up, or dropped on no legal basis. Particularly, the President had nothing to do with any of those omissions.) situation at the time was satisfactory since the courts were then attached to commands and corps.¹⁰⁹²³ (#EXCULPATORY#! Let us see what Minister Stanisic said at the meeting, doc. P01469, p. 3:

Minister STANIŠIĆ spoke about the need to investigate the situation related to Golfs and provide the accurate information after the facts have been found. The question of para-groups needs to be solved and they must be placed under one command as two types of authority may not function on the same terrain. The military judiciary needs to be strengthened. It is necessary to consider if the present solution is satisfactory as the courts are now attached to commands and corps. He also spoke about the military police, notably the police members and the need to co-ordinate them in the performance of the tasks entrusted to them.

police needs to be formed. This is the first time we are making and defending a State ruled by law.

was the first meeting of the Supreme Command, and a substantial part of the time was dedicated to the rule of law. After such a remarks as Mr. Stanisic said, the President made further consultations, and decided to distant the seat of the Supreme military court and the Supreme military Prosecution in Zvornik, as the President of the Supreme military court Novak Todorovic testified, see: D2986, commented in para 3412 above!)

The Chamber notes that in response to specific events, the President and other members of the Bosnian Serb leadership or Serb Forces sometimes called for criminal investigations. (#EXCULPATORY#! It was a regular duty of institutions, but in some drastic cases, he political leadership was expected to react! The international mediators also wanted the leaders to speak up, so that the population could see what is the position of prominent people towards such a crimes!) The Chamber notes the President's efforts to disband certain paramilitary groups, including through the assistance of the Federal SUP.¹⁰⁹²⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#! But, not only "certain" but all of paramilitary groups, as it was provided in all the President's strict orders! And the Chamber may have kept the Mauzer's Guard, or some other units with a "pitoresc" name was a paramilitary, it was not the case. Many units had their names, such as "Vukovi caa Drine – Wolves from Drina, or "White wolves" etc. but their subordination to the VRS was not questionable) ! Furthermore, on hearing of the Korićanske Stijene incident, the President requested an investigation and on 31 August 1992, Mićo Stanišić (#EXCULPATORY#!) ordered Župljanin, the chief of the Banja Luka CSB, to investigate the massacre.¹⁰⁹²⁵ (#EXCULPATORY#!) However, Župljanin was advised by Drljača that an investigation could not be carried out because the officers who had participated in the convoy and incident were currently deployed in the battlefield.¹⁰⁹²⁶ (But, what does it have to do with the President, who was in London for Conference. Also, the perpetrators escaped in the Mount Kozara, and two of them Drljaca tried to disarm and arrest, The Chamber recalls that none of the policemen involved in the incident were held accountable for their involvement in the killings.¹⁰⁹²⁷ Rather the intervention squad involved in the killings was disbanded and subsequently returned to active combat.¹⁰⁹²⁸

3421. The Chamber has considered evidence that in 1994 and 1995, the President issued orders with respect to improving the military justice system.¹⁰⁹³⁴ (#EXCULPATORY#!) However, the Chamber is not convinced that they were sufficient to hold persons accountable for the very serious offences which had been committed in the Municipalities against non-Serbs in light of the fact that so many crimes against non-Serbs went without investigation. (First of all, the #President made what was his duty, to order and facilitate the functional military justice system#. Nothing else he was expected to do, since the judges were both the regular army officers and the lawyers and judges, certified and professional. Second, if “they were not sufficient to hold persons accountable for the very serious offences...” how possibly the Chamber found that it was the President’s responsibility? Could there be some other causes, such as the abilities of the officials on the terrain and so on? Apart of all of it, the Chamber didn’t indicate which one of these crimes went without investigation? It is natural that the Chamber is “not convinced” because the Chamber starts with a presumption of guilt, not of innocence! If the Chamber wanted to be convinced in a negative fact, that something was not sufficient, what kind of discretion the Chamber seeks, and why in a cases of doubt didn’t decide in favour of the President? Another word, didn’t there was a requirement of a positive identification of a crime, not a belief that it could have been done better?) In any event, the most serious crimes had already been committed by that time.¹⁰⁹³⁵ (At least one admittance of the Chamber that the crimes had been committed before 1994 and 95, i.e. in the first part of the war, while there was no any state structure and institutions. But, how many criminal cases are resolved in a countries with the developed judicial system, and in a peace time? And what does it mean? Have the President done his job? Had any official of the Republic of Srpska ever issued any order to undermine the President orders?)

¹⁰⁹³⁴ On 1 January 1994, the Accused ordered an inspection into the military prosecution system in Bijeljina after receiving reports of flaws in the system, primarily relating to the release of persons detained under reasonable suspicion of having committed grave criminal offences. On 6 September 1994, the Accused directed that criminal offences against life, limb, and property and the offence of war profiteering should be given priority and detention measures “applied to the maximum in the punishment of these offences” and instructing the Court and Prosecutor’s Office to urgently review all murder cases currently being tried in military courts and to submit analysis to him so that he could take further measures as President of the Republic. 3. that the Government draft decision on the establishment of a State Documentation Centre which will gather all genuine documents on crimes committed against the Serbian people during this war.

Therefore, there was not mentioned “investigation”, but only “documentation”. In the original it was only for gathering documents, and the chief was not a professional in investigations, but a very famous writer! Only for a “gathering all genuine documents,” which would be investigated by the professionals. And an editor in the Official Gazette added the word “investigation”, but further throughout the documentation it had to be called Documentation Centre:

The State documentation centre for investigating war crimes against Serb people in the Serb Republic of B-H is formed with the headquarters in Sarajevo (hereinafter referred to as the State Documentation Centre).

On 13 July 1992 the Presidency concluded that the work of the Commission for War Crimes Committed against the Serbian People of BH be urgently activated.¹⁰⁹³⁷ This is also #misunderstood and distorted#. Any commission that was formed meant to collect what had been done to the Serbs in the areas where the RS MUP didn't have any access, while all crimes committed on the territory of RS were in the competences of regular services, and no commission was allowed to interfere in it's investigations. As the Chamber notified, it was about the crimes in BiH, (this para.) but didn't notice and didn't wonder: how the crimes against the Serbian people in the territory where the entire people couldn't have been documented, let alone investigated by the RS organs. The Serb MUP and other investigative organs didn't have any competence to investigate a crimes committed in the Muslim-Croat territory, but could collect data about crimes against the Serbs, while they didn't have any legitimacy to even collect data of crimes against the non-Serbs. See what had been said in P01465, p. 8, of 13. July 92:

The work of the Commission for Investigating War Crimes Committed against the Serbian People in the Serbian Republic of BH and the former Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina was discussed.

Conclusion:

The Commission for Investigating War Crimes Committed against the Serbian People will start work, even if it is necessary to replace the Commission members.

and the former Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, clearly indicates that any commission or a documentation centre couldn't replace a MUP regular duties. Finally, the chief of the Documentation centre was a famous writer, not a lawyer, nor a criminologist, nor a policemen. Let us see what the MUP was doing on the same subject, D01360, of 19. July 92:

Proceeding in accordance with the conclusions adopted at the meeting of senior personnel on 11 July 1992, whereby the tasks relating to the discovery and documentation of war crimes or genocide and the submission of criminal reports, as well as in accordance with other enactments (number Strictly Confidential 01-2/92 of 16 May 1992) and orders, were numbered among the priorities of the National Security Service and the Crime Prevention Service, a questionnaire on war crimes and victims of genocide has been compiled in the Information Analysis Administration.

Evidently, the #MUP was doing it's job, and nothing replaced it#. The Minister Stanisic merged the two important departments, the National Security Service, and the Crime Prevention Centre to cooperate in investigating the war crimes. They had nothing to do with the Documentation Centre.

A questionnaire will be completed at security services centres for all persons, regardless of ethnicity, (Muslims, Croats, Serbs and others) against whom criminal reports have been submitted on reasonable grounds for suspicion that they have committed the given crimes, as well as questionnaires for victims regardless of whether a criminal report has been submitted or the procedure of gathering evidence for the submission of a criminal report against a perpetrator is still in progress.

“#Regardless of ethnicity”#.

It should be borne in mind that questionnaires on war crimes remain a form of investigative documentation only, until such time as they have been proven (judicial sentence or decision by an authorised state commission) and will be so regarded, the more so because criminal reports will also be submitted against unknown perpetrators. On the other hand, questionnaires on victims may also be used for other purposes (if the elements of the crimes of genocide or war crimes have been demonstrated).

This happened almost simultaneously with other activities in documentation of crimes in the areas not accessible to the MUP RS. So, #no a reasonable chamber would mix it up# and conclude that a documentation centre was replacing the regular organs and acted selectively. But it was so far from any reality. The head of the Documentation Centre Mr. Toholj had written and published a book called “Black book” about the collection of data!):.

On 14 July 1992 the Government decided that measures be taken for the Commission to be activated for the establishment of war crimes perpetrated against the Serbs.¹⁰⁹³⁸ This is again about the different things. A commission was a political organ, and didn't replace regular organs, see P01137, p. 10 of 14 July 92:

-It was concluded that measures be taken for the Commission to be activated for the establishing of the war crimes committed against the Serbian people

Establishing! Not investigating. Similarly, a commission for clarification of the crimes in economy was established, but the same, not to replace the regular organs: P01137, p. 6

Decision on establishing a government committee for the investigation of the theft of both public and private property is adopted. Milan TRBOJEVIĆ, the president of the Commission Velibor OSTOJIĆ, Aleksa BUHA, Bogdan SUBOTIĆ, Vojin LALE, are appointed as members of the committee.

(Only Mr. Trbojevic was a lawyer, all others weren't, but were a political persons. However, the translation is wrong, and it should be instead of “for the investigation” translated “for the clarification”

Усвојена је Одлука о формирању државне комисије за расвјетљавање пљачке друштвене и приватне имовине. У Комисију су именовани Милан Трбојевић, предсједник Комисије Велибор Остојић, Алекса Буха, Богдан Суботић, Војин Лале, чланови Комисије.

It is said: a state commission for clarifying (rasvetljavanje) which also didn't replace the regular investigative organs, but could overview these organs whether they were doing their job, or whether they had been corrupted or not. But, not to miss a substantial question: why the Chamber would keep the President liable for something that the Government was doing in it's capacity and competence? The President was not a head of a criminal gang, to be asked for a permission for any move, there was the Constitution and a clearly assigned duties!)

On 6 August 1992, at a RS Presidency session, it was decided that the Commission for Investigating War Crimes Committed against the Serbian People must commence its work.¹⁰⁹³⁹ (That was the same document, D00465, and also pertained to the Commission for collecting documents from the people who escaped from the “other side”. Mladić issued an order on 25 September 1992 that information about victims of crimes committed by the “Croatian-Muslim coalition” should be reported.¹⁰⁹⁴⁰ (Exactly, Mladic understood that it pertained to the crimes committed on the territory under the Croat-Muslim control) On the same day, Plavšić ordered that all SAOs spread the word to their municipalities that it was necessary to urgently set up commissions to gather information on crimes perpetrated against the Serbs by the Croats and Muslims.¹⁰⁹⁴¹ (Again, pertained to the crimes committed on the territory under the C/M control. What else? Where on the Serb territory were the C/M forces? And again, it was “to gather information” not to investigate!)

3423. On 28 September 1992, the Presidency concluded that the Committee for Investigation of Crimes against Serbian People should intensify its work.¹⁰⁹⁴² (The same, the crimes on the M/C territory) On 14 December 1992 the Banja Luka CSB Department Chief wrote to all SJBs to inform them that a meeting of senior criminal investigators from all centres would occur the following week in Bijeljina, at which the process of documenting crimes against the Serb civilians, their property, and Orthodox cultural and religious property would be analysed.¹⁰⁹⁴³ (Again, pertained only to the Muslim-Croat territory. How it is not clear? If it was concerned with the Serb territory, there wouldn't be any extraordinary analysis, and it would be in the daily reports!) At sessions of the Bosnian Serb Government on 6 April and 26 to 27 May 1993, the work of the “State Documentation Centre for the Investigation of Crimes Against Serbs” was discussed, as was the “special importance” to instigate criminal proceedings against individual and group perpetrators of “crimes and genocide against the Serbian people”.¹⁰⁹⁴⁴ (And where in the Republika Srpska these perpetrators existed? It pertained only to those perpetrators on the M/C territory.) In March 1995, the President advised the Bosnian Serb Assembly that after reviewing data prepared by the Ministry of Justice and the Republican Prosecutor’s Office on cases in civilian courts in 1994, that “on the whole, the situation in the domain of penal policy is unsatisfactory” and stated that “this might have far-reaching detrimental consequences for the overall defence capability of the Republic and the continued successful conduct of the war”; he proposed that the Assembly adopt a conclusion that civilian and military courts step up their work and pass more stringent sentences, especially with respect to criminal offences against the Serb Forces.¹⁰⁹⁴⁵ This, however, pertained to the crimes committed on the Serb territories, and those crimes against the Serb Forces could have been committed only by the Serbs, which weakened the defence capacities. How could it pertain to anything else? If it was as the Chamber suggested, or “found” in this para, then it would mean that till this time the judiciary didn’t issue sufficiently “stringent” sentences against the non-Serbs! It is #impossible to eat a cake and to have it#! “Ne moze i jare, i pare”) 3424. The Chamber notes that some witnesses provided evidence that: (i) the MUP and justice systems treated perpetrators and victims of different ethnicities in the same manner;¹⁰⁹⁴⁶ (ii) there was no cover-up of crimes in the MUP, including the CSBs and SJBs;¹⁰⁹⁴⁷ (iii) there were problems in finding witnesses to proceed with a prosecution, especially in cases involving Muslim or Croat victims;¹⁰⁹⁴⁸ (iv) there were purported issues deriving from the jurisdiction of the civilian and military systems, including confusion on the part of civilian and military authorities and inefficiency;¹⁰⁹⁴⁹ and (v) that investigations and prosecutions were made difficult due to lack of resources.¹⁰⁹⁵⁰ #EXCULPATORY#, even if rejected for no reason.)

3425. Having considered all of the evidence, the Chamber finds that there was a systemic failure to investigate and prosecute criminal offences committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities during the conflict. (Should the Chamber have been obliged to point out a positive evidence as a basis for this finding?) The Chamber rejects the evidence presented that the justice system treated all ethnicities the same in light of the compelling evidence demonstrating a lack of investigation and prosecution of the serious criminal acts committed against non-Serbs which were brought to the attention of authorities, as opposed to a clear willingness to investigate and prosecute crimes committed against Serbs.¹⁰⁹⁵¹ (This is based on a #wrong and distorted understanding# of the Commissions for Documentation, which never, under no conditions replaced the regular investigating bodies. Just take for a moment that the Defence is right regarding these commissions, and all the construct of a failure of the judicial system will fall apart as fake.) In addition, lack of resources and difficulties with the determination of jurisdiction or finding witnesses does not explain or justify the lack of proceedings initiated against Serbs alleged to have committed crimes against non-Serbs because the evidence establishes that in most cases in 1992, absolutely nothing was done to investigate or prosecute the horrific crimes which were known to authorities. The Chamber considers that the inadequate level of investigations and prosecutions of crimes committed against non-Serbs is consistent with the President's position that such matters could be delayed during the conflict.¹⁰⁹⁵² (This is #in contrast with the evidence: the President all the time kept demanding and ordering the strictest treatment of the war crimes#. However, the Chamber rejects to recognize a very clear Djeric's testimony about the "white-collier" crimes that weren't a priority for the President, particularly since the country was under the sanctions, and the suppliers may have done some irregularities, but it would be madness to persecute them for a small irregularities in a completely irregular situation! There is no a single valid evidence that any delay concerned with the war crimes, and this kind of merging the data and making a bastardous assertion does not fit with any fairness of a trial!)

i. Rewarding of those who committed crimes against non-Serbs

3426. The Prosecution submits that the President rewarded officials who had committed crimes against non-Serbs rather than punish them.¹⁰⁹⁵³ The President submits that there is no evidence that he rewarded an official who he knew had committed a crime and that proposals for promotions came from below.¹⁰⁹⁵⁴

3427. The Law on the Army provided the President with the exclusive competence to, inter alia, decide on the initial commission of officers, promote officers to the rank of Major General and above, and decide on the admission into service, subsequent appointment, transfer, and termination of service of officers with the rank of General.¹⁰⁹⁵⁵ It also authorised him to effect "exceptional promotion" with respect to those officers who did not meet the ordinary criteria of rank promotion and to raise the rank of those officers who were found to have exhibited courage and excelled in command and control skills.¹⁰⁹⁵⁶

3428. The President promoted several officials who he knew had committed criminal acts against non-Serbs or held extremist views. (To persecute somebody for his “extremist views” would be a renewed communist practice to persecute for thinking!) On 24 August 1992 the President appointed Jovan Tintor, then president of the Vogošća Crisis Staff,¹⁰⁹⁵⁷ as a presidential advisor and in April 1995 praised him before the Bosnian Serb Assembly for giving “everything for this Party, for this people”.¹⁰⁹⁵⁸ Tintor had been involved in the expulsion and mistreatment of non-Serbs from Vogošća, and surrounding areas.¹⁰⁹⁵⁹ He also held extremist views which were known to the Accused.¹⁰⁹⁶⁰ (The #political views are not relevant for a criminal prosecution, and until the end of the war, and two decades after the war Tintor wasn’t criminally charged, investigated, indicted or convicted#! There was no a convincing evidence that Mr, Tintor, a rich man and a private businessman who sacrifice his wealth for the local people wellbeing, committed any crime. It can not be inferred or claimed unless there is an investigation on what really happened, what the other side did and who were those who were allegedly expelled. Both the Prosecution and the Chamber incline to see a somebody’s reputation as a fact in criminal sense. But, a reputation is created by one’s opponents, and this is unacceptable in any criminal system!)

3429. The President awarded Mauzer’s Panthers on 9 January 1994.¹⁰⁹⁶¹ The President was aware that Mauzer’s Panthers, a paramilitary group active in Bijeljina, was involved in planning and executing the forcible displacement of Bosnian Muslim civilians, committed killings and other crimes against non-Serb civilians in Bijeljina in 1992.¹⁰⁹⁶² (However, this was not true. Mr. Mauzer himself appeared to be a bit arrogant, but there was no any criminal charge against him. To corroborate this, look at the fact that after the war the same Mauzer passed all the international police checkings and tests, and he was nominated to be a very high official in the MUP after the war. So, his reputation didn’t prevent the international police to nominate him, because, unlike in this court, the international police demanded an evidence, not reputation. As far as it is concerned with his “Panthers”, ther was no any evidence they committed crimes as well, and they fought on many battlefields correctly, celebrated by the people. They had never been even mentioned in any investigation!)

3430. The Accused also awarded Miroslav Deronjić on 9 January 1994 and later appointed him as Civilian Commissioner for Srebrenica on 11 July 1995.¹⁰⁹⁶³ Deronjić was the President of the SDS and chief of the Bratunac Crisis Staff and oversaw a policy of discrimination against Bosnian Muslims and was involved in operations leading to their expulsion from Bratunac and killings.¹⁰⁹⁶⁴ On 6 May 1992, it was reported to the Accused and Mladić that Deronjić was “killing all Muslims by slitting their throats”.¹⁰⁹⁶⁵ (#Wrong in fact#. At this meeting there were only generals Mladic and Mandaric, not the President. Also, all other was wrong. It was true that there were some people from Vukovar, who came after some Bratunac-Srebrenica Muslims who killed their relatives in Vukovar, and raped a girl who was in the group, #but it is not true that the local Serb officials invited them#. On the contrary, the local officials were endangeroud by the same people, had quarrelled and demanded their departure. How a serious chamber could not see the mere facts from so many documents. Also, the old antagonism between the SDS local officials and the JNA high officers (over the ideology) made many gossips and denigrations, but lately it appeared not to be true, but only gossips. Finally, let us see what is written down in the Mladic's diary, P1477, p. 253-4:

¹⁰⁹⁶⁵ P1477 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 14 February–28 May 1992), p. 253. The Chamber notes that Mladić’s notebook refers to the President of the SDS as “Rodoljub Deronjić”. In addition one of the other Bosnian Serb leaders referred to in the notebook was “Rodoljub Đukanović”. In light of Miroslav Deronjić’s position as SDS President at the time, the Chamber finds that the reference is indeed to Miroslav Deronjić.

06 May 1992

General MANDARIĆ:

255

- A front has opened up on the Drina

* in Bratunac, 2 /?representatives/ of the SDS /Serbian Democratic Party/ are killing all Muslims by slitting their throats /Rodoljub ĐUKANOVIĆ → the President of the SDS and Rodoljub DERONJIĆ. –

- 2 detachments of the Bratunac TO, they brought in all the cutthroats from Vukovar, and killed everyone they laid their hands on in Ranče near Milići.

Ljubovija municipality President is asking /?permission/ to deal with them with his 5 detachments

Proposal: KARADŽIĆ to appease them because they are threatening Major RELJIĆ – the Commander of the okb /Armoured Battalion/- That is the only axis towards Sarajevo... -

- There are two okb on those 2 axes. –

– Send someone to Bratunac to calm them down.

In Bratunac, there is Major Nikola RELJIĆ, the Commander of the okb/ from the SM /?Sarajevo Mechanised/ Brigade. The bodies of 9 Muslims have been found (young men who had been decapitated). –

- OJDANIĆ has found good connections in Višegrad.-

* KARADŽIĆ to send someone to pacify the extremists (ĐUKANOVIĆ and DERONJIĆ). –

- They pay no heed to the army.

#Before VRS, during the JNA, Karadži} was not in charge of anything#! Obviously, the JNA Generals were in Belgrade discussing the situation in BiH, 6 May 1992. There is no evidence that the President was informed about this meeting, neither he should be, because prior to 12 May the President didn't have any state office. General Mladic wasn't a "Bosnian Serb General" yet! What General Mandaric said about Deronjic was a mere speculation and gossip aimed to denigrate a JNA opponent, which is visible from the entire note. Therefore, what General Mandaric said is not valid, there was no established any crime as he described, and in particular not a crime committed by Deronjic. Until 6 May 1992 only Serbs had been killed in the area of Bratunac and Srebrenica. On 3 May the Muslim extremists ambushed the JNA column and had a real fight. Until 6 May, there were only the Serb victims. On 8 May 1992 the Muslim extremists ambushed and killed a very prominent Serb, Judge Goran Zekic, who was an MP in the common Assembly. The Serbs resisted only on 10 May, with a demand that the extremists hand over their weapons. As far as it is concerned with the President, it was only said that he should send somebody to "pacify the extremists", presuming that the President was not an extremist!]

3431. The President personally promoted Vojkan Đurković to the rank of major and awarded him a medal at a ceremony in Bijeljina in 1994 although the President knew that he had participated in "ethnic cleansing" of non-Serbs during the conflict.¹⁰⁹⁶⁶ (#Wrong in facts#, ¹⁰⁹⁶⁶ Milorad Davidović, T. 15712—15715 (30 June 2011) (questioning the Accused in his testimony about how the Accused could have presented Vojkan Đurković an award if the Accused knew that Đurković carried out "ethnic cleansing" throughout the war); D1136 (UNPROFOR report, 9 September 1994), p. 2 (noting that the Accused identified Vojkan Đurković as a member of Arkan's men who was involved in "ethnic cleansing" in Bijeljina in 1994. See wrong in inference! Neither Djurkovic was in the VRS or any other President's formation, nor he was promoted, nor he was decorated#. Not even Arkan was decorated, but only his unit, which was an exemplary disciplined and brave unit. M. Davidovic #testified that he "thought" that the President promoted V. Djurkovic, although admitting that Djurkovic was in the Arkan's army#. No a reasonable chamber would put such a huge lie in judgement! Everyone knows it, and it was very easy to check. It appeared that the line up wasn't in 1994 but on 29th October 1995. It is most probable that Djurkovic even didn't have Arkan's rank of major, nor he ever was a major at all. Also, #Djurkovic worked morally obscure things, but with a full support of the Muslims wanting to cross the confrontation line towards Tuzla#. He was never criminally reported, or indicted, let alone found guilty. Although the President didn't like what Djurkovic was doing, there was no ground for banning his activity or to imprison him!) Furthermore, at a meeting of the VRS Main Staff on 5 April 1995, the President acknowledged that Vojkan had worked illegally.¹⁰⁹⁶⁷ (#Wrong, in facts and in inference!# Look what had been said by the President:

cultures, of worlds, /?birds of a feather flock together/, what Vojkan did is not allowed, for Vojkan too worked illegally, he was excluded from the State Commission, etc. What do private agencies do, they find, probably for big money, they secure him a foreign visa and secure him a passport to travel to that foreign country. What happens now, if that were being done by a state institution, we would be accused of ethnic cleansing. A private arrangement between a Muslim and a private firm is absolutely none of our business, absolutely none of our business, and :So, although Vojkan "worked" (past tense) "illegally" which in our language meant "unofficially", unregulated", not unlawful, i.e. not necessarily against the law, he was expelled from the State Commission.

3432. In November 1993 and June 1994, the President promoted and awarded medals of bravery to members of the intervention squad, as well as high officials who were implicated in the Korićanske Stijene, such as Drljača, Paraš, Milutin Čađo.¹⁰⁹⁶⁸ (The President, as it had been established during the process, awards individualst who were being proposed from grassroots. Until that time there was no information or evidence that these men committed any crime!) On 3 September 1992, the 1st Krajina Corps reported to the VRS Main Staff that Drljača was responsible for the incident at Korićanske Stijene and that it had caused indignation among citizens and members of the 1st Krajina Corps, creating a "dark stain", but that it was fortunate that the "international community did not find out about it in more detail".¹⁰⁹⁶⁹ (It doesn't matter what was written in the army report, the #RS authorities conducted a proper investigation and didn't even try to cover up the incident!#) Drljača was also the chief of the SJB in Prijedor and established Omarska by written order.¹⁰⁹⁷⁰ (The #establishing Omarska wasn't a crime by itself#. There are undisputable facts that the Muslim paramilitary formations attacked Prijedor and had been captured and detained, investigated and innocent individuals released#, while suspects had been conveyed to Manjaca. The Drljaca's reputation was not good, but more towards his police superiors than towards a non-Serbs, or any citizens. #The Chamber is advocating a persecution based on reputation, which makes all the judicial system to look like a lynch!#)

3433. The Chamber finds that the evidence that the President rewarded or promoted his subordinates, who he knew had committed crimes, demonstrates that the President was indifferent to whether they participated in criminal activity directed at non-Serbs during the conflict as long as the core objectives of the Bosnian Serbs were fulfilled. (#Not correct, and rather nasty and offensive conclusion without any support in evidence#. Neither it had been established that the awarded people had committed crimes, nor that it was known to the President that they committed a crime. A reputation was not sufficient for any kind of persecution! It should be kept in mind that it was a time of change not only a regime, but the entire one-party system, and many Serbs had been opposed to it, and denigrated each other, particularly the military were opposed to the civilian authorities that hadn't been a communists, and also between the military and police therwe were sone tensions and rivalry. But, this development has nothing to do with crimes! For a criminal prosecution there must had been an evidence!)

1. Existence of a common plan shared by a plurality of persons

a. Common plan

3434. In this section the Chamber refers to its factual findings with respect to the Overarching JCE discussed above and will assess whether those facts establish that a common criminal purpose existed, and if so, when it came into existence and what was entailed in that common plan. The Chamber will also assess whether a plurality of persons acted pursuant to that common plan.

3435. The Chamber found that from 1990 and into mid-1991, the political objective of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership was to preserve Yugoslavia and to prevent the separation or independence of BiH.¹⁰⁹⁷¹ (That wasn't a crime, but an opposition to a criminal unilateral secessions. Once and for all: #BiH didn't have any legal possibility to secede without the Serb consent, and without the Serb votes, that made more than one third of the electoral body! How the Chamber presumes that the Muslims did have a legal position to do the secession, while the Badinter's Arbitrage Commission dnied it? Such a wrongful foundation of these litigations must deliver a wrongful and unlawful findings!#) The central themes of this objective were to preserve the unity of the Serb people and to ensure that Bosnian Serbs would not become a minority in an independent BiH.¹⁰⁹⁷² (#Is the Chamber, or the United Nations that formed this court of an opinion that the Serbs should have accepted such a drastic deterioration of their constitutional position#??? What international or domestic documents provided for this? Rejecting to become a deprived minority in their own state, after so many centuries of skavery and only seventy years of freedom, was not a crime, and neither BiH could get an independence without the Serb consent on the two bases: as a constituent people the Serbs were entitled to veto these kind of decisions, and the Serbs had more than one third of the members of parliament and in the voting population. The Muslim, side (Mr. Izetbegovic) proposed a division of BiH between the three ethnic communities, while clandestinely preparing an independence of a unitary state without any guarantee for the Serbs and Croats. It was only in fall of 91 he promised to "give" a high autonomy to the communities that were living in BiH. And this "promise" of his was given at the international conference ICFY. Until there is no clarified this question, whether the Muslims had a right to deprive the Serbs from their will and freedom, all the decisions will be fake, and the international community will not have any credibility!) The Chamber also found that in October 1991, when it became clear to the Bosnian Serb leadership that BiH was pursuing the path to independence and the Bosnian Serbs' objective of preserving Yugoslavia had been undermined, the focus shifted and plans were developed for the creation of a Bosnian Serb state.¹⁰⁹⁷³ (The #Chamber neglected several facts and international documents, not to mention the domestic documents such as constitutions and laws. The international documents: not only the International Covenants of Human rights, mentioned in the EC decision to recognise the independence of Slovenia and Croatia, but the more actual, contemporaneous documents of the very same EC, such as the documents of the Hague Conference on Yugoslavia#. On 18 October 91, a week prior to the Assembly of the Serbian people had been established, the Hague Conference finished it's sixt session, see D03059, and established (in the annexes, which by an omission weren't attached to the document, but are unavoidable) that the minorities had their rights in the areas where it wasn't majority, as well as in the areas where they had been majority. #Everything what the Serbs required and what they did was within the scope of the Conference#. The entire concept of the JCE, particularly it's political qualifications, is falling down in the light of only these documents, let alone a permanent domestic and international documents. The President's statement in February 92 (14 Feb. 92) were legal and legitimate, and were founded not only in the results of the ongoing sub-Conference on BiH led by Carrington-Cutillero, but also on the results of the Hague Conference on Yugoslavia, which had been accepted by the President of Presidency of BiH Izetbegovic!) The process of regionalisation and the creation of SAOs were the first steps in this process,¹⁰⁹⁷⁴ (#The regionalisation, the communities of municipalities, a new shape of a municipalities by a re-joining-joining action of a local communes – all of it was legal and legitimate, and no crime was committed#, and the Chamber erred in implementing the law contrary to the domestic legal provisions and standards, founding on these wrong findings the entire construction of the JCE! Communes may cooperate with one another voluntarily and on principles of solidarity; they may pool resources and form joint bodies, organizations and services for the conduct of affairs of common interest and the satisfaction of common needs, and may associate in urban and regional communities.

or the Constitution of the Soc. Rep. of BiH from 1974, D1262, p. 90

¹⁰⁹⁷³ See paras. 2654, 2711, 2941–2951. The Chamber recalls that it considered the Accused's statement in February 1992 about creating a "sovereign area of the Serbian people", and the supporting statements of both Koljević and Krajišnik, to be highly probative in terms of explaining the changing objectives of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership. See paras. 2819–2820, 2840. The Chamber notes that during his testimony Jovanović tried to downplay any knowledge of statements made by the Bosnian Serb leadership regarding their aspirations in BiH and characterised them as "euphoric statements". The Chamber also noted that the witness showed indicators of bias during his testimony. The Chamber therefore does not rely on Jovanović's opinion or assessment about the goal of the Accused or the Bosnian Serb leadership. Similarly the Chamber has had regard to this credibility assessment and does not rely on Jovanović's assessment and characterisation of the Accused's rhetoric during the war. It also does not find his evidence regarding the objective of "Greater Serbia" to be reliable. Vladislav Jovanović, T. 34268–34271, 34296, 34301 (26 February 2013), 34347–34348, 34351–34352 (27 February 2013); D3015 (Witness statement of Vladislav Jovanović dated 22 February 2013), para. 54. See also D3026 (Article from Yugoslav Daily Survey entitled "Montenegrin President: Decisive Step towards Peace in Bosnia", 21 June 1993), p. 1.

¹⁰⁹⁷⁴ See paras. 2964–2965. Pašić stated that the Accused did not participate in the establishment of the communities of municipalities and was opposed to it and was not aware that the Bosnian Serb leadership used regionalisation as a means of grouping "Serbian" territories. D3849 (Witness statement of Radomir Pašić dated 5 July 2013), paras. 28–29, 32. However, the Chamber notes that Pašić's testimony was marked by evasiveness and indicators of insincerity which undermined the reliability of his evidence in this regard.

Article 275.

In the interest of establishing long-term cooperation, municipalities whose territories are adjacent to each other may associate to form urban or regional units.

Associated municipalities shall establish, by agreement, the tasks which within the bounds of their rights and duties shall be entrusted to the associated unit; they shall form joint bodies and agencies, combine assets, adopt joint plans and development programs, and carry out other tasks in their common interest.

The conclusions and positions of the associated unit shall be binding on the municipalities when adopted by the assemblies of the associated municipalities.

Article 276.

The obligatory association of municipalities into urban or regional units, which constitute separate socio-political units to which are transferred certain tasks from within the competence of the Republic or municipality, may be stipulated by law.

Article 277.

In a city which has more than one municipality, the municipalities must associate to form an urban unit, which is a special socio-political unit to which the municipalities, in their common interest, entrust certain rights and duties. Article 278.

A regional or urban unit shall have statutes which are adopted by the assembly of the unit with the prior agreement of the assembly of the combined municipalities.

The statutes of a regional or urban unit shall establish the rights and duties of the unit, the manner in which these rights and duties are fulfilled, the way in which funds for financing them are associated, the organization of the unit's bodies, and other issues of importance for fulfilling the rights and duties of the unit.

: : !) and were followed on 24 October 1991 by the decision of the Bosnian Serb deputies in the SRBiH Assembly to establish a separate assembly, which was constituted the next day.¹⁰⁹⁷⁵ (#All legal and in an accord with the ICFY# Both the Hague Conference sessions, on 18 and 24 October were finished and issued their documents, which hadn't been opposed by the Bosnian representative. As a matter of facts, the Bosnian representatives on the Conference even committed to give its "components" a large autonomy at the same Conference in the Hague held 16 – 19 September 1991, see the Document issued by the EC on 20 September 91:

Bosnia-Hercegovina.

Bosnia-Hercegovina suggested that the Conference should devote itself to the principle of self-determination of republics and not self-determination of peoples or nations. Bosnia-Hercegovina was nevertheless ready to give a large autonomy to components of its population. Bosnia-Hercegovina proposes a five-year arrangement which could be reconsidered after this period. If there is no agreement on a minimum of common functions, Bosnia-Hercegovina will hold another referendum. Bosnia-Hercegovina is in favour of a union of sovereign states in which sovereignty would proceed from the republics.

In the same document it was established about the rights to self-determination:

The Experts also agreed that full implementation of human rights and fundamental freedoms of all persons should be ensured, including the right of self-determination of all peoples.

These principles would be equally applicable whether Yugoslavia became a union of confederate or other type, or would be succeeded by independent and sovereign states. They would also be applicable, mutatis mutandis, if Yugoslavia or a part of it, would remain a Federation.

The Experts recommend that these principles be employed for the settlement of minority questions and embodied in the appropriate legal instruments, either a constitution or, as the case may be, in an international treaty.

The document wasn't tendered, but since it was an official document of the EC, and since the Chamber made this regulation problematic, we are entitled to depict this document (even under R 115) How possibly any chamber could have made conclusions about any JCE knowing about those documents that pertained to the Yugoslav crisis, which is anyway regulated in the other international covenants and documents? From that point on, there came into existence a plan which entailed the creation of parallel governmental structures to be followed by the physical take-over of Bosnian Serb claimed territory.¹⁰⁹⁷⁶ (#Wrong inference, and wrong in using the facts: the Serbs had already have those areas under their authorities, as a result of the first multiparty elections 1990. Therefore, there was #no any need for the Serbs for a "take-overs"#, since they would have to "take over" this areas and municipalities from themselves. However, since the Muslim-Croat side had started the changes of the nature of BiH, contrary to the will of the Serbian people, the Serbs were entitled to organise their authorities, and it was in accordance with the existing domestic regulations, as well as with the most recent documents of the EC and the Hague Conference. Neglecting those documents the Chamber supports the other side which caused the war and atrocities, and also supporting the results of this UN Court in form of a disastrous conviction of so many innocent people, a gihg military and civilian representatives of the Serbian people. But, let us see what the Hague Conference "Treaty Provisions for the Convention" issued 4 November 1991. Regulated the matter of autonomies and respected authorities:

In addition, areas in which persons belonging to a national or ethnic group form a majority, shall enjoy a special status of autonomy.

Such a status will provide for:

- a. the right to have and show the national emblems of that area;
- b. (deleted)
- c. an educational system which respects the values and needs of that group;
- d.
 - i. a legislative body
 - ii. an administrative structure, including a regional police force
 - iii. and a judiciary
 responsible for matters concerning the area, which reflects the composition of the population of the area;
- e. provisions for appropriate international monitoring.

And this was a basis for the representatives of the EC to accept all of proposals of the Serbs in Bosnia to be resolved in the Conference on Bosnia, which started almost immediately after this documents had been issued.) Physical control of territories was a core element of this plan and the plan envisaged a territorial re-organisation which would allow the Bosnian Serbs to claim control of a large percentage of the territory in BiH.¹⁰⁹⁷⁷ (A phisycal control of the territory is an obligation of every local commune, according to the Constitution and the All-people Defence Law. Article 273.

In time of war or in the case of an immediate threat of war a presidency of the municipal assembly shall be formed, which shall decide questions within the competence of the assembly if it is impossible for the assembly to meet. The composition of the presidency shall be established by law.

The presidency is obligated, as soon as the assembly is able to meet, to present for confirmation by the assembly those decisions which it has adopted and which are within the competence of the municipal assembly.

Article 269.

Within the assembly of a municipality, a council for national defense shall be formed, whose composition and competence shall be regulated by law.

There was #nothing criminal in it#, and particularly since the country to which the then Bosnia belonged, Yugoslavia, was in a state of war with Slovenia and Croatia, and the war affected BiH too, not only in sustaining a granades, but also through transportation of combatants and a war materials. See how it was provided in the BiH Constitution, D1262: para 252)

Article 252.

The right and duty of the peoples and national minorities and the working people and citizens of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina to protect and defend the liberty, independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and constitutionally established social order of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina are inviolable and inalienable.

So, “rights and duty” to participate in the defence...territorial integrity of SFR Yugoslavia” and these right and duty are inviolable and inalienable!

Article 256.

The municipality shall regulate and organize territorial defense and civil defense, organize and carry out preparations of the populace, economy, public agencies and government bodies, direct the preparations of organizations of associated labor, local authorities and other self-management organizations and units, ensure the accomplishment of other tasks of national defense as established by law, and in time of war lead general popular resistance on its territory. The municipality shall fulfill its rights and duties in the area of national defense in accordance with the constitution, laws, system of national defense and the defense plans of the federation and the Republic.

(#All the municipal structures were obliged to fully control it’s territory#, particularly concerning with a possible transportation of the war material, combatants, explosives, etc. A matter of the territory that the Serbs in Bosnia would claim was another issue, and it wasn’t envisaged to be a “fait accompli” issue, but a subject of the negotiations.) These territorial claims were closely linked to the ideology promoted by the Bosnian Serb leadership, as they tried to revive historical territorial rights and focused on the perceived threats faced by the Bosnian Serbs from Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who were portrayed as their historic enemies.¹⁰⁹⁷⁸ (No reasonable chamber would say such a thing and neglect the unavoidable fact that the Serbs suffered a genocide during WWI and WWII, committed not by an occupier-aggressor, but by the domestic peoples, namely the Muslims and Croats, a subjects of the nazi NDH, Independent State of Croatia, a satellite of the Third Reich. The essence of the claims for the autonomous regions and autonomous authorities is exactly because of a protection from such a developments, and was envisaged in all the documents, a permanent international and domestic, as well as the Hague Conference on Yugoslavia just adopted. This is not up to any chamber to deny these historic facts and build upon such a foundation somebody’s liability. In order to use such a possibility, the Chamber must have had some documents to rely upon. Since nobody ever denied a real jeopardy for the minorities, the Chamber didn't have any basis for incrimination of the ethnic cautions and fears, which was a reason to envisage the autonomies for minorities in the Haguse Conference documents!)

3436 . The Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership intended that these take-over operations be achieved militarily and that Bosnian Serbs maintain control over this territory through parallel structures of authority.¹⁰⁹⁷⁹ (This is #completely wrong and unfounded inference#. First, there was no any need to achieve the control over the traditional Serb areas, where there was a legal Serb authorities#. Second, the Serbs didn't have any army, unlike the Muslim-Croat coalition, having a very mighty secret army called Patriotic league, Green Berets, (the Muslims) and ZNG, HOS and other groups, on the Croatian side. The Chamber had a sufficient evidence that the Serbs, and the President personally, opposed to all attempts to forming the Serb military or paramilitary formations. Also, it is false assertion tha the Serbs wanted to maintain the control through parallel structures of authority, since the Serbs had their own regular authorities. When the Serbs offered to the Muslims to forme their own municipalities in areas where they had conditions, doesn't mean anything "parallel" but regular local and territorial authorities of both the ethnic communities.) This plan to take physical control of Bosnian Serb claimed territory in the Municipalities through military means required the mobilisation and co-ordinated actions of the Serb Forces.¹⁰⁹⁸⁰ (A completely unfounded, wrong inference and false assertion! There was no any "Serb Forces" neither it was envisaged to use them in a democratic process recognized and mediated by the European Community! The Serbs proclaimed their Assembly in the same building of the common assembly, and continued to participate in working of the common Assembly of BiH, as envisaged by the international documents. There was no any armed force at disposal of the Serbs in Bosnia, nor they needed any, until attacked. The Chamber is calling upon the paras of the very same Judgment, as if it is an evidence, which is not. The "taking over" started in a peaceful manner and far before the war, with the same authorities that had been elected in 1990, in the capitol of BiH, Sarajevo, as well as on the terrain. Nothing changed, except the local authorities reorganized their funds and started to function with a more autonomy, as envisaged by the ICFY, and accepted by Mr. Izetbegovic.) Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber found that the use of force was envisaged to take-over power and there was no genuine concern about the manner in which power was taken.¹⁰⁹⁸¹ (The Chamber is multiplying apples and oranges, by editing some angry comments in a tel. conversation far before taking any steps with a decisions of the organs founded on the rights given by the constitution and by the Conference on Yugoslavia. A phrase "let everything go to fucking hell and that we take the express way" pertained to a dissatisfaction with the cheating tactics, and threatening that the Serbs would act adequately, not to use any force. Such an editing of sentences from different occasions is not right, not fair, and not honest.)

3437. Once the Bosnian Serb Assembly was set up, the President issued the Variant A/B Instructions in December 1991 to ensure preparations at the municipal level for the establishment of an ethnically homogeneous separate state. The Chamber found above that these instructions were central in terms of furthering the objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership from December 1991 onwards.¹⁰⁹⁸² (First, it wasn't established (beyond a reasonable doubt) that the President issued the A/B document. Second, as testified by D. Kapetina, see T41256 – 41258:

¹⁰⁹⁷⁹ See paras. 2654, 2707–2715, 2844–2848, 2991.

¹⁰⁹⁸⁰ See paras. 2844–2845. See also paras. 2898–2899, 3077.

¹⁰⁹⁸¹ See para. 3084.

¹⁰⁹⁸² See paras. 3073–3079, 3083, 3089.

Q. Mr. Kapetina, in paragraph 7 of your statement, you talk about the manual for developing a contingency plan that you wrote in 1990.

Were you shown the paper known as Variant A and Variant B, and what can you tell us about it? A. First of all, I authored this manual, and as chief republic inspector, it was my duty to inspect together with other inspectors contingency plans, and through this manual I tried to help those who made such contingency plans in Bosnia-Herzegovina to make them more easily. And those who made such plans was everybody from local authorities, local communes, businesses, socio-political organisations, even associations of citizens. Each one had the obligation to develop a contingency plan, and I wanted this manual to facilitate their work and to teach them how to make these plans. On this page I tried to define contingencies using, of course, the provisions of the Law on All People's Defence. Q. In line 24 what is missing is that the making of these plans was their duty. Did you say that it was their duty?

A. Yes, it was their legal obligation. All those who made contingency plans were legally obliged to do so in keeping with the Law on All People's Defence. Everybody had to develop a contingency plan for contingencies such as aggression, military aggression, or internal conflicts that involved the use of weapons. Q. When you said a moment ago socio-political organisations were also an entity in the defence system, can you translate that into normal language? What are socio-political organisations? A. I'll try. In the previous system it was the League of Communists, The Socialist Alliance of Working People, The Socialist Alliance of Youth, and in the multi-party system it was the political parties.

The witness, Dragan Kapetina, was the chief inspector in the former Ministry for Defence during the communist rule, and after the elections maintained the same position in a new Government and the Ministry for Defence. Mr. Kapetina wrote 1987 and 1989 a manual, that aided the subjects to create their "contingency plans". He confirmed that in this system it was an obligation of each and every institution, organisation and company to have the war plans, what they were to do in an immergency situation. How the Chamber neglect this domestic legislation? Why the Chamber neglects that it was envisaged only for an immergency situation, and that it was a legal obligation? The Chamber found that the structures and organs created pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions—first and foremost the Crisis Staffs—played a central role in preparing for, and carrying out, the Bosnian Serb take-overs in the Municipalities and in maintaining Bosnian Serb authority and power after the take-overs were completed.¹⁰⁹⁸³ These parallel structures were also created in such a way that the objectives, plans, and instructions of the Bosnian Serb leadership were easily communicated to Bosnian Serb leaders at a municipal level.¹⁰⁹⁸⁴ (#Wrong in facts and in inferences#! A Crisis Staffs weren't any new organs, but only a way of functioning of the regular authorities for an immergency situation, no matter it was a water flood, storm, earthquake, energy or water supplies colaps, or a war at the end. So, the existing authorities weren't to be replaced by any new. How the Chamber could justify it's assertions about "taking-overs" while there was no a simple new organ of the state authorities? In what sense was it a "taking-over"? There was no even minimal change in a usual competences of the municipal organs, nothing that didn't exist before the war, or before the crisis that led to forming a Crisis Staff. This is simply a fog and ¹⁰⁹⁸³ See paras. 3072–3096. Defence witnesses testified inter alia that Crisis Staffs (i) were established at various levels in BiH and were simply a means of responding to a crisis situation; (ii) were by no means “a secret system of command and control”; (iii) operated independently and did not receive instructions from the SDS leadership; and (iv) did not plan for the persecution of non-Serbs. D4194 (Witness statement of Sveto Kovačević dated 7 December 2013), paras. 10, 23; D4027 (Witness statement of Nikola Poplašen dated 11 November 2013), para. 5. While the Chamber did find that Crisis Staffs were created at different levels in BiH and also by Bosnian Muslims, the Chamber does not find the remainder of the evidence of these witnesses to be reliable in this regard. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the manner in which the Crisis Staffs were created pursuant to the Variant A/B Instructions and the manner in which they were used to establish Bosnian Serb authority and control over municipalities and their involvement in crimes committed against non-Serbs. It also noted that the evidence of the relevant witnesses was marked by contradictions, evasiveness, and indicators of bias which undermined the credibility of their evidence in this regard. (According to which instructions were created all other crisis staffs? Why they didn't need the A/B Variant? Because it had already been provided for in the laws and Constitution! What the crisis staffs did what wouldn't do a municipal authority? Nothing!)

smoke, and nobody is entitled to invent a crimes that didn't exist, or incriminate a conduct that had been in an accord with the domestic constitutions, laws and habits!

3438. On 12 May 1992, six months after the issuance of the Variant A/B Instructions, and after the second level of those instructions had been activated, the Accused presented the Strategic Goals before the Bosnian Serb Assembly. The Chamber found earlier that these Strategic Goals not only reflected the objectives of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership but were also viewed as instructions to be followed at a municipal level in order to achieve those objectives.¹⁰⁹⁸⁵

3439. The Chamber finds that #there was nothing in the Variant A/B Instructions or the Strategic Goals which called for the commission of crimes per se.# (Thank you very much!!!) However, the Chamber found that ethnic separation and the creation of a largely ethnically homogeneous entity were some of the core aspects of the Strategic Goals and that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership planned the military implementation of these goals which necessarily entailed the take-over of territory and the forcible movement of the non-Serb population to achieve that objective.¹⁰⁹⁸⁶ (#However, it is not correct and it is not possible, for the following reasons:

1. #The separation of the three member states in BiH had been agreed politically, and under the auspice of the ICFY, and on the basis of the Fourth Opinion of the Badinter's Commision. No side needed any armed force to carry this agreement out#.

2. #An ethnic separation had been introduced by the Slovans, Croats in their republics respectively, as well as the Muslims and Croats in BiH. There was no a rascial or class, or language reasons for the BiH to separate from Yugoslavia. It was exclusively an ethnic interest of the Muslim (and Croat) side. The #Serbs in BiH didn't respond to the Muslim separation from Yugoslavia by an armed force or any other kind of violence#, but made many concessions for the sake of the peaceful resolution. The Serbs in BiH were entitled to keep the entire BiH in Yugoslavia, because without the Serb consent there could not be any secession; the next objective of the Serbs in BiH was to stay in Yugoslavia, the way the Northern Ireland remained in the GB, because of a protestant majority in the territory, or as West Virginia decided to stay with the Union instead in Confederation, as the bigger part of Virginia decided.

3. Since the Serbs in BiH didn't oppose this separation from Yugoslavia by force, they instead #used the constitutional rights, as well as the agreed elements of a new arrangement for the BiH at the Conference under the UN-EC auspice, and in accordance with the laws#.

4. Althogh the #Serbs didn't oppose the Muslim-Croat secessionist movements by force, the Muslim-Croat coalition tried to oppose the Serb delineation of the ethnic territories for an autonomy that was guaranteed by all the documents mentioned above, approved and accepted by Mr. Izetbegovic in September, October and November 1991 in the Hague on ICFY, and finally agreed within the Lisbon Agreement. The M/C coalition used a military force to prevent the Serbs in achieving their rights and agreed plans!#)

5. Unlike the Serbs, the Muslims were preparing for this violent operation the whole year in advance, by forming the secret army (PL and ZB) and starting the fights immediately after recognized. All the Serb actions were aimed to defend from these armed attacks.

6. Finally, the #Muslim side declared a war against the Serbs in Bosnia#. Therefore, it is clear that the Variant A/B Instructions and Strategic Goals created the basis, and laid the foundations, for the structures through which a criminal purpose could be achieved. (A "criminal purpose could be achieved” without the A/B paper and the Strategic objectives also. But, the Chamber acts as if a “criminal purpose” really existed, and this was derived from a clear position to include only undoubtedly Serbian territories in the Serb entity. In spite of the fact that there was no a single place without the Muslims to the end of war, in spite of the facts that no Muslim in the RS had any problem unless acted militarily against the RS and it’s citizens, the Chamber is maintaining this qualification only on a basis of the obscure witnesses who were taking notes at meetings, like Harland and Banbury. Does this kind of deliberation of the UN Court mean that the UN deny the rights for selfdefence to the Serb people, and will this be spread to some other nations, or would it be applied generally and un-selectively?) In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber also had regard to the manner in which the Variant A/B Instructions and Strategic Goals were implemented throughout the Municipalities and the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership with respect to ethnic separation. This involved a widespread and systematic pattern of crimes committed by Serb Forces against non-Serbs throughout the Municipalities, which is discussed in further detail below.

¹⁰⁹⁸⁵ See paras. 2899–2903.

3440. The Chamber finds that the planned take-over of Bosnian Serb claimed territories went beyond the establishment of authority; it also entailed the removal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in order to create a largely ethnically homogeneous entity.¹⁰⁹⁸⁷ (#Wrong assertion and inference! As it is evident from the file, the homogenisation OF THE TERRITORIES was envisaged by all the three ethnic communities, but the only way in achieving the homogeneity was to include only those areas and settled places inhabited by a community concerned. No one community planned any resettlement of population. The Croats mentioned A RESETTLEMENT AND EXCHANGE OF POPULATION several times, but the President qualified it as a nightmare and rejected it (see the intercepted conversation with President Mili{evi}, and also never mentioned it on the Conference, let alone accepted or proposed the shifting of population.) This was founded on the ideology that Bosnian Serbs could not co-exist with Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.¹⁰⁹⁸⁸ (#Then, why the Serbs concluded the Historic Serb-Muslim Agreement#? Then, why the Serbs invited the Muslims and Croats to stay with them in Yugoslavia#? It looks unreasonable to repeat this construction and false assertion contrary to everything that had been seen during the process. The Chamber had more than sufficient evidence that the President and his associates tied the assertions about inability to live with the Muslims only on the two facts, and conditions: the fact that the Islamic fundamentalism won power in the Muslim community, and the Muslims wanted an independent unitary state, where they would rule over the Serbs and Croats. Full stop. These facts can not be skipped, and everything has to be seen in this light.

1. #If there was such a pattern, there would be no any municipality without it#;
2. The #war started in different municipalities on a different dates and a different causes, which indicates that there was no any plan#;
3. There is a #significant number of municipalities which didn’t have a war at all#;

¹⁰⁹⁸⁷ See paras. 2839–2856.

¹⁰⁹⁸⁸ See paras. 2839–2956, 2895–2896. See also paras. 2670–2673.

¹⁰⁹⁸⁹ See Section IV.A.2.v: Genocide: Count 1.

4. There is a #significant, majority number of municipalities which didn't have any atrocities, crimes or any feature allegedly envisaged by the Strategic Goals;

5. It is important to point out that the so called "pattern" or any crimes didn't happen in the municipalities where the members of the Main Board of SDS were mayors, who would, had there been any "pattern", carry it out more precisely than in other municipalities.

6. The Chamber or anybody else can not explain why the Serb authority's attitude #differed from one municipality to another, or from one Muslim to another, and can not avoid an inference that it had something to do with a Muslim conduct#. A similar systematic pattern of crimes against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats was repeated in the remaining Municipalities which spread over the three main regions relevant to the Municipalities component of this case, namely Eastern Bosnia, the ARK, and the Sarajevo area. (#Wrong inference, false assertion! In all of these regions there were both, municipalities and the Muslims who hadn't underwent any problem#, which depended only on their approach towards the Muslim armed attacks against the Serbs. Remember the Vulliamy's report from Prijedor, and the Muslim and Croat villages that didn't have any trouble, because they declared a peaceful position without any armed resistance!)

3442. The Chamber found that a vast number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities were forcibly displaced from the homes, villages, and towns in which they were lawfully present to other locations in BiH or third countries. (#This is a false finding#! A "vast number" of Bosnian Croats and Muslims demanded to leave because of the war developments, and there was no a single case that any armed unit expelled people from their homes. It was presented to the Chamber that there was a procedure for those who wanted to leave: they had to check themselves to a waiting list, they had to submit many papers about taxation and other obligations settled down, to pay for a transport, and then to wait at home to be notified when they will get their transport mean, busses or so. When this time came, they had been notified that they had a couple of hours to appear at an agreed spot. If some didn't come, the money for transport were to be returned to them, (see Kotor Varos doc.) Victims were given limited time to leave their homes, loaded onto trucks, buses, or trains and transported out of the Municipalities. (Wrong and false: #they had been informed about the time their bus was ready to take them, according to the list they made far in advance#. If it was as the Chamber suggests, there would be so many incidents and skirmishes that there would be all in the media. This simply didn't happen, ever!!!) The Chamber found that in many cases Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were forced to leave following attacks against their villages or after the take-over of towns by Serb Forces. Many others were first arrested, and then unlawfully detained in detention facilities and transported out of the Municipalities. These expulsions resulted in drastic changes to the ethnic composition of towns and by 1995, almost no Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats remained in many of the Municipalities. (Wrong and not correct! Nobody was arrested unles in a combat zone! Then, after the first investigation all that had been captured in a combat zone and didn't participate in combats were released. Those who participated in combats were to be transferred to a facilities for POWs and exchanged, although all of them could have been tried, because they hadn't been an army, but a terrorists, and those who committed crimes were to be tried regardless of their ethnicity. Pertaining the assertion about the change of ethnic composition, it must be noticed that this happened also because many Serbs had escaped from the Muslim-Croat areas into the Serb zones. The Chamber was not ready to see the complete picture!)

3443. In particular, the Chamber found that, in a similar pattern throughout the Municipalities, Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs were involved in the systematic forced movement of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from the Municipalities, including in creating an environment of fear in which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats had no choice but to leave the Municipalities.¹⁰⁹⁹⁰

(A Section (IV.A.2.iii) in this Judgment can not be an evidence, and this is wrong inference. #Why some of the Muslims and Croats “had a choice” and remained in their homes and their municipalities, while others not#? If somebody didn’t have “a choice but to leave” it must be established what or who created such an environment. The answer that follows is not satisfactory, because a fear is extremely subjective feeling and may not have any real reason, it may be even a projection of own’s animosity towards those from whom one feared. Again, why there was a lot of Muslims, in many municipalities and even in the same municipalities that had been left without any trouble, who didn’t have this fear, weren’t physically forced, or harassed in any sense? Why many of the Muslim and Croat males voluntarily joined the VRS? An answer to this question will ruin the entire construction of the JCE!)

The Chamber found that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were displaced as a result of, or following physical force, threat of force, or coercion, or that they fled out of fear. (This is #too arbitrary and loose#, without any specificity: where and when a force had been implemented; when and how a threat of force had been exercised; how a “coercion” and intimidation had been exercised; what were the rest of “fears”? There was no any fear inflicted by the authorities, and the only fear was from the chaotic events of the civil war, which caused leaving of all the citizens, of all ethnicities. Also, those who had their relatives in the adversary’s army didn’t feel comfortable while a coffins with bodies of the Serb soldiers used to come, and that was one of the reasons why the President forbade the mass funerals!)

This fear was caused by ongoing violence and various crimes committed against non-Serbs including inter alia killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses and cultural monuments.¹⁰⁹⁹¹ (None of those crimes, if happened, the Chamber could associate with the legal organs and legal “Serb Forces”. Even if some of a members of the legal “Serb Forces” committed such a crimes, they did it out of the command and control of their superiors, clandestinely, and kept silent about that. No a single rape was proven, and no liability of the official authorities was evident. There was no any “discriminatory measures” or “unlawful detention”, because detentions had always been connected with a combat o rebel actions, and it concerned with only several percent, usually less that 5% of the non-Serb population. There was no evidence on “wanton destruction of villages” unless there was no an armed skirmich and these vilalges and homes used as a military strongholds. The evidence is the fact that many villages nobody touched. Beside that, nobody ever had proven that the authorities tolerated, let alone ordered any destruction. The Chamber, just like the Prosecution, adopted the two most obscure terms: the JCE and the “Serb Forces”, and neither is fair and correct. No a Serb could have proven anything, because a simple affiliation to the Serb nation includes all the Serbs in Bosnia. And a presumption of guilt and of a nature of civil war as a war of a professional, well trained and controlled armies delivered such a wrong conclusions!

3444. Further, the similar manner and the short time period in which these crimes were committed support the conclusion that these crimes were committed during the course of well planned and co-ordinated operations which involved the military take-over of Municipalities and the expulsion of non-Serbs. The Chamber found that most of the crimes were committed between April to October 1992 in each of the Municipalities but then continued through to the end of the conflict. The Chamber found that many of the attacks on towns and villages in the Municipalities were carried out in an organised and co-ordinated fashion and involved members of the Serb Forces. These attacks and the crimes which were committed during and after the take-overs followed a similar pattern across the Municipalities.¹⁰⁹⁹² This is a multiply wrong inference! There are many others, the most real and evident from the exhibits and testimonies, and that is:

- 1. If it was as the Chamber “found” in this paragraph, then #why the war didn’t start in so many municipalities before the end of May 1992#? Why in these municipalities the Serbs did everything possible to avoid the war, offering to the Muslims and Croats to form their own municipalities and live freely, #Two municipalities – peace#? Why in some, so many, the #two third of municipalities, there was no any war or skirmishes, and therefore no crimes#?
- 2. A very persuasive inference would be: the chaos because of the abrupt violence everywhere,
- 3. A lack of a state organisation, judiciary system, communications, goods,
- 4. A seven weeks of the war period without any formal Serb army, except for the TO, which was without professional commands and severed in municipalities without a central command,
- 5. The entire period mentioned in the above paragraph without a properly structured VRS, up until the end of 1992,
- 6. Up until 20 May 1992 there was no a “Serb Forces”, and the Muslim side had the Patriotic League and Green Berets as the illegal armed forces got into a conflict with the JNA, and the JNA never attacked any settled place without being attacked from it. None of the armed events could be connected with the President at least before 15 June, the date when the President issued the Order on Formation and Organisation of the Army. And this period was exactly the worst in the entire war.

3445. Having regard to the clear systematic and organised pattern of crimes which were committed in each of the Municipalities by members of the Serb Forces, over a short time period, the Chamber finds that these crimes were not committed in a random manner, but were committed in a co-ordinated fashion. (Again, the main question remains without answer, i.e. #why some areas didn’t have this “coordinated fashion”#? And why it didn’t happen in the Sana River Valey until the end of May 92? Had it been a Serb plan, why the Serbs would wait the JNA to leave BiH, and then risk a conflict with the more numerous Muslim-Croat forces? Where, in which area, municipality, any settled place the Serb initiated fights? The Chamber can not point out a single one case!)

3446. The Accused disputes that there was a systematic expulsion of non-Serbs from the RS by arguing that the Prosecution disregarded the majority of municipalities where non-Serbs were protected and that this undermines the theory that there was a common plan.¹⁰⁹⁹³ The Chamber does not consider that there is any merit to this argument, given that the Chamber found that the twenty municipalities in which these crimes were committed, and in relation to which the Chamber was tasked with entering findings, were of strategic importance to the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership and formed part of Bosnian Serb claimed territory. Even if there were no crimes committed in other municipalities in BiH, not covered by the Indictment, it would not affect the Chamber’s conclusion that crimes were committed in a systematic and organised manner in the Municipalities. (#Then, how the Chamber established a “systematic and organised manner”, since the Serbs didn’t implement it from the first day; why not in municipalities with a superior Serb majority, and so on. In such a case, the Chamber contradicts itself: if it was because of the strategic importance of these municipalities, then it was not because the Serbs wanted ETHNICALLY PURE STATE, BUT BECAUSE OF SOME MILITARY REASONS! But, still the Chamber doesn't have an answer on several crucial questions, such as:

1. The alleged "systematic and organised manner" #couldn't be implemented without a war, but it is well known that the Serbs didn't want a war in BiH, they did advocate against it, the Serbs weren't rigid in the negotiations, and decreased their legal aspirations in order to avoid the war? Without an answer to the question who wanted the war, and who needed the war, and for what purpose, there is no just and correct findings of the Court#! It is unbelievable that this Court does not deal with the causes of the war and responsibility for the crime against peace! Such a way the Court is free to deliberate the most peculiar decisions, and contrary to this orientation, the Chamber charged the President for every form of the legal political life of the Serb community#!
2. Did the Serbs accept the suggestions and proposals that were the result of the ongoing conferences, including a possibility that the Muslims in a Serb majority areas may have their own municipalities, (see the ICFY documents from 1991) as it was envisaged by the Hague Conference?
3. Why didn't the Serbs form their secret army, if they did have so called Joint Criminal Enterprise? Why did the Croat and Muslim leaderships formed their own secret armies and prepared for a war beginning as early as of March 91? Against whom they formed their armies?
4. Did the Serbs, or the Muslim-Croat coalition, violated the Constitution, both the Federal and BiH?

Another word, the Chamber erroneously and uncritically accepted every single position of the Prosecution, in spite of the numerous evidence contrary to it.

3447. Having weighed the evidence discussed above in light of the systematic and organised manner in which crimes were committed in each of the Municipalities, the Chamber finds beyond reasonable doubt that between October 1991 and 30 November 1995 there existed a common plan to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory through the crimes as set out in more detail below. The Chamber finds that starting in October 1991, the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership agreed on how they would respond to the declaration of sovereignty in BiH and the measures they would take to create their own ethnically homogeneous state. (#Serbs only responded#! All of it on the Muslim-Croat side was illegal and anti-constitutional, while all of the #Serb responses were legal and in accordance with the ongoing Conference on Yugoslavia and the sub-conference on BiH#. The Chamber is persistent in a wrong and false usage of the term "ethnically homogeneous state". A #homogeneity pertained only to a territorial issues# and a flexibility in including only own settlements in own republic, and the President fought against any greed for territories and an ambition to include every single Serb village into the Serb constituent unit. On the other hand, the #President personally proposed that the forcefully taken territories wouldn't be recognized, and that the territorial issues had to be resolved on the Conference through the talks, and that the refugees will all have rights to return and recover their properties.# The Chamber doesn't have a firm and un-doubtable evidence for such an inference, and is erred by allocating the events of the civil war to only one side "aposteriory" in a manner: "this was happening, therefore it must be the leadership wanted it.” This was happening in all of our civil wars, and before the Bosnian, it happened in the war in Croatia!)

a. Plurality of persons

3448. The Prosecution alleges that the President worked together with other Bosnian Serb military and political leaders to achieve the objective of the common plan.¹⁰⁹⁹⁴ While the Prosecution submits that the membership of the alleged JCE fluctuated over time, it argues that each member made a significant contribution to achieving the common criminal purpose.¹⁰⁹⁹⁵ The Prosecution then proceeds to list the named members of the alleged Overarching JCE and their respective contributions to the common plan.¹⁰⁹⁹⁶

3449. Beginning in late 1991, Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić were intimately involved with the Accused in developing the policies and plans which formed the foundation of the common plan as defined above. They made speeches on the themes of preventing the independence of BiH and that Bosnian Serbs could not live with Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, (#A PERMANENT DISTORTION: NOT “LIVE WITH BOSNIAN MUSLIMS AND CROATS – BUT UNDER THEIR DOMINATION IN A UNITARY STATE!!!# #This is contradictory: if the Serbs “could not live with Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats” why the Serbs wanted Bosnia to stay in Yugoslavia? This is a grave abuse of the linguistic problems: the Serbs didn’t accept to be a national minority in their own country, under the Muslim domination, i.e. they didn’t accept to be a second class citizens in a newly and illegally separated Bosnia!#) and ultimately advocated the separation of the three peoples and the creation of a separate Serb state.¹⁰⁹⁹⁷ (#Which had been immediately recognized and accepted by the International community#! That is how the Chamber limits the political and state actions of the Serb members of the BiH Presidency, and the president of the BiH Assembly! Krajisnik, Koljevic and Plavsic were the highest positioned Serbs in the common state organs, the Presidency and the Assembly of BiH. The Chamber acted as if somebody was entitled to demand the Serb legal and legitimate representatives in the highest Bosnian organs to accept the dictate and the unlawful and anti-constitutional actions of the other two sides, the actions that definitely change the position of their people that they represented. Who authorised this Court to make such an “arbitrage” in the political life of the Serbs in BiH? If the Serbs didn’t have the rights to oppose those illegal moves, there wouldn’t be any conference on BiH, and there wouldn’t be any plan for the internal reorganisation of BiH, including the first, Lisbon plan and the Cutilleiro’s plan, and the final Dayton Agreement, and three other plans in between. If the Serbs didn’t have any right to their own constituent unit in BiH, how would the UN and the EU, and many states unilaterally support the recognition of this transformation of BiH. Instead of identifying those who prevented a peaceful political solution, the Tribunal and it’s chambers are exercising a judicial assaults, humiliation, and finally a judicial violence and crime upon the Serbs in BiH!) For Krajišnik, the goal of separating from the Bosnian Muslims was the most important task and he often recalled that the main Bosnian Serb objective was to create their own, “ethnically pure” state.¹⁰⁹⁹⁸ (As with the other Serb officials, the Chamber is wrong. #The first and the most desireable solution for the Serbs in BiH was to do nothing, but to stay in the country they already had been, meaning Yugoslavia#. And had the two other sides and the international community respected the laws and constitutions, that would stay that way. As far as it is concerned with the Bosnian Serbs #“ethnically pure” state#, this was never a plan of Krajisnik, or any other Bosnian Serb official. For Mr. Krajisnik as for all other Serb officials, the “ethnically homogenous” state never meant “ethnically pure”, and the #“homogeneity of territories”# was to be achieved by a modest approach to the territorial issues, i.e. not to include settlements that belonged to the Muslims or Croats. See what Gen. Mladic wrote down from a Krajisnik speech to the military top commanders, see P1481: , P1481, p.146:

11.- * KRAJIŠNIK:

- I admire the military successes. —
- It is very dangerous to seize their territories.-
- The /River/ Drina and the Neretva...
- We have a disproportionate engagement of the army in relation to the strategic

This is only one of many genuine evidence that the homogeneity was to be achieved by a #moderate territorial claims#, and not by any ethnic cleansing! The Chamber had the insight in many, many documents pertaining to the Serb attitude towards the other ethnicities to be living in the Serb republic, and not a single document to the contrary. On what evidence the Chamber founded this inference? Only on a hear-say evidence, on an unfinished sentences in the illegally obtained intercepts, only in imprecise conversations, or speeches that the attendees always understood as it should be understood, while the Chamber never understood it accurately, because of a linguistic nuances. Whether it was a matter of linguistics, or an intention of the Chamber, it is all the same for the President Serbs. But, it must not survive in judgments. Krajisnik and Plavšić both spoke of ethnic cleansing as something that was necessary to achieve the goals of the Bosnian Serb leadership.¹⁰⁹⁹⁹ (#This is a shameless lie#! If it wasn't a lie, why it wasn't reported to the UN Headquarters, and why the officials of the UN who negotiated with the named Serb representatives didn't warn the international community#? Because it didn't happen. Repeating the assertion about inability to live together is an abuse of the linguistic confusion, since everyone present to those talks knew exactly that it pertained only to an independent unitary Bosnia under the Islamic Fundamentalist regime, and not if the Muslims stayed in Yugoslavia, and certainly not the Muslims living in the Republika Srpska.) Krajisnik and Plavšić specifically agreed with the President that Bosnian Muslims should be transferred out of Bosnian Serb territory given that they could not live together.¹¹⁰⁰⁰ (#Had it really happened, the entire world would know it in an hour#! Is there in the UN documents any trace of this assertions of a UN officer who was not in charge of the political matters? No! #Why the Chamber of a UN Court is avoiding the UN official documents#, in this case, as in the case of Markale, as in many other cases, #preferring hear-say to the official documents#? This matters could be testified about only by the political negotiators of the same rank as the President, who knew what the President proposed, what he accepted and what he rejected. None of them testified to this direction, neither Akashi nor Cutilleiro, nor Owen in his books, nobody. Plavšić went as far as to state that “if it takes the lives of 3 million people to solve this crisis, lets get it done and move on”.¹¹⁰⁰¹ (This is another lie. Ms. Plavsic was alleged to be saying it in some interview, but she denied it, and it was something within her ideological dispute with President Milosevic. Anyway, the witness that the Chamber is relying on couldnot know that, and he have read it somewhere, therefore, he didn't witness it!) In addition, Koljević repeatedly called for the expulsion of Bosnian Muslims and the homogeneity of territories, claiming it was impossible for Serbs to live with anyone else.¹¹⁰⁰² Here is para 2721 from the fn. 11013, what Krajisnik really said:

Gentlemen, if we succeed in creating a confederal BH, it shall consist of three states. And the Serbian State will form an alliance with the Serbian States. Everyone will have one State. We don't need the relics of Yugoslavia which no one else wants. We accept Yugoslavia as a Serbian state, and not as a Yugoslavia which would have to include Macedonia, Slovenia and Croatia. I am not interested in Muslims in Bosnia and Herzegovina. That is why I think we need to be open and honest here. The Remember, it was 25 February 1992, still there was no any idea of war, because the Conference was doing well. As it can be seen from this para, Krajisnik was quareling with some representatives in the Assembly about whether the Serbs should stick to the idea of Yugoslavia, or not, and was advocating to give up this idea, because nobody else wanted Yugoslavia any more. "We don't need the relics of Yugoslavia which no one else wants", and added that this Yugoslavia is not the one we knew, comprising (which would have to include!!!) Macedonia, Slovenia and Croatia. Than he said: "I am not interested in Muslims in BiH". What he said is a continuation of the previous sentence, which meant that he was not interested in persuading the Muslims in BiH to remain in such a Yugoslavia. How the Chamber could miss so much a very point Krajisnik made? It was before the war, and in the context of changing a political orientation of the Serbs in Bosnia from Yugoslavia to independent BiH internally transformed. If it wasn't clear to the Chamber, why they didn't clarify it with some linguist?

And here is P785, Okun's diary about a meeting of Cyrus Vance and Marti Ahtisari with the Serb delegation in Geneve. Obviously, once again, this was not a testimony of one of the negotiators, but of a note-taker, regardless of his rank. Let us see what was on the p.44:

Prof. Koljevic said, as recorded in short terms: "the War shattered trust; Communities cannot live together anymore; to deny that is fantasy." Is this remark of prof. Koljevic in a manner of an academic discussion such to incriminate this excellent man? This is a crime, and Mr. Cyrus Vance would never qualify this as it is qualified by the Prosecution and now by the Chamber. There are other notes, as how the President said that We do not need war, we should stop where they are... and so on. This can not be the basis for such a mean inference?: Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić also participated in formulating and promoting the Strategic Goals, and took steps to ensure they were implemented, and that organisational structures were created through which the criminal purpose could be achieved.¹¹⁰⁰³ Again, this is based on a discussions that were a colloquial chatting on the subject in general. Here is the para 2723 of the Judgment, quoting what the President said on the subject of how many Muslims would stay in the Serb constituent canton: (2723. In February 1992, the Accused spoke about having less than 10% of Bosnian Muslims in their “canton” of BiH according to the proposed maps.⁹⁰⁴²) What should be done to make the Chamber aware of the proper semantic understanding of this sentence? It was clearly said “according to the proposed maps”. And that was #the only meditated way of making the TERRITORIAL homogeneity#, to be reasonable in proposing the maps, not to include to many villages of the others who wouldn’t want it. Remember, it was in Ferbruary 1992, no war, no any possibility for “ethnic cleansing”, only a reasonable maps. Remember what Ajanovic of the SDA said the next morning after 18 March 1992, when the Cutilleiro plan was adopted, see D302:

Commenting on tonight’s fifth round of the Conference on the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the spokesman of SDA, Irfan Ajanovic, estimated that the Muslim nation in its constituent unit or future ethnic canton would be a majority of 82 percent, while the Serbian nation would comprise 50 percent of the Serbian unit. He said that the approved document (Therefore, it was a conference about forming three “cantons” or constituent Republics within BiH, such as exist in many countries, and the task of the UN-EC mediators to create a viable “cantons” for each of the ethnic communities.)

3450. In addition to their participation in the creation of the common plan and agreement with the political objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership, the roles held by Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić throughout the conflict are indicative of their further contributions to the common plan. (The Chamber is importing additional confusion in this Judgment. What was taken against the President and the other Serb officials happened before the war, while all, or at least the Serbs and the International community, hoped that there would be no war. And this was astaregic objective of the Serbian community in BiH: #to accept the BIH as an independent state provided it will be reorganized into the three ethninc states – units.# SO, THE CHAMBER IS ERRONEUSLY ASSOCIATING EVERYTHING FROM THE LEGAL POLICAL LIFE OF THE SERBS IN BOSNIA FAR BEFORE IT WAS CLEAR THAT THERE WILL BE A WAR, AS IF THE SERBS WERE COUNTING THAT A WAR WILL BE FOR SURE. NOTHING BEFORE 12 MAY CAN BE CONSIDERED AS SAME STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES AS AFTER THIS DATE.) Together with the President, Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić were considered the top most powerful leaders in the RS.¹¹⁰⁰⁴ Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić were three of the five members of the RS Presidency; (Wrong! There was never five members of the Presidency of the RS, but only three. Had there being a state of war proclaimed for the entire Republic, there would be a war Presidency.) Krajišnik was President of the Bosnian Serb Assembly and Koljević and Plavšić were Vice-Presidents of the RS; all three were appointed to deal with important issues throughout the conflict, relating to detention centres, communications with international organisations, as well as information and propaganda.¹¹⁰⁰⁵ Here is a reference in para 2767, Krajisnik speaking about the separation with the Muslims: 2767. At the same session, Krajišnik stated that “the biggest tragedy would be if the Muslims accepted to live with us now. [...] That is the only thing I would never accept, and I would rather accept that we get a smaller percentage of the territory than it *is the case now, provided that we remain separated from the Muslims and that we have our country”.*⁹¹⁷⁰

Here is what Mr. Krajisnik said at the Assembly session in January 94., P1385, p.123/24

I believe that most of the Deputies are not mentally ready to say that they accept 33,3% of the territory. We must prepare ourselves for some proposal about which we will have to decide, like we had to with those 30%. We must say what we are ready to do it. In other words, we are ready to withdraw from some territories, in order for both us and them to be able to round up our respective integrated chunks of territory. It is a big step. I kindly ask you to think in this direction. Yet, it does not mean that this is policy and so on. As you could see in this shorthand notes and in those historical reports of ours, we must share the responsibility if we are going to give away some parts of our Republic. We must be aware of the other parts that we will keep /sic/.

This area has not been defended by the natives only, but by all of us, and we must take the time and analyse what we will lose and what we will gain. I know how

I am talking about this for the sake of history. Once the borders get drawn, there are always some sides which end up hump-backed /sic/. But that is not the problem, the problem is that people think that it could have been more, that there could have been a better solution found, but no, the state of facts, no /sic/. Believe me, the biggest tragedy would be if the Muslims accepted to live with us now. You saw how they meddle in the Croatian territory now, but Croats do not want it, they would lose the country. That is the only thing I would never accept, and I would rather accept that we get a smaller percentage of the territory than it is the case now,

So, Mr. Krajisnik was persuading the MPs to accept less territory at the conference next week, putting his argumentation before them why it should be accepted. The Chamber is not looking for a context, nor for a documents that defined the Serb policy in BiH, but only for a solitary sentences that do not have any weight. In such a manner they could convict even St. Peter.

3451. Krajisnik had great authority among the Bosnian Serb municipal leaders and had the ability to issue orders and influence how power should be exercised at the municipal level.¹¹⁰⁰⁶

(This wasn't true, and the President testified in the Krajisnik's case that it was a respect he enjoyed, not authority. But, did we see any of those "wrong" orders of his own? And even if we did, which we didn't, what it has to do with the President?) Plavšić herself openly supported Serbian paramilitary units and invited them to BiH to support the war efforts and was a link between these units and the Bosnian Serb leadership.¹¹⁰⁰⁷

Here is the para 3261 of the Judgment, containing this assertion: Plavšić openly supported paramilitary units, or "weekend warriors" as she called them, and during a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in November 1992, she openly invited them—including Arkan's men and the White Eagles—to "send their volunteers to help the defence of the Serbian people in [RS]".¹⁰⁴⁷² As stated above, Plavšić was an advocate of having all paramilitary units from territories where Serbs lived outside BiH come to assist them and was the "bridge" between Bosnian Serbs and the people who came from other states to assist in the conflict.¹⁰⁴⁷³ Mićo Stanišić and Plavšić clashed over this issue.¹⁰⁴⁷⁴ According to Mandić, Mićo Stanišić arrested paramilitary units and Plavšić would intercede on their behalf and have them released.¹⁰⁴⁷⁵ However, the main issue in this sentences of Ms. Plavšić to: "send their volunteers" – which is something quite opposite to what the Prosecution and the Chamber understood. The #issue of volunteers was regulated by the law and by an order of the Presidency of SFRY, which equalized them with the regular soldiers in both, the rights and obligations. Ms. Plavšić never backed any paralimitary group as such, but only as a volunteers, while Mico Stanisic and Momo Mandic, as the ministers of Interior and Justice respectively, knew that the “volunteers” didn’t behave properly, and opposed the member of Presidency. #How possibly this could have been used against anyone, particularly against this President?#) The Chamber further found that Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić attended meetings and events throughout the Municipalities and were informed of crimes committed during and after the take-over of the Municipalities and in detention facilities there; (Principally, what it has to do with this President? However, this is again erroneously used facts and erroneously made inference. If they had been informed in municipalities that there were crimes, that means that the municipality authorities were reporting it to the top officials seeking a help! #Was there any evidence that the three named persons, these high official celebrated this course of events#?!?!) furthermore, they were specifically informed of efforts to forcibly remove non-Serbs from the Municipalities which was the very result intended by the Bosnian Serb leadership from the inception of their plan.¹¹⁰⁰⁸ (One of the documents which the Chamber relied upon for this assertion is P5858, from 27 September, about Mr. Veinands’s arrival for the talks and the Conference on BiH, and nothing about any crimes in Municipalities, since it was Sept. 91 when it was not even clear that BiH would go for independence, let alone to have a war. Thus it seems that for the Chamber it was sufficient to establish that the President really existed and was there at the time and did some of his duties, to conclude that he must have been guilty!#)

3452. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that together with the Accused, Krajišnik, Koljević, and Plavšić shared the intent to effect the common plan to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory, and through their positions in the Bosnian Serb leadership and involvement throughout the Municipalities, they contributed to the execution of the common plan from October 1991 until at least 30 November 1995. (There is nothing like that in the referent paras: 3246 p. 61-61 pertains the military riots in BL 1993. 3246. Between April and May 1992 the Accused, Krajišnik, Koljević, Plavšić, Đerić, and Bogdan Subotić met often to discuss a number of issues pertaining to the conditions in municipalities and decisions were issued as a result of these meetings.¹⁰⁴³⁰ Krajišnik was also informed about events and operations in the Municipalities.¹⁰⁴³¹ For instance, the Chamber notes that Krajišnik visited Bijeljina, often with the Accused, and that there was a close relationship between the Bijeljina branch of the SDS and the SDS in Pale.¹⁰⁴³² Krajišnik and the Accused also visited Sanski Most on the occasion of the formation of the SDS there.¹⁰⁴³³ What does it mean, and what does it prove? This is #ridiculous#, and nobody should defend against such a #general and senseless assertions#. In one of those visits, the President and General Mladic forced the president of municipal assembly to resigne, only for not being strict about paramilitaries, and Mauzer to relinquish his “wild” rank of major (in the Arkan’s Army) and be degraded to a private. The President visited Sanski Most in 1990 “on the occasion of the formation of the SDS there”, and was it a crime? What does it have to do with the events in Sanski Most between May 92 and the November 95?)

3453. Turning to Mladić, beginning on 12 May 1992 when the Accused recruited and appointed him as Commander of the Main Staff, he commanded the highest body of the VRS pursuant to the authority delegated to him by the Accused, and issued regulations, orders, and instructions, implementing orders issued by the Accused.¹¹⁰⁰⁹ (Is it by itself a crime? Which of those regulations, orders and instructions were unlawful? Except for the Directive No. 7, which anyway wasn’t an executive order, and which the President didn’t read, there is no a single illegal order or other document.) Given his position and influence, Mladić was closely involved with, and was kept well-informed of, military developments throughout the Municipalities, including during the take-over of towns by units of the VRS and in detention facilities where non-Serbs were held between April 1992 and November 1995.¹¹⁰¹⁰ (#What towns had been taken over by units of the VRS#? There was no VRS before 20 May 92, there was the TO, autonomous for each and every municipality. That is why the war appeared to look like a chain of a municipal wars, beginning in a different times and on a different incentives! In the areas where the Patriotic League attacked the JNA, there was an action of the JNA, otherwise nobody protected the Serb people except the TO. #How this Chamber could conclude that non-Serbs had been detained between April 92 and November 95? Nobody was detained because for being “non-Serb”, because not all of the “non-Serbs” were detained, and even those who had been detained and found not suspected – had been released after the official investigation. This parts of the #Judgment looks like a Muslim propaganda#, or a campaign in media! Certainly doesn’t look like a legal document!) As stated above, the Chamber found that Mladić shared the objective with the Bosnian Serb leadership that Bosnian Serbs could not co-exist with Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and agreed with and promoted the plan to create a separate Bosnian Serb state and in particular took steps to ensure that the Strategic Goals were implemented. (So far, there is no any crime on Gen. Mladic’s side. Certainly, he would prefer the preservation of Yugoslavia, but between a unitary BiH under the fundamentalist authorities and a confederal BiH, not a single Serb would be confused – all and everyone would be for what Gen. Mladic is alleged to be! And that was the Serb legal and legitimate right, immediately recognized by the Badinter’s Commission, and by the UN and EC, who sponsored the ICFY!) The Chamber therefore finds that Mladić shared the intent to effect the common plan and contributed to the execution of the common plan through his role as Commander of the Main Staff and close involvement in operations by VRS units during which there were forced expulsions of non-Serbs and other crimes committed in the Municipalities. (This is a wrong assertion, and as all of a kind is not founded in the properly understood evidence. When and where the VRS “expelled” anyone?) Furthermore, the Chamber found that despite periods of tension and disagreements between the Accused and Mladić on certain aspects, the Accused maintained his role as Mladić’s superior and had de jure control over him, and exercised such control over him in fact throughout the conflict; thus, any temporary disagreements between the Accused and Mladić did not undermine their agreement or Mladić’s contributions to the common plan at any point between his appointment on 12 May 1992 until at least 30 November 1995.¹¹⁰¹¹ (What “plan” existed between Mladic and the President? If it is meant for an alleged JCE, the only problem is that such a common plan didn’t exist. What existed was the genuine right of the Serb people to influence their own future life!)

3454. With respect to Mićo Stanišić and Mandić, Stanišić was the Minister of the MUP in 1992 and Mandić was the Deputy Minister of the MUP until May 1992, and subsequently, the RS Minister of Justice from May to November 1992; both were closely involved in the creation and development of the Bosnian Serb MUP from as early as 1992.¹¹⁰¹² (The #creation and development of the Serb MUP can not by itself be a crime#. The MUP of the Serbs in BiH had been created and developed #on the basis of the Conference results, both in the Hague and in Lisbon-Sarajevo#. Look at the documents. If the Chamber is of an opinion that the Serbs in BiH shouldn’t achieve what had been agreed, but just to be passive and wait that the Muslim side trick them, as Ajanovic said (See: D302) then the Chamber should put it first in the Statut of the Tribunal! This way of promoting an illegal “rights” of the Muslim fundamentalist movement to be superior to the Serb rights guaranteed by the International Covenants, looks like a smuggling a precedent into the international justice!) The Chamber found that the directives with respect to the division of the MUP structures and the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP were communicated to and implemented at a municipal level. (So what? It had to be that way, because the MUP didn't exist just for the seat, but for the terrain. And it was appointed in the Conference, but even if it wasn't, when one sovereignty falls apart, those parts are entitled to recover in order to function! That was the main argument to proclaim Yugoslavia to be "dissolved"!) These were crucial steps in the take-over of Municipalities, as a separate police structure would allow Bosnian Serb authority to be maintained in the Municipalities.¹¹⁰¹³ (This is a complete misunderstanding of the very nature of crisis and events. The Serb authorities in the Municipalities were legal and legitimate since the elections 1990, and they had the same MUP units and structures. What changed was that the top structure was divided into the three MUPs, the Serb, the Croat and the Muslim MUP, as it was agreed on the Conference, and was envisaged by all the Conference documents and in all the peace plans! There was no any possibility to be otherwise, because the police had also its own municipal authorities!) The creation of this separate Bosnian Serb MUP was a means of achieving the objectives of the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership, and Mićo Stanišić and Mandić contributed to the execution of the common plan through their involvement in this process. (The entire Serb population decided and participated in the creation of their separate constituent unit. It happened far before the war, and when nobody was sure there was going to be a war, all happened through the democratic and political process. Is the UN court of the opinion that the Serbs had been deprived from a right for selforganisation and selfdefence? How it was possible that the UN Court incriminate the entire legal political life of the Serb community in BiH, while the UN itself supported all the plans that envisaged the separation of BiH into three constituent units, with the police and all other legislative and executive institutions? In one of the judgments in this Court it had been found that (in the occasion of A and B paper) there was nothing wrong to selforganise and organise another structure of authorities once a previous system had collapsed. (I think it was in the Krajisnik Judgment, to find@@@).

3455. In addition, as head of the MUP, Mićo Stanišić was informed of operations throughout the Municipalities during which there were forced expulsions of non-Serbs and other crimes committed.¹¹⁰¹⁴ (#Deadly combination#! This is a lie infirmed by this Court, illegally and without any basis in evidence, except a mass of the "Adjudicated Facts" and 92.bis statements! In the paragraphs 3301 – 3304 the Chamber is repeating what Davidovic said, but the Chamber neglected that it was Stanisic who tasked the MUP Special Brigade to arrest all the paramilitaries in Bijeljina, Brcko and Zvornik.) Mandić was responsible for the exchange of detainees through the Central Commission for the Exchange of Prisoners of War and Arrested Persons and was informed of non-Serbs being forcibly moved out of the Municipalities.¹¹⁰¹⁵ (The exchange was a legal operation, and all the sides to the war had these commissions. Pertaining to a "forcible movement" this is a shameless lie, for which the UN agencies, including this court, are responsible, if pretending that the Serb authorities did it! The Chamber doesn't have any reliable evidence that the authorities were responsible for any "forcible movement", nor there was any forcible movement!) Both Mićo Stanišić and Mandić were considered the "President's men"; Stanišić affirmed his allegiance to the President and the SDS stating that he had always followed the policies of the SDS Presidency and he would not allow himself to be separated from them.¹¹⁰¹⁶ (Why any president would take in his administration anyone who would be opposed to his policy? Was it a crime by itself? In such an attitude there is visible an anti-Serb orientation of the entire Court, which objects everything that the Serbs did, no matter was it legal or illegal! Furthermore, Mandić made statements during the conflict that demonstrated his participation in the shared common plan, including when he stressed “we should split Bosnia in two parts” and that Muslims and Croats would have rights after “we clean them out”.¹¹⁰¹⁷

(#JOKES, SAYINGS, PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS CONTRA DOCUMENTS# No a reasonable chamber would pay any attention to this telephone conversation between former colleagues, now on the two opposing sides. This was all a joke, as M. Mandic testified. And neither Mandic, nor his Croatian interlocutors were deciding about anything except about their jobs in Ministries. Their words, which had been recorded by the Muslim secret service, see: P01104: p. 4

MM: Well, the Turks are tapping the line, fuck them.

p. 10

BK: Who is recording this, you or...?

MM: Munja, motherfucker. He broadcasts everything that I talk about on television and radio. Did you know it?

“Munja” was their colleague from the previous MUP, and Mandic was aware that “Munja” was recording this conversation. Further, B. Kvesic gratified Mandic for the Roman latin letters on the RS money banknote, se P01104, p. 10

BK: I can see how smart you are. You wrote it in Latin script on one side, and on the other side you wrote it in Cyrillic script.

MM: We don't want to have a single-nation state, man. We want to have a democratic state where the Serbian people would be in the majority.

So, if the Chamber considered this conversation to be serious, how the Judges didn't notice this Mandic's sentence, that the Serbs do not intend to have a monoethnic state, which is contrary to all the Prosecution/Chamber's assertions.

And now the sentence that the Chamber liked so much to put it in the Judgment and take it as a basis of the convicting Judgment of the President, who neither participated, nor knew about this chatting; P01104, p.11

MM: So, Croats and Muslims would also have rights. Excuse me, Croats and the rest of Muslims... after we /?/ clean them out.

So, M. Mandic is telling to his Croatian colleague that his Croats are going to have all rights after being “cleaned out”. And if it is not a joke, there are no jokes at all!

3456. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that through their participation in the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP structure, its very goal being to achieve Bosnian Serb authority in the Municipalities, together with the fact that through their positions as Minister and Deputy Minister of the MUP, and later Minister of Justice, Mićo Stanišić and Mandić were closely involved with the units carrying out the operations to forcibly remove non-Serbs from the Municipalities as well as the commission of other crimes. As such, the Chamber finds that Mićo Stanišić and Mandić contributed to the execution of the common plan until the end of 1992. Given that both Mandić and Mićo Stanišić left their positions at the end of 1992, the Chamber cannot find that they were members of the Overarching JCE after this period. (Mr. Mandic was tried in the Bosnian Court, which is as fair towards the Serbs as this Tribunal is, and he was acquitted, although this Bosnian court would rather see him convicted. However, the Chamber was in the possession of so many documents issued and signed by these two Ministers which are in the sharpest contradiction to those inferences and assertions. Mr. Stanistic spent all his time in the Ministry of Interior in fighting for legality. The Chamber had seen his documents against any crime, and some of this documents are used against this President as a proof that there were crimes. Of course there were crimes, but the state organs fought against it!)

3457. Turning to Arkan and Šešelj, both provided and trained units of men who were involved in operations throughout the Municipalities during which forced expulsions of non-Serbs and other crimes occurred. (This way it may be said: #during the severe raining there happened forced expulsions of non-Serbs#. What does it have to do with Seselj and Arkan. It must be established that the rain was causing the expulsion, and also it has to be established that Arkan's and Seselj's men were liable. It was well known that Seselj and Arkan were a fierce opponents. It is also known that Seselj never had any command over his volunteers, who were within the JNA. Also, Arkan has a bad reputation, but no criminal reports at all. A lately disclosed document of the ECMM from Bijeljina and Arkan's presence there confirms that the Muslims had to say about Arkan only the best. See this paragraph of a lately disclosed document R1028281 – 8284. an ECMM report from March 16, 1993:

35. ARKAN'S INTERVIEW

THE OPPORTUNITY TO MEET "ARKAN" IN THE REGION OF BJN COULD BE OFFERED TO TEAM B3. SINCE HE IS ON THE LIST OF "SUPPOSED WAR CRIMINALS", THIS ENCOUNTER COULD BE DAMAGING FOR THE ECMM. HOWEVER, DURING OUR INVESTIGATIONS AT BJN, JANJA AND BATKOVIC, WE RECEIVED NUMEROUS TESTIMONIES OF MUSLIMS WHO SEE ARKAN AND HIS TIGERS AS A GUARANTEE FOR SECURITY IN THE REGION. OTHERS, SERBS AS WELL AS MUSLIMS, HAVE EXPLAINED TO US THAT THE TIGERS HAVE REDUCED THE LOSSES OF BELLIGERENT DURING COMBATS IN BRCKO AND BJN. THEY EVEN SEEM TO HAVE NEUTRALISED THE ACTIVITIES OF GANGS OF CRIMINALS FROM ANY ORIGIN WHO WERE LOOTING AND MURDERING THE INHABITANTS DURING THE BATTLE ITSELF.

THESE FACTS, WHETHER MYTH OR REALITY, DESERVE TO BE CHECKED WITH THE ONE WHO IS MAINLY INVOLVED - ARKAN HIMSELF.

That is how a reputation may delude even a chamber composed of professionals. But, the crucial question is: how the cours of trial would go on if this document had been timely diskosed, as it was a Prosecution's obligation? No matter the President didn't have a close relation with Arkan, and didn't even have any interaction, the President is in a position do prove a negative facts, that he didn't have any relation with Arkan, and absolutely no interest or contact with Vojkan Djurkovic, the truth is essential! In addition, the Chamber found that Arkan communicated with Plavšić during the conflict (Ms. Plavsic was in contact with Arkan of behalf of the Bosnian Presidency, not on behalf of the Republic of Srpska!) and the President and Mićo Stanišić were informed of the involvement of Arkan's men in the take-over of Municipalities and crimes committed by his units.¹¹⁰¹⁸ (This is not a serious finding! Arkan and his unit didn't take over any municipality, a small part of his unit remained in Zvornik and participated in fights, but no evidence that they committed any crime, and the document pasted above proves something quite contrary, and this was the period of still existing the BiH Presidency, while the RS Presidency hadn't been enacted yet!) Arkan was invited by the RS Presidency to participate in military operations in the Municipalities; (A lie#!!!) Arkan was also openly praised by Plavšić and the Accused for his contributions to the efforts to defend the Bosnian Serbs throughout the conflict.¹¹⁰¹⁹ (A lie#!!! His uinit was praised only for a proper participation in defence in the fall 95!) Even as he left BiH, Arkan repeated his commitment to the Accused to return to defend the "Serbian territory" if called upon by the Accused.¹¹⁰²⁰ (This "finding" relies upon the para 3198 of the Judgment, which is as follows: 3198. With regard to Arkan's men and Šešelj's men specifically, the Chamber concludes that the Accused knew that they were operating in BiH during the spring of 1992 and that they were invited by the RS Presidency to operate in conjunction with local authorities and forces.¹⁰³¹⁵ The Chamber also notes the Accused's direct interaction with Arkan and Šešelj and, moreover, that in May 1992

*the Accused invited, without Mladić's knowledge, Arkan's men to participate in operations in the Sarajevo area.*¹⁰³¹⁶ Here is how this is wrong: Seselj's men present in any battlefield, including BiH in the spring 92 were exclusively within the JNA and under their command. Even Mr. Seselj was acquitted in this Court. As far as it is concerned with Arkan's men, they had been present in Bijeljina on 1 to 3 April 1992, #while the President didn't have any authority over the Bosnia and Hercegovina#, since it was the "old" BiH, before the recognition, and the BiH Presidency was in charge. Apart from the facts that Arkan's men didn't commit any crime this time, the President had nothing to do with this presence of the Arkan's men. The "President's direct interaction with Arkan and Seselj must be another crime which is not envisaged either by the domestic judicial system, or by the Statute of this court. And with Arkan there was no "direct interaction", while Mr. Seselj was a very respected member of the anti-communist opposition to which the President belonged also. As far as the "finding" that the President invited the Arkan's men" in Sarajevo in 1992, this is another lie, which could have been easily checked in the documents and intercepts from the time, see: D01248, of 15 May 92, p.4

Legija: All the things he said, forget about it, that was not adopted, we came here and started organizing things on our own initiative, you know?

Legija, the main Arkan's man said that what they had been promised by someone was not adopted, and that they "came here and started organizing things on our own initiative" but let us see further: p. 12, Legija and Arkan talking:

Legija: Well, to start with, you know that DRAGIŠIĆ who..

Who called us and all.

RAŽNATOVIĆ: Yes.

Legija: Well, none of it was true, and he did not hook us up with anyone. Nothing, he completely deceived us.

Legija: And now I'll have to see, I'll have to find a solution.

And as for Dragiša, give him what he fucking deserves.

Therefore, the Arkan' men had been invited by a private person, some Dragisic, who lived in Belgrade, who was not authorized by anyone, and couldn't connect them to anyone. It was not he President, otherwise it would be said in this conversation! Further, se D03705, a letter of Gen. Subotic, the Minister for Defence, explaining to a municipality the issue of volunteers, their rights and obligations. D03705, p.1 and 2

The Army of Republika Srpska is the only legal and legitimate armed force tasked with the defence of the sovereignty, territory, independence and the constitutionality of Republika Srpska (Article 1, Law on the Army).

Individual volunteers or volunteer units, who, upon their request, enlist in the Army of Republika Srpska, shall have the same status rights as the active and reserve force of the Army, but also the same obligations and duties as members of the Army of Republika Srpska.

1. Volunteers and volunteer units shall wear uniforms and insignia proscribed as the uniforms and insignia of the Army of Republika Srpska (Article 4, Decision on the Establishment of the Army of Republika Srpska)

2. Volunteer units shall be involved in the formational and organisational structure of the Army, and the commanding and utilization of these units shall be based on principles of unity of command, single authority and obligation to implement decisions, commands and orders issued by superior officers, i.e. the Army Command (Article 173, Law on the Army).

If the volunteers and volunteer units fully accept the conditions (obligations and duties) stated under points 1 and 2 of this document, they shall be allowed to enlist in the Army of Republika Srpska and participate in the Army tasks. However, if they do not accept the aforementioned conditions, they shall be thanked for their good will, and their engagement shall be disallowed.

See further: and another at least one intercept, which shows that Arkan's men weren't welcome in Sarajevo, and that their commander Legija couldn't get in touch with the President. See P5675:

“Captain Legija”:	They look at us as if we are from another planet. And now that guy Mladić arrived, I had an argument with him today ...
Ražnatović Željko:	Why, what was with Mladić.
“Captain Legija”:	Well, we stopped 7.200 refugees...
“Captain Legija”:	And I suggested to Mladić to exchange them for the barracks there.
“Captain Legija”:	You know, we are humane people, that kind of bullshit and Mladić told me after they said that to check it out with my men.
Ražnatović Željko:	What did he say to you?
“Captain Legija”:	That I should check it out with my men.
“Captain Legija”:	They just don't want to accept us for who and what we are.
Ražnatović Željko:	Yes, yes.
“Captain Legija”:	I don't think I can argue with them anymore. These people from up there are rather going to arrest me.
“Captain Legija”:	Or this Karadžić guy up there. They are holding hands with the Muslims up there.
“Captain Legija”:	All what they do is arguing over who will be in charge, and nobody wants to talk about how to organise the attack this offensive to take Sarajevo.
Ražnatović Željko:	Exactly.
“Captain Legija”:	I talked with Šulc and Bojke and I don't know I think the best would be to go back there.
Ražnatović Željko:	That would be the best. Go and check whether there is any chance that you take the helicopter from there?

##”They just don't want to accept us for who and what we are!” could it be more clear##? Or: “These people from up there are rather going to arrest me. “Up there” meant Karadzic and Pale, i.e. the top officials of the RS.. Or “this Karadzic guy up there. They are holding hands with the Muslims up there”, and all other what the two interlocutors said, totally and definitely rebut everything the Prosecution alleged and the Chamber “found” about the President attitude towards the paramilitaries, and Arkan,' men in particular.)

5458. Regarding Šešelj, he was in frequent contact with the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership and supported the policies of the SDS. More specifically, Šešelj advocated for a homogeneous Greater Serbia which involved the unification of all Serb lands and the removal of the non-Serb population; as such he clearly shared the common plan. (This is also ridiculous!!! Mr. Seselj always explained, many times, including in the court room, that there wouldn't be any differentiation of a non-Serbs, since he considered all the Catholics and Muslims to be of the Serbian origine, i.e. the considered as the Serbs all belonging to the Serb culture and language regardless of their religious affiliation. But, this kind of charging an President for knowing somebody, a distinguished professor of law, a publicist and a colleague from the political life, is too much even for Stalin.) He sent large groups of SRS volunteer fighters to assist the Bosnian Serbs in BiH in the implementation of the common plan throughout the conflict and contributed to the execution of the common plan as such.¹¹⁰²¹ (So, #the Chamber is pushing forward in spite of the facts#! The volunteers came in accordance with the law and the decision of the Yugoslav Presidency, and they acted exclusively under the JNA#, and later the VRS command. Beside that, Mr. Seselj did have many followers throughout Bosnia, and if they checked to the JNA as a members of the Radical Party, it didn't necessarily mean they came from Serbia!)

3459. The Chamber therefore finds that Arkan and Šešelj both contributed to the common plan as envisaged by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership by providing and training men who were involved in operations throughout the Municipalities during which there were forced expulsions of non-Serbs and other crimes were committed. (#Wrong findings, wrong inference, everything wrong!# The Seselj's men didn't exist as a formation, because they had all been integrated in the JNA, and after the JNA withdrew, there wasn't any Seselj's group from Serbia in the VRS. Further, although some young man had been followers and members of the Seselj's SRS (Serbian Radical Party) all of them were from BiH, and none of them were independent, except for a short time some domestic group in Ilidza, which didn't fight, and didn't receive orders from anyone. The group had been banned, dismantled and deprived from a facilities where they had been accommodated. Another Seselj's fan, Vaske, participated in disabling this group. Arkan's men came to BiH, and left it before the President seised any power, and didn't return before 1995, when they had accepted the control of the RS MUP.

Another wrongness is that the training of the Seselj's and Arkan's man were aimed as the Chamber stated in this para. All of it was far before anyone knew that there may be a war in BiH, and it was because of the war in Slovenia and in Croatia, while the President didn't have any office in the BiH authorities. If some groups proclaimed themselves, or others proclaimed them as Seselj's men, it doesn't mean that they really were "Seselj's" man!)

3460. With regard to the evidence presented in this case in relation to Slobodan Milošević and his membership in the JCE, the Chamber recalls that he shared and endorsed the political objective of the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership to preserve Yugoslavia and to prevent the separation or independence of BiH and co-operated closely with the Accused during this time. The Chamber also recalls that Milošević provided assistance in the form of personnel, provisions, and arms to the Bosnian Serbs during the conflict.¹¹⁰²² However, based on the evidence before the ¹¹⁰²¹ See paras. 3327–3330. Šešelj also stated there was no joint criminal enterprise between the Accused, himself, and other individuals to expel Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and that the Accused did not have an antagonistic attitude towards Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. D3665 (Witness statement of Vojislav Šešelj dated 1 June 2013), paras. 31–35, 39, 41; D3667 (Transcript of Vojislav Šešelj's press conference, 26 March 1992), p. 20; Vojislav Šešelj, T. 39600–39605 (10 June 2013). The Chamber does not find this evidence to be reliable. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber considered that Šešelj had a clear self-interest in testifying in this regard and his evidence was marked by political statements. Understood! How any Serb would tell the truth?

¹¹⁰²² See paras. 3275–3288.

Chamber regarding the diverging interests that emerged between the Bosnian Serb and Serbian leaderships during the conflict and in particular, Milošević's repeated criticism and disapproval of the policies and decisions made by the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership,¹¹⁰²³ the Chamber is not satisfied that there was sufficient evidence presented in this case to find that Slobodan Milošević agreed with the common plan. (At least, a bit of truth, but just a bit: namely, it is correct that President Milosevic wasn't in accord with the Accused, and that there were the ideological differences among them, but not regarding Yugoslavia, but the second part is senseless, because there was no any "common plan"! Or, if President Milosevic "didn't agree" with a "common plan" #we do not have any evidence that he was aware of an existence of a common plan, and was able to reject his participation#?!?!)

3461. Finally, with respect to Jovica Stanišić and Franko Simatović, head and deputy head of the SDB, respectively, the Chamber recalls that Arkan's men and the Red Berets were subordinated to them and that they sent units to BiH which were involved in take-over operations in the Municipalities during the conflict; Stanišić and Simatović were also involved in establishing and monitoring training camps for Bosnian Serbs.¹¹⁰²⁴ However, the Chamber is not satisfied that there was sufficient evidence presented in this case to find that Jovica Stanišić and Franko Simatović agreed with the common plan. (Did the Chamber establish that the named officials of Serbia knew about any "common plan" at all? The criticism from President Milosevic, President Bulatovic and others had been motivated, first of all, #by a misinformation and propaganda, which couldn't be checked because of the broken communications between the two leaderships, as well as because of a frustrations of the FRY leadership with the refusal of the RS leaders and people to accept their suggestions pertaining to the peace plans. However, the period for which the Chamber finds to be a period when a majority of the charged crimes had been committed there was a sufficient communication, which certainly would be cut immediately, had the FRY leaders been convinced that the RS leadership was involved, or liable for the chaos in the first year of war! Anyway, #since the Chamber accepted the Prosecution allegations about the common plan, agreed by so many persons, and known to so many persons and institutions, how come nobody in Yugoslavia and surrounding countries didn't know about that, and how come the international intelligence never found any evidence, not even a clue indicating that such a plan existed?# We have heard the President Bulatovic testimony, and him saying that on a mere gossip that the Prime Minister was in favour of killing the non-Serbs – the leadership of Serbia and FR Yugoslavia reacted fiercely and decided to quit all relations to the RS officials, see: @@@)

3462. The Chamber therefore finds beyond reasonable doubt that the Accused, Momčilo Krajišnik, Nikola Koljević, Biljana Plavšić, Ratko Mladić,¹¹⁰²⁵ Mićo Stanišić,¹¹⁰²⁶ Momčilo Mandić,¹¹⁰²⁷ Željko Ražnatović (Arkan), and Vojislav Šešelj were members of the Overarching JCE and that they formed a plurality of persons who acted pursuant to the common plan that existed between October 1991 and 30 November 1995 as defined above.

iii Scope of common plan

¹¹⁰²³ The Chamber notes that the relationship between Milošević and the Accused had deteriorated beginning in 1992; by 1994, they no longer agreed on a course of action to be taken. Furthermore, beginning as early as March 1992, there was apparent discord between the Accused and Milošević in meetings with international representatives, during which Milošević and other Serbian leaders openly criticised Bosnian Serb leaders of committing "crimes against humanity" and "ethnic cleansing" and the war for their own purposes. See paras. 3280, 3289–3297.

¹¹⁰²⁴ See paras. 3312, 3314–3315, 3317–3320.

¹¹⁰²⁵ The Chamber finds that Ratko Mladić was a member of the Overarching JCE from 12 May 1992.

¹¹⁰²⁶ The Chamber finds that Mićo Stanišić was a member of the Overarching JCE until the end of 1992.

¹¹⁰²⁷ The Chamber finds that Momčilo Mandić was a member of the Overarching JCE until the end of 1992.

30 November 1995, the Chamber had regard to its findings that in internal discussions among Bosnian Serb leaders it was clear that the forcible movement of the population had occurred and had taken place in accordance with instructions received from the highest level of the Bosnian Serb leadership and was well planned.¹¹⁰²⁸ (This is a #blatant forgery# and an unacceptable construct. Let us see on what evidence it was based: see the first part of fn. 11032 below: The Chamber notes that Defence witnesses testified, inter alia, that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership (i) pursued policies which tried to preserve peace; (ii) tried to accommodate and respect the rights of non-Serbs; and (iii) did not support or plan the forcible movement of the population or the commission of crimes against non-Serbs". After numbering at least 12 (twelve) the most distinguished witnesses, among whom were at least three former or current presidents of republics, a professor of Law and member of the SANU – Serbian Academy of sciences and Arts, the Chamber laconically concluded: "However, the Chamber finds that their testimony was marked by contradictions, evasiveness, and clear indicators of partiality and bias, or was based on their own unfounded assessment or impressions. The Chamber found that these factors undermined their evidence and does not find their evidence in this regard to be reliable. While Ronald Hatchett also testified that the Accused was committed to ending fighting and saving civilians, this observation was only limited to his own assessment during meetings with the Accused in 1994 and is thus of limited weight." In addition to these testimonies there are many "strictly confidential" orders, recommendations and appeals to preserve the civilians, and also many internationally mediated agreements and obligations that the refugees are to return and recover their property. Contrary to these firm evidence there is nothing except the Prosecution allegations unsupported by any evidence, and a very few testimonies of the adversaries and political opponents.) The Chamber also had regard to its findings that the Accused and the other members of the Overarching JCE were not only informed about the forcible take-over of towns and municipalities by Serb Forces, but were also aware that this had led to massive demographic changes through the forcible displacement of non-Serb civilians and resulted in ethnic homogenisation, which they supported.¹¹⁰²⁹ This senseless assertions (those are not "findings" but the Prosecutor's assertions" are commented below, under the fn. 11039, however, all the construct of the Overarching JCE comprising a permanent removal of the Bosnian Muslims and Croats from the Serb territories in BiH is senseless, and must be desmentleed immediately, on the basis of facts that are as firm as concrete. What does it mean that the President was "not only informed about the forcible take-over of towns and municipalities by Serb Forces, but were also aware that this had led to massive demographic changes through the forcible displacement of non-Serb civilians and resulted in ethnic homogenisation, which they supported"? Being informed doesn't mean that the President or his associates did anything to produce such a process, and being aware of the process could only produce more the President orders and obligations to revert the situation once it would be possible. But the conclusion that it all “resulted in ethnic homogenisation, which they supported” is a nasty and unacceptable forgery. Neither the Serbs in Bosnia “supported” this kind of homogenisation, nor it could be recognized at the end of the war. The Chamber had a sufficient evidence that the homogenisation pertained only to the creation of the boundaries, so that all the border settlements may decide to belong to one or other entities. Here are the facts that nobody can deny:

Milorad Dodik, T. 36842–36843, 36914 (9 April 2013). The Chamber notes however that Dodik's evidence was marked by contradictions, indicators of insincerity, and partisanship which undermined the reliability of his evidence in this regard. (How possibly the main political opponent to the Accused could have been undermined because of the "partisanship?)"

1. the Serb side wanted to avoid the war at any cost, and did everything to have the war avoided, the Chamber has the evidence from Secretary Cyrus Vance;
2. the Serb side made many concessions for that purpose;
3. the Serb side had offered many abilities to have every ethnicity to be safe and satisfied, such as forming of their own municipalities regardless of a canton or constituent unit it belongs to, and this possibility remained even when the war broke out;
4. There was no a single day without one of the Conferences on BiH going on;
5. The results, proposals, recommendations and agreements of all of these conferences gave the Serbs in Bosnia the right to proceed with their activities to establish their high autonomy in BiH;
6. No matter what different people were chatting during telephone conversations, or even what some MPs may have said in any occasion, the only official in charge of the rights to return was the President. He was the one who, according to the Constitution, represented the Republika Srpska as a state – entity, and if the President agreed that the refugees will have all the rights to return and to regain their properties, it was the only to be counted, and no allegation about a “permanent removal” could survive;
7. The President had proposed, as early as April 22 1992, in his Platform (see D01587) that no a forcefully taken territories should be recognised, which meant that a war was senseless, 5. Public obligation of all the sides in BiH not to accept a “fait-accompli” policy, nor the policy derived from communist heritage and that no advantage achieved by force should be justified.

king into account the fact that the Conference on BiH was going permanently, that the President accepted the principles of conferences, particularly that the final settlement to be done on the Conference, both pertaining to political and territorial matters, including rights of refugees, the Overarching JCE was impossible. NO A PERMANENT REMOVAL WAS POSSIBLE! How the Prosecution, and now even the Chamber imagine this? That wasn't a Wild West, there was the conference and regulations, and nobody could count on a fait accompli in any sense.)

The Chamber found that the Overarching JCE members, including the President, promoted and shared the objective of creating a Bosnian Serb state which was ethnically pure and contiguous Serb areas that would require a re-distribution of the population.¹¹⁰³⁰ (Big deal, the evidence of such a huge charge is a two paragraphs of the very same Judgement. Here is a paraphrase on which the Chamber is relying as on a firm evidence for this “finding” and assertion, while it is another assertion of the Chamber, without any corroboration: 2896. The Chamber further finds that the Accused promoted the implementation of the Strategic Goals as a means of creating a Bosnian Serb state and warned against including “too many of our enemies” in the state which they would create. In doing so the Accused emphasised the first ¹¹⁰³⁰ See paras. 2896, 2898.

Strategic Goal and the importance of separation from the other two ethnic communities in BiH. The Accused was adamant that this ethnic separation was necessary and acknowledged that the “freedom struggle” of the Serbs had not been finished and would result in many casualties and again made reference to the historic crimes committed against the Serbs. The Chamber finds that the first Strategic Goal and the separation of the national communities was the most important to the Bosnian Serb leadership and their objectives. (First, the President said “a #separation of states”#, not population, see P956:

The Serbian side in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Presidency, the Government, the Council for National Security, which we have set up, have formulated the strategic priorities, that is to say, the strategic goals for the Serbian people. The first such goal is separation from the other two ethnic communities - separation of states.

The same wanted all the secessionist Republics, a separation from others and forming their own states. What is a difference between this para, and the para above, both are empty assertions, nothing else. Let us see the next on which the Chamber counts in this fn. 11041: 2898. The speeches of other Bosnian Serb deputies and Bosnian Serb leaders demonstrate that they supported the Strategic Goals and the approach advocated by the Accused. It is also clear that war, the military conquest of territory, and the movement and resettlement of the population were envisaged by the Bosnian Serb leadership in the implementation of the Strategic Goals. The Accused promoted and shared the objective of creating a Bosnian Serb state which was ethnically pure and creating contiguous Serb areas which would require a redistribution of the population. So, #the Chamber is testifying in their own case against the President#, quoting one empty para to support another empty para, all full of empty assertions based on nothing, or on a wrong understanding of the Serbian language and words of the President. The President never said that it was about the separation of the ethnic communities, but a “state separation”. The President never said that there was an objective of “eliminating the Drina as a border between Serbian states, (see para 2897) but between the worlds, meaning East and West, see the transcript of the 16th session of the Serb Assembly). What somebody may have changed while publishing it in the Official Gazette is not the President’s liability. Further, the assertion that a “contiguous Serb areas would require a redistribution of population” is wrong, mean and unfair, because the Chamber had enough of evidence that the President himself was extremely opposed to any redistribution of populations, see: (intercept with Milosevic, June 91, see D1282:

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Of course it would be a difficult negotiation and a great problem and how to use each principle. We didn’t want to leave and we still believe that it would be a pity if Bosnia were to fall apart. That is our basic stand and when it comes to it, we will announce that everybody, every party should announce their own position.
Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ	Your position should be that you are against secession and that you want Bosnia to stay in Yugoslavia!

The first ideas of the division of Bosnia came from Mr. Izetbegovic, see D@@@ and then from the Croats, see further D1282

Radovan KARADŽIĆ	Will the majority of Muslims decide to get their cantons? There was an option that the Croats proposed that Bosnia should be independent, in a union of independent states. And that it should completely become a canton, as national cantons and that it should be independent within the union of independent states. We asked them to elaborate this thoroughly because we haven’t ... thought about it yet. And when they thoroughly elaborate this situation, then we would take a look.
Slobodan MILOŠEVIĆ	Don’t waste time on that, nothing is to become of that!
Radovan KARADŽIĆ	No, I want to see what they have to say. I want to see what it would look like. Can then such a Bosnia divided in cantons stay within the Federation?!

the response to journalists 4 May 92 in Politika, and other) But, let us see what the President sent as a message to the Muslim population in the RS, a public appeal, in May 92, D00119, p. 1

The fragmentation of Yugoslavia also led to the transformation of Bosnia-Herzegovina in three units. A number of Muslims and Croats is to live in the Serb Bosnia-Herzegovina and a number of Serbs is to live in the Muslim and Croat Bosnia-Herzegovina. It may be you that is to live in the Muslim, or in the Serb Bosnia-Herzegovina. That will depend on political agreement, which is inevitable. For the time being, you are in the Serb Bosnia-Herzegovina and you are to enjoy the same rights as Serbs do. Many Muslim villages have laid down their arms and are enjoying full protection of the Serb army and Serb state organs.

We want you to live peacefully at home, but we must be sure that you will not attack us from behind. Therefore you must lay down your weapons and become civilians, in order to enjoy the protection of civilians stipulated by the Geneva Convention. In accordance with that convention, we shall secure for you safety at your homes. According to the same convention, we shall let you pass with all your property in the direction of your own choosing and we shall allow you to return when the war is over.

So, there is no ambiguity: the most responsible official of the RS is publicly committed to the fair treatment of the Muslims and Croats in the Serb areas. He is also informing the minorities that at the end of the war they may be living in their constituent unit, because it will depend on the political agreement “which is inevitable” but meanwhile they shouldn’t fight and should be civilians and enjoy all the rights as the Serbs, to stay or to leave, but to return when the war is over.

Here is a document about evacuation of the Muslim civilians from village Arapusa, Bos. Krupa municipality, on May 1 1992, agreed between the Serb authorities and representatives of the population: D01353, 1 May 92:

- All residents of Arapuša and refugees from Bosanska Krupa (460 people in total) will be evacuated.
- The convoy will be guarded by forces from the battalion from Donji Petrovići under the command of Rajko DRLJAČA.
- After reaching the destination, the above-mentioned security forces will return to Donji Petrovići.
- After the convoy leaves Arapuša, the Battalion Command under Božo ERCEG will be responsible for providing security for the entire village of Arapuša and all movable and immovable property.
- On the basis of the agreement with the War Staff Command of the Serbian Municipality of Bosanska Krupa (with Mr Miroslav VJEŠTICA), as soon as peacetime conditions have been created, the Command is obliged to ensure the safe return of the residents to their homes in Arapuša and the refugees to Bosanska Krupa.

This is a manner of an evacuation of the population from the combat zones, within the same municipality, and there were a written guarantees for a safe return.

3464. The Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference to draw from all of the evidence analysed earlier in this Judgement is that the crimes of deportation, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and persecution (forcible transfer and deportation) were intended to achieve the objective of the Overarching JCE and that the President and other members of that JCE shared the intent for these crimes. With respect to forcible transfer and deportation as underlying acts of persecution, the Chamber also finds that the President and the other members of the Overarching JCE shared the specific intent to discriminate on the basis of the identity of the victims as Bosnian Muslims or Bosnian Croats.¹¹⁰³¹ (This kind of inferences are damaging the reputation of the UN and this

¹¹⁰³¹

In addition, based on all the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Accused was aware that his conduct as discussed further below was part of a widespread and systematic attack directed against a civilian population.

Court. Such a markant conclusions shouldn't be based only on inferences, there must be a real evidence. There are more that one more reasonable inference, such as the chaos of the civil war, antagonisms on the local level, revenges for something that adversaries had committed some days prior to incidents. However, it should never be accepted that there was a forceful displacement of population. However, so far nobody had shown a single real evidence. Could anyone imagine a forceful displacement of population without incidents, resistance, skirmishes, journalists recording such an event, wounded people, a formidable armed force???? Nobody ever reported about any force, or any presence of the armed soldiers, or any numerous presence at all. On the other hand, there were to many evidence to the contrary: the waiting lists, composed only by those who wanted to cross the front line to their ethnic majority territory, and to or three intermediaries, checking whether the applicants obtaine all the required papers and thus fulfilled the conditions to leave. In some municipalities there were up to 15 papers and receipts required, which was rather an obstacle to departure.

3465. Similarly, the Chamber also had regard to the manner in which the take-over of Municipalities was carried out by Serb Forces and the number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who were residing in the Municipalities prior to their take-over. There was no a single example of so called "take over by the Serb Forces". Which municipality was taken over by forces? All of the municipalities in question were the municipalities with the Serb majority and the legal authorities with the Serb majority, or there was a substantial part of population of the Serb affiliation. In such a Serb municipalities, where there was a substantial presence of the Muslim or Croat population, the Serb authorities proposed that each ethnic community form it's own municipality, as in many cities all over the world, and to establish it's organs of power, security, education, anything that could function apart, while a municipal services that were common would be run by a common roof institutions. Nobody can deny it! If so, there is no a bit of the JCE. Let us see what Mr. Alija Izetbegovic said at the ICFY in the Hague, at the ICFY on 18 October 1991, just after the Serbs left the Assembly session:

TRANSCRIPT OF 2ND PEACE CONFERENCE ON YUGOSLAVIA, THE HAGUE 18 October 1991.

!D07816 p.25.26

Alija IZETBEGOVIĆ

I would like to say a few words about what has been said – about the specific situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina with respect to the fact that it is a state of three constituent peoples.

Yes, Bosnia and Herzegovina is a state of the Serbian people. Serbs in Bosnia and Herzegovina are not an ethnic minority. Representatives of the Serbian people, that is, the party which aspires to represent the Serbian people, present ideas about the possibility of a special status of sorts, that is, autonomy, political autonomy within Bosnia and Herzegovina in areas inhabited by the Serbian people.

All such options are possible and it appears that they are not in contradiction with the text of the document you submitted.

Therefore, I see no problem in finding a satisfactory solution.

Naturally, I believe that the Serbian people should have their say in the matter and be a constituent part of the state of Bosnia and Herzegovina, in view of its status as a pillar of the state. This is the case now. I would like to point out that the President of the National Assembly of Bosnia and Herzegovina is a Serb; nine of the 23 ministers are Serbs and some of them head key ministries; either 72 or 75 members of parliament are Serbs; in more than 50 municipalities, in 46 or 47 municipalities, the Municipality Presidents are Serbs, and so on.

Thus, the status of the Serbian people is not on paper alone, in the Constitution. They constitute a real segment and a proportional part of the authorities. No one has yet come out and said that Serbs in Bosnia and Herzegovina are threatened, that their rights are threatened. On the contrary, I believe that the status of Serbs in power, especially those in the local authorities, is greater than their proportional number. According to the latest census, Serbs constitute 31.3% of the population of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

It is my understanding that the position of the Serbian people in the existing constitutional documents is satisfactory, that is, good, and that it can be resolved within the framework of these documents in keeping with the positions you adopted here.

Thank you.

So, #before the war, the Serbs had a legitimate substantial power in more than 50 municipalities#, out of 109 total number, while only Sarajevo had 10 municipalities. #THERE WAS NO ANY “TAKE-OVER OF MUNICIPALITIES”#What would be a need that the Serbs “take over” any new municipality?Such an ignorance of the facts is intolerable! However, the “International Community” was fully aware of the anti-constitutional nature of the Muslim action, as it was recorded in the Conference documents, see:

: 24/12/91 - 16:54
: hagg1837/cpeu1985

9. President Izetbegovic emphasised that the EC Ministerial decision of 16 December had obliged him to ask for the recognition of the independence of Bosnia-Herzegovina; he had no other choice. He was confident that this decision would be supported by his parliament (both the Presidency and parliament endorsed the decision on 20 December with only the 2 Serbian members of the 7 strong Presidency and all Serbian representatives of the parliament opposing the move). However, President Izetbegovic was evasive when asked to explain, in view of the opposition of one of the three nations forming Bosnia-Herzegovina, whether the act was constitutional, although he claimed that it was. Representatives of the Serbian community in Bosnia-Herzegovina met Lord Carrington and stressed that Izetbegovic's act was unconstitutional and that the Serbs in the republic wished to continue to be associated with the "rump" Yugoslavia and not an independent Bosnia-Herzegovina. Izetbegovic said that he very much wanted UN peace keeping forces deployed in Bosnia-Herzegovina as soon as possible. All of Lord Carrington's interlocutors feared that Bosnia-Herzegovina's request for recognition would lead to armed conflict in the republic.

The EC was aware that there was #neither constitutional, nor political preconditions to require and grant the independence#! Also, it was not only the President who predicted that the "BiH request for recognition would lead to armed conflict in the republic"! what now? Are the all of them responsible for what happened in the civil war, or there is an exclusive responsibility on those who knew that the recognition would cause a war, but proceeded with the unlawful and anti-constitutional acts? For that reasons Mr. Badinter in his opinion No. 4 recommended that BiH is not qualified for the recognition, because one of the three constituent nations, a pillar of the state, the Serbs, didng agree. However, this referendum was also a big cheat, because it didn't have a required majority, nor it was confirmed and ratified in the Assembly. Some of the internationals assisted a fraud in political life and democracy without precedent!

With respect to the widespread practice of unlawfully arresting and detaining non-Serbs prior to removing them from Bosnian Serb claimed territory, the Chamber notes that there were repeated attempts by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership to justify the existence of detention facilities in which they knew that civilians were detained. (The Chamber doesn't have a single evidence for these assertions. In many municipalities there didn't exist any detention facility, nor there was any crimes, and it entirely depended on the conduct of citizens regardless of ethnicity. In municipalities where there was combat activity of the Muslim side, there were a detention facilities, because there were many captured combatants. There are a numerous examples and evidence that had a civilian been taken in and detained, immediately after established a fact, civilians were released. On the other hand, what was a percentage of the Muslim or Croat population that had a troubles, and how many had been detained? This data would ruin the Chamber's findings to dust!)

Promises were also made to international representatives to improve conditions and release detainees.¹¹⁰³² It had been fulfilled! However, the Chamber finds, in light of its factual findings with respect to the Municipalities, that these assurances were completely at odds with the reality on the ground. (First of all, it didn't entirely depend on the Serb side, but the Muslim/Croat sides made it impossible to improve anything. As they never started conflicts in some municipalities, they didn't stop their volatile actions in some other, but the Chamber prevented the Defence to depict the both sides of coin. Neither the Prosecution nor the Chamber ever submitted any credible evidence that the conditions in detention facilities

See Section IV.A.3.a.v.B: Knowledge of inadequate conditions and mistreatment of non-Serbs in detention centres. (So what? The Serbs were under a total sanctions, and not prepared for a war, and it wasn't possible to do better!)

could have been better, but hadn't been improved deliberately. Without that, the Chamber couldn't infer as it did, namely that it was a crime of the Serb authorities. On the contrary, the Defence submitted a sufficient evidence about generally bad economic situation, a shortage of food, energy, water, medicines, and particularly about an unexpected development and a huge number of captured combatants. These facts can not be denied, and being so, this is shading another light on everything what the Chamber did.) This reality involved the unlawful arrest and detention of thousands of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats following the forcible take-over by Serb Forces of villages, towns, and municipalities, before they were ultimately transferred to other locations.¹¹⁰³³ (#There is no any village "taken over" by force, in which the Muslim forces didn't start the war against their Serb neighbours, or the JNA, or the VRS after 20 May 92.# There are many, many villages exclusively or predominantly Muslim or Croat, which didn't have any problems, but that entirely depended on them and their decision whether to fight, or to keep a civil life and be a civilians. This truth nothing can change. See the entire evidence, and in particular D2424 and P3788, E. Wulliamy reports! Regarding this matter, the villages that did have troubles with the Serb Army or police are a remarkable minority, i.e. not as a rule, but as an exception, while the villages that didn't have any trouble were in majority!) The Chamber finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were not only aware of these detention facilities but used unlawful detention at these facilities as a core element in achieving their objective of the permanent removal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory. (#THIS IS UNACCEPTABLE ACT OF THE CHAMBER#!The leadership didn't deal with the security matters, and detentions were in competence of the Army or the Police!# This is not true, and there is no evidence regarding to this. As Gen. Galic wrote, civilians evacuated from a combat zone were to be housed somewhere, and it was the most immediate to accommodate them in his barracks. He asked to cease with this practice and accommodate them somewhere else. From his order, see: D432 of 10 October 1992:

COMMANDS OF ALL SRK UNITS

Having in mind that there are occurrences of collecting women, children and old people of Muslim nationality and transferring them in Corps Command where are additional difficulties regarding their accommodation, feeding and taking care of the above mentioned categories of population, and in effort to organize this matter in the future, hereby I

ORDER

1. Women, children and old people from places that are not loyal to our system of government should secure on territories of municipalities of their previous staying in organization of civilian authorities, enabling that they are treated correctly, secure safety of their lives, accommodation and feeding.
2. Prisoners from combats should be sent to Corps Command with taking care of all measures for their safety during the trip. After their processing by officials from Corps Command, they will be placed in "Kula" Prison where they would be handed over on further treatment to Police officials and Commissions for exchange. Treat with prisoners pursuant with International Agreements.
3. For Muslims who stays loyal for sure, enable conditions for their life and work in accord with the possibilities of the community.

It is clear that he was well aware that these civilians #weren't detained, but only accommodated# while the fights were going on. That Order is the most illustrative example of the misunderstanding and abuse of the accommodation of civilians in a combat zone. This was an obligation provided by the law. If it happened that those civilians decided to be transferred to the Muslim territory, then it could have happened, such as from the Lukavica barracks or Kula prison, or Trnopolje camp, but the decision was always their, and no force was applied.) They also used the unlawful detention of civilians to secure the "exchange" of Bosnian Serbs detained by Bosnian Muslims. (No matter whether the warring sides were entitled to do a retorsion, i.e. a reciprocal measures, this didn't happen on the Serb side.

See Section IV.A.3.a.v.B: Knowledge of inadequate conditions and mistreatment of non-Serbs in detention centres.

There were such a demands from different locals, but the authorities never approved it, unless the civilians didn't want it to be done. The only quoted evidence was what Zupljanin said at a MUP meeting, but he only said that there were such a demands, while his attitude towards the issue was negative, and he never said that it had been carried out! See D447, p. 8

- The army and Crisis Staffs/Wartime Presidencies demand gathering as many Muslims as possible and leave such non-defined camps to the Internal Affairs /as printed/. The conditions in these camps are poor: there is no food, some individuals do not comply with the international standards /as printed/ because, among other things, the concentration centres are not appropriate or for other reasons.

#Proper conduct of the officials#! The “concentration centres” should be translated as “collection centres. What is the most important is the fact that a high MUP official, Zupljanin, was criticising this kind of demands, and particularly the conditions in the facilities. It is clear that this practice was #condemned by the MUP officials already in July 1992#, and it is obvious that there was no any deliberate worsening of the conditions, but it was an inevitable consequence of the abrupt hostilities among citizens! See further, the same D447, p. 8

It is necessary to reassess the current modes to organise the functioning of the police, according to exact plans in wartime conditions. Along with this, it is necessary to systematise a large number of active-duty and reserve police officers by the Rules of Procedure /as printed- for instance in Bosanska Dubica border lines and the role of the police have to be defined.

Because of the casualties (in Mrkonjić Grad 20 active-duty and reserve police members were killed in only one operation) the role of the police has to be defined, its direct engagement in combat activities, and related to this, the reinforcements. /One illegible sentence/. It is difficult to tell the exact number of

As seen, nobody was ready for a war, all the organisation was a peace time tipe, and on the side of authorities there was no any inclination to crimes! Or Mr. Bjelosevic, the Chief of the Doboj CSB, the same document D447, p. 10:

Interference of local politics-the typical example is Teslić, which should be a part of the Doboj centre but it is not - causes conflicts, so that it is necessary that the Crisis Staff or another institution decides where it belongs. Things were similar with Bosanski Šamac but the problem was solved as we took Modriča.

The people that the Army arrests or captures are brought over in groups and left without any documents regarding reasons for the arrest. Therefore the Army should take care of war prisoners and those who were arrested for reasons that the Internal Affairs are in charge of stay in the jurisdiction of the MUP, of course with proper paperwork.

(#Proper conduct of the officials# Both the Chiefs of the CSBs, Banja Luka and Doboj, described the chaotic situation which was not deliberately produced by the authorities, but on the contrary, the authority attitudes are reflected in the two Chiefs words! And the chiefs of the regional police were more critical than the Chamber, but a villain was not the President, but the civil war!) The Chamber therefore finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership shared the intent to unlawfully detain Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats as one of the means through which they could achieve their objective of ethnic separation. (This #sounds only as a gossip or a calumny#, because it is so far from any truth, and not corroborated by evidence. Again, the President kept repeating all the time, before the war and during the war, that nothing will be resolved by the force, and everything will be resolved on the Conference, as it really happened at the end. But only these two discussions of Zupljanin and Bjelosevic at a confidential MUP session are sufficient to rebut the sentence above!) The Chamber therefore finds that the only reasonable inference from this evidence is that the crime of persecution, through the underlying acts of unlawful detention and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures, was intended to achieve the objective of the Overarching JCE and that the Overarching JCE members, including the Accused, shared the intent for these crimes. With respect to these underlying acts of persecution, the Chamber also finds that the Accused and the Overarching JCE members shared the specific intent to discriminate against the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats on the basis of their identity.¹¹⁰³⁴

(This would be #the least reasonable inference#, and one of many more reasonable inferences would be what the two high MUP officers said on 11 July 1992: a general lack of everything, an unexpected abrupt of a civil war of everyone against everyone, a poverty of the country under the sanctions, a lack of preparations for a war, and so on! The Chamber had heard the Prime minister Lukic testifying on the occasion of a Croatian entity Herceg – Bosnia Prime Minister Prlic’s visit to Banjaluka in 1993, and his statements exactly contrary to what the Chamber inferred, see T.38836-37

Q. Could you please read the first two sentences. A. "My wish to visit Banja Luka to convince myself that Croatian people live here was realised today because political conditions in that regard have been established. Serbs and Croats in these areas did not wage war. The majority of Croats remained in Banja Luka which is as a result of a positive attitude of the Republika Srpska. Therefore, the departure of Croats from these areas should be prevented. In other words, the vacating of the apartments which should be regulated by law." This was said by Jadranko Prlic, the president of Herceg-Bosna whom I mentioned a few minutes ago. I had known him from before the war. Q. Thank you. What kind of a reaction did this provoke on the Croats in Banja Luka? A. The reactions were mostly positive, although some could be negative too. It wasn't always harmonious. It was not all wine and roses. The majority of politicians, however, understood that this was the direction to move in and this also gave us strength to continue working in this way.

And there was admitted D3621, see it:

"My wish to visit Banja Luka and to convince myself that Croatian people live here was realized today, because political conditions in that regards have been established. Serbs and Croats in these areas did not wage war. The majority of Croats remained in Banja Luka, which is a result of a positive attitude of the Republika Srpska. Therefore the leave of Croats from these areas should be prevented, respectively, the moving out from the apartments, which should be regulated by law"-as said today by Jadranko Prlic, president of Herceg Bosnia who is in an official visit to the Government of the Republika Srpska ,in a short meeting with the journalists.

When explaining relations between the Herceg Bosnia and Republika Srpska on the military plan, Mr. Prlic said that a great task has been accomplished because all frontlines were calmed down and truce was established at all battlefields. "The priority is to establish directions of economic cooperation between the two new states, Herceg Bosnia and Republika Srpska on the area of the former BIH, which is a beginning of establishing neighborly relations in general."

Nevertheless, as said by Mr. Prlic, "if we couldn't have lived together, we should continue living as friendly neighbors".

Mr. Prlic realised that if there was no any fightings, the human rights are preserved, and this meant that if the authorities had any possibility to prevent any bad event, the authorities would do that! And the Chamber had these evidences at their disposal, and therefore no inference was possible as a way to deliberation, because there are evidence!)

3466. Thus the scope of the Overarching JCE includes the crimes of deportation, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), persecution (forcible transfer and deportation), and persecution through the underlying acts of unlawful detention and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures ("JCE I Crimes"). However, having considered all of the relevant evidence, the Chamber finds that it is insufficient to demonstrate that the only reasonable inference is that the other acts of persecution charged in Count 3 of the Indictment or the crimes of murder and extermination charged in Counts 4, 5, and 6 of the Indictment were included in the common plan or intended by the Accused. (It is a miracle!!! However, there is no any evidence that the

In addition, based on all the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Accused was aware that his conduct as discussed further below was part of a widespread and systematic attack directed against a civilian population.

President contributed to any of those crimes, neither there is any reasonable explanation how that would be in his interests!) In coming to this conclusion, the Chamber has considered not only the evidence of the President's intent for the JCE I Crimes, but also that the President received information about the perpetration of crimes committed by Serb Forces against non-Serbs throughout the conflict, including that Serb Forces killed approximately 45 non-Serb civilians in Bijeljina in April 1992 and approximately 200 non-Serb detainees at Korićanske Stijene in August 1992 and continued to act in furtherance of the common plan. (First of all, if the Chamber had any evidence that the President had an intent for the JCE I Crimes, the Chamber wouldn't need any other additional corroboration as how he was "informed about crimes." What does it mean, he "was informed?" #The Serb Police (MUP Services) had informed the President about what they had been doing in investigations and prevention of the crimes!# The Services (a State Security, a Criminal Department and others) informed him just to know and could answer to anyone's question, but it was not supposed that the President do anything, because it was not in the realm of his duties. The President had every reason to be satisfied that the Services are doing their job. But, the two examples quoted in this paragraph are completely wrong, to the following reasons:

- 1. What has to be done to indicate that the Bijeljina incident didn't appear under the President's authority, since at that moment there was a unique BiH still functioning?
- 2. The Presidency was in charge, B. Plavsic and F. Abdic and J. Doko visited Bijeljina on behalf of the unique authorities of BiH, not on behalf of the Serb authorities.
- 3. The Serbs in Bijeljina didn't initiate the skirmish, it was the Muslim side and Capt. Hasan Tiric, who was tasked by General Karavelic to go to take control over Bijeljina on 31 March 92, see D1608, a Croatian Secret Service document:

Captain Labud /Swan/ (commander of the Patriotic League for the Tuzla-Doboj region). The official date of the unit's foundation is 31 March 1992. On that day, acting on orders from Vahid KARAVELIĆ and Captain Swan, Hase TIRIĆ, the present commander of the Black Swans unit, and about 15 members of the Patriotic League found themselves in Bijeljina with the task of forming a special purposes unit, and at that time he allegedly opposed VRS /Army of Republika Srpska/ forces in their attempt to take Bijeljina.

The allegation about Tiric's opposing the JNA further distant the President from this event, since neither there was any Serb army, nor the President had any official state office, nor the BiH common institutions had dissolved yet! 4. the first victims were the Serb civilians, 5. and there was no 45 Muslim victims, but up to ten the Serb victims! What any defence could do except to submit an evidence which rebut all the inferences and make them impossible and vain? How any reasonable chamber could neglect so obvious facts?) The Chamber is of the view that another reasonable inference available on the evidence is that while the President did not intend for these other crimes to be committed, he did not care enough to stop pursuing the common plan to forcibly remove the non-Serb population from the Municipalities. (This was not established, particularly from the standpoint what the President could have done, and did he do what he could. Without a specific intent, which was not established at the President's mens rea there must have been established whether the President deliberately missed to act, or he acted, but with a variety of success. As Mr. Okun said, he never considered the President orders to be disingenuous, but to the contrary, a very commendable, but these orders hadn't been implemented on the terrain, see: T.1818 THE WITNESS: Your Honour, could I make a brief statement in connection with what Dr. Karadzic just said? JUDGE KWON: Yes, please. THE WITNESS: Thank you. Dr. Karadzic, I'm surprised to hear you say that I alleged that your appeals were disingenuous. I said the opposite. I said they were praiseworthy, I said they were commendable, I said they had merit. I said they were not observed in the field, but I never President those documents of being anything but sincere. THE PRESIDENT: [Interpretation] Thank you, Mr. Ambassador. This is a very highly positioned international official, Mr. Okun, and his testimony didn't leave any doubt about the intent of the President. How can this be neglected, since it was clear that the witness wasn't prone to the Serbs at all?!?)

„While the Chamber considers that these other crimes resulted from the campaign to forcibly remove the non-Serb population from the Municipalities, the Chamber does not find them to be an intended part of the common plan. The Chamber will therefore consider below whether the Accused is responsible for these crimes pursuant to the third form of JCE liability below. (Until we dismantle this construction of the Overarching JCE, nothing could be said on this senseless and nasty assertions. But, if “it didn't intend to be a part” of a common plan, why the President was convicted for those crimes? Why “in dubio pro reo” principle disappeared in this case, and we had seen so many doubts?)

(c) Accused's contribution to the Overarching JCE

i. Submissions of the Parties

3467. Having found that the Overarching JCE existed from October 1991 and continued until at least 30 November 1995, the Chamber will now assess whether the Accused's significantly contributed towards that JCE during this time period. In making that assessment the Chamber has limited itself to the Accused's conduct during the period of the Overarching JCE. Any conduct which falls outside the temporal scope of the Overarching JCE has only been considered, if at all, for the purpose of establishing the Accused's intent to participate in the JCE. It can now turn to each of the alleged contributions through which the Prosecution alleges the President implemented the Overarching JCE.

3468. In paragraph 14 of the Indictment, the Prosecution alleges that the President significantly contributed to achieving the objective of the Overarching JCE through the commission of crimes in one or more of the following ways:

(a) Formulating, promoting, participating in, and/or encouraging the development and implementation of SDS and Bosnian Serb governmental policies intended to advance the objective of the JCE; (Therefore, the #Prosecution is looking for a side responsible for the war#. The policy of the SDS and the Serb community couldn't in any way be criminalised, since it was a policy of maintaining the statu quo, i.e. conservative, #while the other sides imposed changes that were unlawful, anti-constitutional, unilateral, and prepared the secret armies needed to achieve such an unlawful objective!#)

(b) Participating in the establishment, support and/or maintenance of Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and Bosnian Serb Forces through which the objective of the JCE was implemented; (#Wrong and unacceptable deduction ad absurdum!# It was not the Serb policy that needed a force to be implemented, it was the Muslim/Croat policy of denial of the Serb legitimate rights to be achieved. So, the Serbs didn't initiate any change except the change of system from an one-party to the democratic system. The others wanted the changes that concerned the Serbs too, and without their consent. When the others in BiH (Muslims and Croats) started to impose the changes of the nature of common states, Yugoslavia and BiH, the Serbs in BiH didn't respond by any violence, but declared the same, a change that would fit their vital interests. And what happened? The Serbs had been denied this right, and had been attacked militarily, and imposed a war!)

- (c) Disseminating, encouraging and/or facilitating the dissemination of propaganda to Bosnian Serbs intended to engender in Bosnian Serbs fear and hatred of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats or to otherwise win support for and participation in achieving the objective of the JCE;¹¹⁰³⁵ (This #qualification is not decent, and is insulting, since only in the 20th Century the Serbs sustained two genocidal campaigns, and the third attempt in 1991 and on#. #There almost 80% of the Serbs from Croatia disappeared, in the BiH Federation there is no more than 5% of the Serbs, on Kosovo the same, and to assert this would be as same as if somebody denied the Holocaust!# Even before the war in Bosnia there was so much of horror in Croatia against the Serbs, that any assertion about propaganda looks like an insult! Beside that, there were the OTP witnesses who confirmed that nobody could make any propaganda, since the Serbs knew very well what they could have expected! A chain of evidence of a selective persecution and other discriminatory measures of the Prosecution is endless!)
- (d) Directing, encouraging, facilitating, and/or authorising Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs, SDS officials and members, and Serb Forces to carry out acts in furtherance of the objective of the JCE; (#All false! There is no a trace of it in evidence! What the leadership encouraged, facilitated and/or authorised the Serb political and Governmental organs was in accord with the Conference (ICFY) and it's results in agreed transformation of BiH, always underlining the necessity to keep stick to the international law provisions. If it was not so, why the Prosecution didn't present a contrary evidence?)
- (e) Participating in the design or formulation of acts carried out by Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs, SDS officials and members, and Serb Forces in furtherance of the objective of the JCE; (The Prosecution is understanding #all the political life of the Serbs in Bosnia as a JCE#!!! The Prosecution can not give a satisfactory answer to a simple question: 1. Did the Serbs have the rights to what they claimed for? 2. Did the Serbs could achieve their claims by a political means envisaged by the ICFY in the Lisbon Agreement and all the subsequent proposals? 3. Did the Serbs tried to prevent the rest of BiH to secede from Yugoslavia, or the rest of BiH tried to deny the Serb rights to a high degree of autonomy envisaged by every single document of the ICFY, and accepted by the Muslim leader Izetbegovic? 4. What of all those alleged crimes, joint criminal enterprises, atrocities and other violations of the humanitarian laws would be committed if the Muslim side didn't try to win the entire Bosnia for themselves, i.e. if they didn't renege on the Lisbon Agreement? The OTP was obliged to know all the relevant facts before indicting the highest representatives of only one side!)
- (f) Obtaining, facilitating, encouraging and/or supporting the participation of JNA/VJ forces and Serbian paramilitary forces to further the objective of the JCE;
- (g) Failing to take adequate steps to ensure that Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and/or Bosnian Serb Forces would act to protect Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats residing in areas under their control;

11035

The Prosecution submits that this included claims (i) that Bosnian Serbs were in jeopardy of oppression, including genocide, at the hands of Bosnian Muslims and Croats; and (ii) that territories on which Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats resided were Bosnian Serb land. See Indictment, para. 14(c).

- (h) Facilitating and/or encouraging the commission by Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs of crimes that furthered the objective of the JCE by failing to take adequate steps to prevent and/or investigate such crimes, and/or arrest and/or punish the perpetrators of such crimes;
- (i) Engaging in, supporting, and/or facilitating efforts to deny or provide misleading information about crimes against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and about the role Serb Forces had played in those crimes to representatives of the international community, non-governmental organisations, the media, and the public; and
- (j) Directing and/or authorising the restriction of humanitarian aid to Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat enclaves located in territory controlled by Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and/or Bosnian Serb Forces in an effort to create unbearable living conditions for inhabitants there in furtherance of the objective of the JCE.¹¹⁰³⁶ NONE OF IT HAD BEEN PROVEN!

3469. The Prosecution argues that the Accused led the Overarching JCE in translating the pro-Serb ideology into SDS and governmental policies designed to further the objective of the permanent forcible removal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory.¹¹⁰³⁷ The Prosecution submits that the President was the key figure in creating power structures that would transform policy into action by transforming the SDS bodies into RS structures and laying the groundwork for the creation of the Bosnian Serb MUP, Crisis Staffs, Bosnian Serb Government and Presidency, TO brigades, and the VRS.¹¹⁰³⁸

3470. The Prosecution alleges that the Accused dominated, guided, and directed the actions of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and Serb Forces throughout the period of the Indictment.¹¹⁰³⁹ The Prosecution further argues that the Accused disseminated propaganda to incite Bosnian Serb fear and hatred of Muslims and Croats, which had the effect of encouraging his subordinates to follow his example.¹¹⁰⁴⁰ The Prosecution also argues that the Accused obtained, facilitated, and encouraged the participation of JNA forces in arming Serbs and in the take-over of the Municipalities; the Accused further oversaw and encouraged the participation of Serb paramilitaries in pursuit of the common purpose.¹¹⁰⁴¹

3471. The Prosecution argues that the Accused, by denying the commission of crimes, justifying them, and/or misleading the international community and the media, created an environment of impunity, through which he encouraged the ongoing implementation of the common plan.¹¹⁰⁴² The Prosecution further submits that the Accused (i) failed to take adequate steps to ensure that Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and/or Bosnian Serb Forces would act to protect non-Serbs in Serb claimed territory, and (ii) by doing so, in turn facilitated and/or encouraged the commission of crimes in furtherance of the common purpose of the Overarching JCE.¹¹⁰⁴³

¹¹⁰⁴¹ See Prosecution Final Brief, para. 599; Indictment, para. 14(f). With regard to whether the Accused's contribution to the Overarching JCE through obtaining, facilitating, encouraging, and/or supporting the participation of the JNA/VJ forces and Serbian paramilitary forces, the Chamber has included the VJ/JNA and Serbian paramilitary forces under the definition of Serb Forces. See Indictment, para. 14(f). See also para. 159.

¹¹⁰⁴² See Prosecution Final Brief, para. 601; Indictment, para. 14(i).

¹¹⁰⁴³ See Prosecution Final Brief, para. 601; Indictment, para. 14(g), 14(h).

3472. In response, the Accused argues, inter alia, that he never had the objective of expelling Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Serb areas of BiH and that he did everything humanely possible to avoid the war.¹¹⁰⁴⁴ The Accused further alleges that he did not promote hatred against other peoples and that, in fact, he always promoted respect for the Geneva Conventions and insisted on humane treatment of non-Serb civilians and prisoners of war.¹¹⁰⁴⁵ Furthermore, he concedes that at a state level, there were plans to defend Serbs or to protect Serb territory, but that there were never any plans or instructions on harming, expelling, or disenfranchising non-Serbs.¹¹⁰⁴⁶ According to the Accused, the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs were not created or maintained for the purpose of committing crimes against non-Serbs.¹¹⁰⁴⁷ The Accused also contends that he had no control over the VRS and that he did not support or use paramilitaries to implement the common plan.¹¹⁰⁴⁸ The Accused argued inter alia that the Strategic Goals were not the basis for the expulsion or destruction of non-Serbs in RS and were merely political goals to be realised through negotiations.¹¹⁰⁴⁹ The Accused submits that he did not promote a climate of impunity for crimes committed against non-Serbs.¹¹⁰⁵⁰ Furthermore, the Accused argues that there was no JCE and moreover, that he did not possess the intent to further any common plan of the JCE or to commit crimes.¹¹⁰⁵¹ Finally, according to the Accused, his only “significant contribution” is shown in his efforts to maintain peace, legal order, and the security for all citizens in BiH.¹¹⁰⁵²

3473. The Chamber will assess these alleged contributions as far as they are relevant to the Overarching JCE. In that regard, the Chamber notes the alleged contribution at paragraph 14(j) of the Indictment which pertains to the Accused’s role in restricting humanitarian aid to Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat enclaves in Bosnian Serb claimed territory. In its final brief, the Prosecution refers to the restriction of humanitarian aid in relation to the implementation of the third of the Strategic Goals through the issuance of Directive 4, namely the establishment of a corridor in the Drina Valley and the elimination of the Drina as a border between the RS and Serbia.¹¹⁰⁵³ It also refers, more generally, to the fact that in directing and authorising the restriction of humanitarian aid to the Eastern enclaves in an effort to create unbearable living conditions, the Accused furthered the common purpose of the Overarching JCE.¹¹⁰⁵⁴

3474. However, the Chamber does not consider restrictions on humanitarian aid to be relevant to the Accused’s alleged contribution to the achievement of the objective of the Overarching JCE for the following reasons. The Chamber recalls that the crime base for which the Accused ultimately faces responsibility in relation to the Overarching JCE mainly pertains to events in 1992 and 1993 in twenty municipalities in BiH defined by the Chamber earlier in this Judgement as the “Municipalities”. Above, the Chamber found that the crimes of murder, extermination, persecution, deportation, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) were committed in the Municipalities by Serb Forces during and after their take-over and in detention facilities there. The Chamber did not receive any evidence of restrictions of humanitarian aid into the Municipalities, which would have contributed to the creation of unbearable living conditions forcing the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat populations from these Municipalities to move out. The evidence that the Chamber did receive was that there were restrictions on humanitarian aid going into the Eastern BiH enclaves—Bihać, Goražde, Žepa, and Srebrenica from the spring of 1993 until the summer of 1995.¹¹⁰⁵⁵ The Chamber is not satisfied that such restrictions can attach in any meaningful way to the Accused's alleged contribution to the common purpose of the Overarching JCE, which was implemented through the commission of crimes committed in the Municipalities primarily in 1992 and 1993; therefore well before the period of these restrictions elsewhere in BiH. (When wanted, the Chamber has ability to see.)

ii. Analysis

3475. The Chamber found that the Accused was at the forefront of developing and promoting the ideology of the SDS. (#NOW, THE SDS AS A PARTY IS ACCUSED#! TOGETHER WITH THE "SERB IDEOLOGY"#!) This ideology included the non-separation of Serbs, the identification of historical Serb territories, and the creation of a unified Serb nation. (#THE "UNIFIED SERB NATION ALREADY EXISTED SINCE 1918, BOTH IN ETHNIC AND A STATE-NATION TERMS! THIS WAS A SERB ACHIEVMENT AND ANY CHANGE OF IT WAS A VIOLATION OF THE OLDEST HUMAN AND NATIONAL RIGHTS!# IS IT POSSIBLE THAT THE UNITED NATIONS COURT DOES NOT AND DOES CONTEST IT?#) These principles formed a core element of the policies of the SDS and informed the objectives of the Bosnian Serb leadership.¹¹⁰⁵⁶ (#There is nothing more wrong. The Prosecution-Chamber did have the Program of the SDS, which at a very core had a fight for democracy, multiparty system, an open society, freedom for the cultural development, freedom for a religious life, and a good relations between different nations, and so on.# The very same Chamber found that the President started his political life with an enthusiasm about a common life in Bosnia, in full accord among the ethnicities on the main issues. #How come the Chamber had it forgotten#? What happened meanwhile? Meanwhile the SDA (Muslim Party) reneged on the proclaimed program on preservation of Yugoslavia and decided to secede from Yugoslavia, neglecting the Serb opposition to this huge change, which anyway couldn't be done without consensus of the three peoples in BiH. This is wrong also for the following reasons: The "non-separation" of Serbs had been achieved by forming Yugoslavia as a common state of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenians 1918, and again in renewing Yugoslavia in 1945. So, "non-separation" in a sense of state separation wasn't any objective or ideology, since it already existed. The SDS ideology included a preservation of Yugoslavia as a common state of all the South Slavs, and not to achieve something that didn't exist. In another terms, ideological terms, the Chamber may have misunderstood the Serb inclination to an ideological division on the right and left, i.e. on monarchists and socialists (communists) and the President was speaking about it far before Yugoslavia was falling apart.) As the Chamber found above, while the political objectives themselves were not criminal, they created the basis and laid the foundations for the structures through which a criminal purpose could be achieved.¹¹⁰⁵⁷ (#This thesis has a deep rift in logics, and since this is the crucial moment of this Judgment, the damage couldn't be recovered!# But the finding (or inference) must had been different. If the political objectives themselves were not criminal, and it was evident that it could have been achieved by a political means, then the objectives didn't lead to the crimes, but the Muslim-Croat denial the Serb rights either to preserve their belonging to

¹¹⁰⁵⁵ Restrictions of humanitarian aid into Srebrenica, as well as in Sarajevo, will be dealt with elsewhere in this Judgement. See Sections. Yugoslavia, or to achieve their genuine goals within BiH. Although the Serb side took all the precautions to achieve the objectives by a peaceful political means and to avoid a war, the other two sides tried to deprive the Serb community from their rights by a military means, forming a secret armies and sabotaging political talks and the peace conferences!) The Chamber finds that the Accused, first as President of the SDS, and then in turn as President of the SNB, Presidency, and RS, played the most important role in laying the ground work for that criminal implementation through the creation of, and support for, the structures and bodies which carried out that plan. (#Wrong, wrong, wrong!# What the Chamber can say on this question: why the Serb political objectives, as being legal and not criminal, and being recognized by the EC, the Badinter Commission, and UN before the war as an endeavour possible to be achieved by the Conference, and finally recognized by the Dayton Agreement – why it had been denied by the Muslim-Croat armed attack and the war that lasted 45 months? Does the Chamber and the UN Court advocate that the Serb side was obliged to obey such a drastic deprivation of the basic rights? This approach and this process is the most serious violation of all the international institutes and documents, such as the UN Charter, the International Covenants on Human Rights, and other. Why? Because the UN court is slipping over the essential fact – that the Serbs did have their rights, and accepted much less than was entitled for the sake of a peaceful solution. But, the Muslim side wanted to prevent the Serbs from realising their legal rights, and started the war. So, if the Chamber “found” that the President was responsible for “through the creation of, and support for, the structures and bodies which carried out that plan.” Then the Prosecution-Chamber alliance was obliged to prove that the Serbs didn’t have any right to form their institution, which were envisaged to regulate the life in their constituent unit, but formed it without a legal basis and only for the purpose to carry out the criminal plan. However, nobody could prove that. The “structures” in terms of the instances of authority existed since the elections 1990. What had been formed were only the Republic level institutions. It had been done not only on the basis of the right for selforganisation, or on the basis of the International Covenants on Human Rights, but on the ground of the decisions of the Conference (ICFY) from the first, Lisbon Agreement, to the last one, the Dayton Agreement. The fact that these structures participated in the organisation of defence and other war events – it was not their primary purpose, nor it could have been avoided once the Serbs had been attacked and imposed the war!) He did so by developing an ideology which was loaded with Serb nationalism and emphasising the unity of Serbs and the importance of creating an ethnically homogeneous Serb state.¹¹⁰⁵⁸ (“Creating an ethnically homogeneous Serb state” is not a crime in any sense, and it wouldn’t be an issue if the Muslims didn’t want to secede from Yugoslavia, and subjugate the Serbs under their Islamic regime. As such, the issue of the Serb state was recognised by the EC and UN, which facilitated the Conference to achieve it. An ideology, and other political questions lead us to a liability for the crime against peace, which is not in the scope of this Tribunal. But, if it is needed for an establishment of a mens rea of the President, then the Chamber must take into account the mens rea and actus reus of each and every leader of the Muslim community, from the Islamic Declaration of Mr. Izetbegovic, to the every single document before the war that led to a Serb fears and cautions, and finally to the war.) The Chamber finds that the Accused was central in outlining the goals of the Bosnian Serb leadership and the measures which would have to be taken to establish Bosnian Serb authority in territories which they claimed.¹¹⁰⁵⁹ (The “Bosnian Serb authorities” #already existed#, and the only new matter was to enable the Muslims and Croats to form their own municipalities if wanted. The Chamber didn’t have a single example of an offensive Serb intentions, but only a defensive, aimed to prevent the armed attacks on the Serb community, with the aim not only to subjugate the entire community to the Muslim fundamentalist rule, but to expel all the Serbs out of BiH, as General Dzambasovic testifies that the objective of the Muslim leadership was “to liberate all to the last foot of the territory of BiH”

¹¹⁰⁵⁹ See paras. 2707–2714.

3476. The Chamber found that the Accused envisaged a separation of the Bosnian Serbs from non-Serbs in BiH and that war in BiH would result in “population homogenisation” and that he called for the creation of ethnically based entities in BiH.¹¹⁰⁶⁰ (#Mixing oranges and apples##! The President envisaged that the secessionist policy imposed by the Muslim leadership would lead to a war in BiH, which would result in homogenisation of population, killing of many, destruction of properties and settlements – all of it unless BiH doesn’t give up the unlawful secession, or unless BiH become transformed and decentralised. How this mixage is possible and allowed??? In order to avoid so predictable development, and to avoid any crime, the Serbs gave up their right to stay in Yugoslavia, and accepted an independent, but transformed Bosnia, and that was welcomed by the EC and UN, and accepted by the three ethnic communities in BiH. If the President wasn’t calling for a creation of the ethnically based entities, which de facto existed, there wouldn’t be any consent to the independence, and there would be a worse development, with an endless conflict. That was why the Conference was established, to which the Serb side remained faithful, and therefore can not have anu liability for such a development.) The Accused also encouraged the identification of Serb areas from which Bosnian Muslims would be excluded.¹¹⁰⁶¹ (#This is a forgery, this is a bastardous sentence, either created by an assistant, or because the Chamber didn’t understand what it meant to create a territorially homogenous region#. It meant to exclude territories, settled places as a whole, administratively, from one entity to another – if the inhabitants wanted it, simply by drawing the administrative borderline on one or the opposite side of such a settlement. And that really requires a huge amount of misunderstanding, if not a bad will and intended attack on the truth not to see from the documents and even examples from practice, that it had nothing to do with any “exclusion” of population. Just an example of the Dobratnici group of the Croatian villages, which concluded an agreement with the maternal municipality of Knezevo (former Skender Vakuf) in the presence of the ECMM, to dissociate and to associate with the neighbouring municipality of Jajce, see T20851, testimony of an OTP witness Nenad Krejic Q Thank you. I’ll try to remind you. Is it true that the lowerbottom concentration of 15, 20 villages in Okur [phoen], are these Croatian settlements across the Ugar canyon, which separates Croatian and Serbian settlements? I believe it’s called Dobratic. A Yes, correct. The entire area is called Pougjarje, named after the Ugar River, and Dobratnici was one of the four local communes before the war. And nowadays -- and this area was taken out of the pre-war Knezevo municipality to form a separate municipality called Dobratic which belongs to the Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Q Could we agree to begin with that there are no Muslim villages in what remains and that the Muslims lived in Skender Vakuf, that is to say Knezevo? A Yes. We have just cleared that up with the Prosecutor. In the little town of Knezevo itself and two smaller suburbs, Sapani and Bastina, which are one kilometre from the centre of town each, they contained very few houses....) We may now see how much the development on the local level depended on the local circumstances, the same OTP witness, T20854 Q And you did not fight with Dobratnici all the time, did you? A I hope you don't mean myself. Q Certainly not. A No, especially at the beginning of the war there was an understanding between Knezevo municipality -- or, rather, that part of Knezevo municipality made up of Croats that we should avoid conflict of all sorts, and we had no reason to fight anyway. You've already mentioned that there's a deep canyon of the Ugar River there, and it has always separated the 100 per cent Croatian area on one side and the Serbian side. There was no reason for war between them, and we displayed restraint and containment until the war when some other circumstances that prevailed that were beyond the control of the civilian authorities of Knezevo or Dobratnici. We had a sort of gentlemen's agreement until then. The Map illustrating the testimony is D1880, showing how big area inhabited by Croats was agreed to separate from the Serb majority municipality of Knezevo (Skender Vakuf) . Not only did the President formulate and promote these policies, the Chamber finds that he was adamant that he would not allow anything to stop the Bosnian Serbs from achieving their objectives.¹¹⁰⁶² (But this had to be understood and interpreted toward a completely opposite direction: the President didn't say that it was his will, but he warned all and everyone that the Serbs are decisive either to prevent the secession from Yugoslavia, which was their right that would even President Lincoln recognize, as he recognised the same right to West Virginia, or to have their own entity in BiH. As a representative of this ethnic community, the President didn't allow any possibility to stop the community in exercising their rights. All peacefully and politically. Now, a more than academic question is: should the Serbs give up their fundamental rights, because the opponents would try to deny those rights by a military means?)

3477. The Chamber also found that the Accused was pivotal in making careful preparations to allow the Bosnian Serbs to respond to any move towards independence by BiH with the creation of its own parallel structures and take-over of power at a municipal level.¹¹⁰⁶³ (Again, this is completely wrong, for the following reasons: 1. There was no any "take-over" of power at a municipal level, because "take-over" in Serbian means "preuzeti" i.e. take something away from somebody, while it had never been said or meant "preuzeti" but only "uzeti" i.e. "take" meaning get control of. 2. A "responding" to moves that were illegal, anti-constitutional and in contrast to the Serb legitimate interests – is simply the main objective of every politics. 3. While attacked politically, the attacked community is defending by a political means, but when attacked militarily by own state, a defence must be military!) The Accused's involvement in this regard included formulating policies and actively promoting the creation of the parallel governmental, military, police and political structures that were used to gain or retain control of Bosnian Serb claimed territory.¹¹⁰⁶⁴ (Since the Serb political objectives, i.e. policy of claiming the territories for their autonomy within BiH, was not criminal by itself, the right for self-organisation of any community is also not a crime by itself. The only crime, and all the #crimes that appeared, was in the attempt of armed prevention of this legal Serb political action!#). These parallel structures were designed to support the existence of a separate Bosnian Serb state and allow for the furtherance of the objective of the Overarching JCE.¹¹⁰⁶⁵ (The first part of the inference may have been correct, although it should be said that the Serbs accepted it to be a "constituent state" or constituent unit in BiH instead to stay in Yugoslavia, and had it been achieved by political means, that would be so. The second part is wrong, because no a Serb official or institution wanted, planned or promoted that kind of the Serb state. A separate Serb state structures were aimed to prevent chaos and to maintain the peace, but it appeared that those institutions were needed to facilitate the defence of the people and territories against an illegal military attack!)

3478. For example, the Accused was responsible for the distribution and promotion of the Variant A/B Instructions, which the Chamber has found formed the basis on which Bosnian Serb Crisis Staffs, Bosnian Serb municipal assemblies, and other parallel municipal structures were established in the Municipalities.¹¹⁰⁶⁶ The Accused actively monitored the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions, followed developments which occurred at a municipal level, and co-ordinated efforts to ensure they were implemented.¹¹⁰⁶⁷ He issued precise directions with respect to the establishment and maintenance of Bosnian Serb authority and emphasised the importance of the Instructions in achieving the objective of creating a Bosnian Serb state.¹¹⁰⁶⁸ In this regard the Chamber found that the President instructed how the Crisis Staffs would function and be structured and this was one of the ways in which the President exercised his authority over them.¹¹⁰⁶⁹ (So what?#LEGAL AND OBLIGATORY#! If the Serb political objectives were not criminal by themselves, (see para 3475) the existing authorities, no matter acting as a Crisis Staff, or a War Presidency, or a regular peace time organs, had their obligations to secure the area of their responsibility. Everything the local authorities did before the war was in accord with the domestic laws, and Constitution, undet the threat of punishment for a high treason!)

3479. The Accused was instrumental in the formation of, and support for, the Bosnian Serb Assembly and used this as the formal means through which the Bosnian Serb ideology and objectives were officially sanctioned and disseminated.¹¹⁰⁷⁰ (That is a basic role of the legislative representative institutions served for. The Chamber is anxious to notice that the political objectives and preparations to control own territory by itself wouldn't deliver any crime, but only a forceful prevention of the communities to achieve their legitimate goals were producing crimes!) The Chamber also found that the Accused had influence and authority as the leading figure in the Bosnian Serb Assembly.¹¹⁰⁷¹ (Influence maybe, but the President didn't have any authority in the Assembly, since it would be a violation of the Constitution, and the representatives wouldn't allow it. The President was rather at a disposal to the Assembly, while his presence wasn't obligatory to him, neither he was present every minute. But, if the representatives or the Government needed some information concerning the international negotiations, the President must have been in the vicinity, to respond!)

3480. Throughout the existence of the Overarching JCE, the Chamber found that the Accused was at the apex of a number of political, governmental, and military structures and was not only instrumental in establishing these structures, but he was also able to use his power and influence over them in order to further the objective to permanently remove the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory. (If it was so, then it must have been very easy to the Prosecution-Chamber alliance to submit a single convincing document about the President's intentions, plans or acts towards a permanent removal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. However, there is no a single evidence to that direction, while there is a plethora of evidence to the contrary! As far as it is concerned with the presidential duties that the President exercised, it was strictly regulated by the Constitution and the Law, and controlled by the opposition! Nothing extraordinary!) The Chamber found that the Accused demanded and enforced the strictest of discipline within the SDS in its adherence to the policies which he had developed.¹¹⁰⁷² (Wrong!!! The President never made a sole decisions, there was always a democratic process of making decisions. The President, as a President of the SDS, was obliged to secure the decisions were implemented strictly, and not changed in an unauthorised way!) In this regard, the Chamber found that the Accused had de jure and de facto authority over the SDS party and its members and exerted the greatest control and authority over its institutions.¹¹⁰⁷³ (Wrong! As the above, the President was completely faithful to the democratic procedure, he sustained a criticism very often, and didn't succeed to have all his proposals to be adopted. There is a sufficient evidence of that, both in the SDS and in the RS Assembly. The locals in the SDS used to be even harsh towards the President's interventions in “their business”, as can be seen from the S. Srdic’s statement, D2265, p.47-48

NK: It sounds like you were complaining about STAKIĆ, meaning that KARADŽIĆ had let STAKIĆ operate with so much power.

SS: It’s possible that I said that. It’s possible. I wouldn’t say no but, because nobody tried to prevent them from going out there /inaudible/or p. 58:

NK: Do you know of anyone that STAKIĆ particularly retaliated against, or had political conflicts with?

SS: I knew he couldn’t stand KARADŽIĆ, and he was saying that Pale would never govern Kozara, and that KARADŽIĆ should never come to Prijedor.

NK: But then KARADŽIĆ brought him back as President, so, I’m confused, can you explain that?

SS: Believe me, everybody else was also confused. You know, we were all confused by the fact that KARADŽIĆ would receive all of them in Pale, KOVAČEVIĆ, DRLJAČA, SAVANOVIĆ, TRAVAR, STAKIĆ, but when it was KARADŽIĆ’s turn to come to Prijedor, they didn’t like it.

and many others! But, all of this looks rather like a gossip, without any basis in facts!

3481. The Chamber finds that through insisting on this strict discipline and relying on his extensive authority, the President was more easily able to direct, encourage, facilitate, and authorise actions which furthered the objective of the Overarching JCE. (Wrong!!! It was only an intervention aimed to make some individuals and groups to stick to the adopted policy, not to one’s own private policy. And the most of the President’s influence he used for a benefit of the peace, of a respect of Constitutions, and when the war started, almost exclusively his activity was aimed to a restraint of the Army, respect of civilians and free passage of the humanitarian aid.) The Chamber also found that the SDS party structures, which the Accused supported, facilitated communication between the higher level leaders, including the Accused, and the municipal SDS leaders.¹¹⁰⁷⁴ (The Chamber may say something like that only pertaining to the peace period, before the elections 1990 and before the war broke out. At the very beginning of the war there was no communications at all, and this particularly concerns the first year of war, the one for which the Chamber “found” the President responsible for persecutions and other crimes in Municipalities, mainly in the western part of country. There was a sufficient evidence that there was no sufficient communication, particularly within the SDS, whose activity was froze. The way the Chamber presents the President is exactly what the Prosecution tried: to depict him as an autocrat and dictator within the SDS, which is far from any truth!) The Chamber finds that this was a crucial link in the chain to ensure that the Accused’s policies were effectively disseminated and that he could monitor the way in which they were implemented at a municipal level. (There was no any President’s policy. The Chamber itself asserted that the Serbs in BiH had their intentions and objectives. The President adopted the people’s program and as a represent of the Serb community checked it in the SDS and on the general elections, and the Serbs in BiH approved it and wanted their representatives be faithful to their constituency, which is the only way to be!) There was a direct and regular line of communication between the Bosnian Serb authorities at a municipal level and the Bosnian Serb leadership or RS authorities, including the Accused. (Wrong assertion, because there was a sufficient evidence that particularly in the first year of war there was no even a minimal communication between the President and other leaders in Sarajevo and those in municipalities. This is in particular impressive in a year for which the Chamber “found” to be the period of the persecutions and killings. But, the way the Chamber is concluding is: there were some communications, therefore the crimes had been ordered by the President. This is wrong, and shouldn’t be allowed. Instead, there should be an evidence on what was the content of these communications!) This line of communication allowed the Accused to monitor developments at a municipal level and to issue precise directions with respect to the establishment and maintenance of Bosnian Serb authority.¹¹⁰⁷⁵ (But the Chamber had every reason, as would any reasonable chamber, to conclude that even the poor communication with the terrain the President used to influence the development to the better. Not to mention that the President very frequently was out of the country, at the conferences, and this additionally decreased his abilities to be in contact with the terrain. The only valuable evidence would be a document depicting the President orders that enabled a commission of crimes!)

3482. The Chamber found that the Accused was intimately involved in identifying Bosnian Serb claimed territories, and advocated and worked towards a territorial re-organisation which would allow the Bosnian Serbs to claim control and ownership of a large percentage of the territory in BiH. This was done in order to establish the borders of the Bosnian Serb state in accordance with their territorial and strategic aspirations.¹¹⁰⁷⁶ (Exactly! That was the Serb right, and that was a task given by the mediators at the Conference. All the three sides made their maps, but the international mediators particularly. They demanded the sides to bring their own territorial proposals. How come the Chamber still doesn't know that? But, what the Chamber said in this para is in contradiction with it's assertion that the method of homogenisation was expelling the non-Serbs, while in this para the Chamber recognized that the homogenisation was to be done by re-organization of the territories!) The Chamber also found that the Accused supported the military successes of the Serb Forces which resulted in major changes to the demographic landscape of BiH. (The President was in a quarrel with the VRS just for a contrary reasons, because he was stopping the Army when winning and limiting it just to the defence. The Prosecution witnesses, as Milovanovic, Skrbic, Obradovic and other testified that the President objected to the army for being "so militant". There is more than enough evidence that this assertion is wrong. The military successes had nothing to do with the demographic landscape, since the political matters, such as return of refugees wasn't in any aspect a matter of military, but exclusively of political negotiations. Those who encouraged the Muslim side to go for a war are responsible for the movement of population. There is almost none of the Serbs in the Federation BiH!) He ultimately supported the military implementation of their goals which necessarily entailed the take-over of territory and the forcible movement of the non-Serb population to achieve that objective. He viewed these military operations as a necessary means of defining Bosnian Serb territory and creating their own state and these operations resulted in the ethnic homogenisation of Bosnian Serb claimed territory in the Municipalities.¹¹⁰⁷⁷ (But this #has nothing to do with the ethnic composition, neither the Army defined the Bosnian Serb territory, which was defined a centuries ago#. The Army defended this territory. Had it been done without a war, it would look the same, only there wouldn't be refugees and casualties. Also, the defence of the Serb territories was important only within the defence of the Serb population, while the military territorial successes meant nothing, because of the Conference. The Serbs defended many territories and municipalities, but it had been given to the opposite side around the Conference table! Several Serb municipalities of the pre-war City of Sarajevo, that had been defended throughout the war, had been given to the Muslims at the Conference!)

3483. The Chamber further recalls its finding that the Accused formulated, promoted, and disseminated the Strategic Goals and that he tied the promotion of these goals to the threat faced from the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who he continued to identify as their historic enemies and to minimising the number of those "enemies" who would remain in their state.¹¹⁰⁷⁸ (Not correct! First, it

Kecmanović stated that the Accused and Krajišnik were among those who shared the view that it was necessary to find a solution to conflicts in BiH through political negotiations and to avoid or stop war at all costs and that the Accused did not view Bosnian Muslims and was about who should be prevented to leave Yugoslavia, which was a common home of all the South Slavic nations. It was a painful development, but the politicians had to explain to their people why the Serbs shouldn't further insist on preservation of Yugoslavia. As regard to BiH, the only matter was whether to be modest about the territorial claims, or to insist on every single village, no matter how many Muslims or Croats may be dissatisfied for being included in a canton with the other's majority. The Chamber does not have a right to neglect the facts and evidence that corroborate this position of Defence! Otherwise, the Chamber is writing a new History of the region, which for sure would be a source of new tensions. Nobody is entitled to do that, let alone the UN Court!) The Chamber found that the President was steadfast in emphasising that ethnic separation was necessary in the promotion of these Strategic Goals.¹¹⁰⁷⁹ Further, he received and gave updates about developments and progress made towards their achievement, including territorial control through military operations and the separation of people.¹¹⁰⁸⁰ (Certainly wrong! The military operations had the only purpose to preserve the population and to endure until the political settlement would be achieved. No territorial or demographic issues had been connected with the military operations! Otherwise, the Serbs would keep their municipality in the City of Sarajevo and other places that had been defended!)

3484. The Accused also activated the second level of the Variant A/B Instructions which were intimately linked to the physical control of Bosnian Serb claimed territory.¹¹⁰⁸¹ (A #control of one's own territory is an obligation even during a peace times, let alone when against a people is declared a war#. The authorities on these territories were established during the elections 1990, and didn't change until the elections 1996. Since the Muslim-Croat coalition didn't want (the Muslim component) a political solution so that all the three communities be satisfied, it was clear that they would try to prevent any Serb autonomy by an armed force for which they had been preparing a secret army a whole past year. Who was, according to this Chamber's finding, supposed to control the areas where the Serbs had been majority? All of it is provided by the Constitution and several domestic laws, and no regulation enabled different conduct, which would be prosecuted as a high treason!) The Chamber found that while the Accused envisaged the use of force to take-over power he was cautious about the way in which this would be portrayed at an international level. (This wrongful position of the Chamber is the source of many other errors in this process. There was no any need for use of force "to take over power" neither the President envisage a use of force in the case of transformation of BiH, but he envisaged a chaos and a civil war if Bosnia continued to force the independence without the transformation and decentralisation. The power already belonged to the ethnic communities in almost 90% undisputed areas, and no "take-over" ever happened. A use of force appeared when the Muslim side decided to renege on the Lisbon Agreement, and to try to prevent the Serbs from organizing their constituent unit!) However, there was no genuine concern about the manner in which power was taken and there was a clear disjuncture between the Accused's public statements to international observers and his private discourse in this regard.¹¹⁰⁸² If the Chamber (like the Prosecution) persists on a "take- over” term, no argument can help, but there was no any “take-over”. The Serbs had one third of power on the central level, and a complet authority in all the municipalities where the Serbs and “Yugoslavs” were a majority population. So, it can only be said that the Serbs were in a position to defend the power which they already had. And that was their obligation, and their necessity, an ultimate defence of survival!) There was an even greater disparity between his assurances given in speeches and orders and the reality on the ground. (If there was a criminal orders, why the Chamber relies on a chatting of other people, allocating their jokes to the President as his own standpoint? However, it a strictly confidential orders of the President hadn’t been entirely implemented, as the witness Okun said, there may be many reasons, and the last one would be an insincerity of the orders, as also Mr. Okun testified. The most probable and the most reasonable inference would be that some of the President orders couldn’t be implemented because of the combat activities of the adversaries. The next could be that the forces on the terrain didn’t have sufficient manpower, or a capable and professional officers. But, if the other side to the conflict didn’t respect a ceasefire, nobody could, not even the President, order the attacked units to do something else, but to defend themselves!) What transpired in the Municipalites were widespread crimes committed by Serb Forces against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and this resulted in the creation of a largely ethnically homogeneous state which corresponded to the objective of the Bosnian Serb leadership.¹¹⁰⁸³ (This is as much wrong as everything what this Tribunal represent and does. The crimes in the Municipalities appeared only on the incentive made by the Muslim armed assault on, first JNA, and later on the Serb civilians and the VRS. There is more than sufficient evidence that corroborate this assertion of the Defence. Had this Tribunal been a real court, it would find it by itself and protect the President from so long process and detention. Now, after the process, and all the evidence that the Defence had submitted, it is unbelievable that the Chamber makes that kind of inferences. There was no any objective that was counting on the achievement by the military means, because it all had to be done at the Conference, as it had really happened. Many territories had changed the “owner” at the Conference table, as the President knew from the beginning, and that is why he prevented the VRS to take more territory, or to defeat the adversaries completely. There is evidence about it.)

The Chamber however notes that Kecmanović's evidence was marked by evasiveness, contradictions, partisanship and indicators that his testimony lacked sincerity and candour. His testimony was also marked by indicators that he was seeking to protect the Accused. The Chamber therefore does not consider that it can rely on his evidence in this regard. (The witness was the main political opponent (with Dodik) to the President, (no partisanship) #but he didn't accept to confirm the lies against President Karadzic#, in spite of the fact that their political differences remained to these days. There are many other evidence that the ordinary Muslims and Croats have never been considered by the President as enemies, but only parts of their extreme leaderships. That is what the President said in Banjaluka at the meeting 12 May 92.

3485. The Chamber now turns to consider the Prosecution’s submission that the Accused disseminated propaganda to incite Bosnian Serb fear and hatred of Muslims and Croats, which had the effect of encouraging his subordinates to follow his example. The Chamber recalls that the President was also a central figure in the dissemination of propaganda against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. This propaganda identified them as the historic enemies of the Serbs.¹¹⁰⁸⁴ More specifically, the President in speeches repeatedly referred to the crimes committed against Serbs during World War II, and that they could not allow the Bosnian Muslims to declare themselves a majority people in BiH on this basis and threaten the Serbs again.¹¹⁰⁸⁵ The President’s speeches were also used to promote the idea that the Bosnian Serbs could not live together with the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and formed the foundation for the separation of the three people and the creation of a Serb state.¹¹⁰⁸⁶ The

The Chamber notes that the evidence of the relevant witnesses were marked by evasiveness, contradictions and/or indicators of insincerity and therefore does not find their evidence that the Accused did not intend to commit crimes and always called for respect of minorities to be reliable. However, the Chamber finds that the Accused did speak in terms which portrayed himself publicly as the peaceful negotiator but he insisted that this peace was conditional on following the objectives of the Bosnian Serbs. The Chamber also places no weight on Filipović’s personal opinion that the Accused prevented “bigger bloodshed in BiH” through his policies. D3140 (Witness statement of Živan Filipović dated 18 March 2013), para. 21. The Chamber is erred in disqualifying so many witnesses who testified publicly, and had been exposed to the public opinion, which would make them weak on a criticism, had they lied. This action and attitude of the Chamber is a unique, and completely disqualifies the very idea of the international justice.

Chamber finds that the President played on this historical narrative and amplified its effect to suggest that the Serbs faced a similar existential threat.¹¹⁰⁸⁷ (#The Chamber deals with the subject about which doesn't know anything#, and didn't allow the Defence to submit evidence about it. First, the Chamber neglected the fact that in Croatia on the elections 1990, in April, even before the SDS was established, the power was taken by a Hitler's allies, anti-Serb and anti-Semites. Although President Tudjman was an anti-fascist during the WWII, he himself bragged that luckily his wife was neither Jew, nor Serb, and many of his closest associates were Ustashas and hated the Serbs, and participated in the genocide against the Serbs. At the very same time there started an anti-Serb campaign, some Serbs had been killed, many Serb properties had been ruined and an anti-Serb propaganda overwhelmed Croatia. It was clear that Croatia was going to secede from Yugoslavia and to be a very hostile towards the Serbs.)

In Sarajevo, although the SDA started as a pro-Yugoslav party, it turned back to the fundamentalist ideology, which had been developed in BiH in 1939 by the same people that formed the SDA, and the tensions among the ethnic communities started to grow. The Chamber must not establish such an assertion that the Serbs didn't have any reason to fear from the events that were to face in the most immediate time. Had it been left as it is, it would become an adjudicated fact that would deliver many further tensions. Lord Owen said publicly that the Serbs had a good reason to fear from the new development.)

3486. The Chamber finds that this rhetoric was used by the Accused to engender fear and hatred of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats and had the effect of exacerbating ethnic divisions and tensions in BiH.¹¹⁰⁸⁸ The President used fear and hatred to promote the historical territorial claims of the Bosnian Serbs and to garner support for the idea of creating a largely ethnically homogeneous Bosnian Serb state on this land.¹¹⁰⁸⁹ (Now, the President didn't "engender" but "used" fear and hatred... However, the Chamber neglects the crucial fact, i.e. that the Serbs invited the Muslims and Croats to stay in the common state of Yugoslavia and to give up a unilateral and unlawful secession. When they refused and pledged for a unitary states of their own, the Serb side was entitled to go it's own way. Why the Chamber is re-defining the Positions of the UN and EU on the subject? Both, the UN and EU (EC) at the time recognised all the Serb concerns as legitimate. The Badinter Commission issued it's Opinion No. 4. All the most important political officials of the world at the time said the same as the President. Even if there was no any genocide against the Serbs in WWI and WWII, the Serbs were entitled to participate actively in the changes that had been imposed by the secessions of the Yugoslav republics. So, it is irrelevant whether the President "used fear" to promote the historical territorial claims, or not. These historical claims were legal and legitimate, although subject to negotiations about a concrete territories. The UN Court is deciding directly in contrast to the UN Charter and the UN position concerning the Serb rights to decide about their future. Also, the UN Court is advocating a political violence and obedience to a slavery, which will be remembered as a dark period of the UN!) The Chamber also found that the Accused's position with respect to these historic territorial claims was endorsed by the Bosnian Serb Assembly and formed a core aspect of the Bosnian Serb objectives in including these territories in the RS.¹¹⁰⁹⁰ (That was a democratic approach to the challenge of the illegal secession! The President was serving his people and it's legitimate intentions, which had been defined by the Assembly, and confirmed through several referenda!)

3487. The Chamber finds that these speeches and statements went beyond mere rhetoric and formed a core element in the policies and plans developed by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership. (The Serb policy of preserving Yugoslavia, and later of securing their entity within BiH was legal and legitimate, and it was recognised both by the UN and EC. Is the Chamber now changing it? On what basis? These legitimate intentions didn't cause any violence, including the war itself, but the Muslim denial of these rights through a military attack and declaration of the war against the Serbs!) The Chamber also found that the Accused disseminated propaganda about demographics and the Bosnian Muslim birth-rate as a further justification for ethnic separation.¹¹⁰⁹¹ (The Chamber neglects an obvious evidence that this didn't concern with a natural birth-rate, but an unnatural and politically motivated huge operation of obtaining a majority for the purpose of getting "strong enough" to establish an Islamic regime. There was evidence admitted, and the Chamber was obliged at least to explain why it neglected this challenge and the threat to the Serbs. See: D02768, showing what was planned to be done to the Serbs in BiH;

WHAT TO DO WITH THE SERBS IN THE ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

The day of the announced proclamation of the Islamic Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina approaches. The date which makes the heart of each Muslim from Bosnia and Herzegovina and Sandžak race has been known for a long time – 31 December of this year. There are some indications that the Serbs from BH might oppose this historic event. In connection with that, some measures have been taken which would be applied should the Serbian population of Bosnia and Herzegovina disagree with this idea.

1. Each individual Serb must be aware of the responsibility of the whole people for their uncontrolled actions: punishment for the crimes committed will be collective – 10 Serbian houses will be destroyed for one destroyed Muslim house, 100 Serbs will
2. All the Serbs have a 12-hour working day, their salaries are proportional to the loyalty of all the employees and, as a rule, they are 30% lower than the salaries of the Muslims holding the same job.
3. The Serbs shall have priority when redundancies are made.
4. The Serbs may not visit all public institutions without special permits.
5. The Serbs shall exchange ration coupons for food, in shops working specially for them.
6. The Serbs shall have no ethnic parties, and if they do not respect the rules of political life, they will have no right to political organisation or right to vote.
7. In the Islamic Republic, the Serbs shall not be denied the right to make alcohol, but the Muslims have the right to impose sharia law on all people in the state.
8. The Serbs are equal to the Muslims if they voluntarily convert to Islam, the religion of their forefathers – nobody has the right ever to criticise them for the way they lived before, because it is not their fault that they are Serbs, and no generation can be held responsible for the actions of the generation before or any previous generations.
9. A good Serb is an alive and obedient Serb, or a dead disobedient Serb.

It was published in the Vox Magazine, owned and edited by Mr. Sahinpasic, a high official of the SDA, and re-printed a year later, with an excuse that it was a joke. But, nobody saw it as a joke, since it was exactly what happened during the Turkish occupation, as well as written down in the Islamic Declaration authored by Mr. Izetbegovic!) see: @@00174 showing a huge clandestine intervention of the Turkey in the war in BiH, which resulted in many punishing actions against the Serbs, see:???? @...#But, let us suppose that somebody tried to change the ethnic balance in the Northern Ireland, what would happen?# . The Chamber found that this ideology was repeated and used by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership as justification for the creation of ethnically homogeneous entities in BiH and to decrease the number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who remained in the Bosnian Serb state.¹¹⁰⁹² (The homogeneity was supposed to be achieved only by a selection of the settled places to be included in the ethnic states, and not in any other way. See what Mr. Ajanovic, a high SDA official said after the Lisbon Agreement had been accepted, see D302, of 19 March 1992:

Commenting on tonight's fifth round of the Conference on the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the spokesman of SDA, Irfan Ajanovic, estimated that the Muslim nation in its constituent unit or future ethnic canton would be a majority of 82 percent, while the Serbian nation would comprise 50 percent of the Serbian unit. He said that the approved document that has not yet been signed will allow Bosnia to remain indivisible and unified in its current borders and that after the fifth round of talks it practically became a "state with all of the attributes of a state". He supported that with a statement saying that at the meeting with Jose Cutilleiro, it was agreed, among other things, that this republic would get its own national currency, a single defense system, unified foreign affairs and court system, and the protection of human rights and freedom.

it was obvious that the homogeneity was a matter of the maps, not of the redistribution of population. It was never an objective to have an ethnically pure state, which is invented and forged by the Prosecution, in spite of so many documents proving opposite! The Chamber finds that the President persisted with promoting the objectives of ethnic separation and the territorial claims of the Bosnian Serbs into 1995.¹¹⁰⁹³ (This was not a crime! This was a legitimate demand of the transformation of BiH, which was going towards the illegal secession, against the legitimate political will of the Serb people in BiH. Since all of the President claims had been acceptable to the International Community (UN and EC) up until 18 March 1992, the rest of time went on in a Muslim military denial of the already agreed state separation. The International institutions never abandoned the Serb claims for their entity, and it was acceptable for the mediators from the very beginning of the crisis, to the very end of the war and the Dayton Agreement. Why the #Chamber is questioning this already legalised and legitimised matter#?)

3488. The Chamber found that the President was instrumental in the creation of the SerBiH TO and local TO units in mid-April 1992 and that he had de jure and de facto control over the TO.¹¹⁰⁹⁴ (Wrong! Before the nomination of the Commander of the Republic's TO, and even after it, the TO units belonged to the municipalities or companies that formed them. The President was only coordinating them for a short period!) The Chamber also found that the President was closely involved in giving instructions for mobilisation of the TO at a municipal level and the creation of the Bosnian Serb TO which was used to take-over and maintain Bosnian Serb authority in the Municipalities.¹¹⁰⁹⁵ (All in the accord with the domestic laws, and the Chamber is doing its findings contrary to the domestic laws. The TO had to be established in every local commune, as well as in companies, regions, and the Republic as a whole and provided both in Constitution and in Law on All-people Defence. Any other way would be a crime of a high treason, as written in the law.) The President also took a leading role in the co-ordination of TO forces and their subsequent integration into the VRS.¹¹⁰⁹⁶ (This is also an inherited rule, and all the armed forces, i.e. Army, Territorial Defence, Civil Protection, and the Police when necessary, are integrated under the command of the Army. Therefore, the #President can not take any credit for inventing this rule#!)

3489. The President, as the highest authority in the VRS chain of command,¹¹⁰⁹⁷ had the power to organise and implement plans for defence, order mobilisation, and command and control the army.¹¹⁰⁹⁸ The Accused exercised his powers, for example, by ordering the VRS to carry out general mobilisation, which was delivered and acted upon at the municipal level, and by reassigning VRS officers.¹¹⁰⁹⁹ He was key in planning strategy and was closely involved in examining and approving the VRS military directives, which were issued in furtherance of the Strategic Goals.¹¹¹⁰⁰ (All legal, nothing illegal, no crime was committed. These were all ordinary presidential duties, as same as in the countries known to the Chamber! But, this shows how deep is the rift between this Court and the domestic legal system!)

3490. The Chamber also found that the Accused's involvement in the command of the VRS as Supreme Commander went beyond planning and strategy as he was involved at the operational level as well. For example, the President issued instructions based on proposals for operations he received from the Main Staff and occasionally sent direct orders to the corps and brigade commanders to answer directly to him.¹¹¹⁰¹ (Nothing illegal. But the President got involved in the direct command #only in a cases of the request of the internationals#, to stop an advancement, to withdraw from some areas, to help with the humanitarian convoys. Was there any crime committed on the basis of the President's orders? Although the President handed the operational and tactical command to the Main Staff, it was his decision, and in some exceptional cases he was entitled to take this command back, and it was always in favour of peace or humanitarian aid, and once in the case of the riots in Banja Luka! But, this shouldn't be of any interest of the Chamber, unless the President issued a direct executive order that caused a crime!)

3491. The Accused was central in promoting the creation of a separate police structure.¹¹¹⁰² (All legitimate, and all in accordance with the Conference on Yugoslavia (ICFY) and the sub-conference on BiH. See the Theaty Provisions, R0414668-R0414682

c) Special status

- a. the right to have and show the national emblems of that group;
 - b. deleted
 - c. an educational system which respects the values and needs of that area;
 - d.
 - i. a legislative body
 - ii. an administrative structure, including a regional police force
 - iii. and a judiciary
 responsible for matters concerning the area, which reflects the composition of the population of the area;
 - e. provisions for appropriate international monitoring.

How come the Prosecution was ignorant of the crucial documents of the ICFY, and who is responsible for this deluding the Chamber about what was legal and what illegal in the President's conduct?) This reflected his objective of creating a separate Bosnian Serb state with parallel structures and this separate police structure was a means of achieving the objective of sovereignty of the Serb people in the territories which they claimed.¹¹¹⁰³ (THIS IS A VERY CORNER STONE OF THE CASE AGAINST THIS PRESIDENT, FROM WHICH ALL HIS "SINS" HAD BEEN DERIVED. HOWEVER, THIS WAS POSSIBLE ONLY BECAUSE THE PROSECUTION AND THE TRIAL CHAMBER DIDN'T WANT TO SEE THE FACTS, AND INSTEAD THEY CALLED H. OKUN TO TESTIFY ON THE BASIS OF HIS NOTES, FOR WHICH HE HIMSELF SAID THAT ARE ARBITRARY AND COMPOSED OF WHAT HE HAD HEARD AND WHAT HE HAD CONTEMPLATED. If the Chamber was responsible towards the facts, once notifying that there was a Conference on Yugoslavia from the summer 1991 (see Paras 312 and 313 of this judgement) to the end of the war.) it would see what were the #agreements and commitments# made at the Conference in 1991. Then the Chamber would see that the President and the Serb side didn't do anything that hadn't been agreed. Particularly the accusations contained in this paragraph. It was only after the trial that the OTP disclosed the documents from this Conference, although both the Chamber and the Prosecution were obliged to rely upon the genuine documents of the international character, particularly since this Conference had been taken into account and mentioned in this Judgement, paras 312, 313 and other. Let us see several of those documents: 1. Badenter's Commission opinion No. 4 (in English) 2. In addition, as Supreme Commander of the VRS and the President of the RS, the President had de jure authority over the MUP during times of war, which he exercised in fact directly, as well as through the municipal Crisis Staffs.¹¹¹⁰⁴ (Those assertions are ridiculous. The #President had only those competences that had been provided for by the Constitution and by laws#, no more, no less. The only order pertaining to the MUP was when there was a need to subjugate a MUP unit to the VRS! But according to the regulations, the President couldn't and didn't order anything illegal and criminal to be committed by the MUP, as well as by the VRS. There was no a jungle, but a people with a very long history of statehood, and everything had to be in accord with regulations!)

3492. Turning to whether the Accused obtained, facilitated, encouraged, and/or supported the participation of JNA forces and Serbian paramilitary forces, the Chamber found that the VRS was formed from parts of the JNA, TO, and volunteer units and inherited both officers and soldiers from the JNA, many of whom were of Bosnian Serb origin, as well as a substantial amount of weaponry and equipment.¹¹¹⁰⁵ (Not “many of them” were of Bosnian Serb origin, but up to 99% of the officers, and a 100% of combatants were the Serbs from Bosnia. Further, apart from the Patriotic league and Green Berets, which were formed claindestinely by the former JNA officers of the Muslim affiliation, the ABiH was formed from the JNA officers, soldiers and reservists, as the HV (Army of Croatia) as any army in the former Yugoslavia. The only difference is that the Muslims and Croats left JNA gradually in a longer period, while the Serbs in BiH didn’t form their own armed forces while the JNA was there, because it would be illegal. And the President was explicitly against any such a formation of separate ethnic army, which is evident from the exhibits. The Accused participated in the creation of the VRS by organising the manpower at the local level and facilitating the transfer of personnel and supply from the JNA.¹¹¹⁰⁶ (So what? No crime!) Furthermore, following the withdrawal of the JNA from BiH, the President supported the operational co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan’s men, Šešelj’s men, and Mauzer’s Panthers.¹¹¹⁰⁷ (Wrong and false! Once the JNA announced that it will withdraw, the Serb Assembly decided to form its own Army, the VRS, on 12 May 92, the same day the President was elected in the Presidency, and General Mladic nominated by the Assembly to be a Commander of the VRS. Even before that, the Prime Minister Djeric issued orders to the territorials (TO) to behave in accordance with the international and domestic laws and banned the paramilitaries, see@ . In May 92 General Mladic issued orders against any paramilitary group, see @. On 13 June the President issued his own order to ban, dismantle, subordinate all independent groups of armed people, or to arrest them. There was no any “co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan’s men, Seselj’s men and Mauzer’s Panthers. Arkan’s men weren’t welcome in Ilidza, and their prior presence in Bijeljina and Zvornik was in the period when the JNA was there, and in Bijeljina during the former authorities of BiH, when the President didn’t have any competence over the development. They appeared again only in the fall of 95, but under the command of the RS MUP. Seselj’s men were integrated in the JNA and later in the VRS, and the only group that had some relation to SRS party was Brne’s group, but it was blocked, disabled in action and finally dismantled.

3493. The Chamber now turns to consider the Prosecution’s submission that the Accused failed to make meaningful efforts to exercise his authority to prevent or punish crimes committed by his civilian and military subordinates and that these failures significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE.¹¹¹⁰⁸ The Chamber recalls that for an accused to contribute to a JCE by omission, he must have had a legal duty to act, and that the failure to act pursuant to that legal duty significantly contributed to the JCE.¹¹¹⁰⁹ The Chamber found that during the time period relevant to the Indictment, the Accused was the highest authority in the VRS chain of command.¹¹¹¹⁰ Prior to its establishment, the Accused had de jure authority over the TO and took steps to create a hierarchical command and control structure, which included some municipal Crisis Staffs over which he had authority.¹¹¹¹¹ Here is the para 3177, to which the Chamber referred: 3177. Based on the above the Chamber finds that the Accused was instrumental in the creation of the SerBiH TO and local TO units in mid-April 1992 and that he had de jure authority over the TO. In addition, given the Accused’s authority over Crisis Staffs, the Chamber finds that the Accused also had de facto authority over the TO. (However, the Chamber erred in inferring so, because there are a sufficient evidence in the file that it was not so. According to the local legislation, the TO units were under the command of their respective commanders, in municipalities it was president of the municipality, in companies it was somebody who was nominated by the chief manager and approved by the JNA. Since the President didn't have any de jure, nor de facto authority over those units it can be seen from the Djeric's order in April 92, see D03709

At a session held on 15 April 1992, pursuant to Article 5 and in conjunction with Article 6 of the Law on National Defence (Official Gazette of the Serbian People in Bosnia and Herzegovina number 4/92), and Article 20, paragraph 3 of the Law on Government (Official Gazette of the Serbian People in Bosnia and Herzegovina number 4/92), the Government of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopted a

Since the President was at Pale, why would the Government decide on it, callin upon the articles of the Law of National Defence? Or, why would the Prime Minister issue the orders to the TO? See: D00219, 20 April 92:

On the basis of the Law on the Government and the Law on National Defence (Official Gazette of the Serbian People in BH, no. 4/92), I hereby

O R D E R

1. All firing by artillery and heavy weapons against the city of Sarajevo from the positions held by Serbian defence forces shall cease.
2. The Minister of Defence shall order the use of the artillery and heavy weapons against targets in the city of Sarajevo only when exceptional conditions justify such action.

It is clear that before the formation of the VRS, 15 June 92, (see: P03035) the #President did not have any authority over the combat units of the TO#, and other combat units didn't exist out of the JNA, or if existed, then it was illegal and the JNA would ban it and arrest it!

According to the Bosnian Serb Constitution and the Law on the Army, as Supreme Commander, the Accused had the authority to, inter alia: (i) appoint, promote, and dismiss VRS officers in accordance with the law; (ii) appoint and dismiss presidents, judges, and assistant judges of military courts and military prosecutors; (iii) issue regulations prescribing internal order and relations in the military service; and (iv) issue regulations on military training and discipline.¹¹¹¹² The Chamber also found that the Accused had de jure authority over the MUP, which he exercised in fact.¹¹¹¹³ The Chamber finds that in light of his position of authority over the VRS, TO, Crisis Staffs, and MUP, the Accused had a legal duty to prevent and punish crimes committed by them. (Committed by them? Does the Chamber have shown any evidence that the said formations and bodies had committed crimes? What are these evidences? If a member of some of those formations had committed a crime, the organs were in charge to punish them. However, there is no any evidence that those formations as such, i.e. in their official capacity did any crime. And that they did so, there is an overwhelming evidence, both in dismissing individuals from job, (more than 6,000 incompetent policemen had been fired in the first year of war) and indicting the villains. This wasn't a duty of the President, as is nowhere in the world. But, before 12 May 1992 the President didn't have any authority over the MUP, and prior to 15 June the President didn't have any authority over the VRS! How come this Court didn't know what are the duties of a president, since it is the same in any parliamentary democracy!)

3494. The Chamber will now consider the efforts made by the Accused to ensure the protection of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats residing in areas of Bosnian Serb control and to prevent and punish crimes committed by his subordinates. The Chamber recalls that the President established the military courts and that the civilian courts existed during the conflict; however the Chamber found that the system functioned in a discriminatory manner, with a lack of attention to crimes committed against non-Serbs.¹¹¹¹⁴ The Chamber found that the inadequate level of investigations and prosecutions of crimes committed against non-Serbs was consistent with the President's position that such matters could be delayed during the conflict.¹¹¹¹⁵ Here is a part of this para 3425 to which is this para referring: 3425. Having considered all of the evidence, the Chamber finds that there was a systemic failure to investigate and prosecute criminal offences committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities during the conflict. The Chamber rejects the evidence presented that the justice system treated all ethnicities the same in light of the compelling evidence demonstrating a lack of investigation and prosecution of the serious criminal acts committed against non-Serbs which were brought to the attention of authorities, as opposed to a clear willingness to investigate and prosecute crimes committed against Serbs. Again, this para relies on the next para from the fn 10955, i.e. 3414-3416 , 3422-3423. Let us see on what are based those paras: let us see 3414: 3414. As discussed in greater detail below, there was a systemic failure to investigate and prosecute crimes committed against non-Serbs and few cases in which Bosnian Serbs committed crimes against non-Serbs reached military courts.10907 The cases prioritised by the military courts in Bijeljina and Banja Luka in August 1992 pertained to failure to respond to mobilisation and desertion by Bosnian Serb Forces and cases involving Serb victims.

3495. The Chamber found that the Accused made minimal efforts to prevent or punish the crimes of forcible displacement and deportation after he learned about such crimes repeatedly throughout the conflict, starting from as early as April 1992.¹¹¹¹⁶ (A #president, anywhere in the world, is not investigating and punishing anyone#. There exist the institutions that do their job, and not even Ministry of Interior and Ministry of Justice could do anything out of the judicial system. What was the constitutional and a lawful duty of a president and ministries was to create as good as possible conditions that those institutions work properly. The honourable members of the Chamber should have known that in their countries is a similar system. Once the laws are adopted, passed through the Assembly and promulgated by the President, and the institutions formed, there is no possibility for anyone to interfere, unless there is a criminal charge, or a political assessment of the Assembly to make some changes!) This is unsurprising given that he established and co-ordinated the political and military structures which implemented the goal of the Bosnian Serb leadership to create an ethnically homogeneous state and intended for these very crimes to be committed. (Where is an evidence for this assertion? There must have been a law, order, instruction, interference in the judicial system.... How the President could have done what is "found" in the Judgment? Look what the Chamber's trusted witness Djeric said about the forming of the Serb institutions, see: T. 27924, on the Lisbon Agreement as a basis for the formation of the Serb institutions: formed -- changed all these formations without any detrimental effects? Do you agree that what you said and what the assembly did was after the Lisbon agreement had been agreed to; namely, the offer that had been made to us that we have our own constituent unit in Bosnia? A. Yes, I agree with that. And that was done on the basis of the ideas presented in the Lisbon Agreement. Q. So you do remember that already then we accepted to have a Bosnia outside Yugoslavia, to have its external borders preserved but internal decentralisation would be carried out on the basis of the provisions of the Lisbon Agreement, right? A. Yes. For example, within a few months of being presented with information that non-Serb civilians were being expelled from Zvornik in early April 1992, the Accused ordered an investigation and then advised international representatives that Bosnian Muslim inhabitants in Zvornik had requested to move out because they felt like hostages. However, the Chamber found that the Accused had also been informed that the municipal authorities in Zvornik had participated in the expulsion of non-Serb civilians in order to allow Serb refugees to settle there and also blamed paramilitaries for these events. (This is #incorrect and almost a criminal inference#. First of all, in April 1992 the President neither had sufficient information, nor any authority and ability to intervene. The Chamber must have known that Mr. Izetbegovic ordered (illegally) a general mobilisation of 4 April evening, and that the fights in Bijeljina just stopped on 2 or third April, and started in Zvornik on 5 April. The first day the Muslims had a success, and the Serbs had to escape from Zvornik. They returned within next few days, and had more success than the Muslims, liberated the very urban core of Zvornik, while 80% of the municipal territory was under the Muslim control. At that moment there was no a Serb refugees to be settled in Zvornik. And the authorities in Pale didn't know who was in control of Zvornik, since there is a document that certain Rada, a secretary in the Serb MUP called Belgrade and Arkan, to ask him who controlled Zvornik, see: P01109

SUBJECT: Conversation conducted on 16. 04. 1992 between Radmila KALABA and Željko RAŽNATOVIĆ aka Arkan.

RK: I am calling you from the Serbian MUP /Ministry of the Interior/ in Sarajevo.

RK: Tell me, which of our men, what is the number of Zvornik Police Station?

Who do we have in Zvornik?

And who is in control of Zvornik?

ŽR: Well, I mean, I do not know. I do not know at all.

RK: And do you have your men in Zvornik who might have some knowledge on where he might be?

ŽR: Well no, I pulled out my men from Zvornik.

RK: Oh, you pulled your men out of Zvornik?

ŽR: Well, of course, you can see they are after me. Do you not know what the situation is?

Not only the MUP didn't know who was controlling Zvornik on 16 April 1992, but also Arkan was endangered by the Serb authorities, and he withdrew his men!) He therefore clearly knew that the expulsion was forced but took no actions to punish the perpetrators of such acts. He later celebrated the "liberation" of Zvornik and the fact that there were almost no non-Serbs remaining there in 1993.¹¹¹⁷ (#LIBERATED FROM THE ARMED MUSLIM EXTREMISTS#! This is more than wrong, this is #mean and malicious#. The Chamber had the opportunity to see the evidence that the Muslim extremists were the first to fight and expel the Serb civilians from Zvornik, although the Serb side was negotiating with Muslim side to have formed the two ethnic municipalities. In April 92 the President didn't have any influence on events in Zvornik. The Chamber saw the document that the Muslim civilians from Kozluk demanded to leave, but the Serbian Orthodox bishop called the Muslim priest and they together with the Serb authorities dissuaded the civilians from their intent to leave. Later, the civilians from Divic demanded to be allowed to leave towards Tuzla. When a paramilitaries started to torture the officials in Zvornik, the authorities couldn't guarantee their own security, and anything to anybody. Another unacceptable and extremely unusual manipulation with evidence is the sentence that the President "celebrated ... the fact that there were no non-Serbs remaining there in 1993. The Chamber is misinterpreting the discussion of the President with the Yugoslav leadership, and when Minister Jovanovic was talking against an "ethnic cleansing" because the natural and non-violent processes are not a crime, the President supported his thesis, stating that many thousand Serbs from Zenica already arrived in Zvornik. The Chamber knew that the Serbs controlled only a small part of the municipality and the town itself, while more than 60% of the territory was, and still is, a Muslim municipality, without any Serb there. This way of distortion would be the same as if the President said that he celebrated Christmas, and that there happened an earthquake – and that meant that he celebrated an earthquake too.)

3496. The Accused continued to learn about instances of "ethnic cleansing" throughout the conflict.¹¹¹¹⁸ (The President and everyone knew it even before the war, that all the three ethnic communities would flee towards their territories, and that was why the President was against the war. At the first period even the international monitors qualified the feature correctly, as a chaotic escape of population... In the next document, which was disclosed to the Defence after the trial ended, it is evident that the events, and not authorities, displaced population, 21 April 1992 :

SITUATION REPORT 15

Period 13 - 19 April 1992
SARAJEVO

RO120677

1.2 Population Movements

The recent clashes in B&H have resulted in a sharp increase in the number of displaced persons both within and moving out from the Republic. The estimated number of newly displaced in B&H, in addition to the 90,000 present by beginning of April is 90,000. This brings the total to 180,000 persons. The highest concentrations of newly displaced are in Hercegovina (Capljina, Mostar, Nevesinje, Tomislavgrad) and Eastern Bosnia (Tuzla, Kalesija, Gorazde, Rogatica). Further displacements are expected from Srebrenica and Bratunac as a result of clashes in these areas on 19 April.

Annex I provides updated figures on the displaced by Municipality in B&H (information provided by the Republican Red Cross). UNHCR visited Pale on 15 April, where the registration of and distribution of relief items to displaced has been taken over by the "Center for Social Care" (under the Serbian municipality of the Pale). The staff of the last mentioned center informed UNHCR that 11,200 internally displaced had been registered during the last 2 weeks, in addition to the 250 displaced from Croatia. This leads to the conclusion that the figures of the Republican Red Cross should be complemented by those from other organizations in certain areas. The same applies to warehouse/distribution arrangements.

It was only much later that somebody invented the term "ethnic cleansing" as a "suitable" term to dis-qualify the Serb side, despite the fact that there was more the Serb refugees than the Muslim and Croat together!) However, it was not until 19 August 1992 that he issued an instruction to the VRS and MUP ordering that the forced resettlement of the civilians should be prevented and that "any certificates of sale of property or statements that refugees will not return shall be considered as legally invalid and are declared null and void" and 21 August 1992 that he pledged to prevent "ethnic cleansing" and punish persons involved in it.¹¹¹¹⁹ On 25 August 1992, the President wrote a letter to the international community explaining that he had issued the 19

¹¹¹¹⁸ See Section IV.A.3.a.v.A: Knowledge of crimes committed throughout the Municipalities.

¹¹¹¹⁹ See para. 3400.

August 1992 instruction and stated that the civilian population must be allowed to move freely out of a war zone if that was the desire of the civilian population, under the Geneva Conventions, blaming the failure on the part of the international community to understand the deep-rooted antagonism and hatred between the three ethnicities in BiH, which caused people to leave their communities in droves.¹¹¹²⁰ The Chamber considers this latter statement to be an attempt by the Accused to cover up and minimise the forced nature of the removal of non-Serbs from the Municipalities and indicates that his orders to prevent such forced removal were not intended. This finding is supported by the fact that he continued to share the intent to forcibly remove non-Serbs from the Municipalities until 30 November 1995. (This is as wrong as devil. You will find at least 18 documents of the President, mainly orders, one guidelines and two appeals – all issued far before 19 August 1992, the exhibits as follows: D94, D95 D96, D434, D1603, D3111, D4702, D445, D477, D2244, D426, D576, D494, D110, D4702, D1141, D4710, and some of these documents will be pasted below in parts or the entire documents. First see: D01603, p. 9 which was signed as early as 22 May 1992, which, as an Agreement, regulated the matter of civilians in a combat zones.

The displacement of the civilian population shall not be ordered unless the security of the civilians involved or imperative military reasons so demand. Should such displacements have to be carried out, all possible measures shall be taken in order that the civilian population may be received under satisfactory conditions of shelter, hygiene, health, safety and nutrition.

The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) shall have free access to civilians in all places, particularly in places of internment or detention, in order to fulfil its humanitarian mandate according to the Fourth Geneva Convention of 12 August 1949.

The Prosecution-Chamber #did not prove that there was a displacement out of the required “security reasons” or “imperative military reasons”#. Since there was many occasions when “such displacements had to be carried out” the Prosecution was obliged to show which one was not falling within this necessity. Here is precisely provided when and why civilians could be displaced and detained. Further, see D01141, of 1 October, p.1. signed by the three sides under the auspice of the ICRC:

Recalling that the presence of civilians may not be used to render certain areas immune from military operations,

Considering that in the present situation in Bosnia-Herzegovina with generalized violations of International Humanitarian Law systematically committed against civilians, the lives of certain civilians in certain areas can only be saved if they leave temporarily their homes and reach temporarily other areas,

The undersigned submit the following recommendations to the deliberation of the International Conference on Former Yugoslavia :

- 1.) Civilians who desire to leave temporarily the territory controlled by one party to reach the territory controlled by another party should be entitled to do so.

¹¹¹²⁰ See para. 3400; D4720 (Letter from Radovan Karadžić re London Peace Conference, 25 August 1992), p. 1.

3. The civilians should be able to leave in an organized transfer under international supervision and, if necessary, protection. Its security will be guaranteed by each party on the territory it controls.

4. Each party to the conflict guarantees to those who leave temporarily the territory it controls :

a) that their goods, assets and belongings will be respected and protected;

b) that they have a right to return home at a later stage if they wish so;

c) That any document, including a document renouncing or transferring property rights, assets or claims signed by a person who is about to leave temporarily has no legal validity and does not affect in any way that persons's rights or obligations.

5. Persons temporarily transferred to areas other than their areas of origin should benefit, as vulnerable groups, from international assistance, inter alia, in conformity with its mandate, by the ICRC.

#What is wrong with this document so that the Chamber neglected it#?

There was no any movement of population unless there were armed conflicts and open fights. The two third of the municipalities under the Serb control didn't have any crimes, or any "forceful" displacement. Why? Because there was no a war, wherever the Serbs had been a majority population, the Muslims and Croats were safe, and this fact nobody can deny, and the fact is rebutting all the allegations about the JCE. Further, the inference of the Chamber is wrong and deeply incorrect – that it was for the first time on 19 August that the President issued orders towards the protection of the non-Serb civilians. It only happened after Mr. Doyle informed the President while in London, about the feature, but it was a permanent concern of the President and other state organs. In addition to the evidence: D00434, of 13 June 1992, the Order on respect for the International law of war; and D01603, p. 9 which was signed as early as 22 May 1992, which, as an Agreement, regulated the matter of civilians in a combat zones, see also D00096, of 23 July 1992:

Pursuant to the constitutional powers and in keeping with the obligations undertaken at the London Conference, I hereby

ORDER

1. The Serbian authorities must act in accordance with the law and the Geneva Convention towards the civilian population of any ethnicity who do not exert aggression and combat operations against our army and the civilian population.
2. All inhabitants who surrender weapons and agree to live peacefully and in keeping with the law must be enabled to remain in their own homes and enjoy our protection.
3. Any inhabitants who wish to move temporarily or permanently from combat operations zones to other areas must be enabled to do so. The date and route to be used by the population must be agreed, and complete security must be provided for the civilians moving.
4. I hereby remind all representatives of the authorities in the SAO /Serbian Autonomous District of/ Birač of their great responsibility before the law to execute this and other orders in keeping with the law and the Geneva Conventions.

PRESIDENCY OF THE SERBIAN REPUBLIC OF BH

Why the Chamber neglected this document? Further, there were other documents: see D04710 of 17 July 92, and Agreement between the warring sides, p. 1:

We agree that all refugees will be permitted to return to the places from which they have been expelled and that civilians who are caught up in or trapped by the military situation, will be given freedom of movement.

p. 2 (accompanying draft of the SC SG statement:

The Council welcomes the provisions in the agreement concerning the return of all refugees and freedom of movement for civilians caught up in or trapped by the military situation. It

Also, D00095 of 14 July 92, the order of the President to the municipalities in the South-East Bosnia, region of Gorazde:

All villages in which the Croatian and Muslim inhabitants hand over their weapons and do not intend to fight against us must enjoy the full protection of our Serbian state of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The responsibility of this must be borne by the presidents of the municipalities.

President of the Presidency
Dr Radovan KARADŽIĆ

In the occasion of the anniversary of SDS, 11 July 92 the President issued a public greetings to the members of SDS and appealed for a human approach to the crisis, D94:

The responsibility of the Serbian Democratic Party, which is to defend the nation and the Serbian Republic, is enormous. Along with a military victory, we also need rights and morals to win as well.

The state, which we, the Serbs, are creating, must rest on the rule of rights and humanity, since "a kingdom does not demand inhumane people to defile itself before the world." With that, I ask of all members and representatives of the Serbian Democratic Party to constantly monitor our behaviour, so that the glory of our just battle would not be tarnished by inhumane actions.

Special attention should be given to just behaviour towards civilians of other nationalities within our Republic. Similarly, towards our defeated counterparts, we need to not only honour the Clauses of the Geneva Convention, but we also need to show our Orthodox Christian mercy.

May St. Peter the Apostle guide and aid us all on the path of truth, justice, and good will.

So, in this, as well as in many other occasions, the President made it known to the public what was his attitude towards civilians of the other two communities. Therefore, prior to 19 August 1992 there was at least acts, orders and appeals to the respect of the protection of non-Serbs: 22 April 1992, the President's Platform D110, the President's speech in Banja Luka meeting on 12 May 1992, D494, p. 5

Bosnia and Herzegovina. We have decided to declare unilateral cease fires, let all world /everyone/ see who is starting troubles and who is violating cease fires / truce. We in Bosnia and Herzegovina are not in conflict with Croats and Muslims. We are in a conflict with militant leadership which would like to impose their state to us, the one in which they would dominate and we would be second class citizens , that is to say the escort people to the leading people /nation/ which was communicated to us in a clear fashion on some of rallies. But, Serbian people is not demanding to be a leader, but will not agree to be manor and second rated. That is the reason why we decided to organise our state unit in Bosnia and Herzegovina. /applause/ Serbs on these areas. And the Serbs are endangered in all parts outside of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. We are proud to say that Muslims and Croats are not and will not be endanger on the territory of Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. /applause/

further, D576, order of S. Galic, 2 Jun 1992

TO THE COMMAND OF THE ARCHIVES

1. At all costs prevent looting, arson, and private wars in the zone of responsibility of the division.
2. Protect refugees and innocent people, and treat the surrendering enemy according to the international laws on /the treatment/ of prisoners-of-war.
3. Take the most drastic legal and other measures up to /?and including/ physical liquidation against those violating this order.

further, The Appeal of the President: D426 of 8 June 1992 :

Appeal by Radovan KARADŽIĆ in connection to the International Red Cross Committee plea

Based on the outcome of the meeting held under the auspices of the International Red Cross Committee in Geneva on the 4th, 5th and 6th of June 1992, during which a comprehensive plan for humanitarian aid for people of Bosnia and Herzegovina was agreed on, and in response to the plea of the aforementioned committee which asked that all leaders of the warring factions in this republic support this plan and guarantee its uninterrupted implementation and advocate the public's respect for the elementary principles of the wartime humanitarian law, the President of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina Presidency, appeals for the following:

1. We ask all the local authorities and prominent Serbian individuals to ensure protection and care for all wounded and ill individuals, no matter what side they belong to
2. To treat all prisoners humanely
3. To spare the civilians of all attacks
4. To provide protection and all possible aid to refugees
5. To respect the Red Cross sign which is to be used only for markings on medical personnel, hospitals and ambulances.

On our part, we will ensure that all conditions for the work of the International Red Cross Committee and other humanitarian organisations are met, that their representatives, vehicles and materials are respected and that they can perform their duties in safety. We are repeating our invitation to the International Red Cross Committee for their reactivation in this area, in protecting the civilians of all nations, as well as prisoners.../pages missing/

There is no any doubt about these efforts. See further, D2244 OF 23 June the Declaration of the Presidency of the RS:

1. The declaration of a state of war is clear proof that the Muslim-Croatian side is continuing to prefer a military option over a political one.

3. This decision is obviously in contravention of UNPROFOR's peace mission and Security Council Resolution No. 752.

We call on all well-meaning people who want a peaceful resolution of the crisis in Bosnia and Herzegovina to resist this endorsement of war. We will welcome all those seeking protection in the territory of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina as fighters for peace. In these circumstances, the bare necessities will be provided to the families of all people of good will, irrespective of their nationality.

further, D477, of 1 July 1992, the Order to facilitate ICRC access:

SERBIAN REPUBLIC PRESIDENCY

To all local civilian and police authorities

Delegates of the ICRC are allowed to travel on the entire territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina that is under our control.

They are also authorised to visit all prisons, including military camps and police stations under our control.

For that reason, all soldiers of the Serbian forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina are required:

A) To facilitate the safe passage of the delegates and vehicles of the ICRC. As proof of identity, the delegates of the ICRC will have Red Cross passes and their vehicles will display the emblem of the Red Cross.

B) To take all measures to respect the emblem of the Red Cross and prevent any disruption and/or attack against ICRC vehicles and staff.

C) To provide necessary information in relation to detainees and facilitate the visits of the ICRC to all prisons.

I hereby order that you strictly abide by these instructions. Any soldier who does not comply with these instructions shall be punished.

further D94, the Greetings of the President to the SDS anyversary:

GREETINGS FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE SERBIAN DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA TO THE MEMBERS AND REPRESENTATIVES OF THE PARTY

Even though the Serbian Democratic Party had, under the current conditions in which we find ourselves, halted its activity, I wish to all of you a happy celebration of the Party's patron Saint, St. Peter, as well as a happy anniversary of its founding, with hopes that the war, which was imposed on us, will hastily and rightfully come to an end.

The state, which we, the Serbs, are creating, must rest on the rule of rights and humanity, since "a kingdom does not demand inhumane people to defile itself before the world." With that, I ask of all members and representatives of the Serbian Democratic Party to constantly monitor our behaviour, so that the glory of our just battle would not be tarnished by inhumane actions.

Special attention should be given to just behaviour towards civilians of other nationalities within our Republic. Similarly, towards our defeated counterparts, we need to not only honour the Clauses of the Geneva Convention, but we also need to show our Orthodox Christian mercy.

further, D445, of 11 July 1992,

ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE CITIZENS OF THE SERBIAN REPUBLIC OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

The Presidency of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina has irrefutable evidence of genocide perpetrated on Serb civilians living in the area of the Croatian state community of Herzeg Bosnia and in the area of the Muslim national community. Furthermore, human and civil rights are being violated, including the right of temporary emigration. Consequently, the Serb population is becoming a hostage, exposed to all sorts of blackmail.

The Presidency wants to point out that, according to the Geneva Convention, civilians living in areas affected by war must be allowed to leave the area. Furthermore, emigration has to be voluntary, therefore, it cannot be either obstructed or encouraged.

Croats and Muslims in the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina are guaranteed all rights granted by a legal state. The Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina authorities are not forcibly detaining citizens in war zones, because such an act would render them hostages, nor are they forcing them to emigrate, as that would be "ethnic cleansing". All refugees from the territory of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be allowed to return without suffering any consequences; criminals, not civilians, are subject to legal sanctions.

The Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina authorities expect that Croatian and Muslim authorities will act towards Serbian minorities living in Croatian and Muslim territories in the same way, that is, allow Serbs to move to areas where they feel safe, and respect the Geneva Convention and other international norms when dealing with Serbs.

See also D4702, an Appeal of the President to the inhabitants of Gorazde. Further, see D95, an Order of the President to all the municipal presidents,

All villages in which the Croatian and Muslim inhabitants hand over their weapons and do not intend to fight against us must enjoy the full protection of our Serbian state of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The responsibility of this must be borne by the presidents of the municipalities.

President of the Presidency
Dr Radovan KARADŽIĆ

In the field of civilian defence, communication, control and cryptographic data protection, and the system of surveillance and information, the Ministry of Defence shall prepare instructions, acts, and orders, in order to stipulate the following: the protection of men and material property from war devastations, functioning of the communication system and the system of cryptographic data protection for the need of command and functioning of surveillance and informing the citizens of all the dangers threatening people and material assets.

9. Ministry of Internal Affairs should adjust its war-time structure to the needs and tasks in war-time conditions, in the following way: keeping of public law and order, control and security in traffic in the areas not affected by war activities; protection and physical security to the facilities of particular interest for defence and protection, control of border crossings; protection of persons; intelligence and counter-intelligence; issuing of ID cards and other documents requested by the citizens; detection and bringing in of perpetrators of minor offences and criminal acts., and other tasks as set out by the Law.

13. Judicial state organs shall closely cooperate with military judiciary, particularly with regard to status issues of prisoners of war, and detained persons, then to collecting information and evidence for initiation of procedure against perpetrators of crimes and genocidal actions, as well as to other issues of collecting evidence when deciding upon misdemeanour and criminal procedures, whether it were military or civilian perpetrators.

14. When dealing with and resolving these issues, rules and regulations of the International War Law shall be strictly observed.

How come this Guidelines of the President to the state organs was not worthy of any attention of the Chamber? Who were those who reviewed the evidence? See further D4710, an Agreement from London. Further, D96, order of the President after the London Conference agreements:

Pursuant to the constitutional powers and in keeping with the obligations undertaken at the London Conference, I hereby

ORDER

1. The Serbian authorities must act in accordance with the law and the Geneva Convention towards the civilian population of any ethnicity who do not exert aggression and combat operations against our army and the civilian population.
2. All inhabitants who surrender weapons and agree to live peacefully and in keeping with the law must be enabled to remain in their own homes and enjoy our protection.

Pale, 23 July 1992

PRESIDENT OF THE

How was it possible that somebody deceived the Chamber so cruelly, while a simple glance of the evidence would give another, contrary picture! And what a Defence could do if the truth is so neglected? Is it possible to argue with both the Prosecution, and a Chamber which trusts only Prosecution and nobody other. Such a prejudice is of a cosmic dimensions, and God help us that this kind of trial never repeat!

3497. It is further supported by comments that the Accused made in response to information he received from international representatives about “ethnic cleansing” in Bijeljina in late 1994. (First, how come there was so many Muslims in Bijeljina in late 1994, if they had been “expelled” when it was alleged, and reported by “international representatives”? Second, why the President, occupying the presidential office, would rely on information of an international representatives, who even then and now confess that they had been biased in favour of the Serb adversaries? The President had the state institutions, and whenever he trusted more the internationals than his services, and the VRS personnel – he made a mistake. Even the highest UNPROFOR officers didn’t trust the Military Observers and their reports! The international representatives hadn’t been stationed in Bijeljina all the time, and they had been led by the Muslim propagandists, and an insistence on obedience to the internationals is insulting!) On 26 September 1994, the Accused said to international negotiators that Serbs in Bijeljina were “fighting for their own land” and that “ethnic cleansing” would be an inevitable outcome of the international community’s failure to establish any legal mechanism allowing the population to exchange their homes and move into cantons in which their nationality would be dominant.¹¹¹²¹ The Chamber found that these statements demonstrated that “ethnic cleansing” was directly linked to the President’s objective to take-over Serb claimed land and that he was not interested in preventing it.¹¹¹²² (So, when the President said something within an academic discussion, trying to understand and make others to understand processes, the Chamber qualifies that as the President’s wishes or intentions. But the reality is going it’s own way, understood we it, or not. This is not correct to hunt the President’s colloquial reconsiderations at a lunch time as his criminal intentions. None of these allegations brought into this trial by a note-takers, mainly Harland and Banbury, their superiors ever understood as an official standpoint of the President. This kind of testimonies of a very low positioned clerks compromises the entire international presence in the crisis areas, and advises the leaders in the crisis areas not to admit internationals either for chats, or for negotiations, let alone to invite them to diner, but only to communicate with them in written. Certainly, the was majority were real excellencies, but this Prosecution is ruining their reputation by calling incompetent clerks to testify about things they didn’t understand!)

3498. With respect to the crime of unlawful detention, the Chamber found that the President was aware of the unlawful detention of non-Serb civilians from conflict areas by 24 April 1992.¹¹¹²³ On 8 June (D04491) and 13 June 1992, (D00434) the President issued an appeal to local Bosnian Serb authorities and an order to the VRS and MUP, respectively, to ensure protection for all detainees¹¹¹²⁴ (#EXCULPATORY!!!) Furthermore, members of the government, VRS, JNA, and MUP, including Mićo Stanišić, issued orders to their subordinates to, inter alia, prevent abuse of detainees and mistreatment of civilians and report illegal camps from April to August 1992.¹¹¹²⁵ (#XCULPATORY!!!) In mid-July, the Bosnian Serb government received reports from the MUP that conditions in detention centres were poor and that there had been occurrences of unlawful treatment of detainees.¹¹¹²⁶ (#EXCULPATORY!!! The governmental institutions didn’t cover and didn’t tolerate such a misconduct!) On 25 July 1992, the President received a report from the ICRC following a visit to the Manjača camp, informing him that the conditions there were “absolutely insufficient” and that there was evidence that detainees were being subjected to ill treatment.¹¹¹²⁷ But it was only when the international media started reporting on the inhumane conditions in the detention centres in Prijedor in July 1992 and following a Bosnian Serb delegation to visit the camps, that the President made efforts to close them down.¹¹¹²⁸ (#EXCULPATORY!!! The President accelerated the reporting, invited the British journalists and repeatedly ordered the respect of the humanitarian law. However, even before the President took steps to close the detention centres, there was a daily release of those that weren’t responsible for the rebellion and killings. There was no a single day without investigations, and the result was that 59% of the detained and captured during the attack of the Muslim terrorists on Prijedor – had been released, while 41% of them had been conveyed to Manjaca as a prisoners of war, although they could have been treated as a terrorists!!) Meanwhile, on 30 July 1992, the President continued to present to the public that the allegations made by the Guardian that the Bosnian Serbs had organised concentrations camps or were holding civilian prisoners were “completely false”.¹¹¹²⁹ (The allegations about an existence of a “concentration camps” were and still are “completely false”. There had never been any “concentration camps” in the RS. There were a detention units for the POWs, a detention units for those captured in a combat zones and had to be investigated, and consequently released, or conveyed to the POWs prisons. There were a reception centres, such as Trnopolje. Let us see what the ICRC reported about Trnopolje: see: D03110, of 2 October 92:

ICRC EVACUATES 1,560 PEOPLE FROM TRNOPOLJE CAMP

Geneva (ICRC) - The International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) confirms having evacuated on 1 October 1,560 people from Trnopolje camp (near Prijedor in northern Bosnia-Herzegovina) to a reception centre in Karlovac, south-west of Zagreb, where they were handed over to staff of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). The evacuation started in the early morning and was completed during the night.

The people concerned are civilian victims of the ongoing hostilities in northern Bosnia, and had all been visited and provided with assistance by ICRC delegates since the ICRC was first able to enter the camp on 10 August. Each of them was given the opportunity to confirm that he or she did in fact wish to be evacuated.

The operation took place under the terms of the agreement reached in London last August whereby the three parties to the conflict pledged to release all civilian detainees unilaterally.

It said: “The people concerned are civilian victims of the ongoing hostilities...” while the Defence had a hard time to prove that it was so. The Tribunal and its chambers do not respect the UN, or the ICRC or UNHCR documents, but rather listen to a testimonies of the opposite side, a witnesses that are interested in denigtarion of the Serbs. The Agreement that the ICRC Report mentioned was one on which the Defence pointed as a basis for evacuation, and not an expelling of civilians!

3499. The Chamber notes that it was concluded at a session of the RS Presidency on 6 August 1992, that the MUP would be ordered to examine civilian authorities and individuals guarding detainees and report back to the Presidency. (#EXCULPATORY!!!) The decision was relayed to SJB Chiefs in a number of municipalities who were obliged to provide reports in accordance with the RS Presidency decision by 20 August 1992. The SJB Chiefs were also informed about the RS Presidency order to release all civilians and to allow them freedom of movement.¹¹¹³⁰ (#EXCULPATORY!!!) From August to October, the President made further efforts to reduce the number of civilians who were unlawfully detained in Serb controlled detention centres.¹¹¹³¹ (#EXCULPATORY!!!) In October 1992, the President informed Mladić, Mićo Stanišić, and Mandić that he had received information that some local authorities had ignored his instruction to allow unfettered access for the ICRC to detention facilities and demanded that they inform their subordinates to respect his instruction to allow access and that he would order a thorough investigation of all cases of failure to comply.¹¹¹³² (#EXCULPATORY!!!) The vast majority of those documents of the President had been of a “top secret” type, and certainly hadn’t been aimed to the public.) On 27 October 1992, the Bosnian Serb Government officially decided to close all illegal camps as soon as possible and in December 1992, pursuant to the President’s order, all detainees held in Manjača were released on the condition that they be transferred to third countries.¹¹¹³³ (#EXCULPATORY!!!) The Chamber considers that prior to the President’s intervention in Prijedor to close the camps with the worst conditions in August 1992, the measures taken to prevent or punish the unlawful detention of civilians were completely inadequate. (But, the Chamber is neglecting the key fact – there hadn’t been any unlawful detention of civilians. For all of the centres there had been submitted explanations, which had been in accordance with the course of events, i.e. first there were fights initiated by the Muslim armed terrorists, because they didn’t met the criteria to be considered a regular army, which were an illegal formation deep in the Serb territory. There was no a single case of any detention without a military skirmishes prior to the establishment of a detention facilities. What was an impression, assumption of a jeopardy, and expectation of the local people in charge, this couldn't be influenced by anyone, because the people were entitled to protect themselves. There could have been a certain degree of exaggerations and over – esteem of jeopardy, but this is not subject to anyone's correction. Neither a state could influence it, if a state was not capable of securing lives and freedom of people. In such a cases, the population and municipal authorities are entitled due to the SFRY Constitution (P4743) the BiH Constitution (D1263) and the BiH Law on Defence (D1359) and the Strategy prescribed by the SFRY Presidency (D4282), to undertake all the necessary measures to protect the people!) The Chamber further considers that after that point, he began to take measures to close the temporary detention centres in the Municipalities, however, these measures did not have much effect until closer to the end of 1992. The Chamber further notes that ultimately, while many civilians were released from detention by the end of 1992, detention centres remained in existence for the duration of the war and continued to hold non-Serb civilian detainees.¹¹¹³⁴ (“for the duration of the war”, certainly. That was a civil war, and civilians participated in the combat activities on many ways, as the Law on All-People Defence provided, and equilised the civilians and combatants. The Chamber should have already known that there was no a professional armies, and a number of professional officers and commanders was very low. The civilians could have been detained only till the moment their innocence had been established. There is a lot of evidence on this subject. In Sanski Most there was released more than 40% of the detained, and from Omarska it was 59% of the all detainees. Also, a housing and other acceptance and accommodation of civilians removed from the combat zones is theated in this Court as an unlawful detention, without any consideration of the obligations prescribed in the domestic laws!)

3500. The Chamber now turns to consider whether the Accused was able to do more to prevent and punish crimes committed by his subordinates. The Chamber recalls that Momčilo Mandić, Minister of Justice, and Mićo Stanišić, MUP Minister, ignored government decisions with respect to prevention and prosecution of criminal activity and answered more to the Accused than to the government.¹¹¹³⁵ This implies that the Accused had the ability to influence Mandić and Stanišić to ensure that their respective ministries functioned to prevent and punish crimes more effectively. (This is #all wrong, and hard to believe that the Prosecution and then the Chamber too, do not know how the judiciary functioned. A personal disputes between the then Prime Minister Branko Djerić on the two ministers should not darken the law, because neither the Ministry for Interior and Ministry for Justice, nor the Government and Prime Minister do punish criminals. It was within the remit of the office of Prosecutor and Courts, and everyone was able to deposit a criminal report on any crime known. Both the Ministries and judicial system worked without any influence or interference of the President or anyone else. What the two Ministers reported to the President had nothing to do with a regular duties of their ministries, but only a matters pertaining to the state security. In order to show how the

Proceeding in accordance with the conclusions adopted at the meeting of senior personnel on 11 July 1992, whereby the tasks relating to the discovery and documentation of war crimes or genocide and the submission of criminal reports, as well as in accordance with other enactments (number Strictly Confidential 01-2/92 of 16 May 1992) and orders, were numbered among the priorities of the National Security Service and the Crime Prevention Service, a questionnaire on war crimes and victims of genocide has been compiled in the Information Analysis Administration.

A questionnaire will be completed at security services centres for all persons, regardless of ethnicity, (Muslims, Croats, Serbs and others) against whom criminal reports have been submitted on reasonable grounds for suspicion that they have committed the given crimes, as well as questionnaires for victims regardless of whether a criminal report has been submitted or the procedure of gathering evidence for the submission of a criminal report against a perpetrator is still in progress.

It should be borne in mind that questionnaires on war crimes remain a form of investigative documentation only, until such time as they have been proven (judicial sentence or decision by an authorised state commission) and will be so regarded, the more so because criminal reports will also be submitted against unknown perpetrators. On the other hand, questionnaires on victims may also be used for other purposes (if the elements of the crimes of genocide or war crimes have been demonstrated).

From now on copies of the questionnaire must be submitted in succession, and for earlier cases please submit examples of the questionnaire by 10 August 1992. We wish to point out that data on the perpetrators and victims have been submitted pursuant to document number 01-2/92 only by Banja Luka Security Services Centre and Bijeljina Public Security Station.

And the Questionary, as a part of this document, follows, showing that there was no difference in treating the Serb and non-Serb victims, which makes all the allegations that The State Documentation Centre, led by M. Toholj (see D:) are in vain, because the Center was not a surrogate of the regular investigation of crimes, but only documentation of the crimes out of reach of the MUP RS. Concerning the Justice department, the President didn't have any reason to intervene, since there was a huge activity in creating and adopting the legislation, many laws (as Mr. Djerić admitted, see: T....@Amon other the Justice department issued an instruction which would be considered as a governmental A/B Variante, see D00448:

Appointment of the State Commissionfor the Identification of Crimes andGenocide Against the Civilian Populationand of Victims of War

This is a proper Commission in the criminal terms, and it had to identify all the crimes regardless of the ethnicity of victims and perpetrators, different from the Documentation Center led by a writer Toholj, which collected documents about crimes over the Serbs in the Muslim-Croat areas, that was out of reach of the first Commission.) Furthermore, the fact that the President, when he chose to act to remedy the situation in detention centres, was able to influence the closure of camps, shows that had he wanted, he could have used this influence more effectively and quickly to prevent crimes. (This is also misunderstood and misinterpreted: the President issued all the necessary general orders on a proper time, and that should be sufficient, but when informed about some specific omissions or trespasses, the President undertook the specific warnings of the immediate officers in charge, and that could have had some more effect than a general orders. Once the international agencies secured their admittance in a third countries, it was possible to release them. Therefore, it was also #EXCULPATORY!)

3501. The Chamber considers that the Accused's failure to exercise his authority to adequately prevent or punish crimes committed against non-Serbs signalled to Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs that criminal acts committed against non-Serbs were tolerated throughout the period of the Overarching JCE. (This kind of inferring is unacceptable! No any institution in the RS had any idea about any Overarching JCE, nor did any of the institutions thought that crimes were tolerated, or were to be tolerated. Where is any evidence on this issue which would corroborate what the Chamber inferred? This looks like a ferry tale. There was no a crime that a police or the VRS unit committed as a unit, with the all prerequisites that goes with the actions of units, i.e. that a crime had been committed with a plan and preparations, with all that is required, a decision of an immediate commander, and a knowledge of the next superior commander, and with the participation of a substantial part of the unit! No, that never happened. The crimes were not based either on the system, or any decision, any plan, any knowledge let alone consent of the official authorities.) In light of this, his failure to take adequate steps to prevent and punish criminal activity committed against non-Serbs in the Municipalities had the effect of encouraging and facilitating the JCE I Crimes. (The President doesn't investigate, doesn't indict, nor he does judge, sentence and punish. In no country Presidents do that! The Presidential duty is to facilitate that the Government and institutions can do their job, but not even to ask how and why a court decided something different from the President's expectation. But, the President didn't skip any of his duties to warn, to ban certain conduct, organisation, features. Why the Chamber didn't number what the President did on the issue, what measures he have taken, what orders had issued, whether he intervened in the MUP, or the military police, or military or civilian prosecution, or the courts? Did the President ever withdrew his orders pertaining to the respect of the human rights and the international laws of war? If he didn't, were these orders still on power? Did the Chamber notice how many rogue elements and paramilitaries had been disbanded, arrested, persecuted, and how many perpetrators had been tried? Did the Chamber point out to a single case that had been covered with the President's knowledge, or anyway?) The Chamber further finds that the Accused's failure to prevent and punish crimes committed by Serb Forces against non-Serbs and his tolerance for such crimes demonstrate a failure on his part to take adequate steps to ensure that Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs would act to protect Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats residing in areas under their control. (This is #in continuo incorrect finding and assertion, or slunder, whatever it is. The President is not supposed to search for such an evidence. Why the Prosecution, and/or the Chamber didn't establish what the President failed to do, when the failure is at stake, as well as an President's misdoing, giving an order contrary to the law? Since there was many settled places with a substantial number of the Muslim-Croat inhabitants who didn't have any problem, the Chamber must ask itself – who or what protected them? A document from the UN visit to Grbavica in 1994 is illustrative enough that the ordinary people of any ethnicity didn't have any need to move, because they had been treated as the Serb citizens had been treated, even better, because the non-Serbs didn't have to go to the army, see D2424, and another similar document that had been disclosed too late, i.e. after the trial!)

3502. In addition, the Chamber found that during the spring of 1992 the President supported the operational co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, and Mauzer's Panthers. While the President took actions to have paramilitary formations disbanded, these actions were initiated in mid-1992, after all the take-overs had already been completed in the Municipalities with the active involvement of these paramilitaries. These take-overs resulted in the forcible removal of thousands of non-Serbs. (This "findings" are without any real basis, and in #contradiction with all the evidence#:

1. During "the spring of 1992" there was no any state office occupied by the President, or any ingerences over the armed formations or groups;

2. First of all, as early as 13 June 92, even before the President ordered a formation and organisation of the VRS (which he did on 15 June 92) the Accused issued the known order, which substance was: "to submit all the independent and self-organised armed groups to the military or police commands, withing three days, or to face a legal persecution.

3. Before the VRS was formed, the JNA was in charge, and it had it's own orders from the Federal Presidency, pertaining to a volunteers. The Chamber doesn't understand what did it mean "to subordinate a group". It didn't mean necessarily to disband it and subordinate individuals. A group was entitled to keep together, but to receive commands from the official forces. In that terms there were many units that had their separate names, but weren't independent.

4. The Chamber is baselessly repeating this "take-over" as if the Serbs came to a municipality where somebody else was on power, and "took it over" from somebody. The Defence challenged the Prosecution to prove where there was a single "take-over", but now the Defence has to challenge the entire Tribunal to submit the proofs to this regard! The Chamber also found that the Accused's attitude towards certain paramilitary formations after the creation of the VRS was flexible and shifted according to Bosnian Serb interests and concluded that he tolerated or even supported the co-operation of Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, Mauzer's Panthers, and the Yellow Wasps with Serb Forces.¹¹¹³⁶ The Chamber finds that this had the effect of encouraging and facilitating the JCE I Crimes committed by Serb Forces. (That is hard to believe that the Chamber made this "finding", since it was well documented that the President ordered a complete subordination of all the volutneeres and other groups formed prior to the formation of the VRS, on the basis of the Constitutional and lawful provisions. Until 20 may all of these groups were in the JNA responsibility. Once the VRS had been formed, these groups couldn't exist and act out of the unique command of the VRS or the Police. This assertions rely on the paras of the Judgment, 3234, 3235. Let us see what is said it the para 3234: 3234. The Chamber therefore finds that during the spring of 1992, following the withdrawal of the JNA from BiH, the Accused supported the operational co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, and Mauzer's Panthers. These paramilitary groups were able to operate in several municipalities, in an otherwise relatively tightly controlled area, in concert with the military forces and the local authorities.

However, this entire paragraph is based upon another paras, namely 3184, 3182 – 3183, 3190 – 3192 and we will see what those paras said. The current para asserts that the President supported in the spring of 1992 the numbered paramilitary units. However, Mr. Seselj didn't have any independent unit from the beginning to the end of war. Arkan was in Bijeljina while the state of BiH existed, and his stay in BN had nothing to do with the President, or his associates. Had the Prosecution disclosed the exculpatory documents during the trial, and not after it, there would be a ECMM document that acquits Arkan for his deeds in Bijeljina. See this part of the document:

35. ARKAN'S INTERVIEW

THE OPPORTUNITY TO MEET "ARKAN" IN THE REGION OF BJK COULD BE OFFERED TO TEAM B3. SINCE HE IS ON THE LIST OF "SUPPOSED WAR CRIMINALS", THIS ENCOUNTER COULD BE DAMAGING FOR THE ECMM. HOWEVER, DURING OUR INVESTIGATIONS AT BJK, JANJA AND BATKOVIC, WE RECEIVED NUMEROUS TESTIMONIES OF MUSLIMS WHO SEE ARKAN AND HIS TIGERS AS A GUARANTEE FOR SECURITY IN THE REGION. OTHERS, SERBS AS WELL AS MUSLIMS, HAVE EXPLAINED TO US THAT THE TIGERS HAVE REDUCED THE LOSSES OF BELLIGERENT DURING COMBATS IN BRCKO AND BJK. THEY EVEN SEEM TO HAVE NEUTRALISED THE ACTIVITIES OF GANGS OF CRIMINALS FROM ANY ORIGIN WHO WERE LOOTING AND MURDERING THE INHABITANTS DURING THE BATTLE ITSELF.

THESE FACTS, WHETHER MYTH OR REALITY, DESERVE TO BE CHECKED WITH THE ONE WHO IS MAINLY INVOLVED - ARKAN HIMSELF.

Let us see the same page of this document #describing the Batkovic Prison, and Vojkan Djurkovic involvements: *THE 700 PRISONERS I! BATKOVIC ARE WELL TREATED, AND THEY HAVE 3 MEALS A DAY WHEN WE CAME, A HUNDRED OF THEM WERE WASHING THEIR LAUNDRY. THE QUANTITY OF WATER IS ABUNDANT (EXTERIOR TAPS, SHOWERS). THE ENCLOSURE OF THE PRISON, WHICH IS SETTLED IN THE BUILDINGS OF A LARGE FARM, IS NOT CLOSED BY A FENCE. POLES HAVE BEEN PUT, BUT THERE IS NO WIRE AROUND. THE GATES ARE 11(7) CLOSED AND THE PRISONERS ARE FREE TO MOVE INSIDE AND AROUND THE FARM. E OF THEM ARE SHOPPING IN LOCAL STORES, FOR THEY RECEIVE HONEY FROM THEIR FAMILIES VIA RED CROSS MEDIATORS. SOME 300 OF THEM ARE ISOLATED IN OTHER TOWNS FOR SPECIFIC WORKS ON THOSE OF PUBLIC INTEREST (WE MET ONE AT THE VLASENICA HOSPITAL AND 6 AT THE DVCIROVP ROTEL IN Th). WE HAD THE POSSIBILITY TO QUESTION THEM: THEIR INTENTION IS TO SIGN A PETITION ASKING TUSLA TO RELEASE SERVED PRISONERS HELD IN THAT REGION. BESIDES, SOME OF THEM HAVE BEEN WORKING NEAR THE FRONT IN THE REGION OF LOPARE (40 KM SW, Ban). FINALLY, THEY WERE THANKFUL FOR THE EFFORTS OF MAJOR VOJKAN (ARKAN'S TIGER) TO IMPROVE THEIR CONDITIONS OF LIVING. On the previous page the ECMM described a nice conduct of Vojkan Djurkovic who after an explosion and a terrorist act secured the MM with guards:

FINALLY, MAJOR VOJKAN DJURKOVIC HAS ATTRIBUTED A BODY GUARD TO US, INCLUDING DURING THE NIGHT.

Now it is clear why Vojkan Djurkovic had never been indicted, because whatever he did, was #agreed between him and the Muslim civilians#. The Defence couldn't use this, as well as many other #exculpatory documents#. B. Plavsic was in the common presidency, and didn't deal with Bijeljina on behalf of the President or SDS. The Mauzer's Panthers was a legal unit of the regional TO, also associated in cooperation with the Arkan's army, from whom he got a rank of major, which the President and Gen. Mladic annulled in summer 92. But, his unit became a regular unit of the VRS, under his command, but fully under the VRS IBK Corps's control. How many times the Defence has to point out that Mauzer after the war had passed all the accreditations posed by the international police, he was certified as suitable for a high posts in the RS MUP. Recently Mauzer had been post mortem decorated with the highest decoration, Mr. Seselj had been acquitted before this court, Vojkan Djurkovic had never been indicted by any court, and the ECMM commended him for protecting the Misson and facilitating them to see what they wanted to see.

Let us see what the para 3235 says: 3235. The Accused's shifting approach to paramilitaries is further demonstrated by his approach to Captain Dragan's training centre; and his order to have the Yellow Wasps released after they were arrested by Davidović. (This was an ordinary lie that the Accuse even knew what further happened with the Yellow Wasps, because it wasn't his job to follow up the procedure. Once in the hands of the judicial system, there was nothing the President should do. The Yellow Wasps had been tried and sentenced in their country, Serbia, and they hadn't been acquitted or released from the prosecution. They had been handed over to Serbia. But this fn. is another para, 3208. This the Chamber corroborates it's own findings by it's own findings,, by it's own findings, endlessly, but always in a general assertions and statements. Let us see what is the 3208) 3208. The Chamber found that Davidović planned the operation to arrest paramilitary groups in Zvornik in co-operation with Andan and special units of the MUP and that, on 29 July 1992, Žučo, the commander of the Yellow Wasps, was arrested and brought to Bijeljina. During this operation, other leaders and members of the Yellow Wasps were arrested, as were municipal leaders who had links with or collaborated with the Yellow Wasps, including Pavlović. However, when the 30 day remand period expired, Davidović was told that pressure was exerted on the authorities by the Accused and Krajišnik who ordered that the Yellow Wasps be released. However, this lie had been contested by other witnesses, who knew better than Davidovic. For much less, the Chamber discredited the Defence witnesses. Mr. Davidovic was caught in lie concerning his son, and also during the testimony, Davidovic claimed that he didn't know about many President's document, and praised the President for that. Since the Chamber trusted every witness hostile to the President, the Defence will obtain the certificate from the investigating judge in Bijeljina on this occasion, Peter, please remind me. However, Mr. Davidovic was wrong stating that he planned the arrest of the Yellow Wasps. This had been done exclusively on the President's order to Minister Stanisic and the Commander of the Special unit of MUP General Karisik. Mr. Davidovic wasn't invited by name, but the President asked Prime Minister of FRY Panic to send him a small but capable police unit, and this unit had a small impact in this operation, while it was successful in Brecko, with the individuals. Now, how the President could be liable for the Yellow Wasps, when he ordered, once he learned about them, ordered their arrest and deportation to the Serbia's justice system? Somebody in the Chamber is not serious at all. This error is a grave mistake and responsibility of those who analysed evidence for the Chamber, but this kind of lies must not be established by any chamber in the world!

3503. Above, the Chamber found the many different ways in which the Accused, having been informed of crimes in the Municipalities, provided misleading information to representatives of international organisations, the public, and to the media in relation to these crimes.¹¹¹³⁷ (This is again wrong. The international representatives had a poor information, while the state organs did have a complete investigations, and their information was more accurate than the foreigners ever. The President depended on the information obtained by the state official organs, and why would he trust more the internationals that had been informed by the Muslim side, than to his state organs? Many times the President had been restrained in denying or confirming some allegations of the foreigners, because he didn't want to be superficial and couldn't state anything before he asked his organs in the ministries, in the municipalities, or in VRS and police. The internationals were very damaging for one side, biased and engaged on the Muslim side, so that in this war there are so many violations made by journalists, negotiators associates and humanitarians, probably a spies that abused the UNHCR and ICRC. One day it is going to be public, as the Iraqi war!) He covered up, for instance, the severity of the conditions in detention facilities,¹¹¹³⁸ (The President visited only Kula Prison in Sarajevo, together with Lord Ashdown and sir Jonston, and the conditions there were acceptable. For all other allegation the President asked the legal institutions to inform him and the Government about the conditions, and repeatedly ordered that the conditions be improved. The Chamber and the entire international community didn't see whether the Serb authorities deprived the detainees deliberately, or the country itself didn't have enough food, medicine, water, electricity. This is deeply incorrect and insulting to the poor Serbian people, which had been under a triple sanctions! Had the Prosecution and Chamber conveyed a proper investigation, or even red some reports about the condition of population and soldiers, they would see that two soldiers shared one small pasteta can a day!) and he deflated criticism expressed by internationals in relation to claims of "ethnic cleansing" by claiming that non-Serbs were leaving "out of fear".¹¹¹³⁹ (A decent nation shouldn't admit this kind of internationals even close to the crisis territory, because some of them helped thepopulation, but the effects of the rotten minority annihilated all the benefits, because they caused more sufferings and procrastinated the war by being so blatantly biased. This conduct encouraged one warring side to reject cessations of hostilities and peace, so that the war which could have been avoided lasted for three and a half years. This kind of "internationals" are criminally responsible, and should not be trusted then and now! The Prosecution never submitted any convincing evidence that it was a forceful expulsion. There is so many evidence that it wasn't so, that some people feared from the development of events, and asked to be put on a list to leave. Since the President was the only one authorise to say whether the refugees will return or not, since only he, or his plenipotentiary signed so many agreements regulating the rights to return. According to the numerous agreements and commitments, there can not be a word about a "permanent removal". Beside that, there was no a single incident during these evacuations, which would be unimaginable had it been a forceful operation. There is only one reasonable answer to a question: why so many Muslims didn't even want or try to leave? Because they didn't fight, nor they had their close relatives in the Muslim Army, and hadn't any troubles with the authorities, nor had any fear, see a UN report D2424, see an E. Vulliamy's report P3788!) The Chamber found a clear disjuncture between the manner in which the President defended the actions of the Bosnian Serbs in international settings and press conferences and the reality on the ground, of which he was fully aware.¹¹¹⁴⁰ (Being aware of a situation doesn't mean that he approved it, produced it, or was happy how his country and countryman were suffering. There were a several commissions initiated by the President end the Government to overview the conditions and improve it. What else the President could do? The Chamber thinks that the President should give up the Serb objectives. But, who was he to rule over the free Serb people? And who would obey him? Simply, nobody had any rights to disable the Serbs to protect themselves, at least from what happened to the Serbs in Croatia this time, let alone what happened to them in the WWI and WWII. And no Chamber all over the world is entitled to impose another view of the Serb people to what they had undergone in the WWII. This is not even decent, and some of the Serbs may sue the Tribunal and many Prosecution witnesses for lying!) In statements and speeches, the President created a narrative for an international audience in which the Bosnian Serbs would not be blamed for the movement of the non-Serb population.¹¹¹⁴¹ This is ridiculous! As if there was no movement of others, but only the Muslims. There was more the Serb refugees than the Muslim and Croat together. It was a process, and a temporary one, and it was agreed in many conferences and agreements, which were available to the Chamber. Let us see one of the early letters of the President to the international public, and see whether it was fake or not, see P3787 of 30 July 1992, a letter to the Guardian:

HEADLINE: LETTER: ETHNIC CLEANSING DENIED

BYLINE: DR RADOVAN KARADZIC

BODY: YOUR article on the front page of today's newspaper is sensational and cannot be ignored. It is completely false to suggest that the Bosnian Serbs have organised concentration camps or that we hold civilian prisoners. I would challenge any journalist who has first hand accounts of such installations to come forward immediately.

Equally, I would like to see a single document or photograph that supports these second hand accounts. Even your own photograph is insufficient, showing a group of men, of fighting age, who could be Serbs, Muslims or Croats. The conspicuous absence of women or children make it clear that this is not a concentration camp.

I have made an offer to British journalists to make a list of places where they believe such camps exist. I will ensure that they can visit them.

Our position contrasts sharply with that of the government of Mr Alija Izetbegovic who have introduced civilian detention centres and concentration camps, who consistently refuse refugees the right to leave war zones.

Obviously our claims do not deserve any more credibility than the Guardian's allegations until they are substantiated. For that reason I list the following sites, in Muslim territory, where Bosnian-Serb civilians are being held, tortured and in many cases systematically killed. The worst of these are: Zenica, Knjic, Bradina, Tarcin, Zitomislic, Bogodol, Glibodol, Tasovcici, Ulepci, Prebilovci, Guber, Duvno, Livno, Tuzla, Cazin, Travnik Slavonski Brod, Buturovic Polje and Celebic.

Both sides in this war have prisons in which captured soldiers are being held, we have consistently offered to exchange PoWs, even in ratios of three or four to one, alas the Bosnian Government has rejected these advances.

Finally to suggest that leadership of the Bosnian-Serbs have a policy of ethnic cleansing is simply untrue. We are committed to the principle that all refugees must be allowed to return to their homes as and when they wish. To accuse us of having both a policy of expulsion and detention is slightly odd.

Dr Radovan Karadzic.

London SW1.

What a naïve leader, naïve to the stupidity, to invite the hostile journalists and open to them all the prisons and access to everything, and even give them ride in his governmental plain!!! And what they did? They forged a presence of a barb wire fence around Trnopolje, and other false data. The name of Ms. Penny Marshal will never be forgotten in the Serb people's memory! The President stupidity can not be justified by any excuse, such as that he believed that a British journalists could not be anti-Serb. And the letter of 30 July 1992 is fully consistant with the entire arguments of the Defence!)

3504. At the same time that he was learning about crimes committed against non-Serbs and not taking sufficient steps to prevent or punish them, the Accused was providing misleading information to international observers on the ground and the media. By his denials that Bosnian Serbs were committing crimes in the Municipalities and his disingenuous portrayal of the reality on the ground, of which he was in fact fully aware, the President created an environment in which Bosnian Serbs could continue to commit the crimes through which the common purpose of the Overarching JCE was implemented. (This is a shameless lie. The President never said that there was no crimes in the Serb controlled areas, but he stated that it was not committed by the authorities, or the official Serb Forces. Some of the members of these forces may have committed a crime, but far from the sight of the first, the most immediate superior, and there are many evidence of the “next level” corrections, as the Defence named it: the very next commanding or controlling level rectified a misdemeanour whenever leaned about it. And there was no evidence that the authorities, either on central or local level did commit crimes, or tolerated it. Iven for the smallest rude conduct towards the non-Serbs, the highest SDS officials and deputies reacted publicly, like in Bijeljina!)

(3) Conclusion

3505. In the preceding paragraphs, the Chamber identified the various ways through which the President, in his functions as Supreme Commander, SDS President, SNB President, President of the Presidency, and President of the RS, participated in furthering the objective of the Overarching JCE, namely the permanent removal of the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory. Considering the totality of the Chamber’s findings in this regard, and the extent of the President’s contribution by virtue of the functions and positions he held at the time, and the impact of his conduct—through his acts and omissions—on the implementation of this JCE, the Chamber finds that the President significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE. (The Chamber – Prosecution complex didn’t even prove any Overarching JCE, let alone the President’s awareness of any JCE, so consequently couldn’t have proven the President’s contribution. The entire UN Court in it’s anti-Serb campaign relies only on several unproven constructs, such as: 1. “ethnically pure Serb state”, 2 “take-overs” of municipalities, 3. The “Serb Forces” composed of incompatible elements contradicting to the orders and reality, 4. A “permanent removal of the non-Serbs” 5. A “forceful displacement and expulsion of civilians”...

1. Link to crimes committed by non-members of the JCE

3506. In order to hold the President criminally responsible for crimes committed by non-members of the JCE, there must be a link between the President or another JCE member and the criminal conduct. This link is established if the President or another JCE member used the non-member in accordance with the common purpose of the JCE to carry out the actus reus of the crimes included therein.¹¹¹⁴² This may be inferred from the close co-operation of the President, or any other JCE member, with the non-member in order to further the common criminal purpose.

¹¹¹⁴² See para. 567.

The non-member of the JCE need not share the intent of the members of the JCE.¹¹¹⁴³ It is also not necessary to establish the existence of an additional understanding or agreement between the President and the non-member to commit that particular crime.¹¹¹⁴⁴

3507. The Chamber found that the Crisis Staffs, paramilitaries, and members of the TO, MUP, and VRS carried out crimes in furtherance of the common plan of the Overarching JCE during the take-over of the Municipalities.¹¹¹⁴⁵ (#Wrong inferences!!! See wh#y:

1) Not all the municipalities that had a Crisis Staffs had committed crimes, but rather two third of the municipalities didn't have any of the alleged attributes of any JCE, which would be inevitable if it was a JCE and a systemic approach. As a matter of fact, the municipalities which did have members of the Main Board of the SDS as presidents, did not have crimes at all. Had it been a JCE and a plan backed by the SDS and President, these municipalities would be the first to complete the "criminal task";

2) Neither was it an inherent element of a CSs to tolerate, let alone to commit a crimes. The CSs were not a new bodies, but only a way of functioning of the regular elected bodies;

3) Beside the fact that there were many municipalities where the CSs didn't do anything wrong, there were many municipalities that didn't have a CSs whatsoever. If it was a matter of systemic approach, it wouldn't be imaginable;

4) Further, no all of members of the CSs committed mistakes, omissions, let alone crimes;

5) Some members of the VRS or Police may have committed crimes, but it never happened in their official capacity, with a knowledge of a commands, let alone by it's orders;

5) No one in the entire RS knew about any OJCE, nor thought that a crimes are allowed. We remember how the Serb population was disgusted and bitter after the Koricanske Stijene crime. For these elements the Chamber doesn't have a single evidence and basis for such a findings, and the arguments numbered out here will neverlose it's accuracy, because they are a sort of "marble truth"!)

3508. The Chamber found that the Accused had de jure and de facto authority over the SDS party and its members from at least October 1991 until 1995.¹¹¹⁴⁶ (What does it mean? How possibly one could have had "de facto and de jure authority" over a democratic party? All the decisions had been passed democratically, and the only role of a president was to facilitate a democratic environment till a decision is made, and a strict implementation after a decision is done. In all other aspects, president of a democratic party was equal to the other members of a party bodies. The Chamber had a sufficient evidence that it was a case with the President, who had to fight for his views as any other member of the Party!) It also found that the municipal Crisis Staffs and Serb municipal assemblies were formed as a result of the implementation of the Variant A/B Instructions, which the President had issued and distributed to high ranking Bosnian Serbs, and the implementation of which he monitored through meetings and discussions with municipal leaders.¹¹¹⁴⁷ (Wrong inference! Having formed the Serb municipal assemblies was not a crime in any way, nor the Crisis Staffs vere illegal or criminal. A mere existence of the A/B Variant Instructions didn't caused any crime, and was not a criminal paper. It is corroborated by the fact that in a number of municipalities it was not implemented, while in some municipalities where it was implemented, didn't cause any problems. The A/B Instructions were in an accord with the Law of All-People's Defence, as testified by D. Kapetina, and depicted by the excerpts of the SFRY Constitution (P4743) and BiH Constitution (1262), the Law on All-People's Defence (1359) the Strategy of Defence (D4282). How was it possible that these genuine and all-binding documents didn't matter to the Chamber? The instructions as itself didn't contain any element that could facilitate any crime. In some of judgments it was adjudicated that it was not a crime. So, a crimes didn't occur on that basis, nor this basis facilitated any misconduct. There were a crimes in municipalities which didn't even receive A/B Instructions, as well as there were no crimes in municipalities which received and implemented the A/B Instructions. A lot of evidence, see testimony of a Prosecution's witness B. Djeric, T.27933-34:

Q. Thank you. Do we agree that the Crisis Staffs were simply a way of concentrating executive authority in limited, areas as well as in such municipalities where the legal authorities were non-functional? The staffs of that nature were temporary organs which were put in place to speed things up, rather than going beyond their remit.

A. I agree that they could not go beyond their scope of authority or to work in any different fashion than was prescribed by regulation.

Q. Thank you. Do you agree that we understood quite early on that people no longer controlled -- or, rather, that they could not control the legislative branch and that we had to dispose of these Crisis Staffs?

A. We strove, both the Presidency and the government, to put the Crisis Staffs in a situation where they could hold power within their respective remit and in limited areas where they were necessary and not to work with any prescribed limits they assigned to themselves.

Crisis Staffs had direct contact with the Presidency and followed the SDS party line.¹¹¹⁴⁸ (Wrong inference, see what about the CSs said B. Djeric or finding, as a matter an assertion! In a period with the communications, there was no crimes almost at all, while the vast majority of crimes happened just in the period when the communications didn't exist. See what B. Djeric testified on the occasion:T.27936-37:

Q. Do you agree that the government being cut off in terms of means of communication was a factor which only contributed to the strengthening of the local factors and it made the government feel as if its hands were tied?

*A. Yes. Perhaps I can add that the central authorities, given that the PTT network was based in Sarajevo, cut off all communications, so you can just about imagine how it was for the government to work under such conditions. See also D02531 Crisis Staffs had direct contact with the Presidency and followed the SDS party line.¹¹¹⁴⁹ The President was instrumental in creating and activating the Crisis Staffs.¹¹¹⁵⁰ They played a central role in preparing for and carrying out the take-over of the Municipalities by Serb Forces and in maintaining Bosnian Serb authority and power after the take-overs were completed.¹¹¹⁵¹ (Wrong inference, because the premise is wrong: there was no any "take-over" – in the municipalities in question the Serbs had their own substantial amount of power gained by the elections 1990. The Serbs never wanted to govern over the Muslims-Croats, who had been offered to form their own municipal institutions, which they initially accepted, but reneged on under the influence of the Central SDA. A maintaining legally obtained power was a lawful obligation! Throughout the entire Judgement there are a very few matters of a peripheral significance that may be accurate, all other matters, “established facts” and particularly inferences and findings are absolutely incorrect!) Crisis Staffs were tasked with making military and security preparations and the Accused gave explicit instructions on how the Crisis Staffs and the TO would be structured, including who would be the highest ranking officials in these structures, namely the presidents of municipalities and executive boards.¹¹¹⁵² (So what? This had been regulated by the Law of All-People’s Defence, and the A/B instructions only reminded them what they were obliged to do. The Chamber can not escape the local legal system when deciding about a matter regulated in this system!) The Chamber also found that the Variant A/B Instructions required that all active and reserve police, TO, and civilian protection units be brought “to full manpower” and provided that the units would be activated by order of the municipal Crisis Staffs.¹¹¹⁵³ (So what? This was a law-binding obligation, under the threat of punishment for a high treason! That would be the same as if it was an Executive Board and a municipal Assembly, the same duties and obligations, all provided in the Law on All-Peoples Defence! And it could be activated only in a case of an attack, which explains why in two third of the Serb municipalities there was no any crime, and many of those municipalities maintained the regular bodies of authority, so they didn’t have any Crisis Staffs.) The President announced in March 1992 that while they did not plan to attack anyone, they had the “right to use the army for the final countdown and for the final establishment of authority”.¹¹¹⁵⁴ Let us see those two paras of the Judgment mentioned in this fn., 3051. As mentioned above, in March 1992 the Accused advocated that Bosnian Serbs take power into their own hands in Bosnian Serb claimed territories and that the structure of BiH would depend on the conditions they could establish on the ground. The President emphasised that their right to self-determination “will happen according to the actual conditions which are up to you to create”. In this regard the President spoke about when to “reveal our next move” and that it “will all be happening in a flash and the set up of the de facto situation based on our documents”. He explained that there would be “no signing before we have achieved what we want, and you all know our strategic plans. [...] The ultimate strategic goal must still remain a secret”. The President said they did not “plan to attack anybody but our plan is to defend ourselves and the army is at our disposal for that purpose”; they had the “right to use the army for the final countdown and for the final establishment of authority” and that if a border was established unjustly they would “establish a just border”. (#TIME SHIFTING#! Needless to remind that #March 1992 was a time when the Lisbon Agreement was agreed#, and the conduct of the local authorities in establishing a stabile peace and control of the processes was of a vital importance. So, everything about “taking power pertained to the municipalities that had been allocated to the Serbs by the Lisbon Conference. Such a shifting of time frame and context is illegal and criminal, and the Prosecution should appologise to the Chamber and the President for planting a deluding facts. Just notice that a stratecig goals existed even before the 12th May Assembly session, as any party has it’s own strategic goals and a tactitcs to achieve it. See what is in para 3052 of the Judgement, that was the basis for this “findings”:

3052. The Accused also warned against the perception that Bosnian Serbs were taking “other people’s land through war” and that they should not mention war, but establish their authority and defend that and state that they did not plan to attack anybody. The Accused spoke about “[p]eace at any cost, wherever it is possible”. The Accused stated that they did not need war, and they could accomplish what they wanted by political means but once they had achieved their goals if they were attacked they would defend themselves, including against genocide, and had “the right to use the army for the final countdown and for the final establishment of authority”.

(And this was completely legitimate. Once the constitutional system was broken, the Serb ethnic community was entitled to influence what would be the future system. If it was denied, the Serbs did have all rights to self-organise and to re-build a secure system of an efficient power. If anybody tried to prevent them by a military means, they had been entitled to defend by a military means. IF THE CHAMBER DENIES THIS TRUTH, THAT WOULD BE A NEW ELEMENT OF THE POLITICAL SCIENCES, AND A PRECEDENT WITH A HUGE CONSEQUENCES! The UN as a paternal institution of this Court should have taken stance on this standard newly produce by the UN Court!)

During this time, he was preparing for the take-over of power in the Municipalities. In addition, the Chamber found that Krajišnik, a member of the Overarching JCE, had “great authority” among the Bosnian Serb municipal leaders and influenced how power should be exercised at the municipal level.¹¹¹⁵⁵ (That was his duty, as it was the duty if those in municipalities to exercise a power they got through the elections. Neither Mr. Krajisnik, nor the President had an effective authority over the authorities in municipalities. See: (evidence of complains of the President on inability to replace a president of municipal assembly, or what B. Djeric said, T.27925,;

So was it already then that you identified this chaotic situation, and even our inclination towards excessive autonomy, small fiefdoms, did you already forecast that this would be a major obstacle in the functioning of a proper government?

A. Yes, I agree. This paragraph shows all of it. It is clear enough. The local factor was very influential, highly influential. For the most part, this is the result of the existential fear that prevailed among people then, as regards these state matters. So Yugoslavia was falling apart as a state or was in the process of disintegrating, so people were losing their state, and on the other hand even in this new state, which had already become an international subject, there was this outvoting in Bosnia-Herzegovina. T. 27927-28 [As read] "One of the essential problems we are facing is the poor functioning of the central authorities. The responsibility partly or mostly lies with us primarily because we have not fully defined the status of the SAO autonomous regions or their organs in relation to the central authorities; namely, fearing that we would be overcome or dominated by the Izetbegovic government, we prepared some political, not exactly state mechanisms, to resist abuse coming from the centre. Meaning that we inherited such mechanisms now that we have our own state. Now they return to us as a negative echo. We will all know immediately that this is about a Serb tendency towards autonomy, creating one's own principalities ruled by small scale princes behind which there is only private interest, never the interest of the people." Do you remember not only this particular speech but this problem that we had to deal with in the assembly? Because the establishment of the SAO gave an opportunity to local princes to do whatever was in their own interest. A. Yes, I remember that. Every day that was being confirmed; namely, that the local factor want to rule on the ground.

(This sole testimony, from a trusted witness, who was at the very centre of the authorities in the period the most crimes had been committed, is sufficient to rebut all the Chamber unjustified “findings” in a previous para!)

3509. The Chamber found that the Accused had de jure and de facto authority over the TO from mid-April until mid-May 1992 when the TO units were transformed into the VRS.¹¹¹⁵⁶ (However, this #wasn't true too#. All the TO organisation collapsed on 6 April, when the Muslim side re-organized it without the Serbs, and fired General Vukosavljevic from the commanding post. The Serb side re-established its own TO on 16 April, and the Prime Minister, not the President, nominated the new commander of the Serb TO, see: D03709:

DECISION /handwritten: illegible// to appoint a Chief of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina Territorial Defence /handwritten: illegible//

Colonel Vidoje LUKIĆ is hereby appointed Chief of the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina Territorial Defence.

This decision shall come into force immediately and be published in the Official Gazette of the Serbian People of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

So, the President hadn't been in command over the TO a single day, but was tasked to coordinate the activities of the TO, because of lack of communications. Also, the existing TO units in every single local commune, municipality as well as in companies, were autonomous in their actions unless the JNA (later the VRS) took the duty. In such a case, nobody could order the municipal TO units not to act in accordance with their assessment of a jeopardy for their community. The only one who could order them was the one who could take the role of the local TO and protect the population, assets and territory, and it was a president of municipality, who ex officio was president of the Defence Committee, and his commander of the local TO unit. Those who couldn't take this role from the TO didn't have any possibility to order them to accept a jeopardy, defeat, massacre, or any harm that an enemy could inflict to them! That is how it was regulated in the laws and Constitution, and any chamber is obliged to take it into account!

The Chamber found that from May 1992, the President had de jure control over the VRS, which he exercised in fact continuously as the President of the SNB, President of the Presidency, and President of the RS.¹¹¹⁵⁷ Furthermore, the Chamber found that the President had de jure authority over the Bosnian Serb MUP, which he exercised in fact.¹¹¹⁵⁸ Mićo Stanišić, a member of the Overarching JCE, was the head of the MUP from 24 March 1992 until the end of December 1992.¹¹¹⁵⁹ (It is not enough to state that “the President had such and such authorities” over some formations. All of that was regulated by the Constitution and laws. It wasn't an unlimited power, control or authority, and the President couldn't act outside of the legal framework. Now, since “a control” wasn't a crime by itself, the Chamber owes to the President to explain on what it founded its deliberations? Whether the President trespassed his authorisations? Did he order something illegal? Did he fail to issue all the necessary orders, regulations, laws needed for a lawful functioning of those formations upon which he “had a control”? Every president has the same control, but none of them are responsible for crimes that were out of their presidential control, committed out of the system of command by a very distant and low ranking perpetrators!)

3510. With respect to paramilitary forces, the Chamber found that armed groups, including groups from Serbia, were at times invited by Crisis Staffs to assist in combat activity in the Municipalities, and acted in concert with units of the Serb Forces.¹¹¹⁶⁰ (This is both wrong, and false. It was only in the very beginning of the conflict in Bijeljina that the Crisis Staff of the SAO Majeveca and Semberija invited Arkan's unit to help them against the Muslim extremist's attack. But, it was while the BiH still existed, and the President didn't have any competence over any force, and the stay of this unit was very short. However, the Chamber is mixing “babe and zabe”, apples and oranges. Any group could report to the municipal TO units, or the JNA, which was supreme to the TOs, to be a volunteers, as the Yellow Wasps did when arrived. It was confirmed during the trial that it was a common feature that a group of volunteers arrive and check in to be volunteers, according to the Federal Presidency order. It was only later that some of such a groups became a paramilitaries, and at that moment the authorities turned against their presence. There is a lot of evidence on it!) In other instances, paramilitary forces were invited by JCE members, notably Plavšić,¹¹¹⁶¹ (Not correct! Ms. Plavšić as a member of the common Presidency of BiH invited by a general invitation everyone who could help in defending, but not out of the existing law, which was very known, because it had been passed recently. All of those who were invited were supposed to subordinate themselves to the legal formations, the JNA or police, or a TO units, also subordinated to the JNA).or were affiliated with other members of the Overarching JCE, namely Arkan and Šešelj.¹¹¹⁶² (Once and for all, Mr. Seselj didn't send anyone, particularly not to be an independent armed group, and after the JNA withdrew, Seselj didn't send anybody to the VRS. If somebody indentified himself as a "Seselj's man" it could have been a local guy, a fan of the Radical Party. Arkan wasn't present in the RS between 10 April 92 and September 95. Meanwhile, the Prosecution disclosed to the Defence, lately, a new documents about Arkan's conduct in Bijeljina, which contradict to everything the Prosecution-Chamber asserted!) The Chamber found that the Accused supported the operational co-operation of military forces and local authorities with Arkan's men, Šešelj's men, Mauzer's Panthers, and White Eagles as long as the objectives of these groups were aligned with those of the Bosnian Serb leadership.¹¹¹⁶³ (There is no defence against so many insolent lies, so often repeated, and the decent Chamber shouldn't avail itself to that kind of statements. The President never wanted any White Eagles in the RS. The White Eagles were associated with a Serbian Renewal Party with which the President was in an irreconcilable dispute, then, and now. It is explained, Mauzer's unit was a legal TO unit, and it was subordinated to the VRS, and Mauzer himself was awarded by the international commission to be clean and suitable for the highest positions in the post-war MUP. As said, recently, in 2018, Mauzer had been post mortem decorated by the highest decoration!)

3511. The Accused and other members of the JCE used their authority and influence over Crisis Staffs, TO, VRS, Bosnian Serb MUP, and paramilitaries to carry out the crimes envisaged by the common plan of the Overarching JCE. (What evidence support this allegations, except it was picked up from the Indictment? Is an indictment an evidence by itself? If not, then it is ridiculous! Does there exist a single document from the central organs towards the CSs in municipalities ordering a criminal conduct? Since there was a huge amount of interceptions the telephone conversations, and since the Prosecution had an access to every single document, there must had been documents of a criminal nature, or a record of them. If it was not submitted, as it was not, #there was no such an activity#! Apart from the fact that there was no communications between the Center of RS and the terrain, what is a basis for such a nasty assertion? Nobody neglect the facts that the problems appeared only in municipalities where the Muslim side initiated the war events, nowhere else! And even in the municipalities were there had been skirmishes and crimes, it never happened on the Serb initiative, and until this defence assertion is rebuted, all other allegations are vain!) Furthermore, at times, paramilitaries, local Serbs, JNA, MUP, TO, and VRS units acted at the behest of the Crisis Staffs, which were under the Accused's authority and influence, to commit crimes in furtherance of the common plan. (How it is possible that a serious professionals make such an assertion? Neither the Crisis Staffs were under the President's authority, nor there was a single order to commit a crime. If the President was in favour of forming the Crisis Staffs, it all was in accordance with the law, it was a regular authority, only functioning in a crisis. Finally the CSs were responsible to their municipal assemblies, which had to pass all the decisions made meanwhile, as the Presidency of the Republic had to submit its decisions made on behalf of the Assembly to this Assembly to verify them. The JNA was never under any control of the local authorities, and therefore neither under the President's one, let alone under the CSs. How long this Tribunal and its institutions will pretend not to know such a firm facts?) Therefore, the Chamber finds that the crimes that were found to be committed by Serb Forces in the Municipalities are imputed to the JCE members or to the Accused. The Chamber finds that such a link existed based on the identity of the perpetrators, which takes into consideration their affiliation, uniforms, and vehicles; the behaviour and utterances of the perpetrators while the crimes were committed; and the identity of the victims. This finding is also based on the assessment of the context in which the crimes were committed, including the timing and the correlation with the actions taken and crimes committed by other Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb authorities who acted in furtherance of the common plan. (Now, #all of a sudden, the context is of relevance#. The Defence cried for eight years to be allowed to depict a context of certain events, but was prevented. But, this paragraph of the Judgement is a blatant confession of the Chamber that the Judgement and the most important findings had been established arbitrary and on the basis of circumstantial evidence, along the chain of inferences drawn from inferences, drawn from inferences, endlessly! There had been a civil war, the war was waged by only one side, the Serb side, there happened some crimes committed by some Serbs, and since all the Serbs had undoubtedly been the Serbs, by virtue of that fact – they must have been members of the "Serb Forces", and since the President was the highest positioned official, it must be that he knew and even wanted and ordered these crimes! The Judgement doesn't sound any better than this simplification!)

e) Accused's responsibility for crimes outside the scope of the Overarching JCE

3512. The Chamber found that the common purpose of the Overarching JCE was to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory through the commission of the crimes of deportation, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and persecution through forcible transfer, deportation, unlawful detention, and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures. The Chamber turns now to consider whether the Accused is responsible pursuant to the third form of JCE liability for the other acts of persecution charged in Count 3 of the Indictment or the crimes of extermination and murder charged in Counts 4, 5, and 6 of the Indictment in relation to the Overarching JCE, which have been proven beyond reasonable doubt. The crimes in question are:

- i. Persecution, as a crime against humanity through killings, cruel and/or inhumane treatment (through torture, beatings, physical and psychological abuse, rape and other acts of sexual violence, and the establishment of and perpetuation of inhumane living conditions in detention facilities), forced labour at the frontline and use of non-Serbs as human shields, appropriation or plunder of property, and the wanton destruction of private property, including cultural and sacred sites;¹¹¹⁶⁴
 - ii. murder as a crime against humanity and/or a violation of the laws or customs of war;¹¹¹⁶⁵ and
 - iii. extermination as a crime against humanity.¹¹¹⁶⁶

¹¹¹⁶⁴ See Indictment, paras. 10, 60. See also paras. 2482–2518, 2531–2559.

¹¹¹⁶⁵ See Indictment, paras. 10, 60, 63–64, 67. See also paras. 2446–2456.

¹¹¹⁶⁶ See Indictment, paras. 10, 63–64, 67. See also paras. 2457–2464.

3513. The Chamber must determine whether it was reasonably foreseeable to the Accused that any of these crimes might be committed if he acted in furtherance of the common plan of the Overarching JCE and whether he willingly took that risk.¹¹¹⁶⁷ The Chamber recalls that the assessment of what was reasonably foreseeable to the Accused must be made on the basis of his individual knowledge and that what may be foreseeable to one member of a JCE may not be foreseeable to another.¹¹¹⁶⁸ It is not necessary for the purposes of JCE III liability that an Accused be aware of the past occurrence of a crime in order for the same crime to be foreseeable to him. However, it must be established that the possibility of any of these crimes being committed was sufficiently substantial as to be foreseeable to the Accused.¹¹¹⁶⁹

3514. The Chamber recalls that in coming to the conclusion that the Accused shared the intent to commit the crimes encompassed by the Overarching JCE, the Chamber found, inter alia, that the Accused: (i) knew that the forcible take-over of towns and municipalities by Serb Forces led to massive demographic changes through the forcible displacement of non-Serb civilians;¹¹¹⁷⁰ and (ii) promoted and shared the objective of creating an ethnically pure Bosnian Serb state and the creation of contiguous Serb areas which would require a redistribution of the population.¹¹¹⁷¹ Here is para 3463, mentioned in this fn as a basis for this findings: 3463. In concluding that a common plan existed to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory in the Municipalities from October 1991 to 30 November 1995, the Chamber had regard to its findings that in internal discussions among Bosnian Serb leaders it was clear that the forcible movement of the population had occurred and had taken place in accordance with instructions received from the highest level of the Bosnian Serb leadership and was well planned. And here is the content of the fn. 11032 which was a basis for para 3463: 11032 The Chamber notes that Defence witnesses testified, inter alia, that the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership (i) pursued policies which tried to preserve peace; (ii) tried to accommodate and respect the rights of non-Serbs; and (iii) did not support or plan the forcible movement of the population or the commission of crimes against non-Serbs. However, the Chamber finds that their testimony was marked by contradictions, evasiveness, and clear indicators of partiality and bias, or was based on their own unfounded assessment or impressions. The Chamber found that these factors undermined their evidence and does not find their evidence in this regard to be reliable. While Ronald Hatchett also testified that the President was committed to ending fighting and saving civilians, this observation was only limited to his own assessment during meetings with the President in 1994 and is thus of limited weight. D2741 (Witness statement of Ronald Hatchett dated 13 January 2013), paras. 10–12. (And this exactly is catastrophe of the very attempt of an international* justice. The Chamber gathered 13 Defence witnesses, all of them a very distinguished men, among them several university professors, two members of the Academy of Sciences and Arts, a former statemen and politicians, and dismissed them at once, because “there were clear indications” of partiality and bias. As if they hadn’t been or couldn’t been cross-examined and instead of “indications” to obtain an “evidence” that they weren’t been credible. And for Ronald Hatcher, a figh official of the Republican Party of USA, the Chamber concluded that his testimony wasn’t worthwile the Chamber’s attention because “this observation was only limited to his own assessment during meetings with the President in 1994 and is thus of limited weight”. However, all and every Prosecution’s witness testified with a much less experience and knowledge about the President or the situation. Among them many had been biased, either for a Muslim affiliation, or because of their nation had been on the Muslim side and against the Serbs. If the criterion used in this case would be implemented to the entire case, there wouldn’t be any case, and the trial would have to be repeated. Since almost entire “finding” of the Chamber relied on inferences, such a diversity of a more reasonable inferences rebut the entire result of the Judgement!) Furthermore, the Chamber found that the President contributed to the commission of those crimes by participating in the Overarching JCE through promoting an ideology of ethnic separation, using a rhetoric that amplified historical ethnic grievances and promoting propaganda to that effect, establishing the institutions used to carry out the objective of the common plan, and creating a climate of impunity for criminal acts committed against non-Serbs. (Another word, the Chamber is denying the basic and completely legitimate human and national rights to the Serbs, while all other Yugoslav nations were free to violate constitutions, laws, to illegally secede, to form their secret bodies, a secret army and police, to prepare for a war and to start this war against the Federal institutions, and in BiH and Croatia against the Serbs. And this is not going to happen, nobody has this right, and the Defence and many defendants have a good reasons to sue the Tribunal for such a practice and precedents that may damage many nations, but at the first place the Serbs!)

- 3515. The Chamber notes that the geographical scope of the common plan of the Overarching JCE was broad and it was implemented in a manner that involved many groups and individuals spanning several levels of the Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs. There was no genuine concern about the manner in which power in the Municipalities was taken. (But the basic assertion about #“taking-over” of power in municipalities is false#. The Serbs had their authorities in all and every of those municipalities, but the Muslim side didn’t want to share the power, and didn’t want to make agreements, but wanted a control over the entire BiH, in a medieval manner, as during the Turkish occupation, and in accord with the Islamic Declaration authored by Mr. Alija Izetbegovic!) Furthermore, the Chamber found that there was an environment of extreme fear in which the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat population was forced to leave the Municipalities in circumstances that included displacement by physical force, threat of force or coercion, or fear of ongoing violence, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention in terrible conditions, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and destruction of villages, homes, and cultural monuments.¹¹¹⁷² This Conclusion relies upon para 2468 of this Judgment, mentioned in fn. 11182. Let us see what is there: 2468. The Chamber finds that the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats referred to above were forcibly displaced. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the surrounding circumstances in the Municipalities and found that the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were displaced as a result of physical force, threat of force, or coercion. Others fled out of fear This fear was caused by ongoing violence and various crimes committed against non-Serbs including inter alia, killings, cruel and inhumane treatment, unlawful detention, rape and other acts of sexual violence, discriminatory measures, and wanton destruction of villages, houses and cultural monuments. Now, the Chamber explains and justifies this assertion by the fn. 8334, and let us see what is in this fn: 8334 The Chamber found in this section of the Judgement numerous examples of such acts directed against Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the Municipalities. (Therefore, no evidence, just to trust the Chamber on word! However, it was not difficult to establish that there was crimes, pressure, harrasments, but it was necessary to establish who was responsible for this. First of all, there is no evidence about a forceful displacement of the people. On the contrary, there is a huge amount of evidence that the Muslims and Croat who wanted to leave had a many obstacles until they reached the list for convoy. But the fear was present, and is understandable, and ubiquitous, omnipresent, and everyone feared, BECAUSE THIS WAS AN INTER-ETHNIC AND INTER-RELIGIOUS CIVIL WAR ALL AGAINST ALL. There were also many, many Serb refugees from the Muslim-Croat areas, and their presence was of an influence on the climate; also, there were many cases of the combat casualties of the Serb soldiers, and their arrival and frunerals used to upset the Muslim or Croat population. For such a reason, the President banned all group funerals, because it was evident that nobody felt easy in such a cases!) In several municipalities, the Chamber found that non-Serbs left because they were being terrorised and conditions made it impossible for them to continue living in the area.¹¹¹⁷³ (Let us see what is concluded in para 2471, on which this assertion is based: 2471. The Chamber recalls its findings that in some Municipalities Bosnian Muslims may have requested assistance or permission to leave, and in some cases they paid exorbitant fees to do so. However, these departures were not voluntary and occurred under circumstances in which they had no real choice but to leave. Even when Bosnian Muslim leaders or other non-governmental organisations were involved in trying to evacuate Bosnian Muslims, this occurred in an environment of fear and threats which does not suggest that the population left voluntarily. The Chamber finds that even though non-governmental organisations may have been involved in facilitating some of these displacements, this does not render lawful what were otherwise unlawful transfers. The Chamber found that in other municipalities while the Bosnian Serb authorities referred to movement of the population as “voluntary departure”, in reality civilians were fleeing out of fear for their lives; this occurred in intimidating and violent circumstances which negated any suggestion of voluntariness in their departures. (Let us see what is wrong with this paragraph 2472! It is not entirely accurate that “in some Municipalities Bosnian Muslims may have requested...” it was a case in every municipality which did have the armed skirmishes, and wasn’t a case in so many, the two third municipalities which didn’t have combats. Such a municipalities are those in which presidents were members of the Main Board of the SDS, such as: Trebinje, Ljubinje, Gacko B. Samac, B. Dubica Srbac, Mrkonjic Grad, Drvar, Sipovo, Sekovici, Rudo, Pelagicevo, Vukosavlje, Cajnice, Derventa, Laktasi, (dr...@ etc. Further, an alleged “exorbitant fees” were rather an obstacle than an incentive for leaving municipality. Next assertion, that “these departures were not voluntary” is not correct, and would be correct if it was said that these departures were not joyfull, but very sad, but still voluntary. An “environment of fear and threats” is an environments that was created by the two main causes, both oput of the control of the Serb authorities, namely – the civil war, and previous Muslim attack within municipality, or from out of municipality. This is for the first time in the judicial practice that there was forbidden to depict what the alleged victims did to contribute to the development! The Victimology as a science suggests otherwise!)

In many cases Bosnian Muslims were forced to leave or fled following killings in and/or attacks against their villages or following the take-over of towns or villages by Serb Forces and in many cases they were first arrested and detained before being transported out of the Municipalities.¹¹¹⁷⁴ (#THERE HAD NEVER BEEN ANY ATTACK AGAINST “VILLAGES”

¹¹¹⁷³ See para. 2471.

¹¹¹⁷⁴ See para. 2470.

BUT ALWAYS AGAINST THE TERRORISTS THAT MILITARISED SUCH A VILLAGES!# THERE IS SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE ON THAT IN THE FILE#! The Chamber is neglecting an obvious pattern while inventing a pattern that didn't exist: first, if a village or any other settled place had been attacked by the Serbs, it couldn't happen without prior Muslim attacks from such a village, which was always militarised. There is no any example that the "Serb Forces" attacked a settled place unless the Muslims attacked first. There is so many evidence that it is unbelievable that the Chamber didn't notice that, if the Prosecution wasn't fair enough to depict that. It is simply sufficient to see how many villages in Sanski Most municipality did have, and how many didn't have any trouble. The same is with all the municipalities from Indictment, not to mention the two third of the overall number of the Serb municipalities where the non-Serbs didn't have any problem. Nobody was ever arrested and detained if it was not in continuum with the Muslim attacks! Based on the nature of the common plan and the manner in which it was carried out, the Chamber considers that it was foreseeable to the ACCUSED that Serb Forces might commit violent and property-related crimes against non-Serbs during and after the take-overs in the Municipalities and the campaign to forcibly remove non-Serbs. (That how it looks like in this judicial system, where there is no an institute of a "wrongfully and insufficiently established factual state" which is inevitable in the Balkan countries judicial systems. This is an example of mixing up causes and consequences. Everyone could have foreseen that if there is going to be a civil war, there may and will be a lot of crimes, at least a bit more than in a peace times. But, the cause of the war was not a single Serb move, the cause of war was the Muslim intention to deny the Serbs their rights that were a "condition sine qua non" any independence! That was a very painful concession of the Serb side, and nobody was entitled to cheat the Serbs, to promise them a high autonomy if they accept the secession of BiH from Yugoslavia. Invented and established false term of "taking-over" municipalities is helping many other lies. There was no any take-over, the Serb had been a vast majority in about 50 municipalities, but even in such a municipalities they offered to the Muslims to form their ethnic municipalities (Variant A) no matter it was "foreseeable" the Serbs didn't produce the situation and development that delivered what was "foreseeable", it was the Muslim side which tried to prevent the Serbs from achieving their legal objectives!)

3516. In addition, the evidence of the Accused's knowledge of criminal activity in the Municipalities demonstrates that the Accused was well aware of this environment in which the forcible displacement of non-Serbs occurred. The Chamber notes the Accused learned of the killings of non-Serb civilians in early April 1992 in the town of Bijeljina immediately after their occurrence.¹¹¹⁷⁵ (So what? What was the President's position on 31 March to 3 April 1992? None! The President didn't have any authority when the Bijeljina incident appeared and ended. It was Mr. Izetbegovic who was in charge. And also it was his Cap. Hasan Tiric that was sent on 31 March to take Bijeljina under the Muslim control. And further, the "non-Serb civilians" were about 20 Albanian mercenaries, at least 8 Serb civilians, which makes 28 out of 41 casualty, and the rest 13 were the Bosnian Muslims. Furthermore, on 23 June 1992, the Accused was informed that Bosnian Muslims were subjected to intimidation and a policy of harassment and discrimination at the hands of the Bosnian Serbs, causing thousands to leave.¹¹¹⁷⁶ Founded on para 3334: 3334. At a meeting of the Bosnian Serb Presidency on 23 June 1992, the President expressed his view that Mauzer and Blagojević's paramilitary units, which were active in Bijeljina, were very extreme, and that all units should be placed under a single command of the army or the police. Meanwhile, at a Bosnian Serb Assembly session in late June 1992, the President said that the Bosnian Muslims who continued to live in Bijeljina, forming 20% of the population, were not considered "second class citizens" and that the government officials were actually trying to persuade them that they had nothing to fear. The Chamber recalls that in fact during the summer of 1992, Serb Forces instilled fear in the Bosnian Muslims who remained in Bijeljina and that Bosnian Muslims were forcibly expelled from Bijeljina by members of the Bijeljina Crisis Staff, SDS, Mauzer's unit, special police units, and Vojkan Đurković, while others were sent to Batković camp. (This is a grave and malicious lie which was easy to see from the evidence in the file. Based on fn. 10693 (P01478, p.219-220

- It looks like there is plundering there...

For Heaven's sake!!! How possibly this "document" (a notes with the unfinished sentences) could be used as a proof of guilt of this President? Once he had learnt that a two groups hadn't been placed under a single control, he ordered the highest possible delegation to visit Bijeljina. He also implied that the irregulars had suspended the civilian authorities. And Djeric added: "It looks there is plundering there..." NOT A single WORD ABOUT HARRASING, let alone expelling, THE MUSLIM CIVILIANS! So, an action of the President to rectify an aberration is qualified as his felony. The Judgment "corroborates" this "finding" also by the P02900 exhibit. Let us see what the two concluding paras of this document said:

Finally, to complete the picture, we must stress that the expert team of the MUP of the Serbian Republic of BH did encounter severe opposition and resistance during its engagement in Bijeljina, not only verbal but also armed. For example, some members of the expert team were threatened with liquidation, various misinformation was put into circulation, and lies spread about the alleged on-site activities and the rule of terror of the expert team, protest rallies against the "newcomers" were organised, and the CSB building itself was three times unsuccessfully attacked with heavy weapons in order to seize the building and banish the expert team of the MUP of the Serbian Republic of BH /as printed/.

See! The penultimate para! The central MUP of the RS had already sent an expert team to rectify all the unlawful conduct, but it had been resisted even by armed actions. The “protest against the “newcomers” meant that the newcomers could have been mainly the Serb refugees, or a Muslim returnees. Let us see the last para and the President’s remark:

Of course, the efficient, professional and always legal and legitimate work of the expert team of the MUP of the Serbian Republic of BH, aimed at creating the best possible security situation and ensuring the full protection of all the citizens in Bijeljina, have in time eliminated the existing resistance and secured the absolute trust of, and an outstanding reputation among, the population on the territory of the Bijeljina Security Services Centre.

“...the full protection of all the citizens in Bijeljina” was something what the high MUP official reported to the President, and the President responded:

*/Hand-written:/ Keep enforcing order and the rule of law.
2 August 1992 Radovan KARADŽIĆ*

After this report, the officer who reported (D. Andan) had been promoted to the post of acting chief of the Bijeljina CSB. So, the President’s Police established the law and order under the threats of a renegade, but the Chamber treats it as a proof of the President’s liability! But that was exactly the reason why the President asked the Yugoslav Prime Minister Panic to send a dozen of a very capable policemen to help the RS MUP!

In addition, he frequently discussed or was informed of the violent criminal behaviour of armed groups during the take-over of some municipalities.¹¹¹⁷⁷ (And what was his position on this issues? Did the President undertake any measures in regard to the issues? Of course, the Chamber-Prosecution alliance is adding another, false context, “during the take-over of some municipalities”! Neither there was any “take-over”, nor the official authorities tolerated and supported, let alone ordered any misdemeanour!) For example, on 29 July 1992 he was told about the criminal behaviour of paramilitary groups during and after the take-over of Bijeljina, which resulted in rapes, thefts, robberies, killings, and the displacement of Bosnian Muslim civilians.¹¹¹⁷⁸ (The document referred to is P02900, commented above. The time the President “was told about the criminal behaviour of paramilitary groups during and after the take-over of Bijeljina” was exactly the #period of the huge military/police action against these very same groups#. Not only the President ordered this action, but supported the officer who acted against the villains and the officer was promoted. But a malicious inaccuracy is the added sentence “during and after take-over, which is far from any truth. Again, the lawful action of the RS authorities are used against these very same authorities and the President, and there was no any “take-over, because the same authorities established in 1990 after the election, remained until 1996 and the new elections!!!) On 22 August 1992, the President was informed of the incident at Korićanske Stijene in which approximately 200 non-Serb men were killed by Serb Forces and thrown down a ravine at Mount Vlašić on 21 August 1992.¹¹¹⁷⁹ (The President was already in London for the Conference led by Lord Carrington and Ambass. Cutileiro. And what was the President’s attitude towards this event? Did the Chamber notice an overwhelming evidence about the actions of authorities? In particular, did the Chamber notice the President’s rage and dissatisfaction?) The President was also aware that paramilitaries, volunteers, and other irregular armed groups were being used to further the common purpose of the Overarching JCE, and were difficult to control.¹¹¹⁸⁰

(#EXCULPATORY!!! This sentence is highly contradictory in itself: if the said formations had been difficult to control, then, how come they had been used to further the common purpose”? And if the formations had been used for that purpose, why would the President order their ban and arrest as early as on 13 June 92, and his associates, Prime Minister Djerić already in April, and General Mladić in May, before the President took the office in Presidency?) The Chamber considers that in light of his knowledge of crimes committed in the Municipalities, the Accused was aware of the environment of extreme fear in which non-Serbs were forced to leave and of other acts of violence committed by Serb Forces against non-Serbs during the campaign of forcible displacement. (the #President was aware that a possible civil and religious war in BiH would cause a chaos, and warned the entire public, as well as the BiH Assembly, but the war occurred against the President's will and contrary to all the concessions he offered to avoid the war.# But, the last two words are incorrect, there was no a forcible displacement. BUT, WHY THE CHAMBER AVOID TO ESTABLISH WHAT WAS THE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE TOWARDS IT? AND WHETHER HE UNDERTOOK A NECESSARY MEASURES TO PREVENT IT, AND A REMEDY AGAINST PERPETRATORS? WAS THERE A SINGLE ONE CASE OF COVER UP?)

3517. The Accused was also told about looting, particularly of Bosnian Muslim homes, on several occasions,¹¹¹⁸¹ and knew that paramilitary groups involved in the JCE I Crimes were notorious for pillaging and stealing.¹¹¹⁸² (An unfair and incorrect implying that the paramilitary group were involved in JCE I Crimes. If it was so, either the JCE Crimes and the JCE I generally, weren't an objective of the President and the official policy of the RS, or the paramilitaries weren't efficient in pillaging and stealing, because for what reason would the President be after them, ordering their ban, arrest and prosecution? All that happened, and the Chamber had an overwhelming evidence that the official policy was opposed to any paramilitary, and acted to this regard. The Serb police arrested many of these tiefs and returned the stolen goods to their owners regardless of ethnicity!)

3518. The Chamber found that the Accused intended the unlawful detention of civilians.¹¹¹⁸³ And this "finding" is based on the para 3465, let us see what it said: 3465. Similarly, the Chamber also had regard to the manner in which the take-over of Municipalities was carried out by Serb Forces and the number of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats who were residing in the Municipalities prior to their take-over. With respect to the widespread practice of unlawfully arresting and detaining non-Serbs prior to removing them from Bosnian Serb claimed territory, the Chamber notes that there were repeated attempts by the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership to justify the existence of detention facilities in which they knew that civilians were detained. (Not only "they" didn't know that civilians were detained, but a civilians weren't detained in any of those facilities. All the detention units were under the permanent investigation by the state official services, and once some civilian was established to be only civilian and not a combatant or other kind of trespasser, he was released. All that had been detained after an investigation process weren't civilians. The Chamber neglected to take into consideration all the evidence to this regard. A mere fact that many had been released from the most notorious "camps" such as Omarska and Sanski Most proves that it was as the Defence claims. No reasonable chamber would neglect such a genuine and objective documents, which are not a testimony of somebody interested in the outcome.. Promises were also made to international representatives to improve conditions and release detainees. However, the Chamber finds, in light of its factual findings with respect to the Municipalities, that these assurances were completely at odds with the reality on the ground. This reality involved the unlawful arrest and detention of thousands of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats following the forcible take-over by Serb Forces of villages, towns, and municipalities, before they were ultimately transferred to other locations.11037 The Chamber finds that the Accused and the Bosnian Serb leadership were not only aware of these detention facilities but used unlawful detention at these facilities as a core element in achieving their objective of the permanent removal of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory. They also used the unlawful detention of civilians to secure the “exchange” of Bosnian Serbs detained by Bosnian Muslims. The Chamber therefore finds that the President and the Bosnian Serb leadership shared the intent to unlawfully detain Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats as one of the means through which they could achieve their objective of ethnic separation. The Chamber therefore finds that the only reasonable inference from this evidence is that the crime of persecution, through the underlying acts of unlawful detention and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures, was intended to achieve the objective of the Overarching JCE and that the Overarching JCE members, including the Accused, shared the intent for these crimes. With respect to these underlying acts of persecution, the Chamber also finds that the President and the Overarching JCE members shared the specific intent to discriminate against the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats on the basis of their identity.¹¹⁰³⁸ And this Chamber’s finding is based on the footnote 11038 which is nothing substantial, but the testimony of the Chamber itself, and a Chamber’s conviction. So, the Chamber is testifying for itself, see: 11038 In addition, based on all the evidence, the Chamber finds that the President was aware that his conduct as discussed further below was part of a widespread and systematic attack directed against a civilian population. There is missing another Chamber’s product as a basis for this empty assertion, because this footnote is not sufficient to be a basis for this para 3465 of the Judgement. All of it looks like an old Serbian saying: “Kadija te tuzi, kadija ti sudi” from the times of Turkish occupation, and meant: “the same judge is indicting and judging you!”

The Chamber notes that thousands of individuals, including women, children, and elderly people were detained for extended periods of time before they were ultimately transferred out of the Municipalities. In several of these detention facilities, Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and Serb Forces deliberately established and perpetuated inhumane living conditions.¹¹¹⁸⁴ (The Chamber doesn’t have any ground for such an assertion and finding that women, children or elderly people had been detained. There had been a cases that such a people had been admitted in a reception centres, because of the fierce fights in the zone, and they didn’t dare to return to their homes, but they had never been detained. This was a pattern in all municipalities where there was a fierce combat activity, always initiated by the Muslims, because the Serbs didn’t have any reason to inflame their own depth, far from any frontline. That was why the municipalities that didn’t have any combat activities didn’t have a detentions either. Again, the Chamber is calling upon another empty and unsupported assertion-finding of itself, para 2511, see: 2511. Having considered these factors the Chamber finds that members of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs and Serb Forces deliberately established and perpetuated inhumane living conditions at a number of detention facilities in the Municipalities.⁸⁴⁷¹ (Let us see what is under the fn. 8471 ⁸⁴⁷¹ The Chamber recalls that it did not have sufficient evidence to made a finding as to the conditions of detention at the TO military warehouses at Livade in Foča. See Scheduled Detention Facility C.10.6. (The Chamber never established that the poor conditions in any detention or reception facilities were deliberately posted or any human being deliberately deprived in any needs by the official representatives of the authorities. From the names and purpose of the facilities it was clear that the purpose was a quite different, not to be detention, but to be a farm, factory etc, that means the spaces and facilities had been improvised. All the detainees and authorities had been from the same places, they knew each other, they helped each other, and only somebody from the outside could behave criminally. The Chamber had a sufficient evidence that the Serb controlled territories had even more shortages in food, energy, water, medicines, that the Muslim part of BiH. See how it was in Grbavica 1993, ¹¹¹⁸⁴ See para. 2511.

D02424:2. General observations.

Outward appearances basically same as rest of Sarajevo (under B-H control); no electricity nor running water, damaged buildings, more weapons to be seen on the street, several tanks.

Or what Gen. Nambiar wrote as early as in July 92, see: D04647:

SERBIAN SIDE IS IN TROUBLE. THIS MAY SERIOUSLY ENDANGER THE WHOLE AIRPORT ENTERPRISE, AS THEY ARE NOW BEING SQUEEZED BETWEEN THE BH FORCES AND THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S SEIZURE OF THE AIRPORT (SO TO SPEAK). THE SDS'S DESIRE FOR LEGITIMACY, CERTAINLY ENCOURAGED BY SANCTIONS, AND THE THREAT OF EVEN WORSE RETRIBUTION, HAS PUT THEM ON THE SPOT. UNLIKE THE PRESIDENCY, THEY SAY THEY ARE NOW WILLING TO GO ANYWHERE, TALK TO ANYONE, WITHOUT ANY CONDITIONS, ABOUT THE FUTURE.

The sanctions mentioned here never eased, but became worse, until the FRY imposed its own strict sanctions in August 94. So, this is a permanently present situation, that the Serb side was squeezed by many elements, which directly influenced lives of ordinary people, soldiers as well as detainees. Without willing deprivation, or a negligence, there is no a crime on the Serb side for poor conditions in detention facilities! Beside that, if there was no a military necessity to detain some people, why the Serb authorities would take the burden of feeding and guarding those detained? Both the Prosecution and Chamber never established and differentiated whether the conditions in the detention facilities were a deliberate aggravation, or was it a maximum that could have been obtained in such a situation!

The Chamber found that the Accuse knew early on in the conflict in BiH that civilians were being detained by Serb Forces.¹¹¹⁸⁵ (Let us see how the Chamber came to this conclusion, calling upon para 3365 of the Judgment: 3365. The Accused was present at a 24 April 1992 joint session of the SNB and Bosnian Serb Government, where it was decided that the Ministry of Justice would be responsible for the exchange of detainees.10764 (#DETAINÉES, NOT CIVILIANS#! This fn. directs us to P01087, but in this document there is no a word about what the Chamber implied in this para. On 8 May 1992, the Government decided to form the "Central Commission for the Exchange of Prisoners-of-War, Arrested Persons and the Bodies of those Killed".10765 (#PRISONERS OF WAR, NOT CIVILIANS#! The document from this fn. P01088 also doesn't have anything illegal and criminal, and it was an obligation according to the law on war. According to Mandić, the impetus for establishing the Commission was to provide "rule of law and legal security" for people detained, many of whom were civilians from conflict areas.10766 The Chamber considers that this evidence demonstrates that the President knew early on in the conflict in BiH that civilians were being detained by Serb Forces. The fn. 10766 calls for para 127, let see a part of it: 127. The Commission's official role was to co-ordinate exchanges and to provide information on captured persons. As part of that role the Commission was to differentiate between civilians and prisoners of war, with a view to releasing the former and preventing crisis staffs or paramilitary formations from committing crimes against the latter.333

(This is #EXCULPATORY#!#! #All the "brought in" were subject to differentiation whether they were civilians, in which a case they had been released immediately#! So, once again, the #Chamber is punishing a good deeds of the President#! How possibly a correction of a possible misdeeds on the terrain through adoption of the decision on forming a commission to regulate the issue and rectify a possible felonies – could be used against the President? It was well known to the Chamber that the RS had to build up a completely new legislation and infrastructure in order to have the state institutions function. This was one of the regulation that had been made by the Government, and the President or some of his associates would be responsible if it didn't happen, and not because it did happen?

¹¹¹⁸⁵ See paras. 3365, 3375.

The Accused was told by international representatives of the large scale detention of civilians as early as May 1992.¹¹¹⁸⁶ This assertion relies on para 3366, let us see it: 3366. Allegations of large-scale detention of civilians were reported in the international press in May and June 1992 and John Wilson raised these allegations with Plavšić in the presence of the Accused.10767 Plavšić acknowledged the existence of camps but said that they were only for military aged persons who were detained so they would not fight the Serbs and made counterclaims that the Bosnian Presidency was holding prisoners.10768 And this fn (10768) calls on para 102 of the Wilson's Statement, see, P01029, para 102:

102. Plavšić acknowledged the existence of the camps but stated that they were only for people of military age who were being detained so that they would not be able to fight against the Serbs. She made counter-claims that the Bosnian Presidency were holding prisoners in the cellar of the Presidency Building. Radovan Karadžić was also present during this conversation but I cannot recall if he made any comments.

(So, even Wilson was not sure whether the President said something, and therefore couldn't be sure whether the President was present, or at least, was he listening to their conversation, and why should he, since Ms. Plavšić was in charge of the humanitarian issues. But, in the para 3366 of the Judgment the Chamber "established" that the "allegations of large-scale detention of civilians were reported in the international media in May and June 92", as if the international media were a reliable source. The same media reported that in the first year of war there were 300,000 Muslim victims, and 80,000 raped women. Should any serious man pay any attention to these allegations? Why would the RS state officials read the international media, particularly in a situation when it was clear that these media were drastically biased, and not to rely upon the official reports of the state agencies, the Army, Police and the State Security Service? Which state would allow this kind of conduct of the most responsible statesmen?)

On 17 July 1992, the Bosnian Serb MUP wrote a report to the Accused and the Prime Minister, indicating, inter alia, that the conditions in detention centres were poor.¹¹¹⁸⁷ And this assertion relies on the P01096, a MUP report of the anomalies on the terrain, see:

The Army, crisis staffs and war presidencies have requested that the Army round up or capture as many Muslim civilians as possible, and they leave such undefined camps to internal affairs organs. The conditions in some of these camps are poor: there is no food, individuals sometimes do not observe international norms, etc.

#GOOD DEEDS TO BE PUNISHED#! There is no doubt that it #pertained to the combat zone#, and there is no doubt that the RS MUP was critical of this practice, and once again, a #proper functioning of the RS MUP and other organs is used as an evidence against this very same state of RS and it's organs, including the President#. What does it mean that MUP wrote a report? That was their duty, to monitor the respect of the international standards, and domestic laws, and to report. How could this be used against any instance in the RS. Again, the Chamber forgets that a removal of civilians from a combat area was an obligation due to laws.

On 22 July 1992, it was reported to the Bosnian Serb Government that there had been occurrences of unlawful treatment of detainees.¹¹¹⁸⁸ This is D00430, p. 7, let us see what is an argument against the President:

- The Government has been informed on some occurrences of unlawful treatment of war prisoners. It has been concluded that all measures be taken to ensure the consistent application of an order by the Serb Republic of BH Presidency regarding the treatment of war prisoners, ¹¹¹⁸⁶ See para. 3366.

¹¹¹⁸⁷ P1096 (SerBiH MUP Report on Some Aspects of Work Done to Date and the Tasks Ahead, 17 July 1992), p. 3.

¹¹¹⁸⁸ D430 (Minutes of 41st session of Government of SerBiH, 22 July 1992), p. 7.

#EXCULPATORY#!!! “On some occurrences” not on a systemic unlawful treatment of POWs. There can be no better evidence on how the Government took care of the issue of legality of the treatment of POWs, but it was used against the President, who, by definition doesn’t deal with this kind of matters, unless the other state organs are neglecting a problem. It is evident that the Government took care, inspected, learned about irregularities, and concluded to take all measures, particularly mentioning the President’s Order “regarding the treatment of war prisoners”! This is rather to prize the President and the Government of the RS than to blame them. As in all other cases, when the evidence of the proper conduct of the authorities is used against these same authorities, a conclusion must have been contrary to it made by the Chamber, the only reasonable inference is: had there been any plan, the Government and other organs would celebrate when they learn that some crimes are committed, because there are many members of the Government, Assembly, Presidency and other organs who are alleged to be members of the OJCE. It can not be both – the officials investigating and rectifying a bad practice, and deliberately creating and introducing the same practice!)

On 25 July 1992, the Accused received a report from the ICRC following a visit to the Manjača camp, informing the Accused, inter alia, that two detainees had been subjected to ill treatment during the visit, frequent and widespread traces of severe beatings were observed, and that the general living conditions were “absolutely insufficient”.¹¹¹⁸⁹ (So what? The #President welcomed the ICRC presence everywhere in the RS#, issued several orders, and made a public recommendation to the population to be friendly towards the ICRC, see @). At the London Conference in August 1992, the “acute problem of the unlawful detention of civilians and the deplorable conditions in which they were held” was recognised.¹¹¹⁹⁰ “Recognised” means noticed and accepted to deal with, and this is the concerned para of D1142:

d. It was recognised that in addressing the acute problem of the unlawful detention of civilians and the deplorable conditions in which they were held. The primary objective to secure their release and return to their homes. If not immediately feasible, they identified the following possible options in the light of the wishes of those detained and in keeping with the provisions set out at para 3 below:

First of all, it didn’t concern only with the Serb side, but with all sides. Second, the sentence “If not immediately feasible” meant that there also had been recognised that there could have been a real and objective reasons why they couldn’t be at their homes. But, the President had been cooperative and accepted all the measures that would ease the situation of civilians! Was it established, and by whom, that the authorities of the RS were practicing such a felony of detaining civilians? Or anything that happened in the civil war was due to wishes of the authorities, including corrections of all deviations? But, let us see what else was provided by this agreement:

- repatriation to areas under the control of their respective ethnic authorities;

Therefore, not ethnic cleansing, but repatriation to the areas where they would be safe and feel secured.

choosing to stay temporarily in the area of detention;
relocation in areas away from the conflict under international supervision;
temporary refuge in third countries.

And this was one of several agreements concluded in 1992 between the warring sides and the international mediators and humanitarian organisations (ICRC, UNHCR et all.) according to which the sides were obliged to move civilians to a safety. Yet, the Chamber is “finding” a crime in exercising these obligations and commitments, without establishing whether it was in accordance with some of these agreements. The Conference also recognised that all the sides to the conflict had their undisciplined and independent, rogue elements, and agreed on the issue with the commitment to discipline them, see D01142:

ii) all the parties to the conflict have the responsibility to exercise full authority over undisciplined elements within their areas so as to avoid anarchy, breaches of international humanitarian law and human rights abuse.

So, the #Conference recognised that an anarchy was an axiom, something that is understood to appear in such a civil war#, and a full control over the territory was the only remedy. But, the Chamber found that it wasn't allowed to the Serb authorities to control their own areas. This Agreement also contained another provision pertaining to the rights of refugees to return if wished so: D01142:

iii) that refugees and displaced persons should be allowed to return voluntarily and safely to their places of origin.

Once signed, there couldn't be any talk about a "permanent removal" of minorities, because it would be impossible to achieve. However, the entire construct of this case of JCE relies on this impossible assertion.)

In light of this evidence, the Chamber considers that the Accused knew that the conditions in many of the detention centres where non-Serbs were detained were poor while others were inadequate at best. (The President knew that the conditions in the entire RS were poor and inadequate, but #neither one of it was a deliberate conduct of the authorities, nor the authorities could do better in any way#. Of course, there is a huge evidence that the only solution was – not to wage war, not to fight, because the Muslims in such a places didn't have any problem, as can be seen from the evidence.)

3519. The Chamber also notes that prior to the outbreak of armed conflict in April 1992, the Accused was well aware of the ethnic animosity between Bosnian Serbs, Bosnian Croats, and Bosnian Muslims and played on these historic antagonisms in order to further the objective of the Overarching JCE and its common plan.¹¹¹⁹¹ (This is not a serious assertion. All of it is all the way around, and this is upside down logics. The antagonisms lasted for several centuries, and the last genocide committed against the Serbs and Jews in BiH and Croatia happened 45 years prior to this crisis, and nothing was forgotten. So, an ethnic separation, which took place in the entire Yugoslavia, had a sense in BiH just contrary to what the Chamber concluded: to save the peace and to guarantee a free life to all the three ethnicities, as it would happen hadn't there been abandonment of the Lisbon Agreement by the Muslim side. The need to separate the states of the three antagonised ethnicities was aimed to avoid the chaos and killings, not vice versa, and it was understood by the UN and the European Community exactly that way. The Chamber doesn't have a single evidence and any basis to conclude that the intention of the ethnic separation in a separate entities had anything to do with any JCE. On the contrary, even the EC and UN recognised it as a solution. Many the most prominent persons at the time expressed their conviction that the only possible Bosnia is a three-partite Bosnia. Let us see some of these opinions: within this frame there are some of the opinions of the most prominent statesmen and authoritative persons:

¹¹¹⁹¹ See Section IV.A.3.a.i.B: Identification of historic enemies.

1. Generally on Western powers' involvement and policy of recognition

Lord Peter Carrington:

I think that what the international community on the whole – the Europeans, and the Americans and the UN – have done, on the whole made it sure there was going to be conflict. (I)

Lawrence Eagleburger:

I think the major lesson here is when you got involved in something like this with a thousand years of history underlying it all, you need to understand that once the dam breaks, the viciousness can be pretty awful – on all sides. (II)

Former Canadian Ambassador to Yugoslavia James Bissett:

As the Canadian ambassador to Yugoslavia from 1990 to 1992 I witnessed at first hand how western diplomatic ineptitude and clumsiness hastened the breakup of Yugoslavia and contributed to the dreadful violence and bloodshed that followed the disintegration of the country.

Here are a few examples:[...]

- The premature recognition of Slovenia and Croatia before any guarantees of civil and human rights were given to the Serbian population of Croatia, which, because of the horrendous events that occurred there during the Second World War, made civil war inevitable.
- The encouragement of Alija Izetbegovic to withdraw his signature from the so-called Lisbon agreement and to proceed with a referendum on independence in Bosnia which everyone knew would lead to the death and displacement of thousands. (III)

Colin Powell:

The biggest mistake was recognizing all these little countries when they started to decide they were independent. [...] The Serbs had very good reason to be worried about being in a Muslim-dominated country. It wasn't just paranoia.(IV)

Alexander Solzhenitsyn:

[W]hen – also in the period of a few days – Yugoslavia began to fall apart, the leading powers of the West, with inexplicable haste and irresponsibility, rushed to recognize these states within their artificial borders. Therefore, for the exhausting, bloody war which is today convulsing the unfortunate peoples of the former Yugoslavia, the leaders of the Western powers must share the blame with Tito. (V)

Early Warning by UN Secretary General Perez de Cuellar on 10 December 1991:

In his report to me today, Mr. Vance has described widely expressed apprehensions about the possibility of premature recognition of the independence of some of the Yugoslav republics and the effect that such a move might have on the remaining republics. Leaders of Bosnia-Herzegovina and Macedonia were among the many political and military figures who last week underscored to Mr. Vance their strong fears in this regard. More than one of the high-level interlocutors described the possibly explosive consequences of such a development as being a “potential time bomb”. [...] I am deeply worried that any early, selective recognition could widen the present conflict and fuel an explosive situation especially in Bosnia-Herzegovina and also Macedonia; indeed, serious consequences could ensue for the entire Balkan region. I believe, therefore, that uncoordinated actions should be avoided.(VI)

Former GDR Ambassador to Yugoslavia Ralph Hartmann on Genscher's statement that if “the bloodshed goes on”, Germany would “seriously consider” the recognition of Croatia:

The signal was understood. The prize promised by Genscher had its effect. The Croat separatists intensified their armed activities, blockaded the JNA barracks, their access to water and electricity, the bloodshed went on, and at the year's end Germany pushed through the recognition of Croatia as well as Slovenia. Bosnia-Herzegovina, the wonderful “small-scale Yugoslavia”, was driven into a disastrous civil war lasting several years.(VII)

Hartmann has also written a book “Die ehrlichen Makler“: Die deutsche Außenpolitik und der Bürgerkrieg in Jugoslawien: Eine Bilanz, 1999 („The honest brokers“: German foreign policy and the civil war in Yugoslavia: taking stock).

Original text of the above quote in German: “Das Signal wurde verstanden. Die von Genscher ausgesetzte Prämie wirkte. Die kroatischen Separatisten intensivierten ihre bewaffneten Aktionen, blockierten die Kasernen der jugoslawischen Volksarmee, ihre Wasser- und Stromzufuhr, das Blutvergießen ging weiter, und zum Jahresende setzte Deutschland die Anerkennung Kroatiens wie auch Sloweniens durch. Bosnien-Herzegowina, das wunderbare ‚Jugoslawien im kleinen‘, wurde in einen verheerenden mehrjährigen Bürgerkrieg getrieben.“

Lord Peter Carrington on Germany's promise of recognition of Croatia and Slovenia:

It broke up the constitutional conference because once you go throughout the six republics for independence, those two had no further influence on the constitutional conference, but you had to ask the other republics whether they wanted their independence, which meant that you had to ask Bosnia and it was perfectly plain that [...] there was going to be a civil war in Bosnia if you did do that.'(VIII)

James Baker:

Because we said if Yugoslavia does not break up peacefully, there is going to be one hell of a civil war. It nevertheless broke up non-peacefully, it broke up through the unilateral declaration of independence by Slovenia and Croatia and the seizing by these two country's republics of their border posts which was an act of force and which was an act that was in violation of the Helsinki principles, but the European powers and the United States ultimately recognised Slovenia and then Croatia and then Bosnia as independent countries, and admitted them to the United Nations. The real problem was that there was a unilateral declaration of independence and a use of force to gain that independence rather than a peaceful negotiation of independence which is the way it should have happened. (IX)

Cyrus Vance reportedly referred to the conflict in Yugoslavia as “Mr. Genscher's war.” (X)

According to former US State Department official George Kenney:

Vance argued that recognition would take away the diplomatic leverage that he had to try to bring the conflict in Croatia to an end and could possibly result in Bosnia blowing up. (XI)

James Bissett:

The premature recognition of Slovenia and Croatia was a guarantee that the breakup of Yugoslavia would not be resolved by peaceful means. Once again western intervention had exacerbated and complicated a serious Balkan problem. Again the German intervention had little to do with the actual problem faced on the ground in Yugoslavia. (XII)

Chancellor Kohl's insistence that Slovenia and Croatia be recognized as independent states was the death sentence for Yugoslavia. Sadly it was also the death sentence for many thousands of Serbs and Croats. (XIII)

Warren Zimmermann explained that the US was initially reluctant to recognize Croatia and Slovenia because of fears that recognition would prolong the fighting in Croatia and trigger a war in Bosnia. He stated that [w]ith regard to Bosnia, our fears proved out.

On whether the German push for early recognition of Croatia provoked more violence: We opposed the German initiative at the time. I continue to think the initiative was wrong, but it is now a part of reality. (XIV)

(Defence remark: the new realities was not invented by the Serbs, but by the internationals, to justify their support for the unlawful secessions!)

Lawrence Eagleburger on domestic political reasons for US recognition of Croatia: When we finally went ahead and recognised, one of the reasons we did so is because it had become a major domestic political issue for us here. We have particularly a large Croatian-American community and Mr. Bush lost most of them in the [1992 election] because they were unhappy with our having delayed as long as we did in recognising Croatia. (XV)

Even Lord David Owen made a vaguely critical remark on the policy of recognition: “My view has always been that to have stuck unyieldingly to the internal boundaries of the six republics within the former Yugoslavia [...], before there was any question of recognition of these republics, as being the boundaries for independent states, was a folly far greater than that of premature recognition itself.” (XVI)

Warren Christopher:

“There were serious mistakes made in the whole process of recognition, quick recognition, [of Croatia and Slovenia,] and the Germans bear a particular responsibility in persuading their colleagues and the European Community. [... Many serious students of the matter think the beginning of the problems we face here today stem from the recognition of Croatia and thereafter of Bosnia.” (XVII)

Lord Peter Carrington on why it was clear from the beginning that recognition of Bosnia would lead to war:

“The Bosnian Serbs, until comparatively recently, have been in the majority in Bosnia and then the Muslims, who had a very much higher birth rate than the Serbs, became the [...] majority population. And this, of course, was something very hard for the Serbs to swallow. And they made it abundantly plain very early on that they were not prepared to accept a situation in which there was an independent Bosnia under the Constitution which then prevailed. And indeed, under the Constitution which then prevailed, it was [...] illegal for Izetbegovic to declare independence because any constitutional change of that magnitude had to be agreed by all three parties.” (XIX)

George Kenney:

“The intelligence community was unanimous in saying that “if we go ahead and recognize Bosnia, it will blow up.” (XX)

US sabotage of the Carrington-Cutileiro plan

Lord Peter Carrington describing the plan:

“It was the last chance, I think, of trying to preserve Bosnia before the war broke out in earnest.” (XXI)

José Cutileiro on US “encouragement” to Izetbegovic to seek recognition of an independent BiH: “After several rounds of talks our "principles for future constitutional arrangements for Bosnia and Hercegovina" were agreed by the three parties (Muslim, Serb and Croat) in Sarajevo on 18 March 1992 as the basis for further negotiations. These continued, maps and all, until the summer, when the Muslims reneged on the agreement. Had they not done so, the Bosnian question might have been settled earlier, with less loss of (mainly Muslim) life and land. To be fair, Izetbegovic and his aides were encouraged to scupper that deal and to fight for a unitary Bosnian state by well-meaning outsiders who thought they knew better.” (XXII)

(Defence remark: Is it now clear that the Serb side didn’t create any Joint Criminal Enterprise, but made the most painful concession and compromise to accept an independent Bosnia if the Serbs get their republic within it. So, the war was not waged with any Serb aim or goal, but contrary, the Muslim side fought for a unitary and independent Bosnia, and that was a Joint Criminal Enterprise!)

Warren Zimmermann on the US position in early 1992:

“The embassy was for recognition of Bosnia and Herzegovina from sometime in February on. Meaning me.” (XXIII)

George Kenney on Warren Zimmermann's meeting with Izetbegovic:

“Zimmerman told Izetbegovic “look, why don't you wait and see what the US can do for you”, meaning “we will recognise you and then help you out so don't go ahead with the Lisbon agreement, don't accept the Cutileiro Plan and just hold out for some kind of unitary Bosnian state.” So this is a major turning point in our diplomatic efforts. (XXIV)

Lord Carrington:

“The American Administration made it quite clear that they thought the proposals – Cutileiro and my proposals – were unacceptable.” (XXV)

Zimmermann in 1993 in the context of negotiations on the Owen-Stoltenberg plan:

“Our view was that we might be able to head off a Serbian power grab by internationalizing the problem. Our hope was the Serbs would hold off if it was clear Bosnia had the recognition of Western countries. It turned out we were wrong.

[...] The Lisbon agreement wasn't bad at all.” (XXVI)

James Bissett:

“This US intervention guaranteed civil war in Bosnia and the death and displacement of thousands of people. [...] It appeared that the United States was determined to pursue a policy that prevented a resolution of the conflict by other than violent means. (XXVII)

Whatever the reason [for sabotaging the Cutileiro plan], it seems evident the U.S. intervention did more harm than good.” (XXVIII)

David Owen

“[T]he European Community's mistake over recognizing Croatia could have been overcome, if it had not been compounded by going forward regardless of the consequences with the recognition of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The U.S., which had opposed the recognition of Croatia in December 1991, became very active in pushing for recognition of Bosnia and Herzegovina in the spring of 1992. Yet it should not have been judged inevitable, nor indeed was it logical to push ahead and recognize Bosnia and Herzegovina, an internal republic of Yugoslavia that contained three large constituent peoples with very different views on independence.” (XXIX)

Lord Carrington described the recognition of Croatia, Bosnia and Slovenia as a “tragic error” and stated that he had advised the EC against recognition of Bosnia as

“...scenario of this sort [was] unacceptable for the Serbs in Bosnia [and] would lead to civil war.” (XXX)

Cyrus Vance stated ”that premature recognition of Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia by the EC and U.S. brought about the war that is going on now.” (XXXI)

George Kenney:

“Unfortunately, Izetbegovic reneged on his word after encouragement from U.S. Ambassador Warren Zimmerman, and the deal fell apart. Two weeks later U.S, and European recognition of Bosnia triggered the war.” (XXXII)

Warren Zimmermann considered the timing of the EU recognition of BiH to be “atrocious” and stated that

“[h]ad Izetbegovic pleaded for time to allow the Bosnian parties to work out their mutual relationship ... he might have avoided a war” (XXXIII)

Roger Cohen of the New York Times on the recognition of Bosnia:

“...was not the result of immutable historic forces but of the combined catalytic catastrophic stupidity and arrogance of officials in Western Europe, the former Yugoslavia and the U.S. [...] When Yugoslavia fell apart without Tito's boot to kick it into line, Germany led the West into early recognition of Slovenia and particularly Croatia, Germany's World War II ally. President Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia himself had warned that premature recognition would detonate the powderkeg of Serbs, Croats and Muslims living in Bosnia. It did.” (XXXV)

As far as Genscher and Kohl have commented on German foreign policy in the context of recognition, they have not, to the knowledge of Defence, made any statements critical of that policy.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas criticized the EC’s “hasty” recognition of Croatia and Slovenia, stating that that premature recognition had destroyed the possibility of preventing the breakup of Yugoslavia through negotiations and contributed to the civil war in Bosnia and that the responsibility of Germany and the Vatican for the escalation of the crisis was enormous. (XXXVI)

Dutch PM Ruud Lubbers explained that the German government was pushing for recognition against the resistance of other European countries and that the result was “a catastrophe.” (XXXVII)

Henry Kissinger stated that the premature recognition of the former Yugoslav republics, especially of Bosnia, did not create a new state but instead provoked a new civil war. (XXXVIII)

If the Prosecution was aware of these statements of the most competent participants of the Yugoslav crisis resolution, then it would be a real crime punishable in any of the countries that support this Prosecution!) The President knew that leading up to the outbreak of armed conflict, ethnic tensions were rising.¹¹¹⁹⁶ (This is something everyone knew, and the responsible world leaders warned not to rush with the recognitions until all the questions of security be resolved. A special responsibility is on those world leaders who encouraged Mr. Izetbegovic to abandon the Lisbon Agreement and fight for the whole BiH for his community! The President knew, and he was begging both the domestic partners and international mediators to wait a bit, until BiH be decentralised! This awarnes of the inevitable conflict was the ground for the President’s political fights for the peace and peaceful solution, including his speech od 15 October 91. This also had been a basis for all those concessions the Serb side offered in order to make all the sides satisfied, and to avoid the war! But, in this Court all is put upside down, and the President anti-war statements were interpreted as a threats!)

Furthermore, during the conflict, the President frequently dismissed the commission of crimes by armed groups, blaming this ethnic animosity.¹¹¹⁹² (Certainly, the President knew that it wasn't a policy of the RS, or VRS, or the RS Police, but it didn't mean that if the authorities are against commission of crimes, that crimes wouldn't be committed. Exactly for these reasons, for a centuries long lasting animosity among the three ethnic groups!) For example, at an international press conference in September 1992, in response to a question about a report alleging atrocities, including executions, and brutal "Nazi-like" conditions, the President said that in an "inter-ethnic and inter-religious war", there was no need for a command to kill, given that the three ethnic communities had "been antagonised during centuries".¹¹¹⁹³ That is correct. The President said at the same occasion that in such a kind of war the most needed command would be "stop" rather than "fire". What is wrong with it? Remember, when asked by somebody from the IC (int. Community) who is going to start a war, the President said: "nobody knows. Probably somebody from the lowest stratum of society." See..... The killing of the Serb, a groom's father on 1 March 92 hadn't been committed by a distinguished Muslim, but somebody from a bottom of society. But, the Chamber still didn't interpret the President's responses to the journalists correctly. See this part of P809, p.3:

Reporter:

The CSC Commission report on your country recently talked about atrocities, ?... executions, brutal conditions, Nazi-like, in all the concentration...

Karadžić:

Is a... probably made on all of sides, but the question is, is it better it was part of policy or not, is it inter-ethnic and inter-religious war. So this kind of war does not require command start to shoot or stop to shoot, start to kill or stop to kill. We have been warning European Community that it will happen because three ethnic and three national communities have been antagonised during centuries. And this report I have seen, this report was not honest, this report didn't see what Muslims and Croats do. And we know that they do.

So, the President gave an #academic response, honest and unbiased, recognising the chaotic situation#, and without accusing the Muslim leadership, because he believed that it had been done out of control of their officials too! This document contains other useful answers, such as whether there is envisaged the transfer of population, and the President responded that it must not happen, and the remedy is a full respect of the minority rights, but the Chamber wasn't interested in any exculpatory evidence!

3520. Having assessed all the evidence on the information available to the Accused prior to and during the execution of the common plan of the Overarching JCE, the Chamber considers that the President knew that the common plan, whereby thousands of non-Serb civilians were expelled en masse from their homes during and after the forcible take-over of towns and villages, and detained in facilities throughout the Municipalities, occurred in a context of inter-ethnic animosity and violence. (This is insane! There was no any "common plan", but just for a moment let us assume that the other side didn't have such a plan, what these animosities produced there, where there was no a plan, and where the #President didn't have any influence!# How come the #cruellest crimes on the Muslim side happened "without a plan"# and out of sight and influence of their leaders, while on the Serb side there was necessary to have a plan? Also, there was no a single evidence that the "Serb Forces" expelled civilians from their homes. The pattern was always the same: the Muslim extremists and terrorists attack the JNA and later the VRS and the Serb settlements. The Serbs respond, the terrorists escape to their settled places, the Serbs chase them to capture them, mainly they succeeded, and civilians seeked a shelter while the fights go on. After they had been housed somewhere, many of them didn't dare to return to their homes and demanded to be allowed to leave! To this respect there is an overwhelming evidence, and none to the opposite!) Furthermore, he knew that a climate of impunity for crimes committed against non-Serbs existed in Bosnian Serb claimed territory, particularly in 1992.¹¹¹⁹⁴ (This was not proven or corroborated by a single evidence. The abilities of the state structures were very low in 1992, but there was no a climate of impunity, and the Defence challenges both the Prosecution and the Chamber to show any evidence regarding the state structures being indifferent, let alone active in creating such a climate!) In light of these factors, he ought to have known that the non-Serb population was vulnerable to violent crimes that might be perpetrated by Serb Forces. (Both, the non-Serb and Serb population was vulnerable to violent crimes by the same perpetrators – the Muslim terrorists that terrorised them deep in the Serb territory and far from any front line. The “Serb Forces” were very responsible in all the areas where there was no combats. All the municipalities without armed skirmishes and, all the settled places without fights were without any crimes. The state organs fought a permanent fight against crimes and unlawful conduct, and the Chamber have seen it, but used it against the Serbs. But, this truth is never going to disappear, and the Prosecution and the entire Court is going to be blamed for such a ruthless forgery of the history of this conflict!)

3521. On the basis of the foregoing, the Chamber is convinced beyond reasonable doubt that it was foreseeable to the Accused that persecution through torture, beatings, physical and psychological abuse, rape and other acts of sexual violence, and the establishment and perpetuation of inhumane living conditions in detention facilities as cruel or inhumane treatment, killings, forced labour at the frontline, the use of non-Serbs as human shields, the appropriation or plunder of property, and the wanton destruction of private property, including cultural and sacred sites, might be committed by Serb Forces used to carry out the objective of the common plan, during the execution of the common plan, with discriminatory intent. (The only problem with this “findings” is that there was no any plan, and that it could have been foreseeable without any plan, and that the President warned all the sides in BiH not to push towards the war, because a war would produce a chaos, and a chaos will be a commander in chief to all of us. But, the Chamber qualified this speech as a threat. How come the Prosecution-Chamber of this UN Court so desperately searched for a Serb “mens rea” and a phantom plans, while only the Serbs gave up their best interests for the sake of peace, and had it been respected, there wouldn't be any war and crimes? On the other side, the Court did have an insight in the “Islamic Declaration” authored by Mr. Izetbegovic, which was a plan of the first class for what happened to the BiH nations?) Furthermore, the Chamber finds that it was foreseeable to the Accused that murder might be committed by Serb Forces used to carry out the objective of the common plan, during the execution of the common plan. (This is completely unfair. Why there was no “carrying out” the objectives of a common plan in the rest of #two third municipalities#? Why the Chamber was so negligable to miss to check the most markant remark and objection of the Defence, that the Serbs never and nowhere initiated fights? Then it would be clear whether the Serbs had a plan, or not. There are only several questions without an answer, but these answers are going to be searched for through the next decades, an it will not be something the United Nations and the international community is going to be proud of!) Finally, the fact that the Accused knew that the common plan was executed across a large geographic scope which involved numerous protagonists from civilian and military units, and was directly made aware of mass killings at the beginning of April 1992, demonstrates that he knew of the possibility that killings on a large scale might be committed by Serb Forces used to carry out the objective of the common plan. Therefore, the Chamber finds that the possibility that extermination might be committed by Serb Forces was sufficiently substantial as to be foreseeable to the Accused. These crimes will hereinafter be referred to as “JCE III Crimes”.

(What risk, and what the President could have done, when #everything depended on the other side#. Had the other side ceased to attack, there wouldn't be any “common plane” any risk, any crimes, as it was the case in many municipalities where the Muslim side didn't attack, and the civilians didn't have any troubles. The same was even in the municipalities where the Muslim terrorists attacked, the civilian un-related to these terrorists didn't have any trouble, their homes hadn't been used for fights, and they remained living in these municipalities to the end of war. The Chamber didn't notice this fact, and didn't even try to establish why some did have, and some didn't have any troubles!)

3522. The Accused's continued participation in the Overarching JCE until 1995 demonstrates that he acted in furtherance of the common plan with the awareness of the possibility that the JCE III Crimes might be committed either by members of the Overarching JCE or Serb Forces who were used by him or other members of the Overarching JCE to carry out the common plan,¹¹¹⁹⁵ during the execution of the common plan, demonstrating that he willingly took that risk.¹¹¹⁹⁶

(What risk, and what the President could have done, #when everything depended on the oth#er side. Was the President expected to surrender entire his Serb community to the Muslim forces and accept a slavery for his people, and get for himself a good bargain? Even if he was a traitor of such a kind, who would obey him? Why a nation that fought for freedom during several centuries would accept it? Within a few hours there would be a formidable reaction of the entire community!)

3523. The Chamber is satisfied that the JCE III Crimes which have been found to be proven beyond reasonable doubt are sufficiently linked to the Accused because they were found to have been carried out by members of the Serb Forces who were used by the Accused or another JCE member to carry out the JCE I crimes.¹¹¹⁹⁷ The Chamber has found that the JCE III Crimes were committed either during or after the take-overs of Municipalities during the campaign to forcibly remove the non-Serb population or in connection with unlawful detention in a scheduled detention facility. The Chamber has also considered the context in which the crimes were committed, including the timing and the correlation with the actions taken and crimes committed by other Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb authorities who acted in furtherance of the common plan. (In numbering so many “circumstances” it is miraculous how the Chamber successfully avoided to mention that the #crimes never happened unless the Muslim terrorists attacked deep in the Serb controlled territory#! But, this is the crucial element, and skipping it, the whole picture becomes fake and detrimental for the future of this region!)

1. Conclusion: Accused's individual criminal responsibility

3524. The Chamber found above that the Overarching JCE came into existence in October 1991 and continued until at least 30 November 1995, that the Accused significantly contributed to the Overarching JCE, and shared the intent with respect to the JCE I Crimes. (If so, how come the Serbs and the President so easily gave up all these JCEs for the sake of the Lisbon Agreement? From 15 October 1991 until 6 April, when it happened the war broke out, there is a period of almost 6 months, when many other outcomes of the crisis had been possible exclusively because the Serbs and the President were flexible in giving concessions! It is obvious that the Chamber accepted the entire Prosecution allegations according to which all and every manifestation of the political life of the Serbs in Bosnia was unacceptable and ¹¹¹⁹⁵ See para. 3511.

¹¹¹⁹⁶ See para. 3466, where the Chamber found that the evidence of the Accused's intent to commit the JCE I crimes, coupled with his knowledge of the commission of crimes by Serb Forces against non-Serbs in the Municipalities did not rise to the level of intention for the crimes discussed herein.

criminal. Nobody in the world is so partisan of the #Bosnian illegal fight for independence# as this UN court! Even those who pushed the region in a horrible bloodshed are more critical about it, than the Prosecution and the Tribunal! In addition the Chamber found that the President acted in furtherance of the Overarching JCE with the awareness of the possibility that the JCE III Crimes might be committed either by members of the Overarching JCE or Serb Forces who were used by him or other members of the Overarching JCE to carry out the common plan, and that he willingly took that risk. (#Couldn't be more wrong!# If it was true, then there would certainly have been his operative orders to the VRS or Police to that respect#. Not only the Prosecution didn't submit any written evidence, but there was no any verbal hint towards that conclusion, nor a telephone intercept, nor a testimony, not even a circumstantial evidence, that the President wanted or supported, or tolerated any of the JECs. The President didn't issue any executive orders to the VRS, except about the international requests to stop fighting, or let a humanitarian aid to pass. That means that any of his orders would have to be registered in the VRS Main Staff, and the subsequent executive orders would inevitably call upon the superior's order to the Main Staff.) The Chamber therefore finds that the President bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) of the Statute for persecution, a crime against humanity (Count 3); extermination, a crime against humanity (Count 4); murder, a crime against humanity (Count 5); murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Count 6); deportation, a crime against humanity (Count 7); and inhumane acts (forcible transfer), a crime against humanity (Count 8). The Chamber will address the issue of cumulative convictions in Section IV.F below. (A common sense can not understand it!!!)

3525. In addition to the Accused's liability through participation in a JCE, the Prosecution also alleges that the Accused is individually criminally responsible for planning, instigating, ordering, and/or aiding and abetting the crimes relevant to the Municipalities component through certain acts and omissions.¹¹¹⁹⁸ It also charges the Accused with individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute.¹¹¹⁹⁹ However, having considered all of the evidence and in light of the findings made above, the Chamber finds that commission through JCE pursuant to Article 7(1) most accurately and appropriately reflects the Accused's responsibility for the crimes in the Municipalities component as charged in the Indictment. The Chamber will therefore not analyse the Accused's responsibility under the other modes alleged by the Prosecution in the Indictment.
